HEAVY DAMAGE EAST OF DALLAS

WATER REACHES NEW HIGH RECORD ON EAST FORK OF TRINITY BELOW DALLAS

LEVEES ARE DESTROYED

Crops in Rich Bottom Lands Destroyed by Floods and Other Damage Done

By Associated Press.
Rockwall, Texas, July 5.—Damages from the record flood on the East Fork of the Trinity will reach enormous proportions here.
The work of grading the roadbed for the East Trinity traction company's line from Dallas to Greenville had practically been completed and four or five miles of the grade was washed away completely.
The lowlands for a distance of from 12 to 15 miles along the river for a width of three or four miles were inundated and all crops, roads, levees, cooling many thousands of dollars worth of property were washed away. There has been no train service for several days.

$350,000 Damages Near Forney.

By Associated Press.
Forney, Texas, July 5.—Damage conservatively estimated at $350,000 has been done to crops and levees during the past few days by the greatest flood on record on the East Fork of the Trinity.

More than seven thousand acres were covered under from 3 to 10 feet of water which completely destroyed the crops of corn and cotton that were growing thereon. Not only were the waters the highest on record but the flood came up faster and many inhabitants of the rich river bottoms were compelled to flee for their lives. One family is reported still marooned on an island below this place.

The T. & P. bridge here was in danger of being washed away and a railroad of gravel was left standing on it. This morning an attempt was made to move the gravel but the bridge began giving away on account of the weakened abutments and the gravel was left standing. Probably the heaviest damage was to the levees which the farmers had built around their fields. These were completely swept away in many instances by the rushing water.

The public roads are impassable but the county bridges are nearly all standing.

T. & P. Tracks Inundated.

By Associated Press.
Dallas, Texas, July 5.—The tracks of the Texas & Pacific railroad are covered with water for a distance of two or three miles as a result of the flood in the East Fork of the Trinity several miles east of here and trains are being detained over the Texas Midland and the Houston & Texas Central.

The Katy lines are being rapidly repaired and the Shreveport line is now open. Officials today said the main line north would probably be open for traffic Monday.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR FRISCO TEXAS LINES

Avery H. Turner of Amarillo and George Scheeyer of Fort Worth are Appointed

By Associated Press.
Dallas, Texas, July 5.—Upon the application of Thomas H. West and B. L. Winchell, general receivers for the Frisco lines, the North Texas properties of the Frisco including the St. Louis and San Francisco of Texas, the Brownwood North and South line and the Fort Worth and Rio Grande were put into the hands of receivers by Judge Meek of the federal court here today.

Avery H. Turner of Amarillo, vice president of the Panhandle lines of the Santa Fe and George Scheeyer of Fort Worth, vice president and general superintendent of the Texas Frisco lines, were appointed receivers. U. S. Attorney Atwell of Dallas, was appointed master in chancery for the lines. He is also master in chancery for the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient of Texas.

The receivers were required to file bonds of $25,000 each. The petition alleges that the receivers are necessary owing to the temporary misfortunes and difficulties of the Frisco system. The lines include the St. Louis and San Francisco of Texas, the Fort Worth and Rio Grande and the Brownwood North and South.

YOUNG WOMAN KILLED BY SKY ROCKET

By Associated Press.
Aurora, Ill., July 5.—A sky rocket shooting out of a heap of fireworks here last night pierced the breast of a young woman five hundred feet distant. The victim was Lulu Minton, aged 20. She was instantly killed. The fireworks were exploded from a platform suspended from the rigging of a bridge over Fox River. Miss Minton was standing on an island five hundred feet away when one of the rockets struck her.

MILLION DOLLAR PEACE MONUMENT

PLAN FOR ERECTION OF MEMORIAL SPOT ON GETTYSBURG FIELD REVIVED

TO ASK APPROPRIATION

Reunion of Blue and Gray on Semi-Centennial of Battle Comes to End

By Associated Press.
Gettysburg, Pa., July 5.—The reunion of Blue and Gray commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg practically came to an end today although the camp where more than 50,000 old soldiers were camped for during the week will not close officially until tomorrow.

All day long weary veterans walked over the dusty roads and streets to the railroad station. It was the most uncomfortable day of the week. One old soldier in gray from South Carolina dropped dead in the crowd at a railroad station. He was H. H. Hodges of Union Hill, S. C.

Tonight the camp was practically deserted except for soldiers and workmen who have already begun dismantling it. It will take two months to restore the grounds on which the camp was pitched, to its original condition and to rebuild fences and roads.

Tonight the army officers after a week of hard work made merry at a dinner in the big mess tent. When the week's program for the celebration was tentatively laid out some time ago it was arranged that the final feature of the reunion should be the laying of a corner stone of a great peace memorial on the battle field but the plan for the monument fell through.

Today Col. Andrew Cowan of Louisville, Ky., who was a captain of the First New York Battery in the battle of Gettysburg revived the plan and as a result of a meeting over which he presided a committee went to Washington with a view to securing the introduction in Congress of a bill for the erection of a Peace Monument and the appropriation of one million dollars.

DECLARES TEACHERS SALARIES TOO LOW

Quality of Teaching Force Will Undergo Progressive Deterioration at Present Pay

By Associated Press.
Salt Lake City, July 5.—Salaries paid school teachers are by far the lowest paid in any class or profession. Teachers must be paid more or the public must be content to see the quality of teaching force undergo progressive deterioration.
This was the declaration of Superintendent of Schools C. G. Pearce of Milwaukee, in discussing the report of teachers salaries at the opening day of the 51st annual convention of the National Educational Association. President J. N. Baker of the University of Colorado declared that school and college courses were too long and that they should be shortened so that the student graduates from college before he was twenty years old.

Washington, July 5.—Representatives of American churches in Mexico have joined with officials of the Southern Pacific railroad in assuring the state department that Americans in Mexico and especially in the neighborhood of the capitol have been singularly free from annoyance during the present revolutionary troubles.

FRISCO LINES MAY BE DISMEMBERED

Appointment of Separate Receivers for Subsidiary Lines Leads to This Belief

By Associated Press.
St. Louis, Mo., July 5.—Announcement was made today at the offices here of general counsel for the Frisco that Frank Andrews of Houston, Texas, was today appointed receiver for the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico railroad, a subsidiary of the Frisco running from Houston to Brownsville, Texas. The appointment of a receiver for this line which has a mileage of 500 and the appointment of separate receivers for the Frisco lines of Texas is construed here as an indication of dismemberment of the Frisco system. The Chicago & Eastern Illinois has receivers distinct from those of the Frisco proper and it is understood that road is to be operated independently hereafter.

CONGRESS PLANS SWEEPING INQUIRY INTO LOBBYIST MULHALL'S BRIBERY CHARGES

Washington, July 4.—With both houses of congress determined to investigate the sensational charges of Colonel Martin M. Mulhall of Baltimore concerning legislative lobbying, done by himself in Washington in behalf of the National Association of Manufacturers, it is evident that the lobby inquiry will last through the session. From what President Wilson told today it was evident that he knew of the Mulhall allegations prior to their publication. There have been hints at the White House that the lobby inquiry would bring out facts that would cause a great stir. Discussing the Mulhall charges with the Washington correspondents, the president said he believed lobby in tariff legislation had caused to "embarrass anybody but itself." The senate lobby committee decided to go to the bottom of the charges made by Mulhall. Senators are inclined to be excited over Mulhall's charges and insist that no effort be spared to get at the bottom of the accusations in order that steps may be taken to vindicate the good name of the upper house through action against members who may have been guilty of questionable or criminal conduct. Mulhall's charges will not be taken up, unless the committee changes its plan, before July 8, when the committee will meet for the first time after the Fourth of July holidays. Chairman Overman telegraphed subpoenas to John Kirby, Jr., of Dayton and David M. Parry of Indianapolis, former presidents of the National Association of Manufacturers to appear before the senate committee in connection with the Mulhall charges. The subpoenas were sent to San Francisco, whence the two men had arranged to sail on July 3 for New Zealand to investigate business conditions. Chairman Overman believes that when his process servers get through they will have spread a dragnet to bring in material for an investigation covering the last ten years' doings at the capitol. Mulhall charged directly that among the representatives, most of whom are now out of office, who took cash from the N. A. M. for controlling the house labor and judiciary committee or for other subserviences there were Kitredge Haskins of Vermont, Ralph B. Cole of Ohio, John J. Jenkins of Wisconsin, who was chairman of the house judiciary committee from 1904 to 1908; James E. Watson of Indiana, Charles E. Littlefield of Maine, J. J. Gardner of New Jersey, Henry M. Condy of Missouri and Representative James T. McDermott of Illinois, who is the only one now in office.

He is now in office. Mulhall's charges are being investigated by the senate committee. Mulhall's charges are being investigated by the senate committee. Mulhall's charges are being investigated by the senate committee.

CALLED BACK TO THE CAUCUS

TELEGRAMS HURRIED OUT TO SENATORS BY ADMINISTRATION LEADERS SATURDAY

PLEDGE NOT ADOPTED

Friends of Tariff Bill Hesitate to Force Action in Face of Strong Opposition

By Associated Press.
Washington, July 5.—Administration tariff forces are facing one more important fight in their attempt to align Senate democrats in solid support of the Simmons-Underwood bill. The democratic caucus spent two hours today debating the question of unit rule to bind all party members to support the bill and to vote down all hostile amendments in the Senate.

Strong opposition from senators opposed to free sugar and wool prevented action on the binding pledge today. With only thirty-one senators present out of a total democratic membership of fifty-one, the leaders hesitated to force an issue today, and the caucus adjourned until 4 p. m. Monday. Telegrams were hurried out tonight to all absent democrats calling them to Washington for Monday's meeting.

The fight against the binding pledge developed more strength today than the leaders expected. However, Chairman Simmons is confident that the caucus Monday will adopt the unit rule by a safe majority, pledging all democrats except those who have made other pledges to their constituents or who withdrew from the caucus, to support the bill in its entirety. Practically all other features of the bill have been completed.

TRAIN ROBBERS GOT LESS THAN $1,000

Express Messenger Gives Graphic Account of his Experiences With Bandit

By Associated Press.
New Orleans, La., July 5.—Less than $1,000 was obtained by the robbers who held up the Illinois Central southbound train near Tallahatchie, Miss., Friday, according to J. F. Noller, general agent of the American Express company here, who said the money in the wrecked safe had been checked up.

Express Messenger Hook who was forced by the robbers to hand over his keys, today gave a graphic account of his experience. He said: "I heard them give orders to pull the three cars down the track and I crunched in a corner with all the doors locked and lights out. The robbers did not try to shoot through the steel sides of the car, but their bullets came through the wooden door. I got out of the way, they were cursing all the time. They ordered me to open the door shouting what they would do to me when they got in. Finally they said something that made me nervous. One said, 'Stay in there then and we will put enough dynamite under the car to blow you into next summer.' I knew that they would make the threat good and I opened the door. The leader laughed as he came through the door with a rifle in one hand and a revolver in the other. He said you thought that you were pretty cute, turning out the lights, didn't you?"

"I told him I was trying to sleep. 'Sleep, hell,' he replied and dropped down to his work. "I opened a small safe, there was nothing in it; the larger safe can only be opened by agents where the train stops. When I found this out he made me hand over my keys and get out. The other robbers were on the ground. He instructed me to return to the passenger cars and 'hit 'er up.' I shouted back to them to leave my keys on a hook. They were there when I went back."

Japs Provide Celebration When Americans Fail

By Associated Press.
Newcastle, Cal., July 5.—Newcastle would not have had a Fourth of July celebration yesterday had it not been for Japanese residents. Most of the Americans had gone away visiting to neighboring cities, so the Japanese built a platform in a field, decorated it with American flags and Japanese lanterns, inviting Americans to attend and provided day and night fireworks and free refreshments. A Japanese was master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers, several of whom were Americans.

A DULL WEEK ON STOCK EXCHANGE

DEALINGS WERE ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY IN THE HANDS OF PROFESSIONALS

EASIER MONEY RATES

Crop Prospects Allowed Increasing Importance and Conditions are Promising

By Associated Press.
New York, July 5.—Dullness was the chief characteristic of the week in the stock market with the impending triple holidays and the oppressive heat as extra factors. Dealings were almost exclusively in the hands of professional traders and the market displayed the tendencies resulting from such operations based as they were on rising impressions of bullishness or mere rumors. An example was the shifting effect of the final stages of the Union Pacific dissolution negotiations, which while reflecting no vital change from day to day caused wide fluctuations in the stocks affected.

The money market showed it expected an easing tendency both here and abroad with the turn of the year. In Berlin especially, which was the point of greatest strain, the private discount rate fell to 4 per cent. The fraction and it was made manifest that anxious preparations for the stress of sentiment had been overdone.

If there was any assurance that this relaxation was more than temporary, decided improvement in security markets might be looked for. Fundamental conditions in the capital markets, however were unchanged and there is not much expectation of the present year seeing any reduction of official discount rates by the great government banks abroad.

In some directions stiff money rates are reported to have put restraint on mercantile ventures, but on the other hand the high operative cost of railroads showed in current reports is due to a policy of very liberal expenditure of upkeep in caring for heavy equipment.

The sustained steel and iron output for June and particularly the increased demand for pig iron owing to price concessions was encouraging. Crop prospects are allowed increasing importance and the government estimate on cotton was regarded as highly satisfactory.

WILSON REACHES SUMMER CAPITAL

PRESIDENT FINDS NEW HAMPSHIRE HOUSE THE EXTREME OF ISOLATION

ESCHEWS WORK, LOAFs

Denies Himself to Correspondents and Enjoys Quietude of Summer Home

By Associated Press.
Cornish, N. H., July 5.—President Wilson, always fond of simplicity and seclusion when seeking rest and diversion from official duties, found in his summer home here, which he saw for the first time today, the extreme of isolation and quiet. Arriving at noon at Harlakon house which has been leased for two years as a summer capital, the president saw nobody in fact but members of his family.

No one got inside the big gate a quarter mile from the house to catch a glimpse of the president. The evening was spent at home in the shadows of oil lamps and candles, for there are no electric lights at Cornish.

The president's arrival was inconspicuous and attracted little attention. Windsor Vermont, the nearest town of any size contributed a handful of its 2,000 population to greet the president. Except for a single cheer there was no demonstration. Along the way, some of the natives waved a flag and occasionally an arrow fluttered, but the ascent of three and one-half miles to Harlakon house was uneventful.

The secret service operatives grouped in a car behind trailed along with difficulty as the president's machine plowed along in the loose sand and left in its wake an atmosphere thick with dust. The weather was hot and sultry but cool towards evening. The president was taken on a sight seeing tour of his home by Mrs. Wilson immediately on his arrival. He stepped out on his portico that fronts on the Connecticut river the mossy banked stream, shallow and filled with logs and debris.

Miss Jessie Wilson returned home tonight from a visit to Pennsylvania from a visit with her fiancé, Francis Bosse Sayre. The family circle was not complete as Miss Margaret Wilson, the eldest daughter, is visiting near Madison, Wis. The president brought with him only his physician. He said that he expected to do no work but would loaf. He denied himself to correspondents, saying that anything of importance developed at Washington calling for comment from him he would get the news and become fully advised of the situation. He expects to leave Tuesday but may stay longer if legislative affairs in Washington are not pressing.

DAUGHTERS WIN; WILL HOLD ROOM

Court of Civil Appeals Sustains Injunction Against Removal of Relics

By Associated Press.
Austin, Texas, July 5.—The petition for a writ of mandamus against Judge Anderson prohibiting him from acting on the petition for injunction filed by Daughters of the Texas Revolution against the superintendent of buildings and grounds who is engaged in the restoration of the Alamo, was filed before Associate Justice Compton and Phillips this morning.

No action was taken today, it being decided to postpone action until next week following the hearing before Judge Anderson.

The third court of civil appeals sustained the injunction granted by Judge Wilcox against the superintendent of buildings and grounds restraining him from removing the relics gathered by the Daughters of the Confederacy from a room in the state house.

This is the only room available for the recently created fire insurance commission, and since the injunction the board must now meet in the corridors of the state house. The court in sustaining the injunction declares that inasmuch as the room was given over to the Daughters by resolution of the legislature no person has the authority to remove them save the same authority.

PETER RADFORD ON COTTON LOANS

HEAD OF FARMERS' UNION SAYS FUNDS IN SIGHT TO FINANCE COTTON CROP 1913

(By Peter Radford, president Texas Farmers' Union.) Fort Worth, Texas, July 5.—I have just closed a canvass for cheap money to finance distress cotton this season and I want to publicly thank the many bankers for their liberal responses. We now have in sight sufficient funds to finance the cotton crop and we have provided for unlimited finances at Houston for cotton stored there. We have some 350 warehouses in the interior and where local banks do not care for the business, application should be made through the local union to the central quarters at Fort Worth or the cotton can be sent down to Houston where E. F. Shropshire, our general sales agent, will handle it on a six per cent basis. I estimate that it will require approximately $40,000,000 to finance distress cotton and I think we have approximately this amount available.

The volume of money required will be small as the farmers will immediately pay off their debts or spend the money he borrows in his home town and the most of it returns to the bank as a loan. There is no reason why a farmer in Texas should dispose of a single bale of cotton at an unsatisfactory price for the purpose of meeting maturing obligations. The facilities are offered for borrowing the money at six per cent and the producer can hold the cotton as long as he pleases on those terms.

A Dollar With a Soul. It is refreshing in this strenuous commercial life to find so many dollars in Texas with souls. A dollar is approached to perform a task that does not yield the highest rate of interest, we usually hear the rustle of the eagle's wing as it soars upward; when a dollar is requested to return to the bank, it usually goes to the Goddess of Liberty for its contractual rights. When a dollar is asked to expand in volume to suit the unknown requirements of industry it usually talks solemnly of its redeemer, but soon it has entered into the bank vaults for several years, being lending money to farmers without compensation, or at a very low rate of interest to buy blooded livestock, build silos, etc., and no user however bowed at the shrine of a dollar received as large returns on the investment as these progressive bankers, who made loans without interest to uplift productive industry. The spirit of the builder which actuated the bankers in these smaller transactions is now extended into the financing of the cotton crop on a mammoth scale and the returns will be correspondingly increased.

The time was when money loaned on such a basis would severely test the sanity of the banker; such a transaction would pain the directors and shock them like a blow in the face. A cashier that would dare to cast bread upon waters and it did not return buttered side up in time for annual dividends, would have to give way to a more capable man. The plan does not necessarily mean that the bankers are getting any better, or that the milk of human kindness is being tumbled more freely by our financiers. It indicates that the bankers are getting wiser, becoming more able financiers and more competent citizens. The vision of the builder is crowding out the spirit of the pawnbroker wherever it occurs. A light has been turned on a new world of usefulness where the vermin of greed and avarice can never enter and where the germs of business genius flourish. The bankers have always been liberal city builders, but they are now building industry.

God Almighty's Noblemen. The work has had its hardships and has met with such obstacles as all progressive movements invariably encounter. It will have to break the shackles of shiffling habits of many farmers, melt the adamant heart of many bankers and it has become the target of ridicule and suspicion of the near sighted. I want to here name a few of God Almighty's noblemen who have co-operated in working out the plans and who have given their time, influence and loaned their money under this arrangement to finance warehouses throughout the entire State: W. H. Eddleman, Ben Smith, Fort Worth; B. B. Cain, D. E. Waggoner, Dallas; Joe Hirsch, Corpus Christi; J. H. Kemper, Galveston; James Garity, Corsicana; Edwin Chamberlain, San Antonio; W. H. Fuqua, Amarillo, and hundreds of other bankers who are financing cotton in local warehouses. The parties whose names I have mentioned have loaned money on cotton throughout the entire State.

Heaven loaned earth the spirit of these men. They are not actuated by philanthropic motives; they are shrewd bankers; they are men of educational knowledge and exceptional business ability who are big enough to roll into the place the corner stones of empire.

GASOLINE FROM NATURAL GAS

WEST VIRGINIA MEN CLOSE CONTRACT WITH DEVELOPERS CO. TO INSTALL PLANT

Bradley and Burns of West Virginia who were here a short time ago making tests of the gasoline saturation of the gas in the wells of the Petrolia field have signed a contract with that company by which they are to begin the extraction of gasoline from natural gas about Sept. 1. The exact result of the test as made by the two West Virginia men was not given out but it was very successful and will probably mean the installation of other plants by independent operators who have as yet no market for their gas. The gasoline from gas industry in the east has assumed such mammoth proportions as to be recognized in the rulings of the Interstate Commerce Commission which has regulated the manner in which this highly flammable form of gasoline may be carried. Although it is only within the past five years that the industry has existed the manufacturers have an organization with headquarters at Sistersville, W. Va., and a selling agency at Pittsburgh. As first there was not a great demand for it on account of its low flash point and explosive nature but the improvements in the compressing machinery resulting in a bettering of the grade and a consistent campaign by the producers organization, aided by improvements in carrying methods, widened the market for the product until now there is not enough to supply the demand. The recent rise in the price of gasoline and the probability that it will not decrease in a number of years has caused the producers at all the fields to study the problem of increasing the supply; hence the field of the gas compressor is spreading from east to west with great rapidity. Already there have been a number of installations in other fields in the west, notably in Kansas and Oklahoma; and the engineers are studying the chemical composition of the lower grade California product with a view to building a compressor that will extract the gasoline from that also. The production of gallons per thousand feet varies widely in different fields but the standard flash point is about 80 and as high as 13 gallons per 1000 feet have been made.

The Developers are the first to install this plant in the North Texas field and they will be followed by others, for there is no necessity of setting the walls in the Petrolia field stand idle even though they are shut in. Messrs. Bradley and Burns are now in the east purchasing their equipment from the pioneer builders of gas compressing machinery, the Bessemer Gas Engine Company and expect to have the plant in running order by the first of September.

WICHITA FALLS PEOPLE READ THE TIMES ADS.

A gentleman paid The Times a fine compliment yesterday. He said he never did see a city where the people read the ads in the papers like the people of Wichita Falls read The Times ads. The gentleman was Mr. Johnson of the Robertson-Johnson Company. Mr. Johnson has been in business in other cities and has had a good deal of experience with newspapers, and The Times takes his remark as a high compliment. The Times is proud of its advertising patronage and aims in every way to make the advertising profitable to the merchants who use it. A glance through its columns today will show a generous number of well set advertisements that it will pay any one to read.

Mexia.—It is reported that M. A. Weslow, secretary of the local Cotton Club, closed a deal with H. Perrette, while attending the recent convention of the Ad men at Baltimore, whereby Mr. Perrette will locate the American Stone Company's quartzite plants in this city. The company is capitalized at $500,000.

When the cotton is picked and the farmer is forced to sell to meet his obligations. The bankers will now advance him as much as $35 per bale on his cotton at six per cent interest payable at his option which will take the cotton out of distress and enable the farmer to hold it until the price is satisfactory and make a glut easily avoidable. The consumption of cotton is distributed evenly throughout the year and it should be marketed as the spinners demand it. There are so many factors that enter into fixing the price that no one influence can be satisfactorily segregated and reduced to a cash basis, but in my estimation the slow marketing of cotton will increase the farm price at least from 2 1/2 to 5 cents per pound net over the price obtained under present methods, making a minimum net saving to the farmer of $50,000,000. It is now up to the farmer to take advantage of the facilities offered.

COTTON GROWING IN OTHER LANDS

SOUTHERN STATES WILL SOON LOSE MONOPOLY ON THEIR CHIEFEST OF CROPS

(By S. A. Lindsay, chairman Texas Spinners' Association.) Scheveningen, Holland, July 5.—I attended the so-called "Ninth International Cotton Congress" held at Scheveningen, Holland, June 9, 10 and 11. I say so-called, because under the words "Ninth International Cotton Congress" printed in large red letters, there followed in small black type the words "of the International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers' Association" and because it was not an international cotton convention, but a European Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers' Association meeting. This association is not a loosely organized one, but on the contrary it is a strong, well organized, well financed body of large manufacturers of cotton and therefore large purchasers of American as well as other raw cottons, who are determined upon obtaining two results, namely, cheaper cotton and that produced upon English and other European countries' possessions. There is doubt about this. J. G. Dougherty, one of the biggest cotton planters of North Carolina, was there and so definitely was impressed with this prominent determination that he told me he was going home and set about at once to change his plan of farming for we clearly see, said he, that in the near future English and Continental European spinners will cease to purchase American cotton at prices which our farmers can produce it.

Widespread Effort to Enlarge Cotton Growing Territory.

There are in this powerful, brainy and resourceful organization, the spinners of England, Ireland, Scotland, Switzerland, France, Italy, Germany, Holland, Italy, Norway, Portugal, Russia, Spain and Sweden. This organization has succeeded in interesting the government of England, Portugal, Russia, Italy, Japan and others in the production of cotton in various countries of the world. The Italian government has, through its agricultural department, encouraged the raising of cotton in Southern Italy until today that country is producing almost all the cotton the spinners of that country can consume. The head of the experiment station at Naples told me cotton made a good follow crop after certain other crops, and that farmers got from 800 to 1400 pounds seed cotton to the acre, which turned out 34 to 36 per cent lint. That in a few years the mills of Italy would consume and he hoped they would not exceed this amount. At this convention the other day Portugal was exhibiting cotton grown on some of its possessions, which experts said was so good that one cent a pound more than American cotton. It is well known that South American countries and China are growing cotton, but to what extent is not known; so is Egypt, India, Russia and Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

At this Cotton Congress I heard the report of the man who had been studying the conditions as to cotton growing in India. He said that that country would increase its output of cotton six million bales in the next five years. I also secured a copy of a report of Moritz Schanz, "Cotton in Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan," which was made to and for this Congress. This report covered 142 pages of printed matter and shows that England has loaned large sums of money to both Egypt and the Sudan for the development of the cotton industry. In the Sudan country the loan amounts to $15,000,000 and in Egypt a much larger sum. The report showed that the acreage in Egypt could be increased only about 25 per cent and that for the lack of labor not much progress in cotton growing in the Sudan could be looked for in the next few years. But England has possibly remedied this mistake by its aid loan.

Attitude of Spinners Toward American Cotton.

After considering these reports the convention passed a resolution which I wish to quote, showing the attitude of the spinners of Europe toward American cotton growing industry. This is the resolution. Read it: "You who think the south has a monopoly of cotton and no opposition to present prices of cotton. India says this resolution 'being the only country in the world in which an immediate and large expansion of cotton cultivation can be expected, this Congress desires to place on record its appreciation of the efforts that have been made by the small staff of agricultural officials in India to further the extension and cultivation of cotton, but regrets that these efforts must be seriously hampered for the want of money and of a proper staff.

Financial help of the magnitude that is about to be given to Sudan is not needed in India, but it is impotently that adequate progress can be made unless the Indian (British) government allots more money annually to agriculture and enlarges its staff. Then follows resolutions pledging its support to all countries in the world which will undertake the important work of cotton, and closes with expressing satisfaction that the English government had guaranteed the interest on a loan of $15,000,000 to be used for the promotion of cotton cultivation in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and urges other governments to take similar steps for the extension of cotton cultivation in their respective colonies. It will be noticed that these spinners are smart enough to encourage

GERMANY MAKES GREAT STRIDES IN COMMERCE

Now Claimed Germany is Ahead of England as Producer of Merchandise

By Associated Press. Berlin, July 5.—Germany has made prodigious strides in commerce and industry since 1888, and much statistical information showing these increases has been published in connection with the celebration of Emperor William's quarter century on the throne. It is now claimed that Germany is ahead of England as a producer of merchandise. In the last twenty-five years Germany's imports have risen from $218,000,000 to $2,541,000,000, and her exports from $239,000,000 to $2,146,000,000. This foreign business affected the spinners of Europe toward American cotton growing industry. In 1888, 48,000,000 tons; in 1912, 137,000,000 tons. Coal including lignite, was produced in 1888 to the extent of 31,000,000 tons; in 1912 the figures showed 259,000,000 tons. Crude iron produced in 1888, 4,300,000 tons; in 1912, 17,800,000 tons. Imports of raw cotton show equally interesting figures: 913,000 bales in 1888, as against 2,276,000 bales last year. Germany's great electrical industry has almost been created during the last twenty-five years and the leading electrical manufacturing company of the country has increased its capital strength more than 20 fold since 1888.

The general machinery trade has been revolutionized, its product enormously increased and the efficiency of all the leading industries of the country has been multiplied several times over of improved machinery. While the efficiency of the individual workman has been greatly enhanced by machinery, the number of working men and women also has been largely increased, as is evident from a gain of about 10,000,000 in the population of the Empire since 1888.

SLEEVELESS JACKETS HOLD SUPREME PLACE

New York, July 5.—General lines for summer fashions are now decided and delightfully becoming costumes are the results. Sufficient variety is afforded to permit every woman to appear at her best, regardless of figure or flesh. Fashion has reckoned considerably with good and bad points and made allowance for each. With long, straight lines for the stout woman, and easy, graceful curves and folds for her slyph like sister, what more can be required of her? Yet more than these she has granted. Delightful contributory features, which are of the utmost importance to the success of the gown, she has accorded with lavish hand.

Sleeveless jackets of Eton style are much in favor. Whether the frock be of batiste or satin matters not; it is equally smart. The Eton is attached to the belt behind to keep it in place. Gumpers or sheer veils are worn underneath. The tunic, too, is very smart, and is bordered material or flouncing is most effective. The charm-popular, but now they have become the rage. By the time summer has waned the frock or suit without the vest will be the exception. They are made of plain or brocaded satin, harmonizing or contrasting in color with the costume. A real Scotch note is struck when the vest is developed in soft taffeta silk of tartan design. When worn with tailored suits, these are very chic and charming. Stripes and dots in high colors are also very popular. The vest is no longer an incidental. It has become a real feature. Many of them are long, extending much below the waistline. Occasionally they are inserted in the jacket fronts. At other times they are sleeveless garments, as men's vests are, and again they are simulated vestals in the fronts of waists, which when the jackets are discarded, become smart blouses.

So much has been said of the dropped waist and the use of satins, two notable considerations of present-day fashions, that anything further may seem superfluous. Suffice it to say that the plain foundation may be transformed into smart morning or afternoon frock by the addition of the gray wash knotted gracefully over the hips. Last summer's evening gown, denuded of its trimmings and slashed in the front yoke to form a deep V, may take on a bewitching charm by adding a ruching of maline or tulle. A scarf drapery of lace, maline or chiffon will contribute the latest style note.

Vying in popularity with moire silk and taffeta are the charming crepe de ing frock of the first illustration has this attractive addition. The model was developed in bordered batiste, having blue ground and pink and blue border. The tunic slopes gradually to a point in the center back, a style very pleasing to almost any figure. The waist has surplice closing, dropped shoulder and long, close fitting sleeve.

There are many novel touches which give distinction to a plain gown. In making frocks for your stay at seashore or in the mountains, why not introduce them? Added to a last season's dress, they enable us to present an altogether up to date appearance indistinguishable from this year's model. There are the ruches which can easily be adopted on almost any sort of frock, and which add a softening grace to face and throat very charming to see. These are of net, tulle, shadow, plain or Valenciennes laces, sheer embroideries and also fine wash cotton. Double ruffles, one lying flat, the other turned upward about the neck and throat, are very attractive. The upper ruffle terminates at the throat, the other extends to the bust and very often to the waist. The fluted and pleated ruffles are sold in boxes by the dozen, and by women of means are discarded when soiled. The remaining ninety-nine out of every hundred of us prefer the washable kind, which are to be had even in dainty dishonour nets. They are worn on shirt waists, simple one piece dresses, elaborate afternoon and evening costumes indiscriminately. They also add an effective finish to coat or jacket.

Fichus, on sheer muslin and batiste dresses, are much in evidence. They are of net, edged with narrow lace, and of shadow, plain or real lace. They are brought about the neck, to the waistline in front in much the same fashion as they were sixty years ago, in the days of crinolines and silk brocades. The real laces, of course, make the handsomest fichus. A wide fichu of Bohemian lace, trimmed with oval medallions of embroidered net, extends well over the shoulders. Another fashioned of maline lace, attractively draped in soft folds across the back and over the shoulders, is tucked under the girdle at the left side. Fichus of tucked net, sheer linen, elaborately embroidered and inserted with real lace, embroidered net, chiffon and mousseline de soie, gave all extensively used on dainty mornings, afternoon and evening frocks.

Vests, too, add a distinctive note to the up to date costume. These were revived last fall and soon became Chines, with large floral motifs, gayly colored purple, pink, cerise and green predominating. Gray remains in favor as background, but all the shades of brown, ranging from straw to orange, are claiming attention. With these shades lemon color is fashionable as trimming. Corals and braids of this color, as well as in shades of black and white, are twisted into charming ornamental motifs and used as trimming. Buttons covered with braids are supplanting those of pearl, bone and glass, so popular during the spring. Girdles, frogs and fastenings, ornamental buckles and plastrons are all attractively developed in cord or braid.

RINGLING REPORTED TO HAVE DROPPED ROAD

Ardmore Citizens Fail to Furnish Required Cash Subscription and Circus Man Quits

John Ringling, millionaire circus owner and promoter of a proposed line of railway from Ardmore to Lawton, is out of the railway building business in Oklahoma, according to the Ardmoreite, the principal newspaper published in the eastern terminus of the proposed road. The Ardmoreite says that the citizens of that city have refused to support the proposition with cash subscriptions and, consequently, the contract for a bonus of $100,000, signed by Ringling and Ardmore Chamber of Commerce officials, has been rendered null and void.

At a mass meeting of Ardmore subscribers to the bonus, which was attended by Mr. Ringling himself as well as Jake L. Hamon of Lawton, president of the promoting company, the notes of subscribers were returned to them and Ringling announced his retirement from the Oklahoma field.

Although at one time it was thought a contract had been practically closed between Mr. Ringling and representatives of the city of Lawton whereby the road was to have been built here, that contract was never properly signed by the trustees in charge of the east side city park and was never approved by Ringling.

That being the case, later developments, though never made public by representatives of the company showed that a route had practically been settled upon which would leave Lawton entirely out of the company's calculations and divert the prospective road by way of Waurika and into Texas to Wichita Falls.—Lawton Democrat.

Jake Hamon Denies Report. Ardmore, July 5.—The published report, stating that John Ringling, millionaire circus owner and promoter of a proposed line of railway from Ardmore to Lawton, has withdrawn from railway building in Oklahoma is not true, according to Jake L. Hamon, when talked to over long distance phone at Ardmore.

When told of the report published in a Lawton paper he stated that the same article had been published in the Ardmoreite. When asked if the report was true about Mr. Ringling withdrawing from Oklahoma railway circles, Mr. Hamon stated, "If such is the case I am glad to be informed of it as I am with Mr. Ringling every day here and he has not yet even hinted such a thing to me. No, sir, Mr. Ringling is not out of the railway business in Oklahoma and has no intention of getting out. Thus emphatically did Mr. Hamon deny the report published in the Ardmoreite and Constitution."

He stated that he would be in Ardmore for several days and he expects to practically close the deal here returning to Lawton.

Permit me to say that if you charged what the paper is actually worth you would have to double up on the price of it. It is the way J. C. Ziegler, manufacturer of corrugated iron tanks, etc., writes the Times, at the same time enclosing his check for a year's subscription. The Times is trying to do it. It will part toward the up and faster. The man sat petrified with fear in the cutter, her bows lifting in the wash from the great barrel on the edge of the sickly green hue. "Night by night I follow some good fellow fiver myself, joining glass by glass, and song by song with him. Oh, I'm nervous so weary at all. But on I must go until I send some man back to duty."

The grating cry was swamped again, even as the voice rose in pain, but the coxswain capped it with a yell of mortal terror, his own face green in the light.

"Mother of Hope," the stroke-crew whimpered. "This no drown man! This a dead banisher—a sea-diver! Back to the ship for our lives!"

His panic fear roused his mates. They struggled, rolling and falling against each other, in a waste to see the place, and crying out.

Up to that moment Barry had stared, helpless to do anything. In his condition of mind his faculties had failed him. Imagination it might be—but the men had heard—and, as well may happen to the best of men in moments of great doubt and peril, his only feeling was one of bewilderment, incredulity, amazement. But, as the cutter swung round, his senses rallied. What to the superstitious sailors was the cry of some sea-wraith became again to him a stricken cry for help from some fellow mortal.

With a passionate cry, he sprang up in the well, felling the gawking stroke with a back-handed blow that keeled him over the thwart.

Even as he did so, the buoy swooped down upon him like a great black bat, and again the aurora of green burst out of the water, illuminating the whole ugly bulk.

Barry glared, wild-eyed, at this mystery that mocked them—the buoy, the very green light—his brain whirling. For, as he looked, fascinated, all regardless of his own hazard standing in the plunging boat, from the green water something rose, as though lifted by some unseen power from the heart of the ocean.

Slowly the thing ascended the buoy, buoyed. It reached the top of the buoy, fell out of the green fluid ulation bring to any city, but who belong to the L. W. class. They are afraid to raise their voice in praise of anything through fear that someone will expect them to climb down from their seats in the band wagon of progress and help push it along instead of riding on a free pass all the time. Their number, however, is small, and growing smaller all the time. It will not be a great while until there will be none of them left and when that time comes the Times will be able to say that Wichita Falls is composed of a citizenship where every man—every property owner is a booster and pusher for the town.

NO MORE LEAGUE BASEBALL HERE

DRILLERS TURNED ADRIPT BY LOCAL ASSOCIATION AND MAY BE DISBANDED

ARDMORE MAY FOLLOW

Not Certain that Hugo Will Take Over Team and Finish Season in League

There will be no more league baseball in Wichita Falls this season. The Drillers have been turned adrift and the local association, it is understood, has forfeited all claims to the players as well as money deposited with officials of the league as a forfeit. It is reported from Paris that the Drillers will be taken up by Hugo, Okla., and will play the season supported by that town.

Secretary John Thomas of the local association had planned to go to Sherman today in an effort to arrange for the transfer of the team to Hugo or some other town and at the same time save $250 of the forfeit posted but a telegram from President Johnson of the league yesterday convinced him that the trip would be a futile one.

Under the circumstances it is believed the players will be free from their contracts—and may go where they please. There are several promising youngsters on the team who will likely get tryouts in faster company. While it is reported that Hugo may take the derelicts it is believed not improbable here that it will be disbanded and that the Ardmore team which has also been a failure both in losing its column and financially will follow the local team onto the rocks and that the league will finish the season with only six teams.

The league was organized in Wichita Falls three seasons ago and the first season Wichita Falls put up the funds to keep the league alive. Even then the game did not pay here and since the losses have been heavy. It is reported that the team has already lost over $3600 this season.

Mrs. Will Morris who was operated on a week ago for appendicitis in a local hospital was removed to her home 1812 Eighteenth street Saturday night. She is recovering rapidly.

THE PENNANCE OF JIM FIDDLER

By CHARLES FRANCIS BOURKE

THE Jungfrau was to sail at midnight, under orders for the Philippines, and the imminent departure was being celebrated by what the gruff old executive officer called a "wardroom wake," a ceremony necessarily accompanied by cracked ice and accessories, tons of tobacco-smoke, larking officers with visions of a long spell of "loafing duty" ahead; the whole capped by public ship-knowledge of a landing most elaborate in view of the multitude of supplies packed within the transport's white walls. For the "peddlers of the Junkshop," as the service styled the big supply-ship, lived high when the gods smiled.

"Hope your ground-tackle will hold out, Barry. You're sure no artist at that box; we'll just keep you in commission this night. Give us another tune, son."

It was the executive officer himself who spoke, with a shrug of indifference that did not "libe" with so ordinary a request.

Lieutenant "Billy" Barry (so-called to distinguish him from his cousin, the engineer officer of the same name and ship) swung round from the piano, browsed smiling, and said: "Nay, I'm done and away. Official duty to finish farewelling. Special service, see?" Barry grinned affably. "Finish farewelling—yes!" the executive snorted. "Special service that you'd chance a wind-up by farewelling me?" The Jungfrau may not be so attractive, but she's official.

The executive officer frowned portentously. "I won't be the first time you've shaved it too close, and there are limits, sir. Going the pace don't pay, son—there's nothing in it."

The Jungfrau's surgeon, a dry old Scot, seized the momentary silence that ensued to remark: "He's as much like poor Fiddler as two green peas. Never can resist running ashore at the last moment—even in a mortal pest-hole like that Malay harbor, as Fiddler did last year."

The silence continued. The officers of the Jungfrau had all loved Fiddler, "nobody's enemy but his own," that old crowning anomaly of mankind, "a good fellow." And now?

Barry, the engineer officer, said soberly, sticking the ash from his pipe: "And to his own death!"

For Engineer Barry, above all others, gave, perhaps, his cousin, the Lieutenant (senior), had chummed with Fiddler since the early days at Annapolis.

Fiddler had been officer on this same transport—a big, white-sided, converted yacht she was really, utilized, for the most part, as an "apparatus ship" on the Asiatic station, where she made harbors deadly with constructed contact mines, electrical bombs, submarine bells, and mysterious floating contrivances, just as she had been employed recently by the same old crew on the home station, before receiving orders for the East again.

In the meantime, Lieutenant Billy Barry was in the stern-sheets of the Jungfrau's cutter, shooting shoreward under the impulse of four oars. And Lieutenant Barry's face was gloomy.

He had caught the surgeon's mention of Fiddler's name as he left the wardroom, and that mention had recalled memories that saddened and sobered him, turning his thoughts to the gay, care-free friend who formerly had always shared his jaunts of pleasure and pain.

A cool wind came from the sea, and Barry pulled his coat about him, shivering.

The effervescence of the wardroom had passed, and that sorry comparison of the surgeon's between himself and Fiddler had brought his image clearly to mind, dimly visualizing on his mental retina his low forehead—condemned that Scotch doctor, anyhow!

The night was very still, with the crescent moon just making darkness visible. The sea-wind hummed low and mournful over the lapping of the waters, and the long, slow man-of-war's stroke as the four seamen rowed and fell on the thudding oars. The stars above seemed cold, and the distant shore-lights took on a suspicious look. Barry shook himself angrily. "Confound it! I'm getting forecastle mulligrubs, too. Get up more steam there, men. We're not pleasure rowing in the harbor for experimental purposes in connection with mysterious signaling apparatus and submarine bells. The incident rasped on his already tensed nerves.

"You're a blind fool!"

"Shipmate aho! Go back! Go back, I say!"

The ghostly wall floated over the water from the buoy not twenty feet away, half-muffled, like the voice of a man drowning.

The officer heard and the crew, as they lay on their oars, while the cutter swung closer.

"Give heed, I say! Go back! I'm dead, Jim Fiddler!" The wall came to them again, weird, eerie.

Rising from the midst of the water, as a spot, facing him—a tall, spare figure with arms that rose and fell with the lapping of the water around the buoy, with an odd, familiar gesture. The coxswain's eyes bulged with horror; there was a note of absolute conviction in his yell of terror.

"Give heed! Go back! For my sake, Barry! B. O. Barry, B. B. O." Then there was a pause.

For an instant, as he faced the thing, Barry's brain still strove toward sanity; but that half-forgotten secret came out of the old days at Annapolis—only he and his cousin and Fiddler knew that. And the coxswain had sworn.

Barry missed going overboard as he dropped, sunk into the stern-sheets by the roll of the cutter and the savage tug of the four paddle-stricken men at the oars. But the coxswain caught him and eased the fall, while the cutter, traveling faster than she had been rowed since she was built, made for the Jungfrau.

From that night forward Lieutenant Barry was a changed man to the transport Jungfrau.

In fact, he ceased to be Lieutenant "Billy" Barry at all. He was another man—the worried executive officer put it—from keelson to truck, fore and aft, port and starboard.

More than once his engineer cousin approached him, looking guilty. But he, like all the others, failed to break through the barrier of the "occurrences" which shrouded about the remembrance of that fateful night.

So the wardroom left him severely alone, to go his own sinful route of reformation, for Barry was in dead earnest.

While Barry remained simply a harness "crack" in the wardroom and a martinet at duty, the high power of the quarter-deck did not interfere; but when a transformation took place between decks, the commander took a hand. And the "Old Man" was wroth. For almost a week the transport Jungfrau had become a "nerve-ship." Whispers of spirits and sprites and hobnob and wriths were always in the air. Men shuddered at night duty and almost mutinied when sent aloft in the dark. In one noising expedition to a drift net at night (for the Jungfrau drave out drift nets among her other duties) a boat-crew had to be driven over the side. Another cutter outfit flatly refused to visit a bell-buoy adrift and mournfully toiling. They preferred iron and hardtack and water, and said so.

The surgeon finally went a-scuting, for nerves belonged to his department, and his report "broomed the truck," otherwise capped the climax of the commander's wrath and worry. The old man, warning punning ghost-ships, and he said so luridly.

"It's miraculous," the doctor said, "though you'll mind I've prognosticated our ex-lieutenant was no Socrates for brains. The smash was fated to come."

"Go on," said the commander sternly. His frown was the more humiliating because Barry had been his particular pet. "The lad's breaking down, you mean?" he asked.

The surgeon grinned like a Cheshire cat, for he was a gray monkey for mischief.

"I'll just tell you. The superstition that's rife aboard ship is superinduced, as you may say. Artificial, in a way, like to a small turret riding in a big turret. I'm told sailormen believe in spirits by natural preference and swallow 'em neat; but when I find that Lieutenant Barry has shut off the seamen's bottled beer—without complaint, which is miracle number one, and also discover visually that he preaches to the blessed crew—"

"What! Billy Barry?" the wardroom gasped.

"No other, gentlemen. In squads and groups and severally. And, furthermore, on my medical word, the lieutenant's preachment include ghosts—"

"Send for Lieutenant Barry instantly!" A junior jumped at the commander's tone.

The commander of the Jungfrau was not in the habit of standing on ceremony with the junior officers; and he relieved his mind as soon as Barry appeared.

"What do you know about this ghost business on board my ship?" he growled. "They say you're in it and encourage it."

"Some of the men received a shock before we sailed, sir," Barry answered promptly. "I did myself."

"Well?" The commander's face was implacable. For a second Barry hesitated. But he remembered the boat's crew that had been with him and blurted out his experience at the buoy.

"That is what I heard, sir, and that is what has influenced the men, and myself as well."

In the dead silence the commander glanced at the surgeon, then turned his black brows upon the engineer. The latter was condemned already as a known practical joker.

"I have wanted to tell Billy all along, sir, he said frankly. "It was the big electrical idea that I reported I was working on."

The commander smiled grimly. "I got it nearly perfected, sir, when the Manila orders came, the telegraph, I mean. We worked secretly, of course, and all the apparatus was in the big buoy, to be taken ashore bodily till we returned—sounding boards, magnets, and all. But the wires were still connected. You know, sir, we intended to experiment talking from the buoys to passing ships by a sort of wireless telephone method. Of course Billy knew nothing about this. So I just talked to him twenty feet from the buoy, even then when I was talking into the receiver in my quarters on the ship. That is all, sir, except that it was rather a sorry jest. I confess I counted some on scaring the crew, and maybe forcing Billy to come back to the ship. Of course I expected to explain after-

A titter ran round the officers. "But I saw Jim Fiddler," Billy cried. "And the cox saw him."

"Too bad, sir," the engineer grinned, feeling easier. "I told cox to row close to the buoy. He was merely pretending to be scared."

"Send for that man," the commander growled.

The cox of Lieutenant Barry's boat did not feel easy in his mind. When the engineer questioned him, he stammered, shivered, and burst out: "I did see Left-nant Fiddler, sir; that's the truth! It was a warning to let 'em alone once they're dead. I saw him rise from the sea all in the green light with my two eyes."

The engineer exploded. "Now I understand Barry's queer notion. That was the submarine electric light attached to the buoy, under water, to preserve them," he laughed. "It's intended to signal passing ships as well, and fares the moment the machine talks. I didn't know the thing would work so well, really."

"Anything else you wish to know, Lieutenant Barry?" the commander asked quite sarcastically.

Barry had listened with stolid face. Taking the commander's question as a dismissal he bowed and went out without a word.

"He'll never believe you've explained the thing if you showed him a thousand devils' doings from your bag of tricks, Mr. Wizard Barry," the doctor said dryly. "I know what it is—and that's where I get a rise out of you, sir."

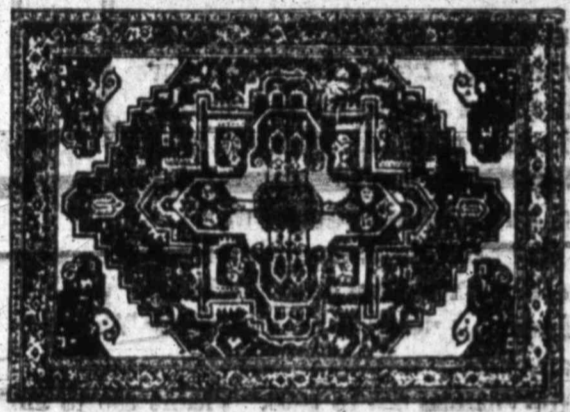

"'Twas reminiscent retina, because of his wrought-up nervous condition," the Scotch surgeon said. "If you know what that is. 'Tis a well-established phenomenon. As for that coxswain, he'd see anything!"

ATTEMPT TO BURN RANNELS COUNTY COURT HOUSE. Balingen, Texas, July 5.—While the county officials were absent from their offices on account of the Fourth of July holiday an attempt was made yesterday to burn the Rannels county court house here.

The fire was started among some shavings that had been piled in the district court room, also in the basement. Only the absence of sufficient draft to fan the flames saved the building before the discovery of the fire. The attempted incendiarism is supposed to have been the act of some insane person.

Vienna, July 5.—Private reports from Belgrade indicates that even Servian official quarters are beginning to fear that the campaign against the Bulgarians is almost hopeless. The Servian loss of the Timok division in addition to the breaking off of the Drina division is regarded in well informed circles in Vienna, as promising a speedy completion of the war. Bryan's contract has been awarded by the city council of this place to a Houston firm for a considerable amount of paving. Work is to begin immediately and will be finished not later than September, the first.

His Playmate Was a Canary. Various are the alleviations of which the patients at the Royal Hospital for Incurables avail themselves says the London Telegraph. A number of pet birds are caged for the interest and entertainment of those less unwilling prisoners of incurable disease.

Among these pets there was a cool canary, the loss of which has been mourned by all who were acquainted with its remarkable intelligence and its many amusing and attractive qualities. For years it was set free in a large room, where it would fly about in perfect confidence. To its owner it particular it was so responsive that it would return again and again, regarding the performance as a sort of game; it would also allow itself to be freely handled, and delighted in a prolonged tussle upon a table, or chase round a ball of paper. It listened to its owner's remarks with the closest attention and appeared to understand in a wonderful manner what was expected of it.

Backed By Reason and Witnesses

"In the eyes of a wise judge, proofs by reason are of More value than by witnesses"

But better still, is reason backed by witnesses. We say, we can sell you merchandise for less money and the reasons are as plain as the road to market. Ours is a system freed from all the cumbersome expenses of doing a charge or credit business, no book-keepers, no stenographers, no collectors, no lost accounts. Isn't this reason enough why we can sell for less. The witnesses are you and your neighbors. If you are our customer, you know we save you money. If you are not, we say draw the deadly paralel. Compare, for we want you for a witness, too. Q Full value for the money, is the keynote of a policy which has made our store successful. This policy insures service in the highest degree, the greatest measure of dependable value in every sale, and your entire satisfaction

Spirabone—The Last Word of a French Corsetiere

"It Bends but will not Break." Spirabone is the most important feature of comfort and unrestricted action that has been given to the corset. Spirabone is made of fine rustless wire, woven and interwoven in such manner as to form a strong, flat, flexible stay. Spirabone does away with a stiff unnatural carriage and allows the bending of the body in any direction at the same time affording perfect support.

LA RESISTA CORSETS—Have come to be a necessity to the women who have worn them. Fitted with Spirabone stays in the important parts where the bending and breaking occurs, they yield gracefully to the action of the body. The stout woman gives them a warm welcome for the absolute comfort and good lines assured, and the slender woman because they preserve the natural free motion of the body. One trial of a La Resista, the only Spirabone corset, proves all that can be said of a perfect corset. Half a Woman's Beauty Depends on the Corset. Here is a corset upon which many fastidious women have set the seal of their approval. While giving shapeliness to the figure, it allows great freedom of movement. It retains its shape much better than others.

BUFFET LUNCHEON.
Thursday morning, July 3 a beautifully appointed buffet luncheon was given by Mrs. P. The spacious Langford home made doubly attractive by the artistic arrangement of the season's flowers in baskets and bowls and trailing greens. The dining room was a bower of beauty with the table laid in cluny lace and garlanded with bride roses, amilax and graceful streamers of bridal tulle depending from the dome and caught at the table corners in fanciful butterfly bows. The initial feature of the function was an unusually fine musical program, listened to with rapt attention. Those who gave so generously of their talent were Mesdames A. B. Huff, T. B. Greenwood, M. D. Walker, W. H. Walker, Fred Thompson, Dell McKee, Misses Vivian Mathis and Jewel Kemp. The guests were then assembled in the dining room where Misses Carrie Kell, Vivian Mathis and Jewel Kemp dispensed "the cup that cheers but not inebriates." Then amid the clink of glasses and drinking to the health and happiness of the honoree the following toasts were proposed. "The bride to be" was responded to by Miss Carrie Kell in a very fitting and happy style. "The recent bride" was responded to by Mrs. Gorsline in her own impressive and felicitous manner and after this "feast of reason and flow of soul" more material things engaged the attention of the favored guests. A two course luncheon was served consisting of fruit salad, turkey sandwiches, cranberry ice, angel roll and ice cream molded in dainty rose shapes. The favors were tiny cupid's holding aloft the wedding ring significant of the occasion. Sheets of

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the summer was a dance given Wednesday evening at Lake Wichita by Misses Gertrude and Mary Orth in honor of their visiting girl friends, Misses Aileen Kirkley, Orvetta Wyatt, and Harriett Barries. The grand march began about 8 o'clock and about twenty-seven or thirty couples stepped into line. Punch was served throughout the evening and the dancing continued until a late hour, the return to town being made on the last car.

DELIGHTFUL MORNING FIVE HUNDRED PARTY.

The week just ended was a period filled with great social activity. The afternoons and evenings passed away with such rapidity and so swiftly that several parties were held in the morning in order to save time. Among the most enjoyable of any of the affairs was a Five Hundred Party given by Miss Anne Carrigan at the Carrigan home on Austin street Thursday morning from 9:30 until 12 o'clock. The hostess was assisted in the entertainment of the guests by her mother, Mrs. A. H. Carrigan. The house was beautifully decorated, a color scheme of orange and white being used, those being the colors of the University of Texas where Miss Carrigan is a member of the junior class. Yellow daisies were also very much in evidence as decorative features. Miss Katherine Hindman having won highest score the prize of the morning was presented to her. Those present included Misses Agnes Reid, Genevieve Carver, Eddie Carver, Lillian Avis, Mae Weeks, Mabelle Clouston, Mabel Simpson, Icie White, Katherine Hindman, Mary Orth, Gertrude Orth, Aileen Kirkley, Orvetta Wyatt, Kathleen Blair, Olive Edwards, Berthamoy Kemp, Bess Kell, Rachel McDowell, Tempie Thompson, Lillian McGregor, Anne Frear, Blanche Kahn and Dorothy Trenholm.

MISS BERTHAMOY KEMP HOSTESS AT 4TH JULY CARD PARTY.

One of the most enjoyable as well as one of the most carefully planned affairs of the many social events that took place last week was an entertainment given by Miss Berthamoy Kemp at her home on Floral Heights last Monday afternoon in honor of her visiting friend, Miss Rachel McDowell of McKinney. The entertainment took the form of a "Fourth of July Card Party." The tables and decorations were in keeping with the spirit of the occasion and were a constant reminder of the patriotic significance attached to the colors, red white and

MISS KAHN'S GERMAN COMPLIMENTRY TO GUEST.

A most delightful German was given at Lake Wichita on the morning of the Fourth by Miss Blanche Kahn in honor of her visitor, Miss Dorothy Trenholm of Minnesota. The music could not have been excelled, the refreshments were most appropriate, the floor was all that could be desired, and the ideal weather on that day added the finishing touch to an affair that was as near perfect as thought, attention and expense could make it. For days before, the Kahn German had been the topic of conversation in those social circles where dancing is enjoyed and an early bird last Friday, if one who arises at four-thirty a. m. can be called an early bird, had the opportunity of observing here and there throughout the city numerous lights twinkling in many homes being the signal that the hour to trip it on the light, fantastic toe, was about to arrive. A special car with a sleepy-eyed motorist and conductor left the business part of town at about five o'clock for the benefit of these lovers of the terpsichorean art, and soon after the arrival at Lake Wichita, the grand march was led by Fred Gaston and Miss Dorothy Trenholm, about thirty or thirty-five couples taking part. Then, there was a sound of piano and other delicacies: coffee, cake, biscuits and other delicacies. At about ten o'clock the last dance was played and the crowd returned reluctantly home after failing to persuade the orchestra to begin and play the program over again. Those present were Mrs. A. L. Reicholt and Mrs. Alex Kahn, the chaperones, Miss Dorothy Trenholm, the honoree, Mrs. T. R. T. Orth, Mrs. B. F. Terry, Misses Jewell Kemp, Katherine Hindman, Hazel Gaston, Rainy, Vivian Mathis, Edith Mathis, Olive Edwards, Carrie Kell, Kathleen Blair, Bess Kell, Eddie Carver, Genevieve Carver, Fatheree, Judd, Agnes Reid, Berthamoy Kemp, Rachel McDowell, Gertrude Orth, Anne Carrigan, Icie White, Mae Weeks, Lillian McGregor, Lillian Avis, Lillian Denny, Thelma Kahn, Pauline Reicholt, Blanche Kahn, the hostess; Messrs. HOW THE NEW SHIPPING LAW AFFECTS MENRIETTA.

The local express offices knew, if by no other means, that a coming event was at hand by the shadows cast before—and they wrestled with the situation Friday, Saturday and Monday—also with cartons, kegs, boxes, casks, jugs and hampers to be stored by the recipients against a day of possible need. Ah, yes; the epoch making first of July approached, after which no American citizen or Texas dweller in dry territory could receive any little shipment of a liquor which, along with its other uses and properties, happens to be intoxicating if you make a swineering of yourself. And now there are a whole lot of us who will thoroughly enjoy the situation in which a whole lot of you pros have placed yourselves. As the matter now stands, hallelujah! the doctors can prescribe but the patient cannot get it; and whatever may be the necessities of physician and druggist in the preparation of medications, the problematic answer is: "Nought is a nought and figger a figger, and alcohol in dry territory you can't live or die, sink or swim, survive or perish, pro or anti you go without. This is bully, it is good and "providential" for there is another new law which makes the condition of being drunk a penal offense, raising it from a mere misdemeanor. It is basic—Henrietta Review. Detailed Report of Production Completions and Drilling

BIG INCREASE IN NEW PRODUCTION, BUT GENERAL QUIETNESS OUTSIDE PROVEN FIELDS.

A detailed report of the completions, production and wild cat operations for June furnished by W. G. Long of the National Petroleum News shows a big increase in production, but general quietness in the operations outside of the proven districts.

The Corsicana Petroleum Company has drilled their last well in Archer county and now that every one that has been drilled is dry, there will be no more oil news from Archer.

Following is the detailed report of operations for the month: Produced 175 barrels.

Wagoner 11: 40 barrels. Wagoner 29: 25 barrels. Honaker 4: 120 barrels. Marriott 14: 300 barrels. Wagoner 29: 300 barrels. Wagoner 43: 75 barrels. Wagoner 150: 150 barrels. Bickley 20: 100 barrels. Bickley 19: 60 barrels. Marriott 15: 400 barrels. Total—1845 barrels.

Corseana Petroleum Co. Honaker 22: 20 barrels. Brown and 2: 400 barrels. Sands 2: 75 barrels. Gillett 2: 20 barrels. Hickey 1: 45 barrels. Honaker 3: 25 barrels. Ramming 1: 40 barrels. Allen 49: 75 barrels. H. & T. C. R. R. 6: 75 barrels. Total—1235 barrels.

Other Productions. Guiley Petroleum Co. 8: 50 barrels. Mivie and Brookins 1: 15 barrels. Head and Langford 1: 120 barrels. Forest Oil Co. 10: 30 barrels. Forest Oil Co. 11: 350 barrels. Granston Oil Co. 2: 5 barrels. Burkhardt Oil Co. 2: 12 barrels. Total—582 barrels.

Grand total of new production for the month 3462 barrels. The number of new locations for the field last month was 40 but nearly all inside the defined lines.

The Sun Company is drilling on the Wilson ranch at depth of 1550 feet.

The following abandonments were recorded here: P. O. Co., Gebhart 2300 feet. C. P. Co., Morgan 2100 feet. Allen et al. Lochridge 350 feet. Guiley Co., Crow 2900 feet. McBride, Woodruff 200 feet.

The most important feature of the past month was attached to the fact of the Fisher Oil Company, one of the largest as well as the latest independent concerns in the United States, locating a well on the Weeth farm.

There may be added to the abandoned list within a few days the following wells. Produced in Duckett farm south of this city. It is now 2100 feet. There is another not far from it that is getting pretty deep.

Diamond Oil Co., Sec 3 rigging up 3 3 5 west. Locations. Sec 31 2 N W; sec 3 2 N W; sec 26 2 N W; sec 9 2 N 7 W.

The above locations are positively known to be made and they are expected to be drilled. The name of the operators have been left out for some reason or other by request.

A TEXAS WONDER.

The Texas Wonder cures kidney and bladder troubles, dissolves gravel, cures diabetes, weak and lame backs, rheumatism and all irregularities of the kidneys and bladder in both men and women.

OSTEOPATHY

Many wonder why anyone should want to be an osteopath in this enlightened age. I was a preparatory student of medicine when I was converted to osteopathy and with no malice or intention to discredit those who practice medicine I consider the osteopath equal in efficiency to any of his competitors.

Why and how is the osteopath so nearly always correct in his diagnosis? Because of his thorough methods, taking into consideration everything, pulse, temperature, urinalysis, blood-pressure in addition to every sign known to the scientific world.

The Commercial Hub of the Big Pasture is certainly in the midst of prosperity and everything is lovely. Having just harvested one of the greatest wheat crops in the history of the country, our chance of joy was filled to overflowing Monday night when a 3-4 inch rain which assures a bumper corn crop came.

CADILLAC

WE have secured the agency in this territory for the Cadillac cars. There will be several new features on the 1914 car. See their 1914 announcement in July 10, 1914, issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

The Story of the Cadillac

The pre-eminent position of the Cadillac, its recognition America's leading motor car, its recognition as the standard by which motor cars are judged, are not matters of chance.

For ten years the Cadillac has been manufactured and marketed upon well defined principles. The adherence to those principles has been the dominant factor in Cadillac success.

The Cadillac has never aspired to ideals set by others; makes its own ideals and raises them higher and higher.

The Cadillac has never striven after the achievements of other plants—it is a school and model unto itself.

The word "success" has always been associated with the Cadillac. The word "failure" never. The Cadillac Company has never produced a model or a type for which it was obliged to make apologies.

The "Story of the Cadillac" is one of the mechanical and commercial advancement which makes permanency. The Cadillac Company has never yielded to clamor by producing that which catered merely to fancy, nor that which took advantage of the uninformed. On the contrary it has produced only that which it knew to be right, that which it knew would give to the purchaser "value received" in abundant measure.

The Cadillac Company has never been obliged to resort to exaggeration and overdrawn claims to dispose of all the cars that could make—and more. Its policy has ever been to under-claim rather than to over-claim. It is gratified that the public accepts its representations at their full worth; because the public has never been misled and because the public could always expect and has always received more than was offered.

The Cadillac car of today has behind it the experience of ten years, during which period its makers have produced more high grade cars than any other plant in the world.

WE will have our demonstrator soon. Would like very much to take your order for a 1914 Cadillac. We will be in our new place, 613 and 615 Tenth Street on July Seventh

ANOTHER ORDER OF TEN SILOS FOR WAGGONERS

Ranch Owners Have This Year Purchased a Total of 22—Material Arriving

Another order of ten silos has been placed with manufacturers by R. L. Moore of this city for the Wagoner ranch interests, which, with the order for twelve, placed some time ago will make a total of twenty-two to be bought by the Wagoners since January 1st.

The new silos as were the ones in the first order, are of crosscut wood construction and of 250 ton capacity. Four have already been erected at the Wagoner feed pens north of the railroad and the first car of material for the eight to be placed on the ranches of W. T. Wagoner, Guy L.

Wagoner, C. P. Wagoner and Moore and Wagoner arrived this week and is being hauled out from Electric preparatory to erection.

As the order for twelve silos placed some two months ago was the largest single purchase reported from this section of the state so the second order for ten is also without a parallel in the history of silo construction, excepting of course, the one made earlier in the year.—Yernon Record.

A. M. RICHARDSON RESIGNS AS ELECTRA POSTMASTER.

A. M. Richardson, who has served Uncle Sam for several years as postmaster, today tendered his resignation and will quit the office as soon as his successor has qualified. The postoffice has increased its business to such an extent that it has just recently been made a second class office and with the limited amount of clerk hire the postal regulations allow, Mr. Richardson feels that he cannot afford to spend the time required to take care of it for the compensation allowed. The patrons of the postoffice will regret to see Mr. Richardson out of the office. He has been a capable, energetic and a commending official and his successor will have a hard time to follow in the job.—Electric News.

SMALL TWISTER AT FREDERICK MONDAY

While a hard rain was falling, 6 o'clock Monday evening, a small twister dipped into the north end of Frederick, creating not a little excitement among the residents of home within its path. A house on North Ninth street, occupied by Claude Smith and family, was blown from its foundation. Mr. Smith and family, together eight in number, were seated at the supper table, when the force of the storm struck their house. The chimney was demolished and came tumbling down on the roof. No body was hurt.—Frederick Leader.
