

THE WAY TO GET MONEY IS TO SAVE IT!

THE WAY TO SAVE IT IS BY ECONOMY

And economy not only means saving by doing without, but also buying those things of necessity and buying what modern customs require at their lowest price. We are able to give great values when selling—because we receive great values when buying—the result of a system of economy. The true key that opens the door to real economy is to buy your goods when they can be had cheapest, and six days in the week at the busy corner we are ready to demonstrate our ability to undersell. In the future as in the past, our prices shall be kept at the smallest possible profit margins.

Women's Fashionable Suits

A complete stock of smart suits in the season's most approved styles makes this section of keen interest to women. Our lines have been selected with regard to excellence of workmanship, finish, linings and absolute correctness of style

A Nice Suit for only $9.98

La Resistista CORSETS

Why Wear Rigid, Uncomfortable Corsets When You Can Have "SPIRABONE"—We want to impress upon you that "SPIRABONE" is the greatest boon ever offered American women. It is so flexible that it responds to the slightest movement of the body. Think of it—no more rigidity or discomfort. Yet it is so resilient, that it always retains the shapely lines of the corset. "SPIRABONE" has revolutionized corset making. It is sweeping the field today—and can only be found in our corsets. Wear LA RESISTISTA CORSETS and prove to your own satisfaction that nothing else can compare with them. "SPIRABONE" is the only flexible corset that won't break or rust.

This is "SPIRABONE"—Here we show how life-giving "SPIRABONE" is fitted to vital parts of LA RESISTISTA Corsets. It is self-evident that this very flexible stay must respond to the slightest movement of the body. Exquisite Style—The new LA RESISTISTA models are up-to-the-minute in style. They mold the figure to the slender, beautiful lines so necessary to the latest fashions—the low, unconfined bust effect, curveless waist and slender hip lines. Ask for La Resistista Corsets.

As for finish and quality—there is nothing better. Insist upon getting them.

Take Steps Today to Walk Tomorrow

Disraeli said, "judge a gentleman by his neck-wear"—but that was long before Bostonian and Stetson shoes were built for men. Stop and think a minute. Don't buy shoes that do very well. Get the best for the same money. Buy a better shoe for less money. That is our claim. If we can not prove this statement, do not buy from us. We can supply you with all leathers and lasts, and save you from 50c to $1.00 on each pair of shoe. You select your style shoe, we will fit your feet and guarantee the wear.....

Men's shoes from $2.00 to $6 00
Women's shoes from $1.50 to $5 00
Children's shoes from 65c to $2 50

the College of Music and Art with a very informal recital. Miss McKee played several numbers on both violin and piano, all of which were very pleasing. Miss McKee seems possessed of great talent and plays with much feeling and expression. She was admirably accompanied by Miss Edna Mooneyham. Miss Elizabeth Jourdan, the new expression teacher, also gave two selections which were very much enjoyed. Miss Jourdan is quite an artist in her line being one of the best that has come to this city.

MRS. ROBERTSON'S RECITAL WINS FAVORABLE COMMENT.

Mrs. Walter S. Robertson in her song recital last Monday evening at the Wichita Theatre was heard to splendid advantage. The program was made up of early and modern English and French songs, with pleasing variety of theme. Mrs. Robertson rendered the group of early English songs with artistic simplicity and in the Lied Signor of Meyerbeer her tones were distinct and the embellishment most artistically given, which enabled her to display her stupendous technique and poetic interpretation. In Orrell Azzuri of Verdi, she showed real musical quality, her high tones being pure and flute-like and the soft passages like a voice from heaven. In the group of French songs, her diction was considered especially good. In the modern English songs her pronunciation was perfect and showed a deep insight into her musical numbers. Mrs. Robertson never loses sight of the mountain in front of her ultimate goal and carries her audience with infallible certainty to the climax. She has studied for the past four summers in New York City under Mrs. Call Lanham, a Texan and nephew of former Governor Lanham of Texas, at the old Metropolitan College of Music. Miss Ona Bell, a graduate of the Columbus School of Fine Arts, proved herself an admirable accompanist. She was in true sympathy with the singer; her touch is of great depth and her feeling akin to that of an artist, she being a student not only of the Conservatory but of Wilma Poindexter, Liebling and the concert pianist Miss Ariel Gross. Wichita Falls music lovers will welcome both Mrs. Robertson and Miss Bell as valuable acquisitions.

MAYFLOWER 42 CLUB IS ENTERTAINED THURSDAY.

The Mayflower 42 Club was entertained Thursday afternoon by Mrs. G. E. Stearns and enjoyed one of most delightful afternoons spent by the club this summer. Mrs. Ben Eddins of Jonesboro, Ark., was the special guest of the afternoon. Other guests were Mesdames Olen of Cleburne, Grey of Albany, Oregon, Corkhill, Little, Higgins and Parker. Seven games were played. Mesdames Davis and Grey scoring highest. Punch was served throughout the games by Misses Pauline Langford and Elizabeth and Ruth Eddins, nieces of the hostess. Refreshments of brick cream in pink and green, angel food and lemon cake were served by the hos-tes. Mints in the club colors were passed by little Miss Ruth Eddins. The club members present were Mesdames Allen, Brown, Bradshaw, Dobson, Davis, Hazle, Howard, Hurst, Langford, Page, Stewart, Thompson, Wilson and Yates. The next meeting will be October 2 with Mrs. Charles Davis in her new bungalow, 1409 Thirteenth street.

GIVES DINNER PARTY FOR VISITORS FROM FORT WORTH.

Thursday evening Miss Lillian McGregor entertained with a seven o'clock dinner party in honor of the Misses Durrett of Fort Worth, who are visiting her. The dining room was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and the table laid with cloth covers, was most tastefully arranged with a large Mexican drawn-work center piece, banked with beautiful cut flowers. Handsome place cards marked each cover. A sumptuous seven course dinner was served to the following couples: Miss Lucile Durrett and Mr. Goyer, Miss Ann Carrigan and Carter McGregor, Miss Lillian Durrett and Mr. Durland and Miss Lillian McGregor and Bobbie Burns.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Mrs. Hodges leaves soon for Fredrick to visit her son and wife. The Ladies Aid of the First Presbyterian Church meets Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. D. Avis. Mrs. S. Y. Ferguson and son left Friday night for Waco, where her son will enter Baylor University. Mrs. Magee and daughter, Opal, were visitors here Friday. Mrs. Magee was on the way to her home in Electro, after having been in Dallas in a sanitarium for some time. Mrs. Brit Stegall and little daughter of Fort Worth, are in the city visiting friends and relatives. Mrs. C. L. Holley stopped off on her way home from Kansas City, to visit her mother-in-law, Mrs. J. W. Lee. Mrs. Holley's home is in Amarillo. Misses Helen and Dorothy Beavers left Friday night for Waxahachie, where Miss Dorothy will enter Trinity University. Miss Cecil Tobin, who has been visiting Miss Mabel Simpson, left Saturday night for her home in Dallas. Mrs. Luther Haynie has returned to Dallas. Mrs. C. P. Moore returned to her home in Petrolia yesterday after a visit with Mrs. E. P. Greenwood. Strange will entertain today with a 12 o'clock luncheon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. White and family who leave soon for California. Miss Icie White and Mr. H. M. Berry were honorees at a 6 o'clock dinner Friday night given by Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Montgomery. Miss White leaves soon for California to spend the winter and her departure will cause much regret. The Rebekahs will celebrate the sixty-second anniversary of Rebekah Odd Fellowship on next Tuesday night, Sept. 23 by initiating a class of candidates. The lodge at Iowa Park has been invited to attend. All members of the lodge and visiting members are cordially invited.

Kahn's Fall Opening Is Reflection Of New Styles

(By Pauline Means) At Kahn's opening Thursday and Friday a line of ladies ready to wear, second to none in this section was put on display. The display contained representative models of all the latest creations in gowns, suits, coats and millinery in the prevailing colors, shades and fabrics. In the suits there are very stunning French models in brocade bengaline, cut chin-chilla, wool eponge and various other fabrics of the latest manufacture. The brocades are the leading fabric of the season looking back to the days of our grand mothers and great-grand mothers and surpassing them in loveliness and elegance. The tailor makes in the plainer styles make a good showing and are very pleasing to the eye. For the ultra-modern dresser there are the elaborate fabrics and extreme styles, extreme drapes and slashed skirts. More conservative styles are shown to suit every taste. Some especially lovely waists are shown to be worn with charmeuse or messaline skirts, made of imported nets, draped over flesh tints, the more expensive models being trimmed with hand-made roses. The display includes some very handsome blouses in crepe, ratine and canton crepe, featuring the long sleeves and blouse effects, daintily trimmed with shadow lace. Kahn's coats deserve special attention for the display is unusually handsome. Evening coats in cut velvet, cut velour and brocades, fur trimmed and luxuriantly lined appeal strongly to the feminine taste. One recently imported model is of mahogany in a deep tone made with mandarin sleeve and Louis XIV cuff. The coats for street wear are in very pleasing cut and offer a wide scope of choice to the buyer. Many striking dresses are shown, one being of taupe canton crepe made in coat effect combined with brocade crepe, trimmings of jet buttons, shadow lace and black velvet. This French model offers a combination of the latest styles and materials. Numbers of other handsome silk dresses in charmeuse, crepe meteor and canton crepe are shown in all the latest shades. The misses dresses in wool and silk show most pleasing youthful styles. The Balkan influence is still felt and still a touch of Bulgarian colorings is a la mode. A number of dresses show a touch of Tartan in the trimmings. The bright colors being especially becoming to youthful wearers.

The millinery showing is the most attractive in several seasons and the new shades and shapes are very pleasing. Blue is very good in several of its shades, turquoise blue, electric and peacock being this season's newest tones. The new tete de negre brown is very stunning and is very much in evidence this fall. Copper is also very strong and Madame Sherry green is quite a favorite, few of the hats shown being without at least a touch of it. Several entire models being of this shade. The most luxurious materials are employed in the hats shown, brocade velvet, plush and plain velvet being the most highly favored. Plumes and ostrich whips are very good and a great many flowers in gorgeous colorings are used for trimming. Numid feathers are the very latest novelty and receive equal favor with ostrich. All the models show the supremacy of the small hat and especially the small back hat. The large hat is out of favor for the present at least. Poke shapes are especially good for misses and chin straps give an added youthful air. Chin straps are also shown on several of the Gage hats at Kahn's. The most striking combinations may be observed, most of them on black. A very striking model is of Tete de negre velvet. The shape being rolled high to the back, as are many of the models shown. Two beautiful French plumes in self color and self color ribbon constitute the trimming. This is one of the most stunning models shown. Another hat is of brocade velvet, in moleskin shade with muff to match. The hat is trimmed with self color plume and fur and the muff of the same brocade velvet, is trimmed with fur and is lined with pink and white satin veiled with pink chiffon. The showing made by Kahn's would be worthy of notice in a much larger town and Mr. Kahn is to be especially commended for bringing the cream of the latest fashions for the selection of the ladies of Wichita Falls.

How Films Are Served to Motion Picture Theaters

Probably very few of the five million or more people who daily attend motion picture shows ever stop to wonder where all the films come from and how it is arranged that they see a different program every day at their favorite theater.

At one time, before the formation of the "film service organizations," motion pictures were sold outright by individual manufacturers to exhibitors, most of whom operated a series of small and generally unattractive theaters, or played "one-night stands" before lodges, Sunday schools, etc. Since in those days the cost of each film was about $100 or more, it is obvious that the programs were limited to a few subjects of general interest. The next step was the establishing of "exchanges," operated for the most part by men who had followed the business of exhibiting moving pictures from its infancy, and made considerable money thereby. These exchanges assumed the purchase cost of films and undertook to rent them to the theaters. However, because each worked independently of the other, without regard for price or schedule, conditions soon became chaotic. A theater manager would advertise a program he had arranged to get from the exchange and wake up the morning before it was to be run to find that his competitor had secured the same picture from another exchange a day ahead. The manager would run a certain number of films for five or ten cents. His competitor would go him one better. Then the first one would add one more than the competitor, and so on, until they both found there was no money in the business. Another evil in those days was the frequent "repeating" of films. The supply was not as plentiful as now, and since there was no system of booking one never knew when he would pay admission to see films that he knew by heart.

The public did not take kindly to the existing conditions, and exhibitors with large investments to protect were heartily discouraged at the outlook for the future. It began to look as if the picture shows were merely a passing fancy. The first move toward rehabilitation was the formation of a new organization in 1910. This company purchased a certain number of exchanges throughout the country and established the first efficient system of booking films according to a definite schedule. This system, still in use in a modified form, undoubtedly did more than any other single thing to establish the permanency of the motion picture business.

Briefly, the system operates like this: The manufacturers of films assign a release date to each picture, the date on which it may be rented by exchanges to the theaters. The film is handled thereafter according to its age, and automatically its title what are known as "runs." When a theater advertises that it shows "first-run pictures," that means pictures that have not been run before. Every theater wants a well-balanced program, and most theater managers, whether they play old or new pictures, have a program that has not been shown in the houses of any of their competitors.

It is manifestly impossible to consider all theaters in a city, particularly in the larger cities, as being in active competition with each other. Consequently, each city is divided into exchanges into "situations." For example, three theaters in the business section of a town within a radius of a few blocks of each other are considered as conflicting, and the same is true of three houses in the residential section of a town within a radius of a half mile or so. But in booking films usually the two groups are treated as if they were in different cities.

A theater manager goes to an exchange and explains that he wants a certain number of films per day of a certain age, and relies upon the booking system to divide his programs properly among comedies, dramas, etc. The booker opens an account with each theater and with every film released. By closely watching the route of each film and keeping in mind the theaters in the same situation it is possible in most cases to arrange the programs of the different theaters so that they not only never run the same picture twice, but do not run a film after it has been run in a competing theater.

In the larger cities automobiles collect the films from the theaters each 11 p. m., rush them to the various exchanges, where they are rewrapped, inspected and redistributed into the boxes of the theaters to which they go on the following day. Then they are again taken in automobiles and rushed out, together with posters which are to advertise them, so that they may reach the theater in most cases before noon. This requires a night force in the exchanges, where work is going on constantly. Holidays and Sundays are the same as other days to the man in the exchange.

In the smaller cities the films are handled by messengers, the theater sending them back to the exchange in the morning and having the messenger wait until his new show is ready. After films have been in circulation more than six months they are returned to the manufacturers as scrap, and destroyed.

ENTIRE FAMILY IS POISONED BY CISTERN WATER.

(Chillicothe News)
Last Friday afternoon the family of J. A. Simpson, living four miles north of town, were found to be poisoned. From our information the cistern water had been poisoned with arsenic—or that was the supposition, as the sick all acted as poisoned in this way. The cistern water tasted bitter, and even the milk they drank seemed to be affected the same way. Two doctors were called and administered to them, and as yet, something serious may occur. The water from the cistern was sent to the state chemist, and up to going to press no word has been received as to what the water contained. Two friends living on Andy Laird farm south of town ate dinner there Friday and they too were taken suddenly ill on their way home. The milk was given to the chickens and many of them soon died from eating same. How the poison got into the cistern is yet unsolved.

HORRORS! SLIT SKIRT APPEARS IN QUANAH.

(Quanah Observer)
A young lady wearing a slit skirt caused some commotion in Quanah one day last week. She was a stranger here and seemed wholly unconscious of the stir she was creating among the men of middle age and older. The skirt was slit nearly to the knee, and the lady wore green stockings. The skirt, when she walked, flopped so as to allow a considerable display of hoisery.

EVERYBODY IN CLEVELAND IS INVITED TO CHURCH.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 20.—There are very few people in Cleveland today who have not been especially invited to attend some church here tomorrow. Because church attendance has not been what church authorities think it should be for a city of the size of Cleveland, the Cleveland Federation of Churches sent out invitation to everyone in Cleveland requesting their presence at some church of their own selection on Sunday, September 21. Rev. E. R. Wright, secretary of the Federation, had charge of sending out the invitations. He declared today that he believes he didn't overlook anyone. There are 200 ministers in the Cleveland Federation and because the city has been so thoroughly canvassed the largest church attendance in the history of Cleveland is looked for tomorrow.

RACING MEETING BEGINS ON VICTORIA TRACK TUESDAY

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 20.—The greatest bunch of thoroughbred running horses ever entered on a British Columbia track faced the barrier today at the Willows when a meet that will extend through October 11, was inaugurated before a record crowd. Three hundred horses that have been racing at Minoru Park, Vancouver, for several months were brought here in addition to many horses from other western tracks. There will be seven races daily with two stake events each week during the meeting. The pari-mutuel system of betting is in vogue. The meeting is being held under the auspices of the Victoria Country Club.

ENROLLMENT AT VERNON SHOWS MATERIAL INCREASE

(Vernon Record) Superintendent E. F. Holcomb reports that the enrollment in the various buildings of the Vernon city schools last week was the best in their history for the first week of the term. The total enrollment was 231, 145 of whom were entered in the high school department. The freshmen class in the high school numbered sixty-four, and a crowded condition of the classes obtains throughout the schools. If the number of late enrollments is as large this year as usual the term of 1913-14 will see the largest enrollment in the history of the Vernon schools. Mr. Holcomb is looking forward to a very profitable year's work.

Novelties Noted Among Fashions For This Fall

New York, Sept. 21.—Woman's clothes are almost as interesting as woman's psychology, and quite as subject to variation. During the spring and early summer fashion demanded the long, sinuous silhouette. Now the lines have changed. The outline is no longer continuous. It is broken in various ways. Tunics and white girdles, double and triple flounces have stepped into the arena to break the slender lines. They encircle the figure in pleats and folds, floating and rippling about the form in fashion most unique and altogether fascinating. With them have come vests, draped skirts, low cut blouses, and coats of greater length than those worn during mid-summer. The season's wraps are worthy of much mention, as a well cut coat or wrap covers much indifferent dressing and imparts an appearance of grace and style greatly to be desired. In planning a fall outfit, jackets for every occasion must be considered. It is the conscientious duty of every woman that these be as attractive and modish as possible, and that the style of jacket in tone to the coat is brought over the vest at the waistline. It has one end which hangs free extending below the coat. For street and serviceable wear Balkan and Russian coat styles remain smart, particularly for the woman of youthful lines, and for the young girl, who has adopted it with enthusiasm. There are also, for the youthful figure, smart little coats, some on Eton, others on square hip lines; some with satin sleeves, others with sleeves and body in one. A military collar and deep turned back cuffs of fur add just the proper smart touch to these charming little garments. The use of fur wherever possible is one of the season's whims. Pieces, no longer suitable for neck pieces or muff may be cut up for trimmings, and are placed about the edges of coat, waist and skirt. Scraps are made into buttons. These outline the fronts of the jackets and adorn the skirts in precisely the same way that buttons are used. One of the most fashionable of the season's jacket styles is this of the second illustration. It has a stylishly belted hem on up to date cutaway lines. The development was in brown duvetye, one of the season's most beautiful new fabrics, and very popular on account of its fine, velvety texture. The collar and crown of the hat are of like material of tan shade. The skirt, with modish side drapery, is of brown broadcloth. The rim of the hat is of dark brown velvet.

be suited to her own particular needs. A wrap of wonderful beauty and charm is illustrated in the first figure, worn over a gown of gray crepe de Chine. The wrap was fashioned from an uncut shawl, which had an attractive edge of fringe, and is artistically draped at the center back to simulate a hood. The opposite sides form the sleeves. The material is turned back, revers style, at the neck, to show the lining, and at the lower edge to simulate a band. This style of wrap is equally suitable for afternoon wear, dependent only on the kind of shawl brought forth from the family chest of heirlooms. But it is not necessary to first have the shawl in order to have the wrap, for it is equally attractive made of broadcloth, velour de laine or velvet, as these fabrics are among the most fashionable of the season. The velours are particularly lovely and as supple as suede. Velvet, too, smooth, pliant and very charming in its warp and woof, with a surface sheen like satin is much used. There are also the wool plushes, new soft, rough faced materials, delightfully warm and comfortable without undue weight. These, in shades of tan, blue, black, brown and white, will be equally popular. But of methods of development there is no end. Nor is it possible to say which will be most fashionable. There is the long three quarter length coat, with godet skirt section rippling away from a half fitted waistline. It has a vest which extends low in front. The half length cutaway coat will hold its own this season, and will have besides the charming addition of a vest. The three piece suit will remain popular, particularly for afternoon functions, receptions, and other social affairs. For these broadcloth and satin brocade will be most in favor. The jackets will be long, reaching below the hips and cutaway. Vests of white broadcloth will accompany broadcloth suits, while those of white satin will be worn with satin suits.

There is also another style quite distinctive in appearance, and which is distinctly becoming to the woman blessed with a tall slender figure. It is the long, cutaway coat on severe lines fastened at the breast with a single ornamental buckle of jade, jet or braid. The most striking feature of this garment is the vest, which reaches from the collarline to four inches below the belt, where it terminates in two points. The vest is single-breasted, and fastened with ball buttons covered with material like the vest. A girdle of velvet similar

The penchant for fur is not confined alone to jackets and coats. It is equally popular outlining the hem of the skirt, and this even when the fabrics employed are dainty and diaphanous. Bands of skunk and sealskin are used on the lovely afternoon and evening frocks of flowered silk and crepe and on those of chiffon, mousseline and net. They are frequently headed by a row of tiny rosebuds in delicate shades of pink, blue and green. These charming costumes are invariably fashioned with a tunic of Chantilly lace, net or tulle. Black velvet gowns have tunics of white satin. The bodices are cut in kimono effect, and are plentifully trimmed with lace and tulle at throat and wrists. Very often the entire upper part of the waist and the sleeves are entirely of transparent material in wonderfully light and airy effect.

Muslin Kimono-Sleeve Negliges

One dollar will buy today the daintiest of sheer muslin kimono-sleeve negligees, a white ground with pink lavender pin-dots, the edges of which are scalloped in lavender silk, writes Elaine Wistar in the Philadelphia Public Leader. Just the thing a pretty girl wishes to slip on when she returns from a trip to the hit city, in order to cool off. By the addition of a bow of ribbon with long ends, and worn over a pretty undershirt, the garment is good looking enough for the most fastidious taste of the wealthiest of elegantes, and yet it is well within the means of the most moderate allowance. Of course, the same garments comes in other colors and designs, but the one described above seemed especially fresh and dainty.

Bischof Style Show

A notable exhibit of Suits and Coats for Fall and Winter, showing the new figure lines and featuring the fashionable fabrics

For this all-important event, we have received direct from Bischof, one of America's foremost designers, his loveliest productions for the coming season. Here are assembled all the most interesting examples of the Fall and Winter fashions—the very cream of his output, selected by our buyer because they so well represent, in every detail, the talent and taste of this famous designer.

Here are shown in infinite variety, suits that have all the distinctive modish notes of the season and coats that echo the last word in fashion—every one consistent in fabric and cut with the purpose for which it is intended.

All the fashionable fabrics are shown—the charming Matelasse and Wool Ratine, the new Jacquards so much in vogue, and for the plainer suits the much-wanted Cheviots, the loose-woven Etamine Cheviots and a score of entirely new Novelty fabrics.

An important feature of the Style Show is the impressive display of newly-launched fur fabrics—among them the famous HINDU LYNX that is the talk of the season.

Whether you are ready to buy or not—don't miss this important exhibition. These models are actually in advance of the season and show style features that will continue to prevail. Come in and see the fashionable new costumes—see the way the new skirts are draped, the cut of this season's coats, the modish sleeves, the up-to-date collars and how the new cuffs are designed. In this Fashion Show, there is a wealth of suggestions that will interest you—many features in every garment that will delight you.

VERNON LEAGUE PLANS TO EMPLOY PAID SECRETARY.

(Vernon Record)
The matter of employing a salaried secretary for the Young Men's Business League will be considered at an adjourned meeting of the League next Tuesday night at the city hall. This was decided upon at the monthly meeting of the League held last Tuesday night. A committee composed of L. G. Hawkins, J. Ray, Lee K. Johnson and H. F. McKibbin will endeavor to get as large attendance as possible. S. H. Hall tendered his resignation as treasurer and was accepted, but no successor elected. The office will remain vacant until the matter of a salaried secretary is settled. By unanimous vote the directors were ordered not to send an exhibit to the Dallas Fair this year.

Denton—A series of trades days have been planned by the local Chamber of Commerce, embracing practically every town in this county. The series will culminate in a big county trades day here just before the opening of the Texas State Fair at Dallas in October, so that the committee gathering the Denton county exhibit can select the best displays of farm products to be used in making up the Denton county exhibit at the State Fair.

Thaw's Long And Fruitless Fight To Regain Liberty

Nearer Success Now Than Ever Before Since He Fired Bullet Into Stanford White's Body

Harry K. Thaw spent more than five years and a half in the Matteawan Insane Asylum. During that time, able lawyers, using all the resources of experience and skill, worked in vain to have him adjudged sane. There were three habeas corpus hearings to test Thaw's sanity. Other writs were applied for, but denied. There were applications for trials, also, by jury as to Thaw's sanity. These, too, were denied. There were appeals to the appellate division and to the court of appeals in each fight, but none resulted in victory for Thaw. In these legal battles Thaw's lawyers were pitted against William T. Jerome, who had prosecuted the young Pittsburg murderer.

But Mr. Jerome's thorough acquaintance with every detail of Thaw's history and his skill as a cross-examiner enabled him to defeat every effort to win freedom for Thaw. As a result, Thaw came to regard Mr. Jerome with even greater respect and greater fear than during the days of his murder trials. Thaw admitted that but for Jerome he would have succeeded in getting a court order setting him free from Matteawan.

Disobeyed Littleton's Advice.
When Thaw was committed to Matteawan by Justice Dowling he was advised by Martin W. Littleton, who obtained his acquittal, to wait at least a year before attempting to gain his freedom. Thaw disobeyed that advice and became so insistent that Mr. Littleton refused to go into court and apply for a writ. Thereupon Thaw hired a lawyer in New York, Charles Morschauser, to take up his case.

Within three months, therefore, Thaw was taken before Supreme Court Justice Morschauser in Dutchess county to be tested as to his sanity. At that time Thaw's lawyer argued that the commitment to Matteawan was illegal and also presented evidence to show the sanity of his client. Justice Morschauser held that no proof was offered to show that Thaw's mental condition had changed since he was acquitted.

That defeat, in May, 1908, was not regarded as a severe blow to Thaw's chances of freedom. In the course of the next year Thaw made another attempt to get a habeas corpus, but was not successful. Finally, in 1909, Justice Mills, at the request of Thaw's mother, consented to hear testimony bearing on the young man's sanity.

At that hearing Thaw's attorney, Charles Morschauser, caused surprise by calling as witnesses many of the experts on insanity who had testified at the murder trial that Thaw was insane. The experts testified that Thaw had recovered from his mental trouble. Many of them who had testified at the murder trial that they had noted symptoms of paranoia suffered unpleasant moments under the cross-examination of Mr. Jerome, who argued that Thaw was suffering from paranoia, an incurable disease.

White. He insisted, however, that he did not remember the shooting. He said that one of his former counsel several years ago had consulted Justice Geough about his case. This caused Justice Geough to make a statement, in which he said that he had forgotten all about the incident. Justice Geough also decided against Thaw and sent him back to Matteawan.

The last sensation in the Thaw case came in February when William F. Clark, secretary in the Sulzer commission of inquiry, testified that John R. Russell, superintendent of Matteawan, had received $25,000 to release Thaw from the asylum. The money was supposed to have been paid to him by John Nicholas Anhut, a young lawyer of this city. Dr. Russell admitted that Anhut had offered him a bribe of $20,000.

As a result, Thaw and his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, were witnesses before the grand jury. Anhut was indicted, convicted and sentenced to not less than two or more than four years in Sing Sing for offering a bribe to Dr. Russell.

On March 1 Dr. Charles Kennedy, a lawyer of 51 Chambers street, obtained another writ of habeas corpus from Supreme Court Justice Guy with the hope of proving Thaw's sanity. The proceedings, however, were stopped.

Harry Kendall Thaw has been fighting for his liberty ever since the night of June 25, 1906, when he walked up to Stanford White at Madison Square Roof Garden and shot him.

Thaw is the son of the late William Thaw of Pittsburg, who died leaving an estate estimated at $400,000. The young man showed wild tendencies in his youth and his father left him only $2500 a year. His mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, straightway made him an allowance of $80,000 a year and with that as a beginner Thaw set out to blaze the gayest path ever trod by any wealthy young American.

Before he met Evelyn Nesbit, a member of the "Floradora" company at the Casino, he had won notoriety by his "beauty dinner" in Paris, given at a cost of $50,000, and had been frequently called the "modern Lucullus." The stories told of his extravagance are almost endless. He was known as well on the other side of the Atlantic as on this.

"RELIABLE"

Though his wife visited him regularly there and when the trial was in progress took the stand unflinchingly in his behalf. She kept back nothing. The trial was in many respects the most spectacular of its kind in New York. The newspapers were filled daily with columns and columns of it and the accounts were read with as much avidity throughout this country and in Europe as in New York.

After three months the jury retired to deliberate on a verdict. It was locked up for forty-seven hours. Then it was decided that it was impossible to agree. Application for a new trial was made immediately, but because of delays of one kind and another the case was not called until a year later. At the outset Martin W. Littleton let it be known that the defense would attempt to prove that Thaw was insane when he shot White. It was during the second trial that Evelyn Thaw told the stories that District Attorney Jerome tried in vain to have suppressed. They recounted orgies that Stanford White had been a party to and atrocities her husband had committed that were calculated to make any jury believe him crazy.
