NEW PASTOR HEARD BY LARGE CROWDS

TWENTY-ONE ADDITIONS TO THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH AT SUNDAY'S SERVICES

370 ATTEND SUNDAY SCHOOL

Children Sing Greeting To New Pastor—Seven Are Baptized at Night Meeting

The first Sunday of the pastorate of Rev. H. C. Miller of the First Baptist Church was an auspicious one, there being two great congregations to hear him and a total of twenty-one additions to the church during the day.

At Sunday school the attendance was 370 and W. L. Robertson, the superintendent, called the entire school together and the superintendent of each department on behalf of teachers and pupils spoke a few words of welcome to the new pastor; a feature was a welcome song by the "beginners," Mr. Miller responded with a few words of cheer and encouragement.

The theme at the morning service was "Was Christ's Mission On Earth a Success or Failure?" and the message reached the hearts of the large audience which filled the auditorium almost to its capacity.

At the close of the sermon seven came forward to unite with the church. The rites of baptism were then administered to seven and it was felt that the first day of the new pastorate had been one of marked success.

It was again necessary to use the Sunday school room at the night service to accommodate the crowd. Mr. Miller graphically told how Paul journeyed and preached Christ, taking for his text the words of the jailer, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

At the close of the sermon seven came forward to unite with the church. The rites of baptism were then administered to seven and it was felt that the first day of the new pastorate had been one of marked success.

CRACK REGIMENT OF HUERTA'S ARMY

THE TWENTY-NINTH, WHICH TURNED TIDE AGAINST HUERTA, REAL SOLDIERS

NO COMMISSARY, NO TENTS

Wives of Men Follow Them on Campaigns—Nearly All are Full Blooded Indians

(By William G. Shepherd)

Vera Cruz, May 10.—(By mail to New York)—Shells were flying over the City of Mexico; Madero's star was sinking, amid bloodshed and fire. In the suburbs of the capital was the 29th regiment, the crack organization of the Mexican army. If Madero could let them get into the city he would win his fight against Felix Diaz. Blanquet was at their head. What side he would take was the ominous question, which Blanquet himself soon answered. He would keep the 29th regiment out of the city. The turn of affairs rested with these 900 soldiers. And so Madero fell.

There isn't a fiercer body of men in any army than the 29th. They are all full blooded Indians. Their salary is $2 a day, which is double that of other Mexican soldiers. Their uniforms fit them a rare thing among Mexican soldiers. This accoutrement is of the best and they are inordinately proud of their regimental flag. "Those men," said Blanquet one day, "would die for the wrong as well as for the right." But, when you come to compare the 29th with eyes an ordinary regiment of almost any other civilized army in the world, you get a fair glimpse of the extraordinary crudity of Mexican military affairs.

Are Fed by Women
The 29th hasn't any commissary department. Each soldier has his woman, who follows the regiment, even on its parades about the capital, feeding him and carrying his clay water bottle. On a parade day in Mexico City, while the regiment is passing through the streets and admiring crowds fill the curbs, there's an even more interesting parade on the sidewalk of hundreds of poorly dressed Indian women, carrying babies and food and dragging along tired children, each woman, with a dog-like patience, keeping near her man, and watching for his slightest signal. At the move of his finger she will run out and hand him a water bottle. At the end of the parade she will run through the disbanded soldiers to get to him with a tortilla, which is pancake folded over a mass of beans. At night the patio of the president's palace, where the soldiers sleep about on the stone floors, will be filled with little groups of soldiers and their women and children. "Faithful to death" is the motto of a soldier's woman. But as soon as her soldier man is killed, she'll have another soldier for these women seem to love the life of soldiering. A woman who has had two soldiers killed is considered a hoodoo and she'll have a hard time finding a third. The 29th regiment is followed by some 80 women, it is said, who have lost three soldiers each, and who can't find a fourth one.

The 29th regiment has no tents; Mexican battles are never fought in sparse country but always center about a town, so the officers and very often most of the men find houses to sleep in. Sleeping out of doors is a thing which Mexicans will not do, if they can avoid it, for it is a national characteristic that they greatly fear pneumonia or even slight colds. Many Mexican soldiers, therefore, if they are forced to sleep out of doors, will lean against walls and sleep, standing up, through the entire night, wrapping their heads in their blankets. The 29th regiment, by the way, is the only one in the Mexican army that has overcoats. The serape is the cold weather covering of the others. The average Mexican soldier, however, is a pathetic figure. No man was ever known to enlist in the Mexican army, voluntarily. Most of the soldiers, before Huerta's time were men who had been arrested in the large cities for drunkenness or stealing and who were given their choice of going to jail or becoming soldiers. There really isn't much difference, but the fear of Mexican prisons kept the army fairly well filled. A prisoner who has made this choice would be immediately removed from the court room to the nearest barracks. Word would be sent to his wife and children that he had "joined" the army and she would pack the few household belongings, take the children and join him.

Are all Fatalists
Huerta, however, within the past year has made his army of some 10,000 men, mostly by conscription. Squads of soldiers went, now and then to the market places in Mexico City, surrounding them and seizing all the men caught in their net. Or soldiers would enter a neighborhood at 2 or 3 in the morning, break into every house, seize the father and sons, if the father were over 17 and drag them off to the barracks. The women of the household would be sure to turn up at the barracks next morning, bringing breakfast—and all the children. Thereafter, she and the children lead a wild, wandering life, the children becoming utterly demoralized by having their mothers and immorality. The children, followers of Mexican regiments swear and steal like veterans. Mexican soldiers aren't vicious. Their patience is what impresses one most. Poorly fed, cheated out of their pay, offered by inefficient or dishonest men, they remind you of faithful dogs, willing and even anxious to please their masters and obey orders, even to death. They are fatalists to the end. "No matter what happens to me," they seem to think, "I can't avoid it by worrying or by testing." They have little regard for

Nut Cake

Simply Delicious
By Mrs. Janet McKee Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine
In giving this recipe, Mrs. Hill believes it to be one of the best all-around cake recipes it has been her good fortune to make. The simplicity and uniformly good results will appeal to every housewife

One-half cup butter; 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar; 3/4 cup milk; 2 cups flour; 2 level teaspoons K. C. Baking Powder; 1 cup of nut meats chopped fine; whites of 2 eggs; beaten dry.

Sift flour and baking powder together, three times. Cream the butter, add the sugar; then alternately, the milk and the flour mixture; lastly the whites of eggs and the nut meats. Bake in a sheet in a shallow pan thirty or forty minutes. When cold, cover with the icing and decorate with whole nut meats.

This is also an excellent cake recipe when nuts are omitted.

Chocolate Icing
One cup granulated sugar; 1/2 ounce chocolate; white of 1 egg; beaten dry; 1/2 teaspoonful vanilla extract; 1/4 cup water.

Stir the sugar, chocolate and water until the mixture boils; cover and let boil three minutes. Uncover and let boil till when tested in cold water a soft ball may be formed; beat into the white of egg, then beat until cold, add vanilla.

The nut caramel frosting given on page forty of the K. C. Cook's Book may be used in place of the chocolate frosting, if desired. A copy of the Cook's Book, handsomely illustrated in 9 colors, will be mailed free, if you will send the colored certificate packed in 2-cent cans of K. C. Baking Powder to the JACOBS MFG. CO., Chicago.

human life. An instance showing this happened at Tampico. An American moving picture man, who intended to leave Tampico the following day, but who wanted a sensational picture before he started, asked a federal captain whether he intended any of the small band of rebels he had captured that day. "Some day we'll execute some of them," said the officer. "But not right away." But I want to get a moving picture of the execution," said the movie man, "and I have to leave here tomorrow." Oh, well, in that case," said the interested officer, "I'll execute some of them today." And he did, taking care to give orders to the firing squad to shoot, only after he got the signal from the movie man that everything was ready and his focus was right. With good officers and with a small regard for human life, the Mexican soldiers would make tremendously good fighters. To whip them if Uncle Sam finds that necessary, will not be an holiday affair.

SAYS GOD IS NEEDED IN EVERY DAY LIFE

FORGIVENESS SERMON SUNDAY AT FIRST M. CHURCH, CARRIES THIS LESSON

MISTAKE OF SYRIA'S RULER

Learned That Jehovah Was Ruler, Not Only of Hills, But of Valley

That Jehovah should be a factor in everyone's life, not only on the Sabbath, but on every day and in every sphere of activity was the message at the First M. Church Sunday night by Rev. C. C. Smith, the pastor. He took his text from I. Kings 20:25. "Jehovah is a God of the Hills, but He is not a God of the Valleys." The pastor said in part:

Israel surrounded by warlike tribes and nations, had many conflicts to maintain her identity. The purpose of Jehovah was to keep Israel a peculiar people unmixing with the neighboring tribes, and her greatest enemy was her disposition to forget the leadership of Jehovah and fall into sinfulness. So long as she was faithful to her God she was invincible; and this fact became known to those who would overthrow her. Benhadad, king of Syria, had been defeated in a campaign against Israel in a decisive battle fought in the hills, and like many another in his time he concluded that Jehovah, the power back of Israel, was a local god and particularly a god of the hill section. Accordingly he sought a second engagement in the valley and learned to his sorrow that Jehovah could fight battles in the plains as well as in the hills, and that he who contends against Jehovah is fighting to his own certain death.

Benhadad is not peculiar in that he alone of all mankind has sought to localize Jehovah. It is a common thing today and no less disastrous than of old. Many people are to be found whose highest conception of God is that He is a God of generalities and not of particulars. How many think of Him in connection with the details of life? This world, of course, is a fact and it indicates certain necessary conditions, but God has simply set it in motion and gone on His way bustling with larger activities and left this world, like a great clock, to run out the period of time for which it is planned. He is the absentee owner, the landlord who has abundant confidence in His tenants and has left them to their own devices.

He is the God of nature, because any one can see that there must be something back of nature. He is the initial source of all substance but has little to do with the substance. Matter has had a beginning and this indefinite God began the machine and started it off. This flower, the animal, all nature, indicates intelligence. He is intelligence. God is a great convenience in emergencies. Physically man is quite helpless before the great powers of the universe and sometimes get in the path of devastating storms. He needs help and needs it badly, and it is his to have God to call upon in the face of emergency. Death comes and hearts are broken. Those who have thought little of God find it comforting to turn to Him now. There is dire need and surely there is a God for this otherwise unsolved mystery. Thus unconsciously reason the masses of humanity. The significance of the necessary moral relation is lost sight of and a universal feeling possesses us, and we conceive it an act perfectly proper for one to call upon the God in emergencies whom he has ignored throughout a lifetime of prosperity. Such a God is peculiarly well adapted to special occasions.

Local customs have set certain precedents which must be followed. A picnic is on. It needs to be properly set going, and so an invocation is offered as a signal to the crowd that the day is formally opened and immediately we turn to the hilarity of the day. Death is a serious hour and a funeral should be conducted in good taste. A funeral without God is rather an awkward affair and conducted by the goddess is a grotesque scene indeed. Good taste makes it desirable that God should be recognized, but He is rather a guest of honor that the Great God of Heaven and His presence is not to be taken too seriously. God is all right in some circumstances, but He does not fit well into our thoughts and deeds. Alas for humanity that we are prone to limit God to those hours in His when we find it particularly convenient and that we shut Him out from the really vital hours of living.

In Everyday Life Jehovah therefore is not always considered as the God of the everyday living, as He should be. Jehovah is not only a refuge in trouble but He is a guide for all paths. He has spoken and is still speaking, and we can not fully appreciate Him in adversity unless we have learned to know Him during prosperity. He is the God of all questions of right and wrong. He is the arbiter of all difficulty between man and man. He is the God of the Sabbath and of every other day. We should worship Him on the Sabbath and on every other day of the week. Let us not deceive ourselves. He is all or else He is nothing. He is all through and through or not at all. We can have only one master, one dominating power over the soul. If we desire Him to be ruler of the hills we must surrender to him the valleys also.

GOVERNMENT PIPE LINE IS FAVORED BY PRODUCERS

Oklahoma Oil Men are Almost Unanimously in Favor of Proposed Carrier to Gulf

George McQuaid in Dallas News) Out of the rubble of theories and the maze of discontent that envelops the oil situation in Oklahoma and elsewhere—and Oklahoma is the principal factor in the petroleum market of this country—there is coming a plan for Government control or regulation that will probably solve the problem that oil men are studying. Chief in the factors that argue this is the present investigation being made by the Department of the Navy and Interior Departments looking into the feasibility of the Government building a pipe line to the gulf from some point in the Oklahoma fields. This investigation has now covered three very busy days at Independence, Bartlesville and Tulsa. Two more days will be put in by the Commissioners in the oil fields of Oklahoma, then they will go toward the gulf and take up other phases of their inquiry.

The Commissioners have become so interested in the oil fields of Oklahoma that they will supplement their view of the Cushing field next Thursday. This will defer their Dallas date. The Dallas hearing will be at the Southland hotel Friday.

The Commissioners were overwhelmed at Tulsa today by urgent invitations to visit the fields and see conditions. That they have decided to go to the Cushing field as well as to the Oklahoma field has been very gratifying to producers, who look to the Government for relief from a very serious condition in many ways.

It has developed in the three days in the tank farm, pipe line and derrick country, that producers of crude oil are practically unanimous in their zeal in behalf of the Government owning a pipe line. Most of them are in favor of the Government producing oil, and many of them would have the Government perform all the functions of producing, transporting, buying, selling and refining petroleum. Men who are said to represent the oil monopoly have assented to the Government suggestion as contained in the Gore resolution, under which the commission is operating and the presumption is that these men are sincere in their expressed attitude.

Commissioner Sells said that he is amazed and immensely gratified over the change in the attitude of persons who were assumed to be opposed to any Government activity in the oil business. He said yesterday that he considers the position of the pipe line men who have made statements favorable to the Government pipe line to be a result of the change that is coming over public sentiment with reference to the attitude of the Government in controlling and regulating public utilities. It is gathered from his remarks that the commissioner is very favorable disposed toward the project. It is his desire, however, that all arguments that may have bearing on the subject be submitted to the commission.

NOTED LIBRARIANS IN ANNUAL MEETING TODAY

Washington, May 25.—With librarians from New England, the East and Middle West in attendance the thirty-sixth annual conference of the American Library Association opened here today. During the next four days numerous meetings will be held to discuss the advance work of the day. Numerous meetings will be held to discuss the advance work librarians are conducting in various communities throughout the country.

At the close of the convention a number of librarians will tour Europe. They will visit Oxford and Leipzig to attend the meetings of the International Exhibition of the Book Industry and Graphic Trade Arts and the International Meeting of Librarians. Later they will tour Italy. The meeting was opened with an address of welcome by Dr. Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress. Edwin M. Johnson, director of the New York Public Library and president of the Association, was scheduled to respond, and immediately afterwards make his annual address, for which he has chosen the subject of "The Tax on Ideas." H. H. Meyer, chief of the division of bibliography of the Congressional Library, will speak on "The Libraries of Washington." Incident to the conference there will be an interesting exhibit of library labor saving devices.

MEN'S AFTERNOON MEETING

Dr. Scoville speaks at Wichita Theatre—Overflow Service is Necessary at Night

Previously reported 301
Conversions Sunday 56
Total to date 357

Five big meetings were held Sunday by Dr. Charles Scoville and his associates and as a result fifty-six conversions were secured during the day, making it one of the best days of the meeting during its three weeks in this city.

An immense crowd attended the morning service and there were 523 in the Sunday school. In the afternoon a women's meeting was held at the church and a men's meeting at the Wichita Theatre. At night Dr. Scoville preached in the Christian Church to a congregation that filled every nook and cranny of that edifice, while an overflow meeting of several hundred was held in the M. E. Church, South, where Rev. Walter Sandy conducted the services. The responses during the day were as follows:

Morning service 12
Men's meeting 15
Women's meeting 15
Night service 12
Overflow service 12

Advocates Christian Union.

"Christian Union" was Dr. Scoville's subject at the morning service by speaking in advocacy of the proposed organic union of the various denominational bodies. He gave the Bible's authority for such a step and mentioned what were called the "seven blunders" in the history of the church. His subject at night was "How Shall Ye Escape If Ye Neglect So Great a Salvation," it being one of Dr. Scoville's most eloquent discourses. The music was a pleasing feature at all of the services.

There will be no services here tonight. Dr. Scoville has gone to Duncan, Okla., where he will preach tonight; Rev. Walter Sandy will preach at the Methodist church in Iowa Park. There have been just fourteen days of services at which the invitation was given since the meetings began and with a total of 357 converted up to the present the average per day is about twenty-five which is considered a splendid showing, especially in view of the fact that the vast majority of those who have been attending the services were already united with the church.

Meeting At Theatre. The first floor of the Wichita Theatre was well filled for the service for men and boys in the afternoon and a number were seated in the balconies. Nearly all the audience was made up of grown men.

The program was opened with a song service led by Mr. Marty and included a solo by John W. Bradley who sang "Somebody Knows; It's Jesus."

Before beginning his address Dr. Scoville called for several testimonials, responses being made by C. C. Huff, J. W. Bradley, W. J. Bullock, Dr. Farris and Prof. J. B. Jones each of whom told briefly what the Christian religion meant for him. "Be not overcome with evil, but overcome evil with good" was the text for Dr. Scoville's address, and as is customary in the meetings the audience joined with the speaker in the reading of the Scripture. The speaker appealed for men to assert the good within them to overcome the evil and to become positive forces. He referred to a statement that someone had made in Sunday school the morning to the effect that it was no worse in some fellows swearing and not meaning any harm by it than for others to pray and not mean any good by it. He said that he was going to put that expression down on the wrinkles of his memory as he believed there was a whole lot in it. "If I was going to the devil, I'd get out in the front ranks there wouldn't be any half-way business about it," he said. He pictured Elijah taunting the prophets of Baal and his exhortation, "If the Lord Be God serve him."

Refers To Whiskey Traffic. Urging that Christians should give to the Lord as He had prospered them Dr. Scoville said, "You get all all you can, can all you get and the devil will get to can you."

The speaker again denounced whiskey quoting statistics and citing examples to show the blight of its use. He told of investigations conducted by the British government after the Boer war in an effort to locate the cause of the deterioration of the British soldier as a physical specimen and that these investigations had shown where both parents drank only seventeen out of a hundred children could be expected to be normally bright and intelligent. For the sake of unborn children, the speaker said, every man ought to keep his hands clean and his heart right. He quoted from Judge Lindsey of Denver, that example environment and opportunity combined in the making of youthful criminals, giving examples from Judge Lindsey's experience as juvenile judge in Denver to illustrate the statement.

The Bread of Life. He closed his address with a story of a wounded French youth who had been shot through the stomach and whom the surgeons had given up to die. He was being kept alive by hypodermic injections. The little church in a distant province made up enough money to send his father to his bedside. His mother remained at home as there was not enough funds to take them both. At a meeting in the little church on the night before the father left for the bedside of his dying son the old mother brought a loaf of her own baking and bathed in her own tears it was blessed by the little congregation. When the father arrived at his son's bedside and the son asked for his mother, the father gave some excuse not wishing his son to know that there had been no money to bring them both. The father unwrapped the loaf and his son, famished from lack of nourishment, seized it and devoured it greedily. Some constituent of the loaf worked as a curative for his wound and he was finally nursed back to health. The story was told in a manner to bring out its full pathos and there was scarcely a dry eye in the audience when it was ended. The speaker then told of the bread from above, the bread of life to heal and nourish wounded sinful men. Thirty-three in the audience held up their hands for prayers.

Meeting For Women. At the same hour of the men's meeting Rev. Sandy conducted a meeting for women and girls at the First Christian Church. The main auditorium was crowded and a very good meeting was held. The subject for the afternoon's discussion was "Especially" and Rev. Sandy made a very forcible appeal to his hearers. Mrs. Scoville led the singing, adding to the appeal with one of her appropriate solo numbers. In spite of the fact that the most of the audience were already members of the church, twelve came forward at the close of the service in answer to the invitation given.

How to Beautify the Hair

A Simple and Inexpensive Home Method

If your hair is not pretty; if it is losing its color, too dry, matted, falling out, or if the scalp itches and burns, you can overcome all of these conditions by using Parisian Sage, which supplies every hair need. It works right in to the hair roots, stimulating them and furnishing the nourishment that is needed for the hair to grow not only long and heavy, but shiny, soft, lustrous and gloriously radiant.

You can get a bottle of this inexpensive, yet delightful and helpful hair tonic from Foshes & Lynch or at any drug store. Improvement begins with the very first application. Besides stopping the scalp irritation, it removes every bit of dandruff. The use of this unequalled hair tonic will surely give your hair new life and beauty. (Adv.)

HART AND LOOMIS READY FOR THEIR MATCH TONIGHT

Both Contestants Declared to be in Good Condition—Preliminaries are Arranged

Everything is in readiness for the wrestling match to be held at the above hall tonight between Charles Loomis of Des Moines, New Mexico and George Hart of this city. The affair is under the auspices of the Wichita Falls Athletic Club, recently organized here which is guaranteeing the match. Loomis has arrived and seems to be very fit. Hart defeated him once before, taking two hours to get a fall which may indicate the relative ability of the two contestants. Several preliminaries are promised, starting at 8 o'clock; the big match will probably open about 9:30.

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally, I took Cardui; the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles.

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts with nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen their worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all druggists.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE

And Be Free From Her Troubles, but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "if I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering, from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without pulling at something to help me, and stayed in bed most of the time. I could not do my housework."

The most of the audience were already members of the church, twelve came forward at the close of the service in answer to the invitation given.
