Ship To Carry Party Looked For at Puerto Tonight—Huerta Stays Aboard Train

By Associated Press. Puerto, Mexico, July 20.—General Huerta today shrugged his shoulders and smiled contemptuously when it was suggested that the force of constitutionalists known to be a short distance from here would dare attack his party.

His military companions, however, did not share the same degree of confidence. They sent out an extended line of outposts to prevent the constitutionalists from approaching.

Huerta continued to pass most of his time in the railroad car in which he arrived from Mexico City. Since his arrival here he has not taken an hour of exercise.

Now that means of getting away have been arranged for there is a marked change in the bearing of all members of the party. The women and children among them slept late today and appeared not to be worrying.

The ship to carry them is expected late today, but it is not believed they will get away before tomorrow.

$300 Worth Of Jewelry Found Buried Under Bridge

Three hundred dollars worth of jewelry stolen from Staley's and Holland's drug and jewelry stores at Burkburnett Sunday night was found by Will Bryan, former city marshal at Burkburnett and Mr. Grimsley, engineer at the Burkburnett light plant in a bucket buried in the sand under a bridge west of Burkburnett Monday morning.

The loot included watches, bracelets, stick pins and other articles of jewelry and about five dollars in small change. Of this $250 was found in the bucket with the jewelry.

When hunting for a clue to the robber this morning Mr. Bryan learned that Mr. Grimsley had seen a man pick up a bucket last night on a vacant lot. He went to Mr. Grimsley and together they traced the man's footsteps to the store and out nearly two miles into the country to the bridge where they found the bucket buried in the sand.

Major Robert Cobb, Valiant Confederate Soldier Dead

Major Robert Cobb, ranking artillery officer of the Confederate army and pioneer resident of Wichita Falls died at 1:30 this afternoon at his home on Tenth street, following a brief illness due to a paralytic stroke. The funeral will take place at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Church of the Good Shepherd.

The death of Major Cobb closes the earthly career of one of the South's most intrepid and valiant soldiers and one of Wichita Falls' most generally beloved citizens. Entitled by years the Major was stricken shortly over a week ago and for the past few days it had been known that he could not survive. Like the true soldier and adversary that he was, he remained bravely and peacefully, awaiting his well earned rest in the "white tents far away."

For thirty years Major Cobb had been a resident of Wichita Falls coming to this community when it was a little frontier village, in 1854. Through all the vicissitudes of prosperity and adversity that blew, he remained loyal here. The practice of law he engaged him actively until a few years ago when his age forced him to give up most of his work along this line. His high ideals of citizenship and of service stood him well through the long years that he lived here and there are few that can point to a better record.

Commanded Cobb's Battery. At the time of his death, Major Cobb was ranking artillery officer of the Confederate army. He commanded the famous Cobb's Battery in the war between the states, ending the war with a splendid record and bearing the title of major. In Kentucky, especially in the neighborhood of Paducah, many members of this battery survive and to them the name of Cobb still stands for all that is brave and valiant.

Born in Kentucky. Major Cobb was born in Lyon County, Kentucky on July 21, 1836, and received his early education at the "Frick" male seminary at Western military institute. He took up the study of law at the University of Virginia, in the class of '55-56 and had just started the practice of his profession when the war between the states began. He promptly volunteered and soon became first lieutenant of Company F, Third Kentucky Infantry, commanded by Col. Lloyd Tilghman, afterwards brigadier general. In September, 1861 the company of which Major Cobb was a member was transferred to the artillery service for the movement on Bowling Green, Ky. A few months later, Captain Lyons of this company was made colonel of the Eighth Kentucky Infantry and the young first lieutenant was chosen to command the artillery battery. Following its part in the battle of Shiloh in April, 1862 the battery came to be known as "Cobb's Battery" and that name it has borne ever since. In 1864 the subject of this sketch was promoted to the rank of major, commanding the artillery forces in many important engagements including the battles of Vicksburg (siege of 1862) Baton Rouge, Hartsville, Landing, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Kenesaw Mountain, Jonesboro and the numerous lesser engagements that

SHIP WITH HINDUS WILL BE TOWED FROM HARBOR

Attempt To Do This, However, Will Not Be Made For Several Days

By Associated Press. Vancouver, B. C., July 20.—No move will be made for a couple of days to take out of the harbor the steamer, Komatani Maru, and her 300 Hindu passengers who have been refused a landing by the Canadian immigration authorities. This decision was reached today. Meanwhile a tug is circling around the vessel and relays of guards are standing guard to repel boarders. There was some fear that an attempt might be made from shore to help the Hindus make a landing.

Of the men wounded in Sunday's battle only two remained in the hospital today and it was expected they will be out in a few days.

Bigger Profit in Feeding Wheat to Hogs Than Selling

That Texas farmers can profit more by feeding their wheat to hogs than by selling it at seventy-five cents per bushel is the assertion of Reese S. Allen of this city. Mr. Allen notes in the papers recently where Texas was importing hogs and considers this a condition that shows very little enterprise.

"When I was a boy in Missouri," said Mr. Allen, "we made a corn crop about two years out of five, the drought getting it the other three years. When there was no corn, farmers there fed wheat to their hogs. Wheat was a dollar a bushel then and hogs brought five cents a pound and yet they made money at it. Oughtn't Texas farms to make money the same way with wheat at seventy-five cents and hogs bringing nine cents?"

Mr. Allen has recently returned from a trip to South Texas and he declares that Wichita county crops are far ahead of those in the rest of the sections that he has visited. Corn in the Red River country, he says, is in splendid condition and he believes this territory is in much better shape than the average Texas county.

"Red River corn looks much better than that on the $120 an acre black land farms," Mr. Allen said.

By Associated Press. The consensus of opinion among them, he said, was that business needed time to readjust itself to the tariff.

MERIDIAN ROAD PRIZED BY ALL TEXAS COUNTIES

Extensive Improvements Being Made From Galveston to Burkburnett

Texas counties generally are waking up to the importance of the Meridian road work, according to W. H. Beck of Fort Worth, secretary of the Texas branch of the association, writing to Robert Campbell of Anadarko, general secretary. In South Texas between Waco and the Gulf where a year ago there was very little highway that was even passably good, Mr. Beck says there are now many miles of finished road.

"From Tarrant county to Burkburnett," writes Mr. Beck, "conditions now are fair and there is great promise of extensive improvement during the next few months. Next spring will find Texas with a graveled road all the way from Burkburnett on the Red River to Galveston on the Gulf."

"It is very encouraging," Mr. Beck says in his letter, "to all the Meridian road enthusiasts to know that the National Highways Association thinks enough of the Meridian road to incorporate it in their bill proposing 50,000 miles of Federal highways."

Of these several are automobile drivers charged with speeding.

MEETING OF CLUB OWNERS

By Associated Press. New York, July 20.—Drastic action, possibly a strike or walkout of baseball players in the American and National Leagues is contemplated by the baseball players' fraternity, according to President Fultz in case the national commission refuses to agree to the terms of an ultimatum sent it by the fraternity in the case of Player Kraft of the St. Louis Cardinals. Mr. Fultz declines to discuss the details of the ultimatum.

It was reported the commission had been given until Wednesday to reply. Han Johnson, president of the American League, has called a meeting of the owners of the teams of that league here tomorrow. He said that if a strike order is obeyed by the players every American League park will close its gates. All players salaries will be stopped and the striking players will be punished for their action.

The differences between the fraternity and the commission in the Kraft case came from the award of Kraft to the Nashville (Southern League) Club. The fraternity claims he belongs to the Newark International and is entitled to the salary paid that team which is higher than the salary paid by Nashville.

FIVE CHARGED WITH SPEED LAW VIOLATIONS

Member of City Council and Chairman of Police Committee Among Number

Sunday was the open season for automobilists and as a result five complaints have been filed in the court, four for speeding and one for running after dark without lights.

M. J. Gardner, member of the city council is one of those charged with exceeding the speed limit.

Arrests for speeding and other violations of the traffic ordinance are an almost daily occurrence and quit a few owners of cars have contributed five dollar fines to the city exchequer. Some have contributed several times the warning apparently going unheeded.

Observance of the traffic rules downtown is not as general as it was at first and there is a tendency to resume cutting the corners instead of making the square turn that is required. It is said that autoists are observing the rules much more strictly than drivers of other vehicles.

OLD PEOPLES' SERVICE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Old Time Hymns Sung and Sermon Special For Old Folks Features Program

Ranking with children's day and mother's day and quite as important as either was the special old people's service held yesterday at the First Baptist Church. All details of the morning's worship had been arranged especially for the old people and particularly those who are not able to attend services regularly. Transportation had been provided for all who had no convenient means of attending and the opening of the service found a number of old men and ladies whose hair had grown white and whose eyes become somewhat dimmed during their pilgrimage.

Some were present, who for various reasons are seldom able to attend church and others who attend regularly but find the old songs just a little sweeter to their ears than the more modern ones. For their benefit the old hymns, favorites of long past years were used in the congregational singing and a male quartette composed of H. T. Burgess, W. S. Robertson, E. H. Benninger and W. L. Robertson furnished special music. The quartette sang two numbers, "We're Going Down the Valley One by One" and "Perfect Peace." Rev. Miller had very aptly taken for his subject, "The Sorrows and Joys of Old Age" and his sermon struck a sympathetic chord among his audience. The entire service was much enjoyed by the old people present and will be long remembered.

ANOTHER ARKANSAS MINE ATTACKED; BUILDINGS BURNED

By Associated Press. Greenwood, Ark., July 20.—The arrest here today of Bob Trout of Hartford, Ark., a miner in connection with the death of two mine guards, Clarence Fyles and John Baskin, said to have been executed by members of the force that attacked and wrecked the Mammoth Vein Company's mine at Prairie Creek was the latest development in the strike situation here.

The grand jury here today began investigating the riot. Prosecuting Attorney Paul Little declared he would hold them in session all summer if it required them that long to discover the perpetrators of the alleged crime. News was received here today that the Coronado mine near Huntington owned by the same company that owns the Mammoth Vein mine was attacked by miners today and some of the mine buildings burned.

TRIAL OF MME CAILLAUX IS SENSATION OF PARIS

EX PREMIER'S WIFE BROUGHT TO TRIAL

ENTERS COURT ROOM THROUGH SECRET PASSAGEWAY TO BE ARRAIGNED

PRISONER APPEARS WORN

Heavy Police and Military Precautions Taken To Prevent Riot

Personages: Mme. Joseph Caillaux, wife of ex-premier and former minister of finance, in prison charged with murder. Gaston Calmette, editor of "Le Figaro" whom Mme. Caillaux shot to death. Time: Shooting occurred on March 16 at 6:35 p. m., Calmette dying at 12:45 a. m. The Beginning: A violent political campaign by the Figaro against Joseph Caillaux, minister of finance and leader of the government "bloc," the Radical-Socialist party; Caillaux sometimes called the "Lloyd George of France," because of his taxation measures. Contributory: The Figaro's campaign becomes somewhat personal and on Friday, March 13, was printed an intimate note alleged to be from Caillaux to the present Mme. Caillaux and signed "Ton Jo" (Thy Jo). When this note was written the present Mme. Caillaux was the wife of Leo Claretie, from whom she was later divorced. Direct Cause: (As urged by the defense.) The understanding that Calmette was to publish further and more intimate letters from Caillaux to the woman who later became his wife. Trial: At the Palace of Justice, on the "island of the City." Charge: Premeditated murder. Defense: Shots fired in a moment of panic or brain storm. Calmette killed unintentionally. By Associated Press. Paris, France, July 20.—Through a secret passageway Madame Caillaux was conducted to court today for trial for the murder on March 16 of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro. There were rumors that Royalists intended to create a disturbance during the trial and extensive precautions have been taken by the police to quell it.

The crowd outside the court room made several demonstrations as well known lawyers or friends on either side went to court but they did not catch a glance of the prisoner. As soon as the jurors had been chosen by the casting of lots and the four judges composing the court had taken their seats President Albaladejo called in a loud voice heard throughout the court room: "Bring in the accused." Republican guards thereupon opened a small door in the walls of the court room beneath the bust of the Goddess of Liberty and Madame Caillaux stepped out into the center of the tribunal. The strong light from the windows opposite seemed to startle her or perhaps it was the silence of the court room and the sea of upturned faces that made her hesitate on the threshold and reach out unsteadily to catch the arm of the Republican guard standing beside her. He spoke to her and she entered the prisoner's enclosure. She stood with eyes downcast, her shoulders bent, a picture of tired and broken womanhood. When asked her name her lips scarcely moved and the words could hardly be heard.

Mme. Caillaux Testifies. Madame Caillaux made a long statement referring frequently to her notes. She told about her divorce in April, 1908. Her voice was steady. She spoke of her marriage with M. Caillaux and said Monier Caillaux was a tender and in many respects had been supremely happy, adding: "But, alas! my life began to be poisoned by calumnies. The campaign of the Figaro against my husband was unrelenting. All the people in the saloons that I frequented received me with smiles that were intended to wound me. One person said my husband had taken money from Germany in connection with concessions in the Congo. These slanderous rumors permeated every part of society. I was no longer able to go to sittings of the Chamber of Deputies because I was the object of unwelcome attention. One day there was a cry behind me, 'To Berlin, Caillaux, Congo! I was forced to leave.' Madame Caillaux added that painful incidents were taking place all the time among her acquaintances when she was shopping at the theatres and even in her home. She continued: "The attacks of the Figaro were implacable. They had nothing to do with politics. They were personal. I suffered; I lost my head." Mme. Caillaux voice sank and she seemed overcome. After a few minutes one of the judges asked: "Why do you say the polemics of the Figaro had nothing to do with politics?" The prisoner raised her clenched hands and cried: "I will tell you why." She then searched among her notes and began to read passages from them. "These," she shouted, "are some of the 138 articles published against my husband. These criticisms are not attacks upon his policies; they are personal." Several times she asked the presiding judge if she could go on. "Take as much time as you like, you have the fullest freedom to say anything that you like," he told her.

CASE RARE MORSEL FOR FRENCH GOSSIPS. Paris, July 20.—A rare morsel awaited Paris today. Mme. Joseph Caillaux, beautiful wife of the ex-premier and former minister of finance, was placed on trial, charged with the shooting and killing of Gaston Calmette, editor of "Le Figaro." The trial of the woman whose act all but upset a cabinet, threw France into a political turmoil the like of which it has hardly seen since the Dreyfus case and resulted in her husband's retirement as a cabinet officer, attracted an enormous crowd toward the Palace of Justice. Heavy police and military precautions have been taken to stop rioting which is considered certain about the Palace of Justice. During the trial, in order to avoid unnecessary risk of personal violence against the fair prisoner, she will be locked in the tower of the Conciergerie, famous as the prison of Marie Antonette. This ancient structure now forms part of the more modern Palace of Justice. Scores of witnesses have been summoned in what is expected to be one of the most thrilling trials in the history of French courts. They include well known literary men, politicians, journalists and social personages known throughout Europe. The audience will be none the less brilliant, although but few can be admitted. The space available is limited and scores of visiting lawyers, diplomatic representatives of foreign powers in Paris, newspaper correspondents and others must necessarily be taken care of. Attorney Labori, representing Mme. Caillaux and assisted very quietly by the accused woman's husband, as said to be planning a surprise for the prosecution. It is said he may try to prove that Calmette died, not directly as the result of his bullet wounds but because of useless delay on the part of attending surgeons to operate. Had they done so, according to experts said to have been summoned, Calmette would be alive today and would have been up and about ten days after the shooting. It is known that the "brain storm" plea will be entered by the noted attorney in defense of his client. A bitter fight will be made to save the beautiful woman from imprisonment for the crime which she says was driven to commit by the bitter attack that had been heaped upon her husband. Mme. Caillaux had said that she did not go to Calmette's office with the intention of killing him, but desired merely to frighten him and "teach him a lesson." Mme. Caillaux shot Calmette in the latter's office at the Figaro, March 16, after the editor had printed, as a culmination of a bitter campaign against Joseph Caillaux, a letter of a personal nature said by some to have been written by Caillaux to his present wife while she was the wife of another. This, however, has been denied. In any event the letter was

THE MEASURE OF A MAN, HIS THEME

REV. C. C. SMITH ANSWERS QUESTION ASKED BY PSALMIST

SPIRITUAL AND MATERIAL

God Regards Man As Supreme Achievement of His Creative Power

"What is man that thou art mindful of him?" The question asked by the Psalmist was the text of Sunday morning's sermon by Rev. Chas. Clark Smith at the First M. E. Church. Answering the question from material viewpoints the speaker showed that man as an animal was little if any the superior of other animals. He is an immortal soul," Rev. Smith said, "and for that reason God is mindful of him. God considers him worthy of love." The sermon in part follows:

"The most commonly observed facts concerning man have to do with his struggle against physical conditions, his competition with other men and his conflict with nature for a livelihood. The most obvious things concerning him are physical. Therefore it is quite natural that his thoughts concerning himself should be largely material. It is not surprising moreover that the scientist, concerned chiefly with the material, should have seen him largely as physical. The surprise of history is that amidst such consuming physical struggles the spiritual nature of man has been able to maintain such place. It surely indicates a relation to the divine whose power keeps alive a spiritual correspondence in the hearts of men. Otherwise amidst so much of the sordid and distinctly animal of life the spiritual self would have been completely submerged. If there be no life beyond and apart from the body how shall we explain the tenacity of the spiritual ideal and the fact that in the most animal stage of man this element keeps asserting itself and claiming the right to be supreme? The physical is the more obvious and our uninformed thought and because of its needs is constantly thrusting itself upon us, but through it all the spiritual self insists on being recognized and given its rightful place of supremacy. Because the needs of the body seem more immediate and insistent does not convince mankind that bodily needs are the more important. There are some things even of more concern than what we shall eat and what we shall drink and what we shall put on. The Psalmist with his poetic sweep gave form to a question asked many years before his time and repeated often since he lived. It is a prevalent question with men everywhere. What is man? What is man that thou art mindful of him? What is he in relation to others of his kind and to the world in which he lives? What is he in relation to a God of infinite thought? That man exists in relation to other men and to other conditions in this world is obvious to the sense and it remains only for him to work out these relations satisfactorily. That he exists in relation to a Supreme Being is more obvious to sense but is none the less convincing and he recognizes the necessity of working out that relation in a way which shall please the Infinite. The question is insistent and the answer depends upon the viewpoint of the one who seeks a solution. The answer we bring will be relative to our viewpoint. Answer of the Naturalist. "We approach the naturalist with the question, what is man? He will answer by comparing man with nature round about. What is physical man as compared with the unlimited stars of the heavens? He is the merest speck of dust as compared with some of God's created objects which appear before his eye. What right has he to assume any importance? What is man as compared with the earth on which he creeps? The majestic mountain and the giant waterfall and the storm cloud and the desert all over-awe him. What is he as compared to these? The Psalmist was something of a naturalistic poet and he was impressed with the amazing grandeur and beauty of the heavens and cried out in amazement that a God who had made all these should still have regard to man so insignificant in comparison. It is a matter of erected bulk man is indeed insignificant. Many of the animals outdo him in this respect. They are superior in size, strength, endurance, longevity, etc. Many animals possess faculties developed to a degree never approached by man. In some animals instinct plays a part which in man education can not duplicate. What is man then from the naturalist's viewpoint? He is an animal of a medium order, lacking in many respects and superior only in his power of mind. He can reason and remember and the animal world generally is limited in these faculties from Caillaux to a lady and there were rumors that two or three other letters from Caillaux to the woman now bearing his name, were to be printed. Mme. Caillaux wished to get possession of these letters. She decided to visit the "Figaro" offices. An automatic revolver was concealed in her muff. Soon after she was admitted to Calmette's office six shots rang out. The editor was found rapt in his chair, four bullet wounds in his body. Mme. Caillaux still held the revolver in her hand. She was calm and cool, quietly submitted to arrest and was imprisoned.

ties. His physical organs are so like those of the lower orders of animals that the unskilled can not tell one from the other. They are so like in certain stages of development that many and indeed most scholarly men think that man is a development up from a lower order probably through a long number of stages. To the naturalist therefore man is animal and not in all respects the highest in animal achievement. "We approach the chemist and ask him, what is man? He takes us to his laboratory and shows us an analysis of the human body. What does it indicate? Again we find that man is animal. We find that the human body reduces to the same elements—essentially as any other body. There are certain volumes of gas, small quantities of salt, charcoal and lime, etc. A human body reduced to its lowest terms in a crematory will leave on the average less than five pounds of solid materials. It is not difficult for the chemist to answer from his view point what man is. He is animal and in analysis shows little or nothing that is not common to all animals. "In turn we interrogate the biologist and what is his answer? He has studied the origins and developments of the physical man and he too knows that he develops exactly like the lower order of animals. In his study of embryo he has found great similarity and perhaps will declare emphatically that man is only animal—that his microscope and scalpel fail to reveal anything in man that is not common to all animals. The biologist therefore pronounces man a bundle of derived properties very similar to all other animals and as animal only slightly if at all superior to other animals. His evidence is good and his answer complete within the compass of his observation. From his viewpoint man is only animal. The Religionist Measure. "But what does the religionist have to say? Ask him, what is man? Man is indeed animal but he is more. Measured as to bulk he is indeed insignificant. Measured as to brute strength he is easily excelled. Searched for with scalpel and microscope he is very easily overlooked. He must be measured by other standards. When properly observed we find some qualities that do not reveal themselves on scientific analysis of the body. There is the power of thought that does not leave a residuum in the chemist's report. There is a power of thinking a new thought which does not reveal itself to the eye of the microscope. The bee builds a cell for the storing of its honey on the best possible plan both as to economy of space and for strength, but he builds today exactly as he did in the days of Solomon. The beaver invents nothing new in the way of dam building. He could not dam the great Mississippi or cut a canal across the Panama. Man has independence of thought. Certain possibilities of love and hate characterize man. These show characteristics new and distinct in the animal order. The religionist says that the scientist has not seen all of man—that he has not seen man at all. He declares that man is soul—intellect, sensibility, will. That he is made in the image of God; that he not only lives now but that man is indestructible and shall live forever. On this basis many things that suggest themselves to the scientist but are unexplained within the limits of his field become plain. A certain superiority to the animal order is evident or else the scientist himself would not be capable of study and research and yet that superiority does not appear within the body itself. Man's body is not superior to the animal body in general. But the religionist does not place supreme emphasis on the body. He recognizes its importance to the real self but insists that it is secondary to the real man. He looks upon the body as an instrument of the soul and as something which the soul can dispense with in due season. He stands by the grave in reverence out of respect to what the body has been, but he is not thinking that the grave holds all. He goes to the crematory and returns with the handful of ashes of a loved one and does not consider that what he holds in the urn is the loved one. What is man to the religionist? He is an immortal soul and for that reason God is mindful of him. Created of God with the divine image stamped, not upon the body but upon the soul, man is an object of supreme interest to God. His body is not to be neglected because as an instrument of the soul it is of great importance but because it is more immediately real to our senses than the soul we must not allow it supreme importance. The chemist can analyze our bodies and find that they differ very little from other animals. We are not animal only. We are more. We are children of the great God and as such we should live as befits the supreme achievement of his creation. We are greater than the stars because they are on material. We are greater than the mountain, because it is dead matter. We are greater than the elephant, the lion, the tiger because they are animal only. What is man? A child of God and while sometimes he has abused his better self till he appears mostly animal so long as the spark of divine nature remains he is more than animal. He can sink very low in the scale and again he can rise very high and become a god. He can do these things because he shows his superiority. God considers him worthy of love; it becomes us therefore to regard man as God regards him, the supreme achievement of God's creative power on earth."

DALLAS MOTHERS AGITATE DRESS REFORM FOR GIRLS

For the past several weeks there has been a movement on foot among the Dallas mothers to modify the dress of the Dallas high school girls, many modifications being proposed and uniform dress is now being considered. Their objections to the dress of the girls at present are embodied in the following resolutions passed by the Mother's Council at a meeting last Friday:

"We, the Mothers' Council, desire to bring the following resolutions before the public and wish the co-operation of the people and the patrons of the Dallas schools:

"Resolved, first, That students of the public schools of the city adopt a simpler and more hygienic dress.

"Resolved, second, That they eliminate high heel shoes, silk stockings, elaborate hair-bows, party dress materials, extreme low necks and short sleeves, excessive use of jewelry and stage make-up.

"Resolved, third, That a standard of physical culture be taught in the schools in order that the pupils may be better prepared to live the daily life, such as correct standing, sitting, walking and breathing.

"The council requests a hearing from the public through the press in regard to these momentous questions."

WEBB WORMS ARE CAUSING DAMAGE

ATTACK FLOWERS, WEEDS AND TREES DENUDING THEM OF FOLIAGE

MISTAKEN FOR ARMY WORM

Latter Much Larger and More Destructive—Paris Green An Effective Remedy

A horde of worms, believed by some to be the Webb worm from the web they leave over the plants which they devour, is doing great damage to trees, lawns and gardens by incidentally they are destroying luxuriant growths of certain varieties of weeds which the weed cutting ordinance has failed to reach.

The worm is the caterpillar variety being from half to three quarters of an inch in length; green with a dark brown stripe. They attack morning glories, cosmos and some other flowers which grow at this season of the year and mulberry and paradise trees are their particular favorites. In a day they will clean flowers to the naked stems and it doesn't take them long to strip a tree. They are short lived, but live long enough to do a lot of damage.

Some have confused these worms with the army worm. The army worm is nearly twice as long as this worm and is a quarter of an inch thick and has a dark appearance. While normally it feeds by night and hides by day, not being generally noticed as soon as it has increased to such a number that its food supply falls short, it starts to travel and becoming bolder, feeds both night and day. The moth from which this worm hatches is brown with a white spot on the center of each fore wing. It measures about an inch and one-half from wing to wing. A solution of paris green, enough of the powder in water to give a greenish tinge is recommended to stop the ravages of the webb worm. This of course is poisonous both for worms and other animals and care should be used in handling it. Equally efficient in the application of a spray of one-pound arsenate of lead dissolved in twenty-five gallons of water. If the powdered arsenate of lead is more easily obtainable, one pound of this may be mixed with eight pounds of flour and dusted where the worms are feeding. It must be remembered that arsenate of lead is a deadly poison.

So far no reports of considerable damage by the webb worm have come from the county, its ravages being confined mostly to the city where there is some shade and plants that are kept green and tender by sprinkling.

The Victoria. The third installment of "The Million Dollar Mystery" is showing here today; a synopsis of which appeared in Sunday's issue. The program is completed by another of the adventures of Shorty in "Shorty's Trip To Mexico." The officer Pedro Sanchez, the border smuggler was seized upon by Shorty as a means of repairing a damaged heart. If he were to help Pedro smuggle arms to Mexico he might manage to renew his affair with Anita. He had just come through a sickening experience. It was pay day and he came to town with the body for a good time. The only woman in Dead Tree Shorty would look at was the doctor's wife and he had gone to the dentist with a rearing toothache and the dentist had insisted on relieving him of a perfectly good tooth.

Shorty and the Spaniard rode off to the border. Meanwhile Anita and her father refused to turn over their stock of horses to the Mexican general who left them tied up in their own house. Shorty steps off to see his sweetheart, there he discovers their plight and outwitting the guard, cuts their bonds, hurries the father and daughter in his automobile and drives to safety across the border.

WIMMS PUBLISHING CO. 100 HOWARD, Mex.

The Kansas City Star, though a strong admirer of ex-President Roosevelt, and a supporter of the Bull Moose candidate for president in 1912, has this to say of President Wilson's great victory in forcing Huerta, the assassin of Madero, to resign the presidency of Mexico and leave the country for his country's good:

"The first great success of President Wilson's foreign policy has been won. Huerta has been forced out, and that without involving the United States in war.

"You may think what you like about the Wilson diplomacy. You may sneer at it as 'amateurish.' You may call the outcome a lucky accident, and all that. The fact remains that government based on assassination has been discredited. Huerta has been compelled to resign. The United States has not had to waste American lives in a protracted war of intervention.

"What Mr. Wilson set out to do has been splendidly accomplished. It is the president's victory!"

The Times has arranged for a bulletin service of returns from the primary over the state Saturday and Sunday night and will display these returns within a few days in the Times building. County returns will also be displayed. The Times election service this year will be more complete and better than ever before.

The public is very cordially invited to come out and see the bulletins. The Times is spending a large sum in giving this service from which it does not expect to receive one penny in direct returns. It believes, however, that the people of Wichita Falls are entitled to just as good a bulletin service as Dallas, Fort Worth or any other of the larger cities and proposes that its bulletin service will be just as complete as that given by any of the larger papers of the state.

What information the Times may have will be available to its out-of-town readers and telephone calls will be cheerfully answered. All our telephones, however, will be in the collection of returns from this and adjoining counties and we ask that all who can be out to watch the bulletins instead of calling over the telephone. The task of collecting the county returns is a big one and cannot be successfully and promptly accomplished without the fullest cooperation of the election officials everywhere. We ask and know that this cooperation will be given us.

Mr. M. Kennedy, whose death took place yesterday at Kerrville, was one of the most unique and interesting characters that ever figured in Texas politics. Few more skillful politicians ever trod the floor of a legislative hall and few more interlopers fighters ever took part in any conflict. He never gave quarter, and never asked any. Ousted from the speakership more through political exigencies than through any real wrong committed by him, he took upon himself the task of "coming back" and vindicating himself. This, in a large measure, he certainly accomplished. His home district re-elected him to the legislature and in both the succeeding sessions it was his influence, more than any other factor, that resulted in the election of Rayburn as speaker in the Thirty-Second and in the Thirty-Third. While the speaker of his election from the speakership was never fully removed, Kennedy regained the respect and good will of the legislators and even those who were his enemies knew well of the quickness of his blade in debate. The fight, hopeless but grim and determined, that he made against tuberculosis when that dread disease fastened itself upon him, was typical of his course through-pectation of those who wrote it. The committee which framed the bill estimated the receipts for the first fiscal year at $2,700,000, while the receipts already have exceeded that sum, and the treasury officials estimated the total receipts will be $202,000,000.

Some falling off was, of course, expected, or as Mr. Underwood very trenchantly remarked, the income tax would not have been proposed.

The corporation tax will return this year nine-million more than it did last year. The income tax has returned over $75,000,000, but it was collected for only ten months of the year. The receipts from all sources under the Payne law were $224,000,000, while under the present law they will be $733,000,000, and, as the total ordinary disbursements will be $703,000,000, there will be surplus of $30,000,000. So, the calamity howlers must take a back seat.

Under the Payne law in 1910 there was a deficit of over $19,000,000, and under the Dingley law the deficit in 1909 was over $115,000,000.

The exports in 1912 were $2,204,322,409, while for eleven months of the fiscal year they were $2,207,424,688. Prophesying after the fact will prove safer for those who see visions of disaster.

DECLINE IN LABOR COSTS

The statements issued by railroad officials showing how the outlay for labor has increased, have become commonplace. To the reader of the daily press who does not stop to consider the matter, they create the impression, as those who issue them wish to create, that a large part of the financial woes of the transportation companies at the present time is due to the demands of railroad employes for higher rates of pay.

A few moments' examination of the facts, however, soon shows how unwarranted these statements are. An analysis of the operating performance of the carriers at once discloses the fact that the railroads by using larger engines, heavier equipment and by adding to train loads have developed a remarkable increase in efficiency of employes, and while adding to the labor of the wage-earner have reduced to a striking degree the labor cost of conducting transportation.

An examination of the annual reports of 53 Western railroads to the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that for 1,000 traffic units handled in 1890 the cost of engineers and firemen was 88 cents as contrasted with only 59 cents in 1913. In other words, these representative Western roads were enabled to transport 1,000 passenger and ton miles 27 cents cheaper last year than in 1890, or to reduce their engineer and fireman cost of handling traffic 31 per cent.

In the light of these facts, the sham of the claim of the railroads that increased operating costs have been due to added outlays for engineers and firemen is apparent.

The above is a part of a budget of literature furnished the Times by the local railroad men and which is supposed to present their side of the case. Other articles along this line will appear in these columns from time to time.

Butte Labor War Chief Topic of Western Federation

Denver, July 20.—The recent discussion in Butte in the ranks of the Western Federation of Miners which resulted in several serious riots, was the principal topic of discussion when the annual convention of the Federation was called to order here today by President Charles H. Meyer.

It had been expected that the Michigan copper strike would occupy most of the attention of the meetings but the critical Butte situation overshadowed it.

President Meyer was summoned to Butte last month as soon as the trouble began and remained in Montana during all of the exciting days which followed. It is expected he will make a personal report to the convention regarding the situation and recommend a course of action.

In the past conventions the Butte delegation has been nearly the largest in attendance. The Cabinet copper strike will also be discussed at length. President Meyer and Auditor C. H. Tanner will report on the final outcome of the trouble, with especial reference to their experiences at Hancock when they were reported by a mob of armed men.

One hundred and fifty delegates are here. The convention will last two weeks. The Butte situation, which is compelling the attention of the Federation delegates is outlined by John O'Neill, editor of the official paper of the Western Federation as follows:

Dissatisfaction had long existed among the 8,300 members of the Butte local. Charges were made that National officers were perpetrating themselves in office and as a consequence were able to own rich ranches and summer homes in Colorado and Nevada. Special assess-is a per capita assessment of $3.50 a year. Concerning the charge that national officers are running a steam roller for their own re-election, it is declared President Charles Meyer recently arranged for the election of officers by a referendum.

National officers of the Western Federation assert that members of the J. W. W. are responsible for all the trouble at Butte. At the present convention a committee will be appointed to visit Butte and conduct an election of new officers for the local there. President Meyer predicts that the "second union" formed at Butte under the leadership of Muckle McDonald will soon fall. Affiliation with the American Federation of Labor will be denied, they say, since only one organization of a craft is admitted.

Additional Personals Mrs. H. T. Canfield left this afternoon for Colorado points. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Turner went to Vernon yesterday to visit relatives. George Harding of the Palace Drug Store went to his home at Munday this afternoon to visit relatives.

Mrs. M. F. Gupton returned this afternoon from a visit to relatives at Henrietta. John Owens leaves tomorrow for a two weeks business trip through West-ern Oklahoma. Judge P. A. Martin and little daughter, Lois, returned from Lagrange, Texas, at which place the latter has been visiting for the past two months.

SEEMED TO BE ENOUGH

By NELLIE CRAVEY GILLMORE.

She had long yellow curls that looked like glistening columns of gold, bobbing in the sunlight when she walked, or lying in rich satin abundance all over her little fluffy shoulders when she was still... The day was hot to suitiness, the sun beating upon the lake with fierce intensity and transforming it into a great sparkling pool of melted metal... When the little girl came back to earth again she was lying in her own bed with the prettiest canopy of blue satin and the slonky white draperies all around her... "I should like so much to see him and to thank him," said Winifred one day—the first she spent out of bed... "You may," replied her aunt... "I can never thank you enough," she began... "The invalid laughed and shook his head... "Then I suppose we must be 'quite'!" She laughed merrily... "The other nodded... "No—oh, no. And your little girl—where is she now? She is not—is she—?" "Winifred looked at him suddenly, with wide, bewildered eyes... "My mamma will be home tomorrow," she remarked... "Have you no father?" he questioned gently... Winifred shook her pretty gold head slowly back and forth... "Never mind! I oughtn't to have asked you... "She is the dearest, best and most beautiful creature in all the world!" Winifred broke out, an uplifted smile on her dainty, flushed face... "The sick man nodded, not trusting himself to speak... "So this is your mother?" he asked, after a long, long pause... "Mamma!" "My little sweetheart!"... "This is the gentleman who saved my life, mamma... "Katharine! For God's sake don't turn away from me now... The woman had buried her face in her hands... "It seemed to be enough—at least to Winifred—and to Winifred's father. (Copyright, by Daily-Story Pub. Co.)

Nailing Down the CUP

America's Cup The Trophy

The Resolute on her way for trial contest

The Defender

Sir Thomas Lipton Again Attempts To Lift the International Trophy, This Time With His Freak Yacht Shamrock IV, Which Will Meet the Best of the Three American Defenders.

WITHIN another month Sir Thomas Lipton, that sterling sportsman and jolliest of all Irish peers, will have set sail for these shores aboard his freak yacht, the Shamrock IV, here to make his fourth attempt to lift the American Cup. Meanwhile three American yachts are engaging in almost daily trial contests in an effort to decide which of the trio is best fitted to withstand the invasion and meet the common enemy. The Resolute, the Vanitie and the Defiance, the three American yachts, have been engaged in these elimination contests now for several weeks and while all chances seemingly favor the Resolute as the real defender, each yacht has a host of followers and the trial spins have been carefully watched by the yachting experts of the Old and New Worlds.

No aquatic event in the world attracts more widespread attention than the international races with its lifting of the American's cup as the goal. For many years now, or since August 21, 1851, the cup has been in the possession of American yachtsmen. Not since the good yacht America, in the swirling race around the Isle of Rhé, defeated the British craft, America, and brought the cup to these shores has there been an English boat of sufficient prowess to come here and wrest our yachting laurel from us. These have been many attempts, it is true, and some of these were formidable enough, but the cup remained and here it is to stay, unless Sir Thomas can achieve the most cherished ambition of his sporting career.

Three Defenders To Pick From.

The question as to which yacht will finally be chosen to represent America in this stirring event will not have been definitely settled until about August 1. The final trials will be run off over the ocean course off Newport, R. I., and in these contests the three yachts will be extended to their fullest. The flower of the yachting fraternity, or those persons affiliated with, or loyal to the New York Yacht Club, pin their hopes to the Resolute, this yacht club's candidate. The Defiance is owned by the Tri-City Syndicate, yachting enthusiasts of New York, Boston and Philadelphia, while the Vanitie is the property of Alexander S. Cochran.

The New York Yacht Club has been foremost in putting forth candidates to meet the invaders and so far has resisted most successfully all such invasions. England has sent the very best yachts her designers could fashion and all met the same fate. These included the Cambria, Livonia, Countess of Dufferin, Atlanta, Genesta, Galatea, Thistle, Valkyrie II and Valkyrie III, and the three Shamrocks, the latter sent by Sir Thomas Lipton in his gallant assault on our most highly treasured trophy.

America has been hard put to hold the trophy and in doing so put forth such defenders as the Magic, Columbus, Sappho, Madeline, Mischief, Puritan, Mayflower, Volunteer, Vigilant, Defender, Columbia II, and the Reliance. And now the Resolute, Vanitie and Defiance to pick from we feel even better assured of a winner than ever.

Resolute An Easy Winner.

In the first race between the Resolute and the Vanitie, the latter bumped away in front and maintained her lead until the end. For a time it seemed as though the New York Yacht Club, for the first time in its history, would be compelled to take a back seat while this stirring event was run off. But in later trials the Resolute came valiantly to the front and fulfilled all those claims which her designer, her owner and her skipper made for her. She is lightning fast and so far has demonstrated her ability in light or stiff winds.

So far the Vanitie has rather the best of it as far as the Defiance is concerned. Ever since the change in her design, the Vanitie, which resulted in Captain Harry Haft taking command, ably aided by Captain "Ed" Willis, who lends sails, that yacht has shown a marked improvement and the hopes of those who back her run high. The Defiance is fast in certain winds, but so far she hasn't shown that smartness and cleverness her sisters have demonstrated.

There has been little betting on the result of the international contest. Not until the Shamrock IV meets either the Resolute or the Vanitie on the Sandy Hook course next September will anybody, not even the men who designed the respective yachts, have any idea as to which is the faster. Experts are frank to assert that both Herrshoff and Gardner have turned out in the Resolute and the Vanitie two boats of the seventy-five foot class which could easily have their time allowed over the Reliance the last successful defender. There are those who go so far as to assert that under certain conditions of wind and weather, such as light airs and a tumbling sea, either might beat the ninety foot yacht with time allowance extended. These predictions go far to bolster the hopes of American yachtsmen who feel that the sporting honor of the nation now rests upon their shoulders since we failed so signally in other fields.

No better illustration of the speed of the American yachts is needed than the first of the trial races between the Resolute and the Vanitie. In that race the winner, the Resolute, made the thirty mile to windward and seaward in the record time of three hours fifteen minutes and forty-one seconds. The next best time ever made over this course was by the Vigilant against the Valkyrie II, when the official timers recorded it as three hours, twenty-four minutes and thirty-nine seconds. It must be remembered that the Vigilant was an eighty-six foot yacht as against seventy-five for the Resolute. Furthermore the Vigilant raced under exceptionally favorable circumstances of a strong wind of twenty knots, whereas the Resolute had a wind that varied in velocity from ten to fifteen knots.

In the earlier struggles between the Resolute and the Vanitie, the former has taken the measure of the latter in going to windward, for she beat her in this race three minutes and forty-nine seconds in the trip of fifteen miles to the outer mark. In the third race she beat the Vanitie in ten miles of windward work by four minutes and one second.

Vanitie A Good "Reacher."

On the other hand the Vanitie has shown to better advantage than the Resolute in reaching, for in the second race, on a reach of ten miles she out-sailed the Resolute by four minutes and twenty-nine seconds. In later races, however, the Resolute improved her work in the reaches and now on the eve of the September 21st international trials she seems to have every advantage and looms as the "real" defender.

In the three captured races between the three yachts, held under the auspices of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club the latter part of June, the best opportunity, yet had, was given to judge the relative merits of the three yachts. The Resolute won this stirring contest called under light wind conditions when the very best in each boat was brought out by the experts who manipulated the respective tillers and sails. The boats were dressed in their new sets of sails and the Defiance had undergone many changes. To illustrate the superiority of the New York Yacht Club's craft the tabulated score of that race is here given:

Meanwhile Sir Thomas Lipton's revering oration after ovation in the waters where he has appeared with his challenger, the Shamrock IV. According to those who have been under her full spread of canvas she is the freest-looking craft, as far as rigging goes, that ever set out to lift the cup. Like the Shamrock III she is a seventy-five footer and so far her trial races have been against her predecessor. According to the cable reports in her various trials around the Isle of Rhé she has shown remarkable stability of speed, in one case beating her running mate more than a minute to the mile in some of her reaches, and even more so in her windward work. All that was expected of her was not forthcoming in her earlier reaches, and this accounts for the change from the single to the double rig (jib and stay-sail) that was effected after the first few trials.

Sir Thomas A Good Loser.

To one of the New York Yacht Club members, who has just returned, Sir Thomas said:

"If I don't lift the cup this year, I will begin to feel that it has been securely riveted to your shores; that nothing can dislodge it. I have been confident before, but something within me whispers that I shall be successful this time. Most certainly America will know that she has been through a race with a challenger who has shown that we shall see a splendid contest and after all there is a whole lot of satisfaction in that, even though I have to admit across the water to the other side."

NEWS BUDGET FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, July 20.—The long established custom of holding annual meetings of the Texas Farmers' Congress and the State Farmers' Institute Association meetings at College Station may be abolished at the next meeting of these organizations, to be held next month, if a recommendation of J. C. Lindsey, chief clerk in the department of agriculture is accepted. Mr. Lindsey believes these organizations should meet at some centrally situated point—either Dallas or Fort Worth, or even Waco. With the associations meeting at either of these cities, he believes the attendance would be doubled. It would also be easier to get free transportation he said. Between 15,000 and 20,000 negroes are expected here tomorrow to attend the forty-seventh annual session of St. John's Encampment for colored people, according to Dr. L. L. Campbell of Austin, who has charge of the meeting. The encampment runs until July 30. Preparations are being made for the largest turnout in the history of the meetings.—Lecturers from all over the United States have been procured. The governor will be requested by the comptroller to create a small deficiency in the appropriation for the enforcement of the liquor laws, the funds for that purpose having been exhausted.—There are said to be several instances where an investigation is necessary, but cannot be made because of the lack of funds. This city last week issued interesting statistics showing the saving effected by a motor fire truck. For the year ending July 1, 1914 the total expense of Hillsboro's fire department was $1933.75. For the previous year it was $2737.75. The savings—of $793.12, Fire Chief Ed Rowan—attributed to the purchase of a motor apparatus. This motor truck had not

Is Your Child "Stupid," "Stubborn" or "Unruly?"

How do you know it isn't poor eyesight instead of bad temper? 30 per cent of New York school children need glasses, as is shown by a recent examination. It may be that your child might be benefitted by use of glasses and if this is true you should take steps to have glasses fitted at once. Our system of scientific eye examination will determine the proper steps to take.

WE'RE TALKING TO YOU?

We are talking now to those who have never tried our FRESH ROASTED COFFEES. No use talking to the other fellow because we've got him where he can't get away and doesn't try. We roast only high grade, carefully selected, well aged coffee and roast very day. If you never used fresh roasted coffee you don't know good coffee. Your MOTHER made good coffee because she roasted fresh before each meal. You'll do yourself a favor to try ours just once. That's all we ask. There's nothing will carry you through one of these hot days like a cup of good FRESH coffee in the morning. Let us prove it.
