GIN-MILL DIVORCE BILL IS TAKEN UP

AMENDMENT OFFERED TO ALLOW MILLS TO OPERATE GINS IN SAME TOWNS

WAREHOUSE BILL IN HOUSE

Boner Sworn In—Leave of Absence To House Members Has Been Revoked

By Associated Press.
Austin, Texas, Sept. 14.—The Senate today resumed consideration of the cotton gin-mill divorce bill. The vote of engrossment was recorded in order to present further amendments without the two-thirds majority necessary in case of engrossed bills.
The amendment was defeated 22 to 77. The House then engrossed the Burgess-Harris Mexican counterfeit money bill.
Senator Nugent offered an amendment which would allow oil mills to own and operate gins in the same town in which the mill is operated. Senator Clark opposed this amendment as practically defeating the very purposes of the bill. Senator Nugent read two letters from Hadsenville and Huntsville protesting against the bill that it would hurt farmers.
The Senate defeated the Nugent amendment 11 to 9. When the Senate recessed until afternoon there was pending an amendment by Watson allowing oil mills, when 80 per cent of their stock is owned in the county in which the mill is situated, to own and operate cotton gins in the county, also.
Senator Hodges and Senator McNeasius introduced the Mexican counterfeit money bill requested in the governor's message.

PERMANENT WAREHOUSE BILL BEFORE HOUSE

By Associated Press.
Austin, Texas, Sept. 14.—When the House met today Representative Goodner had adopted a resolution providing that all leaves of absence extended to members be revoked. The sergeant at arms was directed to wire all absentees to return immediately. At present there is barely a quorum in attendance.
C. W. Boner of Bellevue was sworn in from the 100th representative district. The House then resumed consideration of the permanent warehouse bill considering the amendment to strike out sections 6, 7 and 8. These sections contain regulations for cotton ginners and place ginners under the jurisdiction of warehouse commissioners.

GEN. JOFFRE CLAIMS VICTORY FOR ALLIES

Says Germans in Full Retreat, Abandoning Prisoners and Munitions of War

Bordeaux, Sept. 14.—The minister of war, Alexandre Millerand, Sunday communicated to the cabinet the following telegram, which he had received from General Joffre, commander in chief of the French forces:
"Our victory is confirmed as more and more complete. Everywhere the enemy is in retreat. Everywhere the Germans are abandoning prisoners, wounded and munitions of war."
"After heroic efforts on the part of our troops during this formidable struggle, which lasted from the fifth to the twelfth of September, all our arms are flushed by success and executing a pursuit unexampled for its extent."
"On our left we have crossed the Aisne below Soissons, gaining 65 miles in six days' fighting."
"Our armies of the center are north of Marne, while those of Lorraine and the Vosges are arriving on the frontier. The morale, endurance and ardor of our troops and those of our allies are admirable. The pursuit will be continued with all our energy. The government of the Republic may well be proud of the army it has equipped."

ONLY IN THE CENTER DO GERMAN SHOW ANY STRENGTH OF RESISTANCE

MAY BE DRIVEN OUT

If Latest Reports Are True Invaders Will Be Driven From French Soil

By Associated Press.
Paris, 9:30 a. m., Sept. 14.—The retreat of the army of General Von Kluck and General Von Buelow continues at last accounts. The allies seem to keep in close contact with them. It seems apparent the Germans do not intend to make a stand on the river from Rheims to Soissons and it is hardly probable it is thought here that they will halt their retreat before reaching Belgium. They have already made two-thirds of the distance from Provins.

The heavy rains of Saturday and Sunday are not likely to facilitate the retreat. They have abandoned many of the 420 millimeter mortars that were to reduce Paris and which require 40 horses to pull them.

The armies of General Von Hausen and the Prince of Wurtemberg which constituted the center seem to be headed toward Reims and Metziers although part of this force is reported as still resisting at the south end of the forest of Argonne. It was reported last night that the armies of the crown prince, the Prince of Bavaria and General Von Herringingen had been forced across the frontier and the entire territory of French Lorraine liberated. This has not been confirmed.

This disposition of the German armies if confirmed makes another concentration in France practically impossible. It leaves General Von Kluck and Von Buelow menaced by an enveloping movement on the left and without hope of reinforcements except from 60,000 troops in Belgium.

The latest Antwerp dispatches show that these troops will likely be needed in Belgium to withstand the Belgian offensive movement.

COTTON EXPORTS ALMOST NOTHING

SHIPMENTS IN AUGUST AMOUNTED TO ONLY 21,210 BALES—257,152 YEAR AGO

CENSUS BUREAU'S FIGURES

Domestic Consumption Last Year Was 5,500,000 Bales. U. S. 61 Per Cent World's Supply

By Associated Press.
Washington, Sept. 14.—The extent of the effect of the European war on the cotton business of the South was disclosed today in the census report of the department of agriculture, showing that during August only 2,210 bales of cotton was exported, while during August of last year 257,152 bales went abroad.

Great Britain took only 6,270 bales this August, while last August she took 77,000 bales; Germany took 62 bales against 72,978 last August; France took five bales, against 72,000 a year ago, and Italy 1,546 bales, against 13,568 in August, 1913.

All other countries took 13,237, against 40,255 a year ago.

The supply of cotton for 1914, ending August 31, was more than 16,000,000 bales. The year's exports were 8,900,000 bales, and domestic consumption 5,500,000 bales. The quantity on hand August 31 was 1,500,000 bales.

An extraordinary feature was the fact that more cotton was imported during August than was exported by the United States, which last year furnished 61 per cent of the world's cotton supply.

ALLIES' LINE SHEAR SHAPE

GERMAN RIGHT CAUGHT BETWEEN ENEMY AND GIVEN TERRIBLE BLOW

DEFEAT IS COMPLETE

London Times Correspondent Says Extent of Victory Not Appreciated in England

By Associated Press.
London, Sept. 14.—A Times correspondent who wires from Provins in the Department of the Seine et Marne says:
"I have traveled to this point practically along the whole line of the allies army although of course always in the rear of the fighting line. General Von Kluck's force in coming down over the Marne and the Grand Morin to Sezanne, 25 miles southwest of Epernay, met little opposition and I believe little opposition was intended. The allies in fact led their opponents straight into a trap. The English cavalry led the tired German pursuers mile after mile in fruitless pursuit. When the tremendous advance reached Provins, the allies plan was accomplished and it got no further."

BEATEN BACK STEP BY STEP
"The fighting on Sunday, Sept. 6 was of a terrible character and began at dawn in the region of La Serre Gaucher. The French and English fought sternly and slowly beat the enemy back, step by step. Monday there was a tremendous encounter on the Ourcq. In one village from which the Germans were driven out hastily, the French troops found a dinner table where evidently the German staff had been dining. A woman occupant said their departure had been in great haste.
"There was a great deal of hand to hand fighting and bayonet work on the Ourcq which resulted disastrously for the terrible Magdeburg regiment."

GERMAN POSITION PERILOUS
"On Monday night General Von Kluck's army had been thrown back from the Marne district and Morin to the region of Sezanne, and his position had become one of great peril. Immediate steps were necessary to save his line of communication and retreat. For this purpose reinforcements were hurried north to the Meaux and Ourcq and tremendous efforts were made to break up the French resistance. The second attempt on the Ourcq was like the first. All Monday night and well into Tuesday the great German guns boomed along this river without effect. Every man was commanded to hold. Meanwhile the struggle at Sezanne was bearing splendid fruit for the allies and the German resistance was broken on Tuesday morning. On every French tongue was the exclamation, 'They are in full retreat; they are rushing back home.' In the same breath came generous recognition of the great assistance rendered by the English allies."

A TERRIBLE BLOW.
"I am convinced that the full extent of this rout is not appreciated in England. It was of a truly terrific character and such a blow will not fail to have lasting effect upon the enemy."

"The number of wounded caused a demand upon transportation facilities that was met with difficulty."

"The enemy crossed the Marne River on the return beneath a withering fire that took a heavy toll. The German artillery operated from a height. There was again much hand to hand fighting and the river was swollen with dead."

"On Tuesday night the British were in possession of La Ferté and Chateau Chierry and the Germans had fallen back 40 miles, leaving a long trail of spoils behind them. On the same day near Vitry the French won a splendid victory."

"The French drove back the famous German Imperial Guard from the van toward the swamp of St. Gond where a century ago Napoleon achieved one of his last successes. The main body of the guard passed north of the swamp but I heard of men and horses floundering in the swamp where they were easily captured or killed."

PURSUIT CONTINUED.
"On Wednesday the English army continued the pursuit toward the north, taking prisoners in great number. The prisoners of Wednesday will astonish the world. I know that two German detachments of 1,000 men each which were surrounded by

BERLIN REPORT DISPUTES FRENCH CLAIM OF VICTORY

German Official Report Says New Battle Is In Progress And Favorable To Germans

By Associated Press.

London, Sept. 14.—"Incontestable" is the adjective used by General Joffre in describing the victory claimed by the allies east of Paris.

Latest Paris official advices indicate that the advance is continuing all along the line with the allies already across the River Aisne.

GERMAN LEFT STOUTLY RESISTING ALLIES ACCORDING TO REPORT

By Associated Press.

London, Sept. 14.—The right and center of German army in France is gradually withdrawing and the left wing is stoutly resisting the allies according to the best obtainable information today. The German crown prince seems to be holding his own in the vicinity of Verdun.

Reports concerning the fighting in Russian Poland and Galicia are conflicting. It appears the Austrians have met serious reverses but continued struggles prove they have not been completely crushed. Still less is definitely known of the operations in East Prussia.

According to advices from Petrograd the Russians are before Koenigsburg, but Russian advices two days ago stated that Russians were bombarding that place.

According to German reports the initial success of Gen. Hindenberg which has been admitted in Petrograd was followed by other German victories.

The Belgian army operating from Antwerp is reported harrassing the Germans to prevent two German army corps in that district from aiding the armies in France. Belgian official advices admit their forces were compelled to retire after a severe engagement.

The Servians claim continued success against the Austrians, the greater part of whose armies are engaged with the Russians to the north.

REPORT THAT RUSSIANS IN BELGIUM CONFIRMED

Acting With Belgian Troops They Are Reported to Have Cut German Line

By Associated Press.
London, Sept. 14.—The Ghent correspondent of the Daily News says after two days investigation he has confirmed a statement that Russian troops are in Belgium. Afternoon papers of Ghent Saturday published a statement that the German army had been cut at Counterberg between Brussels and Louvain by a Belgian army reinforced by Russian troops. Where the Russians are or what their numbers may be it would be indiscreet to tell.
The correspondent also says the Russians are not the only army that is now in Belgium to fight the Germans.

KONE DEXPLORES DECLINE IN COTTON SEED PRICES

By Associated Press.
Austin, Texas, Sept. 14.—Commissioner of Agriculture Kone today issued a statement deploring the decline in cotton seed prices from $28 to $14 per ton and the decline of cotton from 13 to 7½ cents. He said there is no excuse whatever for the decline of cotton seed as a result of the war, as cotton seed is strictly a food by-product and the war should increase rather than decrease its price.

GEN. JOFFRE SAYS ALLIES VICTORY "INCONTESTABLE"

By Associated Press.

Berlin, Sept. 14.—Wireless to Associated Press via Sayville, L. I.—The headquarters of the German army gave out the following statement today:
"The German crown prince has captured the enemy's fortified position southwest of Verdun and is now bombarding with the heavy artillery the outer forts of that position."

A battle is in progress between Paris and the River Marne over a front of 125 kilometers stretching from Nanteuil in the west where the British forces are to Vitry. The crown prince's army is separated from the main battle by the forest of Argenna. The armies of the Crown Prince of Bavaria and Gen. Von Herringingen are in formal battle near the upper Moselle.

"James W. Gerard, American ambassador to Germany, has given out an interview to the press denying persistent reports that the United States is preparing to join the allies.
"General Hindenberg has defeated the Russians, has crossed the Russian frontier and up to the present time has taken 10,000 prisoners and has captured many guns and aeroplanes."

Another official report this afternoon says: "The garrison at Antwerp has been repulsed. The crown prince's army is now attacking the forts between Verdun and Toul on both sides. Prince Joul arrived today in Berlin. Last night's official details of the battle east of Paris cannot be made public."

"A new battle is in progress which to the present has been favorable to the Germans. Reports from Paris and London of a German defeat are declared false."

"The retreat of the Russian army in East Prussia appears to be developing into a demoralized flight.
"General Hindenberg reports the capture of one hundred and fifty guns and between 20,000 and 30,000 prisoners.
"The London Times confesses that the recruiting in Ireland has been a failure."

Prince Erneste Saxe-Meiningen when mortally wounded gave to a soldier in the sanitary service a paper expressing a wish that his body should not be buried in the ducal mausoleum but laid at rest with those of his fallen comrades. His last words were: "I salute my emperor."

GERMANS CONTINUE THEIR RETREAT IS FRENCH OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Paris, 3:16 p. m., Sept. 14.—It was officially announced this afternoon that the Germans continue their retreat. They are abandoning all positions which they erected to cover a possible retreat.

BRITISH TROOPS IN POSSESSION OF PASSES OF THE RIVER AISNE

London, 4:40 p. m., Sept. 14.—The official press bureau this afternoon issued the following announcement:
"All day yesterday the enemy stubbornly disputed the passes of the Aisne by our troops but in spite of the difficulty of forcing this river in the face of a strong opposition nearly all the crossings were secured by sunset."

CHURCH WITNESS STAND FOR CHRIST

FUNCTION IS TO GIVE STRONG CLEAR TESTIMONY FOR CHRIST

MISSION OF THE CHURCH

Theme at Dedication of Central Presbyterian Church—Two Inspiring Services

The building of the Southern Presbyterian church at the corner of 11th and Eleventh streets, was dedicated Sunday morning with appropriate exercises, in the presence of a large crowd. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Dr. William M. Anderson of Dallas, whose subject was "The Mission of the Church."

The dedication ceremony was a simple one, consisting of the turning over of the keys to the pastor, who in turn presented them to the deacons as trustees and custodians. A. F. Kerr, chairman of the building committee, gave the keys to the pastor, Rev. Fred L. McFadden and Chairman Fessley accepted them for the board of deacons. Special music was provided for the dedicatory service, a solo "So I Can Wait" by Miss Laura Bell being a feature. The instrumental music was furnished by the organist and an orchestra. At a cost of about $12,000 and is now free from debt. This church is one of the youngest in the city, but is making steady progress.

Influence of Church Growing.
In his sermon, Dr. Anderson took for his text 1 Timothy, 3:15. "The church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." This passage, said Dr. Anderson, intimated Paul's conception and estimate of the church.

"You hear it freely asserted to-day," he said, "that the influence of the church is small and is growing less. You hear loud talkers say, 'the church has lost its hold on the masses,' the pulpit has lost its power, 'the masses are beyond the reach of the church.' Such sayings are but the pessimistic wallings of unbelieving ignorance or the barking of dogmatic opponents; the facts disprove the charge. As a matter of fact the influence of the church today is more than ever before. This leads us to inquire what is the function and place of the church in the world, and what have men a right to expect of the church.

"The place of the church is the witness of the witness stand, and its function is the giving of strong clear testimony to Christ as the revelation of God. The church is exhorted to ascend the mountain of clear faith and pure life and sound out the truth to all the un saved world. God chose Mount Zion, the beautiful central eminence of Jerusalem, rising as a landmark amid the surrounding country, as typical of the church. It is a function of the church to tell the sweet story of the gospel, a love, the story of God's love. From the beginning of the world to the present day, God's love for his church has ever been manifested.

"The church is in the world to hold fast to the truth and to hold forth to the truth; first, to her members, to hold the truth out to all the world who will partake of it.

Some Churches Unfaithful.
"I know that many churches are unfaithful to this mission. Some of them are more earnest than others, are homes of pre-sterile areas of theological and intellectual content, platforms where feeble platitudes about sin and grace, faith and hope, happiness abound. And this brings us to the fact that nothing else can so efficiently help in the dark experiences of life as the church.

"Just consider what a terrible fact sin in human experience; not only awful outbroken sins, but the fact and habits of sin, which perhaps do not transgress the limits of decent society. Can anyone doubt that the awful disturbing depressing, enfeebling fact of sin gives the church one great opportunity. It can come as a blessed gospel for sin-cursed hearts, removing the burden of guilt, driving back gnawing remorse, breaking the tyranny of sin, making the heart and mind pure and giving conscious life and strength to the soul. I might relate to you instance after instance from my experience, of how men and women, racked with sin, have come to me for help and consolation.

"Suffering and sorrow, too, are awful facts in our lives. All of us have their share; is there anyone here who has never lost a dear one, upon whom the burden of sorrow has not rested. What a tender message the church brings to such! How often she is called to minister to the dying, to the bereft.

Problems for the Church.
But the church has another function, in striving to reach the solution of the great problems that confront the race. How shall we attain and conserve individual liberty? How shall we control the conduct of men? How shall we regulate and restrain the evil habits of men? How shall we purify social life, adjust home life, how shall we exert, for instance, the conflict between capital and labor, which ever threatens us? Will higher education effect it? Can legislation accomplish it? Can political manipulation do it? These have been tried and failed. It must be done by the church with her system of truth, through the power of the gospel. When you can bring the capitalist and the laborer together to feel the brotherhood that comes through worship, you will have taken a great step. This is one of the problems the church must face."

Dr. Anderson said that a church was more than a human society or organization. It was a divine institution, helpless without the power of the Almighty. He closed with a plea to his hearers to get the true conception of the mission of the church and to live up to it.

Dr. Anderson is considered one of the South's strongest preachers. He is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Dallas, which has retained him despite repeated efforts of churches in other cities to take him away. Of unusual strength and of ferventness as a pastor, Dr. Anderson is also a decided factor outside the church, being associated with numerous public activities at Dallas. He is also a great baseball fan and is quite likely to be discovered seated in the grandstand at Dallas during the season. When he was pastor at Nashville the members of the Nashville team were always to be found at his church on Sunday morning. He has a large family and one of his sons, William Jr., was recently ordained a Presbyterian minister at Dallas.

Optimism Theme at Night.
"Optimism" was Dr. Anderson's subject Sunday night at the joint services of the two Presbyterian churches, and his message was one of the most cheering ever heard in a local pulpit. He called attention to the fact that, in all nature, man is the only pessimistic thing. Crush a flower beneath the foot, he said, and within a minute it is struggling up towards the sunlight again; every phase of nature, the speaker said, was optimistic, and the man who was a pessimist was going contrary to the law of nature.

Dr. Anderson said that if he were a great painter such as those whose works are displayed in the galleries of Europe, he would paint Christ, not with the looks of sadness and suffering that most painters gave him but with the fire of hope in His eyes. Christ was the greatest optimist the world has ever seen, said the speaker. He cited Abraham as another great example of optimism, citing the story of how he was about to sacrifice his only son because he believed it was for the best.

In urging his hearers to be optimistic, Dr. Anderson advised them to carry around a store of optimism for others. It was his practice, he said, to keep about 200,000 pounds of it with him all the time, for distribution to others. In the business world and in every walk of life said Dr. Anderson, it was the optimist and not the pessimist who got to the top.

BATTLEGROUND PRESENTS SCENE OF DESOLATION

Fresh Heaps of Earth Mark Graves of Soldiers—Equipment-Litters Ground

Paris, Sept. 14.—The battlefields of the allies' left wing over which terrible combats have been fought, last week present a scene of desolation. All troops have departed on the heels of the fleeing Germans. Most of the dead already have been buried, but here and there small groups await internment.

Along the banks of the Marne evidences of severe artillery fire are visible everywhere. All over the fields are fresh heaps of earth where soldiers were buried. The graves for the most part are marked by rough-hewn crosses. The officers were interred separately. All about are battered helmets, broken rifles, bayonets, swords, belts and haversacks.

Villagers' Homes Scarred.
In nearby villages house have been greatly damaged; many bear bullet and shell marks; doors and windows have been broken. Branches of trees have been lopped off by shells and scarred by rifle shots. On the river Marne, which the Germans made heroic efforts to cross many times but always were beaten back by the French artillery, bodies occasionally came to the surface.

Country people gradually are receiving treatment and have been transported to neighboring villages.

T. N. G.

PRELIMINARY STEPS TONIGHT

Meeting Will Be Held at Brick Company's Office to Hear Proposition Discussed

A meeting has been called for tomorrow night at 7:30 at the office of the Wichita Brick and Tile Company on Eighth street, to take steps preliminary to the organization of a Texas National Guard company in this city. About twenty-five young men have agreed to join and it is hoped to secure the required strength of sixty very shortly. Those who attend the meeting will hear the matter discussed and all who are interested, whether they intend to join or not, are urged to be present.

The Gainesville company is to be mustered out soon and while several other Texas cities want to fill the vacancy in the guard thus caused, guard officials are anxious to have a company here, by reason of this city's location. Prompt action is necessary, however, and it is hoped to secure sufficient support here to organize a company within the next few days.

heard the far distant firing of machine guns and field artillery. No civilians or correspondents are permitted to approach anywhere near even the reserve firing lines of the pursuing British and French troops.

Five correspondents who ventured out were arrested and threatened with incarceration in the fortresses until the end of the war.

The constant rainfall for the last two days has rendered difficult troop movements. The Germans are suffering from this more than the allies, who are full of ardor and flushed with success. They often capture isolated bodies of Germans who usually are so hungry they are almost glad to be taken prisoners.

Germans Lack Ammunition.
Persistent accounts of a German shortage of ammunition reach Paris. A British officer declared today he had seen a letter written by a German officer in which the officer stated that the invaders' position was becoming critical. He said that the transport was breaking down, owing to the long lines of communications.

Further evidence of the lack of ammunition was to be found in the number of Germans surrendering without firing a shot.

She does not come back to the old town by herself, but Malone, the managing editor of the Comet comes with her and they live happily. Mary Pickford is seen in "A Normandy Romance" an interesting drama. Gerda Holmes is featured in "Mrs. Billington's First Case." Mrs. Billington had been a law student for a number of years and much against the wishes of her husband, determines to take a case. Mrs. Billington is defeated by her husband and the humiliation stings her to the core. She later agrees that the woman's place is in her own home and the river-of-marital happiness runs smooth—once more.

Believes England Will Use 75 Percent Usual Amount Of Cotton

In reply to an inquiry of the Manufacturers Record, John Blair MacAfee of Cophall Court, London, writing under date of Aug. 28, gives some impressions of the effects of the war upon English cotton buying.

Mr. MacAfee was for several years actively connected with financial interests of the South, and has for some time been the representative in London of American financial concerns. He says:

"I would say that a prominent English cotton goods manufacturer has told me within the last two days that, in his opinion, mills would have to, for a time at least, go on half time. There is much talk in which the Government Board of Trade is taking active interest, to facilitate and increase England's foreign trade, particularly in those countries in which German trade influence has been so rapidly growing in the past few years, and in some of which it has become paramount.

"I personally believe, as a result of study and conferences with those engaged in large affairs, that this, to a large extent, will ultimately be accomplished. It, however, takes time to develop.

"I am afraid that one of the difficulties in the way of development of English foreign trade, particularly with countries of Latin-America, has been that up to the present our English cousins have not shown any particular desire to accommodate the products of their manufacture to the taste and desires of the Latin-American consumer. This, I am told by competent authority, is being overcome.

"Trade-schools which have been studying the situation to good purpose, with the result that English manufacturers in cottons and woollens are now, and when I say now I mean for the past two years, more keen to accommodate themselves and the products of their manufacture to the wishes of the foreign consumer.

"The control of the seas is the greatest aid the English manufacturer will have in his fight for trade supremacy. It is such a potent asset that, coupled with lowering cost of production, it would seem that the output of the English mills and factories must constantly increase. I do not see that much cotton will need to be imported within the next few weeks. Trade reports are not published in the papers now, but three weeks ago Liverpool reported

GOING BACK TO SCHOOL

I guess my kite and ball and bat will have to go without me. For school's begun and I must go. But they can think about me. We've had a fine old time this year. That we will all remember. But this vacation was so short—From June just till September.

This goin' back to school again would be a great deal better if 'twasn't for the startin' in. And stoppin' your forgettin'. So sudden-like and painful that it almost makes you holler. I seems as if for one week more I'd almost give a dollar.

There may be some place, somewhere, hat

The boys just have vacation. Without this goin' back to school. To spoil anticipation. I wish I knew where that place was. You bet I'd go and find it. When I get big—but what's the use? By that time I won't mind it.

They say some fellers like to go to school and mind the teachers; But maybe that's just like pa says, "That folks is all queer creatures, And people can't be quite the same As even their own brothers, So when some fellers don't like school, It's maybe fine for others."

900,000 bales of cotton on hand, as compared to a little over 600,000 bales one year ago.

"I showed your letter to an international banker, the head of a concern which probably handles more cotton bills of exchange than any other house. His comment was that if England did buy as much cotton as usual it will be a miracle. Her consumption must, in my judgment, decline for some months. I do not think that it would go below 75 per cent, but if it is maintained at 75 per cent I will consider it very good."

"I think the continent will take very much less than usual. It would be practically impossible at this writing to get cotton into Germany. With so many men employed in affairs of war, there is bound to be a decrease in the consumption of all raw materials, even including some high grade foods.

"Cable exchange today on New York is 5.045.06. There is no one thing that affects the rate of exchange any more than cotton. If cotton was coming freely forward and English manufacturers were buying cotton, the rate of exchange would rapidly fall.

"In conclusion, let me say I regret that I do not think that the English demand for cotton will be greater, and as my friend, quoted above, suggested that 75 per cent is its normal consumption. When the increase in demand will come is dependent upon the duration of the war.—Manufacturers Record.

Mistaken Identity Causes Ex-Officer to Pay a Fine

As a result of mistaken identity, Bob Lyons, former police officer, paid a ten dollar fine in the city court this morning Saturday a peddler, somewhat the worse for wear, came to the police station and announced that he had been beaten up by a man. His assistant had been obliging enough to give the peddler his card, bearing the name of Ferguson. While the officers went to look for Mr. Ferguson, Lyons passed by.

"There he is," shouted the man who beat me up," showed the peddler.

Lyons denied that he had ever seen the peddler before or that he had been at the place where the fight took place. The peddler insisted that Lyons was the man and insisted so strongly that presently the ex-officer landed on him. After reneating the dose administered by the mysterious Mr. Ferguson, he was arrested and was fined this morning. The peddler also was fined.

ACREAGE REDUCTION PLAN. (Houston Post.) Naturally, the problem of caring for a tremendous cotton crop at a time when the demand has been lessened by a war of unprecedented proportions is beset with much perplexity.

It is admitted impossible to establish an energetic market, at fall prices, until some uncertainty as to the cotton crop is removed.

As 5,000,000 bales to be held constitute about a third of the total yield of the South, each farmer can prepare at once to reduce his cotton acreage by one-third and prepare that much of his land for such crops as he intends to substitute for cotton.

French Strategy And English Daring Turn Defeat To Victory

At the left is Chief of Staff Joffre of the French army and to the right is General Pau. These men, with General French in command of the English expeditionary forces on the continent, are the heroes of the hour in France and England. General Joffre's strategy, General French's generalship in carrying out his plan, and the brilliancy of General Pau's efforts have turned what seemed defeat into victory.

Both General Pau and General Joffre fought in the Franco-Prussian war and each lost an arm. General French fought in the Boer war and it was probably his experience there that enabled him to withdraw the English, so successfully before superior forces of attackers.

At the outset of the war the Germans advanced upon France in three vast armies, one through Belgium, one into the Vosges region south, and the third still further south. In the army that came through Belgium and which attacked the allies' left it is estimated that there were not less than 600,000 men, which were opposed by about 400,000 allies at the most.

In the center and on the French right the forces appear to have been more evenly opposed. The German strategy appears to have been to turn the left wing of the allies, envelop it and drive it back into the line of fortifications along the frontier, where it could be isolated and crushed by the German right and German center. To avoid this it was necessary for the allies to do one of two things. One was to withdraw enough men from the center and send them to the allies' left to hold back the German advance; the other was to retreat to the environs of Paris, by which time reinforcements could be assembled there to make the opposing forces more even. The latter was the plan chosen. The retreat before superior forces of more mobile troops is regarded as a masterly feat, although it was not appreciated by observers at the time. "The situation is satisfactory" was a statement that appeared daily in the French communication as the allies daily were pushed back farther on the road to Paris. The world read and wondered at the optimism of the French. Events proved that the statement was well-founded. Not only did the allies reach Paris without any great disasters in their retreat, but the French centers held off the attacking German army. The German advance has been so rapid that it arrived before Paris out of breath and with ammunition and other supplies far behind. In this predicament, faced by its late fugitives fully provisioned and reinforced with fresh troops it appears that the Germans turned to the southeast, hoping to break through the French line and effect a junction with the third German army attempting to drive back the French right. But everywhere the Germans found their allies in superior forces and on the offensive. The lately pursued became the pursuers and began to drive back the German right even more rapidly than it had advanced.

As viewed by most military experts, if the German retreat could be effected as successfully as was that of their allies, the Germans will be fortunate indeed. All of which goes to show that there are other adepts besides the "Joffre the tactician," as he is known to the general staff, is scarcely known to Parisians. In times of peace he is retiring to a degree and shuns public recognition.

He entered the army in the war of when only 18 years old, and was promoted for gallantry on the field by Marshal MacMahon. Immediately after the war he was entrusted with the rebuilding of the forts around Paris, the forts that today are being prepared again to defend the capital against the Germans.

Made a captain at 22, Joffre was sent into the east of France to build up the chain of fortresses there that have proved of such value in resisting the invaders from the north.

Afterwards he spent many years raising impenetrable fortifications at Tonkin, Island of Formosa, and Madagascar. His next brilliant achievement was the crushing of the uprising in Dahomey. There with a small force he utterly crushed the natives, and after a short campaign marched into Timbuctoo. Since that time Joffre has been at the head of the French war college, where officers are trained. In addition, he has been the supreme organizer of the French army, and when war loomed on the horizon there was no debate about placing Joffre in the field as generalissimo. Nobody else was thought of. He is the Lord Kitchener of France.

10 CENT FARES RESTORED ON LAKE WICHITA LINE

Tomorrow is the last day of five cent fares to Lake Wichita and the old rate of ten cents each will apply at all hours after that time. The reduced rate has resulted in considerably increased business to the lake, especially when it was first started. Lately, the weather has been so cool in town in the evenings that most Wichitans seemed to prefer to stay in town. The thirty minute lake schedule will be maintained for some time yet, as long as business justifies it.

The moving picture show at the lake closed for the season last night and a lot of those who have resided at the lake during the summer have moved back to town. Large crowds visited the lake yesterday and saw a real imitation of an ocean beach, the high wind whipping the lake into great white-capped waves. At times the water splashed up over the dam and sprinkled street car passengers and had the water been as high as it was two weeks ago, some damage might have resulted.

The high wind necessitated the calling off of the balloon ascension which had been planned for yesterday afternoon.

BLOOD COVENANT REV. SMITH'S THEME

PASTOR EXPLAINS SYMBOLISM OF COVENANTING PRACTICED IN BIBLE THEMES

WHAT LORDS SUPPER MEANS

Brotherhood With Christ and Everlasting Life Meaning of This Covenant

"The Blood Covenant" was the theme of an instructive sermon by Rev. Charles Clark Smith at the First M. E. Church Sunday morning. He reviewed the Bible covenants and discussed the sacred symbolism of the covenant of the Lord's Supper. In part he said:

"There are two covenants of which much is made in the word of God and one of which is of great importance to us. In the writings which we call the New Testament these two covenants are referred to respectively as the Old and New Covenants or Testaments and by this designation they are generally known. The Old Covenant was made with Abraham and through him to all the Hebrew people. The New is offered to all humanity through Christ the representative of the Father. The two are not wholly separate as the Old leads up to the New and its symbolism finds place in the New and by studying them in relations to each other the meaning of the new becomes more plain. We are approaching a form of service which we are accustomed to call the Communion service. The name is not really expressive of what is involved. It is rather more than a fellowship service. It is a renewal of a covenant with Christ. That it may mean as much as possible to us let us spend a little time in looking into the symbolism involved and tracing some steps in the development of these symbols."

"First of all let us note what is involved in a covenant. A covenant is a solemn agreement entered into by two parties and usually bound by some rite or seal that makes it inviolable. The Old Covenant was an agreement between God and Abraham and was sealed after the customs of the times by the slaying of beasts, according to a certain form. (Gen. 15). Abraham parted the beasts asunder and set the pieces over against each other making a sort of path through which God and Abraham were willing to seal the covenant in the way familiar to Abraham. As night approached the presence of God came in the form of a flaming lamp and passed through the path formed by the slain beasts and by this Abraham knew that God had accepted his covenant. This was an early form of blood covenanting and was always entered into with great seriousness and was considered absolutely inviolable. Thus the Old Covenant was sealed by the shed blood of slain beasts. The New Covenant made by Christ in accepting the commandments of His Father, was sealed by the blood of His own body and His own blood. The blood of Christ himself. If the ancients entered into their blood covenanting seriously and reverently how much more so should we since we have a better sacrifice. The communion is a commemoration of that covenant, a renewal of personal entering into the covenant. Thus our communion service should be participated in only as a re-covenanting or renewal of an inviolable pledge with God."

"From the earlier forms of blood covenanting as represented by this incident in the life of Abraham to the symbolized blood of the communion cup is a long way and yet its development is marked by natural and related steps. Abraham used forms with which the oriental world of his day was familiar. Joseph instituted nothing new in his case nor with Moses many years later. He permitted the use of certain forms with which the people were familiar and which would serve to express some essential ideas. Joseph was careful to place the emphasis on the right place in the forms he allowed. From the actual slaying of the beasts to the blood which represented the life principle of the beast was an easy step, and so in Moses' day we find him sprinkling the blood of slain beasts over the people and over the written commandments from God as a type of blood covenanting. This was the actual slaying of the beasts. Very little is said in explanation of all these forms because the people in whose interest they were employed were familiar with their significance and secular history shows that these same forms were in general use and we find that they are still in general use by oriental peoples of today."

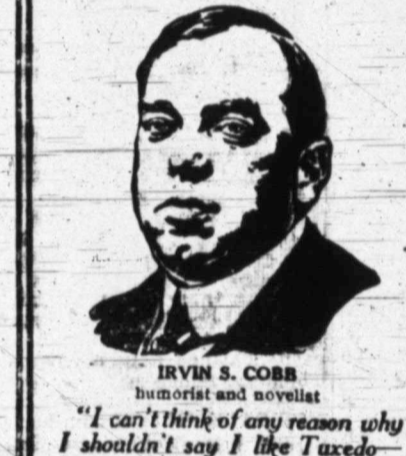

"We find also a modified form of blood covenanting with the same binding significance as the other forms which was entered into by individuals. Two men would make blood covenant and from that day they were more closely related than blood brothers, because the blood of each flowed in the veins of the other. This was a common rite and is observed to this day among widely scattered peoples. Stanley, in his African explorations, entered the blood covenant with fifty different African chiefs. This was necessary that they might have a cease to the territory governed by these chieftains. David and Jonathan were doubtless blood covenant brothers. (1 Sam. 18:3) Saul perceived that he had covenanted together and he was greatly enraged because by his covenanting Stanley had elevated the peasant David to the rank of a prince and thereby jeopardized his own right to the throne. David wroste to his vow as one blood covenant to the extent that after he came to the throne he sought out the descendants of Jonathan and treated them well for Jonathan's sake and for his own sake. Now, the form and its use is easily known because there are records of its having been performed from early days down to resources of Heaven at their command. It meant also that if they accepted they were committing their all to Him. These men were to find, like David of old, that there is a friend closer than a brother. Doubtless he had in his mind this vow with Jonathan and remembered how good it had been. To the rather more refined peoples of later generations this custom, though very sacred, was a little repulsive and accordingly it was modified to meet the tastes of a more refined day. Instead of sucking the blood from the arm of a friend with whom covenant was made, a few drops of blood were let in a glass of wine and the glasses were exchanged and each drank from the other's blood. This modified symbolism has all the binding power of the former methods and was in turn modified to meet a still more refined sense of propriety. The wine came to symbolize the blood and with proper ceremony the blood covenant was pledged in wine as typical of shed blood. From this custom so well known to orientals we have the solemn acts and words of Christ at the last supper when he instituted the sacrament of the Lord's supper. "This is my blood. Drink ye all of it." He did not need to make explanation. It was symbolism perfectly understood by those who heard. It was a challenge to a blood covenant. What did it signify? These men were but humble folk. Christ was to the great teacher if not the Son of God and he entered into blood covenant with Him and was indeed to elevate them to the rank of princes. In reality it meant that Christ the Son of God was proposing to infuse His life into them; that they might become sons of God. They were poor. Christ was the only begotten son of God and held the riches of the world in His hand. To be a blood brother to Him meant that all He had should belong to them. It placed all

PUBLIC CONFIDENCE

Public confidence is the greatest asset that any house of business can possess. It is more to be desired than the ability to make money. There are degrees of public confidence. It may be zero, a minus quantity, or a plus quantity. At zero no confidence exists—nobody is for or against such a house. But this condition can be changed. If the house or its goods are unknown, and as soon as the public has given the house a trial it will pass judgment, and public confidence will then be expressed by a plus or minus quantity according to the approval or disapproval of the public as to the goods and policies of the house. If the goods are not as represented, or if the policies are not in accordance with the ethics of good business, public confidence will drop to minus quantity and the people will transact business with competitors whose business ideals are on a higher and more satisfactory plane. If the goods are satisfactory, and the policies of the house are right, the people will continue to do business with that house and will help to build it up.

The plus sign of public confidence is always attached to the name of a house of business that considers service to its customers, and that identifies itself with reference to its goods, and high ideals in its business policies as being of greater consequence than the mere earning of dividends. A well satisfied community of customers is the key to the success of any house of business, and having established this, dividends will be sure to follow.

There have been thousands of boys and girls in our public schools in the past who have been stumbling along, hating their lessons, scolded and punished by their teachers and parents, just because they had a defect of vision, of which they and their parents and teachers were ignorant.

Parents, do you know that your children have good eyesight? Do you know that they are not "long-sighted," "near-sighted," or color-blind? Do they often complain of being tired, or of having a headache when they return home from school? Do they dislike school? Are they sleepy and dull when trying to learn their home tasks? Is it hard for them to keep up with their class? Are they inclined to "Play hooky?" Then do not punish and scold them, until you first find out if there is not some physical cause behind it all, so that you may not regret later and blame yourself for neglect or injustice to one of your own.

FEARED THAT DALLAS MAN DROWNED IN THE GULF

By Associated Press.

Galveston, Sept. 14.—E. T. Woodward of Dallas is believed to have been drowned while bathing in the gulf yesterday. His clothing was found in a room of a bathhouse today.

What CERTIFIED DRUGS MEAN—Drug Certification means that each drug certified is packed in an impervious container with the certificate of the chemist who examined and analyzed the drug. The pure food and drug law of June 30, 1906, was a blow at adulteration, but was ineffective in that a thousand chemists would be required to pass on the drugs sold in Texas alone. The manufacturers of the RED DIAMOND LINE of certified drugs have taken time by the forelock by employing for all of his time one of the three great chemists of America. There are only three great chemists in America: Joseph P. Remington of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, Charles Caspari of the St. Louis College of Pharmacy, Dean Schletterbeck of the University at Ann Arbor. Mr. Caspari passes on the RED DIAMOND LINE at the factory in St. Louis, where drugs and chemicals are analyzed in factory runs of thousands of pounds at 4 time and the certificates made that are to go into each package. The RED DIAMOND LINE of certified drugs goes the pure food and drug law one better. It is more than the law requires. Certified drugs are for your protection.

MEASURING THE HUMAN FORM

Measuring is a fine art that has been mastered by few. The measurement must be figured to a mathematical certainty. The skilled mechanic who measures the parts of an intricate machine may seem to do wonders, but his work is not complicated at all, when compared with the work of the man who measures human bodies correctly. Machines are all the same, but the tailor who has laid the tape on thousands of men has never found two alike. Measuring a man is not merely a matter of the figures on the tape, but the contour and lines peculiar to individuals must be considered. To make a measurement that guarantees a fit requires the eye of an artist and a hand experienced. Tailoring is our business and we know no other. We do one thing and do it well. We can make your fall suit a satisfaction and a pleasure to you.

THE WILL OF GOD.

It seems to us quite a pretentious sacrifice for the rulers of Europe to make public the statement that it is the will of an all wise, just God to be in harmony with such devastating carnage as the present conflict abrogates. Our belief in the wisdom and justice of God causes us to believe that the doings of such leaders is prompted by greed and avarice only, and the direct workings of his Satonic Majesty.

This great nation of ours is an example of peace, harmony and prosperity, and, in spite of the pessimist, we are going to receive our share of the blessings that these virtues always bring. We are always ready to contribute our share by bringing gladness to the hearts of those who have been made sad.

Remember, we are always at your service.

AMERICAN COWBOYS FIGHT MEXICANS BY MISTAKE

By Associated Press.

El Paso, Sept. 14.—W. A. Holt, an American cowboy, was brought here today for treatment for a wound in the leg, sustained in a battle Saturday afternoon between American cowboys and Mexicans on the T. O. ranch in Mexico. The battle was fought by mistake when cowboys mistook a small body of Mexican soldiers for a band of bandits, for which they were searching. It was stopped as soon as the mistake was discovered.
