CARRANZA FEARS FURTHER FIGHTING

TELLS FOREIGN DIPLOMATS THAT ZAPATA AND VILLA ARE ACTIVE

GEN. FUNSTON SENDS REPORT

Says Break in Railroad Will Have Effect of Isolating Forces in South

By Associated Press.
Washington, Sept. 26.—General Carranza today predicted further fighting in Mexico, according to official advice to the state department. At the first speech made to diplomats gathered at his request he said Zapata had refused to attend or send delegations to the convention called for October 1 and that his forces were active in the south. He also described events leading up to the rupture with Villa saying the blame for further bloodshed would be Villa's as his own troops would act only on the defensive.

Official information has come to the Washington government from General Funston and others that Zapata and Villa are working in harmony against Carranza and expect the support of ex-federal soldiers. One of Villa's chief demands has been that meritorious officers who supported Huerta be taken into the new national army, but Carranza has given such officers no preference. Already it has been reported that Francisco Carbajal, former provisional president, and General Felix Diaz are ready to support Villa.

The American government has taken no steps as yet to mend the situation, awaiting a clearer definition of the situation. Rear Admiral Fletcher, commander of the Atlantic fleet has recommended that four battleships be retained temporarily in Mexican waters while remainder of the fleet goes north for general practice. The opinion is now general that American troops will not be withdrawn until the new controversy is adjusted. The following report from General Funston was received today:

Funston's Statement.
"One of the two wires of the cable company to Mexico City is working the present extent of the damage to the railway (Vera-Cruz to Mexico City) is not yet fully known. It is known that the destruction was the work of revolutionists. Ex-federals under Higinio Aguilar and Benjamín Argumedo. The size of this force is estimated at from 3000 to 6000 men. Carranza's general, Gen. Jesús Candiani Aguilar (Carranza's general commanding forces outside Vera-Cruz) has sent 1500 men, practically all he had, to Soledad; presumably they will be joined by others from Cordova and Orizaba. Agents of Villa have been conferring with ex-federals and furnishing them with funds. The break in the railroad will have the effect of isolating Gen. Jesús Carranza and the 18,000 troops he took to the isthmus to garrison the states of the southwestern part of the republic."

An Optimistic View.
An optimistic view of the situation was expressed by a statement issued tonight by Gustavo Mirales, one of Carranza's private secretaries who arrived recently from Mexico. He said: "I think delegates at the convention next Thursday will peacefully compose the difficulties between Carranza and Villa. At the convention all the divisions of the constitutionalist army will be present. Carranza's plan of Guadalupe was made public, promised that on his arrival at the capital he would call a convention at which all the military chiefs would be represented, to discuss financial and political reforms. This convention in no way is opposed to the so-called Torreon agreement but rather includes that agreement and in addition is wider and broader and more democratic in its character."

GERMANS WON'T SEND MONEY OUT OF COUNTRY

French Report Says Germany Finds Creditors For German War Loan

By Associated Press.
Bordeaux, Sept. 26.—A newspaper published in Switzerland declares that some Swiss manufacturers have received letters from their German clients that the Germans were unable to settle their bills because it is contrary to Germany's interest to send money out of the country. The Germans said that as they believed that Swiss manufacturers wished to see Germany win, they had used the money which they owed to the Swiss to purchase in the Swiss name, stock in the German five percent war loan. The writers also said that after the war they would do business only with the firms which had accepted this arrangement.

PROTESTS AGAINST TEXAS BANK BILL

PETITIONS BOTH FOR AND AGAINST MEASURE ARE EXPECTED

NO SESSIONS SATURDAY

Quorum Lacking in Both Houses Saturday—Session Called For Sunday

Special to The Times.
Austin, Texas, Sept. 26.—Governor Colquitt is busily engaged in writing his supplemental message to be presented to the lawmakers on the bank bill. This message may answer some of the constitutional objections raised against the measure. Members who are opposed to the measure are making a strong effort to have the people raise a strong protest against the enactment of such a law and by next week it is expected that petitions and telegrams will be pouring in from persons in opposition to the act. On the other hand, friends of the bill are also expecting petitions urging its passage as a means of relieving the present situation.

Governor Colquitt late this afternoon signed and approved the permanent warehouse bill passed by the second called session of the legislature. The bill did not receive the necessary number of votes in the house to make it effective immediately, consequently it will not become a law for ninety days. The governor has not as yet acted on the bill amending the State banking laws or the landlord's lien bill. Four senators answered to roll call this afternoon at 5 o'clock when the Senate convened. There being no quorum present, adjournment was had in motion of Senator Collins until Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. This was done as the Senate cannot adjourn longer than one day without a quorum.

NEARLY ALL AMERICANS OUT OF GERMANY NOW

Relief Committee Reaches London From Germany—Work Nearly Completed

By Associated Press.
London, Sept. 26.—Majors Ryan and Martin and Captain Lennow, Benton and Cross of the American relief committee arrived in London tonight from Berlin having come through Germany and Holland on a special train provided by the German authorities. Major Ryan says American relief work in Europe is virtually ended, most of the Americans except those remaining for business or other reasons being out of Berlin. Since August 23 between 2000 and 3000 were sent out of the German capital. A large number were tourists in Germany for the summer who had failed to get remittances from home or had "letters of credit" which they could not cash.

Between fifty and sixty Americans still are in the outlying parts of Germany. Only a few Americans are in Austria but money has been left there in case stragglers show up there. Americans returning home from Austria and German provinces are arriving at the rate of about a dozen daily, Ryan says, and there are about thirty at Breslau.

He is under the care of physicians at Metz. The empress received a letter last night from the emperor in which he referred optimistically to the situation.

Speaker Terrell announced that the same additional twelve members who were added to the House banking committee during the latter part of the last special session would be retained as members of this committee for this session to consider the bank of Texas bill.

VIOLENT FIGHTING BOTH WINGS; ATTACK ON ANTWERP EXPECTED

BOTH ARMIES STRIKING HARD, GERMANS APPEAR MAKING PROGRESS--NEW ENGLISH ARMIES

By Associated Press.
London, Sept. 26.—The wings of the opposing armies in northern France still are striking hard blows at each other in an effort to break through the opponent's positions, both sides making some progress, the Germans on the allies' right perhaps the greater. For three days or more a violent battle has been raging in the hills and plains between the rivers Oise and Somme.

Official accounts, both German and French, are silent as to how this fight is going, but in the central attack on the Germans strongly fortified and well entrenched positions on the south the allies have made some slight advances. The Germans apparently are satisfied to remain on the defensive until the battle on the flank has been decided.

LITTLE NEWS GIVEN OUT

From Soissons to Rheims and thence to Verdun there has been no change in the situation but in the south of the Woevre the French continue to make progress and have defeated a German army corps with heavy losses. On the French extreme right, the French have taken the offensive with the reservists and have repulsed German forces holding the line along the frontier. Of the activities of the British army the war office is sparing with information. A brief paragraph recounting the activity of the Germans all along the line and the repulse of the heavy counter attacks with considerable loss

Hill's Losses Estimated at Ninety Killed and Wounded in Attack by Maytorena

By Associated Press.
Naco, Sonora, Sept. 26.—General Benjamin Hill's forces of about 1500 men with eight machine guns and plenty of ammunition are here tonight prepared to resist another attack by Maytorena's men. Reliable information concerning yesterday's fight at Santa Barba in which Hill was defeated gives his losses at ninety men killed and wounded, thirty-five wounded were brought here. Gen. Hill's men say Maytorena lost twenty-six killed and eighty-two wounded. Col. Hatfield, brigadier commander of the United States forces at Douglas, with permission to bring the wounded across the border to Douglas. The Mexican consul here appealed to Hatfield's superior at San Antonio who sustained the American officer. Hill's troops lost yesterday's fight, they said, when Lieut. Col. Gomez, commanding the advance guard, was wounded and his troops became panic stricken.

STEAMERS UNDER U. S. REGISTRY CAPTURED

British Cruisers Seize Vessels Attempting To Go a German Cruiser

By Associated Press.
New York, Sept. 26.—Sir Courtney Bennett, the British consul general here, announced this afternoon that the cruiser Lorenzo, registered as an United States merchantman, and the Norwegian steamer, Thor, had been captured by British cruisers in the act of coaling the German cruiser Karlshuk and had been taken to St. Lucia to await disposition by prize courts. He added that the German cruiser had made its escape. The two steamers were captured off the West Indies he said.

There has been a lull in the fighting in Galicia while the Russians are perfecting their plans for the investment of Przemyśl which is now cut off from all communication with the outside world. The Russians have taken Rozow, an important railroad center, between Tarnow and Przemyśl and have captured two fortified positions north and south of the latter fortress. This gives them possession of the whole of Galicia with the exception of a narrow strip. Along the western frontier of Poland which the Germans have been threatening for some time they now are reported to be fortifying themselves, back from Cracow to the extreme northeast of Prussia. The Russian and German armies apparently are facing each other across the boundary, each awaiting for a favorable opportunity to attack. The Germans are satisfied they have rid themselves of the Russians in eastern Prussia and are sending a commission through the country to re-establish the inhabitants

RUSSIANS REPORT AUSTRIAN ARMY IS RETREATING TOWARD CRACOW

By Associated Press.

Petrograd, Sept. 26.—An official communication issued from headquarters of the general staff today says that in the region of Druskenhiky Russian troops engaged the Germans on Sept. 25. The Austrian army is retiring westward, utilizing the railroads leading to Cracow. After defeating two regiments of the reserves, the Russian troops occupied Kurka.

GERMAN ATTACK ON ANTWERP IS EXPECTED AT AN EARLY DATE

By Associated Press.

On the battlefield, via Paris, Sept. 26.—All efforts of the opposing armies were concentrated on the western and eastern wings today. The allies had foreseen such a move on the part of the Germans toward the west, however, and although strong forces of the invaders had been thrown on Somme river, they found themselves opposed in equal numbers.

Eleven States will be traversed by its agents.

German Report Says Their Troops Have Crossed Muese And Captured Positions

By Associated Press.

Paris, Sept. 26.—The following communication was issued tonight: "The enemy has attacked along the entire front, but everywhere has been repulsed. On our left wing we are making progress. On the heights of the Meuse the situation remains unchanged. In the Woevre region we continued to gain ground."

HEAVY FIGHTING IS REPORTED ON EAST AND WEST BATTLE WINGS

By Associated Press.

Paris, Sept. 26.—3:35 p. m. Heavy fighting is going on at both the east and west wings of the battle in France, according to official announcement this afternoon. The announcement says: "First—On our left wing between the Somme and Oise, the battle continues very violently. Between the River Oise and Soissons our troops have advanced slightly. The enemy has not attempted an attack. Between Soissons and Rheims there have been no important changes in the situation. "Second—On the center between Rheims and Verdun the situation also is unchanged. In the Woevre region the enemy has been able to cross the River Meuse in the vicinity of St. Mihiel but the offensive taken by our troops already to a large extent has forced him back on the river. South of the Woevre region our troops have not ceased to progress. The Fourteenth German army corps has fallen back after having suffered great losses. "Third—On our right wing in Lorraine and the Vosges the effective German forces seem to have been reduced. These detachments which had at certain points driven back our outposts have been repulsed by the entrance into action of our reserves."

GERMANS FORTIFYING LINE OF COMMUNICATION

By Associated Press. London, Sept. 26.—A dispatch from Amsterdam to Reuters' Telegraph Company says that, according to the Telegraf, the whole German line of communication in Belgium has been fortified to the northwest of Antwerp where invaders are building fortifications and are digging trenches. Communication with Antwerp now is extremely difficult, no one being allowed to enter the zone of fortifications unless they can produce a pass signed by the military governor of the Belgian fortress. The Volkszeitung of Cologne says the Germans have heavy siege guns around Antwerp. The Zeppelin airship which dropped bombs on Ostend Thursday, cruised, according to the Cologne paper over the whole province of Flanders.

SMILING AND SPENDING CURE FOR HARD TIMES

(New York World) Let those who cry hard-times consider: What makes hard times? Is it not often groundless fear growing out of foolish attention to hearsay and rumor? Is it not short sighted renunciation and hoarding on the part of a few, cutting down the incomes of thousands of others, who in turn sooner or later reacts upon the prosperity of hundreds of thousands and millions—including the original timid ones? The surest way to bring on hard times is to preach them. The surest way to avert hard times is to deny them. If at the present moment those who pull long faces and tie up their money would only take the other tack—smile and spend—they could make short work of depression. Why not carry out the plans for which you have saved and for which you have the money? Why not paint the house? Why not build the new porch? Why not cement the cellar and put on the bay window just as you intended? Many stand ready to do the work promptly and cheaply. Remember, every job is a nail in the coffin of hard times. Projected building changes, repairs, etc., in eighty-eight cities of the United States showed a decrease in August of 26 per cent as compared with the same month a year ago. This is all wrong. Calamity thrives on just such mental states. Don't waste your savings, but don't hoard them. Spend them as you meant to. Give somebody a job, satisfy yourself and scare away hard times.

Semlin—A Hungarian town, on the right bank of the Danube, on a tongue of land between that river and the Save five miles northwest of Belgrade and about six miles from the Serbian frontier. Its population is about 17,000. Much of the town is modern, but its suburb Franzthal consists partly of mud huts thatched with reeds. It is the principal customs and quarantine station for travelers between Austria, Hungary and the Balkan States. It has a few factories, but its transit trade in grain, fruit, livestock and timber is far more important.

GERMANS DECEIVED BY ROUSE; 7000 KILLED

French Burned Straw in Fort. Germans Rushing to Supposed Victory Mowed Down

They say that while the Germans were bombarding the commander of the fort did not reply but set fire to two cartloads of straw inside the structure. The German convinced that the shells had started the fire and that they could easily take the place advanced in close formation; the French then opened fire with their trauellous. The number of German bodies abandoned on the slopes around the fort is estimated at 7,000."

BANK OF ENGLAND'S GOLD HOLDINGS REACH BIG AMOUNT

The Bank of England's gold holdings are today larger than ever before in the institution's history, that figure exceeding those of last Wednesday, the Bank reported £48,700,000 gold. This was a figure matched only in the eight weeks of 1896 ending respectively February 19, February 26, March 5, March 12, March 19, March 26, June 17, and June 24—a period when the free-silver coinage scare was driving out our gold from Europe.

On June 24, 1896, at £49,200,000, the gold holdings reached the maximum of the Bank England's history; that figure was exceeded only on August 6, 1906, when the holdings were £49,200,000. On August 6, the Bank held only £27,600,000; a year ago, £42,007,000, which was considered very large. Between July 22 and August 7 the reserve of the Banking Department fell from £29,257,000 to £9,866,000; last Wednesday it stood at £23,900,000. But the fact that the Bank's discounts, despite the decrease of £8,028,000 in the past two weeks, are still £48,400,000 above August 7, explains why the ratio of reserve to liability remains at 21 1/4 per cent—a figure which, though comparing respectably with the 14 5/8 of August 7, is far enough below the traditional 40 per cent minimum.—New York Post.

A MISSOURI FORMULA FOR PRESERVING EGGS

A reader of The Times sends the following method for preserving eggs which was printed in the South Missouri Democrat of Alton, Mo.: Eggs preserved in a water-glass solution will keep almost perfectly for several months. They will hatch nearly as well as fresh eggs although the taste is a trifle more flat after long storage. These are the conclusions of the Missouri College of Agriculture after a careful investigation of various methods of storing eggs for winter use. Water glass is purchased in liquid form. Druggists commonly retail it at twenty-five cents a quart, and one quart is enough to preserve twenty dozen eggs. For this number a five gallon stone or earthen ware crock is the most satisfactory receptacle. Heat ten quarts of water to the boiling point and allow it to cool. Then pour the water into the crock and add one quart of water glass and mix the two. The solution is then ready for the eggs. Place the eggs in the water glass solution each day as soon as they are laid. Use only naturally clean, not washed fresh eggs. When the crock is filled to within two inches of the top of the solution, cover and store in a cool dry place until winter. By this method eggs may be stored during spring and summer when they are relatively cheap and production is high; for use during winter when prices are high and production is low. Farmer and townsman alike may save many dollars by this method of cheap storage of eggs. It is of the greatest importance that the eggs used should be absolutely fresh. Water glass will not make bad eggs good, but will keep good eggs from becoming bad.

GERMAN PUBLIC SHUT OFF FROM OUTSIDE WORLD

By Associated Press. Berlin, via London, Sept. 26.—The cutting of German submarine cables, the censorship and the exclusion of foreign newspapers from the empire, has resulted in shutting out from Germany virtually all news of the outside world. The past three days the Berlin newspapers have been carrying descriptions of the architectural details of the Rheims cathedral while in the last sixteen days three places have been mentioned in the government war bulletins. They are Noyon, Rheims and Brimont.

HOW THE FIRST VICTORIA CROSS WAS WON

The stories cabled from England of how British blue-jackets in the recent naval engagement off Heligoland picked up unexploded shells that fell on the decks of their vessels and threw overboard recall the fact that the first Victoria Cross was awarded to a sailor in the Crimean War for performing exactly such a feat. He was Rear Admiral C. D. Lucas, R. N., who died several weeks ago, just about the time hostilities broke out. He was an acting-mate on board the Hecla, Admiral Napier's fleet, in the Baltic, and the feat which won him the Cross was performed during the bombardment of Bomarsund, a port of the Aland Islands, where the Russian and German fleets were reported as having been engaged in the present war. The shell which dropped on the Hecla's deck was fuzing when Lucas leaped forward and pitched it over the side. There was only the barest fraction of unburned fuse between him and destruction, but he was cool and collected in his manner of performing the exploit. Capt. Hall, his commander, brought the deed to the attention of Admiral Napier, who wrote to the Admiralty that he trusted "their Lordships would mark their sense of his act by promoting him." Accordingly, he was promoted to lieutenant, and upon the institution of the Victoria Cross the first of the decorations was conferred upon him.—New York Post.

KAISER CHEERS HIS MEN WITH WORDS OF PRAISE

London, Sept. 25.—Emperor William, after reviewing the Imperial Grenadiers, commanded by his son, Prince Oscar, following the battle of Verdun, spoke to the troops, says a Copenhagen dispatch to the Daily News. "I salute you," said the emperor, after embracing the prince. "I have often seen your gallant regiment at maneuvers, and it is a great pleasure to meet you again on conquered grounds. The heroic deeds at Vireton will be engraved on the history of the year forever in golden letters. Your regiment has upheld the glorious traditions of your forefathers in 1870 and 1871. The armies of the crown prince and Duke Albrecht of Wuertemberg have advanced, while our Eastern army has thrown three Russian army corps over the frontier and two more Russian army corps have been captured in the field. Thank God for Victories. For all these victories we have one God to thank and he is our ancient God who is over us. Emperor William then kissed his son and drove off in a motor car. Recently Emperor William visited an establishment of a Protestant religious order which is now a hospital. He walked through the rows of wounded, shook hands with the men unable to rise and sent a rose to every wounded soldier who did not have the honor of speaking with him. He also distributed Iron Crosses right and left. The clergyman in charge of the wounded seems to have addressed the emperor with too heavy a heart. All Must Make Sacrifices. "We all make sacrifices in these times," said the emperor, reminding the clergyman that he had six sons fighting. "Yes, your majesty, that is our pride and happiness," said the clergyman. "I did all I could to keep the peace," said the emperor, "but our enemies would not have peace. Now we will have to crush them to the ground. Don't you agree?"

Washington, Sept. 26.—War revenue legislation will be taken up by the Senate finance committee next Monday in an effort to bring it before the Senate before the Clayton anti-trust bill conference report is disposed. Administration leaders expect to have the report adopted next week. The House revenue bill reached the Senate today and was referred to the finance committee which had anticipated its receipt by conferring with departmental officials. A disposition is growing among senators to substitute a tax on automobiles rated on horsepower and for a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline.

GERMANS FORTIFYING LINE OF COMMUNICATION

By Associated Press. London, Sept. 26.—A dispatch from Amsterdam to Reuter's Telegraph Company says that, according to the Telegraaf, the whole German line of communication in Belgium has been fortified to the northwest of Antwerp where invaders are building fortifications and are digging trenches. Communication with Antwerp now is extremely difficult, no one being allowed to enter the zone of fortifications unless they can produce a pass signed by the military governor of the Belgian fortress. The Volkzeitung of Cologne says the Germans have heavy siege guns around Antwerp. The Zeppelin airship which dropped bombs on Oostend Thursday, cruised, according to the Cologne paper over the whole province of Flanders.

SMILING AND SPENDING CURE FOR HARD TIMES

(New York World) Let those who cry hard times consider: What makes hard times? Is it not often groundless fear growing out of foolish attention to hearsay and rumor? Is it not short sighted renunciation and heading on the part of a few cutting down the incomes of thousands of others, who in turn become fearful and whose timidity sooner or later reacts upon the prosperity of hundreds of thousands and millions—including the original timid ones? The surest way to bring on hard times is to preach them. The surest way to avert hard times is to deny them.

Projected building changes, repairs, etc., in eighty-eight cities of the United States showed a decrease in August of 25 per cent as compared with the same month a year ago. This is all wrong. Calamity thrives on just such mental states. Don't waste your savings, but don't board them. Spend them as you meant to. Give somebody a job, satisfy yourself and scare away hard times.

Semin—A Hungarian town, on the right bank of the Danube, on a tongue of land between that river and the Save five miles northwest of Belgrade and about six miles from the Serbian frontier, its population is about 17,000. Much of the town is modern, but its suburb Franzenthal consists partly of mud huts thatched with reeds. It is the principal customs and quarantine station for travelers between Austria-Hungary and the Balkan States. It has a few factories, but its transit trade in grain, fruit, livestock and timber is far more important.

BANK OF ENGLAND'S GOLD HOLDINGS REACH BIG AMOUNT

The Bank of England's gold holdings are today larger than ever before in the institution's history. In this week's statement, giving the position as of Wednesday, the Bank reported £48,700,000 gold. This was a figure not set only in the eight weeks of 1914 ending respectively February 19, February 26, March 4, March 11, March 18, March 25, June 17, and June 24—a period when the free-silver campaign was driving out our gold from Europe. On June 24, 1896, at £49,200,000, the gold holdings reached the maximum of the Bank England's history; that figure exceeding those of last Wednesday by only £500,000. But on Thursday, the cables reported £1,538,000 more gold taken into the Bank, and on Friday £53,000,000 which would necessarily have raised the total holdings to an unprecedented figure. On August 6, the Bank held only £27,600,000; a year ago, £42,007,000, which was considered very large.

Between July 22 and August 7 the reserve of the Banking Department fell from £29,277,000 to £26,966,000; last Wednesday it stood at £32,900,000. But the fact that the Bank's discounts, despite the decrease of £3,023,000 in the past two weeks, are still £48,400,000 above August 7, explains why the rate of reserve to liability remains at 21.14 per cent—figures which, though comparing respectably with the 14.5-8 of August 7, is far enough below the traditional 40 per cent minimum.—New York Post.

A MISSOURI FORMULA FOR PRESERVING EGGS

A reader of The Times sends the following method for preserving eggs which was printed in the South Missouri Democrat of Alton, Mo.: Eggs preserved in a water-glass solution will keep almost perfectly for several months. They will poach nearly as well as fresh eggs although the taste is a trifle more flat after long storage. These are the conclusions of the Missouri College of Agriculture after a careful investigation of various methods of storing eggs for winter use. Water glass is purchased in liquid form. Druggists commonly retail it at twenty-five cents a quart, and one quart is enough to preserve twenty dozen eggs. For this number a five gallon stone or earthen ware crock is the most satisfactory receptacle. Heat ten quarts of water to the boiling point and allow it to cool. Then pour the water into the crock and add one quart of water glass and mix the two. The solution is then ready for the eggs. Place the eggs in the water glass solution each day as soon as they are laid. Use only naturally clean, not washed fresh eggs. When the crock is filled to within two inches of the top of the solution, cover and store in a cool dry place until winter. By this method eggs may be stored during spring and summer when they are relatively cheap and production is high, for use during winter when prices are high and production is low. Farmer and townsman alike may save many dollars by this method of cheap storage of eggs. It is of the greatest importance that the eggs used should be absolutely fresh. Water glass will not make bad eggs good, but will keep good eggs from becoming bad.

GEN. VILLA PREPARING FOR OFFENSIVE MOVE

His Troops Are Moving Toward Torreon and Saltillo From Chihuahua

By Associated Press. El Paso, Texas, Sept. 26.—Troop movements in northern Mexico today indicated that Gen. Villa soon would attack the forces of Carranza. Ten trains of Villa's soldiers left Chihuahua today for Saltillo. Other troops are moving south from Torreon. Villa is expected to leave Governor Maytorena of Sonora to handle his own campaign against the Carranza forces in that state.

GERMAN PUBLIC SHUT OFF FROM OUTSIDE WORLD

By Associated Press. Berlin, via London, Sept. 26.—The cutting of German submarine cables, the censorship and the exclusion of foreign newspapers from the empire, has resulted in shutting out from Germany virtually all news of the outside world. The past three days the Berlin newspapers have been carrying descriptions of the architectural details of the Rheims cathedral while the last six days three papers have been mentioned in the government war bulletins. They are Noyon, Rheims and Brimont.

HOW THE FIRST VICTORIA CROSS WAS WON

The stories cabled from England of how British blue-jackets in the recent naval engagement off Heligoland picked up unexploded shells that fell on the decks of their vessels and threw overboard recall the fact that the first Victoria Cross was awarded to a sailor in the Crimean War for performing exactly such a feat. He was Rear Admiral C. D. Lucas, R. N., who died several weeks ago, just about the time hostilities broke out. He was an acting-mate on board the Hecla, of Admiral Napier's fleet, in the Baltic, and the feat which won him the Cross was performed during the bombardment of Bomarsund, a port of the Aland Islands, where the Russian and German fleets were reported as having been engaged in the present war. The shell which dropped on the Hecla's deck was fuzing when Lucas leaped forward and pitched it over the side. There was only the barest fraction of unburned fuse between him and destruction, but he was cool and collected in his manner of performing the exploit. Capt. Hall, his commander, brought the deed to the attention of Admiral Napier, who wrote to the Admiralty that he trusted "their Lordships would mark their sense of his act by promoting him." Accordingly, he was promoted to lieutenant, and upon the institution of the Victoria Cross the first of the decorations was conferred upon him.—New York Post.

KAISER CHEERS HIS MEN WITH WORDS OF PRAISE

London, Sept. 25.—Emperor William, after reviewing the Imperial Grenadiers, commanded by his son, Prince Oscar, following the battle of Verdun, spoke to the troops, says a Copenhagen dispatch to the Daily News. "I salute you," said the emperor, after embracing the prince. "I have often seen your gallant regiment at maneuvers, and it is a great pleasure to meet you again on conquered grounds.

"The heroic deeds of Virtua will be engraved on the history of the war forever in golden letters. For the regiment has upheld the glorious traditions of your forefathers in 1870 and 1871. The armies of the crown prince and Duke Albrecht of Wuertemberg have advanced, while our Eastern army has thrown three Russian army corps over the frontier and two more Russian army corps have been captured in the field. Thanks God for victories we have won. For all these victories we have one God to thank and he is our ancient God who is over us." Emperor William then kissed his son and drove off in a motor car. Recently Emperor William visited an establishment of a Protestant religious order which is now a hospital. He walked through the rows of wounded, shook hands with the men unable to rise and sent a rose to every wounded soldier who did not have the honor of speaking with him. He also distributed iron crosses right and left. The clergyman in charge of the wounded seems to have addressed the emperor with too heavy a heart.

All Must Make Sacrifices. "We all make sacrifices in these times," said the emperor, reminding the clergyman that he had six sons fighting. "Yes, your majesty, that is our pride and happiness," said the clergyman. "I did all I could to keep the peace," said the emperor, "but our enemies would not have peace. Now we will have to crush them to the ground. Don't you agree?"

Nations never seem to be so busy fighting but what they have time to stop and call each other liars.

Texas horses are being bought for export in the European war. We are sorry for the horses, but Europe evidently knows where to look when she wants the best.

The national senate is planning to raise war revenue by taxing automobiles according to their horse power. The man who has been bragging about what his car can do will then have a choice to make good.

Cotton is being stored in Wichita Falls cotton warehouse before the building is completed. This warehouse isn't being built under the terms of that wonderful emergency bill passed by the legislature, but it covers the cotton and protects the farmer about as well as if the "benefits" of Coquette's fallacy had been invoked.

All along it has been conceded that if the European war was to be settled on the high seas Germany would stand but little, if any chance at all, of winning over England, but since that incident in the North Sea the other day, when one little, insignificant, German submarine, just about big enough to carry twenty men, shot torpedoes into the bottoms and sides of three British armored cruisers and sank all three in less than thirty minutes, some of us are likely to change our opinions.

So far the Germans have not only had the best of the fighting on the land, but have shown to the world they know a few things when it comes to sea-fighting.

For the next year or two there will be a greater profit for farmers in producing wheat, corn and feed stuffs than there will be in raising cotton. The market for cattle, hogs, mules and horses is good now, and without much doubt it will be even better by this time next year. Unless the last war and the boll worm destroy four or five million bales of cotton before it matures and is gathered, there will be a surplus of at least that much and a surplus of four or five million bales of cotton means that the price next year will be less than now unless the cotton acreage is cut to about half what it was this year. The intelligent farmer needs no law to force him to cut down his cotton acreage.

Writing in the current issue of the "Outlook," Col. Theodore Roosevelt seeks to draw some conclusions and lessons from the present strife in Europe, with reference to the armament question in this country. He points out that the worst victim of the war, so far, has been Belgium, a country whose neutrality and whose right to peaceful conditions have been recognized by all the powers; he points out that the sanctified security on the part of Belgium and her resultant failure to join herself caused her to be ruthlessly and terribly handled by Germany. From this he concludes that a mere desire for peace on the part of a nation will not save it and cites another example in the case of China, which is forced to allow Japan to violate her neutrality because of her lack of military preparation. It isn't a question of whether the United States wants war with any other nation or not, he says, but a question of whether she shall be able to defend herself when war is forced upon her. All of us want peace and hope that the United States will never again be involved in conflict with any power; but that we must be ready for trouble when it does come is only too obvious. If every citizen was peacefully inclined and law-abiding there would be little need for policemen; but citizens like nations are apt to run wild occasionally, and force is then needed.

Interesting Facts About United States Postal Service

The Texas Business Men's Association, aided by postal authorities at Washington, has completed information dealing with the handling of United States mail in Texas.

There is no branch of the government that is closely related to the people and reaches as many of them as the Postoffice Department. The Texas postoffices are a competent part of Uncle Sam's enormous mail distributing institution and a study of their inside workings is both interesting and instructive.

There are 2,600 postoffices in Texas, and of this number 16 are first class, 95 second class, 318 third and 2,171 fourth class. These institutions employ 9,620 persons and their annual payroll is $5,946,000.

The annual receipts of the Texas postoffices are approximately $7,000,000, while five years ago the aggregate income was $4,465,300.

The present administration up until July 31, 1914, had appointed 1,020 postmasters in Texas, while the other half of the offices in the State. Of this number 316 were at offices filled by presidential appointment and 704 were fourth class offices. So well do the Texas postmasters acquit themselves that 171 or 17 per cent of the positions that have been filled by the current administration have been re-appointments. Of the sixteen first class postoffices in Texas, appointments have only been made at Austin, Fort Worth, Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and El Paso to date by the administration.

Forty of the 95 second class offices, 270 of the 3.8 third and 704 of the 2,171 fourth class postoffices have been refilled.

The Dallas postmaster is the highest salaried postal official in Texas; his annual compensation is $6,000. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and St. Louis are the highest paid postmasters in the United States and each receives $5,000 per year.

Early history of the Mail Delivery in Texas became a State by a joint resolution of Congress December 29th, 1845, and the first postal census was taken June 30th, 1847. At that time there were 171 postoffices in the State.

The first important route in Texas was established July 1st, 1857, between San Antonio and San Diego, California, via El Paso. The schedule required that the contractor leave each terminus on the first day of each month and arrive at the other terminus on the last day of the month. The mail was carried by stage, overland, and the annual compensation was $149,800. Service was inaugurated on July 2, 1857, but St. Louis, Mo., and Ft. Yuma, California, were made terminals of this route. In September, 1858, Texas secured another important postal route; the one from St. Louis to San Francisco. Sherman and El Paso were the principal Texas points on this line; its total length was 3,203 miles each way and was made twice each week in four horse companies. The schedule was 23 days and the contractors annual compensation was $500,000.

The first Postal Official was Benjamin Franklin. The first superintendent of mail service in Texas was Daniel J. Toler, who was appointed immediately following the Act of May 29th, 1846, to put the new routes in operation and superintend the mail service of Texas generally. About this time the first contract to carry mail to and from Texas points by steamer was let. An agreement was made with Charles Morgan to transport the mails from Galveston to New Orleans once every five days. The Galveston and New York slips were the first ships engaged in this work and the New York was the first ship to be sunk while carrying Texas mail.

Rural routes Rural free delivery was first established in the United States October 4th, 1896. Three routes out of Charleston, West Virginia, were established at this time. The first rural free delivery route to be established in Texas was in Fayette County between Fate and LaGrange, a distance of approximately 10 miles. It was inaugurated August 1, 1899. Henry Cramer and E. R. Ellis were the first rural mail carriers in Texas and a German farmer is said to have received the first letter delivered. Since that time 2,010 rural routes have been established in this State and for the past five years Texas rural routes have increased at the rate of one per week. From January 1st, 1914, to July 31, 1914, this record has been exceeded, the total opened during this period being 62.

There are 908,550 patrons served by rural routes in Texas and approximately one-third of our farm population is reached with regular free delivery mail service. The annual cost of this service is approximately $2,500,000.

The combined length of the rural routes of Texas is 48,439 and 2,008 carriers travel 14,697,015 miles annually delivering mail in our rural sections. In delivering mail to the farms of Texas the rural carriers each year travel a distance equivalent to 585 time around the earth.

The longest rural route in the United States is 99 3/4 miles long and operates out of Phillipsburg, Montana. The longest route in Texas is known as Route No. 3 out of Colorado, Texas. It is 34 miles long and serves 650 people with a daily delivery.

Free City Delivery Service Free city delivery service was first established in the United States July 1st, 1863, but was not adopted in Texas until November 1st, 1879. Dallas, Galveston and Houston were the first cities in this State to inaugurate this plan.

Free delivery service is in operation in 49 cities in Texas and 100 of them have established this feature during the past three years. In the entire nation there are 30,000 men employed to deliver mail in the cities and the annual cost is $35,000,000. The Texas cities with free city delivery are: Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Balinger, Beaumont, Belton, Bonham, Brenham, Brownsville, Brownwood, Cleburne, Corpus Christi, Corsicana, Cuero, Dallas, Denton, El Paso, San Antonio, San Marcos, Sherman, Slatersburg, Fort Sam Houston, Terrell, Tyler, Victoria, Waco, Waxahatchie, Weatherford and Wichita Falls.

The Parcel Post An effective and serviceable parcel post is no longer merely a favorite subject for magazine discussion and high school debates; it is a national institution and a practical accomplishment fact.

No exact data has yet been compiled relating to the workings of the parcel post in Texas, but from estimates furnished by the postal authorities at Washington, based on the business handled at representative offices in this State, it is evident that during the fiscal year 1913 approximately 10,000,000 packages were mailed in Texas, on which the postage amounts to nearly a million dollars. The total for the nation is estimated at 600,000,000 packages covered by postage aggregating $50,000,000.

The parcel post has served to bring the rural producer and the urban consumer closer together and has greatly helped to solve the high living cost problem in Texas. It is performing the functions of the middleman without his profits.

Thirty-five Federal Buildings in Texas. There are 35 buildings in Texas owned by the Federal government and 33 of them are occupied by postoffices. These buildings are valued at approximately $7,200,000, and are located in the cities of Abilene, Austin, Beaumont, Bonham, Brownsville, Cleburne, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Denton, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Eagle Pass, Houston, Jefferson, Laredo, McAllen, Mineral Wells, Palestine, Paris, Port Arthur, San Antonio, San Angelo, San Marcos, Sherman Sulphur Springs, Temple, Terrell, Tyler, Victoria, Waco, Waxahatchie and Wichita Falls.

Fraudulent Schemes. The Federal government employs 320 inspectors whose duties are to maintain a general supervision over the handling of United States mail; to investigate alleged violation of the postal laws and to aid in the prosecution of criminal offenses.

There were 16 persons arrested for fraudulent schemes in connection with the handling of United States mail in Texas during 1913 and 12 of them were indicted. Of this number seven have been convicted and five are awaiting trial.

Postal Savings Banks. There are 532 postal savings depositories in Texas and all of them have been created since the passage of the postal savings act by Congress June 25, 1910. The total deposits of these institutions on March 31st, 1914, were $1,104,104. Port Arthur was the first Texas postoffice to establish a savings department and it was created January 2, 1911.

The Railroad Substitute. A "star route" carrier performs the same mail service in the thinly populated country as the railroads do in the more thickly settled sections. They carry mail between points not located on a railroad. There are 632 of these picturesque individuals in Texas. The number during recent years has rapidly decreased, as new railroads have been built. Texas has one of the longest mail routes in the United States over which mail is carried overland. It is the route from Alpine to Terlingua, a distance of 90 miles, and mail is delivered between these points twice each week.

In previous years it has been the custom to transport mail over these routes by horse power, but during the past few years the automobile has replaced the horse in many instances.

The Railway Mail Service. The railway mail service is one of the most important branches of post-office department in Texas. This branch employs 586 men who receive $720,000 annually in salaries and wages. Mail is carried on 14,603 miles of the railways of Texas at an annual cost of $1,393,136. In reaching its destination mail is transported 21,781,853 miles annually over Texas railroads.

The town in which the Protestants assembled for worship has been rebuilt in the street opposite the city hall. The valley of the Marne, south of St. Dizier is famed for its iron works and its foundries. Joinville is picturesquely situated on a branch of the Marne and on the slopes of a hill on which stood the chateau of the Joinville family. Grand Avenay occupies the site of an ancient Roman city, from which numerous antiquities have been taken, including a single mosaic 60 feet long and 45 feet broad. Yaneouleurs is a small town in this region, where Joan of Arc made known her mission to the Sire de Baudricourt and begged him to send her to the French court. About 15 miles further on is the little town of Domremy, where stands the modest cottage in which Joan of Arc was born. Beyond this point is the town of Mircecourt, famed for its embroideries, laces and instruments, and 20 miles southeast of which lies the fortress of Epinal.

Provins—A town of Northern France 35 miles east of southeast of Paris by rail, and 55 miles southwest of Chalons at the junction of the Durain with the Vouizie. Its population is about 9,000. During the thirteenth century the town's population is said to have reached 60,000; but the plague of 1348 and the famine of 1349 proved disastrous. The hundred-year War completed the town's ruin. A thousand years ago the falls in Provins were attended by traders from all parts of Europe and its money had currency throughout the continent. The town has a reputation for its mineral waters and its trade in roses, but it carries a higher interest from the remains of its medieval prosperity.

Bavay—A town of Northern France, 16 1/2 miles south of east of Valenciennes, two-thirds of the way to Maubeuge, with about 3,000 inhabitants. Under the Romans, who called it Bagacum, it flourished, but it was destroyed during the invasions of the barbarians and never recovered its prosperity. It was pillaged and burned several times and laid waste in the fifteenth and seventeenth centuries. It stood at the intersection of eight Roman roads, seven of which still remain.

Serajevo—The capital of Bosnia, Hungary, where the assassination that precipitated the present war took place. It is situated on a small tributary of the Bosna, 47 miles from the Serbian frontier and 42 miles from Montenegro's border. It population in 1910 was 51,919, chiefly Serbo-Croatians, with small colonies of gypsies and Jews. The city, frequently called "The Damascus of the North," spreads over a narrow valley closed on the east by a semi-circle of hills. Though still half oriental, it was largely rebuilt after 1878 in western fashion. The castle and barracks, occupied by an Austrian garrison, stand on a cliff overlooking the city. The sale of embroideries, rugs, embossed iron arms, gold and silver filigree work and other native wares, and the manufacture of pottery, beer, silk and tobacco comprise the industries. The neighborhood is rich in prehistoric remains. During the war between Turkey and Austria its ownership was frequently contested. It was burned in 1840, 1644, 1656, 1687 and 1789. In 1878 it was seized by the Austrians.

Provins—A town of Northern France 35 miles east of southeast of Paris by rail, and 55 miles southwest of Chalons at the junction of the Durain with the Vouizie. Its population is about 9,000. During the thirteenth century the town's population is said to have reached 60,000; but the plague of 1348 and the famine of 1349 proved disastrous. The hundred-year War completed the town's ruin. A thousand years ago the falls in Provins were attended by traders from all parts of Europe and its money had currency throughout the continent. The town has a reputation for its mineral waters and its trade in roses, but it carries a higher interest from the remains of its medieval prosperity.

Bavay—A town of Northern France, 16 1/2 miles south of east of Valenciennes, two-thirds of the way to Maubeuge, with about 3,000 inhabitants. Under the Romans, who called it Bagacum, it flourished, but it was destroyed during the invasions of the barbarians and never recovered its prosperity. It was pillaged and burned several times and laid waste in the fifteenth and seventeenth centuries. It stood at the intersection of eight Roman roads, seven of which still remain.

Serajevo—The capital of Bosnia, Hungary, where the assassination that precipitated the present war took place. It is situated on a small tributary of the Bosna, 47 miles from the Serbian frontier and 42 miles from Montenegro's border. It population in 1910 was 51,919, chiefly Serbo-Croatians, with small colonies of gypsies and Jews. The city, frequently called "The Damascus of the North," spreads over a narrow valley closed on the east by a semi-circle of hills. Though still half oriental, it was largely rebuilt after 1878 in western fashion. The castle and barracks, occupied by an Austrian garrison, stand on a cliff overlooking the city. The sale of embroideries, rugs, embossed iron arms, gold and silver filigree work and other native wares, and the manufacture of pottery, beer, silk and tobacco comprise the industries. The neighborhood is rich in prehistoric remains. During the war between Turkey and Austria its ownership was frequently contested. It was burned in 1840, 1644, 1656, 1687 and 1789. In 1878 it was seized by the Austrians.

NEW ALL-AMERICAN SILKS SHOWN IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 25.—In keeping with the motto, "See America First," the United States National Museum in Washington is exhibiting some novel designs in silk dress goods, which are truly American, being inspired by early American history and manufactured by an American firm for American women.

Months ago when the war clouds first began rolling over Mexico, and long before the present European conflict threatened to force Americans to originate their own designs for fabrics and costumes, artists were set to work to adapt for present day use the designs and symbols left by the Aztecs and other early Indian peoples. Much material for designs pertaining to this early period of American history was available; buildings, temples, monuments, pottery, basketry, and blankets are covered with picture writings which form particularly charming and artistic designs. Not only the designs proper were adaptable, but the colors as well—a fact which has materially assisted in the creation of these new American fashion designs.

The textile division of the national museum has just installed a series of pure dye taffeta silks, contributed by the manufacturers, which show the reproductions of these ancient Mexican designs printed on soft-clinging fabric.

GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF ENGLISH IN BATTLE

By Associated Press. —A vivid description of the English in battle in France and Belgium was given today by Rev. James Malloy of Trenton, New Jersey, who served as chaplain for several weeks with a British regiment. He said:

"In modern battle there is an overpowering sense of unreality. The business of killing men kills other mechanics because of the preponderance of the machine element. The human element is shot down and killed, but the machine continues in the perfection of slaughter.

"The conduct of English and Irish in the battle at Mons was magnificent. There the men stood behind shoulder-high mounds of dirt facing level streams of death-dealing fire and singing snatches of music ballads. Stupendous bravery I call it or entire lack of nerves.

"I have heard men under the crashing fire of the terrible German guns and with comrades dropping thickly around them united in roaring a long hurra. Sometimes I would hear a big Irishman call out to a neighbor in the trench, 'Well, I found that Dutchman all right.' The business of killing seemed personal with them.

"But how the Germans did pound that British line at Mons. They came on and on, never stopping, never faltering. It was like the waves of a blue sea rolling up through a fog. One wave would die away but another and another would follow in continuous succession.

"The German commanders threw their men into the stream of the British fire with absolute abandon. To see those German lines move forward through glasses, was like watching regiments of toy soldiers on a table. You would see a long row of pale blue blocks topped with spiked helmets break from cover and rushing at you, and a British gun would speak, a shell would drop amidst the German line, a great hurling up of smoke of soil and dirt would follow then there would be nothing left but a few little men running madly back.

"The German shells are terrible. I have seen one shell enter a little hill and explode, and tear away the whole top of the hill. I have seen a company of British wiped out by the explosion of a single shell.

Francis Philip Hogan, recently from the war district of Mexico, was in the city for some time Saturday waiting for his train to Canyon City, where he will visit friends and relatives. Although he is an American by nationality, he was born and reared near Tampico and talks Spanish with more fluency than English. His English, in fact, is much like that of a Mexican's—mostly by motions and expressive gestures. During the course of his talk about the war, he said that for a while about the only noise in fashion was the ostentatious boom of guns, and about the only movement in vogue was the tentative advance and retreat of armies. The soldiers, he declared, were clad mostly in cartridge belts and looked "mooch, mooch tough." According to his opinion of military matters, they were preparing to raise further hob when he left. It is not at all safe to be a member of Uncle Sam's family if you once let it become known, he asserted.

Mr. Coleman states that he lived here about eleven years ago, but left then for Dallas, where he has been since. Wichita has changed much in both spirit and size, according to Mr. Coleman. When he was here he said it was a little burg, where the cashier of the bank could quarrel with his wife a half hour in front of the window and none of the patrons would get impatient. In fact, this actually happened, he declared. He states that very few of the old guard are to be found around here now for, like himself, they have moved and changed so much that he would hardly recognize them. AVIATORS TELL OF DIFFICULTIES OF WORK

By Associated Press. —Paris, Sept. 26.—An aviator who has just returned from the front tells of the difficulty encountered by flying men on reconnaissance duty. He said: "We are obliged to fly at a height of about a mile and a quarter which makes observation difficult as small objects, assume unfamiliar shapes and become shortened. If we fly under that height we are greeted by a hail of rifle fire which is far more effective than the cannon. We fear the rifles more than the bursting shrapnel as the fire of regiments concentrated on a single object is far more deadly."

What may happen! Better let us beautify that NEGLECTED Cemetery Plot before you do like many others seem to have done—FORGOT, become careless, or just plain don't care.

One of our customers said the other day, "I don't see why we haven't attended to this work long ago; we should have, but—well, any way we didn't intend to neglect it." How is the public, or those who have the best interests of the cemetery at heart, or even your friends and loved ones to know but that you didn't care? Deeds are more convincing than excuses. Anyone can make excuses, but it takes courage and character to do things.

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Priebe, bride and groom, Mr. Priebe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Priebe entertained Sunday with a turkey dinner. The usual appetizing menu was served and the afternoon devoted to pleasant conversation. The guests were: Grandma Brown, Grandmother Priebe, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Duke, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bachman, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Williams, Miss Edna Duke, the host and hostess and the honorees.

RECEPTION FOR TEACHERS AN UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS

In accordance with their usual custom the Mothers' Clubs of the city entertained with their annual reception for the teachers Friday evening, surpassing all previous successes. In order that both the fathers and mothers were able to attend the reception hour was set for the evening and the result was most gratifying, the fathers attending in almost equal numbers with the mothers and their enjoyment of the pleasant social hour with the teachers was evident.

A committee from the different Mothers' Clubs of the city were in the receiving line with the teachers, to introduce the parents and to prevent any formality and restraint. Each teacher was provided with a card, bearing the name of the school and the teachers' name as an aid to identification.

After some time spent in conversation a program was rendered in the auditorium. C. Barthold Machin of the College of Music and Art favored with three selections, which were rendered doubly enjoyable by the artists method of giving a short explanation of the theme of each before the musical interpretation. Miss Jenks, also of the College gave a reading, taken from Van Dyke, "The Lost Word" and graciously responded to an encore with "Watchin' the Curtin". Miss Agnew, musical instructor in the public schools gave two vocal selections of great beauty which pleased very much. Miss Mathie Matheny, "the whistling girl" received much applause for her rendition of two favorite selections, "Mocking" and "Sewanee River," whistling and playing her own accompaniment. Preceding the program the invocation was offered by Rev. Hosop Miller and W. J. Bullock, president of the school board, extended a welcome to the teachers in his usual happy manner, paying a tribute to the mothers and Mothers' Clubs and not forgetting to add a word of commendation for the educators of the coming American nation.

On the conclusion of the program the guests were invited into the library where the punch table was placed, here the delicious beverage with dainty cakes was dispensed by a number of young girls, the Misses Wilma Fligo, Adele Adickes, Mattie Ruth Corlett, Sibil Kell, Louise Leichman, Laura Hall and Mary Heron. After visiting the punch table the parents lingered yet a short time for a parting conversation with each other and the teachers and judging from the expressions of pleasure heard on every side, the Mothers' Clubs may pride themselves on having given the most successful entertainment of its sort ever. The receptions of previous years have always been successful and pleasant but this one was unusually so, one reason for this may be attributed to the fact that so many of the fathers were present. The number of school teachers has been perceptibly increased and the parents are being awakened to the importance of mingling with the instructors of their children in a social way as well as what might be termed a business way and for this thanks must be given to the Mothers' Clubs of the city.

MISS ROBERTS HOSTESS TO BACHELOR GIRLS

Friday evening the doors of the hospitable home of Miss Iris Roberts were opened to the Bachelor Girls' Club of which Miss Roberts is a member. This was her first attempt at entertaining this club and she proved herself quite a successful hostess indeed. When the members had all assembled, a short business session was held and several new members were voted upon, one being accepted. Conversation and music, both vocal and instrumental, was furnished throughout the evening, and of especial merit were a number of violin selections by Mr. Roberts, brother of the hostess. Late in the evening a delicious refreshment course, featuring the club colors, was served, consisting of fruit ice cream and cake. The invited guests of the evening were Misses Norris, Delaney, Carrie Roberts and Mr. Roberts. W. F. CHORAL SOCIETY DEVELOPING STEADILY

The membership committee of the Wichita Falls Choral Society reports most encouraging progress in their work. More people are becoming interested daily and it is felt that splendid success awaits this movement. The music has been shipped and everything is in readiness for a good first rehearsal. Nothing very pretentious will be attempted till the chorus has, like Mr. Kipling's ship, "found itself." Later on in the season the society hopes to present some more ambitious work. Members active and prospective, are reminded that the first rehearsal is to be on Tuesday, October 6th at 8 o'clock at the Christian Church.

YEOMEN SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN MONDAY EVENING

Monday evening a most delightful surprise, engineered by several of the ladies of the Rowena Circle, was given in honoring the birthday of Mrs. L. Deatherage, secretary of the Circle. Early in the evening Mrs. South invited Mrs. Deatherage to her home and in her absence a number of the Yeomen and Circle ladies gathered at the Deatherage home. On her return with Mrs. South the house was found in darkness but as she stepped into the house the lights were suddenly switched on and disclosed two rooms full of friends who were enjoying the surprise immensely. After the honoree had somewhat recovered from the effects of the surprise games were instituted and music was enjoyed. The guests had come well provided with a variety of delicious fruit and this was enjoyed as refreshments. A number of birthday tokens were received by Mrs. Deatherage to serve as pleasant reminders of the happy occasion. Those participating in the surprise were Messrs. and Mesdames Shuler, Robertson, Douglas, Wallace, Hallowitz, Dunaway, Richardson, Carlton, Mesdames South, Jennie and Bailey, Misses Ora Carlton, Rose, Bonnie and Gladys Zetsche, Parker, Mary Andrews, Wheller, Crofford, Anna Johnson, Messrs. MRS. C. C. SMITH ENTERTAINS W. W. SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Chas. Clark Smith entertained her Sunday school class, the Willing Workers, very delightfully. This was the initial meeting of the season and, owing to the long vacation, a great many important business matters were to be discussed. The business discussions, election of officers, sewing and conversation occupied the minds of all until late in the afternoon when they were ushered into the darkened dining room, lit with candles only, where delicious refreshments were served by the charming hostess. The School Savings Department Will be Opened the First Monday in October

There was so much interest manifested the short time it run last year, by the children, that the teachers and the bank feel amply repaid for their extra trouble and expense, in trying to teach the children, as we think one of the most important lessons to be learned—THAT OF SAVING—AND WHAT SYSTEMATIC SAVING WILL DO.

This department was introduced and run less than three months last year and at the close of school there were 388 children depositing with their teachers and had a total deposit of $1092.42. This we consider a very fine showing.

For further information as to prizes, etc., call the bank or your teacher.

COTTON STORAGE IN TRANSIT RULES

C. C. PROMULGATES RULES GOVERNING SHIPMENT AND STORAGE OF COTTON

PERMITS EARLY MOVEMENT

Storage and Handling Charges Are Placed at Minimum To Shipper

By Associated Press.
Washington, Sept. 26.—Arrangements were perfected today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, in connection with the treasury department and the federal reserve board to relieve the cotton storage situation in the South. These branches have joined in assisting cotton planters and railways in meeting the extraordinary demands for storage of cotton, occasioned by the war.

The commission says that to provide temporary warehouses for cotton under arrangements approved by the secretary of the treasury and the federal reserve board and to permit railroads to recognize warehouses as points for storage of cotton in order that such points may get the benefit of transit privileges, the Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized southern carriers to publish tariffs establishing rules, regulations and charges governing storage of cotton during the cotton year ending August 31, 1915. The regulations are expected to relieve the storage situation and also the somewhat serious financial situation. With warehouse receipts for their cotton planters will be able to realize upon it at once and then await a favorable time for forwarding the crop to destination. Expense of shipments and warehousing have been fixed at a minimum. The regulations provide that cotton shipped for warehousing and reshipment must be consigned to the warehousing point and freight thereon paid on basis of the full local rate upon which the delivering agent will give a freight receipt which the holder of cotton should retain for the purpose of securing a reshipping privilege.

"2. Upon reshipment from the warehousing point the shipper will be required to surrender the paid freight bill covering that identical cotton; the number of bales, marks and weights of cotton must conform as forwarded to the paid freight bill and in addition the shipper will be required to certify on the back of the paid freight bill that the cotton tendered is the identical cotton received thereunder. The shipper also will be requested to surrender to the railway agent at the time of reshipment the bill of lading covering the movement of cotton into the warehousing point unless the bill of lading for such shipment shall have been previously surrendered to the railway.

"3. Thereupon the agent will issue a through bill of lading to the further final destination at the through rate from the point of origin to such final destination in effect at the time of the original shipment into the warehousing point, plus three cents per 100 pounds provided such further final destination is a point to which there are established through rates in effect from the original point of shipment via the warehousing point (providing that the option of any interested line the minimum through rate will be that from the warehousing point plus the stoppage charge of three cents per 100 pounds). Where the rate from the original point of shipment to such further final destination is less than the rate from the original point to the warehousing point plus the stoppage charge of three cents per 100 pounds, the rate from the original point to the warehousing point plus the stoppage charge of three cents per 100 pounds will be charged as a minimum.

"4. Shipments will be way billed out of the warehousing point at the balance of the rate, plus the stoppage charge of three cents per 100 pounds. The distribution of revenue between connecting lines shall be on a basis of through rate and divisions, except that the three cent stoppage charge shall accrue to the line bringing the cotton into the warehousing point, it being a condition of this privilege that the line issuing the bill of lading out of the warehousing point shall be the line bringing the cotton into the warehousing point.

"5. All connecting line switching charges will be in addition to the through rate and in addition to the three cent stoppage charge and where cotton is redelivered to a carrier from a storage warehouse for delivery at a point in the same industrial zone, the established transportation charge shall apply."

Handsome Gowns Will Be Shown At Gildhouse's This Week

This week will be opening week at the Gildhouse Fashion Store and an unusual number of handsome models in ladies coats, suits, dresses, blouses and hats will on display. From among this number the four following suits have selected as representative of the styles of the moment. The first is a Russian Cossack model in black roadcloth. The coat is built on long free lines, broken at the lowered waist line by a broad brocade girdle. The distinctive touch about the garment is contained in the collar of monkey fur, which fits close about the neck. The second suit in this quartette is on midnight blue broadcloth. In this the high flaring collar and the sashed hipline are features.

Velvet collars and cuffs and a velvet simulated vest, all of the same midnight shade are the sole trimmings. The skirt is a pleated model. Prune colored poplin is the material used in the third suit. The coat is in the popular Redingote effect, with collar and cuffs of velvet to match. The skirt is plain as is usual with the extreme length coat.

The last suit shows a coat in medium length of navy blue novelty cloth. Roman striped material is used effectively to form the collar and cuffs and the bottom of the skirt, which features the long flared tunic.

A number of handsome street dresses are shown, among them one of navy blue serge, combined with lustrous black satin. The waist is of the satin with a vest effect of the serge. The skirt emphasizes strongly the flare tunic which is considered so good for street wear.

Long lines unbroken at waist or hip lines are the chief feature in a black silk frock. A draped girdle of self material marks but does not confine the waistline and the sleeves are long and close fitting. A collar of white embroidered organdy with a soft plaited vest front, provides a slight touch of color relief. One exceedingly good looking frock is of leaf green crepe, in simulated basque, with an accordion pleated tunic. At the hipline a girdle of the material is applied the long ends being knotted in front at the knees. The ends of the girdle and the cuffs are embroidered with a conventional motif in silk of the same shade of green.

A white linen Gladstone color flares about the neck and the irregular front closing is marked with novelty buttons.

A number of handsome waists are shown in printed chiffon, in crepe de chine in the pastel shades and in other approved materials, all the blouses being in the most highly approved mode.

The effect of a gown, no matter how costly or becoming is half lost without the proper kind of corset, this shop recommending especially the Froaset, a front lace, which comes in many styles but which is especially suited to medium and stout figures, being flexibly boned but firm and figure molding.

A number of imported hats are shown, although the number is much smaller than in former seasons, as was to be expected.

One by Camille Rogers of beet root velvet is a striking example of the millinery art. Burnt ostrich and hackle feathers in corresponding tones trim it most effectively in front and the back is trimmed with two gold and bronze motifs.

A creation in Georgette style is a three cornered shape with soft crown. At each of the corners of the brim is poised a bird of paradise in natural colors, the rich yellow of the crest contrasting with the black velvet of the hat body. Another importation illustrates very well the passion for gold and beaded effects. The brim is of tete de negre velvet with a crown of spangled and embroidered gold net. The crown is raised high on one side and a trimming of bronze grapes and a single rose in pink and gold tones placed underneath. On the left side a bronze ostrich fancy is placed with high effect. This model is from the shops of Mme. Germaine.

A charming basket shape in black velvet is shown, the under brim faced with sapphire velvet. Around the crown is placed an ostrich band, the curled feathers shading from the sapphire to the darker tones. Two velvet rose buds in American Beauty shades ornament the brim at the side front.

A Cossack model in black velvet is a favorite among the smaller shapes. The crown is draped with gold embroidered net and two birds of Paradise plumes sweep across the front.

In the opening this week many other garments and hats, quite as beautiful as these described will be shown and the variety of the styles covers a wide range.

Food Inspection With Special Reference To Milk

By Dr. R. T. Bolyn, City Food Inspector.

I have chosen milk as my subject for several reasons:

First, it is a universal and essential article of food.

Second, it is an ideal food.

Third, it is especially susceptible of adulterations and contaminations, which affect its value both from an economic and health standpoint. A pure milk supply is essential to the health of any community. To get it takes a determined effort of city officials, civic associations, business leagues and the public in general.

Let us see what pure milk is or perhaps it will be clearer to state what it is not. This can be briefly put. Pure milk is not infected with the germs of tuberculosis, diphtheria, septic sore throat, scarlet fever, typhoid fever or any other intestinal disease and is not so dirt laden, nor kept at so high a temperature as to cause digestive troubles in babies or invalids. It is free from added water and chemical preservatives.

How can pure milk be procured? To prevent germ infection, cows suffering from tuberculosis or other disease, must be detected and excluded from the herd, and no person allowed to handle cows or milk, or utensils who is suffering from a communicable disease or is in contact with such person. To keep dirt out of milk is a matter of simple but scrupulous cleanliness of cows, men, maids and all milk containers and utensils whether at the dairy farm, the creamery, shipping station and on the milk road up to the point of delivery or to the consumer.

Immediate cooling in this climate with ice is necessary at the dairy farm, and a low temperature maintained to the point of delivery. The consumer also has an important part in getting and keeping a pure milk supply, since, after the milk bottle is safely and properly delivered to his doorstep the responsibility for its protection rests with him. This milk should not be allowed to set in the sun and get warm, but should be removed to the ice box at once and kept cold until used, and also carefully protected from flies and dirt.

A proper ordinance for governing the production and handling of milk and milk products sold within the city is absolutely essential for the board of health to secure adequate protection to the city's milk supply. The council of our city has recently passed a sanitary food ordinance which has been published in pamphlet form and will be given to anyone interested. This ordinance was given careful painstaking and intelligent thought by the sanitary committee and the entire council, and while there is no claim of perfection for it, I am convinced it will compare favorably with any ordinance in the State. This ordinance provides for the appointment of an inspector, who shall devote his time to food inspection and analysis especially milk.

For obvious reasons I will not attempt to define the qualifications of a food inspector. I will, however state that he should be absolutely free from political influences. Our mayor and council took the highest possible precaution in making this appointment, having held an examination given by the food and drug department of Texas, the result of which was the basis upon which appointment was made.

In conclusion I desire to state that the officials of our city are thoroughly alive to the importance of securing and maintaining a pure food supply for this city, and this new department has the united and active support of both the mayor and city council. In making this department sufficient, I bespeak and solicit the co-operation of every organization and every citizen of our city.

HEED THE WARNING

Many Wichita Falls People Have Done So

When the kidneys are weak they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Weak kidneys usually expel a dark, ill smelling urine, full of "brick dust" sediment and painful passages. Sluggish kidneys often cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. There is no better recommendation remedy.

Wichita Falls people endorse Doan's Kidney Pills.

Willis Holston, barber, 1011 Indiana avenue, Wichita Falls, Texas, says: "One of my family occasionally has an attack of kidney trouble and always finds Doan's Kidney Pills a fine remedy at such times. They do it all they are advertised to do."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Holston recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. (Adv.)

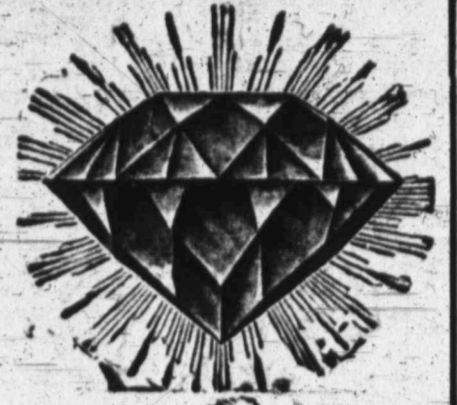

FRENCH WERE PLANNING A GIGANTIC AIRCRAFT

Outbreak of War, According to German Paper, Will Prevent Completion of Airship

Berlin, Sept. 10.—(By mail)—The Cologne Gazette prints the report that just previous to the outbreak of the war the French military authorities were planning to build the "biggest airship in the world."

"As far as known to insiders," says the article, "this new airship, the inventor of which is Arno Boerner, is to have a length of 300 meters and a width of 20 meters; in other words, it would be nearly three times as big as a Zeppelin."

length of the airship in the afterpart.

The gas bags of which there are about fifty, have a quadratic ground plan and consists each of three balloons linked together and filled with hydrogen, nitrogen and ordinary air. The hydrogen ballo net is surrounded by nitrogen, the latter by air. By this system the hydrogen should be prevented from being exploded by lightning or other igniting agencies. Furthermore the escape of gas by diffusion is reduced considerably.

"According to the statements of its inventor this airship would remain aloft several days without interruption, and have a carrying capacity of 300 persons. It is certain that the plans and calculations were worked out to their minutest details and were submitted to the French ministry of war in a comprehensive memorial. But immediately previous to the Austrian ultimatum the negotiations were only progressed to a stage where the French government ordered the sum of 500,000 francs to be appropriated and entrusted a well known company, the Zodiac-Works, with the preliminary work. This was too late to render the airship available in the present war."

MONOPOLY CLAIMED COTTON SEED OIL

FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE WILL INVESTIGATE CHARGES

SEED PRICES A SURPRISE

Farmers Had Expected Higher Price But Find It Cut In Half

By Associated Press.
Washington, Sept. 26.—Charges that a monopoly had cut in half the price paid southern farmers for cottonseed were laid before the department of justice today by Representative Hughes of Georgia and Abercrombie of Alabama. They were promised a thorough investigation. Hughes said demoralization of foreign markets had increased the dependence of southern farmers on receipts from sales of cottonseed. He estimated this year's seed crop would be worth $200,000,000 at last year's price, but he said where farmers had expected an increase because of the war they encountered an unexplained reduction from twenty-eight dollars a ton to fourteen dollars.

M'LEMORE DECLARED WINNER OVER LANE

By Associated Press.
Houston, Texas, Sept. 26.—Judge Kittrell this morning rendered a decision declaring Jeff McLemore the Democratic nominee for congressman at large over W. P. Lane by 145 votes. Judge Kittrell found Lane received 99,242 votes and McLemore 99,487 votes. The judge held that neither the El Paso convention nor the State committee had the right to ignore the vote of a county and returns of all counties were required in the result. He also held that failure to include a pledge on the primary ballot did not vitiate it.
During the contest which Lane brought counsel on both sides had agreed just what the vote of each county should be under certain contingencies and after the court announced its ruling, all that remained to determine the winner was to take the count as directed. That was done and shortly before noon McLemore was declared winner. It was announced Lane will appeal on the ground that the court erred in ordering counting of ballots from counties where the pledge was omitted.

PSYCHOLOGY OF THE BATTLEFIELD

WOUNDED AUSTRIAN OFFICERS TELL OF FEARING IN MIDST OF BATTLE

LITTLE OR NOTHING FELT

One Fight Because in Battle and He Cannot Help Lighing Like Others
Rotterdam, Sept. 23.—(By Mail)—The psychology of the battle field gets a rather thorough and able treatment by an Austrian reserve officer, who, after having been wounded in an engagement with the Russians, gave the following interview to a Hungarian Journalist. The officer in question was with General Bankl in the fighting southeast of Krasnik.
"You feel little or nothing 'while in battle,'" he said. "At least you forget how things affect your mind. The eyes see and the ears hear, but those are perceptions which do not result in impressions one could coordinate. They do not even affect your sentiments. But it is not cynicism for all that, merely the lack of appreciation of what takes place. My captain, a most lovable fellow whom I did not always respect as an officer, but of whom I also thought a great deal personally, was leading his company into fire when three bullets hit him in the abdomen. I saw him fall, but thought nothing of it and marched on."
"In spite of the fact that you have no ill feelings against the enemy, and may not even fear him, you destroy him as best you can." On the evening before our first battle we were sitting about the mess table—most of us officers of the line. None of us had ever killed a man. I said: "Friends, when I meet the first Russian officer tomorrow my impulse will be to shake his hand." My comrades agreed with me. But on the following day I was obliged to lay a number of Russians low.
"My Slovaks are the most phlegmatic people in the world, but excellent soldiers. They shoot without anger, but simply because they are fired upon. One fight because one is on the battle field and can not do any different. The terrible thing is that often you are shot at without being able to return the fire. But this is not as fear inspiring as it is discouraging. You learn to know what fear is when you begin to realize that you might be killed without killing somebody first."
Of course, I have been scared. That was after I had been wounded. We had been firing a long time and when next we advanced we came into a deep sandy road, out of which we could not get because of the enemy's terrible fire. We had to lie perfectly still while bullets simply poured over us. That was awful.

Sees Little of Battle.
The officer omitted to state that while in this position he was shot three times in the arm, but continued to lead his troops throughout the action.
"It is a well known fact that the soldier sees very little of the battle. On August 24 early in the morning we received orders to occupy a low hill at the edge of a track covered with brush wood. Forming part of the reserve, we were expected to remain under cover. In front of us was a large open battle field. To each side of us were batteries which had thundered away since early morning. The result of this was that many of the enemy's shells dropped right in front of us. I remember noticing that while the smoke of our shells had a lilac color that of the enemy's was white."
"So far we had not been disquieted by the shells at all. On the edge of the brush wood had been planted a yellow black flag, showing that somewhere in that vicinity was to be found our general staff. Our colonel left us and walked towards it, possibly to get orders, but just as he got there a shrapnel exploded a little ahead of him in the air and we saw our commanding officer, in whom we placed all our confidence, go down. After that it was a terrible feeling to lie still. From that moment on, too, a veritable hail of shells began to come. Some sappers, who had been busy digging a trench for the protection of the general staff, started to run. I feared that my soldiers would follow the example, and began to make fun of the poor sappers, scolding them at the same time. Thank God, my battalion found that funny and began to laugh. They lived through a terrific shrapnel fire with not a care and even found occasion for laughter."
A Major took command of the regiment and we received orders to retake a hill which the enemy had taken under heavy fire. But of the enemy nothing at all was to be seen as we neared the position, though the hail of shells and shrapnels increased in fury. The bearers marched about 300 paces off my side. By accident I looked in his direction, saw the white cloud of smoke of a Russian shell and where the flag bearer had been there was nothing more to be seen.
"The enemy meanwhile had taken to flight and later we saw the Russians wading through a swamp. Then they got to the River Fay, and crossed it—twice after them shooting, waded out of breath. Of a sudden a village behind us went up in flames, the light falling on us like the rays of a huge reflector. Then there we received a rain of fire and saw the enemy had taken possession. In good order of the other bank. We had to fall back, not because we were afraid, but because those were the orders. The sensation of being in danger of death we did not have.

GERMAN ACCOUNT TAKING OF LIEGE

FORTS KNOCKED TO PIECES BY NEW KRUPPS FIRING FROM TOWN

NAMUR A CITY OF RUINS

Correspondent of Tageblatt Tells of Suffering in Path of Invaders

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)
Berlin, Sept. 12.—The following descriptions of the devastation at Liege and Namur are translated from accounts in the Tageblatt.
We reached Liege on the evening of a stormy day. We traveled through streets where the smoke of burned houses was still curling upward, streets that showed no signs of life. Patrols marched through the city. The beautiful shops across from the university were a field of ruins. I was told that two nights before, on August 21, shots came from these shops as if by prearrangement. The inhabitants of the houses were dragged out, the women were torn from the men, and whoever had a weapon in his hands was shot. In a few minutes the streets were soiled with corpses. The houses were set on fire.
"Eye witnesses described for me the details of the conquest of Liege. Loucin, the strongest fort, was bombarded by the newest Krupp guns which were stationed in the market place, in the middle of the city. Every window pane in the vicinity was broken by the concussion and pieces of roof fell from some of the houses. The fort soon surrendered. A division of Jaeger were the first men to enter the fort. The destruction was terrible. About 40 corpses lay piled inside the stone walls. The stench was unbearable. About 200 wounded were counted. The only man uninjured was the commandant. A wounded man, who evidently was about to be operated on, lay in the lazaret. He had been killed by a shell. Liege had altogether thirteen forts. Nine were taken by infantry storm; the others were reduced by artillery. The forts are being repaired for German use by the inhabitants of the city, who get six francs a day for their work.
"A German who had lain in a Belgian fort as prisoner and witnessed the whole bombardment, described the course of the battle. The bombardment, he said, began at midnight on August 5. One shell after another exploded and Liege was soon aflame in many places. From every roof and window in the houses came a rain of bullets. Under this fire the Germans stormed through the village of Roncourt and deployed in a wheat field. Two hundred Germans opened a rapid fire on the 2,000 Belgians, of whom 500 fell. Nineteen German prisoners were confined in a cellar when the German's heavy artillery began firing. They could hear the shells coming through the air and every time they exploded, gas, powder, carb and cement dust flew into the cellar until the men were nearly suffocated. Finally an explosion blew in the iron door of the cellar and shortly thereafter the Belgians surrendered, freeing the prisoners."
"On the following morning I went to Namur. In Liege main streets had been burned out, but in Namur whole blocks were destroyed. The Grand Palace, with its beautiful Rathaus, had been blotted out of existence. In its place were heaps of ruin, from which smoke was still coming. The destructive effect of grenades could be noted on many houses. The city was without bread. German patrols were guarding the bakeries, which were being stormed by the people. By four o'clock in the afternoon even the largest hotels had no provisions of any kind left. Our troops were fed from the vast quantities of food stored in the forts. In the city there was a shortage of everything, especially potatoes and salt.
"In the afternoon we went on to Gembloux. The famine was still worse there. The soldiers declared that they had been unable to get bread or beer from the people for fourteen days."

"T. R." Acknowledged Applause That Was Not Meant for Him

Frank Kell was in a KANSAS town recently when Theodore Roosevelt was scheduled to speak there, but left the hall without waiting to hear the Progressive leader, the heat being too uncomfortable for him to remain. When Roosevelt entered he was given a tremendous ovation to which he responded by smiling broadly and waving his hat. Soon after the applause subsided one of the party on the platform started to sit down and his chair broke down under him. This delighted the crowd which again broke out into cheers; Roosevelt, thinking the crowd was cheering for him and unaware of the accident, again rose and waved his hat. Roosevelt is now stumping Kansas in behalf of the Progressive state ticket.

RAISING FUNDS FOR THE GERMAN RED CROSS
German-American Citizens Active in Providing For Relief of Needy in Germany
Wichita county citizens of German birth or ancestry are organizing for the purpose of raising funds for the relief of those who are in need in Germany. Funds raised locally will be sent to the United German Red Cross Association for distribution among the needy in Germany.
The local committee consist of E. E. Gotze, August Martins, August Loener, Ben Sewigler, Emil Fluche, Wilhelm Bauch, Wilhelm Fehler and A. J. Schultz.
There are many citizens of Wichita county who were either born in Germany or are of German descent. Many of these have relatives in Germany who are now fighting for the Fatherland. While the German-Americans here are obeying fully the spirit of President Wilson's neutrality proclamation, they have sympathy for the men who are fighting in Germany's cause and for those dependent upon them at home, many of whom, no doubt, will feel the pinch of poverty.

A. J. Schultz, who is one of the representative German-Americans in this section, has announced that as soon as the war is ended, he intends to make a trip to Germany and expects to personally distribute not less than a thousand dollars for the relief of those needing it at his old home.

MINCE PIE AN EASILY ASSIMILABLE FOOD
(Boston Herald)
Dr. Woods Hutchinson, who has written voluminously in a popular style upon topics pertaining to health and disease, is out with the statement that "mince pie is an easily assimilated polysaccharid carbohydrate of highly caloric efficiency." Now there are some terms in that statement which the ordinary layman may not understand, but he eagerly grasps the apparent meaning of "easily assimilable" and breathes a sigh of relief. The mince pie season is just ahead, and with this authority to cite to his conscience, whenever the recollection of the warnings of the past bids him pause, the lover of the pie that mother used to make may face the feast without trepidation as to future consequences. Not long ago Dr. Wiley was earning the salary the government paid him by grappling with such problems as this: Must mince meat contain meat? New England was properly grateful when he ruled in the affirmative and now this important pie belt again offers thanks for the dictum, "easily assimilable."

ENTIRE WORLD FEELS THE EUROPEAN WAR

EVEN THE TRIBES OF SYRIA AND INDIANS IN CHILE ARE AFFECTED

NO SPOT IS EXEMPTED

The Colonies of the Allies Are Being Stripped of Men and Horses

New York—Belated reports from the outposts of the network of missions established throughout the world by the Presbyterian church received and made public here tell of world-wide conditions unparalleled in the history of the church.

There is no spot under the sun, according to these reports, where the European war has failed to strike a blow at commerce; no inhabitant of the world, even to the half savage Indians of Chile and the wandering tribes of Syria, has failed to feel its effects in some degree.

The situation in West Africa is critical; Syria is engulfed by utter hopelessness; Persia is in chaotic condition, at least as far as finances are concerned; missionaries in India are shut off from outside financial aid; Chile is in pitiable plight because of the prostration of its industries, and in Guatemala the poor are driven by hunger to the point of confiscating the foodstuffs of the wealthy—such is the somber picture of some of the mission fields revealed by the Presbyterian board directors' missions through the Rev. A. W. Halsey, its secretary.

Syria Swept of Men and Horses

"I thought I had seen the country restless before, but never have I imagined anything like the present distress and hopelessness," writes the Rev. William S. Nelson, long a missionary in Syria, from Tripoli, under date of August 21. "Riding Monday and Tuesday across three districts, I did not see a camel, mule or horse, and only a few weak donkeys and very few men. All were hiding from the army draft. There was no talk anywhere except of means to evade the encroachments of the officials."

The draft calls for practically all the able bodied men. The list of pack mules calls for all that are on the official lists made only a few months ago. Camels are impressed wherever found. Cattle and sheep are demanded as well as the grain still on the threshing floors. It simply means the utter destruction of the country if carried out and the impoverishment of the people if they tried to buy or bribe themselves off.

"The cruelty of the officials trying to enforce the orders means beating and abuse for the men and destruction of household effects in the villages. One of the men driven was heard to cry out imploring God to hasten them to the seat of war so that he should be armed that he might send his first bullet to the heart of his officer. Others say if they ever reach the front they will throw down their arms and go over to whatever enemy is before them in the hope of getting enough to eat."

Feel Safe in Tsing-Tau

A reassuring cablegram from the Shantung Mission at Tsing-Tau, China, has relieved the board's apprehension for its workers there. The board has sixteen organized churches in the war zone there. The following cablegram was sent to the mission by the board:

"It is the judgment of the board that those at Tsing-Tau, China, should be recalled to a place of safety. Anxiety very great."

The board received the following reply:

"Tsing-Tau American Presbyterian Mission is well and safe."

At Beirut, prostrated by fear of conscription, the wildest rumors were widely believed, missionaries write. The board cites one instance:

"I heard," writes its missionary, from one of the sons of a pasha that Germany had taken possession of Belgium and had installed a Moslem pasha as ruler over that part of Europe."

Describing conditions Beirut, the same missionary writes:

"Orders were issued from Ottoman government for mobilization and the calling of all eligible for military conscription from the ages of 19 to 45, also the abolition of all exceptional privileges ordinarily granted to certain classes of professional men. This resulted in a massing of young men and old from Beirut and Lebanon where thousands of both Moslem and Christians fled with and without their families. At the same moment came orders to commander all horses fit for transport service."

"Hundreds of horses and muleteers were caught in the khans and caravansers of Beirut, while thousands of others escaped by devious paths in every direction, and still more devious methods of bribery. Because at such time the hungry officials, with salaries in arrears, and the certainty of delayed payments in the future, are ready enough to turn a dishonest penny."

In West Africa, the board announces the situation is critical.

Letters from missionaries in Chile recite conditions there, according to the board, as follows:

"Chile depends almost exclusively on its nitrate exports. Germany and France are the principal buyers in times of peace, but no freight can be delivered at present and trade with Europe is suppressed. I need hardly describe the monotony of business. Many fear a popular uprising in demand of bread, for there are countless homes where everything has already been pawned for food."

Forced to Sell Church Property

It has been impossible to transmit funds to missionaries in India, the board continues, and for that reason the missions there have been authorized by cable to sell such church property as they find absolutely necessary to obtain funds for food. At Teheran, Persia, practically the same situation exists.

(Herbert Corey in the Kansas City Star.)

London, September 26.—The tremendous efficiency of the German army is the theme of every man who has reached this city from Belgium, and who there came in intimate contact with the Teuton troops.

"They marched toward Paris at their scheduled rate of fourteen miles a day" said one man. "They were checked now and then, but never stopped. Never in my life have I been so impressed as by the sight of these sturdy German legions, thick soled, thick legged, thick shouldered, red faced, smiling, clumping along the roads at route step—miles of them, thousands of them, hours of them—utterly confident, good natured, conceited and well fed. I have watched them for hours at a time until they became unreal to me. I have tried to make myself understand that one and one-half millions of them are scuffling toward Paris, and I cannot."

"The thing that seems to have impressed most observers, next to the forethought which seems to have provided for every contingency, is the armored vans which led the German army.

Thousands of Armored Vans.

"There were thousands of them," said one man. "Literally thousands. I counted five hundred myself, and then turned my attention to other things. Always they went out ahead of the main army, when that body pulled on its heavy shoes and digested its hot German breakfast and had taken to the road for the day's tramp. They were heavily armored, so that they were impregnable to rifle fire. Machine guns, I suppose, would destroy them. They were tremendously powerful, so much so that when they came to a fence no one bothered to hop out of the van and lay down a panel. The wagon just brushed through it as though it were straw. If the road was not good they took to the fields. I saw scores of them trundling noisily on through a farmer's wheat while the owner of the wheat sat on a wall and looked on. Somehow the apathy of the owner of the wheat always struck me. They never protested. Sometimes they seemed quite cheerful and exchanged smiles with the commonplace men at the wheel of the vans."

Breaking a German camp in the morning reminded this man of six o'clock on circus day, except that the show was greater than any other the world has ever seen.

Like a Circus Morning.

"Long before sunrise you could smell the wood smoke under the wheeled furnaces," said he, "and if you were awake even through the many continuous noises of a sleeping camp one could hear the cooks at work and the tinkle of pans and the gruff voiced talk about the kitchen. Then came breakfast—a substantial meal, for fourteen miles must be done that day—and each man put in his haversack enough for lunch. He was always provided with an emergency ration, of course. The first men to get up and get out were the crews of the armored vans. Long before the rest of us touched our coffee these wagons were rumbling heavily through the graylight-of-morning. They made me think of the elephants I used to lie awake to watch march into town on the morning of circus day."

These great armored vans held forty to fifty men each. Some of them were mounted with a machine gun. Others hauled a machine gun or perhaps two after them. On a good road a van would some times carry one gun and haul three or four—at forty miles an hour, or less.

"You could not fancy the speed at which these things travel when it was desirable," said the speaker. "Of course, they did not make that all day. Sometimes roads were bad and sometimes bridges must be built or strengthened."

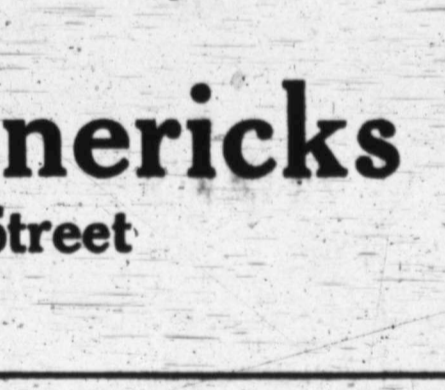

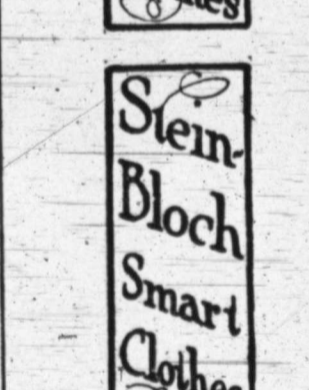

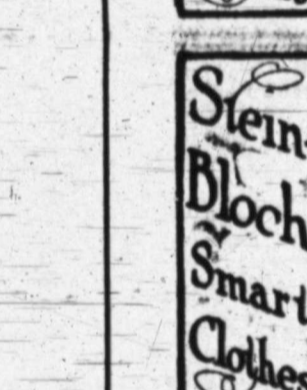

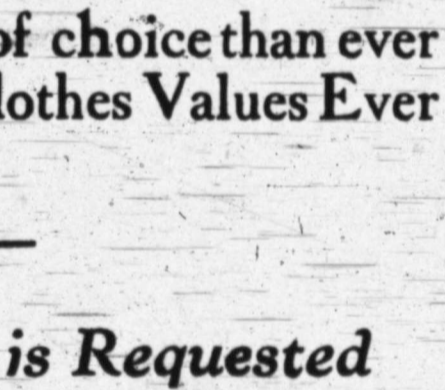

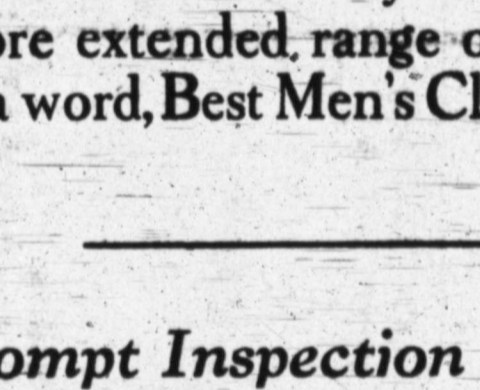

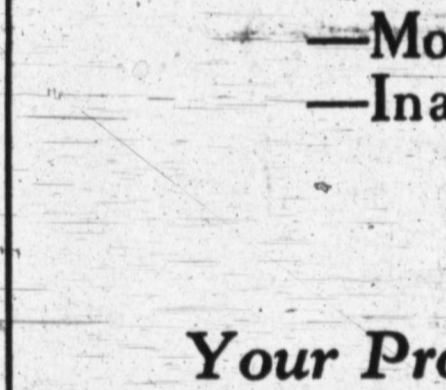

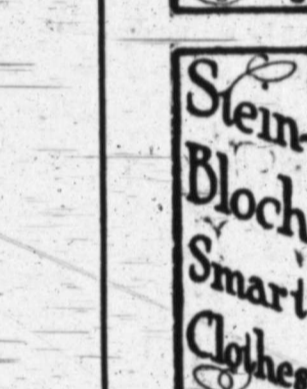

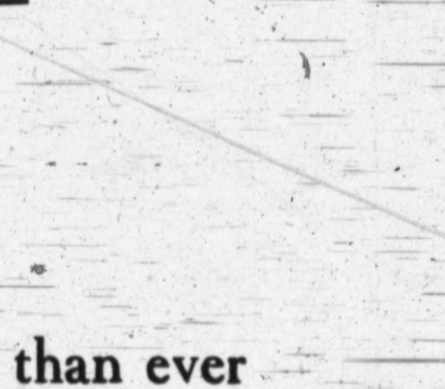

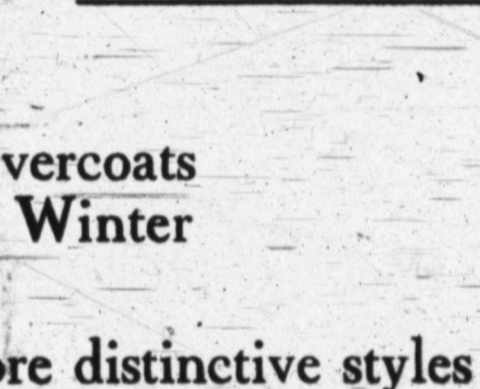

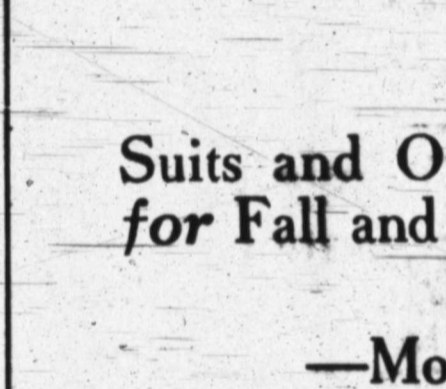

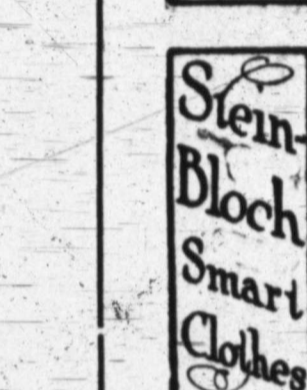

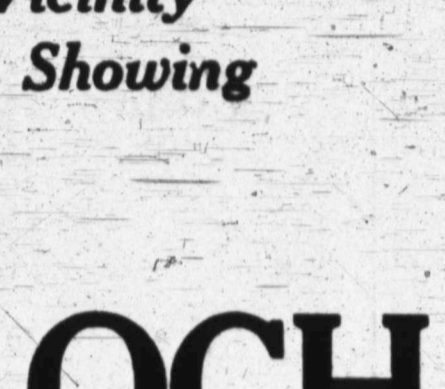

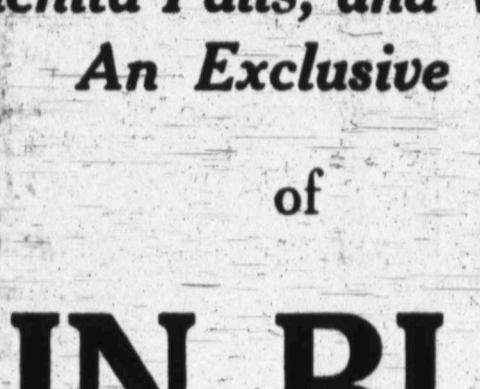

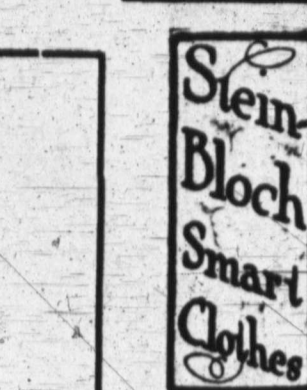

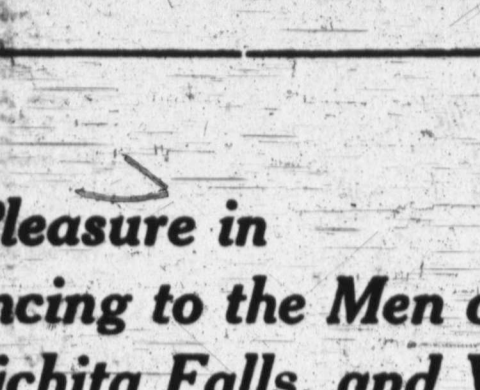

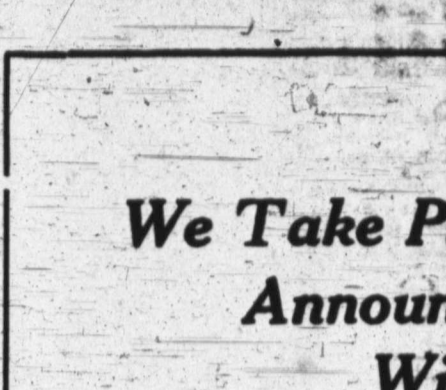

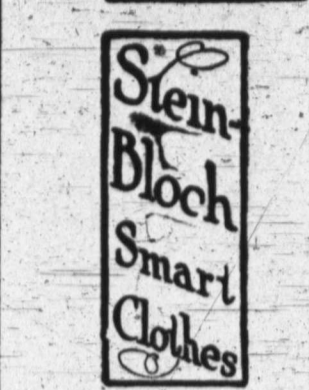

These vans developed the enemy. They were aided in the work of reconnaissance by the Zeppelins and aeroplanes, of which the Germans have an incredible number.

"It has seemed to me as though they filled the sky like a cloud," said the speaker. "They seemed to rise from their encampment in the heart of the army like a brood of savage birds. The whir of the motors could be heard everywhere. Almost at times they seemed like the looms of a factory."

Then Came the Uhlans. Following the vans and the aircraft came the Uhlans and other mounted squads and the mortar cyclists. They formed the "screen" of which so much has been heard. They advanced not by groups or scattered companies, but in regiments. While they were getting under way—if it were an ordinary, commonplace day—the private soldier sat about his encampment.

"One thought of nothing so much as farmhands at harvest time," said the speaker. An illustration that was heightened by the grain field which had been crushed on either side. The smell of the broken straw mingled with the thousand odors of a camp.

"Most of them would be smoking pipes and talking together in the grave, slow, heavy tones of the German adult. Rarely a man would be found cleaning a gun at this hour. That work should be done the moment an engagement was over. The officers were very strict in such matters. Here a man might be found patching his clothes, in the pathetic awkwardness of the man to whom such tasks were unusual and distasteful. There a clumsy, red faced fellow might be found with his shoes off, carefully examining his feet. His feet were the first care of every veteran. Every man carried mutton tallow in his knapsack, together with boracic ointment made up in stick form.

Always the Crackle of Musketry.

By and by—if this was a day for marching—the troops got under way. Ahead of the army the "screen" covered the country like a basket. Altered somewhere in the distance, the thudding of guns or the crackle of musketry might be heard. Afar off the sound of firing made this man think of a giant hand tearing an enormous cloth. The troops took it very easily when possible. The officers were rigid in discipline, but took good care of their men. Camp offenses were punished with severity which amounted to brutality. Although all water was doubly filtered—six filter wagons accompanied each regiment—the men were warned against fouling the water supply. The men for the most part marched through the fields in order to leave the roads clear for the flocks of motor transport wagons that accompanied the army. Last of all came the huge slave guns, drawn by from twelve to thirty horses each, and sometimes aided by a motor in addition. They were always in the rear unless they

U. S. SHOULD BUILD MORE SUBMARINES

Hudson Maxim Says This Country Should Profit by Sinking of British Cruisers

New York, Sept. 25.—"The destruction of three British cruisers by German submarines conveys a moral that should not be scorned or overlooked by this—a country whose safety depends almost entirely upon its navy," declared Hudson Maxim, the celebrated inventor of high explosives. "This disaster teaches plainly how vulnerable the big warship is when exposed to the silent attack of the little destroyer. These submarines, obscured by the water and most likely to attack under the cover of darkness or fog, have an inestimable value. The dreadnought stands out huge and grim—a terrible fighter when her foe looms up before her. But the enemy sends out three or four of the submarines in the darkness. A series of torpedoes are hurled at the monster and the terriers of the undersea fly back from whence they came. Thus goes the glory of the dreadnought. War, if it must be, is calculated

AMERICAN HORSES FOR FIGHTING IN EUROPE

Orders For 45,000 Accounted For Within the Past Ten Days

Heavy orders for horses suitable for army service have been received by American dealers within the past ten days. A Wichita Falls man who keeps in close touch with the markets accounts for orders of at least 45,000 head received in the last few days. Of those Ed Steger of Bonham has orders for 10,000 head; Ross Brothers of Fort Worth, 10,000 head; an Indiana firm 15,000 head and S. A. Sweet & Company of Kansas City 10,000 head. Many of these horses are being picked up in Texas and Oklahoma at fair prices. Thousands and thousands of horses have been killed in the battles being fought in Europe. To replace these and to equip new troops being placed in the field will require hundreds of thousands of animals and the American horse growers are expected to profit from the slaughter. The many friends of Mrs. R. E. Huff will regret to learn that she has been quite ill for the past few days.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Fourth Quarterly Conference Found All Departments of Church in Good Shape

The First Methodist Episcopal Church held the Fourth Quarterly Conference at the church Friday evening, September 25. The work closes up well with money in sight for all local expenses and a bright future in good shape. Boards were elected for the coming year and reports received from the different departments. The Ladies Aid show a remarkable report. Besides much other work they have raised $96.00, which has gone into the work of the church. A committee for the organ and general improvements. Dr. Euster told the ladies that this is the best report of all the district. The following persons were elected to official positions for the coming year:

GRAIN DEALERS URGE FARMERS TO SOW WHEAT

Fort Worth, Texas, Sept. 26.—Farmers of Texas are urged to decrease the cotton acreage next year and plant wheat in its place, in an interview given out Thursday by H. B. Dorsey, secretary of the Texas Grain Dealers Association, in which Mr. Dorsey declared that wheat will be in great demand by the warring nations of Europe.

"If the European war is ended in a very short time," he said, "it will be practically impossible for those warring nations to raise a normal wheat crop the coming season. Besides the wheat crop raised this season was not properly harvested or stored for, and no doubt a very heavy demand for wheat and flour from this country will come from those nations, regardless of whether the war is ended soon or not."

"The situation, as it exists, which affects the cotton market so much there being so little demand for cotton, should be taken advantage of by the Texas farmer; and the acreage usually planted in cotton should be sown in wheat, as the foreign nations will no doubt call loudly for our wheat about harvest time. The recent rains will enable the farmer to get their wheat sown in the best condition for use, and they should take advantage of it."

"The Lord, together with the federal government and the Texas rail road commission, has placed Texas a little nearer the foreign countries than any other State. I mean by this that our harvest comes from two to six weeks earlier than any other State, and the liberal appropriation by the federal government, which has established such an excellent port at Galveston, and a reasonable rate established by the railroad commission from all points in the State give the Texas farmer and wheat raiser a decided advantage over the farmer of other States. If all the farmers in Texas, who can do so, do not sow wheat this fall, they will be standing in their own light, as the conditions certainly point to good prices."

HIGHER COURTS TO OPEN FALL TERMS SOON

Austin, Texas, Sept. 26.—Preparations are now being made for the opening of the fall terms of the higher courts here, beginning the first Monday in October. The court of criminal appeals has about 80 cases on file most of them having been filed during the summer vacation. This means that the criminal appeals court is practically up with its docket, having very few left over cases. The supreme court, however, has 640 cases of various classes of litigation pending, being about two and one-half years behind in its work. The third court of civil appeals is reported well up with its work, though it has a fair amount of left over cases.

Advertising car No. 1 of the Sells-Floto shows arrived yesterday and put a crew to work hanging advertising signs throughout the city. The shows will be here October 15.

SUITS AND COSTUMES FOR FALL AND WINTER

New York, Sept. 26.—Did it ever occur to you that there is such a thing as a clothes sense? Some women and men possess it and others lack it dreadfully. To some an unharmonious combination of style, color or lack of becomingness and suitability necessary in the successful gown is as painful as a discord in music. Fortunately the woman if she realizes that she lacks this gift, for then she desires, she can by a little careful study acquire some sense of clothes. Remember that the first essential is to wear clothes which accord with your mode of living. Be careful to have your costume complete; for instance, do not wear heavy shoes with an evening gown, or slippers with a tailored suit. The same thing may be said of hats. Tailored hats are for tailored costumes, and more dressy hats for the more elaborate gowns and social occasions. The combination of cheap and expensive materials is a gross mistake unless an unusual color combination or other effect is obtained, and usually such an effect can only be attained was attached, which was gathered about an inch and a half from the top edge and formed a narrow ruffle as the heading, where skirt and yoke were joined. This skirt hung straight to the ankles on one side, while on the other it was draped up. Around the waist was a wide girde studded in a graceful design with brilliants.

A dress of brilliant brocade with waist full low in the back and skirt draped up at one side was entirely veiled with blue tulle. At the back two ends were fastened to the waist and reached out to the wrist, to which they were attached with bracelets of jet. When the arms were raised the effect was of transparent azure wings.

One toned costumes are very smart. Suits of gray, green, brown or blue have blouses to match of satin, or chiffon. A striking suit of beige colored corduroy had its jacket semi-fitted and flaring at the bottom. The skirt had an upper and lower tunic, both very wide and rippling in effect. The blouse was of exactly matching chiffon, which was made with a U shaped yoke about the size and shape of a man's shirt front, which was lined with narrow ruffles of the chiffon piped edged.

The popularity of the cape coat is undiminished and is seen in widely varying fabrics. Those for especially dressy wear are of velvet or broadcloth, duvetyne, velour or one of the various fur cloths. For sports or every day wear in cold weather they are made in tweeds, plaided chevrons and rough maskinaw cloth. The coat illustrated is developed in rough novelty worsted plaid in green and blue and black. It is stunning in its style and simple in its construction. It is a style which is much more practical for winter wear than the plain cape, as it fits closer to the body.

Braiding and beading are used extensively for trimming, and are combined charmingly with a darning stitch in coarse silk, which is done in effective but simple designs. Illustrated is a costume of simple good style. The new small armhole by an artist. A most important thing to remember is not to buy a dress because it pleases your fancy, but because you know it will accentuate all of your good points. To many this category of don'ts will seem so elementary that they are hardly to be taken seriously, but unfortunately they are but few who actually put these rules into practice.

The styles this season are shown in such variety that there are clothes for the fat, the thin and the negative woman. Velvet and other pile fabrics, and the imitation fur cloths, such as moles, Persian lamb, civet and leopard, are used extensively for gowns, suits and wraps, as well as for the trimming of gowns.

A taupe gown of chiffon over the same colored charmeuse had two tunics which were edged with bands of imitation mole skin. The waist also had a band of it to outline the surplice waist.

Another stunning gown had a waist made after the jumper style of Persian lamb cloth. The sleeves of the waist were of black chiffon. The skirt was made with a long tunic of velvet with a lower skirt of fur cloth. A suit of black velvet has a jacket with long ends of velvet, which tie at the back beneath a cape like back. The cape is edged with a four inch band of Persian lamb. The long tunic of velvet has a band of this same fur and is over a narrow skirt of velvet.

Jet glitters and glitens on gowns of velvet, lace and satin. Bands of it encircle the waist, form straps to go over the shoulders and suspend the waists of evening gowns. Jet beads and paillettes are fastened to a net foundation, which makes a wonderful scintillating cloth—supple and attractive without the weight of the jetted cloth of years ago when it was so much the rage.

A wonderful evening gown of velvet was made with a waist cut in a low V front and back. On one side was draped a triangular shaped piece of velvet, the point reaching almost to the shoulder, where it was joined to a similar piece in the back with a band of jet. The other side of the waist, front and back, was of tulle draped up in the same manner, with the points joined together with the band of jet. The skirt was made with a yoke short on one hip and longer on the other. To this the lower skirt

FOUNDATIONS LAID FOR SEIGE GUNS

GERMANS PREPARED GROUND ALONG AISENE FOR TROOPS BEFORE WAR

PARTS BIG GUNS NOW READY

Well Drilled and Quary Men Now Appear To Have Been German Artillerymen

By Associated Press. London, Sept. 26.—In spite of the fact that there has been fighting on both the left and right wings of the allies during the past week and that these engagements have been vigorous and incessant, no decisive outcome of the battle on the Aisne has yet been recorded. The British military experts who last week predicted that Germany would maintain the defensive in France while transferring troops to the eastern area of war have, not, generally speaking, been borne out. Although the position of the Germans at their center is suited for such tactics and siege warfare has prevailed there for days, the fighting on the ends contradicts them.

Correspondents telegraphing today from Amsterdam and dating their dispatches from France, an expedient resulting from the expulsion of the writers from anywhere near the scene of operations, again dwell on the excellent character of the German entrenchments. It seems that in many places along the Aisne battle front stone quarries dot the hill-sides and a majority of these workings have been in German hands for years. It would appear that during several weeks before the opening of hostilities thousands of tons of stone were cut from these quarries, later to be used by the Germans for construction of barriers against which the heaviest artillery has little effect.

Parts of Guns On Ground. An Englishman, writing from the Manbage district, reveals some of the remarkable preparations which he says the Germans made for the present war. His letter says:

"The Germans installed, a long time before the war, certain portions of some of their biggest forty-two centimeter guns on a farm under the pretext that they were boring for water. They put in foundations of concrete, so that everything was ready and their guns had a longer range than those of the Manbage forts, so it was not difficult for them to conquer."

The Paris correspondent of the London Chronicle confirms the foregoing statement and adds that all the German heavy artillery was placed on concrete platforms selected some years ago as foundations for factories never to be completed. Belated reports giving details of the occupation of Amiens and Tainpigny, from which cities the Germans subsequently were driven, throw further light on what in England is characterized as German advance preparations for the invasion. According to these stories in almost every French town through which the Germans swept someone in the ranks would point out where he had until recently resided as an inconspicuous citizen. Through such men great quantities of stores were found and this together with the knowledge of the country gained by such soldier residents has proved of immense value.

Przemysl Isolated. The isolation of the Galician stronghold of Przemysl apparently has made complete by occupation of Khyrov, twenty miles south of the fortress and close to the junction of the railroad lines connection with Jaroslau the important railroad center taken by the Russian troops some time ago.

CHICAGO HAS WON THE MOST LEAGUE PENNANTS

Boston, However, By Winning This Year Will Be Only One Behind Cubs

The closing of the pennant race in the National League has caused a delving into ancient records of the organization with the result that several interesting sidelights have developed. Boston, by winning the 1914 flag, can draw with one point of the league record of ten pennants held by Chicago, while New York can secure a tie with Boston, since but one pennant separates the record of the two cities. These three cities lead by a comfortable margin in all other cities which from time to time have been represented in the National League. The order in point of pennants won is as follows:

- Chicago—1876, 1880-1-2, 1885-6, 1906-7, 1910. Boston—1877-8, 1883, 1891-2-3, 1897-8, New York—1888-9, 1904-5, 1911-12-13. Pittsburg—1901-2-3, 1909. Brooklyn—1890, 1899, 1900. Baltimore—1894-5-6. Providence—1879, 1884. Detroit—1887.

Kaiser To Lose In Year Say U. S. Army Officers

Washington, Sept. 25.—(Special)—"The war in Europe will last from nine to eighteen months."

"Germany, unless she is superhuman, will be defeated."

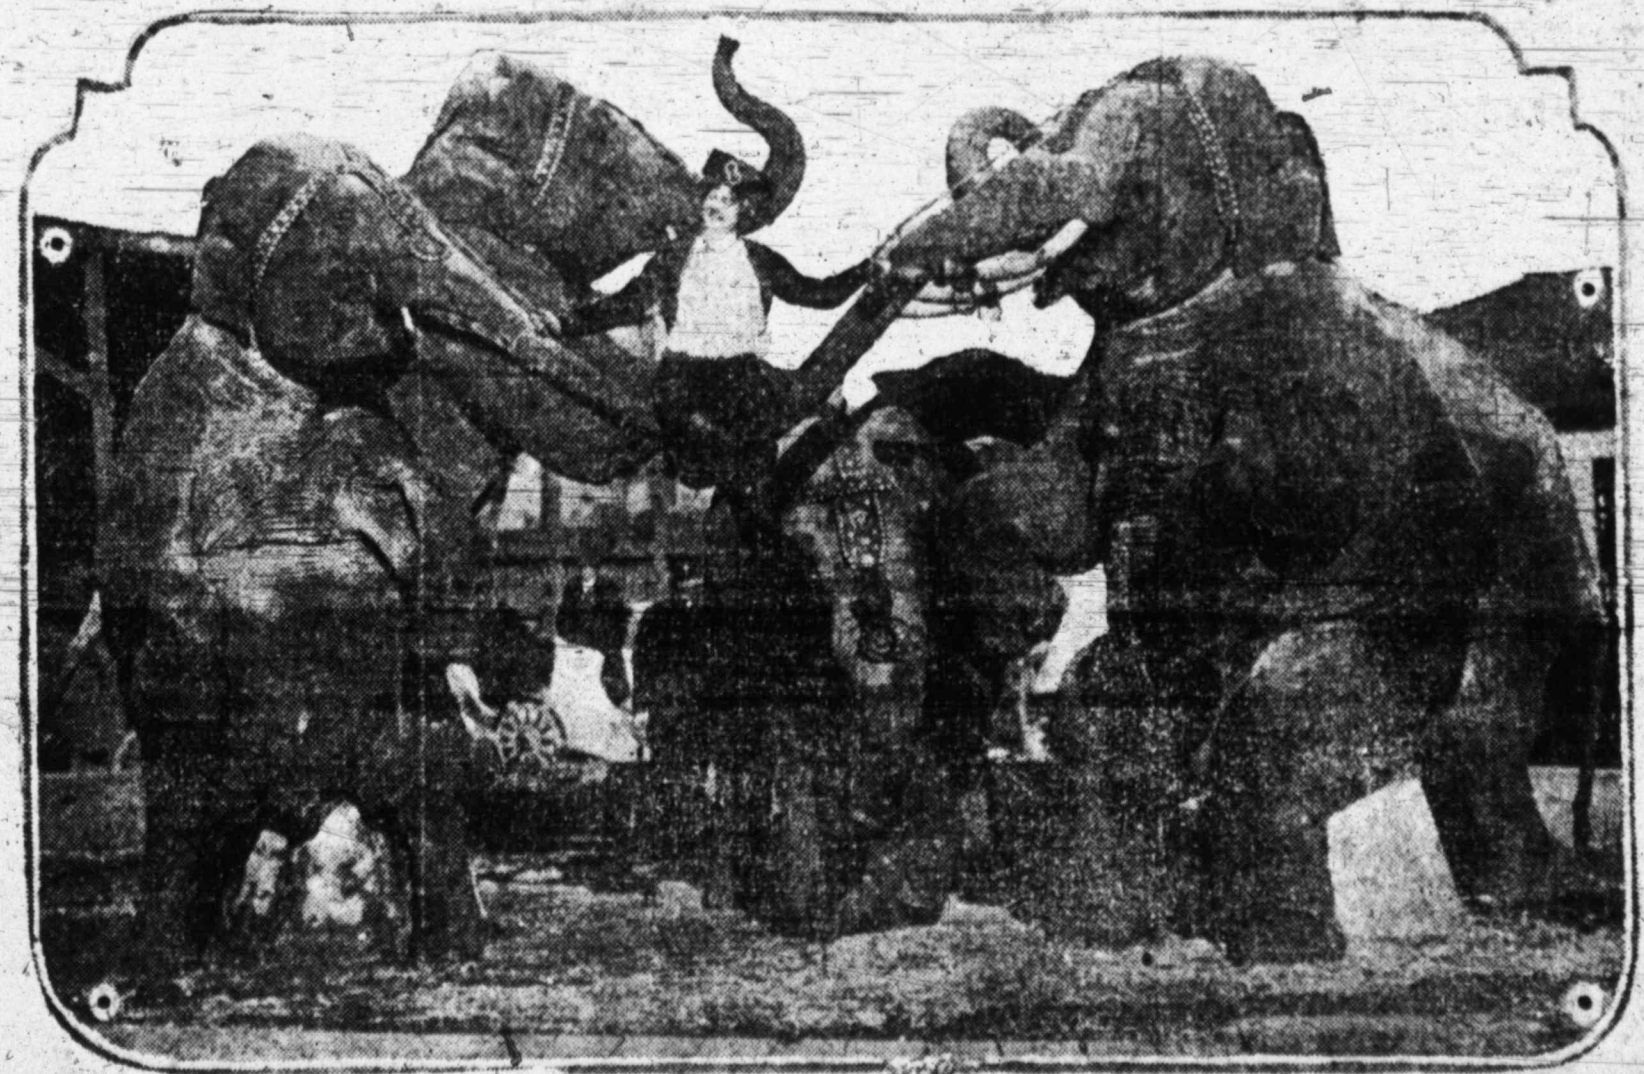

The foregoing is the consensus of opinion entertained by more than two score active army officers on duty in this city and its environs. Only those officers of and above the rank of captain were interrogated.

Mindful of the president's order to government officers not to comment on the war, and his plea to his fellow officers on the war, and his plea to his fellow officers, there was addressed to more than three score officers the following two questions, with the understanding that their names would not be used in setting forth their replies.

1. How long will the war in Europe last? 2. Which side will be the victor—Germany and Austria or the triple entente? From the replies and the reasons attached the two answers given were the result. On the question of how long will the war last, a majority of the officers estimated one year.

In all about sixty officers were seen. Of this number approximately twenty followed literally the president's instructions and would not discuss in any manner the questions asked. Of the forty officers who made replies, some of whom were general officers, a number of the rank of colonel, one officer said that Germany had a fighting chance to win. The remainder shook their heads—many of them gray—and said it was impossible for Germany to win, that to do so she would have to be superhuman.

Trained Elephants With Sells-Floto Circus

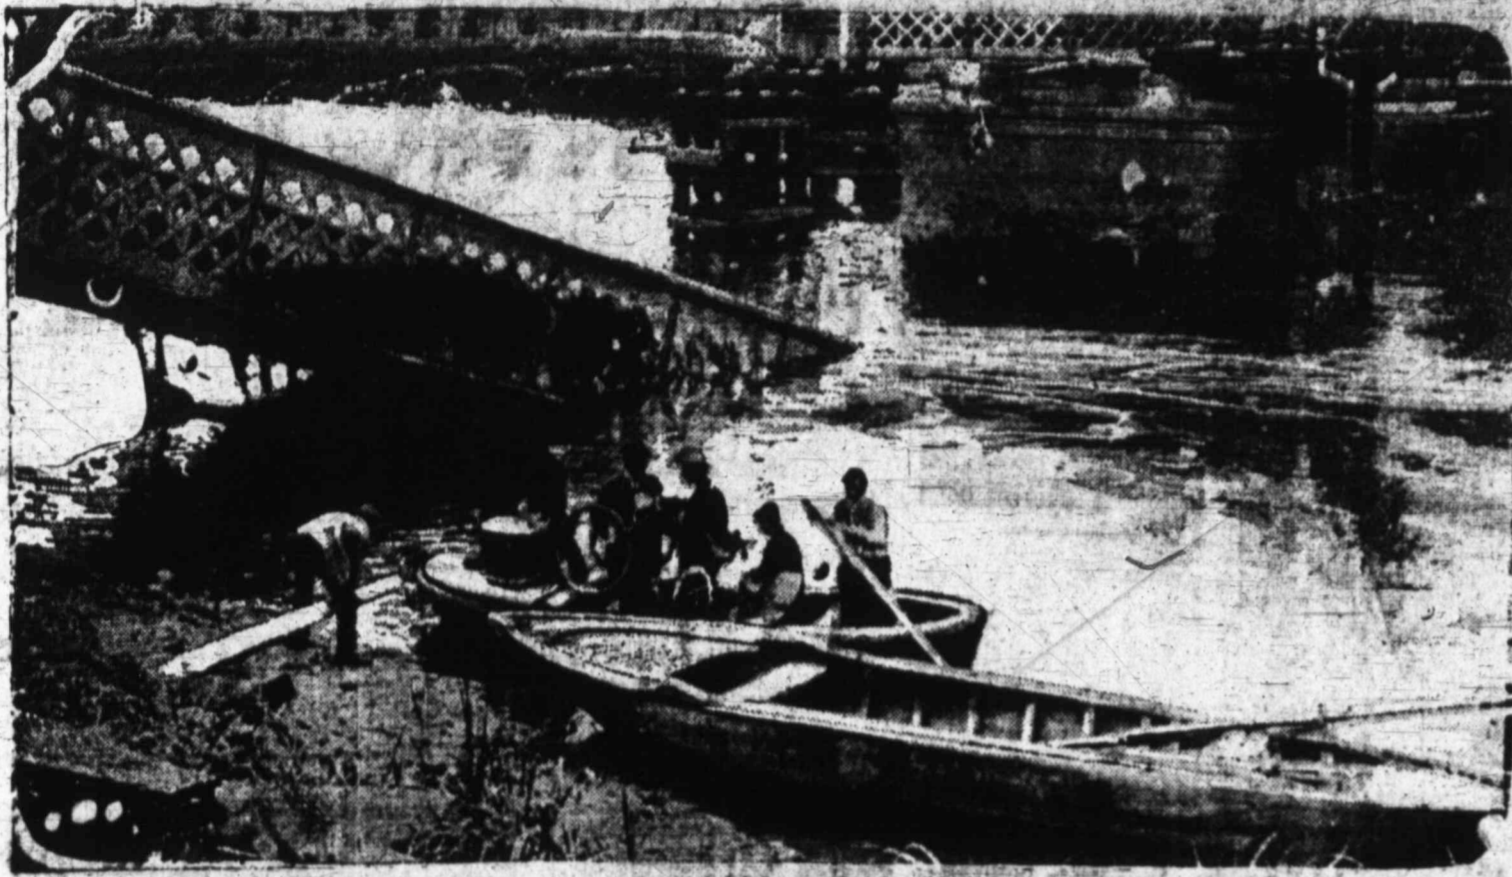

Does marriage change a person? Well, just by way of illustration, there's the case of Zora, who is known as the "bravest woman in the world." Once upon a time Zora was a society woman with no thought of the circus. But when she appears in this city with the Sells-Floto Circus and Buffalo Bill (himself), which is to end its season here Thursday, October 15th, she will come as the trainer of the greatest herd of trained elephants in the world. And even know the habits of an elephant," Zora said recently. "I never even had around one. Then I met the man who was to be my husband. He was an animal trainer and naturally I became interested. And the beasts which drew my attention the most were the elephants. "Day after day I watched them and learned their habits—and discovered two things, that I liked them and that they liked me.

"I believe I will," was my answer, and that day I set to work. "Bit by bit I drew from my husband all he knew concerning animals and their training. I purchased books on animal training and studied them. At last I succeeded in my aim. And that's the reason—" Lucia Zora smiled prettily—"I am the elephant trainer of the Sells-Floto-Buffalo Bill attractions. But the real reason is, of course, because I got married."

Just as an indication that the circus will be larger this year than ever before, the great canvas will cover eleven acres, with a seating capacity for 14,000 persons. The price of admission is the same as ever, 25 cents. And, by the way, there's to be the parade at 10:30 o'clock the morning of the show, with all the nine bands playing, and at the head of the procession America's best beloved citizen, Buffalo Bill himself, leading the

Oil Production In This Territory Has Decreased 10,000 Barrels

A decrease of 10,000 barrels daily in the oil production in the Wichita Falls district since the first of the year and a drop of 40 cents a barrel in the price have reduced the oil revenue more than half, according to H. W. Whitney in his last communication to the Oil and Gas Journal. Mr. Whitney estimates that the combined production of the Electra, Iowa Park, Burk Burnett and Petrolia fields at 19,000 barrels daily. At the first of the year it was close to 30,000 barrels. The price at the first of the year was $1.05 a barrel. The price now is 65 cents a barrel.

quarter of survey 160, deaf and dumb school lands. Burk Burnett Pool. The western edge of the Burk Burnett pool is getting the most attention. Five new locations having been made during the past two weeks. The Will Ramming property is the most active at the present time. Preparations are being made for hooking a well on this tract. During the early part of the present year John Saunders and Shackelford & Jones drilled a test on the Ramming and, which at first showed for a 25 barrel well natural. This well was drilled with a rotary outfit, the six inch casing being set at 1,500 feet and the well finished with a four inch liner. There was some trouble in setting the liner into place, but after several trials it was gotten into position with a packer on it. After the liner was in place the well was pumped spasmodically, making from five to fifteen barrels each time. Shackelford & Jones interests were taken over by Will Ramming, the owner of the land, and he and John Saunders are now having the well prepared for a shot. Danny Donovan is doing the work and expects to get a 50 quart shot off about the first of next week. There are two sands about 100 feet apart and both will be shot. One location west and two locations south of the above mentioned well, the Corsicana Petroleum Company has made a location for their No. 4 Ramming and have the material for the derrick on the grounds. One location east of the Corsicana Petroleum Company's No. 4 Ramming, Conk, Owens & Harle, of Fort Worth, are drilling their No. 4 at 300 feet on the Red River River farm. Andy Urban is working on his No. 3 on the Shultz farm. It will be remembered that Mr. Urban completed this well to the big lime several months ago. During the process of drilling he encountered oil sands at 1,545 feet with four feet of another sand at 1,530 feet to 1,535 feet, which showed for two or three barrels; another one at 1,580 feet with 2 1/2 feet of pay, which would have made about five or six barrels, had it been put to pumping; then got a big dose of water at 1,816 feet, which was followed by two more strata of pay sands before he got to the big lime. He drilled several hundred feet into the big lime, when he struck a big flow of salt water. He was in a five inch hole and for that reason concluded to go no deeper, but to back up and cement off the salt water and save the pay around 1,700 feet. He was unable to shut off the flow and decided to abandon the well being busy on some other well. Since that time the well has stood undisturbed until a day or two ago, when preparations were made to pull the casing. While pulling the casing the well made several nice flows from the 1,545 foot sand. Mr. Urban has cemented the well and is going to test this sand. The Fred Thom property still looks good. The Clint Woods well is still making 130 barrels. The two J. M. Guffey Petroleum Company's wells on the north end of this lease are also holding up well. The Corsicana Petroleum Company has a location and a rig built on the Thom land, between the J. M. Guffey Petroleum Company and Clint Woods leases, on the same farm. Clint Woods has made a new location 500 feet north of No. 2 with the derrick built. The offset to the Woods No. 2, now being drilled by J. W. Dyson & Co., on the Horton & Walker tract, is making headway.

There is considerable wildcatting throughout West Texas. The wildcat territory now most talked of is in Tom Green county, in what is known as the Concho country, near the town of San Angelo. Several wells are to be drilled in this vicinity. A standard string of tools was recently shipped from the Burk Burnett pool to San Angelo and it is understood that a deep test is to be made. There are three locations definitely decided upon that will be drilled in Tom Green county. Coleman County, Texas, is confidently expected to produce some good wells. There has been considerable drilling in that section for the last three or four years, considerable gas and some oil having been developed. The town of Frickham, in the southeast corner of the county, is near the center of activities. This country is very closely leased up, as high as $5 bonus per acre is being asked for land. Five to eight miles from development. Robertson and Sons are still fishing at 2,280 feet on a string of tools on the Babington ranch, which is located in the northeast corner of the B. Rose survey No. 379 and about three miles southwest of the town of Coleman. Shackelford county is commanding some attention. Were it not for the fact that practically all of the territory that looks good at the present time is held by the Producers Oil Company there would be considerable activity in this county, as the results from wells which have been drilled lead one to the belief that an extremely good pool will be found here. The Producers Oil Company is pumping off salt water from a small amount of oil through the three inch casing on the Webb-Rosch land, which is located in block 68 of the University school lands. The top of the sand was struck at 2,100 feet. No. 2 on the Waters ranch is fishing at 2,095 feet with tools in the hole. A rotary outfit has been recently installed and an effort will be made to get the tools out. No. 1 on the Webb-Salun ranch is making progress at 695 feet and is located in survey 828 of the T. E. & L. Ry. lands. In Eastland county the T. P. Mill & Mining Company is shut down at 2,700 feet in No. 6 on fee, which is located in the northwest corner of survey No. 349. The same parties are building the rig for its No. 11 on the same tract and will start operations at an early date. In Comanche county, the Comanche Oil & Gas Company is shut down at 1,000 feet on the Goss ranch which is located in the southeast shallow wells, one at 370 feet and one at 390 feet, drilled in this property and are producing about thirty barrels daily. They show better than any others drilled in this vicinity. The Tenderfoot Oil Company which is drilling No. 1 on the Henson ranch, southwest of the Straus wells, have failed to find the sands struck on section 13. This leads to the belief that the pay is loading towards the south, in a rather narrow strip, toward the well which was drilled on the same ranch by the Producers Oil Company in which they found some oil, and which resulted in a lawsuit between the Producers Oil Company and the land owners, the claim being made that they had covered up a good well. The Producers Oil Company was forced to release claim to the property. Since that time there have been six wells drilled to the north of the Producers Oil Company's test, two of which were dry holes and two are oil wells in the shallow pay. Electra and Petrolia. Electra is still inactive, although it is understood that in the near future business will pick up again. It is commonly rumored that the Producers Oil Company and the Waggoner interests have recently come to an agreement whereby the large acreage ($25,000 acres) originally leased by the Waggoners to the Producers Oil Company will be further developed. The period of time for which the lease was to run without active development is nearing its close and it is understood that the Waggoner people have agreed that if the Producers Oil Company will keep a minimum of ten rigs constantly engaged at some point on this 25,000 acre lease, that the property can be held by the Producers Oil Company. The Producers Oil Company's No. 58 on this tract is the deepest hole in the Electra pool. The well is now about 2,900 feet deep. A new drilling cable has just been received and work is to commence soon to carry this hole deeper. It is the intention of the Producers Oil Company to pierce the big lime in the hope of finding a deeper pay than has yet been encountered in North Texas. No. 72 Waggoner was completed last week at a total depth of 1,892 feet with fourteen feet of pay and is rated as an eighty barrel well. This is the only completion for the week in the Electra pool. The latest completion in the Petrolia pool, in Clay county, is a gasser good for 10,000,000 cubic feet at 1,550 feet to 1,567 feet on the land of the Henrietta Oil & Gas Co. This well is located in the center of a 450 acre tract of land and is about one-quarter of a mile northwest of No. 1, which was also a gas well. The well is not doing its best at present, owing to the fact that water is giving some trouble, but the owners are confident that they can dry the well up. They have made a location for No. 3, one-quarter of a mile west of No. 1 and in the southwest corner of the tract. Stine, Hall et al are going to start a well on the Stine land, 200 feet each way from the southwest corner of block 12.

Iowa Park Pool. It was reported last week that Andy Urban had abandoned his test on the Willard farm, northwest of the town of Iowa Park, at a depth of 2,095 feet in blue shale, but he has since concluded to go deeper. This is rather a peculiar well. Nothing but red rock and cobble stones were encountered until 1,980 feet, at which place a ten foot lime was found under which came a blue shale in which the drilling was suspended. It is the intention of Mr. Urban to go to 3,000 feet unless some unforeseen condition should arise. No other wells are drilling in this vicinity at the present writing and the outlook for any further development in the immediate future is not encouraging. Midway between the Burk Burnett and Electra developments, the Interstate Oil Company (J. E. Head et al) is making preparations for starting another test on the Borchelt land. CHARGE BAVARIAN SOLDIERS HELPED FRENCH ESCAPE. London, Sept. 26.—The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Ostend reports that several Bavarian soldiers have been arrested at Brussels charged with helping a large body of French prisoners to escape from Brussels. A court of inquiry is investigating. The Bavarians are angry at the charges which lack confirmation from other sources.

UPLAND PLOVER ONE OF MOST USEFUL OF BIRDS

Col. Sterrett Discusses Habits of Protected By Migratory Game Law. Killing of upland plover is now pretty generally known to be unlawful until 1918. State Game Commissioner Sterrett recently gave out the following statement concerning this game bird. This particular plover was or ought to have been the subject of the government's particular solicitude. For of all birds I am acquainted with, it is the most valuable to the agricultural interests of our people. It is purely an insectivorous bird. Probably 99 per cent of its food consists of spiders, small bugs, crickets and the like. In the fall, when one hears them piping high in the heavens, they are on their flight to where showers are falling. For when the water runs into the cracks of our low and contracted flat lands and prairies, the insects come out and these birds are there to devour them. Their appetites are not easily satisfied, for they are forced by nature to be the voracious destroyers of the feathered life. In the spring they alight on the shores of our Gulf, tired and emaciated. According to the ornithologists, they have arrived from a long journey. From the great plains of Argentina, in South America, up through Bolivia, up through Peru, up through Ecuador and across the equator, leaving the awful Andes to the east, up through Colombia, up through Panama, to the Caribbean Sea, thence over that sea, leaving Central America to the west or following the narrow land north to the Gulf of Mexico, and for the last leg in the flight across the Gulf, till wearied and worn to a shadow, they alight on our prairies in the southern part of our State. They have blown thousands of miles. They have come from south latitude 36 to north latitude 30. This would make sixty degrees of latitude the bird has covered in his flight, and as a degree is sixty miles, he has come to us from 3,600 miles away. Has he eaten on his journey? This is not settled. His flight has been over mountains and woods and waters. He does not visit hills nor woods nor waters. For his food is not there. He may, however, have found food along his route in the upper part of South America or in Central America. But he did not eat nor drink in his flight across either the Caribbean Sea or the Gulf of Mexico. So there can be no controversy over the character of his appetite when he alights on the prairies and in the fields of Texas, among the raveling bugs and insects which afflict the farmer. Slowly, and fattening on the pests of agriculture every mile through the United States, he proceeds far towards the Arctic circle, if he does not reach it, to make his nest and rear his young. Comes Back Rejuvenated. The rearing of its family is quickly done, for in August is heard his piping again. But he has come back picking up his livelihood from the fields, as usual, and fattening for his long flight again. For three or four weeks, perhaps for a month, he loiters along our Gulf coast, say in a few hundred miles of it, and then, so fat that his feathers are greasy, he ascends to where the air presents but little resistance to the sweep of his wings and then he is away again for Argentina. His winter home, and where he alights thin and emaciated. That is the story of this bird as told by the scientific men. They say that in flight he is superior in speed to anything that flies. They say he injures man less than any bird. They say he was, before the migratory bird law, fast going the route of the wild pigeon and buffalo. And not they, but the intelligent people of this country, say his destruction must be prohibited, and that was one of the reasons for the enactment of these migratory bird law.

LOWE HIGHLANDER HELD BRIDGE AGAINST FOE

With Machine Gun He Kept at Bay German Force But Lost Own Life

By Associated Press.
London, Sept. 26.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail reports a gallant feat by a single Highlander in the fighting at Soissons last week. It appears that 150 Highlanders detailed to hold a bridge over the Aisne were threatened by an overwhelming force of Germans. The Highlander's Maxim gun had ceased fire, all of its crew being killed when the Highlander got up from cover, lifted the Maxim on his back and amid a storm of German bullets carried it at a run across the bridge to the far side. There he put the gun down and as it was still charged, he opened a hail of bullets on the advancing Germans who wavered and then broke and fled to cover, leaving scores of dead behind. At this moment the Highlander himself was killed but he had checked the German advance and as the British reinforcements were arriving, the Germans abandoned the attempt to capture the bridge. Afterward it was found that the Highlander's body had thirty wounds.

COLLECTING EXHIBIT FOR DALLAS STATE FAIR

Specimens from Wichita county's farms and orchards are now being collected for the exhibit which the Chamber of Commerce will send to the Dallas Fair this fall. This work is in charge of J. T. Secretary Thomas of the Chamber of Commerce will go to Dallas this week to conclude arrangements for the exhibit.

PROPOSITION FOR NEW FACTORY WILL BE SUBMITTED
A proposition for another new factory in this city will probably be submitted to the Chamber of Commerce this week. The parties are now in the city and it is said anxious to move here provided proper inducements are offered. Several plants which have been considering changing their locations for some time are finding the present an advantageous time on account of general conditions, and this city is in line for several small industries that will add to the payroll. Efforts are being made to take full advantage of every such opportunity that offers.

100 COTTON RECEIPTS ALREADY BEEN ISSUED

Although the warehouse is not yet completed, about 100 bales are already being stored and receipts issued. The building will probably be completed this week and indications are for substantial patronage. Telephone requests for information have been received from many farmers in this and adjoining counties. One Archer county farmer telephoned that he had a number of bales he wished to store here.

ANTI-TYPHOID SERUM FOR ENGLISH SOLDIERS OPPOSED

London, September 26.—The proposal to inoculate the British soldiers with anti-typhoid serum, as is done in the United States, brings a strong protest from the Medical Times.
"We note with surprise," it says, "that certain members of our profession who have great influence with the authorities at the War office, have been urging the necessity of inoculating soldiers who are ordered to the front with anti-typhoid serum. Personally, we think that the value of anti-typhoid serum has been over estimated; but, in any case, why lay by for two or three days eighty or ninety per cent of troops who should be standing up facing the enemy in the fighting line? It may be that about 50 or 60 per cent of the inoculated men are fit to return to work in about 36 hours, but, even so, why put half of our army out of action for thirty-six hours when the enemy is at our gates? As to the fear of typhoid fever, is not the danger over estimated? In the rural districts of France there is not much to be feared from typhoid infection, apart from inoculation, if proper attention is given to ordinary hygiene and the provision of an absolutely pure and abundant supply of water. It may be that a very much improved kind of serum has been manipulated, and put on the market since the Boer War, but from the reports which reached us at that time, we came to the conclusion that the supposed benefit of anti-typhoid serum was a delusion."

"HIGH" RESERVIST ANSWERS GERMANY'S CALL TO ARMS

By Associated Press.
Berlin, September 26.—The "highest" reservist in Germany answered to the colors was the mountain guide Glatz at Garmisch, in the southern part of Prussia. The order to report for military service was sent to him by mail and reached him at night on the top of the "Zugspitze," the highest peak of the Giant mountains. With alpine stick and hat at midnight he hurried from the mountain top and in five hours was down in the valley boarding a train to Weilheim.

MAKES RHEUMATISM PROMPTLY DISAPPEAR

Chronic, Crippled-up Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses of New Remedy are Taken

It is needless to suffer any longer with rheumatism, and be all crippled up, and bent out of shape with its heart-wrenching pains, when you can surely avoid it.

Rheumatism comes from weak, inactive kidneys, that fail to filter from the blood, the poisonous waste matter and uric acid; and it is useless to rub on liniments or take ordinary remedies to relieve the pain. This only prolongs the misery and can't possibly cure you.

The only way to cure rheumatism, is to remove the cause. The new discovery, Croxone, does this because it neutralizes and dissolves all the poisonous substances and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped-up, inactive kidneys, so they can filter all the poisons from the blood and drive it on and out of the system.

Croxone is the most wonderful medicine ever made for curing chronic rheumatism, kidney troubles, and bladder disorders. You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It matters not how old you are, or how long you have suffered, it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You will find relief from the first few doses, and you will be surprised how quickly all your misery and suffering will end.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle at any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to sell it on a positive money-back guarantee. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache or overcome urinary disorders.

Well appointed examination rooms, completely equipped with modern instruments intelligently used in all eye examinations is our service, where all work is done scientifically, accurately and promptly. We know how. Dr. DuVal, the Eye Specialist. 17 11 c

THE TREY O' HEARTS

"THE TREY O' HEARTS" AT THE MAJESTIC WEDNESDAY

The first release of the great Universal "Trey o' Hearts" serial is in three reels. The first reel of this installment is taken up by the prologue, which gives the motive for all the subsequent exciting, heartrending and romantic incidents. Seneca Trine, middle-aged and powerful in the financial world, had married a girl much younger than himself. This girl was forced into the marriage through circumstances rather than through love she felt toward Trine. In fact, she had loved another, Wellington Law. At the opening of the prologue we find Trine's wife the mother of twin girls, unhappy in thoughts which still haunt her of her old sweetheart, Law. On the other hand, is married to a cool, calculating woman and is the father of a boy.

In the course of time Trine begins to suspect the affection that his wife feels for Law, and with a bitter heart, he undertakes a scheme to ruin his wife's sweetheart. At a ball one evening he secures definite proof of his wife's attitude toward him and his determination to ruin Law crystallizes into definite action. A month later his plans of revenge against the man whom he believes has robbed him of his wife's love are carried to completion; Law is ruined.

Desperate and desiring fresh air, Law drives into the country in his automobile. As fate would have it, he accidentally runs down Trine; discovering the identity of the wounded man, he flees. Trine recovers, but is left a paralytic for life. It is following this that Trine plans to kill Law, and he writes him to this effect. Law is already broken down, mentally and physically, and when he begins to find here and there a trey o' heart card—he takes the easiest way out by killing himself, after sending his boy to Europe.

At the opening of the play proper, Law, Jr., is a prosperous young business man in London. Trine, still in America, has not forgotten his plan of revenge; he awaits the time when Law, Jr., is the happiest to strike him down. Rose, one of the twin daughters, he sends to Europe for the purpose of meeting and securing Law's olive. Rose, however, is unaware of her father's intentions; she has high ideals and a tender heart, while her sister, Judith, is hard and revengeful, the prototype of her father.

Law meets Rose at a watering place, and it is a case of love at first sight with both. It is at this point that Rose receives the first strange letter from her father, hinting at her love, and assuring her that she will never marry Law—that he will die before that. For the first time, finds a trey o' hearts and acquainted of the feud suspects its meaning. Rose, fearful for Law's life, departs, telling her sweetheart that she will send him a rose—a token of love—if she ever needs him.

Through his agents Trine is informed of the complete affair. Through him a rose is sent from America to Law; he hopes to get Law into America where he can better kill him. Law receives the rose and leaves London, intending to go by way of Canada to his sweetheart. Informed of this, Trine sends his daughter, Judith, into Canada to meet Law and bring him back, dead or alive.

OPENING OF LYDIA MARGARET THEATRE MONDAY

Tomorrow the Lydia Margaret will open for the season with Interstate Vaudeville, two acts and three reels of pictures. Monday's pictures consist of a two reel comedy, "A Lucky Deception," featuring Eddie Lyons and Victoria Forde, who will be remembered for their work in "Sophie of the Films." Eddie's friend makes up as a woman and marries Eddie to save him from the wrath of his paternal parent. All goes well until he falls in love then a tangle ensues. But it proves a "lucky deception" for all concerned. "The Divorcee," a Powers comedy completes the picture program.

The Musical Fredericks are putting on an instrumental act which includes selection of many instruments, from drum to saxophone. Playing a cornet without the use of the mouth is a stunt given by the male member of the company, while his companion in the roll of a drummer, pleases the audience on all occasions. They will be seen at the Lydia Margaret Theatre the first half of next week. They cover a "sliding scale" of instruments from cans to cornets in masterly style, interpolating delightful fun and exhibiting a drumming ability on the part of the quaint looking ringletted girl of the act that will arouse the public to enthusiastic applause.

The comedy end of the program will be most ably taken care of by a trio of clever boys at the close of the show. It is the offering of the Smillett Brothers and Moro, that will put over some of their most original eccentricities which have earned for them the name they are now holding in vaudeville. Don't fail to bring the kiddies as it is an offering that provides a barrel of fun for young and old. They will be seen at the Lydia Margaret Theatre and their offering will no doubt prove a recipient of a lot of flattering comment.

ALICE JOYCE FEATURE AT THE GEM MONDAY

Alice Joyce and Tom Moore are featured in a two-part special at the Gem Monday. The story of "A Wolf's Clothing" is as follows: Carter Gordon, a fortune hunter, becomes betrothed to Daisy Brooks, daughter of a millionaire. Frame, Brooks' attorney, calls at the house to deliver some securities to his client.

him. Carter is furious when he sees Daisy and Dick become interested in each other. The fortune-hunter sees Brooks place the securities in the library safe. Hard pressed for cash, Carter attempts to steal the documents, but is discovered in the act by Dick and Brooks. The shock kills Brooks before he can warn his daughter against marrying the scoundrel. Believing that Daisy loves Carter, Dick maintains silence. Later, he warns Carter that he will hold him accountable for Daisy's future happiness.

Realizing how deeply Dick loves Daisy, and knowing that the girl loves his chum, Frame plans to unite the two. Believing Carter is merely marrying the girl for her money, Frame informs him that Brooks has died peacefully. The information reaches Carter on his wedding day. The man promptly prepares to flee. When the bridegroom fails to appear, Dick, who is among the wedding guests, suspects something wrong and goes after Carter. The latter is just about to go abroad. Furious, Dick thrashes him. Daisy is overjoyed when the two appear. Frame, however, realizing the truth, denounces Carter as a fortune hunter just as the marriage ceremony is about to take place. The scoundrel slinks away.

Overcome with shame, Daisy faints in Dick's arms. He carries the girl into the library where she recovers. Then, through the knowledge that Daisy's only reason for not breaking her engagement was her pledged word. Happy in the knowledge that Daisy had loved him all the time, Dick takes her in his arms.

"MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY" AT THE VICTORIA MONDAY

Episode 12 of the "Million Dollar Mystery" ends with the mysterious disappearance of the treasure box from the secret meeting place of the Black Hundred. Police for a time the conspirators leave Florence in peace and she is free to enjoy her love affair with Norton. Olga quickly formulates a plan and turns the clock back in the room back a full half hour. That night in the garden of the Hargreaves house two muffled figures meet at the summer house. The man takes the slender cloaked figure to a waiting taxi and soon after they draw up in front of a building and enter. "If the clock hadn't been slow" she is saying, "I would have seen my father."

"PERILS OF PAULINE" AT THE IMPRESS WEDNESDAY
When Harry Marvin rescues his fiancée, Pauline, from the wicked band of gypsies he thought that their troubles were over. But he reckoned without his host. Someone had sent Pauline a magnificent basket of flowers, and she was about to take a deep inhalation of their odor when Harry, with a cry of alarm, dashed them to the ground. For hidden among the blossoms was a rattlesnake which immediately strikes at Harry. He narrowly averts the strike with a chair and clutches up a blanket, which he throws over the angry reptile. Gathering it up in the folds, he casts it out of the window. Owen, who secretly hatched the devilish scheme, rushes outside with the butler and makes great pretensions of looking for the perpetrator. In the garden and turns her over. The butler discovers a gypsy girl hiding in the garden, and turns her over to Owen, who treacherously allows her to escape.

The next day, reading of an intended horse sale, Pauline advises Harry that he is going to bid for Firefly, a noted racer. She succeeds in buying the horse and is persuaded by Owen to ride the racer in the steeplechase. Owen then plots with the gypsies to drug the horse and cause it to fall and kill Pauline. The gypsy succeeds in drugging the racer, which stumbles and throws Pauline, who miraculously escapes a terrible death.

Meanwhile her absence is noted at the house, a searching party is made up and they start out to scour the dense wood. Has Texas A Law For Inflicting Death Penalty

Austin, Sept. 25.—Has Texas a capital punishment law?
This question is uppermost right now in the minds of many people and the higher courts soon will be asked to pass on it. Senator V. A. Collins of the fourteenth senatorial district has raised the question in a motion for new trial filed with the court of criminal appeals and he has his fellow senators guessing. For, the law which is said to have in effect repealed the capital punishment statute, originated in the Senate.

The Texas legislature passed the indeterminate sentence law in the regular session. It was approved by the governor. It became the law of the land until the court of criminal appeals declared it unconstitutional. This law in addition to providing for the indeterminate sentence, provided for the assessment of capital punishment. The whole law superseded the old statute. After this law was declared unconstitutional the governor submitted the matter of passing an other law, so changed from the first one as to make it constitutional. This law is now on the statute books. It is the law of the land. According to good authorities, this law repeals all previous laws on the same subject. If so it repeals the ancient statute covering capital offenses. The new indeterminate sentence law does not provide for the assessment of capital punishment. If the contention that the old law was repealed proves correct, Texas has no law providing for the assessment of death.

The question will be raised in this way. Senator Collins has motion for new trial pending in the court of criminal appeals. The case was that of a negro, Sam Harris, who was sentenced to death for murder. Senator Collins who had been appointed to defend the man by the Sixtieth judicial court, filed motion for a new trial. The case previously was appealed and the court of criminal appeals affirmed it. The question of the legality of the death sentence was not brought up at this time.

In his motion for a new trial, Senator Collins will attempt to show that the death penalty could not be assessed. He contends that the trial judge committed a fundamental error in submitting capital punishment. Section 1 of the indeterminate law passed by the regular session of the legislature provided for the indeterminate sentence and for the assessment of death penalty by the jury in capital cases. Because of another section, this law was declared unconstitutional. The special session passed a new law. Section 1 of the present law provides for the indeterminate sentence, but the first section nor any part of the whole statute, provides for capital punishment.

Senator Collins and others who are investigating this matter believe that the present repeals all on the same subject that went before.
