TURKISH FORT TAKES SHOT AT CRUISER TENNESSEE

WASHINGTON THINKS MISTAKE WAS MADE

DOES NOT BELIEVE FORT FIRED

STEPS TAKEN BY AMBASSADOR

Orders Tennessee From Turkish Waters—Explanation is Awaited at Washington

By Associated Press.
Chios, Nov. 18.—The American armored cruiser Tennessee arrived today in this port. Yesterday while Captain Benton C. Decker was in the ship's launch, which was flying the American flag on his way to pay customary visits to Turkish officials at Smyrna, three solid shots were fired on the boat by the fort. The American Ambassador Henry Morgenthau, without investigating the incident, it is said, immediately ordered the Tennessee to return to Turkish waters at the request of Turkish officials.

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 18.—The United States cruiser Tennessee, on her launch, probably the latter, was fired on yesterday by the Turkish forts at Smyrna. Captain Benton C. Decker of the cruiser reporting the incident today to the navy department, gave no details of the firing, but added that fears had been felt for the safety of the American consulate.

After awaiting further reports from Captain Decker, Ambassador Morgenthau and Consul General Horton, officials here have two theories. One is that the cruiser may have been sending a guard ashore to protect the consulate and Americans and other foreigners. They draw this from Captain Decker's statement that fears had been felt for the safety of the consulate. The other theory is that Captain Decker had called on Consul General Horton who after returning the call was being taken back to shore by the cruiser's launch which may have been returning after hours of entry which are very strict.

Officials who regard the incident as a misunderstanding of some kind say that had Captain Decker been informed that the Turkish forts were firing on his ship as an act of hostility the big fighting machine would not have steamed away to the harbor of Chios without a further incident.

While there is no question whatever of the right of the Tennessee to protect Americans and their interests in the Mediterranean the question of protection of citizens of England, Russia and France which are at war with the Porte may raise a delicate situation.

SOME UNEASINESS RESULTS.
Captain Decker's report confirming last night's news dispatches, caused uneasiness among officials. Every effort is being made to get complete details. The captain's report does not say whether the Tennessee or her launch had been fired upon. There has been considerable uneasiness about the Tennessee and also about the North Carolina, her sister ship, since they went to Turkish waters to look after Americans.

Heretofore Ambassador Morgenthau's reports concerning the safety of Americans have been reassuring. An undeciphered of uneasiness was created, however, when the Turkish commander at Beirut declared that for every Muslim killed in bombardment an open or fortified fort. Three British or French subjects must be slain. He added he could not take responsibility for uprisings of natives against Christians in such events.

Those Turkish officials who remained at the embassy here were confident that the firing was the act of some local official which would be taken up quickly by the Constantinople government. England and France are asking their commanders in the Mediterranean about the incident.

BRITISH FLEET BOMBARDS POINTS ON BELGIAN COAST

German Military Base is Wrecked and Much Damage Done To Stores and Supplies

By Associated Press.
London, Nov. 18.—A Daily Mail Rotterdam dispatch says:
"The British fleet received information Monday which led them to carry out a vigorous bombardment of Knocke and Zebrugghe on the Belgian coast. The Solway Company's works on the Bruges ship canal, used as a base for German military trains, was wrecked. Much damage was done to the German stores and supplies."

Bayonet Charge by Zouaves in Vicinity of Dixchoote Mentioned as Brilliant Feat

By Associated Press.
Paris, Nov. 18.—The French official statement given today in Paris says that yesterday saw numerous artillery duels and some isolated infantry attacks all of which were repulsed. The text of the communication follows:
"The day of yesterday November 17 passed much as did the day before. There were numerous artillery exchanges and some isolated attacks on the part of the enemy's infantry, all of which were repulsed. From the North Sea to the Lys the front was subjected to a fairly active bombardment, particularly at Nieport and to the east and to the south of Ypres. Near Dixchoote the Zouaves charged with the bayonet and brilliantly took possession of a forest which had been disputed between the enemy and ourselves for three days.

"To the south of Ypres an offensive movement on the part of the enemy's infantry was repulsed by our troops. The English army also maintains its front. From Arras to the Oise there is nothing new to report. In the region of Craonne, our artillery on several occasions secured the advantage over the batteries of the enemy. The bombardment of Rheims has continued.

From Rheims to the Argonne there is nothing new to report. In the region of St. Mihiel, in spite of heavy attacks by the Germans, we have taken in our possession the western part of the village of Chauvignotte. In Alsace the reserve battalions sent into the action of St. Marie-aux-Mines have had to be taken out for the reason that they lost one-half their effective strength."

By Associated Press.

GALVESTON FIRE LOSS WILL REACH $2,000,000

Export Business in Wheat Will be Handled Through Two Other
Elevators For Present

By Associated Press.
Galveston, Texas, Nov. 18.—Export wheat business which had been booked through the Southern Pacific elevator destroyed by fire yesterday, will be handled through the two public elevators at this port, according to an announcement given today. An inquiry was begun today to determine if possible the cause of yesterday's conflagration. The loss is estimated at approximately $2,000,000. The amount of salvage cannot even be estimated for several days. E. Zintraff and J. Roberts of Dallas, insurance adjusters are here in connection with the settlement.

BELGIANS NOW OCCUPY GERMAN QUARTER IN LONDON

By Associated Press.
London, Nov. 18.—By a strange stroke of fortune, says the Pall Mall Gazette, a large number of the Belgian refugees who have arrived in London are finding accommodation in a district which, before the outbreak of hostilities, formed one of the chief German colonies in the Metropolitan Forest Hill and Sydenham. Many of the visitors are well to do, and are renting good sized houses in the neighborhood while the less fortunate are being quartered upon sympathizers. Although the German male residents have gone back to Germany, there are still a number of their women folk around Forest Hill.

DEATH OF TWO GERMAN GENERALS IS REPORTED

By Associated Press.
Berlin, Nov. 18.—German casualty lists just issued record the death of two generals and the wounding of another. General Alfred Von Vriesen was killed November 12; General Von Lepel is the other commanding officer reported dead. The capital of the Krupp Company is to be increased from 75,000,000 to 250,000,000 marks.

GERMANY REPORTS NEW POLAND BATTLE

COMMUNICATION CLAIMS GENERAL
SUCCESS AGAINST RUSSIANS

FLANDERS FIGHT UNCHANGED

Situation in West Declared to be the Same in Spite of Attacks at Many Points

By Associated Press.
Berlin, Nov. 18.—An official communication issued today by the German general staff says:
"Fighting in west Flanders continues and the situation on the whole remains unchanged. The enemy's attacks on the forest of Argonne continue. French sorties to the south of Verdun were repulsed. An attack was made against our forces which had moved forward on the western bank of the Meuse near St. Mihiel; although it was originally successful for the enemy it broke down completely later on. Our attacks to the southeast of Crey compelled the French to surrender some of their positions. Chantillon was stormed and taken by our troops."

"New battles have developed in Poland in the region north of Lodz but no decision yet has been reached. To the southeast of Soldau in east Prussia, the enemy has been forced to retire in the direction of Miawa. On the extreme western wing, a strong Russian cavalry force which we defeated on November 16 and 17 has been driven back through Tikhallen."

Another official war bulletin given out in Berlin today sets forth that the operations on the eastern front are progressing favorably. The Germans apparently are using their victory at Wloclawek to very great advantage.

The Russian armies, defeated near Lijno, are today "probably" in the vicinity of Plock and the forces defeated near Wloclawek are now near Kuto and Leshytza. For the continuation of operations, the bulletin goes on to say it will be of the greatest importance for the German troops from the region of Sulda to make further progress against the right wing of the main Russian army.

If the Russians intend to retire behind the Vistula such a retreat considering the extremely bad condition of the roads would be most difficult, consequently the Russians probably prefer to make a definite stand when the German and Austrian forces attack.

MAJOR GENERAL WOTHERSPOON RECOMMENDS FORCE OF

Says Would be Impossible to Defend Panama or Colonias Under Present Conditions

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 18.—Declaring it would be impossible to defend the Panama Canal and American territorial possessions against attacks with present or proposed garrisons unless they be reinforced rapidly, Major General Witherspoon, retired chief of staff, in his report today, recommended the increase of the regular army to a strength of 205,000 enlisted men.

He proposed that this force be augmented through a system of reserves until there was created a mobile strength of 500,000 first line troops equipped for six months' campaign.

STRAY MEXICAN BULLET WOUNDS AMERICAN AT NACO

By Associated Press.
Naco, Ariz., Nov. 18.—R. H. Reynolds, United States customs inspector, was shot through the left leg by a stray bullet when the Maytorena forces made a general attack upon the Carranza garrison of Naco, Sonora Reynolds was in a hotel on the American side of the line. The bone of the leg was shattered. The artillery of the attackers was not well directed and shrapnel burst frequently over the bomb proofs of the American troops guarding the border.

COMMITTEE WILL HANDLE COTTON FUND

LOCAL AID WILL BE SOUGHT IN DISTRIBUTION OF $135,
000,000 LOAN

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD BUSY

Committees Will Be Named in All
Cotton Producing States To Advise
As to Distribution

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 18.—With the $135,000,000 cotton loan fund fully subscribed steps were taken today to clear the way for the actual transfer of the money to southern cotton producers. The federal reserve board acting as a central committee which has general supervision of the fund, carried out the provisions of the understanding with subscribing banks by naming W. P. G. Harding and Paul M. Warburg of the board, A. H. Wiggin and James S. Alexander of New York, James H. Morgan of Chicago, Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, Levi L. Rue of Philadelphia and William A. Gaston of Boston a "cotton loan committee" which shall actively administer the fund.

The first meeting will be held in New York probably on Friday and plans laid for carrying out its purposes. Its first task will be the appointment of committees in each of the cotton producing states which will act there. The state committee in turn will select local committees in sufficient number to safeguard the workings of the plan through familiarity with local conditions and knowledge of applicants for loans.

The committee will be chosen as quickly as possible, but with care since loans must be approved by state committees before coming to the attention of the cotton loan committee, the final arbiter. Although no definite decision has been reached, it is probable the officers of the cotton loan committee will be in New York.

WILL TEST INTRASTATE LIQUOR SHIPMENTS SOON

Case Under Allision Law to Come
Up Shortly in Fort Worth
Court

By Associated Press.
Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 18.—A test of intrastate liquor shipments will be made by Perry Coleman of Fort Worth, it was announced here today by his attorney, former Senator W. A. Hangar. Already a test case of interstate shipments under the Allision law has resulted in the higher courts dealing the law a severe blow; now it is planned to take up the intrastate shipments. The fight will begin in the district court here and will be carried to the court of criminal appeals.

ENGLAND "DISAPPOINTED" AT FAILURE OF ZEPPELINS

People Seem Almost Sorry That Threatened Invasion Has Not Materialized

By Associated Press.
Manchester, Eng., Nov. 18.—Speculating on the possibility of a Zeppelin raid on London, the Manchester Guardian says there is a noticeable feeling of disappointment in England over the non-appearance of these airships. While the Zeppelin would not be really welcome, there were those at home so lingering for excitement that as a whole England seemed ready to take the risk.

"It was coldly calculated that even if fifty Zeppelins were sent over their concentrated devastation could not cover more than six acres—or if they dropped all their bombs on the 'square mile' that makes up the city of London proper they could kill something under one in a hundred of the people who happened to be there.

"Over the whole of London, taking the Metropolitan Police area, the chances of escaping would be about 70,000 to one." Over what may be described as the central area of London, within which a Zeppelin might be expected to operate, the chances of escape would be about 1,500 to one.

"Personally, I think it would be a good job if the Zeppelins did come. Even if they did drop a few bombs, the stimulus to recruiting would be worth what little was done," says Frank Hedges Butler, who is founder of the Royal Aero Club.

SAYS GERMANS LOSE 2,700 IN FIGHTING AT DIXMUDE

By Associated Press.
London, Nov. 18.—Reuter's correspondent at Amsterdam sends the following:
"According to the Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent the Germans occupying Dixmude in fresh fighting have lost 2,700 men."

OFFENSIVE RESUMED BY GERMANS ON EAST FRONT

Turn Suddenly On Pursuers And Now Again Threaten Warsaw—
Russia Claims Invasion Unchecked

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 18.—No change in the operations in Russian Poland has been more startling than the sudden resumption of the offensive on the part of the Germans, a movement by which the heart of the Russians has been attacked and Warsaw again threatened. As usual there are conflicting reports. Petrograd does not deny that the Germans have resumed the offensive, but dispatches from the Russian capital declare that such a movement will not cause the slightest diversion of the Russian invasion of East Prussia, which is proceeding slowly, but steadily.

Meanwhile Berlin claims a victory near Litno, imperilling the Russian forces, which according to German reports must take a stand before crossing the Vistula river as a retirement behind that stream would be too difficult. Berlin reports that the Russians are near Kutno, but Vienna claims a victory for her allies at this victory.

The giving out by the admiralty of the official report of the capture of the British cruiser Glasgow in the naval engagement November 1 off the coast of Chile settles beyond question the fate of the cruisers Good Hope and Monmouth, but offers no solution to the mystery of the battleship Canopus. According to the Glasgow report, Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock, commander of the British squadron signalled the Canopus that he was about to engage the enemy. This is the only mention in connection with this engagement of this British battleship.

EXTREMELY VIOLENT BATTLES WAGED FOR FOUR DAYS AROUND SOLDAU

By Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 18.—The Havas dispatch from Petrograd is as follows:
"A terrific battle of unexampled violence has been proceeding for four days around Soldau. The cannonading has been maintained night and day. The Russians are endeavoring, at any cost, to avenge their check at Soldau and are throwing themselves at the Germans with indescribable fury. They have carried position after position by assault in spite of the infernal fire of the Germans. In spite of torrential rains which have turned the ground into a quagmire the Russians are advancing toward the interior of Germany."

CARRANZA REPUDIATES HIS PROMISE TO RETIRE

In Spite Of Renewed Efforts For Peace, Both Sides Make
Warlike Movements

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 18.—General Carranza has repudiated the telegram sent for him by Gen. Pablo Gonzalez to General Gutierrez in which the first chief was reported as saying he would retire. This was announced today in an official dispatch from American Consul Silliman. Carranza declared he had been misunderstood. In the telegram which Gonzalez sent on behalf of Carranza the first chief was described as ready to resign if both he and Villa relinquished their commands. No mention was made of the man to whom the executive power was to be delivered and Carranza now declares that he never intended to resign in favor of Gutierrez and will not deliver his place to any other man whom he would trust to carry out conditions that he imposes.

While American Consul Silliman reported that efforts were being made to patch up the difficulties through intermediaries, other official advice said movements were under way and that a battle was imminent north of Mexico City where the Villa troops are now advancing southward.

$100 IS RAISED FOR GIRLS' INSTITUTION

MASS MEETING IS HELD IN INTEREST OF PROPOSED TRAINING SCHOOL

SEVERAL SPEAKERS ARE HEARD

Effort Will Be Made To Increase This City's Contribution To Total of $500

From Monday's Daily. As a climax to the special week devoted to raising funds for the Girls Training School, a mass meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the First Christian Church. While the attendance was not what was desired, still there was no lack of interest, the program carried out was excellent, and the appeal made at the close of the meeting met with a gratifying response.

That Wichita Falls should contribute no less than five hundred dollars as her share in this work was the opinion of those present and a subscription of nearly one hundred dollars was taken up at the meeting. A committee was appointed to go before the Commissioners Court and ask for an appropriation from them, this contribution to be outside of the five hundred dollars to be raised by popular subscription.

Each club woman in the city has been solicited by a chairman in each club for one dollar or more, as she can contribute, and something like three hundred dollars will be collected in this way. By benefits at the motion picture theatres and in various other ways more money will be raised.

Several Speakers Heard. Yesterday afternoon's program was especially fitted to the occasion. "Where is My Wandering Girl Tonight?" sung by a quartette composed of Mrs. Thompson, Miss Agnew, Mr. Strange and Mr. Bradley; "Whom have you Helped Today?" solo by Mr. Bradley, and "Throw out the Life Line" by Mrs. Thompson and congregation were the musical numbers of the program.

Originated in Wichita Falls. Mayor Britain, Judge Martin, R. E. Huff and E. F. Walters were the speakers of the afternoon. Mayor Britain spoke from his own experience as mayor of the crying need of some institution for the girls and told of cases of girls in the city and district court, not offenders to a great degree, but nevertheless offenders. For these girls the penitentiary is the only place open, or the county jails, and in many cases the offenses did not merit this punishment. On leaving the court the majority took the only way open to them and left all hope behind, he said.

TWO STORES ARE DAMAGED BY FIRE EARLY SUNDAY

The stocks of both Marie's feed store and W. L. Elliott's candy kitchen adjoining were almost completely ruined in the fire early Sunday morning. Only a wooden partition separated the two stores and this was burned as well as most of the roof covering both. Smoke and water ruined the stocks in both places. The firemen were unable to locate the flames until they had driven the smoke out and this was difficult work as the flames had reached a quantity of feed stored at the rear of the feed store. A just explosion after the firemen had entered the building knocked them to their knees and caused them to lose control of the hose. The suffocating smoke and the "wild" heat caused them to beat a retreat. All fortunately reached the street.

The fire is believed to have been caused by defective wiring. Mr. Dillard had left money in his cash register. When he was summoned and reached the scene he went into his store to get this money and when he touched his cash register, he received a shock that almost knocked him down showing that the current had been short circuited in some manner. The building is owned by John Hager of this city and Fernaux and Wilson of Dallas. It is probable that it will be replaced by a better structure. Marie's feed store opened for business this morning in McCarty's old stand on Indiana avenue. Another alarm was turned in from the same place Sunday afternoon: the smoldering flames causing some one to send for the department.

DESIRE FOR LONG LIFE IS DISCUSSED

IS SUBJECT OF SERMON AT M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY EVENING

MEN WHOSE WORKS SURVIVES

Many Whose Labor Was Little Known at Time Recognized After Their Deaths

From Monday's Daily. How a man's works and influence survive long after the man's physical existence comes to an end and how long life, in this sense may be attained, were interestingly set forth Sunday evening at the First M. E. Church by Rev. C. C. Smith, the pastor. The subject was "The Secret of a Long Life" and the text was from Hebrew 11:27, "He endured as seeing him who is invisible." The pastor said in part: "Whether or not we consider this a good world it is very obvious that the great majority of us want to stay here just as long as we can. As for the few who take matters into their own hands and seek release from this life, we who prefer to stay here, we must question their sanity. So that the verdict of humanity is practically unanimous in favor of the proposition that this world is a good world. We covet long life. We may not know just why. Sometimes we say that God gave us the instinct of life. Doubtless this is so. At any rate we want to live now and religion sets within us a profound desire to live forever. We have ceased hunting for the fountain of perpetual youth, but we have not ceased aspiring to live always. There is a life which is continuous, which what we call death only changes as to manifestation but does not effect as to reality. This life is built around the principle of the text, 'He endured as seeing him who is invisible.'"

"The present day stresses very much the matter of physical well being. Scientific men have pointed out much weakness in our modern ways of living and have earnestly set about to correct some conditions. Very naturally faddists have sprung up on the crest of this wave of reform and excesses are not uncommon. Some have made it into a quasi-religion until people are led to give more attention to physical pain than to spiritual problems. Physical comfort and well being becomes the god before which we bow down and worship. We are in danger of getting our bodies so close to us that they will blind our vision for larger things. Perpetual youth is not for the body and never was. Eternal life is for the soul and has been from eternity. What we need to emphasize supremely is the acquisition of that principle by which Abel of old, 'He being dead yet speaketh.' It is laudable because in harmony with divinely implanted instincts for one to desire to live as long as possible here on this earth. It is worthy of any of us to desire to live here in the world and so continue to live after we have laid down our physical bodies. It becomes us to desire very earnestly eternal life and to fix on the relative values which the phases of this life have as compared to life eternal.

Early Recognition of Worth. "It is very seldom that the worth of a good person is known until the place which he has filled is empty. It is seldom that a good father or mother is appreciated until there is a vacancy in the home. The value of a strong man to the community is felt most usually after he has passed the highest esteem he was compelled to know what he had done to further the thought of mankind. Plato lived to be eighty years but died before his power of intellect was fully recognized. The reformers of the middle ages all died before their work bore its choicest fruit. Moses, the man of ancient history and the peer of any man in any age was called home however. They still live in influences which they set going and will continue to live so long as humanity endures on the earth.

"It is well for us to search for and if possible find out the secret of the lives of great men. Only a few can become world famous but the secret of their successful lives will make our own successful also within their necessary limits and will help us to do better work than otherwise. We may not attain nobility in the sight of men but we may attain nobility in the sight of God. The important thing is to attain the spirit of nobility for by the spirit within us God measures us.

"All noble living is inspired by invisible leadership. The painter and the poet are moved by the powers of leadership other than that which arises within. The great paintings and poems seem actually to have been inspired of God. The Master seems to have been back of the pen and the brush. The great inventors have a fashion of appearing just at the right time in civilization. When some imperative need arises some how the man is at hand with the apparatus to meet the need. It is presuming too much to suggest that God times the man and the need? The reformer comes when a crisis is on. We are inclined to think that God brings the man for the hour. And this will be true down through all the ranks of life. It may be somewhat more noticeable in the prominent positions but the common place man whose name never gets into history seems often to have been fitted into his niche as verily as the great man. One would need to attack the very foundations of history to overthrow the evidence of divine leadership in the life of Moses, and the fact that this great leader's life has been projected down through the ages with ever increasing volume is due to the fact that he followed the invisible leader. Christ himself lives today in the thought of men for the same reason. He endured as seeing him who is invisible. The Christ life considered historically is the most perfect illustration of this principle which we can find.

Christ's Place in History. "When he was crucified He was accorded only a few words by the historian Josephus and a half century later He was given brief mention by a number of historians. Pliny speaks definitely of the Christians, on the whole in a complimentary way which shows the meager place which He had in history as late as 100 A. D. But today He is written in and through everything that becomes of permanent record and history is being reconstructed with Christ as the center. Aside from the divine life within Him He lives today in the thoughts and works of men as never before. So great is the volume of His life that were it taken out of civilization it would wreck the whole fabric. We might forget Moses and his work would go unremembered, we might forget Christ, and if by some means we should efface Him Christianity would die with Him. But within His limits man also may project himself upon the future. John Wesley ordered this truth inscribed over the Wesley tomb in the epitaph which he formulated, 'God buried his workmen but carries on his work.' Forget Moses, Elijah, Isaiah, Peter, Paul, Luther, Wesley and Christianity goes right on. The invisible leader of these and other great men has marvelously extended their influence. We unconsciously share in the power of these great men even in this day. It is almost improper to say that they lived so many years. They still live in the hearts of millions of people. They found the secret of long life. They found the real fountain of youth. Their lives spring up ever new in the influences which they have sent down through the ages.

Dreams Seldom Realized. "The dreams of our lives are seldom realized in full. The poet's poem is not all that he longed for. The painter's picture does not reveal all that inspired him. But it is better to dream great things and fall short of doing them than to have no vision and aim. 'What I long to be, and what I long to do, I will be, and what I will be, I will do.' What we long to be shows very well what we may be and it is indeed a comfort to know what may become if we will. Our invisible leader is beckoning us on ever to better things. We will live longest and best if we follow Him. He will so live that when our bodies are laid away the life will go marching on. We may find perpetual youth by projecting ourselves down through the future.

GAME WITH AMARILLO TEAM PLANNED BY HIGH SCHOOL

Vanhandle Eleven is Victorious Over Vernon Saturday and Locals Want Game

From Monday's Daily. Tentative plans are under way for a football game between the Wichita Falls and Amarillo high school teams in the near future following Amarillo's victory over the Vernon team last Saturday by the score of seven to three. Up to that time Vernon was Wichita Falls' most formidable rival for the Northwest Texas honors, but Amarillo's victory puts the Panhandle elite in the running. Amarillo is to play North Fort Worth this afternoon in the Northwest Texas championship and an effort will be made to have Wichita Falls and Amarillo matched before that time. Wichita Falls defeated Vernon more decisively than Amarillo did although the game was forfeited.

It will be difficult to arrange a game with Amarillo, especially as Wichita Falls has a game with Bowie scheduled for next Saturday, but it is likely that an effort will be made to do so.

AGED WOMAN, ALMOST BLIND FAILS TO MEET SON HERE

Expecting to meet her son, D. E. Robertson, here, an aged and almost totally blind woman arrived from Stephenville yesterday practically penniless. The son whom she had expected to meet had evidently not received the letter telling of her coming and he could not be located. Captain Robb of the Salvation Army saw that she was cared for last night and this afternoon sent her back to Stephenville, where she will remain until her son, who is believed to be in this section, is located.

FABRICS OF THE PAST THE FABRICS OF TODAY

New York, Nov. 14.—There are far less new fabrics upon the market this season than last. The variety, however, does not seem to be lessened, for it merely means that instead of the new we have gone back to many of the fabrics which have been considered passe for many seasons. Velour de laines and ratine are recent novelties which have held their own. This year they have become thicker and the pile of the velour de laines is heavier, making it seem almost plush like.

Broadcloth is another fabric that has a renewed vogue this year, and many suits and costumes are to be chifon voiles with a six or eight inch satin stripe in self color woven on the edge. Tunics and flounces are made with this stripe on the edge and with the plain voile for the rest of the frock. These voiles come in all the light shades so popular for evening wear, soft blues, shell pinks, varying shades of green and in a yellow that so closely resembles gold that it hardly seems possible that it is not a metal cloth.

The costumes at present demand many accessories in the way of neck wear, and the present tendency in these dainty lace and organza affairs is toward the cape effects. Fichu effects are also to be seen and are an attractive addition to a dark frock of serge, gabardine or satin. On the popular dark blue frocks are to be seen cuffs and collars in yellow crepe de eoru linen. One set of eoru linen had turndown cuffs and standing collar hemstitched in an inch wide hem. Another set was of white linen with yellow stripes about a quarter of an inch apart. The collar was high and did not meet in the front, while the turndown cuffs were wide and pointed. The edges of collar and cuffs were bound with yellow to match the stripe in the linen.

There has been a good deal of talk about the advent of low heeled shoes, but except for the walking shoes with rubber soles and spring, or very low heels they have not appeared. Short-vaupped shoes are again appearing with high French or Vienna heels. The Vienna heel is quite the newest heel and is neither French, Cuban nor Mexican. It is high, narrow and straight and looks plucked. A new shoe model which is having a vogue among the people who allow themselves the luxury of changing with every whim of the merry jestress Dame Fashion, is square toed and with high French heels. This shoe is fashioned after French shoes. For the indoor shoe are those with a white kid vamp and black patent seen of it. The chiffon broadcloth, which is light weight in comparison with the other broadcloth, is used extensively for one piece dresses. Black, blue, green, beige and mauve are colors which are especially attractive in broadcloth. Faille, once called Ottoman and bengaline, is very popular in silk or wool. It has a supple and a firmness which make it especially suited to the one piece frock. The clothes of the season are what determine the fabrics and this year the one piece frocks and separate coats cause fabrics supple and substantial to be the mode.

There is serge, the standby of decades, gabardine and fabrics which have a long haired silky finish called kitten's ear, peau de souris (mouse skin), and zibeline. Velvet, imitation mink and Persian lamb cloth complete a wide variety of the smart fabrics for the daylight hours. The jumper effect in dresses which is so popular at the present time adds another happy way of combining fabrics and colors. In faille silk comes a long tunic frock with a pleated lower skirt and a jumper basque waist. The sleeves and undergarments of this waist are of soft silk with a Paisley design. A close fitting little hat with three perky feathers in the front gives extra dash to the costume.

Plaids in gray and festive colors are always a bright note in the seasons when they are popular. In greens and blues with a touch of red or yellow they may be used to advantage for the winter frock, primarily for home wear, but which may fit many wants under a stylish separate coat. The model illustrated is in dark green with a blue and black stripe checked out with narrow lines of red. The bodice is in tanque effect and the skirt has a long tunic which dips to the edge of the lower skirt in front and graduates higher in the back. The lower skirt and crushed girdle are of black. The flaring collar and rounding cuffs are of doubled white organza.

Brocades which embody in themselves all the sumptuousness of a century ago are the fabrics used for evening gowns. On heavy silk, this voile, chiffon or velvet, gold and silver threads are woven into the brocade designs. There are also velvet brocaded voiles and chiffons with a bit of gold or silver in or outlining the design. These brocades are not stiff as of old, but soft and pliable, draping most artistically.

Black satin, faille and velvet hold a strong place among evening gowns. These are lightened by the use of ribbon sashes in vivid shades, as well as by the wonderful Roman striped ribbons and silks which are very popular. Some of the newest of these show the autumn note in their combinations of russet brown, green and dull red with a stripe of black. This new color scheme is also to be seen in the new infatuation, "Taffeta," by the way, is used a great deal in combination with serge and gabardine. For the younger generation come chiffon voiles with a six or eight inch satin stripe in self color woven on the edge. Tunics and flounces are made with this stripe on the edge and with the plain voile for the rest of the frock. These voiles come in all the light shades so popular for evening wear, soft blues, shell pinks, varying shades of green and in a yellow that so closely resembles gold that it hardly seems possible that it is not a metal cloth.

The costumes at present demand many accessories in the way of neck wear, and the present tendency in these dainty lace and organza affairs is toward the cape effects. Fichu effects are also to be seen and are an attractive addition to a dark frock of serge, gabardine or satin. On the popular dark blue frocks are to be seen cuffs and collars in yellow crepe de eoru linen. One set of eoru linen had turndown cuffs and standing collar hemstitched in an inch wide hem. Another set was of white linen with yellow stripes about a quarter of an inch apart. The collar was high and did not meet in the front, while the turndown cuffs were wide and pointed. The edges of collar and cuffs were bound with yellow to match the stripe in the linen.

There has been a good deal of talk about the advent of low heeled shoes, but except for the walking shoes with rubber soles and spring, or very low heels they have not appeared. Short-vaupped shoes are again appearing with high French or Vienna heels. The Vienna heel is quite the newest heel and is neither French, Cuban nor Mexican. It is high, narrow and straight and looks plucked. A new shoe model which is having a vogue among the people who allow themselves the luxury of changing with every whim of the merry jestress Dame Fashion, is square toed and with high French heels. This shoe is fashioned after French shoes. For the indoor shoe are those with a white kid vamp and black patent seen of it. The chiffon broadcloth, which is light weight in comparison with the other broadcloth, is used extensively for one piece dresses. Black, blue, green, beige and mauve are colors which are especially attractive in broadcloth. Faille, once called Ottoman and bengaline, is very popular in silk or wool. It has a supple and a firmness which make it especially suited to the one piece frock. The clothes of the season are what determine the fabrics and this year the one piece frocks and separate coats cause fabrics supple and substantial to be the mode.

There is serge, the standby of decades, gabardine and fabrics which have a long haired silky finish called kitten's ear, peau de souris (mouse skin), and zibeline. Velvet, imitation mink and Persian lamb cloth complete a wide variety of the smart fabrics for the daylight hours. The jumper effect in dresses which is so popular at the present time adds another happy way of combining fabrics and colors. In faille silk comes a long tunic frock with a pleated lower skirt and a jumper basque waist. The sleeves and undergarments of this waist are of soft silk with a Paisley design. A close fitting little hat with three perky feathers in the front gives extra dash to the costume.

Plaids in gray and festive colors are always a bright note in the seasons when they are popular. In greens and blues with a touch of red or yellow they may be used to advantage for the winter frock, primarily for home wear, but which may fit many wants under a stylish separate coat. The model illustrated is in dark green with a blue and black stripe checked out with narrow lines of red. The bodice is in tanque effect and the skirt has a long tunic which dips to the edge of the lower skirt in front and graduates higher in the back. The lower skirt and crushed girdle are of black. leather back portions and strappings. A single black and white ornament is placed in the front. The bronze shoes, made on a pointed last and with high French heels are conservative and yet when used in the right way an air of careful consideration to a costume.

LONDON ALARMED BY GERMAN BUILDING

BIG CONCRETE PRINTING PLANT HAS POSITION OF MUCH STRATEGIC VALUE

ULTERIOR MOTIVE IS DENIED

Discovery, However, Increases Public's Fear That Hostile Spies Have Been Busy

By Associated Press. London, Nov. 14.—London has been greatly excited by the report that a German owned music-printing plant in Willesden, a prominent manufacturing suburb of London, has an immense building where heavy concrete foundations, floors and roof are well adapted to the use of siege guns. Twenty of the German employees of the firm were taken into custody and military experts are studying the building carefully. Meantime the excited public is fully convinced that the plant was designed to a case as a German base for attack upon London proper. The building unquestionably occupies a strategic position. It stands high with a clear range to Crystal Palace, Willesden Junction, where two main lines entering London center, is but a short distance from the plant.

Designed By Englishmen. However, the English architects who designed the building and supervised its construction eight years ago say it is similar to many other printing plants and has no heavier foundations and floors than are required where heavy machinery is to be installed. The building is about two hundred feet square on the outside and is constructed about a court sixty feet square. It is but one story and the foundations are of concrete and six feet thick. The English manager of the concern says this unusually thick foundation was laid as the firm expected to add additional stories to the plant when business expanded. A concrete roof covers most of the building.

Discovery by the allies that Germany has prepared concrete bases for its howitzers surreptitiously in many places in Belgium and France has made all Englishmen suspicious of possible German preparations in England.

is Strategically Situated. In discussing the Willesden factory, the Sunday Times says: "In a situation which commands an almost unobstructed view of that great tract of London which lies between Willesden and the Crystal Palace is discovered a building whose roof, floor and foundations are constructed of exceptionally thick concrete and might apparently be employed as the emplacement of a heavy gun. In fact, one of these seventeen inch howitzers for which such careful arrangements were found to have been made around Antwerp and Namur. We are very far from suggesting that the premises at Willesden were deliberately arranged. Considering the German workmen, it is at least probable that in the event of an attack upon London the attention of the German commanders would have been called to that convenient concrete floor, even if they had not known of it before their arrival.

Secret Wireless Outfits. "It is highly probable that there do exist such places around London and in the neighborhood of our great fortress positions which have been carefully prepared for siege guns and the chief value, to our mind, of the Willesden discovery is that it may be expected to stimulate authorities to search for them. "The suspicion that many wireless equipments are operating in London was justified by the discovery of such a plant in the home of a German professor. As wireless apparatus can be operated for so short a distance as from London to the European coast without an outside tower, the discovery of illicit wireless stations is very difficult. The Times advocates that the war office issue a statement stipulating that persons found sheltering such apparatus will be treated as spies and handed over to military power."

FAKE FORT DRAWS ATTACK BY GERMANS

TOWN OF PONT-A-MOUSSON WITHNESSES SEVERE FIGHTING EARLY IN WAR

TREE TRUNKS LOOK LIKE GUNS

Deceive Germans, Who Lose Heavily In Their Efforts To Capture The Town

By Associated Press. Pont-a-Mousson, Nov. 14.—Astride the last three inch gun of a column of artillery, flanked on either side by a Russian soldier with fixed bayonet. Monsieur Bertrand, a round shouldered, white haired veteran of the war of 1870 and deputy mayor of Pont-a-Mousson was carried from the city as chief hostage of the Germans, in the procession which marked the end of the occupation by three Bavarian regiments. Pont-a-Mousson is a quiet town of twelve thousand inhabitants, the possession of which was valuable to the Germans only because of its bridge which furnishes a convenient crossing of the Moselle on the road from Metz to Toul. It was attacked early in the war, partly for this reason and partly as the result of the defective vision of captive balloon observers, who mistook for fortifications the antique ruins of a castle at the village of Mousson on a hill to the east of the bridge. Bombs Kill Civilians. The first bombardment of the town early in August was not followed up until the first days of September when a captive balloon appeared in the air across the river and German aeroplanes commenced maneuvering over the town. They dropped 200 bombs, killing six and wounding a great number of civilians, but it was not until the 5th that the ringing of the tocsin announced to the citizens that the Germans had appeared on the other side of the river in force. The solemn tones of the bell were still heard when a terrific dull explosion shook the windows of every house; the bridge from which the town derives its name was no more, and immediately after blowing it up the French troops, in too small number to cope with the enemy, quit the town.

The captive balloon was seen again to rise in the distance and soon after the German heavy artillery began to play on the dilapidated antique castle on the hill. During thirty-six hours they showered great projectiles on that spot, literally pulverizing what remained of the walls, occasionally diverting a shell to the town, after which they crossed the Moselle on improvised bridge and rushed up to the assault of the supposed fortress, which they found as quiet as the grave. No French soldiers had ever occupied it, and what the Germans took for guns from their captive balloon were simply cleverly disposed tree trunks, and the fire which replied occasionally to their guns to complete the illusion came from behind the hill.

Bloody Fight Ensues. The story of the occupation of this town is quite the same as has been often told of other towns; hostages, proclamations and requisitions, but it did not last long. The morning of the 6th the impressive music of the French three inch guns was heard in the town; at the same time a French aeroplane was seen to dart through the sky in the direction of the captive balloon, which hastened to descend. These were the preliminaries of the battle of Dieulouard, to which no dispatches have referred by name, but which was one of the bloodiest in the action of General Castelnau's army defending Nancy.

A continual procession of improvised ambulances passed through the town toward the bridge that night, and other wagons with a more grievous mission turned to the railroad station, where inhabitants, retired to their houses by order, saw loaded in all kinds of flat cars, horse cars, cattle cars the bodies of those that fell that day at Dieulouard. They were piled as high as they could be packed and in the early morning these wheeled charnel houses were hauled across the frontier toward Metz.

Bavarians Disappear. As for the 6th Bavarian Infantry, not one of this regiment was ever seen again in the streets of Pont-a-Mousson, and three days later the other troops of occupation left the town. September 23rd the Germans made their last attempt to recapture Pont-a-Mousson, ending in a charge on the Hill of St. Genevieve. The French position at the summit had been bombarded during the morning and by 9 o'clock 600 men of the French seemed to have been definitely silenced. The order for the assault was given and to the music of the fife and drum, the Bavarians started up the slope meeting no resistance until they arrived within a hundred yards of the first line of trenches. Almost to a man the first line went down under the first volley that received them there. Others rushing on to take their places fell over their comrades. The ranks came on as if those in the rear had seen nothing of this slaughter and the machine guns and rifles swept them down. In some places it was impossible to close the ranks, because the piles of bodies separated them, and finally these heaps of dead and dying became the rampart behind which some of the assailants sheltered themselves to protect the retreat of those that were left. The Saint Genevieve Hill was strewn with bodies and the soil saturated with the blood of the Bavarians and all efforts to reach Nancy from that point were definitely abandoned.

Will Leave Shortly For San Antonio—Joint Services Are Held Sunday Night

From Monday's Daily.
One of the largest congregations that ever gathered in the M. E. Church, South, was present Sunday morning to hear the final sermon by Dr. J. W. Hill, the retiring pastor. The big auditorium was packed almost to the limits of its capacity. Special music was a feature of the exercises.

In his sermon Dr. Hill dealt more particularly with the duty of the church to the pastor who will succeed him and said the congregation should remember that whoever came here would be the selection of the church authorities, entitled to the support of the members without criticism. Last night the congregation of the church was joyous with that of the First Presbyterian Church, the sermon being by Dr. J. L. McKee.

Dr. Hill will leave shortly for San Antonio, where he will next Sunday assume the pastorate of the Laurel Heights Methodist Church.

ENGLAND IS PAYING $5,000,000 DAILY

PREMIER ASQUITH SAYS COST OF WAR IS CLOSE TO THAT AMOUNT

ASSISTANCE GIVEN TO GREECE

Said To Have Received $8,000,000 From England For Construction of Battleships

By Associated Press.
London, Nov. 16.—The Central News publishes a dispatch from Amsterdam saying that a German newspaper appearing at Brussels declares that a British aviator had dropped a bomb on the town of Courtrai in Belgium on the River Lys, twenty-six miles southwest of Ghent. The explosion of this projectile killed fifteen of the local population.
"Telegraphing from Athens the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph says it was announced in the Greek Chamber of Deputies England had advanced the Greek government $8,000,000 to pay for warships for Greece to be constructed in English shipyards.
Premier Asquith said in the House of Commons this afternoon that the war already was costing Great Britain from $4,500,000 to $5,000,000 daily. Speaking in the House of Commons, Home Secretary McKenna said 14,500 alien enemies of Great Britain were today interned in concentrated camps in the British Isles. These were in addition to the prisoners taken in action or removed from the enemy's merchant ships. Mr. McKenna added that there were about 29,000 alien enemies still at large in England.

CATHEDRALS CROWDED IN PARIS DURING WARTIME

Effect of Conditions Upon Religious Devotions of People Seen in Many Instances

By Associated Press.
Paris, Nov. 16.—The cathedrals of Paris are crowded each Sunday with persons who have been awakened to new devoutness by the war. Every day there is a continuous file of faithful in the churches of every parish in Paris, burning candles to their patron saints. They are mostly women, but the men are in far greater proportion than has been seen in the churches in many years. Among these men are many wounded, who make their way painfully to the altars on crutches in order to perform their devotions.
In the improvised chapel at the Pasteur Lyceum building, where the American Military Hospital is located, a altar was provided at one end for the Catholics and at the other end for members of the Church of England, while a place was made in the center for the Protestant Non-conformist services.

They contain bundles of dead, that is, four bodies tied together to facilitate transportation. The bodies are burned promptly in special furnaces erected for that purpose."

EXCITING EXPERIENCES MARK VOYAGE OF LINER

Is Fired On By German Cruiser and Reported Sunk But Makes Safe Escape

By Associated Press.
London, Nov. 16.—The Pacific liner Orizga, which arrived in Liverpool October 20 from Valparaiso was fired on by a German cruiser, probably the Leipzig, on September 19. When the Orizga discovered she was being chased she made for the dreaded Cape George at something over her trial trip speed.
They found themselves in an uncharted lagoon, which was really a roundabout entrance to the Strait of Magellan. It was decided to navigate this unknown waterway and a small boat was sent ahead to take soundings. After much difficulty the known but unfrequented waterway of Smyths channel was reached. On arriving at Punta Arenas they discovered that a wireless message had been received from the German ship which had remained outside the channel, saying the Orizga had been sunk with all on board.
"On reaching the Atlantic further excitement was in store as H. M. S. Glasgow and Monmouth both chased the steamer until she was recognized as British.
North of the Equator a Russian bark halted the steamer to correct her chronometer and was surprised to hear of the war. The bark had been at sea some four months.

COTTON EXCHANGES RESUME OPERATIONS

PRICES OF LESS THAN EIGHT CENTS PREVAIL AT OPENING

NEW FORM OF CONTRACTS USED

Conforms To New Federal Statute—Some Confusion Prevails at Opening of Market

By Associated Press.
New York, Nov. 16.—The New York Cotton Exchange reopened for unrestricted trading at ten o'clock this morning; it had been closed since July 21. The floor of the exchange was thronged with brokers when the gong sounded today. During the first few minutes trading was exceedingly brisk and somewhat nervous. There was a little confusion because of unfamiliarity with the new style contracts and the new rules imposed on the market by the operation of the so-called cotton futures law. Early trading was confined almost entirely to December cotton sold on accounts. The market opened at 7.45 and dropped quickly to 7.40. A low level of 7.33 was reached in the first half hour. The market then grew steady and the nervous tone departed.
At the end of the first half hour trading appeared to be normal and the number of brokers on the floor had dwindled to the usual force. Prices were approximately three cents below what they were when the exchange closed on July 21. January sold at 7.75 to 7.85; March, 7.85 to 7.88; May, 8.10 to 8.12; October, 8.40 to 8.50. All were on new style contracts.
After the first hour of trading, it was estimated that between 75,000 and 125,000 bales had changed hands. Heavy liquidation of old contracts which had been thrown into the pool was in progress. The south was buying a little and Liverpool and the continent were evidently proceeding with much caution. Prices held fairly steady.
Wall street brokers, inactive because of the darkened stock exchange, were interested spectators at the opening. A sprinkling of speculators and friends and families of cotton brokers were in the galleries. A general laugh greeted the reading of a letter of congratulation from members of the Liverpool Cotton association.

COTTON ON NEW STYLE CONTRACTS BRINGS PREMIUM

New Orleans, Nov. 16.—With the exchange daily decorated with palms and flowers, women crowding the visitors' gallery and a battery of photographers on hand, the cotton market opened for normal trading at 9:05 this morning, after a suspension of almost three months and a half. The first trade between here and Liverpool went through to completion, passing censors' hands and all in seventeen minutes. First trades in local options did not show much change from last week's liquidation trading. January's first transaction was at 7.50.

The market was somewhat complicated because trading was carried on in two styles of contracts, one the old style, being the form used up to the time of suspension last July, and the other, the new style, framed to meet the federal cotton futures act. Old style March brought 7.61 and new style 7.85 on the first call, showing that the trade was willing to pay a premium of a quarter of a cent a pound for the new style.

GOETHAL'S ANNUAL REPORT SUBMITTED

TELLS OF FINISHING TOUCHES BEING PUT ON GREAT WATERWAY

FORTIFICATIONS BEING BUILT

Cost of Canal Up To Present is Placed at Over $350,000,000 By Zone Governor

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 16.—Concluding chapters in the story of American pluck and perseverance that made possible the construction of the Panama Canal are written by Colonel George W. Goethals, governor of the Zone. His annual report submitted to Secretary Garrison. The report tells of the canal builders' battle against tricky earth slides, of the establishment of the permanent form of government in the Zone, with Colonel Goethals as governor, of the beginning of the work on fortifications to guard the great waterway against invasion, while imposing rows of figures tell of the cost of details in the canal's construction and maintenance.
The report shows that the canal's cost, including the current appropriation, now stands at $355,553,049.83. More than $274,000,000 was appropriated. Of that amount more than $12,000,000 was for fortifications.
Progress of Fortifications.
"Work was continued during the year on the gun and mortar batteries," the report states, "and by the close of the year the concrete work was practically completed, as well as the greater portion of the back fill. On July 1, 1913, the construction of re-boults in accordance with plans prepared by a board appointed for the purpose and approved by the secretary of war, was undertaken and they were completed, as well as the clearing necessary in connection with them."

The continued earth slides that retarded the progress of the canal builders was described at length. The total amount of material removed in the dry from Culebra Cut," the report states, "from the beginning of American operations to June 15, 1914, aggregated 110,281,883 cubic yards, at a division cost of $0.7066 per cubic yard; of this amount 25,296,190 yards were removed because of slides, or 22.84 per cent."

Describing the demolition of Gamboa Dam as one of the final steps of the canal's completion, the report relates that "with the exception of a small pocket slide in the vicinity of Cascades, the admission of water to the cut has thus far had no bad effects; nor has there been any perceptible tendency for the presence of water to produce slides."

No Earthquake Damage.
The canal's giant locks and dams staunchly withstood the earthquake shocks which were more violent and numerous during the last year than in any since occupation. Eighty-seven distinct shocks were recorded at Ancon.

"Practically all the shocks," the report states, "seemed to originate in the vicinity of the lower coast of Los Santos Province, approximately 115 miles southwest of Ancon. The most violent shocks occurred October 2, slight damage to the new administration building there in course of erection at Balboa Heights, but with this exception the canal works suffered no damage from these shocks."

As the construction of the canal proceeded to the point where a date was set for the admission of the first ship, the population of the zone steadily increased. On June 30, 1914, the force employed on the canal was 29,672, compared with 43,250 at the close of the previous fiscal year. "Accompanying the decrease," the report states, "there was a large emigration from the isthmus, and for the first time since the work was started here was an excess of departures over arrivals of about 15,000."

JAPAN IS SEARCHING FOR GEAMANY'S PACIFIC FLEET

Paul M. Warburg, possibly the most experienced banker on the federal reserve board today declared that November 16 might be considered the Fourth of July in the economic life of the United States, marking the foundation of the nation's financial emancipation.
Financial Fourth of July.
"The new banking system wisely administered," said Mr. Warburg, "will prove to be the means not of inflation, but of safety, independence and gradual healthy expansion. How soon we may become a world power will equal in strength and independence to those of whom we have had to lean until now we will depend upon our ability to avail ourselves of the opportunity now open to us. We are starting out today ambitious of attaining this end, but we still are far removed from our goal. With a spirit, prevailing of unselfish moderation and mutual helpfulness with careful planning and singleness of purpose we yet are certain to overcome the obstacles that will block our way both within and without."

Twenty-seven Foreign Battleships Will Take Part in Ceremonies in February

By Associated Press.
Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—President Wilson's itinerary and plans for the opening of the Panama Canal and Panama-Pacific Exposition were given detail yesterday by Lieutenant Commander Needham Jones, naval aide of the president, who is in this city. Twenty-seven foreign battleships and seventeen United States vessels will participate.
"The foreign ships will arrive at Hampton Roads between February 10 and 15 and will then join the United States fleet. The foreign officers will be brought to Washington by the United States officers and on February 20 will be taken to the White House to meet the president. They will be present when he pushes the button that opens the exposition."

BURGLAR STEALS DEPUTY'S HORSE AND MAKES ESCAPE

By Associated Press.
San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 16.—After making a dummy and leaving it in his bed, a clever and nifty burglar escaped from the jail at Pleasanton early Monday morning, by means of rope, made of bedding. He waited in hiding until Deputy Sheriff Bell tied his horse nearby, then mounted it and rode away.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED BY MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION

The Ministers' Association in the last regular meeting by a rising vote passed the following resolutions:
"Whereas, Dr. J. W. Hill, the pastor of the Southern Methodist Church will soon move to San Antonio, Texas. Be it resolved:
1. That we express our high appreciation of Dr. Hill as a fellow minister and co-worker in Christ's Kingdom. And that we feel that we have lost a strong man that we work at this place.
2. That the city as a whole by the removal of Dr. Hill has lost a man that has always been ready to prove his citizenship by his deeds.
3. That we commend him to the ministers of San Antonio as a man that can be trusted and depended upon in the work for righteousness in their city.
4. That we assure Dr. Hill that our prayers will go with him to his new and greater field of service. May the blessings of the Great Head of the church be realized in his work in the future as they have in the past.
"REV. FRED L. McPADDEN, President Ministers' Association."

ENGLAND'S NATIONAL DEBT INCREASED 50 PER CENT

Russians Halted By Turks But Are Planning Strong Blow At Austria—No Change In Flanders

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 16.—The greatest single demand ever made upon the material resources of Great Britain was voiced by Premier Asquith today when in the House of Commons, he moved an additional credit, for war purposes, of $1,125,000,000 which in addition to the money already voted in August is equivalent to an increase of more than fifty per cent in the national debt.
In the battle in Flanders which continued with ferocity the great issue still hung in the balance. The German attack is shifting slowly southward in Belgium toward the French border.
The Russians apparently are concentrating their efforts on the capture of Cracow and Przemysl in an effort to crush the Austrian army before advancing on German territory. It is also reported that the Germans are massing troops at strategic points in Posen and Silesia preparing for the expected Russian advance.
Petrograd acknowledges that the severe attack of the Turks in the Caucasian region on the eastern shore of the Black Sea have halted the Russian movement.
In Paris it is rumored Japanese gunners are coming to help handle some new big guns of the allies.

RETIREMENT OF RUSSIANS IN CAUCASUS REGION ADMITTED

Paris, Nov. 16.—A statement given out by the Russian army staff in the Caucasus dated at Tiflis and sent to the Havas Agency here announces the retirement of the Russian advance guard in the region of Koprukeui, east of Ezzerum. It adds that the attempts of the Turks to regain the Kenossouk pass have failed.

GERMANS CLAIM 23,000 RUSSIANS TAKEN PRISONERS ON VISTULA RIVER

By Associated Press.

Berlin, Nov. 16.—An official announcement given out in Berlin today says that the German attacks in Flanders are progressing slowly but that in the Argonne the Germans have obtained further successes.
German forces have repulsed the Russians near Stalluponen and also drove them at Lipno. Five hundred prisoners were captured on the Vistula river. German forces have been successful at Wloclowek where several Russian army corps were driven back.

Secretary Bryan has announced that everything between the rival Mexican factions has been arranged satisfactorily. That is good news, if true. We can only hope that it is that way.

The same election that reduced the Democratic majority in the lower house of congress from 147 to some thing like 30, also increased the Democratic majority in the Senate or upper house of congress from 12 to 16. Yet partisan newspapers see in that election a great Republican victory.

It is lawful and right for the United States government to pay for all cattle afflicted with the foot and mouth disease now an epidemic in several of the Northern, Eastern and Middle States, and yet it is unconstitutional for the government to render aid and assistance to the Southern cotton grower, who is losing by far more in dollars and cents than are the owners of diseased cattle in the States mentioned.

It has apparently not occurred to the negro employes in the departments at Washington that if they have been segregated from the white employes, so have the white employes been segregated from them.

Give to the Girls

As the great, good God of heaven Unto you full measures given, Add your mite unto the heaven For the girls.

Keep fair faith within their eyes Nothing's done unless one tries; Hope, her banner, ever flies O'er the girls.

You will surely bless the day When you gave the girls a way To live right, and never stray. Save the girls.

Boast not that thy daughter dear, Who thy happy home doth cheer, May not on the brink be near. No one knows.

Work the golden rule this week, With a motive pure and meek, Help us now the lost ones seek. Build a home.

Do the thing that's big and right; Give today your blessing bright; Represent it with your mite— Give it now.

Honor this, the Lone Star State, And her band of women great; Later on 'twill be too late— Do it now.

Seventy-five pardons will be granted by Governor Colquitt on Thanksgiving day. Doubtless, the governor will be criticised for the exercise of his power, but let that be as it may.

Natural gas in paying quantities has been discovered near Corpus Christi, and in speaking of the great advantages Corpus Christi will enjoy by the find, the Democrat says:

Natural gas almost eliminates the fuel cost of operating factories, as is shown by the example of Wichita Falls, where natural gas is bought under contract for eight cents per thousand cubic feet.

The future will be very different from the past, which we shall presently look back upon. I venture to say, as if upon a bad dream.

NEW YORK CROWDS FOLLOW PRESIDENT

WILSON AND COL. HOUSE OUT FOR STROLL FORCED TO BEAT HASTY RETREAT

"HURRAH FOR WILSON" CRY

Crowd Takes Up Shout Which Soon Grows To Alarming Proportions

By Associated Press. New York, Nov. 14.—President Wilson found tonight he could not hope to escape recognition even when he appeared on the streets as an unobtrusive private citizen; he tried it and failed. After spending the day playing golf on the Pitting Rock club Mr. Wilson returned to this city and announced that he intended to spend the evening quietly at the home of his friend, Col. E. M. House. He changed his mind, however, and he and Col. House started tonight for a stroll on Broadway. They were attended only by two secret service men. Soon the president and his escort halted to listen to a Salvation Army open air meeting and right there Mr. Wilson's incognito came to an end.

"It's Wilson, it's President Wilson" shouted a man in the crowd. Instantly the Salvation Army was deserted as the hundreds who followed the president and his host. The secret service men closed in quickly. Two blocks further on a volunteer street orator discussing the Mexican situation gained the chief executive as an auditor. The president smiled and started on as the speaker eulogized Villa and abused Carranza. The orator soon was deserted. The next step in the Wilson itinerary was a suffrage meeting. The feminine speaker was interrupted in her address as the hundreds who followed the president came up. The crowd shouting "Hurrah for Wilson" had by this time gained alarming proportions. Two or three New York patrolmen volunteered to assist the secret service operatives in forcing a path for the president and they began looking for a safe haven. The party then sought the Waldorf Astoria where the officers made a lane for Mr. Wilson. As he gained the door the president turned and waved his hand. "Try to get away from me, I'm going to get away from you now."

Mr. Wilson was spirited out on the Fifth Avenue side. Gaining the street the president caught sight of a painting of Mrs. Wilson in the window of an art store. The president stood sadly and silently before the window for a few minutes, the crowd evidently forgotten. Then the secret service men hailed a Fifth Avenue bus and in this vehicle, the president of the United States, his explorations of the city ended for the night, rode to the home of Col. House.

FLORIDA LAND CASES ON TRIAL THIS WEEK

Kansas City, Nov. 14.—That the promoters of the Chambers Land Company sold a "moss fertile land in the world outside the valley of the Nile lands, upon parts of which the horses and cattle were obliged to wear 'muck shoes' to keep from sinking, and other parts of which were completely inundated," was the charge made by Judge S. R. Rush of Omaha, special assistant of the attorney general of the United States in outlining the government's case in federal court today. E. C. Chambers, president, and four alleged agents of the company are charged with using the mails to defraud and promote a conspiracy in the sale of Florida land.

Francis M. Wilson, United States district attorney, announced that the government had sixty witnesses here, half of them from Florida. Attorneys for the defense asserted they had half that number and that many are leading officials of Florida. The defense, as outlined, was that every representation made as to the land was true, that it was being drained and that every thing made for the reclaiming swamp would be realized, and those who had invested their money had invested it wisely. George H. Davis, who outlined the defense, charged that Harvey W. Wiley, former chief of the bureau of chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, was authority for the statement that the land was the most fertile in the world outside of the valley of the Nile. He said the literature on which the prosecution is based was drawn on the very words of government documents. Judge Poolock ordered that the jury not be held together during the trial, an order almost without precedent in federal court here.

LORD ROBERTS DIES IN FRANCE

BRITAIN'S FIELD MARSHAL SUC-CUMBS TO PNEUMONIA AT-TACK

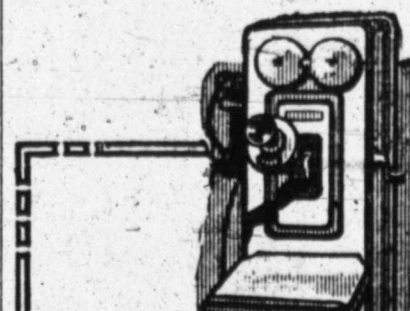

ALL ENGLAND MOURNS DEATH

Hero of Three Wars Was Idol of Soldiers and Pride of British Empire

By Associated Press. London, Nov. 14.—Field Marshal Earl Roberts died last night in France from pneumonia. A telegram from Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British expeditionary force on the continent, apprised Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war of the death of England's great soldier. The telegram said: "I deeply regret to tell you that Lord Roberts died at 8 o'clock this (Saturday) evening." Field Marshal Roberts, who as colonel in chief of the Indian troops who had gone to France to give them his greeting soon after his arrival became seriously ill. He suffered from a severe cold Thursday and pneumonia rapidly developed. His great age, 82 years, militated against his recovery. The news of the death of Lord Roberts came as an entire surprise to England. He was the most popular military figure in Great Britain and a national hero without rival. Despite his years he had never ceased hard work since his nominal retirement and as he often remarked, he lived a rigidly abstemious life that he might preserve his strength for the service of his country.

Sketch of His Career. Roberts of Kandahar, Pretoria and Waterloo, as field marshal Lord Frederick Sleigh Roberts was known, sums up briefly the career of the noted soldier whose death has plunged the empire into mourning. Scion of a noble Irish family, Lord Roberts was born in 1832 in Cawnpore, India where his father, General Abraham Roberts was serving. It was in the Indian service that the gallant and official Irishman achieved his first and lasting fame. It was in South Africa, in his later years that he was supplemented and magnified by his achievements in Great Britain's victorious campaign against the Boers, but it was not as field marshal and earl that Lord Roberts was formally known; it was as "Bobs" that the men of the ranks knew him, loved him and greeted him, in their estimation and in that of the admiring public, which appreciated and applauded his gallant service for his country, no name could fit him better than this diminutive of his family name and a word meaning "hero" in India. Showed as he was with honor and title by his own country, it was not by that nation alone that his military abilities were appreciated. Emperor William paid high tribute to him.

"Roberts of Kandahar," the emperor is recorded as saying, "has much of the subtlety and ability to perceive his opportunities that have distinguished the greatest military geniuses of the past. I hold him in the highest of today's soldiers." For more than half a century England had occasion to take pride in the career of the Roberts the soldier. As his career reopened she came to hold him in the same affection as Wellington, Klive and Kitchener. In line of her wars he was in the thick of the fighting and many times was wounded. As he fought, he rose in rank from supernumerary subaltern in the Horse Artillery, to field marshal and commander in chief of all the British armies. As further rewards he was made a peer of the realm and the recipient of distinguished orders of which the chief was the Order of the Garter, the most ancient and high prize of all the British orders. This crowning honor came to him in 1901 after his notable service in leading the British cause to victory in South Africa.

LITTLE EVIDENCE OF WAR IN BERLIN

ALMOST NO INDICATION THAT COUNTRY IS ENGAGED IN CONFLICT

PEOPLE SHOW LITTLE EMOTION

Watch Their Loved Ones March Away With Spartan Indifference In Their Faces

Berlin, Nov. 12.—They still eat wheat bread in Berlin. Amusements proceed with little sign of abatement. Few posters to call men to arms are in evidence and there are many able-bodied men on the streets in civilian clothes. There is in striking contrast to the situation in neutral Holland, where all people are compelled to eat bread that has a 75 per cent admixture of rye and where almost all walls are covered with official announcements relating to mobilization and the regulation of prices and were sources of wonderment to a correspondent of the Associated Press who has just arrived after. That Germany is at war could not be gleaned from street impressions, though a person might speculate on the cause that has led to two conditions. Everywhere one sees large photographs of the emperor, the German crown prince and General Von Hindenburg, Von Bessler and other military notables exhibited as are campaign lithographs in the United States. There are other photographs of Emperor Francis Joseph and Austrian generals.

Good Horses at the Front. Horses which do the hauling in the city are poor. All good horses have been requisitioned for military purposes with the result that every equine able to keep moving is urged to further and often painful effort. There are surprisingly few soldiers to be seen in the streets. Now and then a column puts in an appearance—cheerful, eager and usually bedecked with flowers—off to war. Beside the men, there are the women—mothers, wives, sisters, sweethearts—not so cheerful. But it seems to be contrary to some unwritten law to show emotion in this business of going to the front, perhaps never to return. So while the men hide their concern under a cheerfulness that appears to be natural enough, the women belie their reddened eyes with a smile and swallow hard as they talk to the man whom they accompany to the train that will take him east or west—either way a road to danger.

Berlin Shows Resumé. Business in Berlin is normal as far as can be ascertained. Shortly after the mobilization some of the large amusement places, concert halls and vaudeville houses closed up. Many of them have been reopened with the coming of the winter season. The cafes are crowded to capacity and many artists who are expected to represent curtailment of programs rather than total closures. A similar condition prevails among shop and factory employes, but in their case the percentage of unemployed is lower because of the men taken to the front. Official figures recently issued show that the progress of redistributing labor not yet completed, there were in Berlin only from 2 to 6 per cent more unemployed than normally. In the case of certain trades which require men of exceptionally good physique there was actually a shortage of labor.

Food Is Still Good. The bills of fare in the Berlin hotels and restaurants may not be read by the German whose knowledge of French is limited. The "speisekarte" is no longer a "menu." There has been little reduction in the quality of the food offered. Nor are the prices materially higher. Many of the big restaurants have made no change whatever in their prices since the war began. "We must win," is the slogan of everybody in Berlin. To make this possible, everybody accepts resignedly whatever sacrifice has to be made. While the army has the hard work in the battle line, the women (including court, knit wrists, gloves, sweaters, and corsets) and the men (with their abdominal bands and even calf warmers. Innumerable packages are dispatched to the front, containing mostly cigars, small bottles of spirituous beverages and chocolates for whose nutriment value the German soldiers seem to have the highest respect.

Sparring Feels in the street, public places and official quarters is not such that one could say that the war is popular in Germany. That term would hardly describe the feeling. A better definition of the sentiment prevailing in all classes of Berlin's population and, it is claimed in that empire, is that the war is a very disagreeable business which must be disposed of thoroughly and with whole heartedness. Press and public alike express this Spartan sentiment.

Berlin does not seem to fear an invasion by hostile air craft. For this reason no limitation has been put on signs which glare and flash everywhere, and which would guide an aviator for miles. A plentiful supply of fuel has made economy unnecessary. Owing to a general commandeering of horses and wagons, the streets are not quite as clean as they were formerly. That, and the conditions already referred to are the only indications that Berlin is not in the midst of peace. There is so little excitement in the capital that even war bulletins get but half the attention they do elsewhere.

150 HENS CAN EARN MORE THAN SIX BALES OF COTTON

Value of Poultry Is Demonstrated By Extension Department at A. & M.

COTTON CONSUMPTION SHOWS BIG DECREASE

Exports Lighter and American Spinners Apparently Waiting For Stable Market

College Station, Texas, Nov. 13.—An instance of where one hundred and fifty hens equal six bales of cotton has been discovered in Brazos county, according to an announcement by the Extension Service of the A. & M. College. George Echols, a farmer living near the college, has a flock of 150 hens. He sold this year for date $200 worth of eggs. Reckoning sales at the same rate for the next two months, adding the sales of poultry and making due allowances for eggs and chickens eaten by the family during the year, he will have received the gross amount of at least $300 by January 1st from this flock. "One of his tenant's total money crop this year consists of six bales of cotton, now not exceeding $180, or but $40 in advance of the money rent contracted with Mr. Echols. Reckoning the bale at 10 cents per pound, the three tons of seed at $20 per ton, which is the price probably received but for the war, the tenant's total income as a tenant farmer would have been $360. The cotton required the greater part of the tenant's time from April to November, and a considerable part of the time of his wife and children. The chickens, therefore, in attention to Mr. Echols in taking the eggs to market two or three times a week. It is safe to say that the net profit on the chickens, after making due allowance for the time of Mr. and Mrs. Echols, was $150; thus equaling the profit on the six bales of cotton. Mr. Echols also sold butter and vegetables, etc., to the amount of $600. He is holding his cotton for higher prices and yet has money in the bank."

INTERNATIONAL TRADE CONFERENCE PLANNED

By Associated Press. CO-OPERATIVE WINDOW GLASS PLANT PROMOTED

Glass Workers in Other States Will Be Asked To Subscribe For Stock

From Sunday's Daily. Organization of a co-operative window glass manufacturing plant for Wichita Falls is being promoted, with good chances of ultimate success. Window glass workers in other states are being invited to subscribe for stock in a company to be formed here. It is hoped to have the stock subscribed and the plant built and ready to place in operation next fall.

It is pointed out that Belgium, which produces most of the glass made abroad, is prostrated by the war and the glass workers industry cannot become normal there for several years at the best and that he future for hand made glass is very bright in this country.

ALL FORCES AT WORK ON COTTON SITUATION

Complete Harmony in Movement To Secure Fair Price To the Grower

From Sunday's Daily. W. E. Singleton, one of the well known agricultural lecturers of the state, came up from Dallas county yesterday to attend the farmers meeting at Electric. Not knowing of the arrangements he stopped off here from the afternoon train and was driven to Electric in Mr. Kemp's automobile. On leaving Mr. Kemp instructed his chauffeur to make good time.

Mr. Singleton has been speaking in Dallas county in campaign there to secure pledges for a reduction of the cotton acreage for 1915. "We have found the farmers ready to pledge a reduction in their acreage for next year and everywhere there is a desire to co-operate and use the advantage offered by the cotton loan fund and the help of the business men to get a fair price for the cotton. Dallas county is being thoroughly organized and the business men and bankers of Dallas and the other towns of the county are squarely behind the movement." Local associations for each shipping station and a county organization in each county are being formed in which the members pledge themselves to join their efforts to win others to secure a fair and just price for the cotton crop of 1914 while in the hands of the grower.

R. E. Huff is chairman for the organization of Wichita County. Mr. Singleton or some other organizer will work with Mr. Huff and others in organizing the farmers and business men of Wichita county.

8 CENT COTTON KEMP'S PREDICTION

CHAIRMAN OF STATE BANKERS' COMMITTEE PREDICTS RISE IN PRICE

ALL ELEMENTS CO-OPERATE

Farmers of South and Business Men of Whole Nation United in the Effort

From Sunday's Daily. That cotton will be selling for eight cents a pound before the end of the present week, is the prediction of J. A. Kemp, who returned last week from Dallas, where he has been in connection with his work as chairman of the committee from the Texas Bankers' Association on the cotton loan fund, and from Houston where he attended the convention of the Southern Cotton Association. Mr. Kemp will go to Dallas tomorrow to attend a conference of bankers in reference to the loan fund. Mr. Kemp bases his prediction for eight cent cotton on a number of factors, chief among which is a determination by the farmers, bankers and business men of the South that it is worth at least that much and that with confidence and co-operation among themselves and with the sympathy and co-operation of the bankers and business men of all sections of the country, that it shall bring that price.

The opening of the regional banks which will provide new financial facilities for handling the cotton crop never had before and the reopening of the New York cotton exchange which will give spinners an opportunity to hedge and put them into the market, are other factors which Mr. Kemp believes will put cotton prices to a higher level and keep them there.

"The bankers of practically every cotton State in the Union have endorsed the Texas plan and have organized or are organizing agencies to carry it into effect," said Mr. Kemp. "As chairman of the committee I have received a flood of letters and telegrams of endorsement and pledges of support from points not only all over the South but from the North and East as well."

"The success of the loan pool is assured, but even more important than this is the fixed determination of the people of the South to get for their crop—and it is the nation's crop as well—what it is reasonably worth. And in this determination they have the support of the business elements of the whole country. I now feel sure that very little of the loan fund will be used, but it is mighty comforting to know that we have it—and the fact that we do have it is one of the most potent factors in convincing the consumers of cotton of our power to prevent cotton from selling at the depreciated prices it was bringing a few weeks ago. I know that the existence of this fund has greatly impressed representatives of English and Japanese spinners who have been sent to Texas to investigate the situation. It has convinced them that the price of cotton will be stabilized—that it will not sink to the low figure of two weeks ago, and that the spinner can go into the market now with a feeling of certainty that his competitor will not be able to buy his supply at a lower figure than himself. The spinner doesn't care so much what he has to pay for cotton himself as he does that his competitors won't be able to buy their supplies at a lower figure than himself. That's one of the reasons that the spinner, when cotton was going down, down to six cents, and was plainly headed toward five cents and lower, was afraid to buy. That explains why, notwithstanding the absurdly low price that cotton reached, the spinner's bought less cotton the first three months of the cotton year than in the same period last year."

"I doubt very much whether the facilities that will be afforded by the regional banks could have been taken advantage in connection with the cotton crop except for the loan fund that has been raised. Cotton was headed for five cents when this fund was assured and cotton at five cents, I am afraid could not have been accepted for security by banks, even the 'reserve banks.' Mr. Kemp says the bankers of Texas are squarely behind the Southern Cotton Association in its campaign for the reduction of the cotton acreage and that the farmers, the bankers and the business men of the State and of the South and the entire country are co-operating in a spirit of confidence that is certain to bring the result sought."

Mr. Kemp talks with such optimism and confidence that it can be seen why under his leadership the bankers of the State who were so plainly depressed at the first Dallas conference are now supporting the committee's plan so unanimously and enthusiastically. Local buyers were paying 7-1/4 cents for cotton yesterday and report that little cotton was being offered. Loans are now being made on cotton freely.

GERMAN SOLDIERS MARRY BEFORE LEAVING FOR FRONT

Hundreds Claim Their Brides on Eve of Departure For Scene of Battle

By Associated Press. Berlin, Nov. 17.—"War marriages" will materially increase the number of marriages for Berlin this year. When the war broke out many officers and in some cases privates of the reserve and landwehr decided to marry on the eve of their departure for the front with the result that August 1914 shows a total of marriages for Berlin of 1733 as against 1309 for the same month of last year.

The outbreak of the war has also materially influenced for the better the lot of children born out of wedlock. In nearly all cases this was done by the father of the child marrying its mother. While in August 1914 only 158 children were legitimized, their number in August 1914 was 1,043 of which number all but five were given a proper name before the birth of the child.

HER ONE CHANCE

STORY 18 2838

By VINGIE E. ROE.

Hedda bent above the glowing stove, turning this and stirring that with the practiced and delicate hand of an artist. From the doorway, across the room, the men were coming noisily to supper—their voices loud and sharp in the silence of soft rain.

The woman, raw-boned and capable, with a huge row of pale hair curled tightly on top of her head and every action spelling Sweden, regarded them out of hostile blue eyes. She knew what was coming with them—boisterous chaffing and good-natured jokes—and she hated them—every one! The best cook in the lumber region was Hedda, and she had no gift of tongue.

Now as she watched them come storming up the narrow, rain-soaked path to the cook-shack, there leaped into her features a certain savage triumph, a fire of victory. "Hello, Hedda, old girl," cried young Jack Baker, poking his curly head into the kitchen's steam and starting the customary pleasantry.

"The cook paid him no heed whatever and another took up the fun. "Still unmarried, Hedda? No ain't it funny that a pretty girl like you'd stay single so long when the hills're full of loose men?"

"Aye ban hate you!" she said passionately, and the laughter ceased. This was the object of the baiting, this heavy rage, like the anger of a caged animal, harmless because of environment, and it tickled the humor of these men—simple as children in their parrow lives.

"But Hedda raised a great red hand for silence and they hushed, grinning. "Aye ban hate you!" she cried again.

"People look at me like I was a mad dog! I wish I'd die, here and now! You've been so good! It'd be a good fish. I tried hard, but I ain't near the sea yet, and I can't work when I get there, and who'll help me?"

"You ban awful neat. Tree mile. You got to sleep now." And nodding wisely, Hedda departed into her realm.

The world-beaten bird stayed secretly in the cage of the rag-carpeted room, and not a man at the lumber camp knew that anything unusual had happened in the lonely valley between the ridges.

Now and then she came weakly into the kitchen between times and sat in the rocker and told Hedda bits of a commonplace life, an innocent, hard-working girl's life.

And on Wednesday that to which Hedda had been looking forward occurred. Jim Hendricks came down from Quarter Creek, big and awkward in his loggish clothes of flannel and corduroy and knee-laced boots, and stood in the cook-shack door.

"Really, Hedda?" he asked. "I've got a packhorse, an' we'll go down to Toledo to the preacher when you're ready. Got to take up some grub."

"Aye," said Hedda, turning from her baking and dusting her hands. "Aye ban want to talk to you. You come in."

He stepped gingerly in, hulking like an elephant in a china shop. "Yim," said Hedda straightly, "Aye ban change my mind."

"What? Why?" There was disappointment in the big fellow's tone. "Yas. Aye ban want to work some more. Aye don't want to go into no hills, and dot cabin of yours, it ban too near the sea. Dot roar, roar, it ban like my head go rot. But, you lister here, Yim—Aye ban got you a gryl all right."

TREASURES IN ENGLISH HOME

Chatsworth House, Belonging to the Duke of Devonshire, Crowded With Works of Art

Chatsworth house, whose literary treasures have been diminished by its present owner, owes its existence to the first duke, a man of extremely catholic tastes, says the London Chronicle. He not only employed a carver, whose work is as good, if not better, than Grinling's, he was himself a supreme judge of art and architecture.

But while he could write odes and compose sonatas, he also loved racing and cockfighting, suppers and masked balls. He lost bets running into thousands with equanimity, and was considered by the ladies to be the handsomest fellow of his time. One of these worshippers, when he died sang of him as one Whose awful sweetness challenged our esteem. Our sex's wonder and our sex's theme; Whose soft commanding looks our breasts assailed. He came, and saw, and at first sight prevailed.

No duke of Devonshire added so lavishly to the treasures of Chatsworth as William Cavendish, the sixth of the title. In 1812 he bought the library of the bishop of Ely for $10,000. Ten years later he added John Kemble's dramatic collections, for which he gave $2,000. All he did was done magnificently. The great conservatory, covering an acre, which after served as a model for the Crystal palace, was his work. On his special coronation mission to the czar of Russia he is said to have spent $200,000 more than the government allowed him, a prodigality which so touched the heart of Nicholas that the monarch afterward paid the duke a visit at his Chiswick villa.

Prevents Electric Fraud. An interesting method of preventing fraud in the use of electricity has been devised by an Italian engineer. GERMAN SOLDIERS MARRY BEFORE LEAVING FOR FRONT

Hundreds Claim Their Brides on Eve of Departure For Scene of Battle

By Associated Press. Berlin, Nov. 17.—"War marriages" will materially increase the number of marriages for Berlin this year. When the war broke out many officers and in some cases privates of the reserve and landwehr decided to marry on the eve of their departure for the front with the result that August 1914 shows a total of marriages for Berlin of 5793 as against 1309 for the same month of last year. In the mobilization week, August 2-8, 2941 marriage contracts were made, of which the largest number was due to the outbreak of the war. The first seven months of 1914 showed 11,626 marriages as against 11,520 in 1913. It is believed here that the number of marriages in Berlin due to the war is not far below 4,500. Some of them had been planned for the autumn and winter seasons and it is expected that for this reason the average for these months will fall below normal. This has already been demonstrated by the records for September in which month 1,519 marriages took place as against 1,832 in September 1913. For 1914, up to and including September the number of marriages is 18,436 as against 11,731 for the same period of 1913.

The outbreak of the war has also materially influenced for the better the lot of children born out of wedlock. In nearly all cases this was done by the father of the child marrying his mother. While in August 1913 only 153 children were legitimized, their number in August 1914 was 1,043 of which number 417 but five were given a proper status before the outbreak of the war. In the first seven months of 1914 only 1,409 children were legitimized as against 1,492 for the same period in 1913.

CORPORATION COMMISSION FOR TEXAS IS PROPOSED

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, Nov. 18.—Small public utilities corporations in Texas would be materially affected by the event of passage of the Thirty-fourth legislature of a proposed bill patterned after the Wisconsin law providing for the creation of a State Corporation Commission. This proposed bill has been prepared by Acting Secretary of State D. A. Gregg and it is said, would have been introduced at the recent special session had the governor been assured of its consideration in the legislature. The measure is to be introduced at the next regular session, it is stated here. If a corporation is created it is said many small companies would be put to the expense of employing attorneys to represent them before the commission, while larger concerns would be put to little expense having their own organizations of attorneys, etc. to look after their interests.

HER ONE CHANCE

By VINGIE E. ROE.

Hedda bent above the glowing stove, turning this and stirring that with the practiced and delicate hand of an artist. From the doorway across the room, the men were coming noisily in to supper—their voices loud and sharp in the silence of soft rain. The woman, raw-boned and capable, with a huge rope of pale hair coiled tightly on top of her head and every action appealing Sweden, regarded them out of hostile blue eyes. She knew what was coming with them—boisterous chaffing and good-natured jokes—and she hated them—every one! The best cook in the lumber region was Hedda, and she had no gift of tongue. Now as she watched them come storming up the narrow, rain-soaked path to the cook-shack, there leaped into her features a certain savage triumph, a fire of victory. "Hallo, Hedda, old girl," cried young Jack Baker, poking his curly head into the kitchen's steam and starting the customary pleasantry. "The cook paid him no heed whatever and another took up the fun. "Still unmarried, Hedda? Now ain't it funny that a pretty girl like you'll stay single so long when the hills're full of lonesome miners? "Aye ban hate you!" she said passionately, and the laughter roared. This was the object of the baiting, this heavy rage, like the anger of a caged animal, harmless because of environment, and it tickled the humor of these men—simple as children in their narrow lives. But Hedda raised a great red hand for silence and they hushed, grinning. "Aye ban hate you!" she cried again.

"People look at me like I was a mad dog! I wish I'd die, here and now! You've been so good! It'd be a good finish, I tried hard, but I ain't near the sea yet, and I can't work when I get there, and who'll help me? "You ban awful near. Tree mile. You got to sleep now. "And nodding wisely, Hedda departed into her room. The world-beaten bird stayed secretly in the cage of the rag-carpeted room, and not a man at the lumber camp knew that anything unusual had happened in the lonely valley between the ridges. Now and then she came weakly into the kitchen between times and sat in the rocker and told Hedda bits of a commonplace life, an innocent, hard-working girl's life. And on Wednesday that to which Hedda had been looking forward occurred. Jim Hendricks came down from Quarter Creek, big and awkward in his logger's clothes of flannel and corduroys and knee-laced boots, and stood in the cook-shack door. "Really, Hedda?" he asked. "I've got a packhorse, an' we'll go down to Toledo to the preacher when you're ready. Got to take up some grub—" "Aye," said Hedda, turning from her baking board and dusting her hands. "Aye ban want to talk to you. You come in." He stepped gingerly in, hulking like an elephant in a china shop. "Yim," said Hedda straightly, "Aye ban change my mind." "What? Why?" There was disappointment in the big fellow's tone. "Yas. Aye ban want to work some more. Aye don't want to go into no hills, and dot cabin of yours, it ban too near the sea. Dot roar, roar, it ban the my head go dot. But you listen here, Yim—Aye ban got you a girl all right. "And with a certain skill Hedda told him the story of the wail from Salem, who was ready to die because she must get to the sea and there was no one to take care of her. "But," began the man, "but I don't know—maybe she'd be scared of me, I—" "You big fool, Yim," said Hedda, "you come along." And she led him into the sanctum. The girl was asleep, a white flower drifting on the golden seaweed of her hair. The small sound waked her and she opened her gray eyes full upon him. Like twin mysteries they were, deep and half-frightened and tired unto death, and they appealed like those of a lonely child. "Why—why—you poor little thing!" he whispered in the first wonder of awakening. "You want—you mother, closing his lumber-jack's fingers over the tiny, clawlike hand on the patch-work quilt. She was not frightened, neither was there any withdrawal from his clasp. It was as if she saw sanctuary in his face, and with the sure instinct of the young, accepted it without question. Of this Hedda saw nothing. She only saw her plan working out as it should. "You ban got with Yim," she said confidently, "he got a cabin up in the hills and the sea it roar, roar, and the wind blow and you ban get well. Yim ban got man." And she left them together to look after some other mystery of the kitchen. When a half-hour later Jim Hendricks came out and brought his packhorse close to the step, he took her big red hand a moment. "I'm mighty glad, Hedda," he said tactlessly, after the fashion of a man, "and I want to thank you. She's goin' with me. Why—why—I can't understand it—such a party little thing—'an' me—why me, such a big, overgrown brute!" (Copyright)

"Ache!" She Cried, and Recalled Grudgingly.

"and Aye ban leave you so soon 'sready as maybe. Just so soon as—" She paused for effect, and there was something solemn in the light of perfect satisfaction that suffused her dull face. "Just so soon as Yim Hendricks he come down from Quarter Creek again!" she finished dramatically. At last the impossible had happened. It was as Hedda had said. So soon as Jim Hendricks should come down from Quarter Creek again she was to go with him up to the lonely cabin in the hills. But Fate has a way of interfering, and that same night, when the mist had turned into rain and the men were discussing the wonder of the cook's engagement in the bunkhouse before retiring, she put a finger in Hedda's pie. There was a sound at the west step where a door led out of the empty sitting room, a little scratching noise, as if of a dog that has dragged itself interminably and reached home. Ploddingly Hedda crossed the echoing floor and turned back the wooden button, swinging the slab door inward. "Ache!" she cried and recoiled grudgingly, for something had fallen across the sill, a banded something—slim and limp! With capable hands she lifted it, and half-dragging, half-carrying, took it to the light and warmth of the kitchen, to set it down in her own rocker and pull its rags away. "A girl! It ban girl!" said Hedda wonderingly. And so it was, a slim wraith of a girl, white and pathetic, with shimmering hair all rain wet, and great gray eyes of much beauty and shifting shadows. She looked at Hedda and gasped heavily. "I've been coming for three weeks," she explained apologetically, "to find the sea. They said I'd die anyway—only I might—just might—get better if I could come to the sea. So I walked—from Salem. Didn't have any money." Hedda nodded. "You ban got no people?" The girl shook her head. "Nobody," she answered wearily, "and I been getting so dirty and ragged that I get sent on everywhere I stop. I'm all in." The Swede stood, hands on hips, regarding her. Presently she cried, as with sudden revelation, "Aye bet you ban hungry!" Without waiting for the pathetic smile of assent, she hurried to the stove and, snatching up a ladle and

TREASURES IN ENGLISH HOME

Chatsworth House, Belonging to the Duke of Devonshire, Crowded With Works of Art.

Chatsworth house, whose literary treasures have been diminished by its present owner, owes its existence to the first duke, a man of extremely catholic tastes, says the London Chronicle. He not only employed a carver, whose work is as good, if not better, than Grinling's, he was himself a supreme judge of art and architecture. But while he could write odes and compose sonatas, he also loved racing and cockfighting, suppers and masked balls. He lost bets running into thousands with equalmindedness, and was considered by the ladies to be the handsomest fellow of his time. One of these worshippers, when he died sang of him as one whose awful sweetness challenged our esteem. Our sex's wonder and our sex's theme: Whose soft commanding looks our breasts assailed. He came, and saw, and at first sight prevailed. No duke of Devonshire added so lavishly to the treasures of Chatsworth as William Cavendish, the sixth of the title. In 1812 he bought the library of the bishop of Ely for $10,000. Ten years later he added John Kemble's dramatic collections, for which he gave $2,000. All he did was done magnificently. The great conservatory, covering an acre, which afterward served as a model for the Crystal palace, was his work. On his special coronation mission to the czar of Russia he is said to have spent $50,000 more than the government allowed him, a prodigality which so touched the heart of Nicholas that the monarch afterward paid the duke a visit at his Chiswick villa.

WASN'T LOOKING FOR FREAK

Young Man Realized That Girl of His Choice Was Much Like Rest of Her Sex Today.

A proposal was imminent and they both knew it. He talked politics for a while, but that topic was soon exhausted. Finally he reached for her hand. "Dearest!" She said nothing. "You know that I love you." More silence. "I want you to be my little wife." Her silence must have given him a slight chill. He switched off to practical talk. "I feel as if you would be a good girl. How about it?" The girl looked at him steadily. "George," said she, "I like you well enough, but I'm going to talk to you frankly. Listen. You want me to marry you on $25 a week. I have no interest in the home. I play bridge for money. I smoke cigarettes. I require expensive clothes and continual excitement. I can't cook. I won't learn. I know very little that would be useful. Now, under these conditions, do you still want me?" The young man smiled indulgently. "Certainly I want you, he answered. "Why should I have a wife any different from so many other men's wives?"

Prevents Electric Fraud.

An interesting method of preventing fraud in the use of electricity has been devised by an Italian engineer. The practice of offering heating and cooking devices for current used in power is becoming more and more general, but with the ordinary constant potential current it is difficult to detect the use of lighting devices on circuits intended only for power and heating purposes. This engineer advocates the use of special circuits on which the current is subject to extreme fluctuation of voltage at rapidly recurring intervals, which would make it practically impossible to use lamps, because of the flicker in the lights. As the current is not entirely interrupted and the normal voltage is almost immediately restored, the proper operation of power or heating apparatus is not interfered with and the rightful use of the circuits for their respective purposes is assured.

Father's Good Point.

Little Elizabeth had been offended in some way. She went off into a corner and turned her back on the family. "I'm mad," she exclaimed sulkily. "I wish I'd have any father or mother." "That's wrong, dear," said her mother. "We are the best friends you have." "Well," said Elizabeth, doubtfully, "I don't mind having father; he doesn't mind around here much, but I'm getting awful tired of the rest of you."

Not Much Out of His Class.

Hearing a noise at the kitchen entrance, the man of the house slipped quietly to the rear door and suddenly opened it. The grocer's delivery boy was there with a basket containing a dozen eggs, a pound of butter and some Roquefort cheese. "Oh, it's you, is it, Billy?" said the man. "My wife is always afraid when she hears a noise here, especially after it begins to grow dark. She thinks it's a robber."

By Associated Press. Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 14.—The state supreme court today refused a new trial to Leo M. Frank, convicted here August 25, 1913 for the murder of Mary Phagan. Frank's motion for a rehearing was based on the ground that his constitutional rights had been violated by reason of his absence from the court room when the jury returned the verdict. By sustaining the state's demurrer to the Frank motion to set aside the verdict of the lower court the supreme court's ruling meant that Frank's only appeal is to the supreme court of the United States. Frank's attorneys announced today they would immediately appeal to the United States supreme court.

CLEMENCEAU STILL ONE OF FRANCE FOREMOST MEN Understands American Ideas Probably Better Than Anyone in French Republic By Associated Press. Bordeaux, Nov. 16.—George Clemenceau, although he holds office no longer, still remains one of the commanding figures in French public life. It is now 44 years since he came to Bordeaux as a member of the National Assembly. Even then, when all appeared lost, he declared that France would rise again and vindicate herself and he has worked ceaselessly throughout his long and brilliant career to bring about the realization. It was with that end in view that he effected the understanding with England, so fruitful in its results not only on French foreign policy but on the French national character. He is back in Bordeaux once more under greatly different circumstances. His only regret is that he may not live to see the end of the great epoch through which Europe is beginning to pass. Installed in a modest apartment, he works all day and far into the night directing his newspaper Homme Enchaîné (the Man in Chains) so-called as a protest against the unintelligent application of the censorship. Strong and vigorous notwithstanding his seventy years, his eloquent eyes flash beneath his bushy brows as he speaks of France's magnificent effort. Millions of Frenchmen daily read those articles instinct with the spirit of enlightened patriotism into which the ex-premier puts the best he has to give. Sometimes they contain trenchant criticism of mismanagement in some public department, which his high sense of duty attaching to his great influence induced him to make, criticisms which have always been fruitful in good results. No one in France understands better, probably than George Clemenceau American ideals and aspirations. "The American public," he writes in one of his latest articles, inspired the utterance of certain public men in America which he construes as indicating a pro-French sympathy, "is by nature, very independent. It watches closely its own affairs, but at the same time remains always open to questions of general interest which make for the conquest of the right among nations, the highest aspiration of humanity. If the noble demands of the Declaration of Independence are anchored in its heart, any idea of international propaganda is rigorously banished from its thought. Everything is concentrated in the ardent daily labor. America has no time to give to the charms of doctrines unless strongly supported by facts. The properly authenticated fact is for American opinion the natural foundation of all thinking; which does not exclude an idealism the best part of which should be reality. "America considers Europe with the eye, interested, tender and even pitying with which the young man just beginning life looks upon the venerable grandmother just about to leave it. Our customs, our quarrels, our thoughts are fruitful matters of reflection, above all when America can draw some practical conclusions from them. But our old continent appears worn out to the American. A violent history has for long turned its soil with its ploughshare. It has made America, that is the main thing, since it is America that must rescue not yet perhaps its culture—although American culture cannot be underrated—but above all and before all, by the strong examples of life, the profound conditions of its activity. There can be no question of Europeanizing America. But history will show whether Europe will be Americanized by the irresistible virtue of the model. "Thus American opinion, unaffected by any personal interest in this redoubtable affair, has produced an absolutely unbiased judgment." A transfer of an undivided two-sixteenths interest in certain oil and gas leases in Wichita county from D. C. Nelson to R. G. Miller was filed in the county clerk's office today. The consideration was given as $3,000.

TROOPS LEAVE MEXICO CITY UNDEFENDED AGAINST VILLA

Obregon's Forces Quit Capital For Orizaba—Officers Of The Government Also Leave

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 20.—American Consul Silliman in a dispatch filed at Mexico City at eight o'clock last night reported that General Obregon's troops were entraining for Orizaba and moving the officers of the government with them. Consul Silliman added that the city was in a state of decided unrest.

He did not indicate whether the Obregon troops were evacuating the city to leave it undefended before the troops approaching from the north or whether Obregon's forces were to be replaced with other Carranza troops moving down from Queretaro under General Gonzales, one of Carranza's chief supporters. Mr. Silliman added that railroad communication northward and also between the capital and Vera Cruz was interrupted.

Previous reports have left it to be understood that a sufficient garrison would remain in the capital to maintain order and prevent entrance of the Zapata forces until Villa's forces were in the immediate vicinity and ready to enter, when the Carranza troops would withdraw.

Acting Secretary Lansing conferred today with Acting Secretary Breckinridge of the war department, and Brigadier General Scott, chief of the staff, over details of evacuation of Vera Cruz. It was decided that the customs collected during the period of American occupation, supposed to aggregate more than $1,000,000, would be brought away by Major General Funston, to be held in this country.

GERMANS TRYING TO COMBAT INUNDATION

LARGE BODIES OF ENGINEERS ARE SENT TO WEST FLANDERS LINE

ARE ALL READY FOR RETREAT

Have Constructed Fortifications in Case Retreat is Necessary. Much Sickness Reported

By Associated Press. Brussels, Nov. 20.—Large bodies of German engineers have been passing toward the front according to information received here and it is believed Germans are planning to cross the inundated country by scientific methods.

In the meantime the western storm continues and the waters of the North Sea are working inland through the locks at Newport. It is learned here that the Germans attempted a raid on these rocks which are built in a semi-circle. Their attack which was conducted in a number of armed automobiles was repulsed.

The fortifications constructed all through West Flanders for use in case of eventual German retreat evidently now are completed, for the troops employed in their construction have gone to the front.

The snow in Flanders continues. There is much illness among the men in the trenches and the last few days has seen little fighting.

AUSTRALIA'S INTERESTS BEING CLOSELY WATCHED

Parliament Has Taken Drastic Measures With Reference To Action of Aliens

By Associated Press. Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 20.—Parliament has taken drastic measures to safeguard the Commonwealth during the war. The Governor General is empowered, under the War Precautions bill, to prohibit the entrance or departure of aliens. Persons who assist the enemy are to be court-martialed.

"We do not intend to sit quietly and allow dangerous persons to cut our throats while masquerading as peaceful citizens," said Attorney General Hughes in the debate in the House of Representatives on the war bill.

Exports of sheepskins and hides has been prohibited except by special permission. It is understood that extensive purchases of sheepskins with the wool on, have been made recently through Australia for American merchants. This has caused comment, because before the war shipments to America were small.

ATTEMPT TO PIERCE LINES AT ARGONNE

GERMANS OPEN NEW ATTACK FAR FROM SEA COAST OPERATIONS

NO NEWS FROM OTHER FIELDS

Outcome of Yesterday's Naval Battle in Black Sea Has Not Been Ascertained

By Associated Press. London, Nov. 20.—Winter having interrupted fighting along the north sea coast Germany is making an effort to pierce the line of the allies at another point. The French war office announces today that in the region of the Argonne forests three vigorous attacks by German infantry were repulsed. The importance of this battle, military critics explain lies in the fact that if the Germans push back the allies they will be able to join forces with their troops which, further to east, have thrust a sharp wedge into the line. Such a junction of forces would result in the surrounding of Verdun, which the German crown prince attacked in the earlier days of the war. The reply of the allies to this challenge was an attack on the Germans in the neighborhood of Verdun.

Either the censorship or the absence of decisive events was responsible for the fact that from the other fields of battle in Russian Poland, Turkey, Serbia and Persia, there comes only fragmentary information today. Late reports from Turkey indicate that the Turkish arms are making a better showing than at the opening of the Balkan war. This is believed to be due to the fact that the men are largely officered by Germans who are able to make better use of the recognized ability of the Turkish soldiers than are the Turkish commanders themselves.

In Constantinople there have been several outbreaks against foreigners but none of serious nature. The American staff there is working at top pressure to care for the interests of the entente powers, confined to them. They have received much praise for their efforts.

The outcome of yesterday's naval battle in the Black Sea is still in doubt. No fresh information was received to reconcile the conflicting claims of Russia and Turkey, each of whom asserted that a hostile battleship had been damaged seriously in the engagement.

ADOPT CO-OPERATIVE PLAN FOR CROP DIVERSIFICATION

Special to The Times. Dallas, Texas, Nov. 20.—At a meeting of the representatives of the Texas Bankers' Association and the Farmers' Union in this city yesterday, co-operative plans were adopted by which the men who grow the cotton and the men who finance it will renew their efforts to hold the present crop for better prices and to diversify the planting next year. W. D. Lewis, president of the Farmers' Union who represented that body at the meeting, gave out the following interview:

"The Farmers' Union renews its entreaties to all farmers to hold cotton and recommends that the farmers who must have money avail themselves of the co-operation of the banker in securing cotton loans. The union is sending out a large corps of lecturers to urge holding cotton and diversifying next year's crop.

"The banker in lending money is giving practical co-operation to the farmer in holding his crop after it has harvested and I want to suggest that the banker and the credit merchant extend the same character of co-operation to the farmer in producing the crop and then the problem of diversification is solved. Let the banker and the money lender announce that they will lend as much money on corn, wheat, oats and other crops as they will advance on cotton at the time of planting and we will have an era of diversification that will astonish all of us. In Texas, according to the most reliable data obtainable, at least two-thirds of the crop is mortgaged before it is planted and the farmer must take dictation from the banker and the merchant.

There is little use to send lecturers to tell the farmer what to plant when he has no control over the crop.

"The banker and the merchant need lecturers sent to them as badly as the farmer and we think the lecture force should be equally divided between the city man and the farmer. We suggest it is unfair for the banker to exercise the power of a loan. Let him agree to finance the diversified crop while in process of production. It is co-operation not dictation, the farmer needs. Agriculture is already bed-ridden with free advice and if the city man will come back to the man and co-operate directly of basing his action upon type-written reports of book farmers, we will understand each other better and the South will blossom like a rose."

QUESTION OF WHOSE NERVE SNAPS FIRST

VON HINDENBERG THUS CHARACTERIZES WAR ON RUSSIAN SIDE

SAYS NUMBERS DO NOT COUNT

Believes Cold Weather Will Work to Disadvantage of Russians in Digging Trenches

By Associated Press. Berlin, Nov. 20.—"The Russians have numbers on their side but numbers alone are not the decisive factor. In the present stage of the war, less than ever before. We are not afraid of Russian numerical superiority. At Tannenberg they outnumbered us three to one, yet the result was a notable German victory." These are the views of General Von Hindenburg as expressed to correspondents.

"The Russians," said General Von Hindenburg, "are good soldiers and observe discipline, but discipline of another sort than that of the Austro-German army which is based on thinking and the execution of commands, while the Russian discipline is mere blind, dull obedience.

"The Russians have learned much since the Japanese war, particularly in the science of trenching but when the ground is frozen they will no longer be able to dig themselves in. Then they will have a bad time of it. This is one of the advantages the winter campaign will bring us. It is a sad but good thing that war and sentimentality do not go together. The merciless conduct of war is, in the end, the most merciful, because war is soonest ended thereby.

"The war with Russia is now chiefly a question of whose nerve will snap first. If Austria and Germany have stronger nerves—and they have—they will be victorious."

HOUSE OF COMMONS VOTES MILLION MORE FOR ARMY

Supplementary Estimate For Enlistment Increase is Passed This Morning

By Associated Press. London, Nov. 20.—The House of Commons today passed the vote for the supplementary army estimate which provides for an additional army of 1,000,000 men.

SCHOOL DISTRICT PROPERTY VALUE TOTALS $9,311,650

Rolls Are Complete For Current Year—Should Yield $46,558.25 in Revenue

Assessed valuations in the Wichita Falls Independent School district total $9,311,650. City Tax Collector Harry F. Robertson who is also collector for the school district has completed the rolls for the district. Of the total valuations $6,361,355 are represented by real estate.

The city's valuation is taken for property within the city and the county's valuation for property outside the city within the district. At the rate of 50 cents on the hundred dollars' valuation the revenue on this valuation would be $46,558.25.

FROZEN GROUND HINDERS GERMAN TROOP MOVEMENT

By Associated Press. Berlin, Nov. 20.—via wireless to London, 3:10 p. m. The German official statement today says:

"In West Flanders and in north France no appreciable change in the situation has taken place. Heavy rains and snows which first soaked and then partially froze the ground have made our movements very difficult. A French attack at Congre to the southwest of Verdun was repulsed. The situation on the East Prussian front remains unchanged. East of the plain of the Mazurian lakes the Russians captured an unoccupied fort in which were some old obsolete cannon. The retreat of the enemy through Litno and Neawami continues."

EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION MEETING NEAR ROCKPORT

CRITICAL STAGE REACHED IN RUSSO-GERMAN CONTEST

Two Big Battles Impending In East And Much Depends On Outcome Of Fighting

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 20.—Both in London and in Berlin the present stage of the campaign in Russian Poland is regarded as highly important. Germany's advance in the Warthe-Vistula country is being watched with intense interest. Petrograd, however, while vitally concerned, seems only indifferently interested. Army headquarters in Petrograd announces that two great battles have developed along the eastern front, one in the line between Czenstachowa and Cracow, apparently extending along the railroad between these two points; the second, in the Warthe-Vistula region. But Russian observers do not appear to attach significance to the outcome of this latter conflict.

Russian war chiefs state their advance in East Prussia and Galicia continues, in spite of their admitted retreat in the center. German strategists believe continued reverses in Russian Poland will force the Russians to draw back their northern and southern armies. Fragmentary reports today showed the German army was still pressing the Russians back through Poland through the same battlefields across which the Russians a few weeks ago were advancing victoriously. It has been reported several times that the Germans were sending thousands of their finest troops from France and Belgium, to the east.

A general survey of the reports received here from all quarters conveys the impression that the German advance in the Vistula has met at least a temporary check, while the Russian invasion in east Prussia has suffered a like fate near Angerbert, where the German defense consisting chiefly of lines of wire entanglements are reported to be very strong.

GERMANS CHARGED WITH MASSACRE OF CITIZENS IN TWO BELGIUM TOWNS

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 20.—The Belgian commission of inquiry into alleged German violation of the laws of customs of war has just issued a lengthy report. It says that more than 650 persons were shot by the Germans in the village of Tamines. Referring in detail to this alleged massacre, the report describes how a group of between 400 and 450 men were collected in front of the village church. As shooting them down with rifles proved too slow, German officers ordered a machine gun and those not killed from the bullets from this machine were finished with bayonet thrusts.

According to the commission's report more than 700 inhabitants of Dinant were killed; eighty-four of these were shot to death on parade square and fifty others outside a church from which they had been driven by the Germans. The report alleges that more than 1000 similar executions took place in the province of Luxembourg.

TAKES PASTEUR TREATMENT FOLLOWING BITE BY SKUNK

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, Nov. 20.—Because a ranchman threw a rock at a "polecat" and afterward engaged in a battle with the varmint he is now being treated at the Pasteur Institute in Austin for a bite inflicted by the animal. The battle occurred a few days ago on a ranch about twenty miles north of San Antonio. While the ranchman was crossing a pasture he saw lying beneath a chinquapin bush about 25 yards distant what appeared to be a bundle of white and black fur. His sportsmanlike qualities proved too great a temptation to be resisted and the ranchman picked up a stone and threw it in the direction of the bush. The skunk, instead of running away, made a dash for the rancher, who, taken by surprise, resisted as best he could; but was finally put to flight after the cat had inflicted an ugly wound in his leg.

MANY BELGIAN JEWS ARE AMONG PILGRIMS

By Associated Press. London, Nov. 20.—Thousands of Belgian Jews of the middle class are among the penniless refugees who have flocked to England. Many of these are absolutely destitute and the Jews' Temporary Shelter has undertaken the work of caring for them. The London Lodge of the B'nai B'rith has opened a refuge in Willenden where many are cared for and hospitality is being found for them as rapidly as possible. Jewish homes throughout London have been opened to the refugees, but the committees are unable to find sufficient accommodations for the unfortunate, many of whom are men and women of refinement accustomed to much better living conditions than can be afforded them in temporary quarters.

FREIGHT ENGINE RUNS WILD IN YARDS AT CLEVELAND

Engineer Jumps But Fireman Sticks To His Post and Finally Succeeds in Stopping

By Associated Press. Cleveland, O., Nov. 20.—An Erie freight engine traveling 50 miles an hour ran wild in Cleveland today endangering the lives of a score of persons at grade crossings and resulting in serious injury to S. W. Hitch, aged 41, engineer of Youngstown who jumped to avoid what he considered sure death. The fireman succeeded in stopping the engine near the heart of the city. When ten miles out of Cleveland the throttle broke and the engine got beyond control.

CLASS NUMERALS PAINTED ON ROOF OF HIGH SCHOOL

First Seniors, Then Juniors, Seek to Write Their Names High Up in World

Some of the members of the senior class of the high school probably felt that they would not make a lasting record for their class by merely going to school five days in the week for about nine months, so their fervent desire to leave something by which they could be remembered resulted in the class numerals 1915 being painted in glaring relief on the roof of the building.

Their fame was secure, or so they thought and they enjoyed that doubtful feeling of pleasure that comes with doing something naughty until this morning when much to their sorrow they observed that the juniors had done them one better. High on the dome where it can be seen all around has been painted "Juniors 1915" and the juniors have left their mark in a place where it would be hard to beat.

Chicago Futures.

By Associated Press. Chicago, Nov. 20.—Wheat sagged today as a result of a lull in buying for export account. After opening 1-8 off to 1-4 up the market suffered a moderate general setback. Continued cold weather made bearish sentiment regarding corn more pronounced. The opening from the same as last night to 1-4 cent lower, was followed by an all around decline. Oats became weak in sympathy with corn. Business, however, lacked volume. Wheat closed weak. Corn closed steady. Closing: Wheat, Dec. 1.15 1/4; May 1.21 5/8. Corn, Dec. 46 3/4; May 71. Oats, Dec. 50 1-8; May 53 3/4.

New Orleans Cotton.

By Associated Press. New Orleans, Nov. 20.—Cotton opened today with contracts showing irregularity. The near months were at a slight advance while the more distant months were at a small decline. The undertone was steady and half an hour after the opening the market stood two to four points over yesterday's close. Liverpool became a moderate buyer of the December contracts shortly after the opening, presumably to cover shorts and active months ruled two to seven points per higher during the early afternoon. December rose eleven points above yesterday's close. Spot cotton steady. Sales on spot 8.25. To arrive 200. Middling 7 3-8.

New York Cotton.

By Associated Press. New York, Nov. 20.—Spot cotton quiet. Middling uplands 7.60. No sales. Cotton futures closed very steady. Dec. old 7.18; Jan. old 7.33; new 7.39; March old 7.30; new 7.56; May old 7.44; new 7.75; July 7.94.

SUIT AGAINST CITY FILED BY PRISONER

MAN WHO WAS HURT IN JAIL SUES CITY FOR $6,500 DAMAGES

LOST HIS THUMB WHILE DRUNK

Another Prisoner Chewed on It, He Alleges, Making Amputation of Member Necessary

Because a fellow prisoner bit and chewed his thumb so that amputation was necessary J. H. Lewallen has filed suit for damages against the city of Wichita Falls in the district court for $6,500 damages, actual and exemplary. In his petition Lewallen says that he was arrested in August by two policemen in the city jail for some time, with vicious and dangerous characters.

The petition further says that when arrested and while in the city jail Lewallen was "physically helpless and incapable and in such a state of intoxication that he was unable to care for himself or to prevent other vicious and dangerous characters from committing outrages."

While so confined the petition alleges Lewallen was attacked by one of these characters and this thumb bitten and chewed so that amputation was necessary.

It is alleged that the city and its employees were guilty of gross negligence in that they did not provide separate cells for prisoners who were incapable of defending themselves from attack by fellow prisoners and that the city was further guilty of neglect in not providing a guard to protect its prisoners.

So far as the court records show this is the first suit that has been filed by a prisoner in the city jail.

SCHEDULE FOR UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL TEAM IN 1915

Austin, Nov. 19.—A tentative schedule for the 1915 University of Texas football season has been announced by Athletic Director Belmont. Two important changes are noted in the arrangements—one which will compel the Longhorns to play nine games instead of eight, as formerly, and the other is the placing of San Antonio on the schedule for a game.

Only one game is absolutely certain as yet, this being the Oklahoma game in Dallas. Sewanee will be the attraction in all probability at Houston, and Haskell at San Antonio. Arrangements have not been completed for the Thanksgiving game. Every effort is being made to secure a game at Dallas. Final arrangements for this will not be made until after the approaching Thanksgiving.

The schedule as it will probably stand is as follows:

- October 2—T. C. U. at Austin.
- October 9—Trinity at Austin.
- October 16—Rice at Austin.
- October 23—Oklahoma at Dallas.
- October 30—Southwestern at Austin.
- November 6—Sewanee at Houston.
- November 12—Unfilled; efforts being made to get Alabama, Auburn, Tennessee or Oklahoma A. & M.
- November 19—Haskell Indians at San Antonio.
- November 25—Notre Dame at Austin.

French Remedy Aids Stomach Sufferers

France has called the nation without stomach troubles. The French have for generations used a simple mixture of vegetable oils that relieve all stomach and intestinal ailments and keep the bowels free from foul, poisonous matter. The stomach is left to perform its functions normally.

Mr. Geo. H. Mayr, a leading druggist of Chicago, cured himself with this remedy in a short time. The demand is so great that he imports these oils from France and compounds them under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. People everywhere write and testify to the marvelous relief they have received using this remedy—one dose will rid the body of poisonous accretions that have accumulated for years and convince the most chronic sufferer from stomach, liver or intestinal troubles. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by Foshee & Lynch and druggists everywhere.

BELGIUM PROVIDES INTERESTING STUDY

SEVEN AND A HALF MILLIONS LIVE IN 11,373 SQUARE MILES

HAVE MANY STRANGE CUSTOMS

Are Excellent Farmers and Average Production Far Exceeds That of This Country

Washington, Nov. 20.—Perhaps no other organization in the United States is keeping in such close touch with the geography of the European war as the National Geographic Society of Washington. While it is furnishing geographical data daily to the press, it is itself receiving a wealth of geographic material with reference to the countries at war, their peoples, their customs, their industries, and their geographic history. In a communication on "Belgium, the Innocent Bystander," William Joseph Showalter tells the more than 300,000 members of the society:

"The Belgium of today has an area less than one-fourth as great as Mississippi, yet at the outbreak of the present war its population was four times as large as that of Mississippi. Twenty-two and a half countries like Belgium could be tucked away in a state like Texas, and their aggregate population would be more than that of the United States and Germany together."

According to this writer Julius Caesar himself bears early witness to the bravery of the Belgians, who, he says, were braver than the Aquitani or the Celts, due to the fact that they were nearer the Germans, with whom they were constantly at war.

Within Belgium's 11,373 square miles of territory, smaller than Massachusetts and Connecticut, with a population of 7,579,000, there lived at the outbreak of the war, nearly three million French speaking Walloons who cannot talk with a like number of their compatriot Flemish speaking Flemings. In their habits of mind and methods of gaining a livelihood they differ as widely as the English and the French, but the bond of religion has bound them together for generations, with never a fratricidal war in their modern history.

Passes Instead of Pay.
The Belgian constitution, framed in 1830 by a convention of Belgians, guarantees freedom of conscience, of education and of press and the right of free suffrage. The kingdom is filled by succession. There is a cabinet, a senate, and a house of representatives. A senator's pay remarkable as it may seem, is a free pass on the railroads without a dollar of actual salary. A representative gets a free pass and $600 a year.

The average man has an interesting A. Belgian gets one vote when he reaches the age of 25. If, at the age of 35 he pays one dollar in taxes and is married or a widower with legitimate children, he gets a second vote. If he pays a certain amount of taxes or holds a university diploma he is entitled to two additional votes. Every citizen in no case may a man cast more than three votes. In selecting representatives, parties and not men are voted for, and each party gets a representation in proportion to its voting strength.

The Belgians are fine farmers. They grew last year, 37 bushels of wheat to the acre, whereas the United States grew 15; 50 bushels of barley to this country's 24; 312 bushels of potatoes to this country's 90.

Belgium has been a land of low wages and cheap living. Many of the people who fashion the exquisite Belgian lace get only five dollars a week and the average wage earner's income is only about $165 a year. But with all that, the Belgian housewife is an artist in making a little go a long way, has fed her family well and clothed them comfortably.

There were no milkmen in Belgium for the women drove the dog carts that constituted the nation's milk wagons. Every milk can had to shine, every dog had to have harness to fit him, a bowl for his drinking water and a carpet bag to lie down on when tired. No dog in Belgium, except those of the rich, escaped bearing his share of this family burden.

Heavy Beer Consumers.
The people of Belgium were the world's greatest beer drinkers before the outbreak of the present war, with 48.8 gallons per capita per year, as compared with the German consumption of 26.3 gallons. On the other hand the Belgian used only one gallon of wine as compared with the Frenchman's thirty-four gallons.

Railway fares were very low. A double daily journey of 20 miles, cost 37½ cents a week; of 44 miles, 50 cents a week. Every person entering a railroad station had to pay one cent for that privilege, and the revenue therefore amounted to $50,000 a year.

Belgium's foreign business was very large. Those wonderful little engines that did such good work at Panama were made there, and an example of Belgium's exports. The country's foreign trade was greater than that of all South America together. If the United States imported as much per capita as Belgium, its imports would total twelve billion dollars a year; if we exported as much per capita our export business would amount to ten billion dollars a year.

ENGLAND'S BIG WAR LOAN APPARENTLY OVERSUBSCRIBED

London, Nov. 19.—Indications are England's enormous war loan of $1,750,000,000 will be oversubscribed. A long line waited outside the Bank of England before the doors opened today. The Little Mother. It was a little mother. With bent and silvery head. While people shouted "Victory!" She sat there with her dead.

"Our land is safe; our cause is won," The eager thousands said; But the little mother only sobbed; "O God, my boy is dead!" They brought great wreaths to cover The wounds, still gaping wide, But she saw naught but the dull white face Of the boy who loved—and died.

"Think how he saved his country! Honored his name shall be And unborn millions bless his deeds!" "He's dead," said she.

HOMES OF WOMEN WRECKED BY THE INVADERS

Women Deserve a Better Fate. American women are better off than their European sisters in most respects. Our American girls, however, are of highly nervous organization and usually suffer from troubles peculiar to their sex.

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, when women pass through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances.

At these critical times women are best fortified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, an old remedy of proved worth that keeps the entire female system perfectly regulated and in excellent condition. Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

For all diseases peculiar to woman, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a powerful restorative. During the last 30 years it has banished from the lives of tens of thousands of women the pain, worry, misery and distress caused by irregularities and disorders of a feminine character.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister needs help get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form at any medicine dealers today. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and write: "Dear Doctor: Please send me, without charge further information," and you will receive confidential advice from a staff of specialists that will not cost you a penny. Today is the day; 136 page book on woman's disease sent free.

MR. AND MRS. T. P. ADAMS HONOR OUT OF TOWN GUESTS

Of the numerous enjoyable social affairs of this season none have been more charming in execution or more delightful than the hospitality of Mrs. T. P. Adams Thursday evening, honoring Mrs. Virgie Lowenstein of Houston, sister of the hostess and Mrs. Luther Haynie of Dallas house guest of Mrs. E. P. Greenwood. For the floral motif the hostess had chosen the two most favored of the fall blossoms, the fluffy chrysanthemum and the violet, and the entire house was transformed into a bower of beauty reminiscent of the Flowery Kingdom with the woodland beauties intermingled. In the reception hall and the library the chrysanthemums in the golden and white tones were featured and in the dining room the violet scheme predominated. Forty-

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS. Carrier boys are not authorized nor is it any part of their duty to collect for subscriptions to The Times.

More prospectors have been in Wichita Falls within the past ten days than for many months before.

Even in times like the present, with the European war on, the Panama Canal is producing revenue to the amount of $500,000 annually above the amount estimated that is required for maintenance.

that business with the canal will pick up.

Within the past fifteen years Congress has attempted several times to pass a law that would close cotton exchanges, or all exchanges where products of the soil were sold, because, it was claimed they made fictitious prices. But the exchanges were never closed by law. Since about August first the exchanges have been closed, this having been brought about by the war in Europe. They are now open again, and many who had heretofore been of the opinion that cotton exchanges were not friends of the cotton producers—that they more often than not were devoting their efforts to hammering down the price of cotton, were rather inclined to believe they were mistaken, and were glad when the announcement came that the exchanges would open again on the 16th. Well, that has happened; but if there are those who expected that the exchanges were going to help boost the price of cotton, they are doomed to disappointment. The price remains about the same as it was before the exchanges opened. In fact, the day they opened the price went off about forty points. It is only once in a great while that a man like Sally appears in the cotton exchanges. There are no Sallys now. All of them apparently are using their very best efforts to hammer the price of cotton down. And yet there are some very good and prominent people in Texas, some of whom are engaged in editing some of our best newspapers, who tell their readers that cotton exchanges greatly facilitate the marketing of cotton. So far as the Times is concerned, it has never believed that the cotton exchanges were any advantage whatever to the cotton producer. On the other hand, it has been charged repeatedly the cotton raisers of the South are paying tribute to the cotton exchanges of about $150,000,000 annually, and it looks as if they were going to get full measure this year.

New York cotton exchange gamblers since the opening of the exchange the first of the week have been putting up a pretty strong bluff but all the while the people of the South have been sitting back with four aces or whatever else makes the best hand have been allowing the bear gambler pile up wrath against himself. The people of the South know they've got the stuff and whenever the other fellow gets through with his bluff he can come to terms with them but not before. The big loan (and the disposition of all business elements not only of the South but of the whole country, to stand behind the southern farmer in his determination to secure a fair price for his cotton is going to win this day.

And then, along in January, we shall have a new governor and another session of the legislature. And perhaps this time we shall accomplish something in a positive way as well as negatively doing well by striking off a few of the burdensome laws that have been enacted by some previous legislatures.—Greenville Herald.

We may have a new legislature before we have a new governor if the present incumbent is permitted to have his way. Not for the purpose will the session be held to strike off a few of the burdensome laws, we have now, but to add a few more on the statute books curtailing the rights and privileges of the citizen. Oh, the laws we have, and the laws we are threatened with, is enough to drive us all crazy.—Denison Herald.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

Joe Kemp of Wichita Falls says "It is both disappointing and unjust to the South that the New York Cotton Exchange should open as a bear market."

The spinner is a bear all the time. The speculator is the only competitor of the spinner. Our laws, both State and Federal, have played directly into the hands of the spinner.—Waco Times-Herald.

IRVING COBB'S FAVORITE YARN.

Irving S. Cobb, the writer, tells this as the piece of humor that has tickled his fancy most:

A large slow-footed darkey was leaning against the corner of the railroad station in a Texas town when the noon whistle in the canning factory blew and the hands hurried out bearing their scrub buckets. The darkey listened, with his head on one side, until the rocketing echo had died away. Then he heaved a sigh and remarked to himself: "I like that story," says Cobb, "because it is about because there is pathos under the laugh—as there always should be to make the laugh go better—and because there is a certain philosophy bound up in it which is not only Afro-American but American."

A NEW CONCEPTION OF OFFICIAL DUTY.

Woodrow Wilson has made several innovations since he became president, and all of them were along lines of wisdom. He has done nothing sensational or eccentric, has not played to the galleries or pandered to the mob, but has asserted his prerogatives, and, in a way he has done so in an unusual way at times it has been charged that he has trespassed upon ground where he is forbidden to go.

When he wanted to deliver a message to Congress he went and told them what he had to say—went in propria persona and gave it to them by word of mouth—whereupon all that element which believes that what once was must always be, and what has not been should never be, were horrified; but they got Woodrow Wilson's views straight, from the shoulder.

The platform on which he was elected demanded certain reforms, and a platform with him meant what it said. It was not for use only until the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1912, but was good in 1913 and 1914, and he held Congress so. He had an absolutely clear conception of what he wanted and what the situation demanded and what the people needed, and with the general idea always in view, he took the congressional leaders into his confidence and consulted with them and exchanged ideas; but he was always leader, though he might have seemed to follow.

He was not content to send in a long, perfunctory message in accordance to conventional usage, and accompany it with a bundle of department reports that would fill a cart, but he made known his views, tersely, frankly and with unmistakable clearness, and while he did not transgress

Osteopathy. The theory of osteopathy I believe to be perfect. Since 1874 it has been subjected to all the tests, which science can apply. I have yet to hear of one single honest investigator who has disputed its correctness. The practical side is yet in its infancy, no one can live long enough to master osteopathy, but we have accomplished much. The purpose of these articles are to inform the public of some of these things. I firmly believe that every mother in the city would be anxious to have me treat her child, if she but knew what I had to offer. My checks to the bank in acute cases are usually 6 or 8 dollars, and the patient has no long spell of sickness. Osteopathy is not the only way, but I believe it to be the safest way to preserve health or to regain it if you have lost it. If interested in health consult an osteopath. COMPLETE TRANQUILITY NOW PREVAILS IN PARIS

Attitude of People is Almost Indifferent, To Judge From outward Appearances

By Associated Press. Paris, Nov. 19.—Parisians are becoming stolid under the trials of war. Bomb throwing aeroplanes have been unable to disturb them, and the long campaign in the north has not exhausted their patience. They are glad if the allies gain but a mile a day, and seem satisfied even if no ground has been lost.

Instead of the expected effervescence of impressive people threatened by such a redoubtable assailant as the German army, complete tranquility prevails. There seems to be entire confidence in one man—Joffre—and it is a striking exemplification of the force of character of the man that he has made map students of people who were pre-eminently hero worshippers.

Appearing in no way to romantic fancy, he takes himself entirely out of the category of the popular idol. The sale of postcards which is taken in France as a sure barometer of popularity, show that while most people want the photograph of this great general in their collection, he is outrun in order by King Albert, the Belgian soldier General French, "Tommy" Atkins and the Turco.

SOME OF THE WOUNDED ARE RECOVERING FROM TETANUS

By Associated Press. London, Nov. 20.—In the Royal Victoria Hospital at Netley, England's biggest military hospital are 4 convalescent cases of tetanus. This is especially true when the time of transport of wounded from the battle front took three weeks. Now that the injured are reaching here in three to four days, the risk of infection is not so great and the cases have decreased markedly.

ENFORCEMENT OF SPEED ORDINANCES

COUNCIL INSTRUCTS POLICE DEPARTMENT TO WATCH AUTOISTS CLOSELY

INQUIRY FOR BONDS OF CITY

Outlook Better For Sale of Securities—Several Other Matters Receive Council's Attention

The ten mile speed limit within the fire limits and eighteen miles in the residence portions of the city are to be enforced on automobile drivers more stringently in the future in an effort to reduce offenses for speeding. This will be the effect of action by the city council last night in instructing the police department to watch speeding more closely. Members of the council declared they thought there was too much speeding in view of the city's efforts to stop it.

Mayor Britain reported the first inquiry for the city's bonds since the outbreak of the European war. The inquiry he said came from a Chicago house dealing in bonds. Councilman Young also reported that the officers of the Woodmen's Circle who were here recently had made inquiry about the city's bonds saying that they were in the market for bonds of cities of this class. The mayor said he would take up correspondence with them and the Chicago house at once. In this connection it was decided to send City Attorney Nutt to Austin with the transcripts of proceedings in connection with the hospital and fire hall bonds. One contracting firm here has agreed to take the latter bonds in payment for their work if they are awarded the contract for the building, bids for which will be asked as soon as the bonds are approved by the attorney general.

Action On Other Matters.
The council ordered the immediate collection of delinquent sewer rents and gave instructions to the city tax collector to disconnect the premises of those who did not pay. Electrical Inspector Montgomery was appointed to do the disconnecting.

An order was passed for sidewalks on the south side of lot 7 of Block 4, subdivision of lot 2, block 4, Bellevue addition at the corner of Brook and Eleventh streets.

A report from Engineer Hickey in reference to the status of blocks 13 and 20 of the I. Jalowitz addition was submitted. In this report Mr. Hickey said he had found that these two blocks had been brought within the corporation in 1892 in the month of November when H. Henderson corrected the survey of the city. As these lots were not included in the city on January 1 of 1892 it was ruled that they could not be made to pay taxes for that year.

Chief of Police Nall was instructed to see that the piles of cotton, which have been standing on the streets for some time be removed.

A petition from residents and property owners in the S. W. Spivey addition asking that the streets in that addition be graded and a fire plug installed was referred to the streets and alleys committee.

At The Theaters

The Lydia Margaret
The new vaudeville opening yesterday for the remainder of the week is eminently pleasing. Nina Epey, the banjo girl, has a very clever single musical act and Meehan and Pearl offer a classy line of work in the way of a novelty act. Today's pictures include "The Padrone's Ward," a two-part Powers drama.

Are you aware that in New York City there is a society formed among the best, the most respected Italian-American citizens for the protection of themselves and the great mass of poor Italians in New York against the Black Hand society and other criminal factions made up of Italian? It is a well known fact that New York City had born many of Italy's worst criminals—criminals who adopt every means, from white slavery to blackmail and assassination, to fatten their purses. Fully aware of this such a society has been formed; for the better class of Italian people realize that they owe a certain moral obligation to protect their fellow countrymen against the ruffraff a criminal who have made America a harbor of safety. This society hires detectives, maintains a secret service to run down in conjunction with the police, perpetrators of Black Hand letters and protect Italian emigrant girls from the clutches of the white slave traffic.

In this two-reel powerful melodrama, "The Padrone's Ward," the spectator gets an insight into a certain phase of the Italian criminals' operations in the United States metropolis. The action swings around a little Italian girl brought to this country to be used virtually as a slave—of her final rebellion, the striking incidents which brought about her release, and the final suspension of the criminal.

A delicate love story—in the courtship and final marriage of the girl to an Italian-American banker—is woven into the action, only makes the play more sure of its hold upon the spectator's heart and interest.

Edna Maison is seen in the title role of the little Italian girl, the victim of her godfather's villainy, who brought her to this country as his ward. Miss Ingraham plays the part of a sympathetic and admiring friend. Lloyd Ingraham plays the part of a padrone vigorously and correctly. That Mr. Ingraham has also written and directed the play is another indication of his splendid ability.

The Gem
Mary Pickford is seen in two-reel graph one reel dramas and "The Ageless Gem."

While reading the paper, John Weller is amazed at the amount of "fads" settling forth the virtues of wigs, false teeth, form developers and other female beautifiers, turns to his wife and declares in disgust: "This magazine must be a big circulation among old ladies who want to look like Cinderellas." She merely laughs and soon afterwards Weller falls asleep in his chair. He dreams that he finds an old man making love to his wife, angrily confronts the old fellow and is told, "Your wife was my sweetheart sixty years ago." John is stunned by the news, asks his wife if it is true and she admits she is "eighty two years old." Deciding she must be one of those women who preserve their youthful appearance by artifice, he commands her to retire behind a screen and hand out all that is false about her. After receiving a wig, various "form plumpers" a full set of false teeth and pair of wooden legs John angrily kicks over the screen and to his horror finds nothing left but a little heap of clothes. Bobbing the poor fellow calls up the undertaker who brings a tiny coffin and places it in the room.

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for a month. I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles. Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me. At last my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing. I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.

The name should mean considerable to you—when selecting footwear

WHEN you buy a suit of clothes or a hat you are quite often guided by the reputation of the maker. It is necessary in this age of fakes and frauds.

In selecting a pair of shoes the same care should be exercised. Your safety lies in confining your purchases to a shoe with a name and reputation to sustain. If you are asked to buy a pair of shoes and the name of a reliable maker is not on the shoe you have a right to feel suspicious.

We specialize in SELZ Shoes for your protection. We sell them as cheap as good shoes can be sold for. This name represents honest footwear and they not only insist on having the name on their shoes but they insist on standing back of that name in a manner that leaves no doubt.

That's why the NAME should be your guide in the purchase of footwear even MORE than in the purchase of clothes or hats, flour or coffee.

abroad which has been given up by a friend of his in order to study in Paris, Marfion, realising that he is ready to sacrifice both himself and her unborn baby to his art, goes home to her people, where she evies her life for the child. His daughter Claudia is given to young romanceship when Londell returns famous. Her wealthy guardian engages him to paint her portrait. He comes to confide in the gentle girl who arouses his deeper affections, and as she listens to his story Claudia recognises her own father, of whose career she has not been left ignorant. The next day, she dresses in the old-fashioned gown in which Londell first painted dMarion, and slashing her own likeness on the easel, places the picture of her mother over it. When Londell comes, his slumbering conscience suffers a terrible awakening.

Other pictures are "The Fall of Muscle-Bound Hicks, Harry's sweetheart becomes infatuated with Muscle-Bound Hicks, the pugilistic champion, so Harry decides to take boxing lessons and challenge Hicks. Harry discovers that a cheese on which the manager is training his champion to make him strong, makes Hicks sick. On the night of the fight when Harry is being chased all over the ring, his second observes one of the audience eating a cheese sandwich of the kind Hicks dislikes. They secure the cheese, daub it on Harry's gloves and Hicks quickly meets his finish. Then Harry's sweetheart tells him he is her hero.

"Sweddie's Clean-Up" featuring Wallace Beery. "Sweddie's" father is the owner of a grocery store, and Sweddie takes care of the trade while father plays checkers all day. She is in love with a member of the police department, and at every possible opportunity slips out and holds hands with him. One day while her father is very much interested in a checker game, two burglars come in and carry away every article in the store, including the chairs on which the players are sitting. "Sweddie" makes all the noise possible but fails to arouse the checker friends. The burglars bind her and place her in a wagon with the stolen goods, where she is found by the police. They all give chase to the thieves and capture them.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WILL PLAY AT BOWIE TOMORROW

Will Be Last Contest Before Thanksgiving Game With Fort Worth Central

The high school football team will leave in the morning for Bowie where they will meet the Bowie eleven Saturday afternoon. This will probably be the last game of the local eleven before the game of Thanksgiving with Fort Worth Central High to be held at the city park.

If the Bowie team is as strong as that of previous years the local team may expect a stiff fight but since the first and only defeat of the season, when the team was first organized, the local high has strengthened so that they approach any team confident of victory.

IF OUR

City Cemetery were left to a lot of old grumps and grouches it would make a fairly good dumping ground for city debris, and I am thinking if it were not for the persistent effort of a few good citizens, we would not be able to point with pride to this silent place. Even with our best efforts there are a lot of citizens who are drooping on the busy ones, and the only way they locate their graves is by the location of some one's monument that they know is near. Isn't it sad the only thing some contribute towards such sacred grounds is complaints and fault finding. Such contributions distinguish character, but they don't beautify our BURIAL GROUNDS.

Passavant-en-Argonne — A small town on the southern border of the forest of Argonne, about six miles southeast of St. Menesould. At one end of the village is a steep mountain, the sides of which are covered with vineyards. Two hundred yards from the town is a monument bearing the words, "Here have the Prussians massacred 49 French soldiers, disarmed and prisoners of war. August 25, 1870." On this date the French volunteers on the Marne received orders to retire to St. Menesould. The detachment of 1,500 men was overtaken by the German cavalry and fled in disorder toward La Bassee. The Prussians captured 843 men and twenty-seven officers. At Passavant some of the prisoners were allowed to visit their homes in the neighborhood, and many took advantage of the opportunity to attempt to escape. During the excitement a shot was fired.
