ALLEGED ANARCHIST PLOT DISCOVERED IN NEW YORK

Death Of Carnegie And Rockefeller Part Of Supposed Plot—Attempt To Blow Up Cathedral

By Associated Press.

New York, March 2.—An attempt to blow up St. Patrick's Cathedral with a bomb today and the arrest of two men was followed by an announcement from police headquarters that the arrests had balked an anarchist plan to kill with bombs Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other wealthy men.

The intention of the anarchists according to the police was to inaugurate in New York a reign of terror. Part of the plot was, the police assert, for gangs of men armed with rifles and revolvers to appear simultaneously in various parts of the city to shoot and pillage and the biggest banks of New York were to be blown up and many wealthy men were to be slain.

Wrecking of the cathedral was to be the signal for the opening of this. The next movement, according to the police, was to place bombs in the homes of Andrew Carnegie, the Rockefellers and Cornelius Vanderbilt; then the anarchists planned, according to the police, to invade the financial district and lay their bombs in the city's biggest banks.

For months a central office detective had worked in the inner circle of the anarchists according to the police story. The detective, Frank Baldo, assisted in the manufacture of the bomb with which the attempt was made today to blow up the cathedral. The detective accompanied the bomb thrower to the edifice and sat with him while he hurled it at the altar. Immediately the cathedral at which 800 people sat at worship became alive with detectives. Baldo, sitting beside the bomb-thrower, placed him under arrest while the detective in the pew behind stamped out the sputtering fuse. There was no panic.

At police headquarters the alleged bomb-thrower said he was Frank Abarno, 24 years old. Detectives, acting on the information given them by Baldo later arrested Charles Carbone, an eighteen year old boy and charged him with complicity in the plot with helping to make the bomb.

According to Baldo Abarno had planned to wreck the cathedral a week ago late in the afternoon but had postponed execution of the idea partly at Baldo's suggestion. Today when he left his room with Baldo, half a dozen detectives, some of them disguised as laborers and carrying dinner pails, trailed him to the church.

The bomb was made most of round knobs which had been wrenched from iron fences in front of the houses of New York's wealthy residents.

Consent of Papa and Mamma Lacking; Licenses Refused

Deputy County Clerk Harris sent a young couple who applied at the county clerk's office for a marriage license back to Olney today to get a sworn acknowledgment to the consent of the young man's parents to his marriage. The girl was eighteen. The young man admitted that he was only seventeen but showed the written consent of his parents. The law requires that such consent shall be in writing and shall be acknowledged before a notary of public and no chances are being taken at the county clerk's office.

FRENCH DOG ESCAPES FROM GERMAN CAPTORS

Paris, March 2.—Among the ambulance dogs sent to the front recently by Madame Kresser, president of the Ambulance Dog Society, was "Truc," a French shepherd, who was captured by the Germans and kept in captivity several weeks. He managed to escape and find his way back to his kennel in Paris, a distance of over 100 miles.

GOVERNOR'S MANSION IS SCENE OF RECEPTION TODAY

Austin, Texas, March 2.—Governor and Mrs. James E. Ferguson are to give their first official reception to the lawmakers and citizens generally here tonight. The function promises to be largely attended and it is anticipated will be along strict "democratic" lines.

REPORT ARRAIGNS COLORADO MILITIA

CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE GIVES RESULT OF ITS STRIKE INVESTIGATION

ABSENTEE OWNERS CRITICISED

"Cannot Escape Their Moral Responsibility"—No Evidence of Peonage Is Found

Washington, March 2.—A scathing arraignment of the Colorado militia for its treatment of striking miners and their families is contained in a voluminous report submitted to the House today by the mine and mining sub-committee, which investigated conditions in the Colorado coal fields.

While scoring conditions generally in the coal fields and criticizing many of the acts of the mine operators, including alleged violation of the state laws, the committee reports that no evidence was found of a conspiracy in restraint of trade to limit the output of the mines, nor conclusive proof of the existence of peonage.

The strike was settled long before the committee completed its report so no specific recommendations are made. The committee appeals, however, for arbitration in such situations. It declares that these disturbances are nationwide in their importance. It declares that the federal government is the only power competent to deal with them and, after referring to the testimony of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who disclaimed responsibility for Colorado conditions, adds:

Many violations of law. "Absentee owners or directors, by their absence from the scene of such disturbances, cannot escape their moral responsibility for conditions in and about properties in which they are interested."

Liberal extracts from the 2,000 pages of testimony taken by the committee are embodied in the report, with this comment: "Considerable testimony on both sides of the controversy, we believe, is unreliable and no confidence should be placed in it. However, the good mining men and the miners are in one accord in their opinion that if they are enforced, yet in this State, the percentage of fatalities is larger than any other, showing there is undoubtedly something wrong in reference to the management of its coal mines. It is contended by the miners as one of their grievances that the operators do not obey the law and, however, good the laws may be, if not observed, they are of no protection."

The testimony of James Dalrymple, the state mine inspector, calls attention to the many violations of the law by the operators and the miners claim this as one of the causes leading up to the strike. The report of Mr. Dalrymple also says he found in some cases the operators had put in operation new devices and systems of an advantage to the miners.

Militia On Operators' Side. "It seemed as if the militia was on the side of the operators in the controversy," says the report, after citing the action of the governor in calling out the state troops, "and the evidence seems conclusively to prove such to have been the case. The sooner men armed in the service of the State learn that the men with whom they may deal may be poor and ignorant, and even violators of the law, but are still human, the better it will be for all concerned."

"The recruiting of mine guards as members of the militia, in our judgment, was a mistake, once intense animosity had existed for sometime between the mine guards and the miners and it was difficult, or even impossible for the miners to feel that these men were neutral conservators of the peace. Some of the militiamen seized the opportunity, while clothed with the authority of the State, to engage in various lawless acts."

"In other instances the acts were of an immoral kind and of such a nature as to be unfit for publication in this report. There were acts of brutality testified to before the committee which might be enumerated; men on slight provocation were thrown into jail and kept there without the opportunity of proving their innocence. There were many good men in the militia, both officers and privates, and the strikers testifying said that certain companies were composed of kind men, and that their houses were to be searched they asked that members of these companies might be sent; but if others were sent to do the searching they would be subjected to indignities and probably would be robbed of whatever they might have that the militia wanted."

Adjutant General Denounced. The committee denounces John M. Chase, adjutant general of the militia of the State, for his refusal to testify except on condition that he would not be questioned by representatives of the miners and declared that he was overbearing to all who came in contact with him.

Reviewing the testimony of many witnesses, the report says from the time the strike was called until the federal troops were sent into the field by the president of the United States there was a series of battles which seemed to be fierce while they lasted and a number of people were killed.

TO ANSWER LATEST NOTE

WILSON SAYS 'NO NATION HAS RIGHT TO CHANGE RULES OF WAR'

TO ASK WHAT METHODS

British-French Note Considered General in Terms and More Definite Word Is Wanted

Washington, March 2.—The United States will send a note to Great Britain and France to answer the one received yesterday, to inquire what means will be taken in the carrying out of the policy of holding up supplies being carried to and from Germany. President Wilson told callers today that the British-French note outlined in very general terms a policy but did not define the means of carrying it into effect.

President Wilson refused to discuss the subject in detail but said no nation had the right to change the rules of warfare because the methods of war had changed.

WILSON'S SHIPING RESPECTED. He indicated the United States would not change its previously announced position but would continue to make efforts to have the belligerents respect American shipping of a non-contraband character. The president said it was clear in his own mind whether the action of the British and French governments established a blockade of Germany although that would be the general effect of the order. He indicated that even though a real blockade was established no questions affecting the neutrality of the United States would be precipitated by the suspension of United States ships to Germany.

The president added he had not had opportunity thoroughly to digest the contents of the communication from Great Britain and France but that the question was under serious consideration. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, a White House caller today said the British-French action would affect southern cotton growers but would have more serious effect on the cotton mills. That, he said, was the question with most mills in Germany and the supply on hand in this country was very small.

The Netherlands minister inquired at the state department what reply the United States intended to make. He desired to send word to his government that the opinion was expressed that the Netherlands, with other neutrals, would send representations similar to those this country might make. No indications were given as to just when a reply might be sent but the general belief was it would not be delayed long.

LARGE CREAMERY TO BE BUILT HERE

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ACCEPTS PROPOSITION OF OKLAHOMA MAN

NEW BUILDING TO BE ERECTED

Representative To Be Sent To Fort Worth To Help Secure Meeting of Woodmen

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce this morning endorsed a proposal made by R. J. Easterday of Enid, Okla., for the building of an ice cream factory and creamery in this city and appropriated a committee to raise not more than $3500 for the erection of a building for the factory. Mr. Easterday is to lease this building for a term of three years paying a rental that will net the owners a per cent per annum. E. Leopold, C. Bean, J. A. Kemp and H. B. Hines were appointed members of the committee to select a site and raise the money for its purchase and the erection of the building not to exceed a total cost of $3500. Mr. Kemp announced that he would furnish half of the money.

Mr. Easterday for several years has been manager of a creamery and ice cream factory at Enid operated by the Swift Packing Co. In the enterprise here he will have associated with him three other young men who have had experience in the business. He told the directors of the Chamber of Commerce this morning that his company would invest not less than $4,000 in machinery and equipment and that the plant would have capacity for 20,000 gallons of ice cream and 40,000 pounds of butter weekly. He asked only that a suitable building be found for his business for which he would pay a rental that would give a good return for the money invested.

Representatives of the Woodmen lodges asked that the Chamber of Commerce send an official representative to the meeting of the head camp at Fort Worth next week to help in the campaign to bring the 1916 meeting to Wichita Falls. A. L. Huey was appointed and was authorized to make arrangements for headquarters in one of the hotels there.

LEGISLATURE MAY WORK UNTIL APRIL

MARCH 15 SINE DIE ADJOURNMENT RESOLUTION IS DEFEATED

NO INQUIRY INTO COMPROMISE

Senate Committee Reports Adversely on Proposed Probe into Katy Agreement

Austin, Texas, March 2.—By a vote of eleven to nineteen the Senate today defeated the House concurrent resolution which provides for a sine die adjournment of the legislature on March 13. The sine die resolution came up on the adoption of the adverse minority report of the committee on rules and failed only by a vote of fourteen to sixteen. The general sentiment now in the Senate seems to be to prolong the present session until April in order that the platform demands may be acted upon as argued by Governor Ferguson.

The Senate passed finally the Hudson bill which provides for an appropriation of $25,000 to prevent the entrance into Texas of the so-called foot and mouth disease among cattle. The Senate committee on rules today reported unfavorably Senator King's resolution which calls for an investigation of the Katy compromise suit and the attorney general's compromise. Senator King gave notice of favorable minority report. He has not decided when he will call the resolution up.

Sackett Resolution Up. The House started consideration of the Sackett resolution for separation of the University and A. & M. College today. No action had been taken by recess. The House engrossed Dickson's bill appropriating $5000 for suppressing and eradicating of citrus canker. The bill by Davis, Reeves and Dayton amending the fee act so as to fix the maximum amount of salary and fees that may be received by any official and providing that profits from feeding prisoners shall be considered as fees, was also engrossed.

For New Appellate Court. Beaumont will have another opportunity to get a new court of civil appeals as the result of a favorable report of the Justice McDevall bill by the committee on supreme judicial districts. Bruce submitted an opinion from Attorney General Looney to the effect that the killing of the bill removing the first court of civil appeals from Galveston to Houston and placing a new one at Beaumont does not prevent the legislature from creating a new court and placing it at Beaumont.

Quite a flurry was raised in the House when the Witt bill, fixing an occupation tax of $50 for wholesale druggists selling alcohol came up for consideration. Members jumped to their feet in all parts of the hall to inquire what effect the bill would have on the present liquor laws. Prohibitionists and anti-alike showed an anxiety to keep down anything that savored of liquor legislation. Members wanted to know whether the author was the opinion that the error would sign it. Witt explained that the bill made no change in the liquor laws, but simply exempted the wholesale druggists from the necessity of taking out a liquor license in order to sell alcohol to the retail trade.

The bill appropriating $25,000 for the purpose of employing special counsel for the State and defraying other incidental expenses in the hearings before the railroad commission on the matter of reducing rates in Texas was engrossed, after being amended to require that the money should be expended under the direction of the governor as well as the railroad commission. It probably will be passed finally and sent over to the Senate for concurrence in the amendment. The place of holding the hearings has been changed from Austin to Dallas, where they will begin March 4. It is expected the money will be available by that date.

Other Bills Engrossed. Amending the warehouse act of 1911 so as to permit warehouses organized under it to issue negotiable receipts on farm products. Submitting a constitutional amendment authorizing counties to levy a 50 cents ad valorem tax for school purposes.

The Harris bill permitting the hunting of deer in inclosed pastures for over 200 acres. The McKnight bill making the negotiable law apply to members of the legislature. The Tharp bill fixing ten years as the minimum age that children may be committed to the state juvenile training school at Gatesville.

The House killed the Spencer usurious interest bill, and the Payne bill permitting applicants for teachers' certificates to have credit for subjects in which they passed when they fell in examinations. Dry Dock Bill Passes. After the Senate had amended the Galveston dry dock bill until it became unrecognizable, its author, Senator Hall moved to strike out the enacting clause, but the Senate refused to let him do it, and the bill was finally passed 27 to 2, Hudson and Westbrook casting the negative votes. The amendments eliminate the name of J. J. Kane, to whom the

ATTACK ON DARDANELLES HALTED BY BAD WEATHER

Russia Claims Complete Success Of Counter Movement In Northern Poland

BRITISH PRESS PRAISES REPRISAL DECREE

German Submarines Score No New Points—Collier Claims To Have Rammed And Sunk One

By Associated Press.

London, March 2.—Operations of the French and British fleets against the Turkish fortifications on the Dardanelles, which, during the last week, have taken the warships some fifteen miles through this well defended and narrow waterway are at a standstill today on account of a gale accompanied by a heavy mist which hinders the efficient marksmanship of the naval gunners necessary to reduce the second line of forts concealed efit to the Turks but the allies, realizing the necessity of pushing an offensive movement with energy will resume the attack as soon as possible.

From Athens comes a report that Essad Pasha of Albanian fame, the Turkish soldier who made his reputation as a strategist by the defense of Janina in the Balkan war, has been placed in command of the Turkish forces at Gallipoli, flanking the straits.

Petrograd reports the completion of Russian military operations around Przasnysz and claims to have thrown back to the frontier at this point two German army corps. Petrograd announces also the resumption of the offensive by the Russian forces in Galicia.

Berlin officially announces the repulse of Russian attacks north of Lomza and northwest of Ostrolenka, but says that otherwise there is nothing to report along the eastern front. New dispatches reaching here from Berlin say that a certain degree of pessimism prevails there on account of the reported reaction in favor of Russia all along the eastern battle line. Vienna, more communicative than her allies, reports successful action in the western section of the Carpathians and artillery engagements in Galicia, where the Russians are said to have been heavily reinforced.

The British press is virtually unanimous in praise of Premier Asquith's announcement yesterday of Great Britain's reprisal against the submarine warfare of Germany. The only discord in the chorus of praise is the criticism that possibly neutral protests might have been obviated by the proclamation of a formal blockade. The only reported activity in connection with Germany's submarine vigil is provided by a story from a British collier which claims to have rammed a German submarine in the channel after the undersea craft had made an unsuccessful attempt to strike her with a torpedo.

LIQUOR LAWS OF KANSAS AFFECTED BY COURT RULING

Case Involving Interstate Shipments Is Decided In Favor of Defendant

Washington, March 2.—The Kirmeyer liquor case, one of the first importance to the prohibition laws of Kansas was decided in the supreme court against the State. It was alleged that after receivers had been appointed to oust various wholesale liquor dealers from doing business in Leavenworth, Kan., M. Kirmeyer went across the river into Missouri, established a warehouse and continued to deliver beer in Kansas. The Kansas supreme court held that his removal was a mere device to evade the Kansas liquor law and that the trade was not interstate commerce in good faith.

decisions of the court to protection for his trade as interstate commerce and dismissed an injunction issued by the Kansas supreme court.

Justice McReynolds stated in the opinion that the Kirmeyer case arose before the passage of the Webb-Kenyon law prohibiting shipments from wet to dry territory and that neither its construction nor application was involved or would be passed on. Advocates of the Webb-Kenyon law claim that measure would apply to such cases now.

Justice McReynolds said decisions of the supreme court precluded further discussion of the following facts: Beer is a recognized article of commerce; the right to send it from one State to another and the act of doing so are interstate commerce; the regulation thereof has been committed to Congress; and a State law which denies such right or substantially interferes with or hampers the same is in conflict with the constitution of the United States. Transportation is not complete until delivery to the consignee or until the expiration of a reasonable time thereafter and prior thereto to the provisions of the act of 1910 have no application.

TEXAS OBSERVING INDEPENDENCE DAY

THIS IS 70TH ANNIVERSARY OF DECLARATION OF FREEDOM FROM MEXICO

RECALLS REPUBLIC'S STRUGGLE

Independence Made Reality When Texans Defeated Mexican Force at San Jacinto

Just 70 years ago today 47 delegates of the people of Texas convened at Washington on the Brazos and drew up the declaration of Texas Independence with George C. Childress as author. The act of drawing up and signing the articles did not mark the end of the actual struggle for independence but served as a purpose as the famous declaration of 1776 and in the mind and heart of every Texan the date, March 2, is scarcely secondary to July 4.

The convention of 1836 followed a year of bloody struggles for the Texas colonists against Santa Anna and his generals and only preceded the fall of the Alamo by four days. The days immediately after the signing of the declaration until the battle of San Jacinto, April 21, were the darkest days of Texas. When the news of the horrors of the Alamo spread over the country, followed by the Goliad massacre, even the stoutest Texan hearts were fearful of the outcome and independence seemed very far away.

At San Jacinto the turning point came and for the remainder of the year 1836 the Texans were victorious, establishing a republic in September with Sam Houston, the hero of San Jacinto, as president. Freed from Mexican tyranny the young republic prospered, even though threatened from time to time by Mexican invasion. On March 2, 1837, a resolution was passed in the United States Senate, declaring Texas to be a free and independent republic, making this date of double importance to Texas patriots.

Independence Day is observed as a legal holiday throughout the State and with San Jacinto Day marks two of the most important dates for the Lone Star State. The celebration and observance of March 2 is due in a large measure to the efforts of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

PRODUCERS COMPANY TAKE MANY WILBARGER LEASES

(Vernon Record)

There is now under way in Wilbarger county a movement by the Producers Oil Company, one of the largest concerns in the country, that portends developments in the oil situation of unusual interest. A force of the Company's lessees are busy now, and have been for some little time past, securing leases on property along the creek, southwest of Vernon, beginning at a point about eight miles south of town. The leased section will probably extend to the Ford County line before the Company has secured enough leases to warrant them in making a thorough test of the territory. It is planned by the Producers Company to lease a practically solid body of about 10,000 acres before beginning to drill. Nearly that much has been secured. The foregoing facts were learned by a Record representative yesterday from a source considered absolutely reliable, the party furnishing the information being in touch with what is being done, and more or less familiar with the plans of the Producers people, so far as they have permitted their plans to become known to any one outside their own official circles.

It is also learned that this Company plans an expenditure of something like $200,000 to $300,000 in making a test of the territory they now have under lease or expect to lease in the near future in this county. The terms of the leases being written are considered unusually advantageous to the county and its citizens. In addition to an attractive cash lease fee paid the lessee each year, the Company agrees to pay a royalty on all oil and gas production that may result from the development. By this means no money will be paid out by our home people, while on the other hand the lessors will expend many thousand dollars on these leases and for work and material in their drilling operations, soon to be commenced under the terms of the leases.

At The Theaters

The Lydia Margaret

Anna Erinsrose, a clever actress of pleasing appearance, opened a three-day engagement here yesterday with her selected character studies. She made a great hit as old George Fredo, the original German comedian and songster. The bill is more than enjoyable. Today Grace Cunard and Francis Ford are featured in a two-part drama, "The Madcap Queen of Gredshoffen," a romantic and costume drama of life in an imaginary Balkan kingdom.

Perhaps the most sensational feature of this evening's romance is the "Prisoner of Zenda" school in a jump made from a 58-foot cliff by Francis Ford. The jump is followed by a stone throwing contest, with Ford as the target. The members of Prince Hendrick's retinue, a group of royal rowdies, do their best to hit Ford, and the wonder of it all is that the actor-director was not injured by one of the score of good-sized bricks and honest-to-goodness stones which splash all too realistically about him as he swims away from the base of the cliff from which he has jumped.

Grace Cunard is altogether a charming and queenly figure in a white satin gown which drops sheer from her shapely shoulders. It may be whispered, sub rosa, that the robe of pearls and the tiara worn by Miss Cunard are not her own, but were loaned by a San Francisco jeweler, whose name is as well known on the coast as Tiffany's in New York. Incidentally, Miss Cunard again displays her marksmanship—this time with a repeating rifle.

The madcap queen is threatened by Prince Hendrick, the pretender to the throne, who foments a revolution. An American tourist (Francis Ford) resents an insult and comes to blows with the prince's retainers. Later he hears a plot to depose the queen. He warns the queen of her danger, and when the attack is made upon the palace, leads the queen to safety and arouses the natives to a swift reprisal upon the pretender's forces.

The Majestic

"The Christian," Hall Caine's great drama, will be repeated today, having been shown to interested crowds yesterday both matinee and night. Edith Storey and Earl Williams have never had a greater vehicle for the exhibition of their wonderful dramatic powers.

The Gem

Augustus Plinius and Gertrude Dallas are featured in a two-part Edison drama, "The Magnate of Paradise," the picture being from the novel of the same name by Mary Lmly Taylor.

Holland refuses Betty's uncle, the magnate of the town of Paradise, to drop a suit against the Traction Company, brought by Harriet Hopper. As he passes the hallway, he fails to see Betty, and she wondering at his distracted behavior, suspects that her uncle has caused it. She overhears Callander talking to his attorney in his power to drop the young attorney.

Two months later, Betty reads in the newspaper that Holland has accepted a bribe from the Traction Company. She reproaches Finlaison for this lie and the promise to clear Holland of the accusation if Betty will marry him.

By good fortune, Holland recovers a budget of letters, long mislaid. They will prove Callander's undoing for they contain receipts for hush-money. Holland notifies Callander's infamy and age, but conscience bids him defend Miss Hopper. Betty pleads that he refuse to institute action against Callander, with the result that he hands in his resignation to the governor.

Finlaison continues to molest Betty. He tells her that he has Callander's consent to marry her, and brutally describes how Callander had killed the previous district attorney in order to obtain secret papers, and how he had witnessed the crime, but money tied his tongue. Betty accuses Finlaison of being an accessory to the crime. He retorts by saying that if she refuses to marry him, he will expose Callander. Betty demands the truth of Callander. He confesses and orders her to marry Finlaison, or leave his house at once. She chooses the latter alternative, and finds refuge with Miss Hopper.

That night, Holland was to speak in the town on the evils of machine rule. In a ward room of the hall, he bears a groggy youth, who has heard of Betty, proposes to drink a toast to her. Finlaison, himself fuddled, refuses to drink to drink the toast, declaring that he could have married Betty, had it not been for her intimacy with Holland. Holland floors him, but Finlaison wounds him, though not seriously. A mob attempts to lynch Finlaison but the police spirit him off to a cell.

Upon hearing the news, and learning that the Governor knows he is a murderer, Callander collapses and succumbs to heart failure. Holland recovers his bodily vigor, and Betty soon becomes the sharer of his prosperity.

The Empress

Mignon Anderson and Morris Foster are seen in a two-part Thrauhouser, "Her Menacing Past." Synopsis follows:

Anna Sanderson has been trained by her father, who is a professional burglar, to be his accomplice. She loves the excitement of the life and has no desire to reform. One day, however, the police trail the father and daughter, and Anna, in scaling a high wall, falls and is knocked senseless. Her father carries her in his arms for some distance. Then, seeing that there can be no escape for either of them thus, he places her in the vestibule of a house, and makes his getaway alone. A young doctor and his mother discover the unconscious girl. But when they have revived her they find that she has lost all remembrance of her past life. They keep her in their home, and eventually Anna and the doctor fall in love and are married. Some time after this, a fall from a horse restores the girl's memory. The old life of peril and adventure reasserts its attraction for her, and she is on the point of rejoining her father, who has discovered where she is living, when she realizes that stronger than love of adventure is the new love which she bears her husband.

The Empress

"Mignon" an adaptation from the opera "Wilhelm Meister" is the attraction at the Empress Wednesday. Beatrice Michelena is featured in this production. The Moving Picture World has reviewed "Mignon" as follows:

The chief charm of this story of Mignon lies in the character and untutored, sweet innocence of the young woman herself—she is youth personified. It is just an incident taken from "Wilhelm Meister." Goethe's great masterpiece which, as a whole, is pretty dull reading; but this part is considered one of the most charming things in literature. The story told in the scenes of the picture is true to the character; has much of the flavor of the great German story, and is more vivid and much more exciting. The beautiful leading woman intelligently blocks out the part rather than distill its essence for us. She is absolutely in focus on the character only at times, and this keeps a bit less gripping the middle scenes of the picture where the story's action runs more slowly than at the opening and closing. The whole shows excellent direction; the scenes, backgrounds and much of the acting are fine.

One of the "finest" good things in it is the playing of Musette, the gypsy girl, who commits suicide. Wilhelm Meister and "the actress" are also well played, although the latter, some may think, should have been a less coldly calculating woman. The picture opens with the meeting of Lothario, who has a wife and little girl at home, with Musette, the gypsy. He deceives her and when it all comes out she kills herself. Lothario's wife, an invalid dies. The gypsies steal Lothario's daughter and he, losing his mind, wanders as a minstrel in search of her. The middle scenes, several years later, show how Wilhelm finds her ill-treated and buys her from the gypsies. He is a gentleman of letters who (the picture leaves this part obscure) is led by a deep interest, in Hamlet to make friends with a troupe of players. A petty priceling invites the players to act as a fete for his guests. The guest of the players, Wilhelm, the gypsy girl and the wandering minstrel; her real father, are all at the fete. The action here is not exciting until the crazy minstrel sets the house on fire. He and the girl run away together and come by accident to his castle, where he is recognized and gets his mind back and there's a happy ending.

Built-in mileage is far better than patched-up adjustments—

When you buy Diamond Tires you buy tires that are built to give you the maximum tire service—tires that give you freedom from trouble and relieve you of the necessity of having adjustments made.

This is what a dealer who sold many thousands of Diamond Tires last year has to say about the service they gave the buyers:

"Gentlemen: "Cleveland, Dec. 15, 1914. "The performance of Diamond Tires during the past year has been eminently satisfactory. The claims for adjustment were almost a negligible quantity. On the other hand, we have had a great many voluntary reports as to the excellent service our customers have had from Diamond Tires. We feel that a perfect balance has been worked out in the scientific construction of these tires. The net result is that there appears to be the proper relation between the inside carcass and the outside rubber, so that there is no excess of either. The tire seems to wear out naturally and only after having given a very large mileage. "THE FOREST CITY RUBBER CO., "W. E. Croft, President."

Similar reports of Diamond service have been received from dealers all over the country.

Added to the wonderful Diamond service you can now buy Diamond Squegee Tread tires at the following

EXPLAINS ORIGIN OF REPORT ABOUT ASPHYXIATING SHELL

Paris, March 2.—"The legend of the asphyxiating properties of the three-inch projectile," says an artillery officer, "has been accounted for. We often found in the trenches bodies of soldiers who appeared to have been struck by a thunderbolt—no trace of a wound, no blood to be found on their bodies. It was finally decided to clear up the matter and autopsies were made of such cases. Each time there was found somewhere in the body a small fragment of our three-inch shell, having made an imperceptible wound but having penetrated a vital spot, causing mortal internal hemorrhages. This is due to the marvelous shell which breaks on the average of 2,000 paces, about half the length of a wound, no blood to be found on their visiting card."

LABOR PARTY WILL NAME CITY TICKET

TO MAKE NOMINATIONS FOR ALDERMEN TO BE ELECTED IN APRIL

FOLLOWS ACTION OF COUNCIL

Tabling of Recent Petition From the Trades Council is Recalled—Committee Appointed

The election of three members of the city council in the April election who will be in full sympathy with the labor interests of the city and especially with the plan of action sought by the Wichita Falls Trades and Labor Council.

At its meeting last night a committee of five was named to canvass the laboring men of the city and find who would be the strongest candidates for the three places on the city council that will be vacated by the expiration of the terms of Councilmen Reed, Bradley and Young. Those appointed on this committee were Mike Hanson, C. W. Johnson, J. B. Webb, C. H. Harris and C. D. Willard. A committee was also named to formulate a statement of principles to which these candidates will be asked to subscribe.

Claim 1800 Voters. It is estimated that there are nearly 1800 organized laborers in the city, most of whom are qualified voters, and it is certain that candidates who receive anything like all or the votes of the trades unionists will be elected.

The decision of the Trades Council to endorse candidates for councilmanic positions follows the drafting of a communication last week to the city council and county commissioners asking whether these official bodies would declare themselves in favor of giving all public work to home labor and to home contractors and, in lines in which labor was organized, to give the work only to organized labor. The communication was laid on the table by the city council at its last meeting.

Want Meter Inspector. was laid on the table by the city council last night was marked by enthusiasm and the decision to endorse candidates was unanimous. At last night's meeting a committee was also named to circulate petitions asking for the appointment of a meter inspector by the city council.

SAYS THAT PEACE OFFER OF ALLIES WAS REFUSED

New York, March 2.—The American of Sunday says:

"The New York American is in a position to state with absolute authority that peace negotiations were nearly concluded in the latter part of December. The terms offered by the allies, however, were such as the German Emperor was unwilling to accept. The allies demanded from Germany the cession of Alsace and Lorraine and the payment of an indemnity to Belgium sufficient to compensate that country for all her losses during the war. The German Emperor was unwilling to accept these terms, although Austria was apparently willing to consent to the terms imposed upon her, she decided to stand with Germany and so the peace negotiations fell through.

There was intimation in the press at the time that some peace negotiations were in progress, but the American is the first paper to be able to announce the terms which were offered Germany and rejected by her. "Readers of the American will also remember the significant manifesto issued by the Emperor of Germany early in January in which he exhorted his soldiers and his counselors to 'make every sacrifice for the peace of the world in the new year,' in order that a peace worthy of the sacrifices already made may be secured. The unworthy peace terms hinted at by the Emperor, the American has now been able to discover and relate to its readers with complete certainty and authority."

MR. HUFF DEFENDS ACTION OF CITY COUNCIL

Editor Times: I have read various communications recently of criticism upon our city council.

These communications are hardly fair when we remember that these councilmen only recently had a large amount of sewerage work done in which all of the work was done by some people and that the last paving contract and the fire station was also let to home men.

AMERICAN MINERS SUFFER IN CAUCASUS

PASS THROUGH MANY HARD SHIPS IN MAKING THEIR ESCAPE

MANAGER WOUNDED BY TURKS

Old Soldiers With Ancient Weapons Left To Guard Villages When Turks Approach

By Associated Press. London, March 2.—The gauntlet of dangers through which a small band of Americans and Englishmen passed in their escape from a copper mining camp in the Caucasus mountains at the time of the outbreak of war between Turkey and Russia is told by A. H. Trotter of Syracuse, N. Y., chief engineer of the company, who has finally reached London.

The mining village where the party was caught is called Dzansoul, and lies high up in the mountains about 40 miles from the Russian port of Batoum on the Black Sea. The defense of these mountain villages was left to only a few companies of Russian police armed with old black powder rifles. The report that the Turks were advancing in force from the south, and had driven in some of the Russian outposts, reached the village in November, and it was the next day that hostilities had begun.

American is Wounded

White was riding up the trail when shot suddenly poured upon him from a ridge across a ravine. Both he and his horse were struck, and he fell from the animal, wounded in the leg. From noon until evening he lay in the shelter of the rock, sniped at every time he showed his head. At dusk a party, of which Trotter was a member, sneaked up the hill to effect his rescue. They brought him down to camp, and then sent him to Batoum.

The following evening some Russian soldiers, with a battery of three-inch guns moved up. They stationed two of the guns near the smelter and four others lower down at Kara. Most of the non-combatants of the village left for Batoum, but a small party of Americans and British remained at camp. The situation was not taken seriously, as the Turks were thought to be only a small party of amateurs.

Arrested as German Spy

The fighting became so intense, that Trotter decided to make his escape. On the way down the mountain he often had to take refuge from the fire. At Kara he met a Russian ammunition train, whose officers arrested him as a German spy and seized a package of bank notes he had with him.

Meanwhile, however, the Turks had slipped across the crest of the opposite bridge and had begun a surprise attack on the ammunition train. The horses which got the worst of it, bolted down the mountain, wrecking as they ran many of the carts of supplies and ammunition.

Trotter tried to jump on one of the wagons, but was prodded off with bayonets, and sought cover. When a motor car filled with wounded came by he tried his luck again, but was unable to explain himself, for lack of Russian, and was again bayoneted off the car.

The Russian commandant, coming up later in an automobile saw him safe conduct to Borchka, where the ammunition train was overtaken and Trotter's money recovered.

Is Kept in Prison

By good fortune, an old Turk farmer started out to pasture before he finally arrived at a river which they had to swim in. In midstream they were greeted by a rifle fire. The Scot was killed, and his body drifted down the stream, an Caldwell escaped to a Turkish village.

Keeping Up the Service

The European war brought to our attention with very great force the dependence which modern industry places upon the complete and continuous transportation service. Let something happen to disturb the action of transportation facilities and the whole machinery of modern commerce slows up.

In this country the railroad systems are the arteries of the commerce system, and the service rendered by them is so important that any difficulty is speedily felt by everybody. All materials which enter into the running of the railroad must be carefully selected for quality and service in order to avoid disastrous interruptions.

TEXACO QUALITY AND SERVICE have made themselves felt in keeping up the railroad service. On the books of The Texas Company as customers are almost all the railroads of any importance in all parts of the country—using "Made in Texas" Texaco Products because of the quality which insures the reduction of operating difficulties and the prompt service which insures supply.

The same quality and service which have induced these immense transportation systems, with their difficult requirements, to use Texaco Products are to be secured by you.

COMPARES KINGDOM TO HIDDEN TREASURE

MUST BE SOUGHT AND SACRIFICES MADE, FOIT, SAYS PASTOR

BRINGS COMFORT AND PLENTY

Parable Is Theme of Sunday Evening Sermon at First M. E. Church

The parable of the hidden treasure was the basis of the Sunday evening sermon by Rev. C. C. Smith at the First M. E. Church Sunday evening. The pastor comparing the kingdom to a hidden treasure which one must work for and make sacrifices for, in order to attain, always with the assurance that peace and comfort and well being are available after the treasure has been secured.

The text was: "The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a treasure hid in the field; and from washing away." (Matt. 13:44).

"Christ taught much in parable. The parable as used by Christ is but the framework on which a thought structure is to be built. He meant them to be thought provoking. He gave them as the skeleton or outline of a sermon that he was indeed master at expressing an entire sermon in a few words. This parable is very much condensed and in order to get its full meaning we must elaborate the story and by the use of our imagination fill in the outline.

Finding the Aid Treasure.

"Yonder on the side of that Palestine mountain is a small field. We would call it a garden. It is a little pocket of soil lodged on a flat place on the hillside and probably fenced in by a hedge. It is a vineyard and there is a lone man working with a heavy hoe. He is a man to challenge attention. He is a bondslave but not a mental. In some way he has been captured and must work for a man in no wise his superior except by accident of war. He works methodically but it is evident that his mind is not on his task. He is dreaming. Mindful of better days he longs for freedom and the old home and his family life again. He strikes mattock into the ground and there is a full grating sound or the blade upon some hard substance and this unusual occurrence rouses him a little. He stills himself from his dreams by this something in the ground and he casually strikes it again. This time there is a hollow metallic sound and there sits a little new life in his veins. He remembers that during war times men have hid their treasure in the field and perhaps this is a treasure. Perhaps this is the wealth of a rich man who has been killed in battle. With quickened movements he scrapes away the soil and looks closely to find that it is indeed a vessel of some character and not a stone. It must be a treasure. He hurriedly he digs it up, and then with mingled hope and fear he looks about him. What if some one should see what he has found. But he finds the lid and prys it open and behold! there is much wealth. But it is not his. By a law of the times it belongs to the master in whose field it was found. What is to be done? There is no time for delay. He must think quickly what he can best do. At once a plan forms in his mind. "I will conceal the treasure again and then buy the field and then it will be mine. Quickly he places the cask back in the ground and covers it over carefully so that no one else can find it and since he must be careful not to arouse suspicion he works till evening as usual. When he goes to his humble home he tells the story breathlessly to his wife and together they plan what is to be done. Mingled with their joy and dreams is the hard and practical fact that they will need to sacrifice to get that field.

Burying the Treasure.

"On the morrow he goes to his Lord and says to him, 'Sir, you have been a good master. You have allowed me many privileges and I have some money saved from my earnings. I long to be free. I want to make enough money extra to purchase my freedom and the freedom of my family. Will you sell me that field yonder on the hillside and allow me to till it when I am not working for you in the field but I must have a large sum for it. That is a good vineyard. The sum is set and it is considerably larger than his meagre savings. What shall he do? He must have that field and the treasure. He thinks out a plan. He has been allowed to keep some few household articles in his lowly home. He will put some of this on the market. He hurries to his home and together they plan what he should do and what it will bring. He has very little and that is mostly some valued keepsake and after all has little value on the market. Here is some old silver that he has been allowed to retain. It was a gift from his mother. He would hate to see that go, but he must have the treasure. When he gets that wealth perhaps he can go into the market and buy back what he values so he starts away with the silver. He sells it to a broker but the sum is not much and when he arrives home again and places the money with what he already has it is still too small to purchase the field. But he must have the field, and so they look over everything—it must all go everything—everything they have will scarcely bring the desired sum and so it must go. And when they count what they have received and add it to their savings—what joy it is enough. With a glad rather tender heart he goes to the Master and says, 'Sir, you said if I would give you a certain sum for that field you would sell it to me. I have the sum required and will take the field.' Soon the field is his. And the treasure is his. What of that sacri-

See which he was compelled to make now. It is all forgotten. Joy reigns supreme in his heart. Night comes on and he goes quietly to the spot which he has so carefully marked and unearths his treasure. He carries it to his little home and behind darkened doors he shows his family the wealth that is theirs. They are surrounded by empty shelves, barren walls and poverty but what of that. Tomorrow they will buy freedom. Tomorrow they will have abundance. Tomorrow they will go down into the market and buy back all that they really valued of their goods and much more—all that they need to make them comfortable and to minister to their best good. Joy rules in their hearts. Dreams ripen into actualities. At last they are free. They have their home. They have comfort. The father and mother see the children enjoying what they had known before and what they are entitled to and he is looked upon now as a freeholder and not as a bond servant. Joy deepens into satisfaction as they realize the dreams of the months of drudgery and degradation.

Christ's Comparison.

"But the kingdom of heaven is like a treasure hid in a field. What does this mean for us? Christ meant some great teaching from this parable. It is a very simple teaching but still a very great and important one. How can we fit this story into our lives today? Let us seek to make the analogy.

The Kingdom a Discovery.

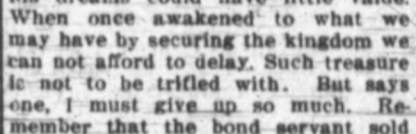

"The kingdom of heaven is likely to come to our attention as a discovery. It is not native within us. We are bond servants in sin and go long dreaming of better days and better deeds but we do not know how it is to be brought about. Some day as we go about our work we realize that our work is not all there is in the world. Something starts us and we awake to the fact that the kingdom of heaven is valuable. All the stagnant sleepy emotions of our soul are aroused and we are on the alert and longing for the kingdom. But to possess it we must do something. The kingdom requires action. Just as the slave had to plan so we must think. God leaves no room for mental laziness. God challenges the mind to its utmost activity and there is little chance that we will come into possession of the kingdom unless our minds are awake. The kingdom must be sought. It will not force itself upon us. What shall it avail us just to be aroused over the discovery if we do nothing to gain what it has to offer. The bond servant might have dreamed long over the good which the treasure could bring but until he could use that treasure his dreams could have little value. When once awakened to what we may have by securing the kingdom we can not afford to delay. Such treasure is not to be trifled with. But says one, I must give up so much. Remember that the bond servant sold all that he had. The kingdom is like the treasure in this. The price fixed is what we have. If we value something else more than we value the kingdom there is little need for us to seek after the kingdom. We must put everything into a secondary place to the kingdom. That is the price which the master has fixed.

From Joy to Deep Satisfaction.

"The kingdom is like the treasure also in that the joy of discovery and first possession rises to a high and instant when the full value begins to unfold upon us. When we get established in the use of the goods which the kingdom brings to us then we know something of the real joy of its possession. It has a permanent recompense. The kingdom of the world may bring transient joys but the kingdom of heaven brings abiding peace. It is easily the supreme good. It abides while we live here and will continue in the hereafter. When we come to measure its value by earth standards there is no comparison. We will count our seeming sacrifices as nothing when we come into possession of the great good. The kingdom is indeed like a treasure hid in the field. We have found the treasure. We know something of what it will bring to us. Let us possess ourselves of that treasure.

HOW LONDON PAPERS ARE REPORTING WAR

LITTLE APPEARS IN THEIR COLUMNS NOT CONNECTED WITH STRIFE

COPIES RECEIVED IN THIS CITY

Gives German Viewpoint Also and Contains Intimate Views of Nation at War

Some intimate and interesting pictures of how war affects the folks at home are furnished by copies of London newspapers received in this city recently. The war is naturally the all-absorbing topic of conversation in England and London newspapers devote pages to where American newspapers devote columns. In spite of the intense partisanship which the papers display, there is an apparent tendency to give all the facts, favorable or otherwise.

A grim feature of the London papers are the casualty lists—long rows of unbleaded six-point type, each line bespeaking a human being lost into the mow of war. It requires but little imagination to see some English woman with a son or husband at the front, eagerly, fearfully, scanning the list of names, finding that of her loved one in the number. It is hard to realize that each little name is fraught with heartaches and grief for someone and cannot fail to be appalled by it.

War Pictures are Featured

War pictures are displayed prominently and the London Daily Mail of February has one headed, "A Grim Birthday Present for the Kaiser." It shows a portion of the battlefield between Solons and Berry-au-Bac, where on the Kaiser's birthday the German troops made a determined but unsuccessful attempt to storm the French lines; the picture shows the German dead in veritable heaps upon the field. There are about 100 bodies in the picture and the agony of death is written in awful lines upon some of the faces.

Another picture is that of a whip with a loaded lash said to have been taken from a captured German officer who had used it on his men to make them march more quickly. The picture is ironically entitled "An Instrument of Kultur."

"Queen Victoria's Grandson" is the caption over yet another picture. The grandson is none other than Kaiser Wilhelm, the picture being taken when he was five years old. Accompanying comment refers to the "Kaiser's illusion that he is the rightful heir to the crown of Great Britain."

Letters from the front, furnished by relatives of soldiers form a very readable part of the London papers and they give an excellent idea of conditions on the battle line. For the most part, such letters are cheerful and loyal and hopeful. They relate many incidents of interest; one such letter tells of a little French boy who calmly drove the cow home to be milked while German shells whizzed and screamed overhead.

The Mail refers to German and British ships attacking the English ports, calling it a "blitz" and scouting the idea that it would or could have any effect. The same paper discusses at length the diplomatic exchanges between Germany and the United States and quotes from Berlin newspapers to show how the situation is viewed there. The following is a sample:

"German Rage With Mr. Bryan—Semi-official Attack—Miserable U. S. Mantle of Neutrality and zealous servility toward England and German Americans asked to act." This is the headline. A quotation from the paper referred to, the Cologne Gazette, follows:

"If the coalition of world powers against Germany is organized to supplement unhindered its means of war by the mighty natural and industrial resources of a fifth great power, the gigantic supplies of the second largest region in the world, we shall have to reckon not with four, but with five enemy great powers, even if one of them tries a hundred times to fashion out of the letter of international law a miserable mantle of neutrality.

"History will one day set in judgment on the role which America is playing in this war and its verdict will be that she has betrayed her far-famed ideals of humanity and her peaceful aims for the 30 pieces of silver of her shipments of arms."

Considerable space is given to quotations from German newspapers and emphasis is accorded excerpts which indicate that Germany at the start underestimated the strength and stamina of her enemies. Prominence is given some German admissions of disappointment over the failure of the Turks to accomplish anything in the war.

New Threats Against England

A German newspaper's report of the exploits of the cruiser Karlsruhe which appears to be a second Emden, capturing many British merchant prizes.

The last and most terrible invention of our technical and chemical skill we have not yet employed against England," another German paper is quoted as saying. Another tells how German soldiers who have not an arm in battle are being taught to care for their personal wants with one arm. According to a quotation from yet another Berlin paper, Londoners are now resorting to cat-bunting in order to make up for the threatened shortage of furs in England.

land. This is referred to by the Mail as a "fantastic lie." No effort is made to conceal the pleasure of England over the reported sympathy of a majority of American for the allies' cause and Germany's complaints at the attitude of Americans are republished with gusto. The editorials reflect a spirit of cheerful determination to see the game through. Little else is published besides war news in the London papers, although room is found for such affairs as high society divorces which are handled with a dignified promptness that has a touch of American journalism in it.

Vulcanizing vs. Patching

We do the real vulcanizing, not gasoline patching. We don't have an errand boy who patches tubes when he isn't running errands. We have a first-class steam vulcanizing plant and our operators of this plant are experienced. We will gladly come out and change your tire, and we know how to change it.

TAILORING

We guarantee to fit

EVERY SUNDAY—When the weather is favorable, our cemetery is filled with visitors, who are drawn there by the ties of love and remembrance, and around who's heart's memory has twined the tender wreaths of forget-me-nots. They have engraved upon the tables of love, all that was good, forgotten, all faults, all mistakes, all shortcomings.

We see them stop at the grave where love has erected an appropriate MEMORIAL, and read with glad hearts the inscription thereon, we see fall the tear of regret for those dear unremembered ones, who's living relatives are too poor, or who's carelessness and indifference has caused them to forget. Life is not all dollars and doughnuts, neither is death the end. The cost of a monument is insignificant and no excuse for the average citizen, and more than compensates the one who erects it. Cleaning and Pressing

Fine fabrics is my specialty. This is the kind of work that we have made the reputation of this shop on. Work that people could not afford to trust ordinary shops. It pays to be careful where you send a fifty dollar suit to be cleaned and pressed. A fine garment costs too much money to risk Tom, Dick and Harry to be cleaned. We are in the tailoring business to give you service and earn the money you pay us. To do these things we must know how to do what you want done. We take off our hat to nobody in the tailoring game. We know all that is known about the business. We don't promise to do impossible things but if it can be done we can do it.
