BRIEFS ARE FILED IN R. R. WAGE CASE

DECISION WILL BE MADE BY AR-BITRATION BOARD BEFORE
APRIL 20

R. R. SAY MEN HAVE FAILED

Sheehan's Brief Says Earnings Not Decreased nor Labors In-

By Associated Press. Chicago, March 29.—Briefs in the Western railroad wage case were filed with the board of arbitration today by James M. Sheehan, attorney for the railroads and by William S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. Oral argument was begun and was expected to last two and possibly three days. Decision by the board on the demands of the men for higher wages and other concessions will be made on or before April 20 and will affect 63,000 engineers, firemen and hostlers employed by ninety-eight western railroads operating 140,000 miles of track.

Mr. Sheehan's brief asserted that the men failed utterly to establish their contention that their labors and responsibilities have increased since their wages were adjusted by arbitration in 1910, nor said the brief, had they made good their claim that their earnings, despite a higher rate, had been decreased in this period. Their contentions, Mr. Sheehan said, had not been proven by their own exhibits, and had disproven by actual records quoted in the railroad exhibits.

Stringent Economies.

The increased productivity of the railroads was said in the brief to have been due, not to any increased effort of the men, but to stringent economies in operation, and the expenditure of $600,000,000 in extensions, additions and improvements to property, including heavier power and the reduction of curves and grades. Of this sum $230,000,000 was spent for the purpose of increasing efficiency and safety, and to expedite train movements. These improvements, Mr. Sheehan said, have actually enabled the engineers to earn their money in fewer hours than prior to 1910. Firemen he said actually shovel five per cent less coal now than in the previous period. He said that the railroad exhibit showing that to grant the sixteen demands of the men would cost $41,000,000 a year had not been controverted. He pointed out the decreased dividend payments of recent years, and to the increasing use of labor saving devices on engines. He referred to the high earnings attained by some engineers and firemen, and pointed out the average between $170 and $180 a month, and firemen between $110 and $115.

Declares Pay Adequate.

The brief claimed that these pay roll figures demonstrated that the present schedules provide full, fair and adequate pay, whether measured by comparison with other trades, by comparison with other railroad employees who have like duties and responsibilities, or by comparison with engineers and firemen of the East or South, and in making this claim directed attention to the fact that these pay roll figures had not been contradicted by the employees whose names appeared thereon, notwithstanding the fact that during the hearing while the railroad exhibits were being introduced, Mr. Carter stated to the board of arbitration:

"I have reached the conclusion that our case is lost if we treat the exhibits of the railroads too seriously."

POSSES STILL HUNT FOR SIX BANDITS

MEN BELIEVED HIDING IN HILLS
SOUTHEAST OF STROUD,
OKLAHOMA

STARR SAYS THEY ARE BAD MEN

Bandit Says He Met Them Only Last
Wednesday—Robbery Planned
Two Days Later

By Associated Press. Oklahoma City, March 29.—The largest posse that has yet gone in pursuit of the bank robbers left Chandler early this morning for the hills southeast of Stroud. The bandits are afoot and it is not believed they have been able to get far. Although the chase was not abandoned last night many of those who helped beat the brush all day yesterday returned to their homes this morning. Their places were taken by others. Officers here say they have learned the identity of at least two of the six bandits who escaped. One of them is said to be Nipp Vann, the cowboy in motion picture action who was alleged to have killed John McElroy, city marshal of Cane, Kansas, Nov. 12, 1913. A reward of $500 was offered for his capture then and is still standing. The other bandit's name is withheld.

Henry Starr and Louis Est, the two bandits in jail at Chandler, will both recover. Both suffer great pain today from their wounds. They still refuse to reveal the identity of their fellow bandits. They had wire cutters to aid them in their flight across the country and they also had field glasses when arrested.

Deputy Sheriff Frisbie, who returned to Chandler today, says the bandits have not been seen since Saturday afternoon. In a confidential talk with Bill Kilham, formerly deputy United States Marshall and peace officer in the Chandler jail today Starr declared that he did not know the five men who were with him in the Stroud bank robbery. He said he believed that they came from the neighborhood of Joplin, Mo., and that he and Est fell in with them last Wednesday.

"I have four good men with me and they are ready for anything," Starr said to the leader of the men in the covered wagon told him. It was not until after they had been together two days that they planned the robbery of the Stroud bank. The suggestion that they rob a bank was made and the night of the robbery was selected. Friday night they camped close to the town and planned the robbery for the next day. Starr cursed the men for deserting him after he was wounded but said they were bad men and would kill those who attempted to capture them. He said he had planned to go to Missouri after the robbery for his work.

BRINGING UP FIELD AND MACHINE GUNS

BOTH SIDES AT MATAMORAS PREPARING RENEWAL OF BATTLE

BOTH HAVE MUCH ARTILLERY

Apprehension Felt That Shells and Bullets Will Fall on American Side

By Associated Press. Brownsville, March 29.—There was no fighting at Matamoras today. The reports from both sides indicate the battle of the Villa besiegers and the Carranza garrison would be renewed before tomorrow night. Colonel Flores of the Matamoros garrison announced today that Carranza reinforcements disembarked at the mouth of the Rio Grande yesterday and that they were expected to reach Matamoros tomorrow. Other Carranza reinforcements of 500 men and 16 pieces of artillery under General Cesar Lopez De La Lanza were reported coming toward Matamoros from the south. The Villa forces came from the west.

Officially there are said to be 113 Villa prisoners at Matamoros, 28 of whom are wounded. In addition to the 200 Villa wounded in Brownsville another 200 are said to be distributed at ranches on the Mexican side. General Flores of the Matamoros troops said the Villa losses were 375 killed and 600 wounded. Villa officers admitted 500 casualties of whom 100 were killed.

Dr. J. P. Hunter, an American physician, who has been serving in the constitutional force was expelled from Mexico today by General Naforette because he refused Dr. De Lakedo, his superior officer, to American soil for medical attention.

Fifteen flat cars bearing artillery for the renewal of the Villa attack on Matamoros sighted by Americans about 80 miles west of Matamoros, were not expected to arrive in time to begin the bombardment before tomorrow night. In this connection a report was spread here that the Carranza garrison at Matamoros has not a single piece of artillery. This report declares that all the Matamoros artillery was sent to participate in the recent battle of Ramones and was there captured. The report was not confirmed.

By Associated Press. Washington, March 29.—War department officials feel that American forces already at Brownsville, Texas, are ample to protect that town from the fighting troops of the Mexican factions at Matamoros. The 10th Cavalry has a squadron of the Third Cavalry, a machine gun squadron and a squadron of the Sixth field artillery. Nearer up the river are two squadrons of the Twelfth cavalry. Additional troops can be moved there from Fort Sam Houston at San Antonio and from Fort McIntosh at Laredo.

Acting Secretary Breckenridge said Colonel Blockson in warning the Mexicans not to fire under instructions of long standing. He said that under no circumstances would the Mexicans fire be returned without orders from Washington. Colonel Blockson's order to stop the bringing of wounded to the American side, he said, was also under general instructions forbidding the admission of refugees from belligerents except where humanity demanded it.

Major General Funston, command-in-chief border forces, reported today that General Villa has 16 field guns and a large number of machine guns while the Carranza forces has 15 field guns and 70 or more machine guns. The arrival of machine guns has increased the apprehension of the department officials as Brownsville is only about a mile and a half from the Rio Grande.

DESIRE FOR PEACE STRONG IN AUSTRIA

MANY LEADERS THERE OPENLY FAVOR NEGOTIATION OF
SEPARATE PEACE

EMPEROR JOSEPH IS FIRM

German Chancellor and Austrian Emperor Opposed on Cession of Territory

By Associated Press. Geneva, Switzerland, March 29.—Count Stephan Tizah, the premier of Hungary, has returned to Buda Pest from Vienna where he conferred with the heads of the government regarding the future course of the dual monarchy, according to dispatches to Swiss newspapers.

The leaders of different parties, it is reported, urged Count Tizah to make an effort to persuade Emperor Francis Joseph that Austria should conclude separate peace. The premier is said to have refused to take such an attempt.

Advices received here from Austria are to the effect that well informed public men are of the opinion that intervention by Italy is imminent. Count Endrassy, former Hungarian premier, is said to be one of those who no longer attempts to conceal the desire of the Austrian people for peace. Chancellor von Betham Holweg of Germany, the Swiss paper says, remains inflexible in his determination that Austria shall sacrifice some of her territory to Italy. Emperor Francis Joseph is reported equally inflexible in his determination that no territory will be ceded.

REPORTED AUSTRIA HAS MADE OFFER TO ITALY

By Associated Press. Paris, March 29.—Austria has made an offer to cede to Italy a part of the province of Trent at the close of the war, according to the Petit Parisien's correspondent at Rome. He says that he has been informed this offer was made on Thursday and that the Italian government deferred action.

RIGID CENSORSHIP IS DECREED IN ITALY

By Associated Press. Rome, March 29.—A rigid censorship on the publication of military news from March 3 to July 31 has been proclaimed in a royal edict. Among the prohibited publications are formation, movements and assignments of troops, ships and aerial craft. News concerning even the movements of individual soldiers is prohibited.

BIG BRITISH STEAMER SUNK BY A SUBMARINE

By Associated Press. London, March 29.—The reports that the British steamer Salaba was sunk by the German submarine were confirmed today. The Salaba was sent to the bottom yesterday off Milford Haven, an inlet on the coast of South Wales. The loss of life probably was heavy.

The Salaba left Liverpool March 28 with 140 passengers and a crew of 120 men. The officers state that when the German submarine appeared it whistled thrice as a signal for the steamer to prepare her life boats but before this could be done a torpedo struck the ship and she sank almost immediately.

Three of the Salaba's life boats were swamped. Many aboard the vessel were thrown into the sea where they struggled while the submarine circled about offering no assistance, according to reports of survivors. A fishing boat saved 140 of the passengers and crew. Captain David of the liner was picked up dead. Eight other bodies were recovered. The survivors were landed at Milford Haven.

Naval Constructor Declares Submarine
in Good Condition a Month Ago

By Associated Press. Washington, March 29.—The last remote hope that any of the crew of the submarine F-4 could be alive has been abandoned by the navy department and today Acting Secretary Blue ordered Rear Admiral Fore, commanding the Honolulu naval station to report the exact depth at which she lies so that the navy department may estimate the probabilities of saving the bulk and the recovery of the bodies of her commander and crew.

No advices concerning the disaster have been received at the navy department since Friday night when Admiral Fore reported that the submarine was lying in 50 fathoms of water.

Divers Agaz and Evans Sunday went down the two cables thought to have been attached to the submarine and found that the heavy body was an old anchor, probably that lost by the battleship Oregon.

Agaz, who went down the cable attached to the anchor, wore only a helmet. Diver Evans, who descended along the second cable, reported that he found nothing at the bottom.

Agaz, whose descent to a depth of 215 feet is said by naval authorities to be a world's record, spent twenty-two minutes on the downward journey and nine and a half minutes in the ascent. The experience apparently caused him no distress.

The positive statement was made here today by Naval Constructor Julius A. Furer that the four submarines of the Hawaiian division were examined as to their stability only a month ago. He said that all were found in good condition.

The water is so deep at the point where the F-4 is said to have disappeared that navy officers asserted today that without diving apparatus which would permit men to go down 200 feet, the task of locating the craft and lifting it will present great mechanical difficulties.

GERMAN NAVAL UNITS IN THE BALTIC SEA DAMAGED

By Associated Press. Petrograd, March 29.—Several German naval units in the Baltic sea have been badly damaged by the Russian fleet, according to a semi-official review of operations made public here today. German submarines are said to have suffered considerable damage while a number of transports loaded with supplies have been sunk.

RUSSIAN NAVY MAY HAVE EIGHT NEW BATTLESHIPS

By Associated Press. London, March 29.—Reuters Petrograd correspondent wires that the Russian Baltic fleet has been reinforced by modern fighting units. This addition is believed to have consisted of four dreadnaughts laid down in 1909 and nearly completed at the beginning of the war. It may also include another division of four ships laid down in 1912. British naval experts said they would not be surprised that with the material and men furnished by her allies, Russia was enabled to complete these light battleships.

By Associated Press. London, March 29.—Russia again today is knocking at the back door of Constantinople by a bombardment of the fortifications from her fleet in the Black sea but with what success is not known. At the front door of the Turkish capital the only news is the monotonous repetition of the report that mine sweepers are still busy and that weather conditions still prevent resumption of an early resumption of Constantinople. On the other hand Turkish aeroplanes have been flying over the warships of the enemy in and about the Dardanelles.

Unofficial reports from neutral points in the vicinity of the Dardanelles indicate an early resumption of the bombardment. They set forth that a long distance shelling of the interior forts has already begun. Reviewing the Russian naval activities in the Baltic Petrograd claims that the operations on this sea of Russian warships have resulted in damage to several German units that the Germans have been compelled to retire. German submarines have been active on the English and Irish coasts and the liner reported in distress in the Bristol channel may be one of the victims of their raid.

From a diplomatic standpoint observers in London are consulting hopefully on the organization of the Balkan league but nevertheless it is believed that the visit of Field Marshal Von Goetz to Bulgaria recently may check the reconciliation of this state with her neighbors.

German submarine warriors have added two names to their list of victims about the British coast. The vessel, the Salaba, one of the largest merchantmen to be sent to the bottom was torpedoed off the coast of South Wales yesterday. The British steamer Aquila was sunk in the English channel but her crew of 29 were saved.

By Associated Press. Marlin, Texas, March 29.—Mrs. Kate Willonski is under arrest at Waco, pending an examination of the charge that she killed her husband, Edward Willonski, burned his body and buried the ashes and bones in post holes on their premises here. The man was last seen alive February 15 when his wife said he went to Fort Worth. Later his sons by a former marriage offered a reward for him. They said they had $700 on his person when last seen. Bones have been removed from post holes on the Willonski premises. It is believed they are human bones although they are badly charred. A son and daughter of Mrs. Willonski are held in jail here in connection with the alleged crime. Mrs. Willonski was taken to Waco because of threats of mob violence. She married Mr. Willonski about sixteen months ago.

By Associated Press. Waco, Texas, March 29.—Mrs. Kate Willonski of Marlin, made a formal confession to County Attorney Tom Bartlett of Falls county this morning in which she admits that she killed her husband on the night of February 15th last. She stated that she buried a body in a hole in the yard and poured oil onto it and set it afire. She said she buried the few bones that were left in post holes. The woman was brought here by Sheriff C. H. Platt of Falls county. She will be returned to Marlin for a preliminary trial some day this week.

The case of Pierce Nichols vs. County Judge Harvey Harris, for mandamus to issue saloon permit, is being heard before Judge Nicholson in the 78th district court this afternoon. Little evidence was introduced, the plaintiff putting on one or two witnesses to show that he had complied with the law. Richard Duckenfield, who lives in the negro settlement near settlement near the saloon site, testified that since the saloon closed the negroes went uptown and bought bottled goods resulting in more drunken lying around than when the saloon was in business. Arguments were still in progress in the case at 3:30 this afternoon. W. F. Weeks is representing the plaintiff and City Attorney Horace Nutt is appearing for defense, as the petition attacks the validity of the city charter.

HOW TO MEET HIGH COST OF FLOUR

HOUSEWIFE, HERSELF, CAN MIX SUBSTITUTES WITH WHEAT FLOUR

UNCLE SAM TELLS HOW

Potatoes, Corn, Flour, Rice, Rye Meal and Many Other Substitutes Can Be Used

Special to The Times.—Washington, March 27.—That the American housewife is herself quite capable of doing all the flour mixing desirable is the conviction of Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Vrooman on the mooted mixed flour question. He says further that the American housewife could materially reduce the cost of living if she were to get the flour mixing habit.

"There are some thirty substitutes that can be mixed with wheat flour in making bread," he said in a statement issued here today. "Many of these are more nutritious than wheat flour; some of them are cheaper than wheat flour, and of these, two or three, at least, are commercially obtainable almost anywhere."

"Potatoes, corn flour, and rice (in certain sections) can be used with profit in mixture with wheat flour in making yeast bread. With wheat flour as dear as it is now, the careful housewife stands to effect quite a saving by using one of these products to eke out her wheat flour. Experiments have shown that the substitutes can be used successfully in the proportion of one part to three parts of wheat flour. At least three-fourths of the mixture must be good wheat flour."

Mashed Potatoes and Flour

"Potatoes have a certain advantage in this regard since potato bread can be made without going to the trouble to get the commercial potato meal. Plain mashed potatoes, four parts of wheat flour, will serve the purpose quite well. If the dry potato meal or flake is used, the ratio should be one part of potato to three parts of flour. Boiled rice can be used in much the same way as mashed potatoes, care being taken to allow for the water in the rice and to use about three times as much in bulk as would be used of the rice flour."

"In making potato bread the sponge should be used, and just enough water to serve to mix the yeast with the potato, since the sponge becomes very soft after partial fermentation. The remainder of the flour is worked in afterwards, care being taken to make an extra stiff dough, which would be raised till quite light. This bread is much moister than bread made of straight wheat flour."

Use of Corn Flour

"Corn flour, which should cost about two-thirds the price of wheat flour, may be mixed with wheat flour directly, one part of corn flour to three parts of wheat flour. Use the mixture just as though it were wheat flour—and mix it yourself."

"It should be remembered that the addition of starchy materials, such as potatoes, rice or corn starch (which is sometimes used to adulterate wheat flour in baking) tends to make a loaf less rich in protein and hence less nutritious than the straight wheat flour. The addition of corn flour makes little, if any, change in the nutritive value of the bread, but makes it cheaper."

Other Substitutes

"There are other flour substitutes such as soybean meal and pea flour which serve to add greatly to the nutritive value of the loaf when mixed with wheat flour. The products, unfortunately, cannot be recommended in the present emergency, since they are not as yet common articles of commerce in this country."

"In this connection it should be said that a great saving could be effected if the housewife would emulate the professional baker and buy low grade wheat flours. There are flours on the market quite as good for home baking as the fancy patent flours, which cost in bulk from 25 to 40 per cent less than the fancy grades. Such are the so-called 'second clear' and 'low grade' flours, which are graded lower than patents merely because they are darker, not because they are any less nutritious or less palatable. In fact the darker color may be evidence that the flour is more nutritious than white flour."

Boston Brown Bread

"Boston brown bread may be mentioned as a good and very popular medium for the profitable use of flour substitutes. It is made of equal parts of corn meal, rye meal and graham flour and is a very nutritious bread."

"There are various ways of making over bread itself so as to effect a considerable saving. Thus stale bread crusts, crumbs, etc., can be worked into palatable products such as bread particles, bread crumb biscuit and bread cookies."

"The hub of the mixed flour question hangs on who does the mixing. If the housewife does the mixing she gets the saving realized; if the baker or the wholesaler does it, he is very apt to get the savings as additional profit."

The AWAKING of the OLDER NATIONS

Foreigners Resident in the Turkish Empire Are Pessimistic Concerning the Outlook for the New Regime—Ottomans Not Loyal.

By WILLIAM T. SLAY.

Somewhere in Turkey—For reasons that are apparent, I dare not localize the interview which I shall report in this article. The persons quoted could easily be discovered, and they would be made to feel the heavy hand of the government. They represent the darker side of the present situation within the Turkish empire.

Before proceeding to quote these men, I may state one ominous and reliable fact: Every foreigner whom I have met in Turkey—and I have interviewed hundreds—has shown himself hostile to the present government. This is an amazing condition of things. Sometimes the antagonism has been merely skeptical and supercilious. In other cases it has been deep and passionate.

Hard Knocks for the Turk.

The criticism of the present government made by these British and Americans has not been necessarily in contrast with the old regime, but it has been a criticism of the Turk as a governing power. Neither is it to be considered hostile to Islam per se, but to Islam as embodied in the ruling class of the government. I have heard illustration: "A short time ago, in my native village, a Christian caught a thief among his goats. The household was a strong man and overpowered the thief, and kept him in the house for the night. The next day he took him to the officials, but because the offender was a Moslem he was set free, while the Christian was arrested and fined 25 Turkish pounds for kidnapping a Moslem!"

The Old Cry for Justice.

"Tell me," I asked, "what you educated non-Moslems want of the government?"

"Instantly there came from several, as if by prearrangement, the cry, 'Justice, equality!'

"Why not 'fraternity' also?" I asked, reminding them of the third of the watchwords which were so generally used at the time of the revolution.

"Never mind about that; let us have justice and equality, and then fraternity will take care of itself."

"We cannot get justice. There is as much bribing as ever, only the bribes are bigger. There are fewer Christians in office than there were in the old days."

"Venturing to suggest that, in spite of all, conditions are improving and that the new forces at work must make for human betterment, one man impetuously said: 'When will they be better? After we are dead? We want better times now.'

Ottomans Who Hate the Turks.

After more pessimistic talk I remarked: "Then you seem to think that the present government is going to smash?"

"We hope so," was the instant response. "We are willing to have any power but Turkey rule. Of course we dream the dream of independence for our own part of the land, and for the various nationalities that go to make up Turkey, but that is far in the future. At present we prefer the suzerainty of some one of the powers—anybody except the Turks; or we would be glad to see our part of the country neutralized, under the powers, as is the case with Lebanon, over which, however, Turkey has some control. Then all these emigrants who have left by the hundreds of thousands will return to this country. All of them pine for the homeland, but they simply cannot live here."

"Do you not see," I remarked, "that the country is being drained of the best people by emigration, so that the prospects grow weaker as more of them leave?"

"Good people go to a good country," was the terse rejoinder of a college professor; "there is no field here for educated non-Moslems."

The Army Bugaboo.

I have said that the prospect of military service which is now open to the Christians is driving many young men out of the country. Several were escaping on ships upon which I traveled. When I was asked what these young men declared that the Christians are persecuted in the army, that scores of predictions that the outcome of the present regime will be total failure. This state of mind on the part of the principal foreigners resident in Turkey must necessarily be a heavy drag on the wheels of the government.

Another ominous and allied fact is that the Christians in the Turkish empire are emigrating by the thousands. If anybody has the curiosity to examine the bulletins of Ellis Island during the present six months he will find a big percentage of Turkish subjects among the arrivals. These men have fled from the prospect of military service. When put to the test, they show that the Christian population of Turkey is not loyal to the government. Apparently Constantinople is willing to let these people go, although, taken as a class, the Christians are more efficient members of the community than the Moslems.

An Upper Room Conference.

These generalities were illustrated and substantiated by an interview I had recently with a dozen non-Moslem students, who are all educated men, and most of them professional men; they would be called leading citizens of any community. I asked friend to arrange an interview with the educated natives of the city who spoke English. The result was an evening gathering in an upper room of the home of one of the members. The interview started with one man who had lived abroad serving as spokesman, but it quickly developed into a general discussion.

"Have conditions improved under the new regime?"

"No; conditions are really worse than in the Hamidian days. The new regime has made the Moslems more alert to what is going on, and quicker to assert their superiority, and to impose exactions upon non-Moslems. Christians have no rights in Turkey today, in spite of what you have read in the papers."

"Here one man broke in with an il-there are no Christian officers; that the immorality of the Turkish soldiers is of a nature that makes even the nominal Christians flee from it; and that the life in the army is not only poorly paid—about 80 cents a month—but that the conditions are of the hardest.

It seems to be the opinion of these educated observers that Turkey is willing to have as many of the Christians as please leave the country.

Here my companions began to ask questions about America. They talked of it as the children of Israel must have talked of Canaan. Every man of the twelve in that room, as we found by a count, had relatives in America; some of them look forward to going thither themselves. They think that the rapid spread of the Masonic movement will help improve conditions; but they say that in Turkey the Masons do not cohere sufficiently.

The Sultan's Greatest Dread.

Speaking of the reform element which undoubtedly exists within Islam itself, these educated Ottomans said that the progressive Moslems dare not show their hand in Turkey. There is no real freedom of criticism.

"If you would print in your paper," I suggested to one, "that the Sultan is not a descendant of the prophet, and not even a member of the prophet's tribe, and so, according to the ancient law of Islam, is not qualified to be caliph, would you be sent to prison?" This point is one which gives the Sultan greatest concern.

"With fine scorn the man answered: 'No; I would not go to prison; I would go to my grave.'"

"These new days have only made the Moslem Turks more fanatical. There is likely to be a massacre at any moment. None of us is safe. I cannot venture out without my pistol, as you see—moving aside his coat and showing the pistol in his pocket—'everybody goes armed. When the Moslems could kill Americans, as they did Rogers and Maurer in Adana, they say it is safe to go ahead and kill native Christians.'"

Factors in Reform.

The gentlemen present were unanimous that the greatest factors of promise in Turkey were the schools maintained by foreigners, and especially by the Americans. After the beginnings of the public education which have been made, there may come general enlightenment.

There is great need for the improvement of agricultural conditions by the government itself, if people are to wrest a bare living from the fields, with prices rising on every hand.

Late at night the conference broke up, and I carried with me a picture of men under the straits of the great fear and a great discontent, who could be patriots if given a chance, but whose present sentiments are those of utter antagonism to the government of which they are citizens.

Recipe for Caramel Pie

(Given at the New Century Demonstration by Mrs. T. P. Adams). One cup of sugar, one and one-half cups of sweet milk, yolks of four eggs, one tablespoon flour. Cook together until of proper consistency. Put into a second vessel one cup of sugar and one cup of butter and caramelize, cooking to a rich brown. Mix with the contents of the first vessel and flavor with a teaspoon vanilla. Have pie pastry already cooked, fill with caramel and top with meringue, using one and one-half tablespoons of sugar for each egg-white used. This mixture will make two pies. (Recipes are solicited. CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT A SPLENDID SUCCESS

The Sacred Concert rendered Sunday afternoon by the Wichita Falls Choral Society was attended by a large crowd of people the big auditorium of the First Christian church being filled to capacity including the rear room and balconies.

The exquisite choruses from Stainer's Crucifixion were sung in excellent style and showed much careful work on the part of the singers and the director, Barthold Machlin. During a short intermission Mr. Machlin made a brief talk in which he mentioned that the society intended to begin work at once on the practice of the beautiful cantata "The May Queen" which will be given by the Choral Society some time this spring. He also said that the Society solicited memberships from among outside persons who desired to do earnest work.

The work of such organizations as the Wichita Falls Choral Society is highly commendable and the benefits to the community at large are much greater than most people realize or stop to think of; all good music well rendered tends to raise the ideals of life, to cultivate the better impulses and turn the public mind away from low class entertainment and toward that which will help and uplift. Such efforts deserve the approval and support of all high minded people.

The Wichita Falls Choral Society has been especially fortunate in securing the services of Prof. Machlin who possesses an excellent musical education and talent shown by the results he has obtained in directing chorus work that he is a master of this branch of music as well as of the piano.

Several numbers of the concert besides the ensemble work deserve special mention. Mrs. Fred Thompson sang with excellent taste and interpretation "The Was Despaired" from Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," a full smooth contralto voice doing justice to this masterful composition.

A trio composed of Miss Jessie Agnew, Mrs. N. M. Clifford and Mrs. Fred Thompson sang "Protect Us Through the Coming Night" a sacred number in a manner which made this one of the most pleasing parts of the concert. The baritone solo parts taken by Mr. T. H. Benninger, the orchestra furnished by Harrison & Everett, the organ and piano work of Messrs. Carnes, Strunge and Machlin merit honorable mention and added much to an altogether excellent program.

MISS LONIE CHILDERS HOSTESS TO JUST SO CLUB

Miss Lonie Childers was hostess to the Just So Club Sunday afternoon, it being the regular session of the club. Sewing as usual was engaged in and music was also a feature. The hostess served a salad plate, accompanied by sandwiches and tea, to the following members present: Mrs. Jack Shelton, Miss Virginia Adams, Florence Barrier, Tracie Paulman, Adah Anderson and Laura Martin. The club will meet next Saturday with Miss Leola Sherrill.

MUSICAL FOR MISS WADDILL SATURDAY AFTERNOON

A delightful social event of the week just passed was the musical musicale given Saturday by Miss Alice Bernside, honoring her guest, Miss Mae Waddill of Tioga. The afternoon was ideal and the guests were treated to a program equally as ideal as the weather. Dainty printed programs bearing the date, occasion and the name of the honoree and hostess on the cover were distributed, the folders also containing a book contest. The prize in this contest was cut for Mrs. Chensault being fortunate, and was quite appropriately a book. The more than enjoyable program follows: Instrumental, Mrs. Mark Walker; reading, Mrs. Ben Bell; Solo, voice, Miss Simpson; Instrumental, Mrs. Alex Brittain; reading, Mrs. Nat Chensault; solo, voice, Miss Stone; Instrumental, Miss Stonecipher.

The luncheon service was delightful, the plate being arranged in a manner calculated to delight the eye and the palate as well. Sweet peas were scattered on each plate with Easter boxes filled with salad nuts, and topped with chicken and ducks, formed the favors. A corsage bouquet of sweet peas was presented to the honoree. Miss Bernside was assisted by her mother in providing the entertainment, being also assisted by the artists appearing on the program. Those invited to meet Miss Waddill were Misses Bernside, Jackson, Nina Barwise, Blanche Kahn, Lillian Ayle, Lillian McGregor, Agnes Reid, Della Stone, Florence Simmons, Eddie Carver, Bertha Mae Kemp, Beas

Kell, Kathryn Stonecipher, Kathleen Blair, Jewell Kemp, Mabel Simpson, Ann Frazier, Ann Carrigan, Daphne Stinnette, Grace Nolan, Fae Garrison, Hazel Hunter, Pauline Means, Frances Hunter, Emma Smith, Theresa Smith, Tula Stokes, Ethel Friss, Temple Thompson, Mary Smith, Louise Fox, Olevia Wyatt, Madeline Garrison, Ben Bell, Britala, Earl Clayton, Woodruff, Beckman, O'Donahue and Clifford.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR IDA BAGGETT SATURDAY

For the eleventh birthday of her little daughter, Ida, Mrs. T. A. Baggett entertained Saturday afternoon, the present list including Sunday school class mates and other little friends, the number present being limited to the number of years of which Miss Ida could boast. The class teacher, Mrs. J. P. Jackson, was also present and assisted Mrs. Baggett in the games and other amusements planned, and also in the refreshment service. Indoor and outdoor games of a pleasing nature were engaged in until late in the afternoon when all were ushered into the dining room. The dining table was prettily decorated in Easter effect, carrying out a color scheme of pink and white, the birthday cake with eleven lighted candles occupying the place of honor. White Easter rabbits were used in the table decorations, and tiny chicks were placed at each place, forming the afternoon's souvenirs. As the candles were blown out more such happy birthdays, and the cutting for the usual favors then ensued. The dime was cut by Hattie Adams, the penny by Sibylne Smith and the thimble by Dale Hammond, the ring remaining uncut. Ice cream was served with the cake. The occasion was made an especially happy one for little Miss Baggett by the numerous pretty gifts with which she was remembered by the guests. Those who were present were Helen Snider, Eleanor Allen, Hattie Adams, Sibylne Smith, Ruth Crowell, Virginia Walters, Dale Hammond, Lucille McAbee, Louise Stanley, Alice Downing, Rosella Williams and Mrs. J. P. Jackson.

The Merry Wives and Members of the Progressive Crochet Club will be entertained in joint session Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. L. Dillard and Mrs. Dillard and Mrs. M. Barclay as hostesses.

Mrs. Charles Storts of Fort Worth will be the guest of Mrs. C. W. Bean this week, arriving today.

640 ATTENDED BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL SUNDAY

Believed That Number Set New Record for Sunday School Attendance in Wichita Falls

What is believed to be a new record for Sunday school attendance was established yesterday at the First Baptist Church, when a total of 640 were present. This is the best attendance ever recorded in a local Sunday school. At the same time, there were 125 students at the Walnut Street Mission of the Baptist Church. After the services, a picture was taken of all those present. The offering was $193.18. The attendance at the Baptist Sunday school has been stimulated by contests between the boys' and girls' classes.

Next Sunday it is hoped to record an attendance equal to the full membership of the church, 750 and the officers and pupils of the Sunday school are working to that end.

After three weeks of exemplary behavior, as shown by the police records, Wichita Falls relaxed a little Saturday and Sunday and a total of sixteen defendants were arraigned in justice and police courts, being the heaviest dockets in about a month. The offenses were mostly trivial, agrants and drunks predominating with a slight or two by way of variety.

MODES FOR TOP COAT AND SUIT

New York, March 27.—The proper wrap and the proper suit for spring are the first questions which crop into the woman's mind with the beginning of the balmy weather. The winter coat has been worn until one is tired of it, and besides on the first warm day it feels so heavy and drags about the neck, and we need something lighter to take its place.

A Full Separate Coat with New Style Collar

Speaking of falls silk reminds me of an unusual model which was shown in one of the shops of oyster-white, falls. It was very full, back and front and the entire thing was edged with a wide band of black velvet. Of no less importance is the suit. The materials used are covert, serge, gabardine, voile gabardine which is a light-weight fabric of the gabardine type, shaki or field cloth, grosgrain cloth, covert cord, tweed, or homespun.

with pockets and belts in the places accorded them by the makers of British and French uniforms. It is really strange how thoroughly mixed are these military tendencies, it taxes the fair-minded woman to her utmost to be thoroughly neutral in her dress. It can be done, however, for a Union hat may be worn with a dress cut on strictly English field uniform lines.

The jackets vary in length, some are moderately long in the back and cut short in the front from the underarm seam. Others are cut short all the way around. The bolero with or without sleeves is worn especially in the silk suits.

The separate waists, which, of course, are in great demand with the popularity of the suit, are shown in a large variety this year. The plain styles fringed only with buttons and fastening down the front are considered the most correct, but they are slowly becoming a little more elaborate with a few tucks and a little shirring. These are made of voiles, chiffon and crepe de chine while the ones shown for summer are developed in handkerchief-lined, voiles, Swiss and organdy. Very plain covered buttons are used on these waists and some of the very latest have small ivory buttons shaped like quinine capsules down the front. Most of the waists are made with long, close sleeves and adjustable collars; that is, collars which are closed high around the neck or may be left open as desired.

Dresses are being finished around the bottom of the skirts in many various ways. A dress of net has a deep hem of white taffeta figured in pink, which was cut in deep scallops at the top edge. A close-fitting bodice of the silk was covered with a flowing bolero of net which was bound around the edges with the figured silk cut on the bias.

Other skirts of net or chiffon have hems eighteen inches deep of taffeta or satin and many organdy dresses shown have deep hems of colored silk. Nets also have deep hems of colored organdy.

The scalloped lower edges are particularly pretty and can be used with good effect on the bottom of sheer summer dresses. If you are beginning to think of making these. Points are also used as well as squares. When very sheer material is used a narrow ruffle of the same material may be used to run around the edges. In others, of a little heavier fabric a simple binding may be used to finish the edges.

Still another way to finish the bottom of the skirt is to cord it several times on a small cord. The wide cord has been used, but several rows of finer cording is much newer.

Fringed and picot-edged box-pleatings are also used a great deal and are very effective around the bottoms of net and tulle and some times taffeta dresses. These double and box-pleated ruffles are about seven inches wide and sewed on the dress through the middle of the ruffle, the upper edge is lacked at intervals onto the skirt, but between it falls carelessly and gives the whole dress a very fluffy and light appearance. Small flowers and ribbon or tulle are some times used together in forming a very attractive finish around the bottom of a frock for evening wear.

The ribbons for the season are exquisite and the old-fashioned picot-edged ribbon seems particularly popular in narrow and wide widths as well as grosgrain ribbon.

of this talk comes from political enemies of the administration, some from the Navy League, some from manufacturers of armor plate and a good deal from the liquor interests who can't believe the navy can hold together after Secretary Daniels' "grape juice" order.

The Washington correspondent of the Kansas City Star recently presented a view of our navy recently which will be a surprise to those who have been reading articles by Theodore Roosevelt, Representative Gardner and others.

The enlistment strength of the navy has been increased by 5,670 men, about 12 per cent. Re-enlistments have been increased about 12 per cent. Desertions have been decreased 17 per cent.

Thirty-three more vessels have been put in active commission. The annual capacity of the navy solder factory is being increased about 2,000,000 pounds.

The Boston, Philadelphia, Norfolk and Portsmouth navy yards have been equipped to build ships and the Mare Island yard enlarged in its scope of operations to build destroyers.

Radio has been installed on submarines and seventy-five vessels, having either obsolete or no equipment whatever, have been supplied with modern equipment.

The marine corps has had its first actual experience in establishing an advanced base. The cost of manufacturing powder has been reduced 2.70 a pound.

So, put a blanket around you, Bro. Silk, and "ride the rode" if it need be, across the state to the most picturesque city in the great Southwest.

Just what kind of "stuff" dreams are made of we can not tell; neither can we explain the many tricks that fancy plays us when muzzled by the soothing embrace of our old friend Morphine.

Old San Antonio is at last paving all her streets. For centuries she has been cursed with a moss-back city government which refused to think that matters in Mexico might well be duplicated here.

But this letter is too long for its width and thickness. Perhaps I had best "ring off" with I could see all the good people of Wichita Falls. They are all my friends.

Editor Times: I have been requested to have published the telegrams from the Seagraves Company who built our fire engine.

During the fire there was one fire hose connected to this fire plug through a line of hose and this would indicate at least twenty pounds pressure on the water main.

I was told by some spectators at the fire that the engine was not used owing to the fact that the fire plug did not have the large five-inch opening in the bottom of the plug.

I was sorry to learn about the big fire out on Ninth street. I am glad that no lives were lost. Get into the Hope-wagon with Polyras, friends, and "play the glad game."

because whenever the suction of the engine becomes stronger than the water pressure in the main the flexible hose will pinch together and prevent the engine from getting water from the water mains.

Long lines of hose greatly reduce the water pressure. This loss being estimated to be about four or five pounds, equal to a stream of water some twenty feet high for every hundred feet of hose used.

We keep three recording charts operating day and night located in the pumping station and in our office in the city. These charts record the time and the pressure, the voltage and the volume of water pumped any minute, day or night.

As you stated in your editorial the other evening, I think a fire alarm system should be installed throughout the city, thus giving the exact location of all fires.

With best wishes for everybody in Wichita Falls, I wish you always hope to be their lover and friend.

Editor Times: I have been requested to have published the telegrams from the Seagraves Company who built our fire engine.

In view of the fact that there is evidence that not only the public, but in many instances the press of the city, is under the impression that the act of the State of Kansas in passing the law which holds the federal law for the protection of migratory birds to be unconstitutional, is the final adjudication on that statute.

The Kansas decision is the third that has been rendered by federal judges on the law. In Arkansas, Judge Jacob C. Triebel on May 25, 1914, held the measure unconstitutional.

Card of Thanks. We wish to express our sincere thanks to all our kind friends who were so untiring in their efforts and kindness during the illness and death of our beloved wife and sister.

By Ethelred Elkins

HE man in the street reads that Lord and Lady So-and-So have left for Cannes; that the duke and duchess of Somewhere-Else have arrived at Monte Carlo; that Sas Remo is full of overflowing; that the king of Anywhere is shortly expected at Mentone. There is no doubt, of course, that the great and wealthy of this world flock to the Riviera from the middle of January until the first week in April. But—and this is rather a large distinction—the ordinary person does not realize at all how many other and very ordinary persons, who by some trick or other have got the knack of it, go to the Riviera, too. Only those who themselves have traveled the gaudy pleasure strip of Europe in its high season, and who have not much money to spend, realize that it is possible to live in the very center of the Riviera without enormous cost—though certainly without the possibility of much excitement beyond the joys of scenery and sunshine! Yet nevertheless it is not the sunshine and scenery which attract most of these poorer pilgrims to the south. It is the possibility of changing a somewhat drab fortune into a splendid competence. It is, in short, the casino at Monte Carlo which draws these anxious ones year by year to the shores of the Mediterranean. Monte Carlo itself is an expensive place to live in, and though there are pensions there, many of them are dubious. It is in Nice that the fortune-hunters sleep, and it is from Nice that they take their daily train—generally the 1:30, after lunch—to Prince Albert's naughty kingdom. At the Pension Mimosa, in one of those broad byways which leads from the promenade des Anglais at Nice, Maj. Marlowe had his bedroom, and sometimes at dinner. Maj. Marlowe was a tall, thin man, with a somewhat fixed expression in his eyes, a faded skin, and a charming, if somewhat nervous manner. For several years he had come to the Pension Mimosa for the season. He was a bachelor, with a nice little shooting box near Aberdeen, and a sufficient income to enjoy a cycle of modest sport. From year to year the magnet of Monte Carlo drew him to the shores of Roulette and Trente-et-Quarante. He simply could not help it. Each night Mr. Grouthing drank champagne at dinner, and when the drawing room and all the old maids adventured their sons, he would put a half franc upon an even chance with a lady manner, which admitted of no dispute.

Maj. Marlowe, who did not stay in the Pension Mimosa because he liked it or its inhabitants, and who was really a man of some family, nevertheless endured the confidences and familiarities of Mr. Grouthing with a suave smile. It was obvious that Mr. Grouthing was possessed of cash. It was obvious, therefore, that if Mr. Grouthing could be convinced of the infallibility of the system of Maj. Marlowe, Maj. Marlowe would reap an enormous harvest. The thing was put to Mr. Grouthing what you liked. The major and Mr. Grouthing were alone. The major made an heroic resolution. "Mr. Grouthing," he said, "if you will come with me tomorrow by the 1:20 to Monte Carlo, by 2 o'clock we shall be in the rooms, and I will show you in a small way the beauty and certainty of my system."

one night in the smoking room, body calls the bell of Europe, and to which everybody goes, when the slightest opportunity of doing so presents itself. The pigeons cooped upon the white road. Uniformed officials stood about. Great motor cars, full of celebrated men and over-dressed ladies, went humming up to the steps of the Cercle des Etrangers. In short, Mr. Grouthing sat watching, for the first time in his life, what he certainly, at that time of the year, the gayest scene in the whole of the civilized world. Maj. Marlowe, meanwhile, was pumping in the value of his system at a gallon a stroke, and he was just then the famous pigeon shot of Europe were contesting for the enormous money prize the authorities of the casino give. As a result the tables were not too crowded, and Maj. Marlowe was actually able to obtain a seat. "Now, Grouthing," he said to his little companion, "stand behind my chair and I will show you how my system works."

Johnnie as "as fell down an 'urt 'imself!" It was as Mr. Grouthing had said. A fallow, somewhat shabbily-dressed man in black clothes had slipped upon three or four grains of the corn that people throw down for the Casino pigeons, and lay at length upon the pavement. The man rose, wringing his right wrist with his left hand as he did so, and his companion—a smartly-dressed woman—took him by the arm and led him to an adjacent table of the cafe in which Maj. Marlowe and Mr. Grouthing were seated. Now Maj. Marlowe knew this man. He was the chief croupier at the right-hand table as you enter the rooms, and he generally spun the ball there about this time of the afternoon, though sometimes he was transferred to other tables. Maj. Marlowe listened to the conversation which was going on behind him. What he gathered from it seemed to afford him some satisfaction, for a curiously-aloof look came into his tired eyes, and his ears began to prick up like a horse's ears, to catch more of it. Yet the conversation was quite simple. The croupier, who was due at his table in a quarter of an hour, was simply explaining to his wife that his wrist was strained, and that probably he would not be able to throw with his accustomed freedom. "I dare not," said the man, "ask for an indulgence this afternoon—the rooms are so full it might mean the loss of my situation." A few minutes after this the steady man left his wife and walked over to the Casino with brisk and purposeful steps. By an odd coincidence Maj. Marlowe drank up his consumption, took Mr. Grouthing under the arm, and with a great show of joviality, said: "Now, my friend, let us come and test my system." The two men entered the Casino together. Maj. Marlowe, of course, had his monthly ticket, but it was necessary to take podgy Mr. Grouthing into the bureau on the left-hand side of the hall, to explain him and acquire the ordinary billet valable pour la journée. When this was accomplished and the bewildered little man had passed through the Atrium, had satisfied the black-coated Cerberus at the door and finally emerged into the Salle des Jeux, Maj. Marlowe saw, with a curious and satisfied thrill, that the fallow-faced croupier who had fallen down in front of the cafe de Paris was just relieving a colleague and mounting the chair in front of the wheel. It was the day of the grand prix, and it was just then the famous pigeon shot of Europe were contesting for the enormous money prize the authorities of the casino give. As a result the tables were not too crowded, and Maj. Marlowe was actually able to obtain a seat. "Now, Grouthing," he said to his little companion, "stand behind my chair and I will show you how my system works."

AT THE THEATERS

The Lydia Margaret
The Lydia Margaret acts opening today promise to be unusually good. Mitchell and Mitch, "the banjo boys" will give an original act and will demonstrate just how to handle the banjo. "The Gregorians" complete the bill with a character comedy singing act. Harry Myers and Rosemary They are featured in today's picture offering, "The Hard Road."

The Empress
Edmund Brees is featured in a special feature attraction, "The Master Mind," a story of a peculiar type of criminal. The ending is a happy one and the film is a very enjoyable one.

The Majestic
Charlie Chaplin in "His New Job" is today's chief attraction at this theatre, the first of his comedy produced under the Indian head brand of pictures.

This two reel comedy is just what its title indicates. Mr. Chaplin built it up on his coming to the Essanay Company, and he has instilled incidents into that would make a Methodist deacon shriek with laughter.

Mr. Chaplin produced the play with out any scenario whatever, although he had carefully thought out the outline of his plot before hand. Most of the mirth-producing tricks were extemporaneous, however, Mr. Chaplin originating them as the camera was clicking out the film.

The result is that the comedy is the most original and the fun the most spontaneous and unstilted of any ever produced. Mr. Chaplin was ably assisted in his work by Ben Turpin, one of the oldest comedians in point of service in the motion picture business. The two men are nearly of a size and make a team that cannot be beaten. Turpin's absurd physique together with Chaplin's peculiar caper and wonderful facial expressions make them a pair unique to the motion picture comedy stage. Exhibitors from all over the country have written Essanay inquiring about the first release, and the comedy bids fair to be a world beater in output as well as in fun.

The Gem
Alice Joyce is featured in "The Leach," a two part Kalem of the Joyce Feature Series, a story of which follows:

Attracted by Mrs. Tully's efforts to seek into society, Carl Linden, a parasite, contrives to meet the woman and her family. He cleverly manages to make the socially ambitious mother believe him a nobleman.

Mrs. Tully's son, George, falls in love with Helen, a Salvation Army worker. The girl, however, refuses to marry him, and begs the boy not to press her for her reason.

Linden becomes engaged to Helen, George's sister. George induces Helen to call upon his mother. Mrs. Tully is horrified to learn of her son's love of the Salvation Army girl. Linden enters the house just at this time, light of him causes Grace to start forward. A moment later, the girl announces Linden, declaring that he had deserted her three months after their marriage. While Helen, heartbroken, falls into Grace's arms, Linden flees from the house.

But thought of the stakes he had played for, causes the scoundrel to make one more effort to enrich himself. Knowing that Helen has placed all her valuable engagement gifts in her room, the man climbs up onto the balcony columns and enters the girl's room by way of the window.

Grace, endeavoring to console Helen, accompanies the girl to her room.

They enter in time to catch Linden at work. Grace grapples with him. The sound of the struggle brings George and his mother to the scene. Linden breaks from his wife's grasp and makes a flying leap through the window. George sees the scoundrel land heavily on the ground. When the boy approaches the spot where Linden lies, he finds the man dead.

SITUATION IN EUROPE TODAY AND 100 YEARS AGO

Five European Nations Fighting in 1815 But Line-up Different Then

Washington, March 29.—"While the boundaries of Europe today are trembling in the balance of war," says a statement issued today by the National Geographic Society, "it is interesting to contrast the Europe of April 1, 1815, with the Europe of April 1, 1915. Then Europe was at war just as it is now. Then one great nation was standing off a host of allies just as today the brunt of the present war falls on one great power against a field of allies. The same five great European nations that are at war were fighting then. Only, the line-up was different.

"Then it was Europe—Great Britain, Prussia, Austria and Russia—against France and Napoleon. Then, as now the vast armies of the allies were making ready for a spring campaign of invasion, and, much as is the case today, the fields within present Belgium were first choice for a war theater. Moreover, a century of politics and diplomacy have made little change in the questions about which wars are waged in Europe. One important difference was that the Europe of April 1, 1815, had not progressed through a score of years of trouble to a state of dissatisfied, peaceful exhaustion.

"Napoleon made his Waterloo campaign in the spring of 1815, and by July 18 it had been decided in the favor of the Allies. During the great Emperor's banishment to Elba, the powers that had brought about his abdication and in whose hands the settlement of Europe's troubles lay placed the work of reorganizing boundaries, the remaking of the map, before a congress, which was called at Vienna in September, 1814. The efforts of this congress became an indefinite series of moves for impossible bargains, and its deliberations had almost resulted in war among the belligerents, when Napoleon returned from Elba, and began his march on Paris, March 1, 1815. Thus stimulated, the congress hastened with its task, and by June 9 the final act embodying the treaties of Vienna, was signed.

"The map of Europe on April 1, 1815, then, was an indeterminate thing as is that map today. France had been crowded back within the borders of Roman Gaul. Her boundaries were the Pyrenees in the south, Piedmont, Savoy, Switzerland and Baden on the west, and the Netherlands and Prussia on the northeast. It was the France of Louis XV, the France of before the revolution; and it had lost the Netherlands, a great section of Central Germany, and a strip of central Germany, which Napoleon had included in the Empire. But on April 1, the Little-Corporal was planning to defeat the armies of England, Prussia, Russia and Austria in detail, and to re-establish his Imperial France.

"While the congress in Vienna had not reached final action in its work, the boundaries of the new German confederation had practically been decided. The new federation included all of German Europe, with the exclusion of the Netherlands and Denmark. Austria was given the presidency of the federal diet. The former Grand Duchy of Warsaw was made a constitutional kingdom under the Russian crown, and the congress confirmed Russia's possession of Finland, which it had conquered from Sweden in 1809. Swedish Pomerania was ceded to Prussia. The modern German Empire with the exclusion of Austria and the addition of the province of Schleswig, German Poland, and Alsace

Lorraine, is defined by the boundaries placed by the Vienna congress to the German federation.

"Thus the tentative re-arrangement of a post-Napoleon Europe stood through April, while the Emperor of the French was feverishly engaged in raising and equipping armies with which to meet his enveloping enemies. It was only by his remarkable enterprise that he was able to put together an army of 350,000 by June 1. In the mean time, an Austrian army of 210,000 had been assembled upon the Rhine frontier, and a Russian army of 150,000 was moving up to co-operate with the Austrians. Another Austrian force menaced from the southeast, and the Prussian and English armies were concentrated in Belgium. Napoleon began his final strategic moves on June 4.

"Since the overthrow of Napoleon and the work of the Congress of Vienna, the changes in Europe have been those toward the unification of like peoples; thus the two great changes were the establishment of the German Empire and of the Kingdom of Italy. Italy was formed by the Congress of Vienna as a crazy quilt of small states. France found herself within her historic boundaries with the exception of Alsace and Lorraine. Russia emerged as an equal member of the European concert of powers, and Great Britain began her career as the undisputed mistress of the seas. Turkey, having kept her head out of the international pie, got through with a whole hide, although Russia sought to have the Turkish question brought before the congress. Holland was confirmed in the possession of Belgium; and Sweden was compensated for her loss of Finland by having Norway given to her. Denmark lost the continental end of her territory to the Germans."

WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES

Geo. Broadhurst's famous comedy in five acts with FRED MACE, MARY CHARLESON, CHESTER BARNETT, LEONIA MORGAN and JOSE BADLER.

Jones, a traveling salesman selling Bibles and playing cards, masquerades as a Bishop in a ladies' seminary dormitory, runs into a Pajama-clad girl pillow fight, meets an escaped lunatic from Nut Grove Sanitarium and elopes with a dame he never saw before, are some of the incidents of the play. Not a dull moment in the entire five reels.

Also FATTY'S NEW ROLE, Keystone comedy featuring the best diversified comedy in the world has ever known. There are others that are good but you can detect too much the sameness so distinctly that you do not enjoy their work as you do one that this sameness does not occur.

With five reels World Film comedy that has only been equaled by one and surpassed by none, Fatty's New Role in addition we offer our patrons six reels of pictures that would be difficult to equal and impossible to excel for only 10c and 15c.

THE ROHATCH MINERAL WATER.

Acts directly on the digestive organs of the stomach, strengthening the kidneys and keeps the blood in fine condition. Good circulation is the only cure for constipation, rheumatism and the only way the system has to throw off germs that cause typhoid, smallpox and other loathsome diseases. Four years in the water business in Wichita Falls has taught us precaution during epidemics of loathsome diseases. We are not strangers in Wichita Falls. We have been here fifteen years and are here to stay. We have always met our obligations. We are equipped to furnish our trade with a clean, wholesome vessel and the best water in the state. Fall in line and share good health with us. Special attention given to five gallon phone orders. Our wagon leaves the well at 7 a. m. and 2 p. m. Phone 9001-ring 14, G. J. Rohatch, Proprietor.

"YOUR TIME"

Is too valuable to leave your business and go out on the street and run down or hunt a transfer of baggage wagon. USE YOUR TELEPHONE and call 444 or 14. We are in our office always and need YOUR business. YOU WILL NEVER FIND US STANDING ON STREET CORNERS. McFall Transfer & Storage Co. Office 707 6th Street.

Drug Store Styles

Seasonable goods should be looked after and kept up with in a drug store the same as in the clothing stores. This is a feature of our business. We keep a close watch on our stock to the end of having just what you want when you want it. In prescription goods we know what each season demands and have on hand the preparations wanted. Our perfume department is full of new odors. Our store is replete with the items that are in demand at the Spring Season. We deliver anywhere, any time and at once.

Call at the store any time and we will take pleasure in demonstrating this wonderful instrument.

Will Place a Victrola in Your Home.

Why Deprive Your Family of This Splendid Instrument? With a Victrola you can provide entertainment for the home, for your guests, having choice of the productions of the most noted artists of the day, or popular selections if you prefer, combining vocal and instrumental numbers, as you choice may dictate. No other instrument provides such a varied line of entertainment, and so accurately reproduces the tone of voice and instrument. Our popular plan of selling will enable any one to buy.

Go Through Your Wardrobe

and phone me and I will get your spring clothing cleaned and pressed, so that when you want them they will be ready. I clean and press any garment you may have. My specialty is cleaning and pressing fine fabrics that you cannot afford to risk sending to ordinary tailors. I take care of the finest wardrobes in Wichita Falls. When you try me once I will take care of yours. My customers are satisfied customers. My spring woollens are on display. Let me take your measure for that spring suit.

SPRINGTIME

With its sunshine and its shadows, with its showers and its flowers. The time of bursting buds and laughing brooks. The time of all the year when HOPE springs anew and the heart is made glad by the songs of birds and the fragrance of flowers. A time when we renew our faith in God and the resurrection. Prosperine has returned from the underworld and our hearts should beat to the tune of gladness.

Does your cemetery need attention? We will assist spring in making it beautiful.
