AMMUNITION NOT TROOPS ENGLAND'S PRESSING NEED

ADVANCE OF ALLIES MAY BE DELAYED

LITTLE DEFINITE NEWS REPORTED FROM ANY OF THE THEATRES OF WAR IN EUROPE

PROHIBITION IS NOW CERTAIN

Statement by King and Cabinet Members Paving Way for Decree Later

By Associated Press. London, April 1.—The war on alcohol and the outcome of the labor situation in Great Britain has definitely taken precedence over the much talked of "spring advance of the allies in the west." The reason being that the problem of ammunition has become more pressing than that of recruiting. The pronouncement of cabinet members and the letter of King George on the question of temperance are intended to pave the way for public sentiment.

The promulgation of a decree prohibiting the sale of drink throughout the country except on prescriptions, or the adoption of some measure not called absolute prohibition now have almost been definitely determined upon. War Secretary Kitchener has announced that no alcoholic beverages shall be served in his house during the war.

The battlefront in the east and the west afford little news today and although the allies are reported as having resumed operations in the Dardanelles there are no official reports from these operations.

Today being the centenary of the birth of Bismarck the London newspapers review editorially the career of the German statesman, making with the birth of the present emperor and speculating what might have been the outcome had he remained alive and in power today.

The Austrians are putting forth strong efforts with the idea of thwarting a formidable Russian advance in the Carpathians, and this, according to the British view, explains the Austro-Russian incursion of the Austrian forces along the Dniester river for Chernowitz. The Russian war office claims various successes along this front but the Austrian authorities claim that Russian attacks were driven back.

There is a similar contradiction in the official reports on the fighting along the western front.

The Russian Black Sea fleet has bombarded several Turkish towns in Asia Minor and it is said considerable damage was done, including the sinking of several ships. This, however, is contradicted at Constantinople.

YOUNG COUNTY WARRANTS NOT BEING PAID PROMPTLY

Delay Encountered in Collecting Bond for Young County Prisoners Here

Young county, in addition to its other troubles, is about $175,000 in the red, and Wichita county is meeting some delay in collecting for the board of the four young county prisoners who are in jail here. The first warrant was received several days ago, being for $34.50, and it was explained that a bank at Graham would cash it. The warrant was sent to the bank, which returned it, asking that it be sent to a Chicago banking house, as the county has no money. It is probable that the sheriff's department will charge the board to Wichita county and have this county collect from Young. The finances of Young county have been in a bad way for some time and recent events have not improved them.

TEXAS COMPANY ALSO LOWERS CRUDE PRICE

Report of 200 Barrel Well in Archer County Not Fully Credited Here

The reduction in the price of oil to 45 cents per barrel, which was announced several weeks ago by the Magnolia Petroleum Company, was followed this morning by the Texas Company. For some time after the Magnolia announced the cut, the Texas Company continued to take oil at the old price, but today its reduction was posted also.

A report from Archer county, published in the Dallas News today, telling of a 200 barrel well in that section is not credited among oil men here. The only producer reported from Archer county recently was a ten barrel well on the old Miller holding near the scene of the discovery well. News of the bringing in of two more wells in the Thrall field in Williamson county has caused much interest here, there now being six producers there. The two new wells are rated at 1000 and 500 barrels, according to press dispatches.

GOVERNOR SENDS CHECK TO MOTHER OF TRIPLETS

Austin, Texas, April 1.—"You certainly deserve a crown in heaven. I do not hesitate to say that this nation must look to you and your kind for a perpetuation of its existence."

This is an extract of a letter which Governor Ferguson sent to Mrs. Luke Collier, Route 1, Heidenheimer, Texas, in which he inclosed his personal check for $50 as a token of his appreciation that she is the mother of fourteen children, including one set of triplets, all boys, born on March 12, 1915, and one set of twin boys.

"As Governor of Texas, I extend to you the thanks of its entire citizenship and wish for you and yours prosperity and happiness," concluded the letter.

Mrs. Luke Collier was born June 19, 1876, within half a mile of where Temple is now located. She is 39 years old, the daughter of J. A. Lambert, now living at Robstown, but who lives in Bell county, near Temple all his life until two years ago.

Miss Lambert married Luke Collier in 1894. Their first child was born in 1896.

SUIT FILED AGAINST PACKING COMPANIES

COMBINATION IN VIOLATION OF STATE ANTI-TRUST LAWS ALLEGED

AGREEMENT ON COTTON SEED

Charged That Companies Combined to Eliminate Competition in Buying Seed

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, April 1.—Suit was filed today in the 26th district court by the attorney general's department on behalf of the State of Texas against Swift and Company, three of the leading meat packing establishments for alleged violations of the State's anti-trust laws.

The petition alleges that these companies use and consume large quantities of cotton seed oil and other cotton seed products and prior to the date of the alleged combinations complained of were competitors in the purchase of these products, but that after the formation of the so-called combination competition was lessened or suppressed altogether thereby keeping down the price of cotton seed and cotton seed products.

The combination it is alleged is interested in the common ownership of a line of cotton oil mills and gins throughout the cotton states including a number in Texas. Penalties are asked for but the amount is not stated. The minimum statutory penalty is $50 per day and a maximum of $500 per day. The state also asks for forfeitures and an injunction to restrain the companies from investing their means and assets in Texas.

NO REPORT YET FROM AMBASSADOR AT LONDON

Grave Possibilities in Death of American Aboard Ship Sunk by Submarine

By Associated Press. Washington, April 1.—Ambassador Page at London had not reported to day the death of Leon Thrasher, an American lost in the sinking by a German submarine of the British steamer Falaba, but President Wilson and state department officials were studying the case to determine whether the United States should bring the incident formally to the attention of the German government.

Secretary Bryan said he expected Ambassador Page in London to submit a full report on the case if advice there confirmed reports of Thrasher's death, but added that no inquiries had been received by the department nor had any been made of Mr. Page. Officials generally were not inclined to discuss the matter.

It is known, however, that in view of the language of the American note of inquiry in reply to the German notification of a submarine blockade of England, the facts in this case will be awaited with the greatest interest. That note contained a plain warning that the loss of American lives through the German program of sinking merchant vessels would be viewed as an unfriendly act.

It was suggested in some circles that the German position would be to place responsibility for the destruction of the Falaba upon her captain, contending that his effort to escape rendered his vessel liable to attack under the rules of international law.

On the other hand, however, it was said that while the rules of international law heretofore applied permitted the destruction of merchant craft which resisted search by belligerent war vessels, it appeared that the Falaba only attempted to escape and did not resist. It was pointed out in official circles that, according to reports, the ship's boats were over her side and her passengers and crew attempting to leave her when the torpedo which destroyed her was discharged.

Says Bill of Congress Has Been Made Showing Big Majority for This Feature

By Associated Press. Washington, April 1.—Government aid to farmers by loans on farm mortgages will be interposed by a group of representatives in opposition to any other system of rural credits, Representative Henry of Texas said today.

"We will fight any proposition," he said, "that does not provide for the fundamental proposition of government aid and a banking system for the farmer separate and distinct from the Federal reserve. We have polled all members of the House and know that this proposal will carry by a big majority. We carried the house four to one in the last session."

Members of the rural credits joint committee are studying the whole scheme preliminary to the session of the fall when they will be ready to submit a plan to the general committee.

TURKS MASSACRE PERSIAN CHRISTIANS

BODIES HORRIBLY MUTILATED FOUND AFTER RUSSIANS CAPTURE VILLAGES

URUMIAH IN GRAVE DANGER

Only Order From Constantinople Can Avert General Massacre of Christians There

By Associated Press. Tabriz, March 30, via Petrograd to London, March 31.—Hostilities between the Russian and Turkish forces in northwestern Persia have been renewed. On March 25 the Russian defeated the Turks in a fierce battle at Akkur north of Bilman. The Turks lost 1200 in killed, wounded and prisoners as well as many guns.

Proceeding the recapture by the Russians of the Slamak plain northwest of Urumiah hundreds of native Christians were rounded up by the Turks in the village of Basudin and massacred. Many of these were searched from the houses of friends Mohammedans who had given them refuge. The Russians on entering the village put to death there and that more than 300 men busy for three days. The wailing of the women intensified the horror of the scene. The bodies showed that some had been shot and their arms torn off. Others were tied to ladders with their heads protruding through the rounds and beheaded after their eyes had been gouged out.

A general massacre of the Christians at Urumiah is expected unless it should be averted by orders from Constantinople. Verbal messages from Urumiah confirm the reports that more than 2000 have died from disease. The maltreatment of Dr. A. T. Allen, an American missionary, has been confirmed.

AERIAL ATTACK ON MATAMORES LIKELY

VILLA FORCES HAVE ONE BIPLANE AND HAVE THREE MORE COMING

CARRANZA PLANE EXPECTED

Bombs Being Made in Brownsville for Use of Carranza Aviator—No Attack Today

By Associated Press. Brownsville, Texas, April 1.—The probability of a bomb dropping attack by four aeroplanes on the Carranza garrison at Matamores, was discussed today by M. M. Rhinehart of Dayton, Ohio, an American, who flew a Villa biplane to Las Yeguas, four miles from Matamores and headquarters of the Villa force last night. Rhinehart flew in from Reynosa, about 65 miles west of Matamores. He said he was informed three other aeroplanes would start today from Monterrey. Under favorable conditions the trip should be made in three or four hours, he said. The bomb dropping project is interesting American army officers here. It appears to minimize the danger of easy titles on this side of the river.

Mr. Rhinehart said he had not seen five cannon reported to be on the way for the Villa forces here, but that the officer who accompanied him in his flight said that several cases were held back by a wreck near Matamores contained the artillery. There was considerable rifle firing between Villa scouting parties and Carranza trenches early this morning. The firing ceased with daylight.

THE FORGOTTEN WORD

By VICTOR RADCLIFFE.

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chapman.)
"The word, sir?"
"Ha—hum! I declare!"
The challenge, sharp and suspicious, came through a tiny slot in a door that seemed to guard a lodge room, or some like-secret place of convocation. The embarrassed response was from Prof. Achilles Dabney, savant and student of antiquity.
"I—how awkward! You see—dear me! how could I forget so readily? I have lost the word."
Snap! went the jealousy guarded slot cover, but the professor beat hastily and preemptorily on the door, and, to him, the evil eye again appeared at the orifice.
"I have come nearly five hundred miles," fluttered the professor excitedly and with eagerness. "I am Professor Achilles Dabney. Surely, you have heard of me? I am deeply interested in the discovery of the great connecting link your illustrious society has on exhibition."
"Sorry, sir, but only to members of the Anthropological Assembly, or those accredited by some officer of the same, is admission granted, provided they have the password."
Professor Dabney groaned audibly as he left the place. All his thoughts were bent upon devising some way of getting in among the scientists. He racked his brain for a suggestion of some method of uncomposing the great desire of his heart. In his abstraction, crossing a crowded thoroughfare, he jumped two feet up into the air at the sharply yelled words: "Hurry! hurry—out of the way!"
"Mercy me!" gasped the professor, as the teamster's horses nearly bore him down.
"Look out!" came a second startling injunction, and the professor faced the new dilemma of a speeding automobile coming from the other direction.
Directly in front of him was a little girl about nine years of age. She was directly in the course of the oncoming machine. The professor was not only a scientist but a true humanitarian. He made a dash for the child. Just in time he pushed her out of the way of the crushing wheels of the auto, was knocked aside himself by the edge of the machine, and reached the curb, where a policeman was trying to soothe the crying, frightened child.
"You are a good, grand man!" lisped the child, seizing and fondling his hand. "Sister will never forget you, any more than I will. Oh, you must come with me and let her thank you! She would never forgive me if I let you go!"
So, in his meek, accommodating fashion, the professor allowed the little one to lead him along the street, followed by the approving and admiring smiles of the crowd. She finally passed a small flat building, went up to its top story and pushed open a door, with the excited words:
"Oh, sister! dear! I've had such a time, and only for this gentleman you would never have seen me again!"
A lovely young girl arose from some fancywork in which she was engaged, pausing at the hurried story of the little one, and then bending her gratitude and interest upon the hapless and confused visitor.
The tired scientist glanced about the bright, cheery room. His gracious reception had warmed his heart. All his wealth and prestige, his lonely, selfish life faded into nothingness before the intensely human and inspiring influences of this neat little home nest. The little one insisted on his staying to lunch.
He arose to go, after the happiest hour of his life, and he thrilled as the hand of Miss Weston rested in his own at parting.
"Oh, Sister Rhoda! make him promise he will come to see us again—" began little Idaline, and then she paused, dismayed, for the professor had made an extraordinary demonstration.
"The lost word!" he fairly shouted, quivered all over with excitement, and, seizing his hat, fairly rushed from the place.
It was just at dusk when there came a knock at the door of the little flat. Rhoda Weston looked glad and pleased as she welcomed the professor. He seemed supremely happy.
"I had to come back to apologize for my rude departure," he exclaimed, "but you see that name, your name, Rhoda, by a strange coincidence, happened to be the password at that scientific assembly I told you about."
"Why, I am very glad to know that your great desire was met," said Rhoda.
"Tell me some more about those counting little red ants," pleaded Idaline, climbing into his lap.

Why Professor Dabney lingered in the city, now that his mission was accomplished, he could not himself exactly analyze. But he did stay, and every evening he visited the little flat.
"I am going home tomorrow," he told Rhoda one evening. "Perhaps I had better say what I was going to write," he continued.
"Then why not do so?" she smiled encouragingly.
"One word, a lost word, discovered through you, did me great service," said the professor, "and you have enabled me also to find and understand another word."
"And that?" interrogated Rhoda, still smiling, but trembling all over.
"Lunch!"

MINE FIRES USED IN COOKING

Thrifty Woman in Carbonate, Pa., Bakes Her Potatoes in Back-Yard Crevice.

That the mine fire which has raged beneath the Belmont section of this city for the last ten years has its advantages for the residents was discovered by a motion picture photographer, taking pictures in the fire district for reproduction on "movies" screens throughout the country.
Many of the property owners have closed their homes and removed to other sections of the city to wait for the fire to burn itself out or to be extinguished, but a few of those who remain are making the best of conditions.
The moving picture men found one woman who utilizes the mine fire in baking potatoes and other vegetables. She simply drops the "spuds" into a crevice in her back yard, leaves them there about an hour and takes them out as thoroughly baked as if they had roared in the oven of her kitchen range.
Explaining her discovery, the housewife said she seldom keeps a fire in her kitchen through the summer. In an emergency she can boil eggs and prepare simple dishes with the aid of the stove-like crevice.
In Cassan street the operators found a man who supplies his home with hot water in a similar manner. When he installed his water-heating system last winter this ingenious citizen went, daily, into his garden and dug deeply into the warm earth. Then he coiled 100 feet of lead pipe into the hole and refilled it.
Even in zero weather the family had a steady supply of warm water and the scheme has worked so well that the ingenious man is considering a plan to elaborate the system and heat the house with it next winter.—Carbonate, (Pa.) Dispatch to the Philadelphia North American.

TAUGHT BY GEN. JEB STUART

Tactics of German Confederate General Sherman and Adopted by German Masters of War.

"Twenty-eight years ago when I was in Germany studying art," said a New York artist, "I had a friend who was a subaltern in the army. Like most German officers he was an enthusiastic soldier—militarist we call them now—and one day he brought a book to me to read because it was, he said, an authority with all German officers in tactical matters and was really part of their military education.
"I was not especially interested, not being much of a soldier, but when I saw the book my interest very materially increased, for it was a copy of 'Der Jahre im Sattel' by Heros von Borke, the representative of Germany with Gen. Jeb Stuart's cavalry in our Civil war, the English title being 'Three Years in the Saddle.' Von Borke had not only been with the Confederate general for three years, but he was in the thick of it and had written a story that was intensely interesting for its daring adventure and was of such technical and tactical value as to warrant the unusual position accorded it by German military authorities.
"The fact that I was a Yankee did not lessen my pride the least in General Stuart's work, for we were all good Americans by that time and I was proud to know that we were teaching Germany one style of fighting anyhow. The book was in German and I suppose it has been translated, though I have never seen a copy outside of Germany."

Facts and Figures in Connection With This Great Sale

The Harrison-Everton Music Co. has been identified with commercial enterprises for years in Wichita Falls. During that time the Harrison-Everton Music Co. has made it a point to handle nothing but the best line of goods. There are nearly 400 piano factories in the United States. About 25 of these pianos are now handled in Wichita Falls. Thus we had the choice practically of 400 different makes of pianos to select from when we opened our piano store. In buying these pianos, quality has been the only consideration. Money talks in all lines of business. When we said cash to the piano manufacturers their hats practically stood straight on top of their heads. We have the pianos. We bought them right. And we propose to sell them right. We do not belong to any piano dealers' association or any other combination that would regulate prices.

A Hint To Time Buyers

We have twenty-five pianos that we must sell within twenty-four hours. We will not mention the prices and terms on these. They are so ridiculous that it would seem improbable to you. Get on a car and come down and see us. If you fail to buy one of these it is safe to predict that the kiddies will never have a piano.

Gowns of American Design

If the new spring styles in gowns are strictly of American design, there is every reason to congratulate their creators. After a study of them one might be pardoned for quailing at the long which bids us heartily rejoice in the strength of our salvation and adding "from foreign-made modes" thereto. The street costumes are cleverly shaped, comfortable, and clean cut. Their tailoring is a thing of faultless beauty. Skirts are short and just wide and flaring enough for comfort in walking and for style. Jackets and coats are easy and smart, improving the figure which wears them properly. One may have a choice as to length, as they are shown in both long and short models. Materials are durable, old favorites being to the fore in the smartest garments. Decorations are few and elegant, buttons and straps and the introduction of outside pockets providing most of them. But it is in amazing cleverness in cutting both skirts and coats that this season has

CAST FOR "MERCHANT OF LOVE IS ANNOUNCED

The interest in the home talent play, "The Merchant of Love" is increasing daily and the Methodist ladies are confident of a packed house. The final act of "The Love Microbe" offers many laughable incidents. Miss Daisy Stewart as Priscilla Prunes, fills the role of president of the Bachelor Maids Club. Miss Grace Nolan as Miss Wanda Maan, gives hopes to the maids by announcing that she has catalogues from Sears-Roebuck showing that they are giving husbands as premiums with trading stamps. This causes great excitement, but on finding the list unattractive, Miss Tula Stokes as Sophia Sweet Gum, simply gives way to despair and throws the entire club into a crowd of wailing, sobbing, hopeless maids. Misses Obie Fatharce and Marion Crabtree as Sisters Lovie Long and Ima Fraud, play good roles in devising means of kidnapping bachelors. Miss Pauline Mears as Lillie Lonesome feels hopeless, as conditions point that no relief is in sight. Mrs. Chenault, as Madam Cupid, arrives just in time to explain the effectiveness of her love serum. She is employed at once.

Act II saw the bachelors as Messrs. Eddleman, Kelley, Crowell, Andrews and Bonner up in arms against the schemes of Madam Cupid. Jack Shelton and Mrs. W. F. Holding as Mr. and Mrs. Henpeck, add to the laughable excitement of this club meeting. The Garden party proves the downfall of every bachelor. Mrs. Chenault secretly administers a hypodermic causing the bachelors to ardently woo the happy, scheming maids. There will not be a dull minute in this comedy. Numerous specialties add to the program. Two hundred children feature the opening chorus. An especially good number will be featured by a set of High school boys and girls. Misses Helen Hines and Mabel Simpson feature songs for the Maids Club and specialties. Altogether this will be one of the best amateur plays ever staged here. Miss Green is enthusiastic in her praise of the entire company of 250 and guarantees money back to the patron who doesn't laugh with the show.

The criminal docket will be called in the county next Monday with a fairly heavy docket. Judge Harris hopes to make considerable headway in clearing this docket of the defendant sent out on bond, less than half does being in jail.

Which of these three Motor Car Dollars is yours?

The too Light car dollar
It used to be 960 miles from Chicago to New York. Now it is 20 hours. How rapidly we shift—and better—how rapidly we shift our standards of measurement! Motor cars have been in turn measured by appearance, design, construction, price, power. Now these things are pretty well standardized in all the different priced motor cars. The thing by which the motor-wise man now measures is cost of upkeep. You can get upkeep cost down to nearly nothing—but not if you get what you demand from a motor car. And here comes the discussion about weight. Someone asked Abraham Lincoln how long a man's legs ought to be. "About long enough to reach from his body to the ground, I should say," replied Mr. Lincoln. And a motor car needs enough strength to carry its necessary weight—no more—no less.

The too Heavy car dollar
Saving on gasoline and oil may be saving at the spigot, to run out at the repair bung hole. Between any two cars—there are only a few dollars' difference in a seasons oil and gas cost, but parts and repairs cost to beat the band. Good tires are all adjusted to your car and sold on a guaranteed mileage basis. So you should demand that your car should be heavy enough to stand up on country roads without danger or big repair bills; light enough to be reasonably economical of gas and oil. Among this kind of motor cars, the Chalmers car is supreme when you consider the cost of the motor car while you have it, instead of its cost when you get it. The Chalmers line for 1915 consists of 3 "Economical Sixes": the New Six-40 at $1400; the Light Six-48 at $1650 and the Master Six-54 at $2400. Come in and look them over.

NEW RECORD MADE IN POSTAL RECEIPTS

FOR POSTAL YEAR ENDING MARCH 31 RECEIPTS TALLIED $60,658. MARCH RECEIPTS $6,257.97 After Poor Showing in January and February Business Now Showing Increase

With a gain of seven per cent over the postal year ending March 31, 1914, the postal year just ended showed receipts of $60,658.89 in the local post-office. The month of March, 1915, was with one exception the heaviest month in the history of the office, being exceeded only by December, 1914; the March receipts were $6,257.97 as compared with $6,373.71 in December. The postoffice department figures the needs of the postoffice from the totals for the year ending March 31, consequently the receipts are expected to result in increases for this office. Owing to the fact, however, that the postal appropriation bill failed to pass at the last session of congress, it is not certain that any increases will be granted, as a policy of strictest economy has been adopted.

The Times would intimate that the election of a labor ticket would retard the future growth of this city.

TO LEARN WHY MAIL WON'T BE DELIVERED

This Said to be Only Texas City Where Sidewalk Rule is Enforced

The reason why parts of Wichita Falls are denied mail delivery on account of gaps in the sidewalk system, when no such rule prevails in other Texas cities, is to be made the basis of an inquiry by Mayor A. H. Britain.

It has long been the policy of the postoffice department to refuse to extend the carrier service to parts of a city where there was not an unbroken sidewalk and as a result several parts of the city have been deprived of carrier service, sometimes on account of only a few yards of unimproved walk.

So far as known, this rule does not obtain in other Texas cities and Mayor Britain is anxious to ascertain why the Washington authorities should have singled Wichita Falls out. While this city has more sidewalks than any community in Texas, also considered, it has been found impossible to avoid a few gaps in the sidewalk system, and these few gaps have resulted in refusal to grant carrier service.

In some parts of the city, it is said, there are cement walks all the way to the postoffice except for one or two gaps of 50 yards each, but carrier delivery has been denied until these gaps are filled in.

The city has been making a determined effort to complete the sidewalk system, but has found it difficult to do so in some places, and it is considered unfair to withhold mail service in such cases. The matter will be taken up with the postoffice authorities with a view to persuading them to take a more liberal view of the matter.

40,000 MORE TROOPS FOR ADRIANOPLE GARRISON

By Associated Press. April 1.—Forty thousand Turkish troops are being added to the garrison at Adrianople, the nearest Turkish town to the Bulgarian frontier. This is attributed in Sofia as a precautionary measure on the part of Turkey against the possibility of Bulgaria entering the war on the side of the allies.

Mr. H. F. Anderson, general superintendent of the M. K. & T., believes that police officers ought to use the utmost diligence in arresting these migratory birds of prey. We agree with him. The practice of giving the tramp a kick and sending him on his way saves some trouble but it encourages crime. It is like taking up a lighted bomb on your own floor and, instead of extinguishing the fuse, throwing the engines of destruction through your neighbor's window. It's a mighty poor way of keeping down the crime percentage. Yet is a rather common way of dealing with this dirty peril.

The evil should be dealt with rigidly. If the "Katy" can arouse the cities and the towns of Texas to the danger of creating the vagrant problem lightly it will have done a thing deserving praise.—Dallas Times-Herald.

WHEN YOU STOP TO THINK

Have you really done all you could towards beautifying that cemetery plot of yours? We know it is the habit to neglect those things, and count a death in the family as an added burden to be thrown off as lightly as possible. Yet, don't you think you owe it to the community in which you live to at least assist those who are striving with all their might to make our BURIAL GROUNDS half way beautiful. The good ladies of the Cemetery Association have labored long and unceasingly, without so much as "thank you" from good influential citizens, who have never looked at their plot since that last sad day when some one was buried. Are you a real live wire, or just a plain make believe? Go out and look the situation over, that neglected plot on the hill will answer this question for you.

AT THE TOMB OF NAPOLEON

NAPOLEON'S TOMB, PARIS

NAPOLION'S tomb is spacious, grandiose, silent. A parklike quarter beyond the Eiffel tower. Wide, shady avenues, few people in them; rich new apartment houses on a wide parade ground; old bronze cannon before the palace of the Soldiers' Home. One sees few old soldiers. Well dressed, dignified, they pass like shadows.

Enter a monumental iron gate. Pass armed sentries, pass a green lawn. Mount wide steps and stand in a vast interior beneath a noble dome. Mosaic built in—part of the Old Veterans' church. Heroic frescoes above, carved stone all around.

In the center of the floor a huge circular hole, protected by a stone balustrade. Look down. Giant angels of victory down there stand against the pillars that sustain the floor. Between them panoplies of molding banners. The victories watch a great sarcophagus of Finland granite, gift of Czar Nicholas, writes Stierling Hellig in the Washington Star.

Once I was near an aged veteran who showed a young soldier around. Napoleon is entombed really in the historical Old Soldiers' Home of Paris—"invalides"—invalid. But the system has changed; no new ones enter and the old have almost died off. This one dated from the Crimea; his father had fought at Waterloo, and he imagined himself and a few other glorious old relics in some particular way to guard the emperor.

Many flags and banners. They stood by the circling balustrade and looked into the yawning space of circling Victories and sarcophagus. Alternating with the angels are those standards of moldering flags and banners—flags and banners taken in battle from all the armies and countries of Europe in Napoleon's grand campaigns.

Descending the steps behind the baldachin you pass the black marble tombs of Marshals Duroc and Bertrand, which guard the approach to Napoleon. The door to the circling crypt is massive bronze. It was opened for Roosevelt on his famous visit. Over the door, in letters of gold, are the words taken from his will:

"I wish that my ashes shall repose on the banks of the Seine, among the French people, whom I so loved."
 He died at St. Helena in 1821. He was not brought back to France until 1841, and the generous and grandiose act was done, to the detriment of the Orleans dynasty, by the gallant young Prince de Joinville, a younger son of the then-reigning King Louis-Philippe Joinville.

This Napoleon's true funeral took place 26 years after his death. It was the most grandiose parade of Paris of the nineteenth century. I found myself with the veteran, again, before the relics.

"Is it true that they belong by law to Empress Eugenie?" asked the young soldier.
 The old fellow was troubled. Veteran of the Crimea, with all his pride loyal to the Bonapartes, he did not know how to answer.

In truth, most of the sacred objects had been inherited by Napoleon III from members of his family, or bought with his own money while emperor, or presented to him personally by third parties.

It is also true that they were awarded by the highest French courts to Eugenie as Napoleon III's widow and under his will, after 30 years of litigation. Probably she never contemplated taking the more illustrious pieces; probably her object was to merely keep the Bonapartist family claim alive.

to the Emperor" (i. e., Napoleon III, her husband) in the old Museum of Sovereigns. And no one would object to her taking the belt buckle of Pepin the Short and the jeweled box of St. Louis, bought by Napoleon III for 12,000 francs from the Abbey de Lys.

But Eugenie's legal rights were too magnificent, and immediately after the courts made her final award, in 1907, the famous antiquary, Velche, raised a cry before the public eulogizing the historical and intrinsic value of the relics thus awarded to Eugenie.

No one can look on them without dreaming. They are four magnificent Moorish saddles, embroidered in gold and pearls, picked up by Napoleon after the battle of the Pyramids, and estimated at $20,000. At a public sale they would bring above $40,000 for their romantic history. An oriental scimitar, gold-handled, heavily jeweled, picked up by Napoleon equally in the shadow of the Pyramids, at the beginning of his career, and worn constantly by him. Estimated at $45,000 for its material, it is really worth $200,000, or perhaps double. An American, they say, offered Eugenie's law-yrer a quarter of a million dollars for it in 1907. The parade saddle of Napoleon I, flashing with jewels, estimated at $30,000; the American offered $70,000 for it.

Then the sacred high glass case of all! Here is the "capote gris" of the Man of Destiny, his historic battle hats, cocarde, his cross of the Legion of Honor, his illustrious gray overcoat worn at Friedland, June 14, 1804; his gloves, his pistols—the whole legend of the Eagle.

The old veteran dreamed awhile, then spoke at last:
 "These things belong to France," he said, "France paid dear for them."

I once saw a party of French Boy Scouts being shown the tomb and relics by General Niox, director of the Museum of the Army.

We were down in the crypt, before the bronze door.
 "He is in there," the boys whispered.
 "My father saw him," said one. Everybody thought he must be mistaken, but a famous Parisian who knew the lad to be of the Mellinet family, told us how he, too, had been of the party when this boy's father and himself were taken there. General Mellinet, then governor of the Invalides, took them.

"My own father raised me in his arms to look," tells Jean Richemont, the poet, for it was he. "And I saw the emperor. I have never forgotten the sight. What is seen at that age by a boy of eleven makes a deep impression. I can still behold those eyes half closed, the beard slightly grown, the face of the whiteness of marble, on which spread a few spots that looked like bronze. When there mingle in my memory that face of wax, which I have seen, and those eyes, which I have seen, I see the emperor as truly as if I had known him."

The face was for a time exposed to public view, once a year, August 15, the fete of Napoleon.

Vast crowds passed in, round and out. The upper part of the coffin was raised, and through plate glass the Man of Destiny was seen, not as sleeping, but awaking, eyes half opened, just beginning to look up.

 put one right over the fence and score for yours truly via Prince Albert, tobacco that made three men smoke a pipe today where one smoked before, and put new notions into men who know what a real makin's cigarette can taste like!

Sooner or later you'll go to this wonder-smoke as little apples grow on trees. Just can't help it, like! P. A. is so good and true, such chummy tobacco, that men just go happy about it. At The Theaters

THE LYDIA MARGARET
 A new vaudeville bill is featured in today's performance and a two part burlesque on the popular blood and thunder style of western pictures is the chief movie offering. Francis Ford and Grace Cunard are featured in this startling comedy.

"Three Bad Men and a Girl" is one of those gallatin' comedies that simply makes one howl from initial flash to censorship tag. The whole play is an exceedingly clever satire on the more or less impossible western dramas which now have about finished their vogue. The public seems to have tired of extravagant western films depicting the extraordinary adventures of a hero and heroine who never were and never could be. A saner era has set in and no better indication of that fact could be found than the roars of laughter which greeted "Three Bad Men and a Girl" upon its first presentation to a select audience in New York.

Seventeen cowboys jump to the backs of their horses at one and the same time, revolver shots are exchanged at point blank range every three seconds, doors are broken in, and Grace Cunard escapes on a clothes line over a chasm empty seven feet deep.

Moreover, and in addition to the foregoing, Francis Ford leaps from a cliff, over so many feet-high, into a foaming gorge to save his sweet-heart, and succumb to his unnumbered, and unaided, unassisted and unaided, and unaided, winged in flight, drop to the right and sometimes to the left in sanguinary hair sections. It's all a roaring, screaming farce with not a single intermission or extra act. The picture, in fact, has hardly been adjusted in the screen frame before the slaughter starts.

The Majestic
 The final reel of "The Opportunities of Olive" is shown today and as all good pictures should, this series ends in a beautiful wedding scene. There are two startling revelations tonight at the Majestic. Olive's mother and that the man Olive fired upon as an intruder is her father. A three-part Broadway Star Feature with Helen Gardner in the lead role completes the program. "Underneath the Paint" is the title of the picture in which Miss Gardner is at her best. As the title indicates, this feature is a most engrossing and analytical insight into the lives of those who impersonate characters different from their own. It is so intensely dramatic it will not fail to convince its audience tonight at the Majestic Theatre, that hearts are sometimes breaking beneath the carefree smiles they disfigure. A financier's son is discovered by his father for refusing to give up his actress sweetheart. His father then coerces the girl into apparently renouncing her lover. She wails the young man by a note, but the mischievous and he believed she does not care for him, with the result that they are separated. The young fellow plunges into dissipation and the father destroys himself. In a logical, yet in a most unusual manner, the lovers are brought out of the darkness of despair into the sunlight of love and happiness. Helen Gardner as the actress adds lustre to her dramatic crown.

The Empress
 Arthur Ashley, Mignon Anderson and Sidney Bruce are featured in "In the Jury Room," a two-part Thesaurus drama. The film tells the story of a doctor on trial for murder of a wealthy factory owner and about the conviction of circumstantial evidence. The doctor has been pushing a case against Green, the factory owner, on account of the violations of health regulations in his factory. And Green fears much property loss, if the case is not dropped. By accident he comes into possession of evidence affecting the reputation of his wife, his daughter and threatens her with disgrace unless the case is dropped. The doctor refuses to drop the case, but attempts to gain possession of the papers which Green has. A short time after Dr. Middleton leaves the house Green is found murdered and evidence points to Dr. Middleton. On the occasion of the trial only one man, a young engineer, Graves, who had been in Green's employ, votes for acquittal. Time after time the jury is hung and thinks the man should go free. He tells a touching story of a time when to save his (Graves) wife, the doctor stayed from the bedside of his own dying wife. Graves will not believe that the man who made such a supreme sacrifice would take another's life. The jury is impressed, and to fully appreciate the conclusion of this picture it must be seen. A two-part Keystone is also on the program "Ambrose's Sour Grapes," with Ambrose and Chester Conklin featured in a society drama.

The Gem
 Myrtle Gonzales and Alfred Vosburgh are featured in a two-part Vitagraph, "The Game of Life," a story of which follows:
 A prominent politician's only son, Larry Stanwood, becomes acquainted with Pug Wilson, a gambler, and his sister, Madge, with whom Larry falls in love. He gives her a locket which she hangs about her neck, and this is later taken from her by Crowley; another admirer, Larry sees the locket is gone from her neck and learns his rival's name. He rushes out and Madge, realizing from the man's actions that he is looking for trouble, anxiously follows him. Crowley, in the interim, enters into a card game with Pug, and losing heavily, puts up the locket as his only remaining valuable. He loses that also. They quarrel, and in the struggle Pug strikes him. Larry enters the cafe room, finds Crowley dead and picks up the locket from the floor where Crowley had dropped it. Madge meets him as he hurries away. Without a word, she gives her back the locket. She returns to her room and there, Pug, pursued by the police, is discovered and arrested. Pug, convicted of manslaughter, becomes ill and is taken to the prison hospital, where Madge visits him, and his protestations lead her to believe him innocent. Mr. Stanwood, Larry's father, who is running for Governor, has an unscrupulous opponent in Williams. Beldon, one of Williams' lieutenants, learns of the suspicious circumstances surrounding Larry and Madge, who now suspect the young man. Pug gets worse and, knowing he is dying, he sends for Madge and signs his confession of Crowley's murder. Beldon and Williams call on Stanwood and attempt to force him to withdraw from the election by threats of spreading the news that Larry Stanwood is a criminal. This is foiled by the timely arrival of Madge and Larry. She shows them Pug's signed confession.

WHEN YOU STOP TO THINK

Have you really done all you could towards beautifying that cemetery plot of yours? We know it is the habit to neglect those things, and count a death in the family as an added burden to be thrown off as lightly as possible. Yet, don't you think you owe it to the community in which you live to at least assist those who are striving with all their might to make our BURIAL GROUNDS half way beautiful.

The good ladies of the Cemetery Association have labored long and unceasingly, without so much as "thank you" from good influential citizens, who have never looked at their plot since that last sad day when some one was buried. Are you a real live wire, or just a plain make believe? Go out and look the situation over, that neglected plot on the hill will answer this question for you.

AT THE TOMB OF NAPOLEON

NAPOLEON'S TOMB, PARIS

NAPOLEON'S tomb is spacious, grandiose, silent. A parklike quarter beyond the Eiffel tower. Wide, shady avenues, few people in them; rich new apartment houses on a wide parade ground; old bronze cañon before the palace of the Soldiers' Home. One sees few old soldiers. Well dressed, dignified, they pass like shadows.

Enter a monumental iron gate. Pass armed sentries, pass a green lawn. Mount wide steps and stand in a vast interior beneath a noble dome. Manned built it—part of the Old Veterans' church. Heroic frescoes above, carved stone all around.

In the center of the floor a huge circular hole, protected by a stone balustrade. Look down. Giant angels of victory down there stand against the pillars that sustain the floor. Between them panoplies of molding banners. The victories watch a great sarcophagus of Finnish granite, gift of Czar Nicholas, writes Sterling Hellig in the Washington Star.

Once I was near an aged veteran who showed a young soldier around. Napoleon is entombed really in the historical Old Soldiers' Home of Paris—"Invalides"—invalid. But the system has changed; no new ones enter and the old have almost died off. This one dated from the Crimea; his father had fought at Waterloo; and he imagined himself and a few other glorious old relics in some particular way to guard the emperor.

Many Flags and Banners. They stood by the circling balustrade and looked into the yawning space of circling Victories and sarcophagus. Alternating with the angels are those stands of moldering flags and banners—flags and banners taken in battle from all the armies and countries of Europe in Napoleon's grand campaigns.

Descending the steps behind the balustrade you pass the black marble tombs of Marshals Duroc and Bertrand, which guard the approach to Napoleon. The door to the circling crypt is massive bronze. It was opened for Roosevelt on his famous visit. Over the door, in letters of gold, are the words taken from his will:

"I wish that my ashes shall repose on the banks of the Seine, among the French people, whom I so loved." He died at St. Helena in 1821. He was not brought back to France until 1841, and the generous and grandiose act was done, to the detriment of the Orleans dynasty, by the gallant young Prince de Joinville, a younger son of the then reigning King Louis-Philippe Joinville.

Thus Napoleon's true funeral took place 20 years after his death. It was the most grandiose parade of Paris of the nineteenth century. I found myself with the veteran, again, before the relics.

"Is it true that they belong by law to Empress Eugenie?" asked the young soldier.

The old fellow was troubled. Veteran of the Crimea, with all his pride loyal to the Bonapartes, he did not know how to answer.

In truth, most of the sacred objects had been inherited by Napoleon III from members of his family, or bought with his own money while emperor, or presented to him personally by third parties.

It is also true that they were awarded by the highest French courts to Eugenie as Napoleon III's widow and under his will, after 30 years of litigation. Probably she never contemplated taking the more illustrious pieces; probably her object was to merely keep the Bonapartist family name alive.

to the Emperor" (i. e., Napoleon III, her husband) in the old Museum of Sovereigns. And no one would object to her taking the belt buckle of Pepin the Short and the jeweled box of St. Louis, bought by Napoleon III for 12,000 francs from the Abbey de Lya.

But Eugenie's legal rights were too magnificent; and immediately after the courts made her final award, in 1907, the famous antiquary, Valche, raised a cry before the public eulogizing the historical and intrinsic value of the relics thus awarded to Eugenie.

No one can look on them without dreaming. They are four magnificent Moorish saddles, embroidered in gold and pearls, picked up by Napoleon after the battle of the Pyramids, and estimated at $20,000. At a public sale they would bring above $60,000 for their romantic history. An oriental scimitar, gold-handled, heavily jeweled, picked up by Napoleon equally in the shadow of the Pyramids, at the beginning of his career, and worn constantly by him. Estimated at $45,000 for its material, it is really worth $70,000, or perhaps double. An American, they say, offered Eugenie's lawyers a quarter of a million dollars for it in 1907. The parade saddle of Napoleon I, flashing with jewels, estimated at $20,000; the American offered $100,000 for it.

Then the sacred high glass case of all! Here is the "capote gris" of the Man of Destiny, his historic battle hat, cocarde, his cross of the Legion of Honor, his illustrious gray overcoat worn at Friedland, June 14, 1804; his gloves, his pistols—the whole legend of the Eagle.

The old veteran dreamed awhile, then spoke at last:

"These things belong to France," he said, "France paid dear for them." "I once saw a party of French Boy Scouts being shown the tomb and relics by General Niox, director of the Museum of the Army.

We were down in the crypt, before the bronze door.

"He is in there," the boys whispered. "My father saw him," said one. Everybody thought he must be mistaken, but a famous Parisian who knew the lad to be of the Mellinet family, told us how he, too, had been of the party when this boy's father and himself were taken there. General Mellinet, then governor of the Invalides, took them.

"My own father raised me in his arms to look," tells Jean Richelin, the poet; for it was he. "And I saw the emperor. I have never forgotten the sight. What is seen at that age by a boy of eleven makes a deep impression. I can still behold those eyes half closed, the beard slightly grown, the face of the whiteness of marble, on which spread a few spots that looked like bronze. When there mingle in my memory that face of wax, which I have seen, and those eyes, which I have seen, I see the emperor as truly as if I had known him."

The face was for a time exposed to public view once a year, August 15, the fete of Napoleon.

Vast crowds passed in, round and out. The upper part of the coffin was raised, and through plate glass the Man of Destiny was seen, not as sleeping, but awaking, eyes half opened, just beginning to look up. This was until 1862; but it was presumed that the bronze spots threatened injury, and it was ordered to risk no more possible movement of exposure to the air, even under thickness of plate glass.

THE LYDIA MARGARET

A new vaudeville bill is featured in today's performance and a two part burlesque on the popular blood and thunder style of western pictures is the chief motif offering. Francis Ford and Grace Cunard are featured in this startling comedy.

"Three Bad Men and a Girl" is one of those gallivant comedies that simply makes one howl from initial flash to censorship tag. The whole play is an exceedingly clever satire on the more or less impossible western dramas which now have about finished their vogue. The public seems to have tired of extravagant western films depicting the extraordinary adventures of a hero and heroine who never were and never could be. A saner era was set in and no better indication of that fact could be found than the roars of laughter which greeted "Three Bad Men and a Girl" upon its first presentation to a select audience in New York.

Seventeen cowboys jump to the backs of their horses at one and the same time, revolver shots are exchanged at point blank range every three seconds, doors are broken in, and Grace Cunard escapes on a clothes line over a chasm empty seven feet deep.

Moreover, and in addition to the foregoing, Francis Ford leaps from a cliff, oh, ever so many feet high, into a foaming gorge to save his sweet heart, said sweet heart kills unnumbered Mexicans unaided, unassisted and alone, and villains, winged in flight, drop to the right and sometimes to the left in sanguinary halts. It's all a roaring, screaming farce with not a single intermission or extra act. The picture, in fact, has hardly been adjusted in the screen frame before the slaughter starts.

The Majestic

to dissipation and the father destroys himself. In a logical, yet in a most unusual manner, the lovers are brought out of the darkness of despair into the sunlight of love and happiness. Helen Gardner as the actress adds lustre to her dramatic crown.

The Empress

Arthur Ashley, Mignon Anderson and Sidney Bracey are featured in "In The Jury Room," a two-part Thesaurus drama. The film tells the story of a doctor on trial for murder of a wealthy factory owner and about to be convicted on circumstantial evidence. The doctor had been pushing a case against Green, the factory owner, on account of the violations of health regulations in his factory, and Green fears much property loss, if the case is not dropped. By accident he comes into possession of evidence affecting the reputation of the doctor's daughter and threatens her with disgrace unless the case is dropped. The doctor refuses to drop the case, but attempts to gain possession of the papers which Green has. A short time after Dr. Middleton leaves the house he is found murdered and evidence points to Dr. Middleton. On the occasion of the trial only one man, a young engineer, Graves, who had been in Green's employ, votes for acquittal. Time after time the jury is hung and Graves finally tells them why he thinks the man should go free. He tells a touching story of a time when to save his (Graves) wife, the doctor stayed from the bedside of his own dying wife. Graves will not believe that the man who made such a supreme sacrifice would take another's life. The jury is impressed, and to fully appreciate the conclusion of the picture it must be seen. A two-part Keystone is also on the program, "Ambrose's Sour Grapes," with Ambrose and Chester Conklin featured in a society drama.

Surprises Many People in Wichita Falls

The QUICK action of simple buck thorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-ka, the remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis, is surprising Wichita Falls people. Many have found that this simple remedy drains so much foul matter from the system that a SINGLE DOSE relieves constipation, softens stomach and gas on the stomach, all IMMEDIATELY. Adler-ka is the most thorough bowel cleanser ever sold. Fooshee & Lynch, drug gists. (Adv.)

The Gem

Myrtle Gonzales and Alfred Vonburgh are featured in a two-part Vitagraph, "The Game of Life," a story of which follows:

A prominent politician's only son, Larry Stanwood, becomes acquainted with Pug Wilson, a gambler, and his sister, Madge, with whom Larry falls in love. He gives her a locket which she later takes from her neck, and this is later taken from her by Crowley, another admirer. Larry sees the locket is gone from her neck and bears his rival's name. He rushes out and Madge, realizing from the man's actions that he is looking for trouble, anxiously follows him. Crowley, in the interim, enters into a card game with Pug, and losing heavily, puts up the locket as his only remaining valuable. He loses that also. They quarrel, and in the struggle Pug strikes Larry. Larry enters the cafe room, finds Crowley dead and picks up the locket from the floor where Crowley had dropped it. Madge meets him as he hurries away. Without a word, Larry gives her back the locket. She returns to her room and there, Pug, pursued by the police, is discovered and arrested. Pug, convicted of manslaughter, becomes ill and is taken to the prison hospital, where Madge visits him, and his protestations lead her to believe him innocent. Mr. Stanwood, Larry's father, who is running for Governor, has an unscrupulous opponent in Williams. Beldon, one of Williams' lieutenants, learns of the suspicious circumstances surrounding Larry and Madge, who now suspects the young man. Pug gets worse and, knowing he is dying, he sends for Madge and signs his confession of Crowley's murder. Beldon and Williams call on Stanwood and attempt to force him to withdraw from the election by threats of spreading the news that Larry Stanwood is a criminal. This is foiled by the timely arrival of Madge and Larry. She shows them Pug's signed confession.

FACT AND FANCY

By MAUDE BREWSTER.

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Marie was a street singer, but Marie had dreams. While she sang for pennies and dimes that were tossed to her from the windows of apartment houses she fancied herself a grand opera singer bowing gracefully before a great audience of music lovers. As she glanced from time to time at Lecco, the young Greek who was her accompanist, and who turned the hand organ mechanically, Marie fancied him to be a great and wonderful conductor waving his baton and carrying her rhythmically through her operatic arias.

The afternoon upon which Marie and Lecco stopped before the studio apartments on West Fifty-seventh street was fraught with much excitement and interest for both the Greek and the little singer from Italy.

John Orth, artist and philanthropist, was giving a tea in his sumptuous studio when Marie's voice arose from the streets and startled his guests with its sympathetic timbre and clarity of tone.

"What do you say to asking them up here for a song?" he asked.

"Great! Here's a chance for Orth to take another protégé under his wide wing," Billy Craven made answer.

The idea was no sooner suggested than carried out, and a moment later Marie and Lecco, together with the old hand organ, were up in John Orth's studio and facing a company of Bohemians who eagerly pressed forward and encircled them.

Marie had always fancied herself singing before a critical audience. It was no doubt that long, half-conscious training in the world of dreams that carried her successfully through the ordeal.

Before leaving, Marie had promised John Orth to return the following day to receive instructions preparatory to beginning a course of study in vocal and instrumental music. Also they had been taken into the dining-room, where Orth's servants offered them tea and cakes such as would make the mouths of less hungry people water.

When they had finally left the studio John Orth sat in deep study. His guests, now that the tense moments were slipping into the past, began to chide him.

"I am hard hit," he admitted slowly. "If that girl takes advantage of her studies and makes a name for herself—"

"You'll marry the girl," laughed Jimmy Craven.

"Yes, I think I will," John Orth said. Days slipped into weeks and Marie progressed slowly, but with great intelligence. She found study tedious and the demands put upon her time wearisome. Her brain, unaccustomed to training, rebelled at the long hours of application to technique, sight reading and endless scales, both vocal and instrumental. She felt much like a bird that had been caged, and Marie longed passionately for her freedom. Her fancies had never embodied this constant toll. The fact was less attractive to her than her wonderful dreams and castles in the air.

Lecco, too, seemed unconsciously to add to her troubles. That he was occupying himself with business was evident in the enlarged store and increased trade. Marie wondered at the loneliness and sudden strangeness of the world, and it was to Lecco she went with her woes.

"Meastair Orth—he would marry me," she said finally. "He say he loves me."

Lecco's face went white. "I love you, too, Marie," he cried swiftly, and would have stopped the rush of words to his lips had not Marie crept happily into his arms.

"You never say so to me; never told me you love me," she whispered in the wonderful tones that would have made her famous had she loved happiness less. "I have loved you forever, Lecco."

A flame leaped into Lecco's black eyes and he bent his head over the lips that were to kiss his red-poppies hung on an oval of alabaster.

Liberty. A small boy went up to a soda water clerk and said: "Give me a pommaline cocktail."

"What's that?" "I want a pommaline cocktail."

"That's a new one on me. Explain what it is."

"Well, I've just escaped from my home and I can do what I like. Now, every time I have seen anything I particularly liked, my mother would say, 'No, you can't have that. It's got pommaline in it.' And so I want a pommaline cocktail, with all the pommalines you can squeeze in. I'm out for the time of my life."—Life.

Had to Put Up With It. Mistress—"Bridget, did I see Omelette Flynn eating cold chicken in this kitchen last night?" Bridget—"You did, mum! And it's not me will beat up a chicken at half-past ten for any cop."

Puck.

Worried. "That dog of Black's will be the death of me, barking at me every time I pass."

"But barking dogs don't bite."

"I know, but I'd rather be bitten at once than kept in suspense."

SIDEWALKS AT UNION STATION CAFE SCRUBBED

Manager Oliphant First to Comply with Request of Civic League

The Union Station Cafe was probably the first Wichita Falls institution to observe the request of the Civic League to business houses to scrub the sidewalks in front of their places of business. Bright and early this morning O. D. Oliphant, manager of the cafe, had the walks at the front and the side of the cafe, scrubbed until they shone. It looked so nice and clean that a number of pedestrians passed by this morning with mouths full of saliva which they held until they could find a more appropriate place for dropping it.

The sidewalks around this cafe are frequently scrubbed and from now on they will be washed off every morning.

"GRAPE JUICE" ADOPTED BY ENGLISH ROYAL FAMILY

By Associated Press. London, April 1.—The following letter dated Buckingham Palace, March 31, has been sent to David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer: "Dear Chancellor of the Exchequer: The king thanks you for so promptly letting him have a full report of the proceedings at yesterday's meeting of the deputation of employers. His majesty has read it with intense interest, but also with the deepest concern. He feels that nothing but the most vigorous measures will successfully cope with the grave situation now existing in our armament factories. We have before us the statements not merely of the employers, but of the administrators of the war office, which are responsible for munitions of war, and for the transport of troops. This evidence that it is largely due to drink that we are unable to obtain the amount of war material indispensable to the army in the field, and that there has been such serious delay in consequence—"

"A continuance of such a state of things must inevitably result in the prolongation of the horrors and burdens of this terrible war. I am instructed to add that if it be deemed advisable the king will be prepared to set an example by giving up all alcoholic liquors and by issuing orders that his consumption in the royal household shall be prohibited so that no difference shall be made between the treatment of the rich and the poor in this question. (Signed)

WAR REVIVES USE OF WOODEN SHOES

By Associated Press. Cologne, April 1.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Under the title of "Back to Wooden Shoes," a forerunner from the Kifel district urges that the constantly increasing cost of leather footwear be offset by the manufacture of more shoes either partly or entirely made of wood.

He declares that even new soles on old shoes have become a luxury for the average man, and insists that the practicality of wooden shoes is not appreciated. Especially are they available for the soldier, who shoes made of a combination of wood and leather are hardly to be told from all-leather boots, he says.

Estimating that Germany is feeding and clothing about one million prisoners of war, he declares that these men at the very least should be fitted out with wooden shoes so that the German soldiers may not have to suffer. As an additional advantage of his plan he says that a new and profitable industry will be created, and the forests of Germany will be put to a concrete use.

TEXAS HAS 1600 MEN IN THE U. S. NAVY

Washington, April 1.—Where the enlisted men of the navy come from is shown in a statement issued tonight by Secretary Daniels. The figures were compiled as a result of a recent question by President Wilson as to whether most of the sailors were not from coastwise states.

An analysis shows, Mr. Daniels said, that interior states furnish their quota to the personnel of the navy. It may be stated too, that a further analysis shows that a majority of these young men enlisting in the navy do not come from the cities or seaport towns, but from the smaller communities of the various states.

There were 52,467 enlisted men on June 30 last, and of these, five came from Alaska and 2102 from the insular possessions. New York, with 7922, led all the states, in the number furnished. Other states included Arkansas, 304, Kansas 451, Louisiana 655, Mississippi 327, Missouri 1468, Oklahoma 609, and Texas 1600.

MOTOR CYCLE DISPATCH RIDERS SHOW STRAIN

Responsibilities and Danger and Physical Strain Entail All to Victoria Cross

London, April 1.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—"Almost the only faces with the army on which the strain of their experience is visibly written are those of the motor cyclist dispatch riders," says a letter from the front, the writer adding, "I should give them all the Victoria Cross."

To ride for months at a high rate of speed over cobble pavements of an extreme unevenness is of itself a physical strain, but this is increased many fold by the responsibilities and dangers which are the daily lot of the dispatch rider.

"With dry roads and only the ordinary peace-time traffic to dispute the right of way occasionally, the motor cyclist can take an ordinary pace with no great strain. But it is quite different when the cobble are greased by the oil and slime of months of traffic and weeks of rain and fog; when a ten or twelve inch drop into mud waits on either side of the narrow roadway; when every road is crowded with great motor trucks which claim the road and take it willingly; when orders are—they always are, apparently—to travel not at a leisurely go-as-you-please, but at the top speed of which the battered machine is capable.

"Add to these little difficulties a blinding rain, a pitch-black night, no lights, a few shell-swept stretches of road, snipers, sentries, obstacles, shell holes, and other disturbing matters, and there is the picture of the ordinary life of the dispatch rider. Sidelings and collisions, broken forks and handlebars into shell-holes, are all in the day's work. But what the dispatch rider really objects to, is being shot at by his own sentries. This is by no means exceptional, for the sentry's challenge is quite likely to be drowned by the noise of the engine."

"In the early days," writes one rider, "the wandering Uhlans was a terror, not because of his soldierly qualities, but because you were always liable to find yourself charging at some crossroads in the darkness, into his horse's body. I knocked over several like that, and I never knew how they were going to take it. I think they must have generally lost their horse and gun in the dark, for only one of them ever fired a shot, and he did not fire at me."

DRAINAGE NEEDED FOR IRRIGATED LANDS

Government Publication Emphasizes Value Proper Drainage Systems in Arid Regions.

Special to the Times. Washington, April 1.—More than 10 per cent of the irrigated lands in the United States which have had water for any considerable period of time are now either absolutely unproductive or given over to poor pastures and unprofitable crops; according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Waterlogging and the accumulation of harmful mineral salts are responsible. Even in some of the most recent irrigation projects serious injury from these causes has been wrought.

Methods of reclaiming land which has fallen into this condition forms the subject of a new bulletin of the Department (No. 190), "The Drainage of Irrigated Land." Drainage supplemented by proper methods of cultivation, cropping, and irrigation, will restore these waterlogged areas to a condition in which they can be farmed with profit, the bulletin points out. Proper drainage will accomplish four objects: (1) the lowering of the ground-water table to a depth where the moisture and air within the root zone will be properly balanced; (2) the creation of an outlet for percolating water, so that the ground-water table will not fluctuate excessively; (3) the rapid removal of excess moisture following spring thaws; and (4) the creation of an outlet for the downward moving water used to dissolve out the injurious salts.

Intrusions of alkali salts and the presence of highly alkali-resistant plants are frequently indications of overirrigation. In some cases ponds, bogs, and marshes are also found, but in others there are no visible signs of excessive wetness and its existence can only be inferred from its effects upon vegetation. The bulletin calls special attention to the difference in drainage practice between the arid and the humid regions, and emphasizes the need for thorough knowledge of underground conditions.

To drain areas of this character will cost, it is estimated, on the average, from $10 to $20 an acre except under unusual conditions when the cost may run as high as $50 an acre. Both open canals and covered conduits are in general use. The open canals, however, are intended primarily for the main outlets, the main canals in which provision must be made for a considerable flow of water. The covered drains are for farm drainage proper, although, except for the additional expense, they could be used equally well for the main outlets. As a matter of fact, although they cost more than the open canals, the maintenance charges are usually lower, much valuable space is saved, and cultivation and irrigation are much easier with them than with open canals. Where covered conduits are employed they are usually made either of cement or clay tile.

In properly drained land bacterial activity is increased and more plant food provided by the admission of aid into the soil to take the place of the excess water which has been removed. The downward movement of water through the soil also leaches out the excess of harmful salts, and this is one of the most important functions of drainage in the irrigated sections. The water removed by the drainage system may be employed for the irrigation of other areas, thereby increasing the available irrigated area. Furthermore, drained land may be plowed earlier than undrained, and in consequence may be irrigated earlier. This is an obvious advantage in that it makes it possible for the land to be irrigated before the supply of water becomes reduced. Various forms of drainage systems and the best methods of constructing them are discussed in the bulletin.

WAR BREAD TEACHES MEN TO MASTICATE THOROUGHLY.

By Associated Press. Berlin, April 1.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—If the introduction and universal use of "war bread" in place of fresh white bread has neither cost it will at least, in the opinion of prominent medical men, teach men to masticate their food properly.

Inmates of hospitals especially have complained of the new bread. At a recent gathering of hospital physicians, physiologists and bacteriologists, such complaining persons were termed "neurosthenics" with weak stomachs, and it was declared that the war bread would actually serve to help their condition by making them masticate more thoroughly.

It was urged that their "idiosyncrasies" and their dislike of the war bread be overcome by appeals to their patriotism, by psychology, by teaching them to chew properly, and, lastly, by preparing the new kind of bread stuffs appetizingly.

Gold Dust actually works. It gets into corners and crevices where fingers and washcloths can't reach. It permeates and dissolves dirt, grease and grime everywhere and it cleans and brightens everything.

Gold Dust does all this—does this actual work—because it is made for that purpose.

Millions of women all over the country use Gold Dust three times a day in washing dishes. They use it for scrubbing floors, washing windows, etc.

But they do not realize all the uses of Gold Dust. Gold Dust is the only washing and cleaning powder needed in any home.
