TODAY'S TESTIMONY CENTERED AROUND TODD AND LISCHKE

PAT CARLTON'S BROTHER TESTIFIES FOR THE STATE

SMELLED POWDER ON TWO DEFENDANTS

SAYS TODD BROUGHT LISCHKE TO HIS ROOM SOON AFTER THE SHOOTING

"BARNHART" AT THE BELMONT

Witnesses Testify That Lischke Was Registered Under That Name
—Other Testimony

The part that R. M. Todd and J. B. Lischke are alleged to have played in the events at Graham came in for more particular attention in today's testimony in the trial of E. W. Fry, Patsy Fry, J. B. Lischke and R. M. Todd in the 7th district court. These defendants are being tried here on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of Deputy Sheriff E. T. Cherryholmes at Graham, February 24.

Todd asked several people very shortly after the shooting what the trouble was and what caused the shooting, according to several witnesses. Perhaps the most direct bit of testimony against Todd was his statement that powder smoke could be smelled when he entered a room. This testimony was given by Ed Johnson, brother of a man who was shot in the February shooting; in spite of the fact that his brother was supposed to be in charge with the Fry and Todd. Dock Carlton was a State witness.

ED JOHNSON ARRIVES
The mysterious "man in woman's clothes" did not figure in today's proceedings, but Ed Johnson who was mentioned in this connection and who has been sick, arrived and was sworn as a witness. The defense is still on the trail of the automobile, however, and tried to get additional light on it today from State witnesses.

The expectation was, early this afternoon, that Riley Collins, who with Tom Cherryholmes was guarding the court house, would be put on the stand some time today.

One witness this afternoon told of the purchase of some ammunition by Patsy Fry on Monday before the shooting.

Lischke Comes In
J. B. Lischke's connection with the case was gone into rather thoroughly at Monday morning's session and perhaps the most interesting fact developed was that when after the shooting, Todd brought Lischke to the room of Dock Carlton, brother of Pat Carlton, he told Dock to let Lischke sleep there and added that if anything came up about it, he was to say Lischke had been there all night.

This testimony was given by Claude Carlton, or "Dock," as he is better known, while a witness for the State.

The use of name "John Barnhart" by Lischke in registering at the hotel was the subject of some testimony. The State introduced a register page showing this name, but the defense showed that the date was November 19, 1914, not February 19, 1915. However, the hotel proprietor testified that Lischke registered as John Barnhart on the Friday before the shooting.

It was also brought out that on the afternoon before the shooting, Todd talked to someone at Fort Worth telling him the moving picture deal was closed. The call had been put in for Lischke and the Fort Worth party answered that he would come out immediately.

The actions of Todd, just after the shooting were also dealt with in the testimony. "Uncle Henry" Jones, proprietor of the Belmont House where Todd stayed, Mrs. Jones and H. M. Jones Jr., were witnesses on this point, bringing out that Todd entered the room where the three slept, soon after the shooting, and asked what the shooting was; shortly after he asked central the same question Steps On Gallery.

Mrs. Jones, a white haired old lady, was perhaps the State's best witness and despite her nervousness she showed an ability to take care of herself under cross examination. According to her testimony, Todd walked down the gallery on to which his room opened, then into the hotel office, then into the bed room, but she was very positive that she heard someone walk on the gallery up to Todd's door before she heard him coming back.

There is not much doubt that the defense expects to show an alibi for time. It was after four o'clock. He saw Lischke that same morning. The witness said he heard Todd ask someone over the phone where the shooting was and if there was a fire; Todd asked these questions of the independent operator.

A question as to Todd's appearance at that time met with objection which was overruled. The witness did not notice Todd's appearance, but remembered that he wore no coat. The night was the first time witness remembered seeing Todd in his room.

A complaint by Judge Martin as to opposing counsel's manner of objecting led to wrangle which ended when the court put an abrupt stop to it.

Didn't Hear Statement.
On cross examination, the witness said there was a Southwestern telephone in the bedroom for a while after his parents bought the hotel from Todd and that the latter came into the room to talk over the phone.

"How long had you been awake when you heard your mother say, 'Mr. Todd, the glad you were in the hotel when this happened?'" "I didn't hear her say that."

Witness was questioned rather severely as to whom he had talked about the case previously. He said he talked to the State attorneys Sunday and that he had heard his parents discuss it.

As to the conversation in his room, Jones could not say that his father was awake. He said Todd had a farm near town but could not say how often he visited it. Jones did not know whether his mother had ordered the Todd's to leave the hotel because the little Todd girl split some preserves on the table.

On redirect examination, witness told of giving his testimony before the county attorney before the meeting of the grand council here during the forenoon pickets peppered the peace. He said that since the killing Mrs. Todd had been back at the hotel, had stayed all night, and that there had been no unfriendly talk that he noticed.

On redirect examination, witness said there were no negroes in Young county. The witness questioned by Judge Carlton, said he had not seen an automobile. Again questioned by Judge Martin, witness described the location of Dr. Griffin's residence and said an automobile from Dr. Griffin's home to the telephone office could pass by the Workman garage, but that this could not be the most practical route, as that street was not gravelled.

Miss Ethel Johnson, sister of the previous witness, took the stand. She was employed as a Southwestern telephone operator in February. Witness said she knew R. M. Todd and that he was a patron of the phone company. She said Todd called Lischke over long distance phone on the Tuesday before the killing.

"The Graham party said the picture show deal had been fixed up. The Fort Worth party said, 'I'll be out on the 5 o'clock train.'"

On cross examination Miss Johnson said Ed Johnson was also a patron of the phone company; she said John Jones had his wife not related to Ed, kept the office at night.

The State next called Henry Jones Jr. to the stand. He lives at the Belmont Hotel, which is managed by his father in Graham. The witness said he was at home on the Friday night before the killing and met the Rock Island train that night.

Did Lischke Write it?
Lischke was pointed out to the witness and the latter said Lischke came to the hotel that night, and that witness took him to a restaurant for supper. "Witness did not see him register, but saw a name on the register lately and identified the page out of the register. He pointed out the name of John Barnhart of Dallas as the one Lischke put on the register. The witness said he saw Lischke downtown next day, but did not know when he left town; he thought it was Sunday morning.

The witness said Todd and his wife were in the room, which was also occupied by the witness's father and mother.

When witness first noticed the time, it was after four o'clock. He saw Lischke that same morning. The witness said he heard Todd ask someone over the phone where the shooting was and if there was a fire; Todd asked these questions of the independent operator.

A question as to Todd's appearance at that time met with objection which was overruled. The witness did not notice Todd's appearance, but remembered that he wore no coat. The night was the first time witness remembered seeing Todd in his room.

RUSSIAN INVASION HUNGARY BEGINS

RUSSIAN REPORTS SAY THEY ARE ADVANCING ALONG A WIDE FRONT

HURLING BACK AUSTRIANS

Vienna Denies This Report—England
Sees Risks of Fighting in North Sea

By Associated Press.
London, April 12.—From Russian sources it is reported that the invasion of Hungary has been begun. A dispatch from Debrecz, Gallia, says the Russians are advancing successfully along a wide front between Bartfeld and Matesz descending the slope of the Carpathians and hurling back the Austrians. It is also declared that the Russians have routed the Austrians forcing them to abandon transport and guns in their retreat.

London today heard reports of heavy firing off Scarborough indicating an engagement of some character in the North Sea, details of which have not been announced.

There was no significant development in Belgium or France yesterday or today, according to official statements. Along the Oise and Aisne where comparative quiet has prevailed for several weeks fighting is reported but there are no indications as to the results. Further west in the region which has been contested during the last week the battle yesterday was less violent, the German war office again stating that the French attacks were repulsed.

Vienna denies a Russian victory in the vicinity of Brook saying that Russian attacks there have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy and that 800 prisoners were taken.

Brownsville, April 12.—There was much fighting by both Carranza and Villa troops at the trenches at Matamoras today. Shortly before day break Villa outposts closed in on the Carranza trenches during a fog. The Carranza defenders went over the trenches after them getting close enough to use several hand grenades. Heavy rifle fire was heard in Brownsville. Finally the heavy shooting stopped.

SEVERAL TOWNS CONSIDERED

Negotiations Already in Progress
With Burkburnett and Iowa
Park

The commissioner's court, in session today, passed an order granting a permit to the Wichita Falls Electric Company for the erection and maintenance of towers, poles and electric wires along and over the public roads of the county. The securing of the permit is in connection with the plans of the company to supply electric current to the smaller towns in this section of the State, a movement heretofore inaugurated. It is planned to supply Iowa Park, Burkburnett and other points not equipped with electric light plants and it is likely that construction work will begin soon after all the necessary permits and franchises shall have been secured.

The commissioners met in regular session this morning, but the greater part of the day has been consumed in outlining the work of the term and in considering matters of minor importance. Other than the granting of the permit referred to above, no business had been transacted prior to the middle of the afternoon.

PRINTERS AND MUSICIANS
HOLD SOCIAL SESSION
The Printers and Musicians unions of the city held a joint social session at the labor hall Sunday afternoon, which was attended by members of the two locals and a few invited friends. An interesting program, including refreshments, was provided and very much enjoyed by those in attendance. Prof. Ernest Kats of the Musicians Union officiated as toastmaster in his usual entertaining way and a number of talks were made.

Those present declare it to have been one of the most successful events of the kind ever held in the city and it is probable that another similar session will be held within a short time.

KRONPRINZ WILHELM GIVES UP PRISONERS

61 BRITISH OFFICERS AND MEN
LIBERATED AT NEWPORT
NEWS TODAY

TRANSFERRED TO ENGLISH SHIP

As Their Tug Moves Down Harbor
They Receive Mighty Cheers
From Fellow Countrymen

By Associated Press.
Newport News, April 12.—That the German merchant raider Kronprinz Wilhelm pursued into this port early Sunday morning through the Virginia capes was chased by British battleships until after midnight Saturday and marvelously escaped destruction was the assertion today of British officers of captured merchant vessels on the cruiser.

Shortly before noon today 61 British officers and men captured on the Kronprinz's victims were taken British steamer P. A. Mara, one of the Wilhelm by tug and rushed down the river to the British warship Casandra which will sail later today for Glasgow. The harbor was lined with British merchantmen and as the captured crews of the victims of the German raider were released and as their tug steamed down the harbor they were greeted with cheers by more than 1,000 British steamers who swarmed the decks of their vessels and gave vent to their patriotic fervor.

When the liberated British prisoners reached the Casandra's side they hurriedly crossed their luggage aboard and climbing onto the decks scampered and danced around like schoolboys. Joyous that they had escaped destruction from their own country's ships and that they should be liberated.

The Kronprinz Wilhelm slipped into Newport News Sunday and asked for fuel and provisions. Many times reported destroyed, the former North German Lloyd liner evaded hostile warships for eight months while she sent fourteen merchantmen to the bottom and her officers said she was forced to steal her way past four French and British cruisers of the Virginia capes in order to reach the harbor.

"We got in without being seen by the enemy, and we can get out the same way," declared her commander, Lieut. Captain Paul Thiesfelder, formerly navigating officer of the German cruiser Karlsruhe, in a statement last night.

When she dropped anchor the Kronprinz Wilhelm had less than twenty-five tons of coal and scanty provisions for the crew of 500 men and 61 prisoners from British merchant ships sunk in the South Atlantic. Of the fourteen ships that she had captured 15,000 for cruiser sank, nine were British, four French and one Norwegian. The value of these ships and their cargoes officers of the

FALSE RUMOR DISAPPOINTS MEN LOOKING FOR WORK

Over Hundred Waiting at City Hall
For Jobs On Expanding Paving Work

Over one hundred men assembled at the city hall this morning as the result of a mistaken report that work was to begin on the paving provided for by the city council, only to be disappointed when informed that matters had not as yet reached the stage where work would begin. In fact, the board of sidewalk have not yet asked for bids on the work and it will probably be two or three weeks before matters will be in shape for actual construction.

George Dobson, superintendent of street work, also reports that a large number of men were present this morning when his men were put to work, the applicants stating that they had been informed that about 100 additional men were to be given employment.

It seems that this action was due to a report circulated Saturday afternoon of which the city officials had no knowledge and are unable to account for the mistaken impression that induced so many men to apply for work.

FOUR CONDITIONS OF HUMAN HAPPINESS

FIRST OF SERIES OF SERMONS ON THIS SUBJECT HEARD SUNDAY NIGHT.

CONSCIOUSNESS OF ALMIGHTY

"Something To Reverence" Discussed By Rev. C. C. Smith in First of Sermons on Subject

The first of a series of four sermons on "The Conditions of Human Happiness" was delivered Sunday evening at the First M. E. Church by the pastor, Rev. C. C. Smith. "Something to Reverence" was named as the first condition of happiness and was the subject of the first sermon of the series. The pastor explained that mankind demands something to reverence in order to be happy and consequently that without a consciousness of God, and reverence for God, happiness was sought in vain. The text was:

"The fear of Jehovah is the beginning of wisdom (Psalm 111:10). The pastor said in part: "As the general subject indicates I have in mind a discussion of happiness in the form of a series to last over four Sabbaths. There are some advantages in treating a subject in this way. A subject so large as human happiness gives ample room for discussion for many evenings, and those who are inclined to work may find something of sustained interest from week to week. At least we hope that this series of discussion will be of some benefit enough at least to justify their presentment.

Working Standard of Happiness
"First of all we will need to fix upon a working conception of happiness. Happiness is a relative term. One person may be happy in a condition in which another may be perfectly miserable. But we are not in this discussion trying to get at all the elements in human nature that are out of joint and must be harmonized before there can be something like universal happiness, but rather we are seeking after some fundamental propositions for bringing happiness to the individual. We want to know about the fundamental conditions that must obtain before there can be an abiding, thorough going happiness in the human heart. The common street loafer has a certain sort of happiness. If he can borrow heat in the winter and a cool place in the summer and has some one who is kind enough to feed him, he is happy up to the limit of his standard. His capacity is not very great. The drunkard is happy when his artificial tastes are satisfied. But this sort of happiness is so near to the plane of animal contentment that it can scarcely be called happiness.

An animal, when all his wants are met is content, but not happy. He has not sufficient capacity to be happy. Many men are not from this same plane. When all their animal wants are met they are content because they have not sufficient brains to be unhappy. We are seeking to define happiness on a higher plane than this and would if possible know something about conditions which will surely bring happiness to those who have gotten farther away from the animal. Happiness is not in the abstract. It is a state of some individual soul. It is a very concrete reality. It is to be found under varied external conditions and with varied inner life.

Happiness an Attitude of Soul
"Contrary to general thought happiness is not determined by external conditions. It is affected by external conditions as body influences soul, but since the soul is the real self it is evident that physical conditions need not be allowed to dominate. The palatial home, with every physical comfort, may be more like hell than heaven. Whether there is abiding happiness in the home depends not so much on the material equipment as upon the people who live there. A very humble cottage with only the barest necessities may be the scene of much happiness depending upon those who make the home. The man who is happy is those who compel the material to serve the spiritual and recognize that soul is the big thing and accordingly bring the soul into mastery. In proportion as we get away from the animal to that degree can we enjoy true happiness. When there is happiness as to what we mean by happiness in mind let us consider what we have chosen to place as the first condition of human happiness.

Something to Reverence
"There is that in our soul structure which demands something to reverence. If it is not reverence, something found in all men and may be considered as the foundation of the universal religious nature in man. It is not what some would call superstition. Many people are superstitious but this is as the world indicates a surface condition and is due to ignorance. When intelligence begins to grip us our superstition begins to leave, but reverence only deepens. The more intelligent we become the more reverent we will be. The ancient Greeks had a good word which expressed what we mean to convey by the best use of our word reverence. They spoke of that soul hold on God as En-Lambano. This means a firm taking hold of. In Greek thought reverence was a firm grasping of God as this word would indicate. That is what we mean by this first condition of human happiness, that the soul must have a firm hold on God. We maintain that apart from this basal religious nature intelligently fixed in God there can be no real and abiding happiness. The psychologist tells us that the soul is Intellect, Sensibility and Will. Of these soul faculties, the intellect plays intellect and sensibility. Our best thought and deepest feelings are all involved in reverent contemplation of God. We need to cultivate these exercises of a soul in order to draw us nearer to God and to enlarge our soul capacities.

Source of True Reverence
"True reverence springs from God. There are perhaps many forms of this outreach after God and good but they all center in Him. We are inclined toward a spirit of reverence in the presence of the beautiful. There is something wrong with the soul that looks upon nature's wonders. The savage stands in awe of them and his attitude is more becoming than the ignorant failure of appreciation something given by a worldly, intelligent people. The intelligence of the savage hardly permitted him to be reverent but his awe is much more near to reverence than much of our cheap familiarity and near vulgarity in the presence of God's wondrous manifestations of power. There is a wide contrast between the natural lover and the sentimentalist. The nature lover sees God in His works, but to the sentimentalist a magnificent sunset is simply pretty. He gazes upon it with about the same sentiment as he views a lady's hat or new dress. God is revealed in His works and the devout soul, possessed of intelligence, will stand before His works in reverence, not worshipping the thing but seeing God through His handiwork.

"The ability to do this is proof that one has gotten far enough from the animal to be happy rather than content. The home relation is well calculated to point us from the earthly parent to the Heavenly. If the home is what it should be and the relation of the parents to the children what God has designed the children will come to reverence God through the parents. There is no more vivid revealer of God to young life than the parent. Blessed indeed is that son or daughter who reverences the parents when they are old. Such reverence will point to God if the child follows the leading of that spirit it will bring him to God. Reverence for the beautiful in God's world; reverence for parents; reverence for the church; reverence for truth; reverence for God; unless these qualities are in the soul we can scarcely be happy. We may minister to the animal part of us and call that happiness. When the physical begins to pale then our animal contentment is gone and we are of all men most miserable.

God Consciousness Necessary
"We have said little more than that we must have the God consciousness to be happy. God intended that we should be happy—not merely content, but happy in this life. If we have not developed the consciousness of His keeping power in our lives we may be happy when physical conditions do not favor. We are all looking for happiness. What is our ideal of happiness? To the thoughtful it is evident that if we are happy it must be a soul condition rather than a bodily condition. We can not bind ourselves up to those things which are only to fall away. We must fix the soul in deep seated reverence upon God."

NICARAGUA REVOLUTION ENDS IN REBEL'S DEFEAT

Former Minister To United States Said To Have Been at Head of Rebellion

By Associated Press.
Washington, April 10.—Nicaraguan revolutionists, said to be headed by Salvador Castiella, formerly minister to the United States, have met only a crushing defeat, according to advices today to the Nicaraguan minister here, Mr. Chamorro. The rebels were routed yesterday in a battle twelve miles south of Managua, the capital. The disturbance was viewed as not serious by the American minister at Managua.

Mr. Chamorro's message said Castillo, Gen. Hurtado and Governor Barahena, recently removed from office in Chinandega province, were seeking to enforce personal claims against the government. Castillo claimed, it was said, that $20,000 was owing to him for expenses incurred during his diplomatic service. Because of the financial stringency in Nicaragua, the failure of the treaty with the United States which would have given the government $3,000,000, Nicaragua has recalled all her diplomats except Mr. Chamorro leaving her affairs at other capitals in the hands of consular representatives.

ROOSEVELT DENOUNCES WOMAN'S PEACE MOVE

His Letter Causes Sharp Discussion at Conference in Chicago Saturday

Chicago, April 12.—The announcement that Col. Theodore Roosevelt had written a letter denouncing the Woman's International peace propaganda caused a sharp discussion among the delegates to the Woman's Peace Conference. Mrs. William Thomas, secretary of the Woman's Peace Society, who has the letter refused to allow its publication.

"There are sentences in the letter that it would be unwise to make public," said Mrs. Thomas, "although Col. Roosevelt has said that he would be delighted to have the letter published, yet I think it unwise to do so."

The message was sent to Mrs. George Broome of Washington. It is reported that the Colonel declared that pacifists in general constituted a "menace to the future welfare of the United States."

"Of course every one knows Col. Roosevelt's views on militarism and peace and it is not anything wonderful that he may have expressed himself strongly in opposition to the Woman's Peace Conference," said Miss Adams, who is to head the Chicago delegation to the Women's Peace Conference to The Hague.

BLAMES DANIELS FOR RECENT SUBMARINE EGG

By Associated Press.
Washington, April 10.—Representative Gardner of Massachusetts gave a dinner here tonight to the reserve army of the United States. Eight of the sixteen reservists attended. The dinner was to express the views of the divers on the state of national defense. Mr. Gardner made the principal speech and characterized the recent loss of the submarine F-4 as a "grievous comment on Secretary Daniels' policy of peaceful persuasion and pretense of preparedness. The loss of life of the F-4," he said, "is due to Secretary Daniels' neglect of our submarines."

When We Are Old. So little made me glad, for I was young. Flowers, a sunset, books, a friend or two, Gray skies with scanty sunshine piercing through, How little made me glad when I was young.

So little makes me happy now I'm old; Your hand in mine, dear heart, beside the fire; The children grown into our heart's desire; How little keeps us happy when we're old!

And yet between the little then and now, What worlds of life, of thought and feeling lie; What spiritual depths and heights unseen, Ah, me, between the little then and now!

For little things seem mighty when we're young; Then we rush onward through the changing years, Testing the gamut of all smiles and tears Till mighty things seem little. We are old.

WOULD REPEAL ANTI-PRIZE FIGHT LAW

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, April 12.—An effort is to be made, it is understood, by Governor Ferguson at the coming special session of the legislature to have repealed a law prohibiting exhibition of prize fights in motion pictures in Texas. Fight fans throughout the State are said to be very anxious to see pictures of the recent Willard-Johnson fight at Havana. The exhibition of such a picture is prohibited, under a law passed following the fight between Johnson and Jeffries at nearly several years ago. The governor is understood to feel disposed to submit a recommendation that this law be repealed.

WILLARD TOOK FEARFUL PUNISHMENT SAYS MODE

Wichitan Returned From Havana Says Public Has Little Idea What Willard Underwent

Jess Willard won from Jack Johnson because of his great strength and because of his wonderful ability to take punishment, according to J. W. Mode, Fort Worth & Denver conductor, who saw the fight at Havana and who returned Sunday. Mode says the public gained little idea of what Willard had to undergo in the early rounds of the fight. "His body was all over welts," said Mode, "his ear and lip were cut and he never seemed bothered. Whenever Johnson hit him, he smiled. Two or three times in the first fourteen rounds Johnson had him hanging over the ropes and he certainly looked like a beaten man." The knockout punch, which was not clearly described in the dispatches is said by Mode to have been a right punch to the negro's jaw. "A blow from Willard to Johnson's stomach doubled the negro up, then a left swing to the negro's shoulder turned his body partly around, bringing his jaw within easy reach; Willard brought his fist against it with terrific force and the block dropped to the mat." Mode was sitting just behind Jack Johnson's white wife close to the ring. He says Johnson sent word to his wife, in the 24th round, to leave but the messenger did not reach her until the 25th round was over. She got up and started out and just as she reached the aisle the

Todd came in, but thought it was five or ten minutes. He did not know of Mrs. Jones saying to Todd "You were here and they can't lay it on you."

On redirect examination, the witness said Lischke went by the name of "Barnhart" and registered by that name.

"Barnhart is his middle name, isn't it?" asked Judge McLean. Witness didn't know.

Mrs. H. M. Jones was the next witness. Her testimony agreed with that of her husband, as to the purchase of the hotel, etc., and the staying there of Todd and Carlton's.

Judge Martin asked Mrs. Jones to point "Barnhart" out, as to the purchase of the hotel, etc., and the staying there of Todd and Carlton's.

Mrs. Jones said she got up after the shooting and went out into the office to see if there was a fire.

On redirect examination, Mrs. Jones said that her husband was present when she noticed Todd's nervousness.

"I never said it," she declared with emphasis when Judge Taylor asked her if she did not tell Mrs. Todd that "they couldn't lay it on Mr. Todd."

On cross examination, witness said Clem Mayes was his brother and that he had not talked to his brother about any automobile.

Witness denied that he told his brother that he heard an automobile go to the court house on three different nights before the shooting.

Witness was awakened by the shooting, he said, and heard about 20 shots fired. He said that about 20 minutes after the shooting Todd and Lischke came to his room and

Todd asked witness to let Lischke sleep there. "He said that if anything came up about it, this fellow had stayed there all night."

Witness asked Lischke if he was the one who was "out there" with himself and Todd. "He asked me what time I would say he went to bed and I said nine o'clock; he said no, that the train didn't come in until after nine o'clock."

Carlton said he saw his brother, Pat, that day and was with him when he was shot. He described Pat Carlton's wound and said he saw Pete Fry who was also wounded.

"Was Pat older than you?" asked Judge Taylor. "Yes, sir." Cross examination was very brief. Dinner recess followed.

Phone Operator Testifies. The first witness of the afternoon was W. H. Mayes telephone operator for the independent company.

He was asleep when the shooting began and was awakened by the shots, he said. The witness said that Tom Cherryholmes reached the telephone office five minutes after the shooting.

"When Cherryholmes came in, he said, 'Bill I'm shot.' I said, 'Are you hurt bad?' He said he was. He wanted to be taken to the hospital, but I had already called for a doctor. Mr. Gatlin told me to."

The witness said he called Dr. Griffin who soon arrived in his car, and that he heard Cherryholmes tell Dr. Griffin that he knew who shot him, that Pat Carlton shot him and that he had called for a doctor.

"I know it was them," he said, "and the witness, adding that Cherryholmes thought there were four or six in the party."

A phone call came from the Belmont hotel from someone whom the witness took to be Todd-Mayes said, but he could not say how long it was after Cherryholmes came as there were many other calls.

What did he say? "He wanted to know what the shooting was about. I told him Cherryholmes had been shot at the court house."

A second call came from someone at the Belmont whom the witness thought was Todd; asking how badly hurt Cherryholmes was. Soon after, said Mayes, Todd and Jones came to the office and Todd wanted again to know how badly hurt Cherryholmes was and also asked if the witness knew who did the shooting.

witness had replied that he didn't, whereupon Todd remarked that he had been in bed when the shots were fired. Mayes said Todd seemed to be restless and that his face didn't seem to have a healthy color to it.

The witness said he called Sheriff Wallace and County Judge Stinson. On cross examination, witness said Clem Mayes was his brother and that he had not talked to his brother about any automobile.

Witness denied that he told his brother that he heard an automobile go to the court house on three different nights before the shooting.

Witness was awakened by the shooting, he said, and heard about 20 shots fired. He said that about 20 minutes after the shooting Todd and Lischke came to his room and

Stinson shaking hands with Cherryholmes but did not hear all that was said. "Didn't Cherryholmes say that he fired the first shot?"

"No." "Did he say Carlton shot first?" "Yes." "Did you hear Riley Dollins correct Cherryholmes when he said Carlton shot first?"

Witness was questioned at some length as to the size of the court house square and the location of several buildings. He said it was a common practice to take a short cut through the location of various lights in and around the court house.

Witness thought it was possible to distinguish the form of a man in the court house yard. He was shown a plat of the court house square and pointed out several points on it to the jury.

SAUL LEVENSON'S SHOE SALE A BIG SUCCESS

One of the most successful sales ever held in the city was that of Saul Levenson, who purchased the stock of the Strange-White Shoe Co., and opened the store for business, after involving Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Long before the hour of opening a crowd had assembled in front of the doors and when the time came for opening the store it was necessary to maintain a guard and admit the eager customers to attend the sale and the response as salesmen were able to wait upon was all that could have been desired.

This condition continued by this enterprising young business throughout the forenoon and at no time during the morning hours could the business be thrown open to the public.

The result was very gratifying to Mr. Levenson, who is a regular patron of the Times, and is another evidence of the value of this publication in reaching the purchasing public. Customers came as far as from Bowie and admit the eager customers to attend the sale and the response as salesmen were able to wait upon was all that could have been desired.

ABOUT PROPOSED ALASKAN RAILWAY

GOVERNMENT TO SPEND IN THE BUILDING LINE 5 TIMES COST OF TERRITORY

TO OPEN WAY FOR PIONEERS

Line Will Also Open Way For Rich Resources To Reach the Seaboard

By Associated Press Washington, April 12.—President Wilson's decision on the route of the proposed government railway through Alaska puts in motion the most extensive government railway project since the linking of the East and the Pacific Coast by the trans-continental railway system.

The new project has the two-fold aim of opening the way for pioneers and settlers in this new and almost unknown region of vast virgin resources, and at the same time providing an outlet for these resources to reach the seaboard and the trade routes to the Pacific states and the Orient.

Much Data Before President President Wilson had before him an enormous amount of data on Alaska to aid in his decision as to which of the two proposed routes from Prince William sound to Fairbanks should be followed.

Since the bill appropriating $35,000,000 for the construction of the line was enacted last year, the commission has had hundreds of men at work locating and surveying along both routes. Additional information has been placed before the President as it became available and in anticipation of the beginning of work early in Spring the commission has been making inquiries as to equipment available on the Panama Canal and on other government tasks and otherwise making ready to ship a well equipped construction army into the northern territory as soon as the President's decision was made known.

Each of the proposed routes—one known as the Cordova-Fairbanks route—the other the Seward-Fairbanks route—contemplated the purchase of an existing railway line. The question lay in selecting either Seward on the west shore of Prince William sound, or Cordova on the east shore as the tidewater terminal of the government system.

The two routes were of approximately the same length and estimates of construction cost did not vary widely. The issue before the President probably lay in the price at which the existing lines could be obtained. Neither route presented serious engineering difficulties.

From Cordova, on the eastern shore of Prince William sound, the Copper River and Northwestern Railroad, controlled by the J. P. Morgan Co., provides an outlet for copper mines at Kennicott and reaches Chitna, 132 miles distant, following the west bank of the Copper river, or far-out of Cordova the road runs for miles parallel to the coast-line and crosses the Sheridan glacier flats. Making its way across a net work of smaller streams which give the river an outlet to the sea, the line finally turns northward and passing between Miles and Childs glaciers follows the course of the Copper River all the way to Chitna where it turns east again to reach the copper mines.

It is from Chitna that the proposed route to Fairbanks via Cordova contemplates the building of 110 miles of new railroad. The line would continue up the Copper until the river wings to the west, then strike directly toward Kwan lake without serious grades to encounter. Beyond the lake the route lies close to the shores of the Tangle Lakes, that well deserve their name, until it emerges on the broad delta where rise the sources of the Tanana river up which the final stretch to Fairbanks would be laid.

This would form the trunk line; but as feeder branches are contemplated to the Bering river, Matanuska and Sustina valley regions to open the vast coal supplies and other mineral deposits, the total mileage of the proposed branches would be 420.

To routes to the Bering river fields were suggested, one via Katalina and the other via Lake Charlotte. It has been urged that the Katalina route would open the coal road to attack from open sea in case of war while the Lake Charlotte line, 12 miles inland, would be protected from ships' guns by intervening hills.

From Seward, on the west shore of Prince William sound, the Alaska Northern Railroad winds through the hills to Kern Creek, on the shore of Turnagain Arm of Cook Inlet. The distance is 71 miles and the company now is operating only light gasoline cars most of the time, heavier equipment passing over the line only when mining machinery is to be moved inland. It was proposed to continue the line along Turnagain Arm for thirty miles, then swing northward up the east shore of Knik Arm crossing that inlet at its head and follow the Sustina valley to Eklutna Pass, emerging on the banks of the Chulitna river. Following the Chulitna to Broad Pass, the line would make a right angle to find its way via the canons of the Nenana river to the banks of the Tanana along which the final stretch to Fairbanks would lie.

It was suggested that during the summer months Knik Harbor on the east shore of Knik Arm would be an available terminal saving 115 miles of rail haul to and from Seward. The Cordova ice closed in winter while Seward and Cordova are both ice free roadsteads.

Cordova Desirable Harbor Cordova harbor, it had been reported, is more desirable for a terminal of the line because the great depth of water at Seward makes anchorage difficult. The Seward Route, however, was closer to the coal fields and to the known mineral belts than the Cordova line and it was argued that the route of the Copper river railroad made it subject to the moods of the glaciers among which it threads its way into the river mouth.

All reports looked to the eventual extension of the system to Yukon from Fairbanks and also discussed additional branch lines to tap other productive localities. Probably the greatest tonnage for the system eventually will come from the coal mines of the Matanuska or Bering River regions. Whether the Bering field would supply suitable coal for navy use or not has been a matter of controversy for years. A report on navy tests made in 1912 was submitted to Congress last year which said the Bering coal was not suitable for the navy unless a higher grade of product was discovered when the deposits were explored for development.

The coal consumption of the Pacific Coast has been estimated at 1,500,000 tons annually, exclusive of the 150,000 tons or more that the navy will need each year. Five Times Sum Alaska Cost What the government thinks of Alaska is indicated by the expenditure of $35,000,000 for a railway, or almost five times the $7,200,000 which the United States paid Russia for Alaska. From Alaskan territory gold bullion worth more than $200,000,000 already has been produced—nearly thirty times the purchase price of Alaska—and the total of Alaskan resources in furs and fisheries as well as minerals probably now exceeds $500,000,000.

All government experts agree that the surface of the mineral deposits has hardly been scratched yet. Lode mining has been confined to the coastal regions, easy of access. Transportation of machinery and supplies has been heretofore too difficult a problem in the interior to permit the working of any but fantastically rich placer deposits.

Only one of the many copper deposits has been more than prospected and yet copper worth $15,000,000 has been shipped from the territory. Alaska has a population of about 65,000, half of whom are white. Twenty thousand of these white pioneers are in the Central region through which the new trunk line will operate and there are indications that their number will be quadrupled before the whole line is in operation.

Final Rehearsal For Fi-Fi Will Be Held This Evening

The final rehearsal of "Fi-Fi of the Toy Shop," the musical opera to be given by the senior class of the Wichita Falls high school Tuesday night at the Wichita Theatre will be held this evening and judging from the advance sale an exceptionally large crowd can be expected. So far the sophomore class leads by a small margin over the seniors with the freshmen and juniors close to the heels of the senior class.

CHERRYHOLMES BROTHER AND CARLTON'S FATHER MEET

W. H. Cherryholmes of Lefora, Gray county, Texas, is here attending the trial of E. W. Fry and others charged with murder for the death of his brother, Tom Cherryholmes, one of the guards at the Young county court house. Mr. Cherryholmes formerly resided seven miles north of this city, leaving here about six years ago for Gray county. He called at The Times office this morning and while in the office met for the first time G. W. Carlton, father of Pat Carlton, who was killed at the Young county court house on the night of February 24 by one of the guards, either Tom Cherryholmes or Riley Dollins. As Carlton met his death from a bullet wound it is presumed that Cherryholmes fired the shot that killed him, as Dollins was using a shot gun, while Cherryholmes was using two revolvers. After being introduced the brother of one of the men killed and the father of the other left the office together. Both are citizens of excellent repute and there seemed no animosity between them.

Mr. Carlton came in from Newcastle yesterday with his wife. Cherryholmes has been here since the beginning of the trial.

Denison Katy Shops on Full Time with Full Force

(Denison Herald) The Katy car shops of Denison have been placed on six days per week working schedule and many additional men have been added to the pay roll together with the added days given the men. For several weeks—the car shop men have been working on half time. Half of the employes would work three days per week and lose three days a week. The work was divided in this manner so that all employes would get three days a week work. Now the men have been placed on the old basis of six days a week and the force has been added to by many men, giving the car shops something like the number of men they should employ to keep up with the regular run of work. Railroad conditions are gradually improving and as they improve Denison is benefited on account of additional men being placed to work both in the shops and on the road.

a false alarm, and get away with the spoils. Through the newspapers Ann learns that the man is a preacher. Revolving from her past life, she leaves Dick and gets a post as governess to the daughter of Robert Hall, a widower. Dick meets her in the park and she gives him a fictitious address. He follows her home and sends her a note demanding admittance to the house. She has already made up her mind to leave, and is stealing away when from the library comes a familiar sound. Dick has broken into the house—Ann switches on the light, there is a struggle, and she knocks him down with a heavy vase. Recovering, he lunges at her; his revolver, which she seized goes off; and Dick falls. Mr. Hall comes in and Ann learns that she will never have to go away.

FEATURE PROGRAM AT THE MAJESTIC TUESDAY

"The Walls of Jericho" which shows Tuesday at the Majestic is a five-act picture of Alfred Sutra's melodrama of American mining country and English society. Features Walter Hitchcock and Edmund Breece. Just before the climax of the story, set in England, the woman has left herself fall in love with a society rake; she is losing large sums at bridge and is wholly neglecting her child and her husband. The rake has been told that the police in America want the husband for murder. The opening scenes have shown who the real culprit is and how he seemed able to fasten the blame on the story's hero and it is he who tells the rake of the damaging fact. Neither the murderer nor the hero nor the spectators know as yet that the victim came to before he died and left his account. The rake wants the woman send the American sheriff to come for his man. The sheriff appears and the rake sets a time for him to call at the house of the woman and her husband. A few minutes before the time, he takes the murderer rather than the wife. The sheriff comes. The husband and the wife both think for a moment that a terrible calamity is about to fall upon them and this is the emotional climax that tears through the woman's soul and makes her change of heart convincing. The husband and the wife stand in it is not stony and the inner spirit of the moment is true and human. Walter Hitchcock plays the role of the murdered man with distinction. It is a short but good part. The hero of the story is clearly and naturally acted by Edmund Breece and the murderer is well taken by Edward Jose, who did some remarkably fine work in the "Celebrated Scandal." The story swing as it does from the wilds of the American west to England and with a cut-back to America at the climax, has skillfully added to its freedom. It is an excellent picture.

SHADOWS

The shadows of yesterday have been kissed away by the sunshine of today, likewise the smile of today may turn to tears on the morrow. This is life, yet the stronger characters, shrink not from the shadows, neither do they grope in the darkness of the gathering gloom, but look afar and beyond.
 There may be consolation in silent grief, so much so as there is sweetness in laughter of little children, but, to sit idly and contemplate either tends to neglect.
 Duty prompts one to the accomplishment of something that brings its reward, and the greatest reward is in the knowledge of having done our full duty. When the shadow of even kiss the eyelids of a loved one into that last sleep let consolation bring its reward to you by doing your full duty towards them.
 We will help you.
