Vintage of Western France.
The 1915 vintage in western France, according to preliminary reports, is most satisfactory. It is said to compare favorably in quality with the 1911 product and, therefore, considered superior to the 1912 and 1913 vintages. The fine weather during August, September and early October contributed largely to the success of the vintage, harvested despite the withdrawal of a large proportion of the male population for war purposes.

Many "Kings of Jerusalem."
The proposals to revive the kingdom of Jerusalem are a reminder that no less than five European monarchs claim to be monarch of the holy city. The most valid claim at present is that of the sultan of Turkey, but "king of Jerusalem" figures among the titles of the king of Spain, the ex-king of Portugal, the king of Italy and the emperor of Austria.

GET RICH BY OTHERS' LABOR

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell was known nationally, even internationally, as a man of medicine. He was known nationally and over a good part of the world as a writer of fiction.

He had been famous many years and lived well beyond eighty and yet his estate inventories at a little under $500,000. No other American since Oliver Wendell Holmes was so eminent as Doctor Mitchell in both science and literature, but these high attainments of his big brain didn't earn as much money for him as hundreds of Americans who have little education earn by business.

Dr. Horatio C. Wood once told me that Doctor Mitchell's medical practice was then worth $50,000 a year. He said one other Philadelphia physician was earning as much.

I am told by doctors who ought to be in a position to form a pretty correct guess that at least one surgeon in the city today makes considerably over $50,000 a year.

Carnegie had the correct dope, however, when he said that no man could grow very rich except through the labor of many other men. Professional men's incomes are derived solely by their own exertions—Girard, in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Old Canal Still in Use.
After 275 years of usefulness, Mother Brook, the first canal dug in this country, still finds itself utilized to some extent, though the requirements which brought it about have long since passed. It was undertaken and completed by the hardy citizens of Dedham, Mass., in 1639, to provide water for mill purposes. The artificial waterway was constructed to connect the Charles river with East brook, covering a distance of about a mile. It was a great undertaking for those days, when every foot had to be excavated laboriously by hand, but the work was carried out with the usual determination marking the settlers of the day. The canal winds round the highlands of the town, and on both sides, extending almost to its border, may be seen well-kept gardens.

Turks' Sacred Tower.
Now the allies' feet is attempting to reach Constantinople, it would be interesting to know whether the Turks have made any fresh effort to support the tottering old column in Stamboul known as the Burj-tower. Many, many years ago a Turkish prophet announced that when the tower fell, so, also, would the Turkish empire in Europe crumble with it, and his prophecy is wholeheartedly believed in Constantinople. So strong is this superstition that when the Young Turks dethroned Abdul Hamid some six years ago they immediately ordered the tower with thick iron bands and stays that they might save their country from disaster.

"THE MAN WITH THE GRIP"

(With apologies to Edwin Markham) Laden with sample cases and grip in hand he stands, the traveling man, On his shoulders the cares of a world of business, the progress Of a nation rests with him. New fields to be opened, a nation's prosperity Spurs him on to labor early and late. In heat of summer and The chill of winter we find him ever at his task. All honor be given To the "Man With the Grip."

Time Tables concern him, his trains may be late, the fare of Many a country hotel has preyed upon his digestion, but Ever and anon he tolls, far from home and sight of family. The lights Of the city have no lure while he is seeking business, new business for His employer. A monument of energy and enterprise, a familiar sight in Both town and country, a wide awake booster for his state and For his country. Equally ready with a smile for the fortunate and A tear for the burdened, large at heart and Generous, far beyond his means, may a word of praise ever be given to "The Man With the Grip."

STANDARD CLUB ADJOURNS FOR SUMMER MONTHS

The last meeting of the Standard Club for the season held Tuesday afternoon was a delightful affair and well attended. Mrs. H. B. Patterson was hostess and the program was concerned with the life and works of Shakespeare, who has been the favorite author of the club this past year. Miss Kathleen Stonecipher explained something of the music of Shakespeare and gave some piano selections that were much enjoyed. "Shakespeare, the Poet" was discussed by Mrs. Hensley. Mrs. Langford told of his home and surrounding and Mrs. Shelton's talk on his religion showed much thought and careful preparation. After the program a special diversion came in the way of a quotation match, carried out in the manner of a spelling match. Quotations were given from Shakespeare and so thorough were both sides that neither missed a single line. The prize, a handsome framed picture of Amy Hathway's cottage, was cut by Miss Willis. A refreshment course and a half hour of social chat added to the enjoyment of the afternoon, the club finding Mrs. Patterson a perfect hostess.

SPECIAL MUSICIANS' CLUB PRACTICE TUESDAY

The choral department of the Musicians Club held a special practice Tuesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church with twenty-seven members present. All members worked on the choruses for the final concert for an hour or so. A pleasant interlude came when Mrs. F. C. Barron, retiring president, served ice cream to refresh the singers. A practice Thursday afternoon will be followed by the final concert Friday evening at the Wichita Theatre, at which time the visiting U. C. T.'s and ladies will be entertained.

PLEASANT HOUR CLUB WITH MRS. FERGUSON

Mrs. W. R. Ferguson was hostess to the Pleasant Hour Club Wednesday afternoon. The usual social afternoon was enjoyed and the hostess served a delicious salad plate with an ice. The members present were: Mesdames Avis, Beavers, Orr, Cobb, Howard and Ferguson.

OLD MAIDS MEET WITH MRS. EARL CLAYTON

The Old Maids met in regular session Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Earl Clayton. The usual hour was spent at the card table and the hostess' refreshment offering was a dainty peach ice with angel food cake. The club prize, a bouquet of roses, was cut by Miss Agnes Reid and the hostess had provided another armful of roses for the club bride-to-be, Miss Eddie Carver. Those present were: Misses Agnes Reid, Eddie Carver, Anne Carrigan, Mabel Simpson, Lillian Avis, Orveta Wyatt, Lillian McGregor, Jewell Kemp, Mesdames Brittain, John Shaw Carver, Little, O'Donahoe, Chenault, Garrison and the hostess.

PLAN MATINEE DANCE FOR U. C. T.'S SATURDAY

A matinee dance at the Elks' club rooms, for the visiting U. C. T.'s and their ladies is planned by the wives of the local U. C. T. Council for Saturday afternoon. All Elks and their wives are invited to this affair which is planned as a final festivity for the convention guests.

NEW IDEA CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. D. DELLIS

The New Idea Club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. D. Dellis. Ten members and one guest were present to enjoy the two hours of sewing and conversation and the hostess served a two course luncheon, hot menu consisting of perfection salad, hot biscuits, ice tea and bread and butter sandwiches, with a strawberry short cake for dessert. Those present were: Mesdames H. J. Bachman, Carey, Simon, G. E. Friberg, Shaw, E. V. Friberg, Harry Thornberry, Newton, Dobson and Dellis, members and Mrs. Freeman and son, John, guests.

FIRST METHODIST LEAGUES ENTERTAINED WEDNESDAY

The Epworth League of the First Methodist Church held a delightful lawn social Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Bachman. The lawn was strung with lights and chairs, en tete a tete dotted the grassy expanse. Progressive conversation was the diversion lasting throughout the evening and music was also a feature. Ice cream and wafers were served at a late hour. There were about fifty of the young people in attendance and a tree will offering was taken up.

DOUBLE 9 CROCHET CLUB MEETS WEDNESDAY

The Double 9 Crochet Club was entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. J. M. McEmore. Crocheting as usual was the occupation of all and musical selections by Little Miss Everton were in the nature of a treat. The hostess served a delicious salad with potato chips and ice cream to the following members: Mesdames W. W. Brown, Lane, Fraweek, E. H. Brown, Quinn, Everton, Banger, J. T. Carter, Walter Brown, Sears and J. Z. Carter.

THURSDAY BRIDGE MEETS WITH MRS. R. E. HUFF

Meeting this week on Wednesday the Thursday Bridge Club members were entertained in delightful session by Mrs. R. E. Huff. The tables for the game were placed in the drawing rooms, vases and baskets of the choicest of roses adding to the charm of the lovely apartments. Roses in exquisite colorings were noticed also in the dining room, and everywhere the perfection of hospitality which is a feature of the Huff home was evidenced. Refreshing mint punch was served to the guests on entering and the conclusion of the game was marked by the service of a luncheon course of fruit salad, sandwiches, salted almonds, nuts and cranberry sauce. The club prize, silk hose, was cut for Mrs. Wade Walker being fortunate. The players included: Miss Sherrod, Mesdames Wiley chair, Frank Blair, Estene Sherrod, Toney, Walter Robertson, Gwynn, Bacon, T. W. Roberts, E. L. Smith, Reese, Gravens, Dent, Cullinan, Zundelowitz, Winfrey, Allen, Stanforth, Wade Walker, Morris Marcus, McGregor, Newton Maer, Walsh, Mark Moore, Burnside, Thornburn, Montgomery and Woodruff.

There will be no meeting of the Austin Mothers Club Friday afternoon, the meeting having been postponed until Friday, May 21.

MRS. WALKUP DIES FROM URAEMIC POISONING

Wife of City Treasurer Died—Wednesday Afternoon—Burial at Electra Today

Mrs. J. W. Walkup, wife of City Treasurer J. W. Walkup, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 1008 Taylor, death being due to uraemic poisoning. She leaves her husband and six children, three daughters, Mrs. Will McAbee of this city, Mrs. T. J. Bobo of Oklahoma City, Miss Edith Walkup and three sons, Mark, Leon and Carl. The body was to be taken to Electra, former home of the family this afternoon and funeral services will be held there. The deceased was forty-six years of age and was born in Columbia, Kentucky. Shortly after her marriage to Mr. Walkup they moved to Texas, settling in Brown county. They moved to Electra in 1890 and have made this city their home since 1904.

WILL PROSECUTE IMPROPER USE OF THE TEXAS FLAG

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, May 13.—The attorney general's department, it was said today, is keeping record of alleged violations of the law prohibiting the use of the Texas flag for any purposes of advertising, and instructions to county attorneys to begin prosecutions were expected unless violations cease. The department has construed the law as prohibiting use of the flag on business signs and stationery and in other advertising forms.

T. Andrew Bradley.

State had ever looked on Texas securities in their entire existence. These are facts undisputed. And that being true, then why all this fuss about changing or repealing a law that has worked so well for Texas?

THE LUSITANIA TORPEDOED

(Indianapolis News)

In a recent discussion of the German submarine campaign, we said that if it was adhered to, and carried out to its logical conclusion, there would some day be a treaty that would spall the world. It came yesterday with the torpedoing of the Lusitania, carrying 1253 passengers, including men and women, many of whom were American citizens. Besides a crew of more than 200, it is estimated that about 1400 lives were lost. There is no use discussing the law of the case, for it is utterly outside of the law. Fourteen hundred men and women, guilty of no wrong, many of them not related in any way to the war, some of them neutrals, and some Americans, were sent to destruction without opportunity to escape. The Lusitania was a British ship, and she had munitions of war aboard, but these are extenuating circumstances that would justify the destruction of the lives of neutrals on board, or, indeed, of any lives.

This act of the German government for it is in strict accord with a policy that has been laid down, and followed to the letter—has shocked the civilized world. It was a bad day for Germany. She has lost from the moral point of view more than she has gained by the slight material advantage won. The more determined the effort to justify or excuse the wrong will be the effect on world opinion. Of course, the advertisement printed in the papers before the vessel sailed, and signed "Imperial German Embassy," indicated that the thing had been deliberately planned, and so negatives the possibility of mistake. Grievous as the loss of life is, the loss to Germany is far more serious.

Nothing is to be gained by attempting to minimize the gravity of the situation, for it is grave. And yet, from the legal point of view, the destruction of the Lusitania, which carried the American flag, is the more serious. Our government has said that it would hold the Germans to a "strict accountability." In the light of this fresh disaster, the government must be depended on to act for the American people, and every citizen should continue to show that admiration and respect which has been so characteristic ever since the beginning of the war. As one newspaper says, Germany could better have afforded to lose a battle. It is not the function of a self-respecting newspaper to stir up feeling at such a time as this. But it is necessary that the truth be told, and this act be condemned. It should, for lack of condemnation, come to be considered as a precedent.

GOOD SEED.

The following is going the rounds of the press. As to which newspaper it first appeared in the Times does not know, as it is merely credited to exchange.

It's not always the man occupying the highest niche who performs the most meritorious act. This time 'tis a little country justice of the peace in Wichita Falls, Texas, who sets an example which wiser and greater men might well follow. His announcement that he will no longer hear vagrancy cases, because the fee system of Texas puts a premium upon conviction, is as good as many other states, vagrants must be convicted before the trial court officers get any fees; then, if the prisoner can't pay, the county must.

The inference is obvious, but one does not have to infer. It's better done somewhere every day, and it's what is turning lots of unfortunate into criminals—man's inhumanity to man. Wrong? Of course it's wrong but it's law. This obscure peace officer saw the wrong. So have lots of others who hid behind the statute. This judge said: "The law is changed. This is a court of justice. Don't bring them before me any more unless they have committed a crime," which leads us to believe in Wichita Falls.

WHAT A BLESSING WILSON IS PRESIDENT.

Editor Times: If there ever was a time when the people of the United States should all join in prayer it is now we should go down on our knees and thank the Lord that we have a man at the head of our government that has the mercy of the people in his heart and who has Divine knowledge of handling the war-situation as he has so successfully handled it. It is a blessing to our homes as well as our welfare that we have been kept out of the great thing of war as long as we have. Our president should be praised for the great way in which he has handled the grave situation confronting him for the past two years. If we had the Big Bull at the head of the government we would have seen the greatest slaughter of our brothers and fathers that ever was visited on the American people.

It is exceedingly sorrowful to think of the women, children and men that had to meet their death at the hands of the German submarine, but it was a chance of taking their own lives in their hands as they had been warned not to board the Lusitania. The German government should be responsible for this act to the United States; but we should not agitate such a thing as to have a hundred thousand more killed to get revenge which might be the consequence of such an act.

If the president is to handle the situation he will make the people of the United States proud they put him at the head of our government. If the people will adopt the Golden Rule which was read to the loyal order of the W. O. W. of Wichita Falls in an address of last night's meeting by our sovereign head counsel of the state in an appeal to bring together the local camps at this place, the vote of which was to let it at any time hear anything said against one of our brother members that would cause to slander the good name of him that we remain silent and give the defendant the benefit of the doubt, if we can't render such assistance that would help in his behalf to protect his good name. Let President Wilson handle the situation that is hanging over his head and ourselves and trust in his better judgment and look for the best way in which the grave situation should be handled.

In the issue of Tuesday evening the Times the war headlines are as follows: "What a Pity Roosevelt is Not President Today." In yesterday's issue there were mentioned as follows that "Big Bull Moose was going to eat him up alive." We can not expect justice at the hands of a man that has these sentiments in his heart. Answer for yourself. A. W. PHILLIPS.

GOOD AND EVIL.

The poet got his facts awry, concerning what lives after death; the good man do lives on for aye, the evil passes like a breath. A noble thought the years; a thought ignoble goes heralding to a god of aye, and folk around his bed behind his curtain, outworn, "Well speak you of the dead good," they say. These are really some noble thoughts which figured in the "The Good and Evil" by the poet.

Deep as is the sorrow felt by the American people over the loss of life in the destruction of the Lusitania, it has been on the whole magnanimously restrained and the government has not still had full freedom to ascertain the facts, to deliberate with all haste or pressure, and to come to a well considered determination as to the course to be pursued. Demands for immediate action, sweeping judgments, and violent comments have been heeded comparatively few and so government confronting a serious decision has never had reason to feel more assured of the case but unshakable support of the public that that of Mr. Wilson.

Grave and far-reaching questions are involved in the sinking of the Lusitania and in the related incidents of the Falaba, the Guilford and the Cushing, but the great majority of thinking Americans do not view the practice of Germany in the back and white of melodrama. They are able to discern conflicting claims of interest, of law, of elemental justice, and while by no means unmoved, they wait in patience and confidence upon the considered determination of their government.

people, so long as peace is compatible with national honor or vital interests. The American people and its government will not hesitate, if called upon by conscience and cool judgment, to turn to the final tragic resort. But neither, happily for us and for the world, is now in the mood to add fuel to the flames of the European conflagration which that sacrifice, in honor and justice and sound reason, must be made.

If the president so determines a hundred million Americans stand as one man behind him. Meanwhile we will patiently, thoughtfully, and conscientiously upon his mature decision.

War American's defeat, not from lack of courage, or history has proved; but from a growing sense of its waste and futility. We are not to be hurried out of this conviction, on any immediate occasion, by the exhortations of interested combatants. Our action will be our own free action, and it will fit our own principles, interests and purposes.—Chicago Tribune

AMERICA'S SELFISHNESS.

(Washington Post) The attention made in intelligent countries that the United States has played the part of a money changer in this colored war is hardly likely to be repeated by any of the warring nations after the struggle is over. In the establishment of war, the nations involved are blinded by hatred and prejudice. They see their own gains as the end of battle. They heed their "selfish" interests and their selfish desires. The only international agreement of America's neutral rights seems to be out of place in the midst of such calamity.

Both Germany and Great Britain have adopted the same critical attitude toward the United States, seeing that it feel that nothing less than the sacrifice of American lives would be an evidence of good faith. Nothing but passion and prejudice could lead upon a single idea—could explain the way the European nations, in denouncing the United States for not making war, have overlooked the fact that the sacrifice of American lives would be an evidence of good faith.

CITY OF BREMEN BUILDING HOMES FOR WORKINGMEN

By Associated Press Bremen.—To keep down the cost of living for the workmen in Bremen the city is building homes in the outlying districts for which the laborers' party received $250,000 a year, which was paid from 1908 to 1909.

On the assumption that the workman rarely has an automobile, they have reduced the width of the streets in the little colony where the experiment is being tried and to about 10 feet, perfectly good, because of the low buildings, without all the appearance of a city.

The tiny little houses contain three and four rooms, with a washroom that is about as big as the average American kitchenette. The houses are of uniform construction and color, being a tasteful brown cement. Each has a tiny grass plot or garden in front, and a garden plot in the rear.

The effect of the experiment is the formation of a city in miniature, which, because of German cleanliness and care, is comfortable and cozy rather than a suburb of a city. The majority of the workmen, who have taken up with the plan are employed at a gigantic elevator nearby, which supplies are being stored from all over Germany.

Nearer the business center of the city are larger and somewhat more pretentious buildings—mostly two-family houses—where laboring men can live with surprising cheapness. Like the smaller places they eventually become the property of the city, and they are sold.

The Difference

There is a difference between pretending and doing, between sentiment and remembrance as much as there is between real heart aches and pretentious sorrow. One is the contraction of the tender cords around the heart by the act of memory, the other is crying aloud to be heard and seen of men. A real sorrowing heart seeks relief in deeds of kindness and benefaction to the world and humanity.

You make every one glad and proud of your cemetery when your acts of love and remembrance are expressed by a lasting tribute.

We want you to remember Wichita
As the brightest spot you ever saw.
And when you take up your grips again,
We want you to sing this refrain:
"Old Wichita Falls is sure all right,
She's some old town, she's out of sight."

We've known you boys for many years,
There ain't a darned thing rhymes with this but beers,
But any way we greet you now,
And hope this stuff won't cause a row.

WONDERS of the BOSPORUS

NARROWEST PART OF THE BOSPORUS

The wonderful history of the Bosphorus the great war is but adding another chapter, for its story runs back through the centuries into the age of myth. Concerning this strip of water that separates the continents of Europe and Asia the National Geographic society says: One writer states that there is perhaps no other locality in the world surrounded by so many historical souvenirs and adorned with so many varied gifts of nature; another that God, man, nature and art have together created and placed there the most marvelous point of view which the human eye can contemplate upon earth; still another remarks that upon this planet there is no other stream so wonderful—that its equal can be found, if at all, only upon some other star.

Dr. Edwin A. Grosvenor remarks that there is hardly a nation in the civilized world whose blood has not mingled with its waters; hardly a faith, hardly a heresy, which, by the devotion of its adherents and martyrs, has not hallowed its banks. Associations the most dissimilar, the most incongruous, the most distant, elbow one another in every hamlet and village. The German emperor, William II, in 1889, disembarked at the same spot which tradition makes the landing-place of that other leader, Jason, with his Argonauts in that sublime voyage of the fourteenth century before Christ.

Deep, Narrow and Swift.
The physical features of the Bosphorus are described by the same author in striking terms. He says that in its swift flow it is a river, and in its depth a sea—yet many a sea is less profound and many a river spreads wider and has a less rapid current. Its average depth is about 85 feet. At no point in the channel is the depth less than 147 feet.

So sharply do its submarine banks descend that large vessels, hugging the land too closely, though in deep water, often run their bowsprits and yards into houses on shore. The Strait of Gibraltar, which wreath Africa from Europe, is sixteen miles wide; even the Dardanelles expands from one mile to four. But at its widest the Bosphorus is only one and four-fifths miles.

The length of the Bosphorus is less than seventeen miles. Each Asiatic side indenture finds a convex bend on the European side; each European bay is met by an Asiatic promontory.

Tradition goes back to a time when, countless ages ago, titanic forces here rent Asia and Europe asunder; when the pent-up, restless waters of the Black sea tore through valleys and leveled mountains, in their sudden southward rush to the Mediterranean. The volcanic origin of the region confirms this tradition.

Great Place for Fishing.
Seventy edible varieties of fish sport in the waters of the Bosphorus. They are mostly migratory. The strait is the only line of communication between the Black sea and the Mediterranean, their summer and winter homes. In their migrations countless shoals succeed one another at intervals of days, and never did the men in the crow's nest of a battleship scan the horizon more earnestly for an enemy than the lookouts for the fishermen peer into the deep for signs of a fish migration. As soon as the advanced guard arrives, a signal is given, and immediately the Bosphorus becomes black with fishing boats. So regular are the fish in their habits and so unchanging in their ways, that Aristotle's account of their movements penned twenty-two centuries ago, is still an accurate description of the varieties and their migrations.

A hundred years ago Constantinople and the Bosphorus hung in the balance. Doctor Grosvenor relates how, after the treaty of Tilsit, Emperor Alexander of Russia had insisted to Napoleon upon the absolute necessity to his country of the possession of Constantinople. He declared there was no price so great, no condition so hard, that it would not be gratefully accorded by him for the city's acquisition. Napoleon gazed in silence, earnestly and long, at the map of Europe, of which he was at that moment the autocratic arbitrator, and then exclaimed: "Constantinople, Constantinople! Never! It is the empire of the world!"

Sea of Marmora.
The Sea of Marmora, which is the connecting link between the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus, is a quiet sheet of water. Nature has been more than generous in her provisions for guarding this sea between Asia and Europe against hostile power. The Bosphorus, its approach from the Black sea on the north, is a deep, water-filled, twisting valley, whose surface almost all the way is at the mercy of the ascending mountain heights. In the south, the Dardanelles, while of greater breadth than the Bosphorus, forms an easily defended channel, 47 miles long and commanded by its shores heights.

Marmora sea is a wonderful amphitheater for a modern naval struggle. An elliptical bowl of Muscovy water, it is enclosed by a hilly shore line, which is bold and steep upon the Asiatic side. From east to west, the sea is 175 miles long, while its extreme width is about fifty miles. It has an area of 4,500 square miles.

Constantinople lies tucked away near the northernmost point of Marmora. At the opening of the Bosphorus outlet, in the west and south are several considerable islands, of which the largest, Marmora, has been famous for its slabs of marble since the days of Grecian sculptural and architectural glory.

The Sea of Marmora is one of the most famous and important seas of passage in the world. Behind its waters, along the northern shore of the Black sea, are the most fertile and favored provinces of the Russian empire, Russia's granary; while on the eastern Black sea coast lies Russia's greatest oil port and her famous oil-bearing hinterland. This sea is the most important avenue of Central Asia's raw materials western transport and of the West's manufactures for consumption in the central East.

Benzol and Toluol.
Dr. Rittman's production of benzol and benzol from petroleum is also of importance if the process is sufficiently cheap to be of commercial use. In this regard, too, the doctor was noticeably cautious not to commit himself. Professor Liebig made "benzene and toluene" (benzol and toluol) in 1877 from Russian petroleum. Later the Nobel brothers did the same thing in their laboratory. In 1904 V. Ostoblin described the preparation of benzene, toluene, xylene, etc. in considerable quantities, from the Russian crude oil.

It should, perhaps, be noted that the Russian crude oil differs somewhat from that of Pennsylvania, being rich in hydrocarbons of the naphthene series, instead of those belonging to the paraffine group.

Plainly none of these early inventions was of commercial importance, for the bulk of the supply of benzol and toluol still comes from coal tar. The value of Doctor Rittman's process depends almost solely upon its cheapness.

Small Leaks.
A writer in the Scientific American has figured what we lose by a leaking faucet. If a faucet leaks to the extent of two drops of water a second, the leakage would amount in a month to a little over eighty-four gallons. If the water rate is twenty-five cents a thousand gallons, the money lost would be about two cents a month. If the leak is from a hot water faucet, the loss would of course be larger, for fuel has been wasted in heating the escaped water. If coal costs $5 a ton, the loss in water and heat will be nearly ten cents a month. "The fact that the loss is small," says the Scientific American, "should not allow us to neglect small leaks, because by disregarding them we tend to become slovenly in all things. Furthermore, small leaks do not stay small. The constant leakage of faucets wears small passages through the seats, and makes tightness impossible. The next thing is a new faucet with the accompanying plumber's bill, which is notoriously not small."—Youth's Companion.

It's a mighty short way to pipe-joy

If you go via Prince Albert—tobacco that answers every question any man can hand out! You can jam it in your old jimmy pipe or roll it into a makin's cigarette and it will produce more real and true happiness than any brand at any price you ever bucked up against. Now, let's all get together, and repeat slowly and distinctly:

PRINCE ALBERT

can't bite your tongue, and can't parch your throat, because it is made by a patented process that removes the bite and the parch. No other tobacco ever was or can be made like P. A. And P. A. tastes as good as that sounds!

So the warm tip is: Get the jimmy pipes out of dark corners, out of the rafters, where you've hidden them for fear of more tongue bites. Get 'em out and fire up with P. A., for you can go to it fancy-free from sun-up right down the line to the pillow-period!

And the sooner you know this little thing personally, the more joy's you'll be.

Prince Albert is sold everywhere in tippy red bags, 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; pound and half-pound tin humidors—and that classy pound crystal-glass humidor with sponge-moistener top that just beats the band for keeping P. A. fine, like silk. You buy one quick.

STOCK SOLD TO J. L. ART

Local Jeweler Buys Bankrupt Stock at 32 Cents On Dollar of Invoice

J. L. Art of the Art Loan and Jewelry Company was the successful bidder for the A. S. Fonville bankrupt stock which was sold at auction yesterday. The price paid was $4000 which was 32 cents on the dollar on the invoice price. It is considered very cheap at that figure. Mr. Art announces that as soon as he can get ready he will begin to auction the stock off.

A dozen bidders attended the sale yesterday afternoon which was conducted by M. McGinley, the trustee. Seven out of town jewelers were here for the auction. The sale was confirmed this morning by the referee in bankruptcy.

Adler-Like is the most thorough bowel cleanser ever sold. Poonies & Larch, drug gists. (Adv.)

PREPARING WICHITA FALLS NUMBER OF THE TEXAS LIFE

Everett Lloyd, well known newspaper writer and now editor and publisher of Texas Life, is in Wichita Falls this week securing data for the second installment of his series on "The Personality of Texas Cities." The entire series will be published in Texas Life, the next installment being "The Personality of Wichita Falls."

Everett Lloyd is well known throughout Texas, his newspaper work having been a feature of various Texas daily papers. His magazine published at Dallas is a business building publication, and has done much to discourage adverse legislation and to promote the business interests of the state.

At the instance of commercial organizations and the railroad Mr. Lloyd has contracted to write a series of twenty articles on as many Texas cities, the series to include the most distinctive cities of Texas, San Angelo was the first city in the series, Wichita Falls coming second.

Mr. Lloyd came to Wichita Falls with many complimentary letters of introduction to prominent local citizens who are co-operating with him in the collection of the necessary information pertaining to Wichita Falls. Mr. Lloyd is stopping at the Westland and will remain in town until after Sunday.

Coatees a new Feature In Lingerie Dresses

New York, May 10.—Nowhere is the American idea of directness more strongly felt than in clothes. Paris offers a wealth of ideas and America selects one. After weeks of hesitations, while the popularity of one style or another in the priceless collection received after a perilous trip across the Atlantic, quakes in the balance, the American public, at last, places emphasis on one chosen feature, and the coatee dress becomes universal; not a tailored creation as the name implies, but a sheer perfection of lace, net or batiste, topped with a gay silk or lingerie jacket.

So cavalier have fashions become, they carry us back to the Cromwellian era. Like spirits of the old French empire, society in lingerie dresses trips across the velvety lawns or loiters in old rose gardens. The other day, I chanced upon a party enjoying tea in the far corner of a green lawn under the shade of a mulberry tree; the black wicker furniture, upholstered in broad stripes, strewn with apple blossoms, was as striking in effect as the frocks the girls wore.

A vivacious dark eyed Miss, who served tea at the glass topped table, carried off well the style of the smart coatee in a frock that bespoke the couturier Jenny. The bodice of blackkin tie laced in black could be seen. Her white Milan straw, medium in size, with brim flaring just enough to soften her face, sported a bow of the blazer striped silk and her slender handled parasol, resting open on the back of her chair completed the picture of an up to date woman well dressed.

So diverse are the effects gained with these jackets, it is hard to believe so many frocks have the same feature. Here is a coatee of robin's egg blue taffeta, fitted through the body, having flaring tails and "egg y'mutton" sleeves set in with narrow frills revived from Victorian styles. This is worn with a voluminous skirt of net. There is a frock of cotton crepe, embroidered and hemstitched in pink with coatee of pink linen; while a model of voile and flut lace has a jacket of black faille cut on the bolero order. Indeed, there is no end to the materials. Dolly Varden taffetas, deep old world pink and brilliant blue taffetas, satins and moire silks make quaint costumes for crystalline frocks and set a few of the bolero effects are fashioned of lace or fine embroidery. There is also a lace material, lately launched on the market, for dresses of this type, the texture like a fine voile embroidered with garlands. In pastel shades.

Aside from the fabrics, accessories are so attractive, they in no small measure account for the success of the lingerie dress, for there is many a maiden who buys a frock that she may have the girle that goes with it. Although it is an acknowledged fact, waists are gradually growing smaller, the girle still follows straight lines. Loose crush girdles of taffeta, moire silk or rimly flowered belts of narrow grosgrain are pretty finishes for slimy frocks.

The handkerchief bag is another fancy, assure as the daguerretype from which it is taken. Usually, the bag is made of material the same as the dress, cut in a half circle, shirred an inch down from the top and hung from the belt with cords or ribbon. The hand bag, too, takes on a new beauty. Soft gathered models of flowered, moire and striped silk, have silver tops, that stretch like a bracelet; white leather bags, flat purses and gold kid skin cases are lined with gorgeous flowered and striped silks. Madam La Mode, not content with these features alone, insists that milady be up to the ears in style this season and introduces the feather and tulle bonnet to wear with the new lingerie dresses.

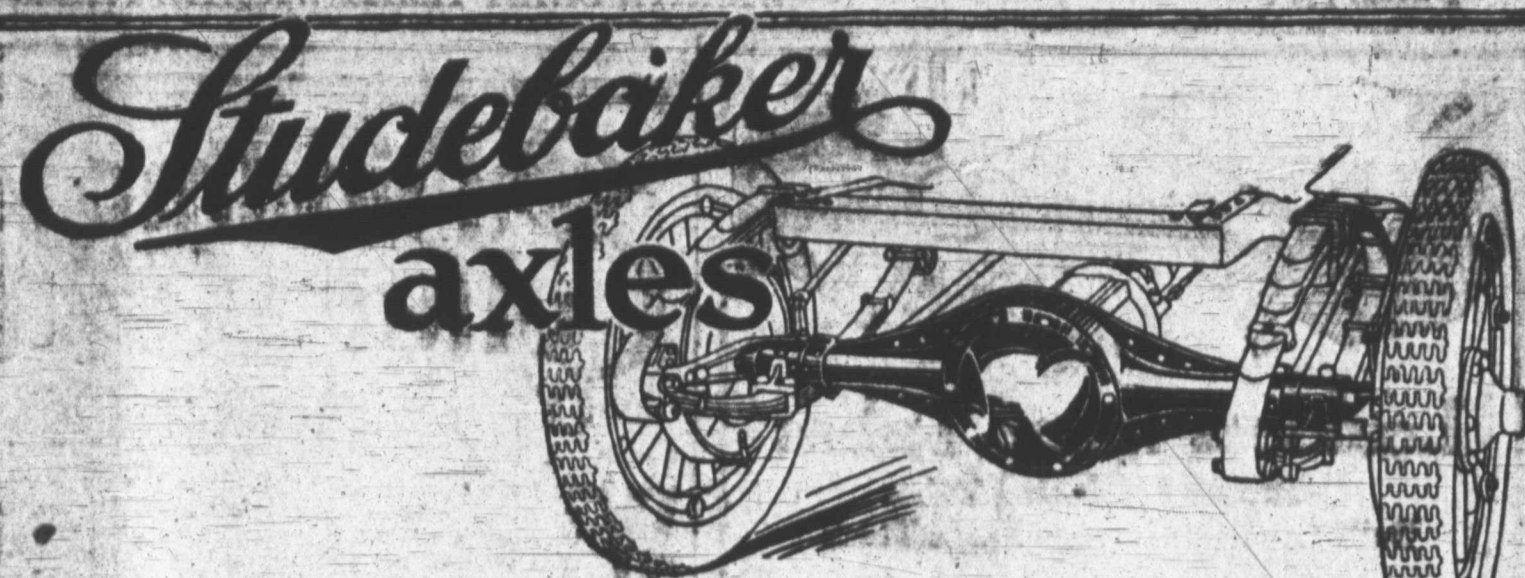

alloyer embroidery, nipped in at the waist as fashion approves, showed from beneath the jaunty jacket of dark blue taffeta silk. The Quakerish collar and cuffs of white organdy made a connecting link with the billowing folds of organdy, laid in deep crosswise folds, paneled with embroidery and trimmed with Valenciennes lace, which formed the skirt.

That she was a devotee to the fad of fancy shoes, one could easily guess, for her pumps were the last word in style; the heel, back and vamp was of patent leather and the uppers of white kid to match the white silk stockings. Beside the low chair, a garden hat carelessly dropped, glistened in the sun, for it was one of the new "dark blue shiny straw". The crown was circled with tulle with pond lilies beneath and, like all other broad brimmed garden hats, it had black velvet streamers attached to the back; these sprang on the grass as if they were freed of their voyage through the wind.

The guest of honor, an artist of fame who is making the best of a war enforced exile, was a credit to the maker of the clothes she wore; what could be smarter for a woman, passed thirty than a symphony in black and white? Again the coatee was the chief detail of the costume; this time it was a short Zouave jacket of exquisite batiste, heavily embroidered. It opened as she lounged in her chair, showing a waist of plain batiste. Flouncing, repeated in the sleeves and skirt yoke, and a lower skirt of plain batiste, cut circular that it might flare the more, needed only the black and white, blazer striped, girle to bring out its style, so perfectly was every detail worked out. The skirt cleared the ground by about four inches; mature women have all adopted this length as more becoming than the extremely-short skirt. Below the skirt a trim white

Hats too, conform to the new lines in dress. Large French sailors, fitted on one side, daily grow in favor; satin and chiffon facings are being used on the top or the brim and sides of the crown. One smart black sailor has the crown covered with silk beaver and a single flower embroidered on net applied on to one side. A smoothly polished tissue straw of "bigger brown" has large detached roses, and another Marguerite and velvet streamers tacked in the back, while white Milan sailors show ropes of white beads around

—not what they call a floating type but a REAL full-floating axle

You take one of the semi-floating types of axles and the axle shaft not only turns the wheels but carries the weight of the car and also has to take up the side-thrusts. It has THREE tasks laid on that one slender shaft of steel. And if that shaft breaks—off flies the wheel.

Two minutes to remove shaft

This Studebaker FULL-floating Axle, on the other hand, frees the shaft of everything except the one task of turning the wheels. The axle housing runs thro' the hub and with TWO Timken Bearings in each of the hubs, it rides the axle shaft of the car's weight and the side-thrusts, too. You can take the axle shaft out—and the wheel stays on. You can tow the car along with the shaft out of the housing.

Take one of the so-called "floating types" of axles, and to remove the shaft, you have to take the wheel off. It's a messy job. But if you happen to have to remove the axle shaft from this Studebaker FULL-floating Axle, you simply unscrew 8 nuts and draw the shaft out. Two minutes and a common wrench—that's all.

—and a STRONG steel housing

Take the axle housing of the two types. The "semi-floating type" always has a malleable casting. Now, you know castings are weighty—and, also, they can break. Doesn't take so much to break them, either.

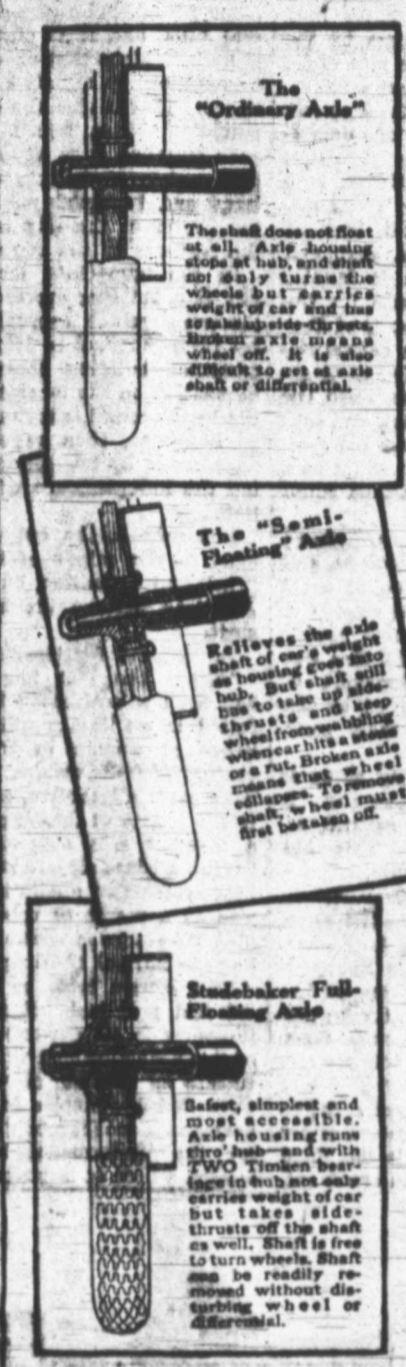

But Studebaker uses a steel stamping for the axle housing—with folded edges to re-enforce it. And it is not only LIGHTER—but VERY much stronger.

But you can't begin to compare the two axles. For the simple reason that the FULL-floating Rear Axle is admittedly so much better that every high-grade, high-priced car uses it. Salesmen for other cars will say: "Oh! yes! we have a floating axle—but look at our motor here a minute." Or else they'll try to brazen it out and say that they have so many thousands of cars on the roads and haven't had the slightest trouble.

That's just a matter of salesmanship, if you like to call it that. The FACT, as any mechanical engineer will tell you, is that the earlier types of axles, that they call "floating types," are NOT as strong, durable or as accessible.

And the thing to do, when you go to look at some other car and the salesman tries to dodge on the matter of rear axles, is to —ask him if his car has a FULL-floating Rear Axle like the Studebaker has, and make him show you.

the crowns with a single beaded flower directly in front. For those who do not like the sailors with light dresses, there are dainty creations with pleated collars and all lace hats trimmed with roses, lilacs and the like.

It would seem the whole manufacturing world had been busy, of late, digging up styles of the last century. That the glove maker has succeeded is evident in the lace mitts he now offers for sale, along with the white and colored kid gloves embroidered in chain stitch.

Important processes of conurbation. Aside from the manufacture of shells and automobiles, in Bremen, business appears to have suffered considerably from the war—partly because of the stoppage of export trade and import trade by water, partly by the shortage of men.

In Luebeck the correspondent was shown the shell-making in a canning factory, but was told that the largest and most important establishment of that kind in the city was unfortunately closed because the government was using it for the manufacture of some mysterious substance.

In Bremen business men evinced a desire to deny that the war has materially changed things; in Hamburg the same men frankly say that every thing is "dead." In Luebeck no one is complaining.

CITY NATIONAL TO PROVIDE SEED TESTING FACILITIES

Wichita county farmers can have good seed corn for planting next year if they take advantage of testing facilities which will be provided here. The City National Bank has arranged to bring Robert Clark of Fort Worth, who has equipment for testing seed corn, to this city next fall and all farmers who wish their corn tested may bring or send it to this city. Mr. Clark will be prepared to make thorough tests and will be here in a special car.

Leakless Inner Tubes

Goodyear Laminated Tubes
Built Layer on Layer—Extra Thick

Here is something every motorist should know.

Goodyear Laminated Tubes are built of many thin layers—each of pure rubber—vulcanized together. No flaw can be hidden in a thick piece of rubber. It is seen and eliminated. Every layer is perfect.

Such a Tube can't leak. And our valve patch can't leak, because it is part of the Tube and not stuck on.

Remember that. Many a tire trouble is due to leaky Tubes.

14% Heavier

Goodyear Laminated Tubes are extra heavy. They have always outworn any tire. But this year we have added 14 per cent to their average thickness—all pure rubber.

And our

Tube prices this year are reduced 20 per cent. So these layer Tubes, extra-thick, now cost about the same as others.

Always Gray

Goodyear Laminated Tubes are not colored. They are gray—the natural pure rubber color. Color requires a large percentage of mineral adulteration. And minerals hold heat, a Tube's worst enemy.

Whatever tires you use, get Goodyear Tubes. They will outlast your tires, save you leaks and trouble. They will also convert you to Goodyear.

Fortified Tires, built by the same high standards.

Any Dealer will supply you.

Bidding for Culture Center of America

WHILE European nations are discussing between fights the question of which is the most cultured, two nations of South America are gradually acquiring the title, in the opinion of travelers to the southern hemisphere. Of course no European nation will yield the title to any American country, yet the United States may have to surrender all claims to the culture championship of the new world unless we progress more than we have.

A half-century ago South America, except Brazil and Guiana, was emerging from a state of chaos following the fight for freedom from Spain. Brazil even then had attained some distinction as a culture center, because it had been the home of a European king, but the court of Rio de Janeiro was never popular as a resort for European kings, and the emperor of Brazil rarely had guests from across the water. When Brazil decided to establish a republic a score of years ago, the emperor was given a pension and sent away to exile. He took up his residence in Paris and the last claim to a royal palace and court America could boast was lost.

But the pomp of royalty continued in the capital of the new republic, and there is still an appearance of royal influence around the capital city. Rio de Janeiro is one of the most beautiful capitals of the world. All that was good in old-world development of old-world beauty was adopted by the Brazilians in laying out their parks and beauty spots.

And Rio had more beauty spots to start with than any European city. It is a town of wonderful natural attractiveness and charm. This has been used to the best advantage. Buenos Aires' Rapid Growth. The other aspirant to be the great American city of culture is Buenos Aires, capital of Argentine Republic. When one is asked the name of the fastest growing American city he naturally thinks of Chicago, New York, Seattle, Los Angeles and other cities in the United States. But the city which has made the greatest gains in population in America in recent years is Buenos Aires. It now is the third city in size on the American continent, there is also a fair sprinkling of native performers. Brazilians are loyal to a degree, and in recent years there has been a decided effort to give the fullest encouragement to home talent.

Although Sao Paulo was founded in 1563, it has grown so fast and become so thoroughly modernized that few architectural signs remain of the older period. The city stands on several hills, and it is characteristic of the whole place that every building of importance is situated on an eminence. This is also the case with the municipal opera house. From whatever direction it is viewed the structure makes a striking picture. The large and beautiful public garden in the center of the city is also one of the features of the community.

In the immediate vicinity of this city is a building erected in honor of the event which separated the country from Portugal in 1822. This independence building contains what is thought to be the largest fresco painting in the world, showing Dom Pedro of Braganza, then regent of Brazil, surrounded by his generals, proclaiming the independence of the new nation.

Not only is the culture idea foremost in the minds of the people of Brazil and Argentine, but in all South American nations the idea is uppermost.

Advantages for Uruguay Women. Within the last few years there has been a noticeable interest manifested in all that pertains to the advance of woman in Uruguay. The commission of woman teachers has been especially active, and it was due to the efforts of this organization that a member was sent to the United States, a while ago, to study the American systems of public instruction. It was as a result of this investigation that the plan was worked out to establish the normal training course.

This course is to be both theoretical and practical. It is to take up the work in its entirety. A graduate of this normal school will obtain a certificate as teacher of woman's vocations and may aspire to a position as permanent teacher in the department for the professional instruction of women which it is purposed to establish.

having outstripped Philadelphia in the last five years, according to the claims of the people of Argentine. In 1911 it was the fourth city of America with Philadelphia third. The fifth city in America is Rio de Janeiro.

When one goes to the dictionary to define culture, he will find that it is the application of labor or other means to improve, correct, train or refine man's physical or mental condition. The two South American cities have done more in the last fifteen years to improve, correct, train or refine the people of their cities than any other cities of the world. Then, going back to the definition, we must conclude they are cultured.

In many respects we look down on Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro. We consider the people there in the light of gamblers and high rollers. They know less than we do about cutting down the cost of living, for food prices are higher there than here. The people are in debt and their educational system is different from ours. We consider our system of education the best, but they think their system is more direct. They believe we waste our time on nonessentials.

The South Americans now are trying to get the American university for one of their cities. They believe the educational capital should be south of the equator. Wouldn't Rio make a fine university town, with its miles of ocean and bay front, with its hills, its rows of palms and its theaters and fine streets?

Sao Paulo Rivals Rio. Near to Rio is Sao Paulo, capital of one of the most prosperous states in Brazil. Sao Paulo makes no denial of the fact that it aims to rival Rio de Janeiro itself, both in attractiveness and in providing such high-class entertainment as a cosmopolitan center is expected to supply.

The municipal opera house is an institution in which Sao Paulo has a right to take pride. Few opera houses in the world surpass this magnificent structure, and in the season the best talent that money can obtain is brought to the city for the enjoyment of this extremely music-loving people. Opera is something that every Sao Paulian delights in. Italian and French companies are regular attractions, and played a hundred years ago. Elaborate preparations for entertainment have been made by the Wichita Falls committee and the old boys and all visitors are assured of a royal good time. Following the event at Wichita Falls, the three fiddlers whose names appear above will start out on a concert tour up the Denver railroad, and included in their itinerary are the towns of Childress, Clarendon, Amarillo and Dalhart. Beyond those four towns their plans are open and they may extend their tour to west.

Mecca Always Storm Center. The history of Mecca has been eventful. Mahometan legend holds that it was inhabited by Ishmael, whose posterity was supplanted by the Banu Jurhum of Yemen, who in their turn were supplanted by the Khuzi, also of Yemen, in the year 210 A. D. About 450 a certain Kussal of the Korish family, and an ancestor of Mahomet seized the Kaaba, and his family is supposed to reign there today. It was here that Mahomet was born, and the same year the city was menaced by the Abyssinians. Its patriots were at first opposed to the prophet. But eight years after he had fled to Medina, they capitulated.

Valuable Pearl. A large pearl found recently in western Australia was reported on as follows by the secretary of the fisheries department: "The gem was found in a blister in the adductor muscle of a five-pound mother of pearl shell. The blister was 1 1/2 inch long, 1 inch wide and seven-eighths of an inch in height. This blister, on being opened, was found to contain a perfectly round pearl of 100 grams, being cleaned down to 95 grams. The pearl, although marked slightly, is a very valuable one, and if it can be cleaned to a perfect luster and should retain its shape, it should realize $40,000."

Old Fiddlers Contest Here Next Saturday Evening

An old fiddlers contest promoted by local citizens will be held at the Wichita Theatre Saturday night. Fiddlers from four States will take part in the contest. Among those who will take part are H. C. Gilliland of Altus, Okla., Matt Brown of Texas and Jesse Roberts of Texas.

The Altus Democrat says: "Uncle Henry Gilliland, president of the Old Fiddlers Association says that about fifty of the best fiddlers of the above four states will participate, including Matt Brown of Texas, the champion fiddler of the United States, Jesse Roberts, also of Texas and a medal swinger of considerable repute and of course Uncle Henry, himself will be there and his first class medals will be left at home, for when assembled they are too heavy and too much in the way to carry."

"Did you ever hear the Arkansas Traveler played in unison by fifty of the best fiddlers in the country? You will hear this and a thousand other old time pieces that our forefathers played a hundred years ago. Elaborate preparations for entertainment have been made by the Wichita Falls committee and the old boys and all visitors are assured of a royal good time.
