FATEFUL DECISION AWAITED IN ITALY

PREMIER SALANDRA MEETING WITH NEW CABINET FOR FIRST TIME

WAR SPIRIT AT HIGH POINT

Greatest Demonstrations Ever Witnessed in Rome and Throughout Whole of Italy

Rome, May 17.—Development of the most important is expected today in the affairs of Italy. Premier Salandra has called the first formal meeting of his cabinet to be held since the passing of the ministerial crisis which resulted in his resigning in power with virtual vindication of his forcing policy. It is considered highly probable that a definite decision for war or for peace will be reached at once.

The tension has been intensified by reported clashes between Austrian and Italian frontier guards. The temper of the Italian people has become more highly inflamed by dispatches telling "Woman's revolution" in Trieste. Forty-seven women are said to have been killed and 300 wounded there by gendarmes when they charged a crowd which was threatening the governor's palace.

Official confirmation of the report that the Salandra cabinet would remain in power was greeted by one of the most remarkable demonstrations of approval ever witnessed in Rome. A crowd estimated at 200,000 gathered on the Zodiolo square at the foot of the Piazza del Campidoglio, the scene of which was thronged with representatives of the Italian aristocracy. Society women were wearing the stirring black and white and handkerchiefs as they joined in the cheers for Salandra and Foreign Minister Sonnino and bands played patriotic airs. With the Garibaldian veterans in the crush it seemed that the stirring black and white and handkerchiefs had returned. Even horses and cabs were decked with flags. Beside the obelisk in the square was an immense caricature of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria at which all eyes were riveted.

A young priest who declared all political parties united in Italy was hailed as a new Hugo Gassbi, the priest who followed Garibaldi and was shot down by the Austrians. A long procession of enthusiastic Romans marched from one end of the city to the other and back again under a shower of flowers thrown from the houses along the way. There were extraordinary demonstrations at the home of Premier Salandra, the war office and royal palace and at the consulates where it was thought the grim visage of Sonnino the foreign minister, who has been unimpeachable in his demands upon Austria, was seen behind a window.

Rome's great demonstration of rejoicing out at the solution of the ministerial crisis by the retention in office of the so-called "war cabinet" was echoed on a smaller scale in hundreds of cities and towns throughout the kingdom. Everywhere was evidence on the part of the people of a desire for war with Austria.

WAR RESULTS WELL FOR ONE INDUSTRY

New Markets Developed For Cotton Seed Products When War Cut Off Exports Trade

Birmingham, Ala., May 17.—Material improvement in all lines of business directly connected with the manufacture of cotton seed products as a result of the war in Europe was described by C. L. Ives, of Newburn North Carolina, president of the later state Cotton Seed Crushers' Association in his annual address to the convention of the organization here today.

"The beginning of the season," he said, "found us with the export demand for our products entirely cut off. Through the united efforts of the public bureau, and the members in general, cotton seed products have been introduced into new markets both at home and in foreign countries. Canada has used over 7,000 tons of cotton seed meal during the past season while only a few years ago it was entirely unknown there."

"The warring nations have materially assisted us in disposing of our crop of cotton and in some consolation to know that with every discharge of one of their great guns a bale of cotton or linters is consumed."

BASEBALL GAMES BEING SPEEDED UP

TIME KILLING PRACTICES ELIMINATED IN MAJOR AND FEDERAL LEAGUES

BASEBALL IN AUSTRALIA

Game Continues To Grow In Popularity There and Standard of Play Better

New York, May 17.—The efforts being made in both the major leagues and the Federal League to speed up the daily games is already beginning to show results. Complaints from the cities represented in all three circuits, first called the attention of the league executives to the fans' objections to long drawn out contests and there was immediate action on the part of the baseball authorities.

President Ban Johnson of the American League notified the Junior organization club managers that less time must be consumed in playing games and that several time killing practices must be discontinued. President Gilmore of the Federal League took a similar stand and intimated that he might offer prizes in order to shorten the average playing season. In the National League the matter was also given careful study and several plans considered to improve the conditions.

A study of the playing time figures of the three leagues discloses some interesting details. During the April contests as a basis it is shown that the average in the American League is two hours five and one-half minutes. The Federal League clubs under similar conditions required 2 hours 24 minutes to play nine innings while the National League made the best showing with an average of one hour 52 1/2 minutes.

Of the individual clubs of the American League the Washington team led the organization with an average of one hour 41 minutes. Boston and New York followed with averages five and seven minutes slower respectively. St. Louis consumed the most time, 81 minutes with Chicago but one minute faster. The Philadelphia Nationals were the hustlers of the Tenor circuit averaging 1 hour 41 minutes for ten games with the New York Giants but only a minute slower. Chicago required 2 hours 12 1/2 minutes and Pittsburgh also crossed the two hour mark. In the Federal League, the Pittsburgh club showed the best time averaging but 1 1/2 hour 20 minutes. Buffalo showed the other extreme requiring an average of 2 hours 27 minutes for twelve games.

An interesting insight into the manner in which baseball games are usually played by league circles occurred in New York recently. Manager John M. Ryan of the Giants, having signed Henry Kamm, of the Brooklyn Dodgers to what he considered a bi-annual contract, a club of local confidants to a friend that the giant had made a splendid deal whereby a sensational outfielder was to join the Brooklyn team.

Asked where the player was from, he answered Brooklyn.

The friend, who is a thirty-third degree fan, forgetting the existence of the Brooklands, immediately jumped to the conclusion that Zack Wheat of the Brooklyn Superbas, was the player meant. He passed the story along and others further added still further details, including the names of the Giants players Gerritt Murray and Robertson as the field scheduled to wear Brooklyn uniforms.

The officials of both clubs were flummoxed when they heard the story and it was not until Kamm tried to jump from the Brooklands to the giants that the explanation of his being from Brooklyn was found. President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Nationals is still busy explaining to indignant Brooklyn fans that he never had any intention of trading Wheat and that McGraw referred to Kamm when he spoke of a Brooklyn outfielder.

HITNEYS GIVEN SECOND SETBACK IN TEXAS COURTS

Fort Worth, Texas, May 17.—Regulation of hitneys was held by District Judge Young to be a police power of the city. He refused to grant the hitney owners a mandamus for the Fort Worth commission to submit to the voters in a referendum a regulatory ordinance. The commission has contended that since the ordinance was police power it was not necessary to offer it to the people in a referendum election.

REPORTED KARLSRUHE ABOUT TO INTERNE

Norfolk, Va., May 17.—Unverified reports which could not be traced to any responsible source were current today that the German cruiser, Karlsruhe, was coming up to the lane used by the German cruisers Crown Prinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich to a haven of safety at Hampton Roads.

READING LETTERS ON GIBSON BILL

COMMUNICATIONS IN RESPONSE TO GOVERNOR'S APPEAL READ IN SENATE

FREE RANGE FOR GOVERNOR

First Test Vote Shows Thirteen to Ten in Favor of the Opposition

Austin, Texas, May 17.—A resolution as introduced in the House providing that no meeting for the signature shall be excused from attendance in the future without an affirmative vote of a majority of the members. It was ruled out on a point of order that the House rules already provide that such excusals may be given only on a two-thirds majority vote. This ruling was made after a motion to table was defeated by a vote of 44 to 64.

Many letters and telegrams received today in reference to the Gibson bill were sent up and read in the Senate. The communications were in response to the governor's appeal that a resolution of the Senate be passed in favor of the bill while others opposed. There was objection to the reading of all the letters and telegrams, when Senator McNease, who is opposed to the bill, insisted that the governor should be given one hour for the reading of the letters and telegrams. The light on the Gibson bill which reached the Senate today was precipitated when Senator Lattimore offered a resolution that the entire Senate be resolved into a committee of the whole for the consideration of the measure. The opponents of the Gibson bill favored this resolution. Senator Hefner raised the point that the resolution was a two-thirds vote to change a rule of the Senate. After considerable debate President Pro Tem Wiley, overruled this point holding that only a majority was necessary.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 13 to 10 which means that the Gibson bill will be considered by the committee of the whole. The vote would have been 12 to 11, but Senator Brewster, who is favorable to the bill, changed his vote from "no" to "yes" in order that he might move that the resolution might be pulled up again. It is considered in the nature of a test vote which disclosed a majority of the Senate in favor of the bill, but there were three pairs the final result may be different.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS END HOUSTON CONVENTION

Resolutions Pledge Support to Anti-Saloon League But Endorsement Qualified

Houston, Texas, May 17.—The Southern Baptist Convention adjourned here today after a lengthy discussion of the "central control" of the Anti-Saloon League of America which came up when a report on temperance and social service was presented. The report, which was finally adopted, pledged cooperation to the league and other similar organizations and stated "we earnestly insist that in methods and spirits they be kept in harmony with domestic policies."

The woman's missionary union also closed its sessions here.

The convention unanimously adopted resolutions in protest against the bill introduced, but not passed at the last session of Congress prohibiting the transportation by U. S. mails of publications which are represented to be a reflection on any form of religious worship or practice of any citizen of the United States.

In the resolutions also were incorporated those passed at the 69th convention in which the convention stated "we view with alarm and vigorously protest against the effort of the Roman Catholic hierarchy to gain control of our government and deplore the presence of a papal legate as a representative of the Vatican at our national capital for the purpose of influencing our governmental affairs."

VETERAN ENGINEER ON DENVER VISITOR HERE

A. B. Ewing and wife of Children are the guests of Mrs. Kate Smith here. Mr. Ewing is an engineer on the Fort Worth & Denver and formerly lived here. He has been running an engine since 1872 and is one of the oldest engineers in point of service on the Denver. He now has a ranch north of Childrens.

"The Denver is a mighty good road to work for," said Mr. Ewing. "We feel like we're a sort of a family and there is good feeling between the men and the officers of the company. When I was a freeman I learned that whiskey and railroad don't go together. I am glad that I learned this at the beginning."

TWO MEETINGS OF KATY EMPLOYEES HERE

SAFETY FIRST MEETING SUNDAY MORNING AND SECOND MEETING IN AFTERNOON

MEETING BEST YET HELD

Attendance Was Good and Much Interest Shown in Discussions of Traffic Matter

Two well attended meetings of Katy employees were held in Wichita Falls Sunday. The first was a "safety first" meeting attended by representatives of the engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, yardmen and station employees; the second was the monthly agents' meeting.

The "safety first" meeting differed from the usual meeting of this kind in that it dealt more particularly with the freight end of the business. The meeting was opened by Chief Clerk H. E. Bragg and W. P. Danforth presided as chairman. There was a general discussion of the manner in which the "safety first" idea might be applied to the handling of freight with a view to preventing shortages and damage.

In the afternoon the agents meeting was held. N. B. Peck of Elk City is president, O. H. Smith, vice president and O. D. Green of Necona, secretary. The freight claim agent, and R. H. Innes of the Interstate Commerce Commission bureau of explosives were present and made talks. These meetings are held in this city every three months. The "safety first" meetings are to be held monthly.

PURSE PRESENTED PASTOR

Dr. Andrews Himself Conducted Meetings Which Were Wonderfully Effective

One of the most successful revival meetings on record to a close at the M. E. church, South Sunday. There were over 400 admissions to the church during the three weeks of revival services and the marked success which attended the revival is a source of much gratification to the congregation and to the pastor, Dr. A. L. Andrews.

Two large congregations heard the closing sermons Sunday morning and evening and numerous additional responses were received at both services. At the close of the morning service, Dr. Andrews was requested to retire from the auditorium and Judge P. A. Martin took charge of the meeting. He told of the splendid results that had been attained and said it was desired to raise a fund of which $100 should go to meet the current expenses of the meeting and the remainder as a purse for the pastor. About $600 was subscribed by the congregation in a few minutes.

GERMAN BOYCOTT IN BELGIUM CONTINUES

HATRED OF BELGIAN PEOPLE AGAINST INVADERS GROWS STRONGER

ALL BLANDISHMENTS FAIL

Belgium Now Filled With Young German Aristocrats In Civil Positions

Amsterdam.—The women of Brussels carry baskets on their arms like market women when they go out in the streets, not for their purchases but as a buffer between themselves and passing Germans. When one makes a German step off the walk, she regards it as a personal triumph. The silent boycott of the Germans by the Belgians is even more openly maintained than ever, according to a traveler who has lately lived in the capital city. If a German sits down at a table in a cafe, the Belgians in his vicinity move away. If a number of Germans enter, all of the Belgians pay their accounts and stalk out. The traveler relates this incident which he witnessed.

A German officer, evidently of high rank, entered a restaurant and after looking over the card, asked the waiter disconsolately, "Haben Sie nichts besser?"

The waiter, in a sarcastic tone, explained they had nothing better because the German government had seized most of the food and very little was coming in except on the American relief ships.

A group of young Belgians nearby laughed openly at the waiter's sarcasm, whereupon the German offended, gave his card to the waiter to hand to them. The card bore the name of a general. But instead of being silenced, one of the Belgians asked the waiter indignantly, "Haben Sie nichts besser?"

The German force in Belgium has positive orders not to molest the population, but on the contrary to try by politeness to take the edge off of the hostility of the people. But instead of yielding to the blandishments, the Belgians only become the bolder in manifesting their hatred to the invaders.

The upper classes in Brussels never receive a German into their homes. Should any one, man or woman, make this concession, he would thereafter be regarded by his fellows. Women are more bitter and more daring than the men. They show their feeling by acting as if they feared contamination by touching a German in the street, in street cars or other public places. The number of carrying baskets has become a kind of game, and ladies on meeting compare notes as to how many Germans they have made step into the gutter.

A large number of German women of doubtful reputation have followed the army, and if a German officer appears on the street with a woman, she may be of this class but never a Belgian. The German government has taken many war films in Belgium for exhibition. The Belgians of these films represents an officers' ball in Brussels, with the idea of proving the bitterness of the war has passed away. But the people of Brussels say the women shown in the film were the German girlfriends of the cafes and not Belgian women.

Aristocracy in Paris.
Brussels is now filled with young German aristocrats occupying civil posts. It is said that they are often the only sons left in their families as the result of the war. Consequently the government has spared them in order to provide for the future. Since the German army is offered solely by aristocrats, the upper classes would be otherwise in danger of dying out.

Belgians report that the allies' aircraft keep the railways on the German side of the front so badly torn up with bombs that the evil population feel it is unsafe to travel by train. When they obtain passes, they go by horse.

LIVESTOCK QUARANTINE MODIFICATION CONSIDERED

Austin, Texas, May 17.—A meeting of the Texas Livestock Sanitary Commission was called here today to confer with Governor James E. Ferguson over possible modification of the Texas law which prohibits the importation of well known stockmen were invited to attend the conference, also federal officials. Chairman J. H. Avery of Fort Worth said he had reason to believe that this quarantine may be modified with safety to admit cattle from Mexico more freely.

FEVERISH CONDITION OF GREEK KING INCREASES
London, May 17.—The Greek legation here has received a bulletin from Athens reading: "Yesterday evening the feverish condition of King Constantine increased. His temperature registered 102 degrees Fahrenheit. His pulse was 102, his respiration 22."

The King of Greece has been ill for over a week. A recent dispatch said his cold has turned into pleurisy.

GERMAN LINE PUSHED BACK

ENGLISH TROOPS MAKE SUBSTANTIAL IMPRESSION NORTH OF LABASSE

A GENUINE BREAK

If Allies Maintain Positions Germans Must Retreat Along Wide Section Western Front

Paris, May 17.—(Bulletin) British troops continuing their drive to La Bassée have captured another series of trenches. They took 450 prisoners.

Field Marshal Sir John French has broken his silence in regard to the movement of the British army northwest of La Bassée with the announcement of advance of nearly a mile over an extended front into the German line. This together with the continuance of the French thrust both north of Ypres and southwest of La Bassée constitute the outstanding features in the military situation today.

Military commentators here regard the British advance as a genuine break of the German lines which if maintained must mean a retreat for a considerable distance along their front. Recapture of the bridge over the Yser canal at Steenstrate by the French deprived the Germans of their last connection with the west coast of the waterway. German assaults on the British positions at Ypres seem to have spent themselves at least for the moment, as Field Marshal French reports say all has been quiet there for the last twenty-eight hours.

The latest Petrograd reports do not minimize the severity of the defeat which the Russians have experienced over practically the whole line from Central Poland to the Carpathians. The German allies have robbed the Russians of most of the gain of the hard winter and early spring campaign with the exception of Przemysl which is closely threatened on two sides.

In the latest Petrograd communication it is reported that the Russians have crossed the river Dan in readiness for one of these sudden movements such as the retreat of the army to the Dan but assert that most of them were destroyed.

LIGHT RAIN FELL HERE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

About a third of an inch of rain fell in Wichita Falls and vicinity Sunday night. The rain was not heavy enough to do much damage to wheat and served to lay the dust and relieve the torrid spell which was rather pronounced Sunday, the mercury climbing to 96 early in the afternoon. Rain fell all along the Denver to Fort Worth and as far south as Goree on the Wichita Valley.

It was accompanied here by a stiff wind and an electrical display, but there was no hail and it is not thought that damage resulted. This morning the temperature was appreciably lower and conditions much less summery.

SCISSORS GREATLY IN DEMAND FOR CLIPPING COUPONS

Vienna.—Scissors are oddly in great demand in Vienna. It does not seem to have occurred to the authorities to perforate the coupon of the municipal bread tickets, so they have to be cut off with scissors. In consequence these, instead of being merely a professional or household necessity, have suddenly become indispensable for everybody.

As bread can only be had in restaurants and cafes in exchange for coupons, the waiters must be provided with scissors and it is estimated that at least ten thousand pairs have been bought for them alone. The bakers must have them also as disputes frequently arise as to whether it is the duty of the buyer or seller to detach the coupon, many private persons carrying their own scissors around with them.

The Gem
Alice Joyce in a three-part drama, "The White Goddess" is today's feature. A synopsis of the picture follows:

Mystery enshrouds Elsie Parlin's life. The girl lives with Mrs. Nayburne, a matron of Jordan University. Once each year, Khanda, a Hindu, visits Mrs. Jordan and pays Elsie's expenses. The girl is led to believe that her parents reside in India. In the Temple of Larnar, the High Priest Hassa Dal gazes into a crystal globe. In it, he sees a vision of Elsie promising to be Elwin's wife. As the result of the crystal's revelation, Khanda is dispatched to bring the girl to India.

Elsie is astounded when she learns that she is to return with Khanda. Elwin takes an instinctive dislike to the Hindu and places "his arm" protectively about the sweetheart. Khanda interferes and Elwin is ordered from the house. As he goes, however, his sweetheart whispers a request that he follow her to India.

Elwin secures passage aboard the vessel which carries his sweetheart and Khanda. As they arrive, the Hindu discovers Elwin's presence. He compels Elsie to don native attire and to veil her face. As the result, Elwin fails to recognize his sweetheart when she is taken ashore. Khanda secures aid of the men who have come to meet him. They attack Elwin and throw him overboard.

Elsie is conducted to the Temple of Larnar. There, Khanda makes an avowal of his love and declares that Elwin has deserted her. The timely arrival of Hassa Dal, the High Priest, saves Elsie just as Khanda is about to embrace her. In response to the girl's plea that she be taken to her parents, Hassa Dal orders her to gaze into his crystal globe.

The High Priest's manner fills Elsie with terror. As she gazes into the globe the story is revealed to her. Elsie learns that she is the daughter of a British merchant. The latter and his wife visited the Temple of Larnar with their infant daughter. The child wandered away and climbed to the sacred altar. This was taken by the superstitious natives to mean that she had been sent by their gods.

When the infant's parents endeavored to rescue her, they were seized by the infuriated natives and burned alive. Believing he was acting according to instructions given him by the gods, Hassa Dal ordered Khanda to carry the child to America where she was reared and educated.

Horried, Elsie endeavors to escape. The attempt is frustrated and she is compelled to assist in the pagan ceremonies. The worshippers regard her as a White Goddess. To keep her from being defiled by the gaze of the throng, Hassa Dal announces that whoever looks upon Elsie's face shall have both eyes put out.

Khanda, unable to resist temptation, disobeys this order. He is discovered and his sight is promptly destroyed. Thrown out of the temple, the man becomes a beggar. As the days pass, the worshippers find that the White Goddess does not answer their prayers. Enraged, they determine to kill her.

In the meantime, Elwin, rescued by a fisherman, has vainly searched for Elsie. The young man comes upon a beggar and recognizes Khanda in the sordid wretch. Khanda reveals Elsie's whereabouts. Followed by the beggar, Elwin rushes to the Temple. He comes just as the natives are about to burn his sweetheart to death. Elwin shoots the leaders of the mob, and Khanda, the rest of the mob, fearing to cross his people, covers behind the altar. Khanda gropes his way to the spot and throttles the High Priest, unseen, by the worshippers. Hastening from the place, Elsie and Elwin make their way to the docks and board an outgoing vessel. The two are married on their way to America.

The Empress
"The Bargain" with William Hart featured is today's attraction. Produced by Thomas H. Ince for the Paramount, "The Bargain," in seven parts, ranks well up among the best of the American Western dramas shown since film features were. It has all the attributes of the best things in pictures; exceptional scenes beauty, compelling interesting story, and capital pantomimic actors. An attack of the studio declared to the gathering that witnessed a private exhibition Monday that since the first positive was assembled 2,400 feet have been cut out. The elimination was done with expert hand, for the story presented is coherent and stands as a splendid example of economical treatment in point of time and film footage consumed without injury to the story. It is the first five-reeler withnessed this season that has not appeared spread over too much ground. Considerable time is given over to pictures of an elaborate Western barroom and gambling hall but every inch counts in the creation of "atmosphere." The incidents move with remarkable speed and frequency to the effective climax, but despite the large number of action passages, the whole is well developed as a unit and escapes the episodic quality too often apparent in action photoplays. William S. Hart as Jim Stokes, the two-gun man, a desperado who reforms under the influence of love, is as fine and polished a bit of artistic creation as a Frederick Remington sketch. He was always in the picture, making his points with intelligence, never once over-acting. He does a fall with a horse that took away the breath of a score of thrill-proof film reviewers. Horse and man roll over and over again down a steep bank with bumps and smashes that looked like an invitation to suicide. The story of the red man and his regeneration has an occasional touch of gentle humor.

NEW FIGHTING CRAFT BUILDING IN ENGLAND

English Navy Yards Turning Out Fighting Ships of an Entirely New Type

Glasgow.—That the shipyards on the Clyde are turning out several fighting ships of entirely new types which are expected to prove decisive factors both in the North Sea and in the Dardanelles, was revealed in an address made to a meeting of business men here by Captain Bartlett, of the admiralty office. In urging the necessity of recruiting several thousand skilled workmen for the shipbuilding works, he said:

"Our main concern here and on the Clyde is the fleet. These yards are building ships of new types, and great issues depend on their arriving at their stations."

"To get these ships ready there are wanted many more men, especially iron workers. In order to meet the emergency we shall have to pool the whole of our resources of skilled labor and put them on government work. This will mean a very considerable displacement of labor, but I feel confident, by the readiness with which the representatives of the employers and men have come together, that the efforts will be successful."

"Many firms have already most willingly met my request to divert men from their works to other firms engaged on government work, and the representatives of the boiler makers and other trades have also given me assistance. But the transaction must be done on a larger scale. Transfer of men naturally involves financial loss through inability of firms to carry on contracts, but the government will arrange suitable compensation in these cases."

In Memoriam
"Always so kind and gentle, So tender-hearted and true, With willing hands to help In whatever there was to do."

His smile and words brought comfort To the tired and weary heart, Such a life leaves treasures behind That from us can never depart.

His spirit is now at rest At an end is all pain and fear. He has gone to his rich reward, To dwell with his Savior, dear.

And although we shall miss him, we know That not in vain is our wait, For he will welcome us, too, When we reach the Golden Gate." —A Friend.

DUTCH INDUSTRIES SUFFER SEVERELY

SUGAR REFINERIES IN HOLLAND ARE HARD HIT BY WAR

ADVOCATE NEW INDUSTRIES

Leaders Urge Building up of New Lines That Will Not Be So Greatly Affected

By Associated Press
The Hague, Netherlands.—Attention is being given in business circles in Holland to the question of the possibility of creating new industries in this country and by this means rendering the Netherlands more independent of other countries in the event in the future of a similar crisis arising to that brought about by the present European war. Numbers of industrial men have taken the subject under consideration, but nothing definite has yet been proposed. The Dutch people in most instances are unaware of the possibilities in the way of investment in their own country and generally place their capital abroad instead of putting in an effort to keep their money at home, where with proper organization the returns would be just as high as those they receive from foreign investments, while the starting of home industries would be useful in providing work for their fellow countrymen, who are sorely hit by a crisis such as that now prevailing.

Owing to Holland's dependence on materials from outside, several of the national industries have for the time being been ruined and those employed in them have been thrown out of work. For instance, the sugar factories and refineries, of which there are thirty in Holland, had been badly affected, in the first place by the prohibition of the export of sugar beet from Germany, Austria-Hungary and Belgium and in the second place by the refusal of England to permit imports of sugar from Holland owing to fears that German sugar might come into the British Isles in that way. The Netherlands Government also forbade the export of sugar for a time, but later decided to raise the prohibition and permitted the sugar manufacturer and refiners to export 18 per cent in the raw state and 42 per cent refined, while retaining the other 40 per cent of the total in the country for home consumption. England also raised the ban on Dutch sugar after receiving assurances that no sugar from Germany should be sent over the channel as Dutch. The lack of imported beets, however, caused many of the factories and refineries to close down or reduce the number of their employees, who in all total 10,000. This state of affairs led to the suggestion that the sugar trade, also affected, should be directly connected with it, such as sugar and packing case makers and the transport workers on the many inland waterways of Holland over which the beets and the manufactured sugar are carried. To meet the emergency of such conditions, the government in future, it has been decided to cultivate at least double the quantity of sugarbeet in Holland and some have been thrown out of work have been employed in planting the seed for the next harvest. As a rule the Dutch sugar factories deliver several hundred thousand tons of raw sugar yearly. From 20 to 25 per cent of it is remanufactured in Holland together with the large quantities of raw sugar generally imported from the other continental countries. England also takes about 250,000 tons of refined sugar from Holland every year.

A Perfect Day

When you come to the end of a perfect day
And you sit alone with your thought
While the chimes ring out with a carol gay
For the joy that the day has brought,
Do you think what the end of a perfect day
Can mean to a tired heart—
When the sun goes down with a flaming ray
And the dear friends have to part?
What, then, is the end of a perfect day?
Near the end of a journey, too,
But it leaves a thought that is big and strong,
With a wish that is kind and true.
For memory has painted this perfect day
With colors that never fade,
And we find, at the end of a perfect day,
The soul of a friend we've made.

SENORITA HAD FINAL SAY ON MEXICAN RAILROAD

By Associated Press
Mexico City.—For weeks the only rail outlet from Mexico City has been the narrow-gauge line running by way of the City of Toluca, about fifty miles distant. Recently the military authorities here appointed a new General Superintendent for this division. When this official made his first inspection trip over the road he found three locomotives on a siding between Toluca and the capital. Rolling stock of all kinds being greatly needed for bringing in supplies to a starving population, the new division superintendent gave orders to have these locomotives put into commission. Trainers who attempted to carry out the orders met by seven stern individuals who told them at the point of rifles that the engines must not be moved. "These engines," said the leader of the armed band, "belong to Senorita," naming a popular young woman of the district. "They were presented to her last week by general of our brigade. He has detailed us here to watch them. Without her permission the locomotives cannot be moved from here." The young women not appearing on the scene, the puzzled superintendent finally gave up the attempt.

LUKE AND HIS LEGACY

By MERTON LEE DANFORTH.

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)
"Oh, Luke!" cried Vera, "I hope you haven't parted with the price of our whole future happiness?"
"Vera," spoke her lover gravely, "if you measure love and happiness with dollars, I am afraid you will never find much in life. My uncle left me five hundred dollars. There was a poor consumptive cousin who had come to the reading of the will, expecting a legacy. He was left nothing. His doctor had told him that only a change to another climate would save his life. Vera, if you'd seen the tears run down his cheeks at his disappointment, you'd feel sorry, as I did."

Vera tossed her head angrily.
"Anyhow, I got talking with him. He was an honest, truthful man. It seems that he had been for years living on a small ten-acre place in a town called Benham. It had a pretty good cottage on it, but he said that his ill health and lack of capital had prevented him from working the place. He eked out a mere existence working as a flagman for a railroad. He told me frankly that the place was scarcely salable at any price, as it was located near an old abandoned colliery. Well, I bought it. That's all."

"And I suppose," fared up Vera, "you expect me to go and live in that outlandish place?"
"Or rent it," replied Luke quietly. He left the house of his sweetheart that night pretty well disillusioned as to the amiable qualities of Miss Vera Moore. She had treated him coolly. He doubted if she had ever really loved him. The next time he called, her sister Norma informed him that Vera was not at home. She made it pleasant for him the brief time he stayed. Luke could not but notice that she was trying to apologize for her high-tempered sister and cheer him up at the same time.

She was older than Vera, but for the first time he observed her gentle, sympathetic face. She talked to him about the little home he had bought, and said wistfully:

"I do hope Vera will come around to finding love in a cottage a real happiness," but Luke doubted that. He heard later that Vera had been out promouncing with two young men of the town. She was insolently neglectful of him at times. Then came bad news. The little cottage at Benham had burned down. No insurance. Two days later Luke received a brief note. It was from Vera, and it ran: "I ask to be released from our engagement."

Luke Maydwell read the note with satisfaction and was ashamed of himself—further, with a sense of relief, and was surprised. He made a gentlemanly reply to the note in harmony with the wishes of his imperious lady love of the past. He called upon Vera and in a frank manly fashion tried to make her feel that he did not blame her.

"I'm pretty poor, that's a fact," he told her, "but I would have worked for you my hardest."

A young man called just then to take Vera out driving. She put on her things and left Luke with a heartless nod.
"Norma will entertain you, Luke," she said, and, turning to the sister in question, Luke saw shining in her tender eyes a trace of tears.

"I am ashamed of her, Luke," she spoke quite indignantly. "You are too good for her."

It was wonderful how well they got on. A natural sequence resulted. Within a month Luke Maydwell was the happiest man in the world. He had found real love at last. Vera had become engaged to a new flame. Six months later Luke and Norma were arranging for their wedding.

She had induced him to go down to Benham and arrange to build a new cottage.

Norma met him at the door when he returned from his visit to Benham. His honest heart warmed as he contrasted the glad welcome she gave him with that past, forgotten and forgiven reception awarded him by her sister on a previous occasion.

"Well, dear?" she chirped happily—"the cottage?"

"Can't be built," reported Luke, shaking his head positively.

"Oh, how you disappoint me!" murmured Norma. "I had so set my heart on day by day working to make one small beginning a task of pleasant duty and ambition. I am thinking of buying the house left vacant by Judge Sherman," remarked Luke.

Vera, who was listening to the conversation, gave Luke a sarcastic smile, for he had named one of the show places of the town.

"Certainly!" she sneered ill-naturedly. "As a millionaire, undoubtedly you can afford it!"

"I'm not quite a millionaire," replied Luke in a blunt, practical way, "but I can afford to buy the judge's house, and another like it, if I wish. The fact is, Norma," he added, "we can't build the cottage we planned, for I have sold the land at Benham."

"Sold it!" echoed his fiancée, wondering.
"Yes, for fifty thousand dollars. That ten acres, it has just been discovered, is the best coal tract of its size in the state, and we are rich, love."

"And happy—oh, so happy!" cried the loyal Norma, bursting into tears and nestling into his strong, protecting arms.

Birth of the Needle. When the idea occurred to some prehistoric man of putting a hole through the butt end of a sharp bone, bodkin, or stylus, such as we know that the Aurignacians were already accustomed to use, and of thrusting a string through the hole in order that it might be drawn into the perforations of the garment, the needle was born, from youthful human genius, and so well born that it has undergone no essential improvement in all the countless ages that have since rolled away.

Way Out of Difficulty. Alice was paying a visit to her grandfather, whom she dearly loved. The morning after her arrival she entered the dining room with a small rosebud in her hand, remembering her grandfather's habit of always wearing a buttoniere. Beside her grandfather at the breakfast table was seated a young uncle of whom she stood in not a little awe because of his merciless teasing. "Good morning, Alice," said her grandfather as she appeared, "who is the rose for?" "She will give it to the one she loves the best," said her uncle in a gruff voice. Just an instant the little girl hesitated, then looking from one to the other, she said, "Wait, I'll get another."

Sports Clothes Smart Women Are Wearing

New York, May 17.—Caught in the thrall of the season's first heat, which accounts for the smart set's sudden departure, the great city turns its thoughts to the country club, and the stores display trappings for tennis, golf, tramping and riding to tempt those who may tarry in town and the few who motor in to do their shopping. So exacting is the mode for sports, that the time is long past when a woman can appear on the turf in baggy, ill-fitting clothes. Today her attire bespeaks the smart tailor. Separate coats are particularly prominent. Straight in Norfolk style, or flaring at the lower edge, they are made of white chinchilla cloth, white woolen barred in black, covert cloth, checks, tweeds, washable corduroy, wearing striped linen and zoff cord, the welt a silky rose and the stripe white. A needed liking for the silk Jersey sweaters is also evident, the styles medium in length, ranging from the regulation model finished with a band at the neck to fancy sweaters with broad sashes and sailor collars. Plain colors, stripes and checks are shown in these, rose, blue and purple being favored barred or striped in white. Even raincoats have gained a few points in style, now appearing in attractive Scotch plaids and checks, rubberized to withstand the water. Every detail of the costume is selected with care. Conventions are far more strict concerning the blouse, midly worn, softer than with the dress she dons for an afternoon tea. Plainly tailored, long sleeved waists, buttoned in the front with adjustable collars, are considered correct for country wear. These are made in white, colored or striped linens, rose and green predominating; in some cases the stripe measures an inch in width. Oftentimes, the buttonholes are bound in a color to match the stripes and the closing fastened like a cuff, with buttons of matching color linked together. On the tennis courts, middie blouses are still seen, their freedom and comfort having won the heart of the sports woman. One shop on the avenue devotes a wide window tucked in between two marble pillars, to rackets, balls, sports shoes and mitties. The blouses, slashed in front and laced, have sailor collars and cuff like hems; they are made of white linen, crepe de Chine, wash silk and khaki cloth, the fabric of the soldiers' uniforms, an attractive tan in color and with good wearing qualities. While the whims of fashion are not as a rule rigidly followed in the clothes for sports wear, the added width in skirts is readily accepted. To be sure, skirts for walking, golf and tennis are not extreme, but now measure from two and a half to three yards around the lower edge. Such fabrics as pique, plain and in novel stripes and bars, linen crash, knaki, tweed and herringbone mixtures are shown in these skirts, which are short and plain save for a lap closing or patch pockets. Pants too, have a swagger style. Panamas appear in every conceivable shape, from slouch to stiff sailor, with knitted silk bands made like the knitted ties the men wear. There are collapsible nemp straws and black felt faced in color, convenient to tuck in the corner of a bag when leaving town for a week end. Broad brimmed sailiors of printed linen in two toned effects and in natural tines faces with blue or salmon; white sailing brimmed sailiors of grass straw—in purple and white, and black and white lend variety to the styles; or you may have a bonny tan o' shanter loosely knitted in coarse silk jauntily tilted to one side like the Scotchman wears on the heath. As in other seasons, the gloves are the heavy mannish type of tan leather or white buckskin to protect the hand of the fair wearer, but belts are a real innovation, as they appear in brilliant stripes and checks, knitted to match the bands on the hats or in black or colored leather finished with a large buckle at the front. Fancy shoes have grown so common, it is small wonder we find a few novelties among the models for sports wear. Perhaps the most striking is a white buckskin tie with rubber sole and stripes of green or red leather, which serve as trimming, as well as a stay for the flexible buckskin. One house is featuring a white buckskin shoe, in the sole of white leather, treated in such a manner that it retains its whiteness in spite of wear. These heelless ties and shoes are shown for tennis, while walking ties and shoes have heels about an inch high. Along with the other garments, riding habits are receiving considerable attention. The new trouser and leggings in one, laced in front or buttoned at the side, is a style adopted by young girls, while older women favor the skirt, for country wear, finished with a lap seam front and back, with straps underneath for cross saddle riding. Riding coats show the conventional notch collar, close body and flaring skirt, and the habits are made in whipcord, covert cloth, tweed and khaki cloth, while tan leather boots or leggings and ties are the approved mode of dressing the feet. The tendency in hats seems to point to the mannish sailor or with a fancy band; gloves are the gamut and backwear the stock, usually pique or duck, in some cases embroidered with large green polka dots or gay purple fleur de lis. If you chance to be an ally. It is interesting to note the studied carelessness of the clothes of the woman who loves sport for sport's sake. Two notables of New York society appeared at a golf club early in the season and I heard an idler on the broad veranda remark as they took the bunkers that they certainly knew how to wear their clothes. The very suitability of the garments made them stylish. With her fair skin lanned a delicate brown, the first was a perfect picture of what a robust American girl should be in her Norfolk coat of tan chinchilla, with blue linen skirt showing below, sailor hat of the same material, tan gloves and low heeled ties of tan leather. Drs. Mackechnie and Lee have moved their office to the New First National Bank building. 13 1/2

COSSACKS MOST PICTURESQUE FIGHTERS IN EUROPE

Washington, May 17.—Apprenticed to Mars at birth, as were the Spartans before them, the Cossacks survive from a young, non-industrial, in-the-spirit world are the most picturesque fighters on Europe's battlefields. A frontier folk like the people of our early West, a mixture of many adventurous elements, and constituting within their own country a class more distinctive than that of the American cowboy, they have finally been subordinated to the needs of the great imperial government at Petrograd, taking over just as they were into its machinery, and preserved as a soldier caste. A wild, conquering, freebooting folk, the Cossacks have been brought within the fold of Russian civilization as soldiers, descendants of warriors and progenitors of generations of soldiers to meet the future needs of Slav empire. It is with these Cossacks, the man who, in the leisure of national peace, conquered the vast empire of Siberia for Russia, and who, in each Russian war for the last 100 years, have formed the Tsar's irresistible first-line strength, that today's statement of the National Geographic Society deals. More nearly defining this military folk, the statement continues: "The Cossacks are a people of the limitless steppes, a people of close corporation, situated in Russia as a race apart, a soldier-caste, their state a military organization, their connection with the great empire maintained through the Imperial War department, the administration of their internal affairs practically in their own hands, and their privileges as a caste almost pronounced as were those of the Spartan soldier-citizen, or more comparable to the soldier-caste of older Indian organization. The Cossacks came of the original Slav stock but they were those Slavs who never bowed their heads beneath a yoke foreign or domestic, who lived a free life on the borders of their race's civilization, wandering, fighting, buccaneer Slav tribes, who penetrated deeply into Tartar and Georgian lands, who lived by the hunt and by plunder, and who maintained themselves on the borders of Asia and Europe free of all serfdom. "These sturdy Russian wanderers assimilated many adventurous elements, took up among them many Tartars and Slavs, and, so, today the Cossack type is a more or less distinct one. The total Cossack population of Russia is more than 2,000,000. Some years ago they owned nearly 145,000,000 acres of land, of which 105,000,000 was arable and 9,400,000 forest land. This land is held by the Cossacks in community partition as a State reward for their military service. It will be seen that the Cossack holdings amount to about 50 acres for each man, woman and child of the people. There is an admiring half envious Russian catchword about being as "free and as rich as a Cossack." "The Cossacks are the rough riders of Europe. As the cowboys of the American plains and the gauchos of the Pampas, the Cossacks are an intensely interesting, wild, free, plain folk, who live in the saddle in the open places, and whose rough democracy is the expression of the same naive, rudimentary culture as that of their New World brother-in-spirit. None of their members are allowed to starve and none of them have succeeded in winning overmastering positions through the laying up of great wealth. "The Cossack is favored by the State, and is a main part of the State's authority. To be born a Cossack is to be born a soldier. Every Cossack bears the obligation of twenty years military service. He enters into this service at the age of 18; spends 3 years in a preliminary Cossack division; next passes 12 years in active service, and spends his last 5 military years in the Cossack reserve. It is the picked men from his ranks who constitute the Imperial Guard, a body of the finest type of fighters whom the Tsar can trust, when he can trust no one else around him. These Cossack soldiers have been the greatest terror with which Russia has been able to threaten Europe; they have been the empire's most efficient internal police, and they have marched eastward to the Pacific and southward to the zone of British influence, conquering for the Tsar a vast domain including many nations. The Cossacks have, dearly avenged their fellow Slavs for the hardships they have received at the hands of the Tartar hordes of Asia.

The LESSON

From the darkening shadow of the grave we learn many lessons: Patience, Love, Remembrance, Fidelity to trust, Forgiveness, forgetfulness of others' faults, sacredness of duty, the frailty of life, the blessings of sorrow, the sweetness of memory, the reward of friendship, and the nearness of death.

There is no greater proof of these virtues among the living exemplified, as the erection of a suitable memorial. A visit to the cemetery will convince you of these facts.

Both Are Farrar

The Victor record of Farrar's Voice is Just as truly Farrar as Farrar herself

The same singularly beautiful voice, with all the personal charm and individuality of the artist. To hear the new Carmen records by Farrar is to be stirred with enthusiasm, just as were the vast audiences—the largest ever assembled at the Metropolitan Opera House—which greeted her performance of Carmen, and proclaimed it the supreme triumph of this great artist's career. The proof is in the hearing. Come in and we will gladly play for you Farrar records, or Victor records by any other of the world's greatest artists.

Dear Madam: You can take the same flour, baking powder, shortening and other ingredients and by putting them together in right proportions, correct mixing and careful baking produce as good batch of biscuit, loaf of bread or cake as any one. Can you not? It's the same with Tea. We buy our teas directly of the Importer. The same teas that the big package tea people use at EXACTLY THE SAME PRICE and blend them by the same formula. (It's no more of a secret than your bread or cake recipe). As the teas are already processed when they arrive in this country, you can see it's a very simple process. Now here's OUR ADVANTAGE, no expensive lithographed cans or national advertising or salesman's bills to pay. Just one profit between the importer and you—that's ourselves. Can't you see the advantage? It costs at least one-half the retail price of an advertised brand of tea to get it into your hands. We are packing teas under our WHO CAN BEAT IT BRAND, the very best money will buy. Have India and Ceylon, Formosa Oolong, Young Hyson, Imperial, Gunpowder and Basket Fired Japan, at a uniform price of 65 cents per pound, 1-2 lb. 35 cents, 1-4 lb 20 cents. Try one package, we guarantee satisfaction
