TWO GRAVE INTERNATIONAL QUESTIONS CONFRONT THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT

GERMANY AND MEXICO

PRESENT GRAVE DIPLOMATIC PROBLEMS INVOLVING SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES

ANSWER TO GERMANY

Expected Soon After Cabinet Meeting Tomorrow—May Act Immediately Answer

By Associated Press. Washington, May 31.—Two international problems—the one, a crisis in the relations between the United States and Germany, and the other, the determination of the president to bring about an early cessation of internal warfare in Mexico—developed for President Wilson today a combination of circumstances hardly paralleled in American history.

The president has prepared a statement to be issued tomorrow as a warning to the Mexicans calling their attention to the fact that their incessant strife had forced the innocent populace to the verge of starvation and that unless the chief elements came to an agreement to restore peace, some other means would have to be found to bring the States to accomplish this end. There was confidence in the executive quarters that a warning would suffice to set in motion definite plans for peace in Mexico, but the fact that the United States had made increasing gains with Germany, made increasing grave by the reply from Berlin to the American note on the sinking of the Lusitania pessimism and high tension were apparent.

ANSWER DISAPPOINTING. The official text of the note from Germany had arrived early today. Officials generally read it with profound disappointment for they pointed out it endeavored to obscure and evade the main issue—the question of humanity involved and sought to interpose technical argument on matters of law hitherto undisputed under the universally accepted laws of nations. Most important of all, it was noted that no attention was given to the request of the United States for assurance that American lives would be safe guarded in the future.

The course of the United States government is expected to be shaped by the president before the day is over and will be discussed at tomorrow's cabinet meeting. Through Ambassador Gerard, the president has known for several days of the disappointing character of the German note. What his action will be is not known to anyone but himself, if in deed he has formed a definite conclusion.

PROBABLE ACTION. From a previous knowledge of the president's feeling over the Lusitania disaster and other incidents which drew forth the previous note it confidently is expected that the dispatch of a second note to Berlin within 24 or 48 hours answering Germany's request for the facts of the Lusitania's cargo and equipment with a restatement of the circumstances as made clear in the first American note, and an intimation that a prompt reply is expected. Reference, it is believed, will be made to the understanding of the American government that another American vessel, the Nebraska, has been torpedoed without warning while the diplomatic discussion was in progress. An urgent inquiry, it is thought, will be made as to what effective measures will be taken immediately by the German government to prevent the further loss of American lives and the destruction of American property.

Legal officers of the United States say that the American point of view on the legal questions involved never has been disputed in the past by Germany or any other nation of the world in any of the essential features. Analyzing the German reply it was pointed out that the German acceptance of responsibility for attacks on the American ships, Guilford and Cushing, with expressions of regret and offers of reparation could not aid materially in clearing up the situation, since it was declared in the American note that such premises do not renounce a dangerous practice.

HOSTILE PRACTICE. Continued attacks on American vessels, though hostile intent may be disavowed in each case, is regarded by American officials as constituting in total effect a hostile practice. The discussion in the German note of the sinking of the British steamer, Falaba, on which Leon C. Thresher, an American citizen, lost his life was surprising to officials for there has been a controversy in the report of the German government and the affidavits of survivors over the length of time given the Falaba to transfer her passengers, a point that never has been established satisfactorily. The Falaba's case, however, is only incidental to the American protest over the German method of conducting submarine warfare and is not as

Editorial Opinions On The Answer Of Germany

New York Times: The German reply is not responsive to our demands. It does not promote "that clear and full understanding" which President Wilson declared desirable. The manner in which Berlin has received our representations cannot fail to create a most disagreeable impression in this country.

New York World: The German note is worse than evasive; it is insincere, even pettifying.

New York Tribune: Germany's answer to our government protest against the slaughter of its citizens will not satisfy American opinion.

New York Press: Germany's note is friendly, gracious and unsatisfactory.

New York Herald: The reply ignored the real issue presented in the American note of May 13.

New York Herald: The reply of the German government shows conviction that Germany is most anxious to live at peace with America. That she desires to be shown where she is in the wrong is most natural and we think that fair-minded men will concede that with the vessel being carried on the navy list as an auxiliary cruiser the presumption is strong that German submarine officers thought her armed and ready to offer resistance.

Kansas City Star: There is nothing in the German note to alter the position of the United States as set forth in President Wilson's communication of May 13.

Chicago Journal: The claim that the Lusitania was an armed auxiliary cruiser is an unproved insult to the United States which demands a thorough investigation and entails a keen wish to cooperate in a frank and friendly way in clearing up a possible misunderstanding which may have arisen in the relations between the two governments through the events mentioned by the American government.

Chicago States: Zeitung: The administration cannot honestly dodge the questions raised by Germany. The German government does not deny responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania but wishes to determine the status of the ship, whether or not she were an auxiliary cruiser.

SUNK LUSITANIA IN SELF DEFENSE

Germany Claims Liner British War Vessel, Armed and Carrying Soldiers

Lays Blame on England

Washington, May 31.—The following is the text of the German note: "The undersigned has the honor to submit to the American government the following answer to the communication of May 15 regarding the injury to American interests through German submarine warfare.

The Imperial government has subjected to the communication of the American government to a thorough investigation and entertains a keen wish to cooperate in a frank and friendly way in clearing up a possible misunderstanding which may have arisen in the relations between the two governments through the events mentioned by the American government.

Regarding firstly the cases of the American steamers Cushing and Guilford: The American embassy has already been informed that the German government has no intention of submitting neutral ships in the war zone, which are guilty of no hostile action, to the attacks of submarines or aviators. On the contrary, the German forces have repeatedly been instructed most specifically to avoid attacks on such ships.

Neutral ships in recent months have suffered through the German submarine warfare, owing to mistakes in identification. It is a question only of quite isolated and accidental cases which can be attributed to the British government's abuse of flags, together with the suspicious or culpable behavior of the masters of the ships.

The German government, in all cases in which it has been shown by its investigation that a neutral ship, not itself at fault, was damaged by German submarines, or aviators, has expressed regret over the unfortunate effects of both banks to the new quarters and is expected that this task would be completed in ample time for the opening tomorrow morning.

When sinking the British steamer Falaba, the commander of the German submarine had the intention of allowing the passengers and crew to escape to a safe harbor only when the master did not obey the order to leave to, but fled and summoned help by rocket signals, did not attempt to leave the ship within ten minutes. He actually allowed them twenty-three minutes' time and fired the torpedo only when suspicious craft were hastening to the assistance of the Falaba.

Regarding the loss of life by the sinking of British passenger steamers or Lusitania, the German government has already expressed its sincere regret that citizens of their States lost their lives.

"On this occasion, the Imperial government, however, can not escape the impression that certain important facts, which can be communicated to the embassy, the investigation can, if necessary, be supplemented by an international call on the international commission of inquiry as provided by article 11 of the Hague agreement of October 18, 1907.

MISS IRMA WHEELER ENDED OWN LIFE

Despondent Over Ill Health Young Woman Takes Dose of Poison

DEATH COMES 4 HOURS LATER

Leaves Note Saying "I am Tired of Living and Nobody Loves Me"

Miss Irma Wheeler, aged 22, died shortly after midnight Sunday at the Wheeler home, 1130 Seventh street, as the result of poison. Death resulted within about four hours after the poison was swallowed. The young woman had been in poor health for many years and had become despondent. A note pinned to her pillow said:

"Goodbye everybody. I am tired of living and nobody loves me. Bury me in my black dress. Don't grieve after me. I'm better off at rest. (Signed) Irma."

Irma Wheeler was born in this city and was educated in the local schools, giving up her studies some years ago on account of bad health. For several years she had shown no improvement and her physical condition is thought to have caused the despondency which prompted her deed. She was a member of the Christian church. Those who know her best speak of her as a bright, clever young woman, always cheerful and sunny, and their tributes to her are full of praise.

Early Sunday night the girl went to her mother's room and when asked what she wanted, declared there was nothing and went back to her own room. Shortly after 10 o'clock and fell upon the floor. When Mrs. Wheeler inquired what had taken place, the girl said she had taken poison. Some poison had been in the house for several years, being purchased for use as an antiseptic and the girl had secreted it in her room. She diluted several of the tablets in water and drank the solution. Physicians were promptly summoned and made every effort to save her life, but their efforts were unavailing and death ensued within about four hours.

Surviving are the mother, Mrs. R. Wheeler, two sisters, Mrs. I. Hancock and Mary Wheeler, two brothers, E. S. Wheeler and R. P. Wheeler, the father, H. P. Wheeler Sr., died in 1913, a brother, Rex, met death several years ago.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning from the residence, 1130 Seventh street and burial will be in Riverside. Rev. P. F. Walters will officiate.

POLICEMAN GILHAM GIVEN HEARING BY COUNCIL

Officer Whose Resignation Was Announced Recently Asks For An Investigation

The city council has been in executive session today discussing matters in the police department, particularly with reference to Policeman George Gilham, whose resignation was announced recently. Mr. Gilham asked for a hearing and the council granted this request. Some testimony was taken on matters leading up to the resignation, which is understood to have followed a complaint by a prisoner that he was handled with undue roughness.

OLD MAN FOUND LYING UNCONSCIOUS IN ROAD

Picked Up on River Road Sunday and Cannot Explain His Condition

An old man giving his name as Jim Allen was picked up unconscious on the road near the Friberg farm on the river road Sunday and brought to this city. He was still unconscious this morning, but this afternoon had recovered sufficiently to tell in the Friberg neighborhood-looking for work, and started back when he found no help was needed. He remembers nothing of how he came to be in his present condition, but believes he was slugged. There was a scratch on the top of his head. A small amount of money which he says he had was not on his person when he was picked up.

In the absence of anything better, Allen was quartered in the old jail building with an old sheet for bedding. Later he was placed on a cot in one of the cells in the old jail. There is no place for such cases at present, though one will be provided when the new hospital is completed. Officers are investigating the case. Allen says his home is in Fort Worth. A bottle containing a mixture of glycerin and carbolic acid was found on him. He showed no signs of having been drinking and says he had not taken a drink in four years.

GRADUATES POINTED TO "THE RIGHT WAY"

Pastor Takes Words of David as Theme for Baccalaureate Sermon

THE RIGHT WAY IS LONG

Graduates Told that Only Those Who Meet Difficulties Firmly Will Succeed

The eighteen graduates of the Wichita Falls high school who tonight will receive their diplomas, Sunday morning were directed upon "The Right Way" that being the subject of the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. F. F. Walters at the First Christian Church. A crowd that taxed the capacity of the church was in attendance.

The inspiring sermon was preceded by a musical program in which the students and graduates took part. The graduates were attired in caps and gowns, emblematic of the scholars as they have attained. The services opened with the organ prelude by Mrs. Strange, following which the high school glee club sang Mendelssohn's "The Lord is Great from Athaliah." The girls' glee club then sang "God is Love" (Shelley). The invocation was pronounced by W. J. Bullock, president of the school board and the boys glee club sang "The Lord is My Strength." The scriptures reading by Superintendent Carpenter and the morning prayer by J. W. Bradley followed.

The senior quartette then sang "Nevins' Peace I Leave With You" and after the offertory the senior glee club sang "How Long Will Thou Forget Me" (Offinger). The senior quartette consisted of Ralph Pond, Lawrence Douglas, J. L. Jackson Jr., and J. W. Akim. All of the songs were under the direction of Miss Agnew, musical supervisor of the school, the entire musical program being of unusual excellence, characteristic of the work of Miss Agnew's department.

After the sermon by the pastor, the congregation joined in singing "America" and the service was closed.

Rev. Walters' sermon follows: "As happy pastor of this church, a rare opportunity and real pleasure is accorded me. By your generous invitation, I stand before this honorable board of education, faculty of brilliant instructors and most worthy graduation class of 1915.

Had an oration been desired or instructions given, you would have chosen an orator or a professor for this address. Having chosen the commonest among common, and least among preachers, you must expect only a common sermon. However, the aim, the idea seems unique. The well timed custom of requiring students once in twelve years and the board and faculty, to attend divine services once a year, is altogether commendable and by a person so extravagant in olden times one sermon converted three thousand. According to this modern manner of attendance, it would take one thousand sermons to convert one convert. It is a real joy I have, making it with your friends and parents upon this occasion. This is your day. You deserve the honor. We bow in your presence. The road leading to this terminal in your career, the way through numerous thickets and bleeding bones of many who started with you. Allurements, misfortune and the giving up of bright hopes cause you to give up. You are here to you for a graduating class. You have not failed us. Four years bound with unseen shackles, held by life's demands, led by hopes brightest star, you come on this day to your release. We bid you go free.

Your attention is now called to the words of David, that old Jew who living close to God, recounts the travails, failures, losses, wanderings and finally of his people, the Jews, "Howah God Psalms 107:67. He delivered them out of their distresses. He led them forth by the right way." This suggests the methods of education. E. T. Stevens, an education drawing out qualities that are within, is the highest education.

"Body plus intellect, plus feeling, plus will, plus spirit equals man. Man is physiologically and psychologically nothing more. An education fitting such a being for service, should educate four things. Ability, capability, reliability and responsibility. Men of great ability fail because void of reliability. Many are unreliable in home, school, church and state. Blessed is the instructor who leads the student into reliability and responsibility as well as into ability and capability. Blessed is that student whose body, intellect, feeling and will is led into reliable action and endurance. But I am not here to advise. My hope is to drop some seed thoughts concerning the text. He led them forth by the right way." Because there is a way that leads right into man, out the end thereof are the ways of death.

The Right Way. "The right way is not always the pleasant way. Not always the easy way, nor the short way. The right way is never the selfish way. But the right way is the optimistic way. Optimism is the rational basis of life. Leave pickles and sour people alone. Keep out of the vinegar barrel. Develop the laughing muscles. Live the summer life counts. Live the gospel of 'busted' smiles. See the serious side of life, but don't take your (Continued on Page 3)

AT THE THEATERS

"THE THIEF" AT THE MAJESTIC TUESDAY NIGHT

Scene From "The Thief". Henri Bernstein has written many good plays. Amongst them all "The Thief" stands preeminent. It is his supreme success. The plot may be told in a few words. The heroine, a young woman of weak character but with an infinite capacity for love, has centered her affections upon a man of social position. Without beauty or wealth she has no means of attracting his attention and so, in order to make herself desirable in his eyes, she steals large sums of money from her friends with which she buys beautiful clothes. Her peculations are discovered and attributed to a young man who, knowing the truth, remains silent to shield her. That very love however, which at first led her astray has ennobled and strengthened her character and in the wonderfully dramatic climax she confesses her guilt. Dorothy Lounell, creator of the title part in "Madame X" and America's favorite young tragedienne is peculiarly fitted both by nature and temperament to play the difficult leading role in "The Thief". Her work as the original "Madame X" gave her first place in an emotional actress, and in the present production she has surpassed all her previous efforts. Richard Duhler and an all star cast give excellent support to Miss Lounell. "The Thief" was staged at the William Fox studios under the direction of Edgar Lewis. Some conception of the elaborateness of the production may be gained from the fact that the towns worn by the star are valued at more than $5,000 and were selected from the products of leading couturiers in New York, London and Paris.

MARY PICKFORD AT THE EMPRESS THEATRE MONDAY

Mary Pickford, Caryle Blackwell and Harold Lockwood are featured Monday at the Empress in Daniel Frohman's "Such a Little Queen". For sheer charm of story, quality and daintiness of the central character, honest sentiment and impressive truths "Such a Little Queen" is one of the gems of the current era of plays. Mary Pickford, as the little queen, makes one of the best impressions of her brilliant career. There is something indescribably appealing in the personality she portrays; she has dignity and grace, gentleness of manner, charm and winsomeness, and she contrasts most effectively the moods identified with a situation in which disappointment and despair must be concealed under a pretense of cheerfulness and courage. The play deals with kings and queens of toy kingdoms and the trials which beset them in both the hard field of politics and the imaginative realm of romance. Anna Victoria, Queen of Herzegovina, exiled by reasons of political dissension, finds refuge in America. Stephen, the deposed King of Bosnia, has also been dethroned, and also comes to America. As may be suspected, they are deeply in love and their troubles spring from the political exigency which forbids their marriage. Both are penniless and Anna drifts into a small flat in Harlem, while King Stephen goes to a cheap hotel. The deposed queen, seen in the kitchen of the flat, peeling potatoes, cooking chops, examining the ice box and learning the tricks of the dumb waiter, provides many of the humorous moments of the film. Of course, there can only be one result of the pressure of poverty. Both the king and queen are forced to go to work. Anna becomes a translator; Stephen a clerk. Their employer is Adolph Lauman, a millionaire meat packer, who represents the American idea of the uselessness of thrones and all such regal nonsense. He takes particular pains to inculcate to the world that business alone counts with him; but before long his point of view changes—he is willing to compromise. He believes his daughter has aspirations to shine in European society, and conceives the notion of marrying her to the king, and then using his dollars and his hard headed American business methods to win back the kingdom of Bosnia for Stephen. The situation is both comic and pathetic, but Lauman's intentions are halted because the king is faithful to Anna and moreover, the daughter is in love with a young American. Anna returns from her stuffy Harlem flat to the glamour of a throne; Stephen is called back to Bosnia; and we are left with the promise that the sound of wedding bells will soon make the two little kingdoms one. The true spirit of romance permeates the delightful play, which may be characterized as a little of the tenderness and sweetness of life put into dramatic expression.

Songbird's Fiance Slays Man In Music Hall Brawl

SCENE FROM "THE GIRL OF THE MUSIC HALL"

The public, stunned, could scarce believe its eyes. Again and again it read the incredible story which told of how Ida Norton, the brightest star in the operatic firmament, had suddenly resigned her position to work in a cheap east side music hall. And while popular and surprises flew thick and fast another and greater sensation was recorded scene heads in the newspapers. Alan Glynn, the artist whom the operatic star was to have wed, had John Hagan, a "bouncer" in the music hall. In all the city there was just one man who knew of the events which all brought about. Ida Norton's marriage was annulled and led up to Hagan's death. It was Fane, the composer, who had "discovered" the singer—Fane, the man who so nobly kept his own love for Ida Norton secret because he thought that she really loved his friend Glynn. Fane discovered Ida while on a juggling trip. Urged by his friends, Fane entered a cheap music hall. Just ten minutes inside the place was enough to bore and disgust him. About to leave, Fane's attention was attracted by the appearance of a note of a remarkably pretty girl. The first note which issued from her throat. This Alice Joyce feature will be the attraction at the Gem Theatre Monday.

VERONA KEY POSITION TO NORTHERN ITALY

Ancient City Below Trent Believed Certain To Be Objective Of Austrian Attack.

Washington, May 31.—"Immediately inside the Italian border below the Austrian city of Trent, lies the wealthy, ancient city of Verona, an important railway center, a treasury of art, a museum of splendid remains from Roman times through all Italian periods and altogether one of the most beautiful and interesting cities of northern Italy," according to the geographic statement issued by the National Geographic Society today, which deals with the most recent of hostile frontiers in Europe. "Verona is a fortress of the first class," the statement continues, "and one of the foremost military centers toward the Austrian frontier. In peace times a garrison of more than 6,900 men is stationed here and here are located the administration offices of Italy's 3rd army corps.

"Verona is less than 10 miles distant from the Austrian frontier, from that part of the Austrian Tyrol that projects as a deep wedge into the north Italian hill country. It lies 71 miles west of Venice by rail and 88 miles east of Milan, another great northern railway center, on both banks of the rapid Adige River. It is 194 feet above sea level, with the main and older part of the city lying within an abrupt loop made by the river. The population of the city, with its suburbs is about 80,000. The main railway lines from Modena and Mantua to Trent and Bozen and from Venice to Milan, cross in the city. The Verona, Venice, Portogruaro line parallels the Austrian frontier and has many strategic branches of much the same value to the Italians in their present struggle as the Posen-Tilsit line is to the Germans in their defense of their eastern frontier.

"Verona must be the immediate objective of any invasion from the Trentino salient. From Verona west, the trunkline railway leads through a rich industrial and farming region to the great northern towns of Milan and Turin. To the east lies Venice and to the south are a constellation of thriving manufacturing towns. The frontier before Verona is strongly fortified, both on the Italian and Austrian sides. In recent years, a wide ring of forts, far outside of the obsolete city walls, were begun as a new scheme for the city's defense. The building of these redoubts raised Verona to the position of a fortress of first rank.

The outposts of the Venetian fortifications still remain standing today date from 1527, when Verona was surrounded with new walls and bastions by Sarmicelli. Following the Congress of Vienna, Verona was returned to Austria, and the city's defense was strengthened. The Austrians further fortified Peschiera, Mantua and Legnago, forming the famous 'Quadrilateral' upon which powerful series of fortresses the Austrian rule in Italy relied. Verona is the key position to northern Italy.

"Both prosperous and progressive, the city has multiplied its industrial endeavor many times during the last score years. Today there are large paper and cotton mills in the city, an immense nail factory and piano and organ factories. There is also, a significant manufacture of war munitions centered here, extensive artillery establishments and important arsenals. Among the other more important manufacturers are silks, soap, candles and sugar. Verona has a large and growing agricultural commerce, being one of the first Italian centers of traffic with Austria-Hungary, Switzerland and Germany. It exported wines, fruits, rice and marble and twice each year it held a noted horse market.

"A city of wonderful art works, of weather stained, white marble palaces, often richly sculptured and sometimes showing the worn evidences of sumptuous past ages, with impressive, well preserved ruins from the days of before the Christian era, Verona has somewhat the appearance of luxurious decay, with which a confident, pushing, successful breathing spirit of the last few years has contrasted sharply.

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Mild, fragrant, delicious—and as gentle with your tender tongue as the touch of Spring—Tuxedo turns on a new inspiration. It can't bite, it can't sting because that's cut out by the famous original "Tuxedo Process" that first made men realize how good a pipe smoke could be. That process today stands supreme. It never has been duplicated.

Governed Billy Sunday converted in New Jersey and took away $25,000. Billy has lost nothing up sports for the pulpit.

Samuel Palmer Brooks of Waco recently announced himself a candidate for the United States Senate.

Unless Culberson is in the lead, neither of the six announced candidates can hope to secure a victory in the first primary election.

Will call for a second primary between the two candidates who received the highest vote in the first. Dr. ... is likely to be one of them.

Nothing to be gained, coming by this country going to war with any other nation, but shall the people stand for everything?

It has been clearly established that an American ship has been torpedoed, and with no provocation.

There is a limit to our endurance, and we can read the signs rightly. The press at Washington have about decided that it is useless to protest against these insults and outrages.

Some stronger measures must be adopted. As to just what will be in up to President Wilson, he is capable and will handle the matter as it should be handled.

By census of 1910, is entitled to more congressional districts. Increase in population, for the part, has been in the western part of the state.

It is the duty of the legislature to redistrict the state. The present congressional districts, established by the legislature in 1910, were taken from the 1910 census was taken.

It is the only reason for this that there is too much self-interest involved on the part of the legislature. Too many of them want to keep their seats and think they have no right to cut out a district that will give them, they seemingly, have for the people of the state.

Special session of the legislature. Appropriations of the amount $90,000. Considering that the state is going to have to pay for the way of increased taxation, it looks much like "Farmer Jim" taking the farmers out to any extent. However, one million of dollars will be expended in the improvement of rural schools in the state.

Legislature are to be commended. There is nothing hardly that will be done in Texas faster than the building of rural schools, and the time will be in Texas when it will not be necessary for a farmer to go to town or city in order to get to a graded school that will give to his children the advantages of a common school education. The legislature had appropriated millions of dollars for that purpose to be expended in the next two years. It would not have been too

Germany Accountable. The News Bureau says: The foremost before the American people is how to defend our position. Holding the Germans to strict liability, without interfering with the supplies of those who would supply them be our allies.

Answer is simple: the United States is in no position to fight with rifles, nor are our men or arms needed at the present time in the European conflict.

The strength of Germany today is in her isolation and ability to fight the defensive with her own men and on her own soil, and her own resources. The strength of the allies is in their ability to command supplies, arms, and credit over the globe.

The great danger with the allies is the possibility of weakness in communication—both as respects supplies and finance.

Should Germany elect to force the United States upon the side of the allies she would throw into the scale the financial resources of America which would instantly weaken her own credit at home by the preponderating power thrown against her, and would enhearten several nations now fighting against her whose greatest weakness is in the position of their supplies and financial means.

There is only one way for America to accept any credit from Germany and that is with votes for billions of credit to go where it is most needed in Europe. It is immaterial to America at war whether she gives a billion to Russia, who was her friend forty years ago, or to France, her friend for a hundred years ago, or to Great Britain. The finance opposing Germany is today a unit. The unit would be enormously increased if the relations between the United States and Germany were severed.

People who do not think in financial terms are disturbed over the inability of the United States to immediately command means for defense. But in the present situation we hold the keys for the largest defense. We are not only the base for war supplies outside of Germany, but soon will be, with war profits and war orders, the largest imaginable base of credit supplies.

The United States at war can not only accelerate in very many ways the munitions now going forward, but can open the Government arsenals and armories, now practically closed, and almost instantly augment the machinery at the base of war supplies.

The United States would indeed be committing a foolishness to enter into any arrangements that aid Germany to interrupt the supplies of the allies. But what most people do not see, and what Germany can not fail to see, is that this juncture an invitation from Germany to the United States to enter the field is a much more serious matter for Germany than would be an invitation from Germany to Italy and Roumania combined.

One of the ablest bankers in this country says: "If Germany can frighten the United States by a transatlantic submarine warfare, we deserve to be frightened; if we permit our defense to interfere with the defense of others, we had better think before we commit suicide; but if it comes right down to business, it is our navy yards and arsenals that will do the work, but the credits we can vote by the billion."

"France today would undoubtedly like to borrow a half billion at 5 per cent in the United States. If we had to go to war, I think that she might get a billion here at 4 per cent very quickly, and get it direct from Uncle Sam's Treasury."—Wall Street Journal.

AT HOME.

I pity the fellow who has no home! No wonder gray hairs are upon his temples and wrinkles are upon his face. He is briny from his eyes! I'd rent no place of brick or stone; for an old caboose I can call my own; it is better far, though it's cheap and small, than a fine hotel or a rented hall. I'd want to sit on my dinky porch, and pull away at a five cent torch, and mark the growth of the sparrowgrass, or pull the weeds from the garden.

I want to tinker around the lawn, and nail a board where I see the hole, or tie a string to the pumpkin vine, and know that everything there is mine. I'd rather live in a shacky ege, with a lop-eared cow in the stable and a swaybacked dog and a swarm of bees, and have no debts that would spoil my sleep, than have a hall with a dogon keep, and a mortgage big as the village square, though pomp and splendor were reigning there. To have a home and be out of debt—well, that is truly the best scheme yet!

Had Troops and Munitions.

Finally, the Imperial government must point out particularly that the Lusitania on its last trip, as on earlier occasions, carried Canadian troops and war material, including no less than 5,400 cases of ammunition intended for the destruction of the brave German soldiers who are fulfilling their duty with self sacrifices and devotion in the fatherland's service.

The German government believes that it was acting in justified self-defense in seeking with all the means of warfare at its disposition to protect the lives of its soldiers by destroying ammunition intended for the enemy.

The British shipping company must have been aware of the danger to which the passengers aboard the Lusitania were exposed under these conditions. The company in embarking them, notwithstanding this, attempted deliberately to use lives of American citizens as protection for the ammunition and against the clear provisions of the American law which expressly prohibits the forwarding of passengers on ships carrying ammunition and provides a penalty therefor. The company therefore is wantonly guilty of the death of so many passengers.

Sunk By Internal Explosion.

"There can be no doubt, according to the definite report of the submarine commander, which is further confirmed by all other information, that the quick sinking of the Lusitania is primarily attributable to the explosion of the ammunition shipment caused by a torpedo. The Lusitania's passengers would otherwise, in all human probability, have been saved."

The Imperial government considers the above mentioned facts important enough to recommend them to the attentive examination of the American government.

The Imperial government, while withholding its final decision on the demands advanced in connection with the sinking of the Lusitania, until receipt of an answer from the American government, feels impelled, in conclusion to recall here and now, that it took cognizance with satisfaction of the mediatory proposals submitted by the United States government to Berlin and London as a basis for a modus vivendi for conducting the maritime warfare between Germany and Great Britain. The Imperial government, by its readiness to entertain a discussion of these proposals, then demonstrated its good intentions in ample fashion. The realization of these proposals was defeated, as is well known, by the declinatory attitude of the British government.

Assistant Secretary of War Says That Deficiencies Such as Couldn't Be Improvised

By Associated Press.

Washington, May 31.—Speaking under the shadow of Grant's tomb at the Memorial day exercises here today, Assistant Secretary Breckenridge of the war department declared the United States army is deficient in personnel and material, neither of which could be improvised, and made a plea for "preparations not for war, but to preserve peace."

In view of the international situation the words of the assistant secretary of war seemed to take on added significance.

Austro-Germans Continue Movement to Invest Przemysl—Baltic Invasion Checked

By Associated Press.

London, May 31.—Russian resistance to the Austro-German advance in Galicia apparently is stiffening. Following the recent victory of the Russians at Seniawa in Central Galicia on the River San, it is announced at Petrograd that the right bank of the river has been cleared for a considerable distance of the Austro-German forces which succeeded in crossing it, 3,000 prisoners being captured in one day. So far as has been disclosed however, the Russians have not succeeded in halting the movement for the investment of Przemysl.

In the Baltic provinces the invading Germans have been pressed back losing guns and prisoners.

The main bodies of the Italian and Austro-German troops have not yet come to grips, the Italian invasion still meets little opposition.

RIGHT TO FURNISH WAR MUNITIONS IS UPHOLD
Action Brought Against Allies-Chalmers Co. Dismissed By U. S. Circuit Judge

By Associated Press.
Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—Circuit Judge William Turner, in a lengthy ruling today dismissed the action of General Samuel Pearson in which he sought to restrain the Allies-Chalmers company, Otto H. Falk and others from manufacturing shrapnel shells, which, it was alleged, were being supplied to the allies. The court concluded that in view of the well settled principles of international law, it must be apparent that the relief sought by the plaintiff is political rather than legal. Gen. Pearson owning securities of the German empire, contended the furnishing of shrapnel shells to the countries at war with Germany would prolong the war and depreciate his securities with consequent loss to him.

Judge Turner took up at length treating them as the supreme law of the land, the treaties between the United States and the several belligerents. He discusses particularly the treaty concluded between the United States and Prussia in 1785 and 1799 in which citizens of either country are expressly permitted free intercourse in the sale of contraband of war with neutral countries in the event either Prussia or the United States should engage in war with any country toward which either would occupy the relation of a neutral. The proclamation of President Wilson at the commencement of hostilities is set out at length and reference is made to that portion which expressed recognition of the right of any American citizen to ship contraband of war to the belligerents.

The complete schedule for the second season will be announced shortly. It will be a six week's season.

THREE MEXICAN MURDER SUSPECTS UNDER ARREST
El Paso, May 29.—Soldiers of the Fifth Cavalry, U. S. A. today arrested and turned over to Texas anglers, three Mexicans believed to be connected with the band of alleged outlaws who last week killed Ranger Gene Jen and river Guard Joseph Sitters, in the Big Bend section of Texas near Alpine. The arrests were made in that section and the Mexicans taken to Valentine, according to dispatches here today from that place.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE
And Be Free From Her Troubles, but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering, from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without pulling at something to help me, and stayed in bed most of the time. I could not do my housework.

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim, and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles."

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts with nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen the worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all druggists.

Hoops And Frills, Yards And Yards In New Lingerie

New York, May 31.—No easy time will midday have with her lingerie this summer, for lingerie having for aken its straight and narrow way shows no signs of slackening its mad rush toward fullness. It is useless to deceive yourself by thinking you can make your petticoats and slips of last season do for this. The old tube like undermuslins are out of the question with the voluminous skirt of the present mode. Far better how to fashion and buy a hoop skirt.

If hoop skirt sounds far fetched to you, it's only because you have not seen the dainty creation masquerading under the old name. They are useful and graceful, these skirts with the reel and they are actually going to wear them with filmy frocks this summer. One store features several in white and pastel shades of crepe, de Chine with a flexible wire inserted above a deep lace flounce. As the skirt measures only two yards where the wire is placed it acts the same as a stiffly starched skirt, without the bulk and clumsiness. Another house, in the very heart of the shopping district, features a skirt for its conservatism, shows a model of ribbon and net, conspicuously placed in the bodice window. This in itself is not a petticoat, but merely a foundation coming to the knee, formed of a shirred piece of net, three inches wide, stiffened on either side and suspended from a waistband with half inch ribbons.

Significant of the change in underwear fashions, lingerie petticoats measure from three to ten yards in width. Now, when you buy an undershirt you do a patriotic act, for these cambric and muslin skirts consumed a large share of those famous tales of cotton we heard so much of last fall. Some especially pretty fine cambric and muslin models are shown in three and five colors, trimmed with galloons of embroidery and Valenciennes, fllet or Herre lace. These threaten the vogue of crepe de Chine which has come to be altered with wide pleated flounces—are splendid to wear with thin frocks. The texture is so close, that there isn't the slightest chance of the wearer's figure being silhouetted in the sun.

Drop skirts for cloth suits are, of course, more moderate in width, measuring from two to three and a half yards. Here taffeta predominates, and as in the suit itself, blue is the leading color, although there are some white taffetas and, Dolly Varden effects, which bid fair to be extremely popular during the summer. Ruchings and pinked ruffles are the two modes of trimming. It is surprising how many designs can be accomplished with these. A taffeta skirt of the deep Rocky mountain blue shows an odd effect in the ruching which is placed in zig fashion in the center of the flounce. Others have the ruchings in straight rows, and the pinked ruffles are put on in the zig zag manner or draped like garlands on the lower skirt.

Many of the stores display these skirts with brassieres, the lighter the better, no doubt for contrast, or perchance because there is so much new in brassiere fashions. It is interesting to note that the front closings have completely replaced the old crossed in the back styles, which at best were ill-fitting, uncomfortable and the edges buttonholes with tiny scallois. However, brassieres are not all fancy. Others have degenerated into mere strapless bust supporters. A rubber brassiere they offer for sale at 45 is said to reduce the bust two inches. If this is true, others may be no doubt of its future popularity.

Indeed, so many types are featured, it is difficult to say what is what in underwear fashions. In the summer sales of white, where everything white is shown, each garment seems different and more adorable than the one before. Nightgowns, chemises and combinations for instance, find inspiration in every period of the past hundred years and to make the choice more bewildering the garments are taking special names. "Simplicity" is a batiste set, chemise and nightgown, with baby waist and puffed sleeves of the first Empire. Victoria, a set in chiffon cloth of Dawn Rose, a fabric similar to indestructible voile in a filmy rose color, comes from Victorian styles as one might readily guess, being made in sections joined together with faceting. There is a name to fit every style and almost as many fabrics. In some of the sheepest models, striped Georgette crepe is used and then there are the cotton crepes, French voiles, mousselines, nainsooks and chiffon cloths in Dolly Varden patterns, elaborately frilled or plainly piped; trimmed with Flemish, Herre, Valenciennes, fllet or Baby Irish crochet lace.

Just as this season, when the parks bloom with flowers and the shops with lingerie, it is refreshing to linger over the fluffly frills for the boudoir. How charming the robes de interior are. Again, crepe de Chine is the fabric of the moment, coming in attractive leaf pattern, stripes and polka dot designs. The polka dot idea is used in a smart kimono in an avenue shop. The silk is white with large and small green dots and is made with an empire bodice and full skirt; the neck, sleeves and lower edge are finished with wide ruffles of maline and the waist with a twist of ribbon and a pink rose in front. Crinoline wrappers are also featured for morning wear in dainty dimity, Swiss, mail and point d'esprit, ruffled in flower-like formation, tier upon tier. Other kimonos of China silk, taffeta and crepe de Chine show the art of the smucker. A Natter blue taffeta matinee has a yoke effect of this needlework and narrow ruffles of white maline which match the ruffles on a taffeta petticoat. Then, for each of these breakfasts in bed, there is a pretty jacket of peach blow satin trimmed with swan's down and one of the new shirred, circular pillows of the same satin, to tuck behind her back. Breakfast jackets of Herre lace and point d'esprit are also shown. Each of these has its own particular boudoir cap and here again names come in play. The Normandy cap of maize, pink, white or lavender crepe de Chine takes its style from the headress of the Normandy peasant and the "Colleen" cap is a confection of extra net. Oriental lounging robes are also receiving considerable attention, on account of their new shaded colorings. One butterfly kimono of fine silk crepe is embroidered in a wisteria pattern, graduating in tone from deep purple to white.

Styles for the boudoir go more than skin deep. Besides the kimonos and dainty caps, there are supporters and stays to think of. For those who do not wear a corset when lounging in their own rooms, there are round garters of broad elastic, covered with shirred ribbon and finished with a flower to suit the color scheme of the negligee and room. However, if the negligee is semi fitting, a stay must be worn. For this purpose, there are satin corsets in white and pastel shades, made from the waistline up, like bodices of olden times. With flexible whalebone, inserts of elastic and stocking supports, they spell boudoir comfort, grace and luxury.

ARREST FOR KILLING THIRTY-TWO YEARS AGO
By Associated Press. Dallas, May 29.—F. M. Bullington, a farmer living near Honey Grove, Texas, was under arrest here today on a warrant sworn out in connection with the killing of John Stroups in Dallas county 32 years ago. The man was located and arrested late yesterday. The sheriff's office had recently taken up the case again. Further than to say that he was not present when Stroups was killed, Bullington today refused to discuss the case. He is nearly 60 years old. Local records show that an F. M. Bullington once was indicted for this killing but the indictment was dismissed in 1905. Records differ as to the exact date Stroup was killed.

18,000 MEN REQUIRED TO HARVEST OKLAHOMA CROP
Oklahoma City, May 31.—It has been estimated by W. G. Ashton, state labor commissioner, that 18,000 men will be needed to harvest the Oklahoma wheat crop this season, and he already has sent form letters to hundreds of persons who wrote him about obtaining employment during the harvest season. The letter advised applicants that the harvest will begin about June 1 in the southwestern part of Oklahoma, and about June 8 in the northern part. In the extreme northwestern section the harvest will begin about a week later. Frederick and Clinton, Okla., will be headquarters for the department to distribute laborers for southwestern Oklahoma. Enid will be the distributing point for the northern section, and Alta and Woodward for the extreme northwestern section. Wages, Mr. Ashton said, would run from about $1.50 to $3 a day, the higher wages being promised in the extreme northwestern section.

MRS. ASHBRANNER CONTINUES TO SHOW IMPROVEMENT
Mrs. W. B. Ashbranner who was injured at her home on Elizabeth street Friday afternoon, was reported to be much improved today and is thought to be on the way to recovery.

No formal effort has yet been made to obtain bond for W. B. Ashbranner, who has been in the county jail since Friday. Relatives of Ashbranner, who is charged with assault with intent to murder, are here. No date has been set for his preliminary hearing, but it will probably be held early this week.

HOW ABOUT IT?

When a continued visit to our little cemetery reveals the fact that you have forgotten a loved one gone, and that your neglect warrants comment from friends. How about it?

When you say repeatedly to yourself, "I will beautify that plot at once and you don't." HOW ABOUT IT?

WHEN YOU GO with a friend to the last resting place do you falter and make excuses because of your negligence, what do you think they think?

There is only one way, and one time that is TODAY.
