AERIAL WAR DEGENERATING INTO MURDEROUS REPRISALS ON PART OF BOTH SIDES

By Associated Press: London, June 16.—A Zeppelin raid over the northern coast of England last night caused the heaviest loss of life among noncombatants from such attacks during the war with the exception of yesterday's raid over Karlsruhe, Baden, by French aviators.

The attack on Karlsruhe caused the death of nineteen persons and fifteen were wounded seriously. The invasion of the province of Trent by the Italians is proceeding steadily, and, according to the Italian general staff, the dominating positions are being occupied gradually.

German claims of new success in Galicia are confirmed in part by official statements from Petrograd. It is said the Germans brought up fresh troops and the Russians were compelled to fall back.

Little news comes to London from the Dardanelles. With the exception of the official intimation that the British forces are showing a sensible weakening on the western front the fighting during the last 24 hours has been indecisive.

Germany is showing considerable bitterness judging from press comment over the air raid yesterday on Karlsruhe. A large section of the press is demanding retaliation. On the other hand Paris reports that the raid on Karlsruhe was a reprisal for the dropping of bombs by the Germans on open French and British troops.

MORE CANNON AND SHELLS IS NEED OF FRENCH

Terrific Cost of Ammunition Big Problem for Allies of Europe

Paris, June 16.—The French press now is clamoring for more cannon and more ammunition with as much insistence as the English. They take as their text General Castelnau's declaration, "War must be waged not by the shock of men, but by the shock of ammunition."

A year ago the ammunition supplies for the three inch field gun were only 1,500 shells per gun, with a reserve of 200. It had been increased from 700 per gun in 1909, after General Langlois had declared in the Senate that the supply then on hand would be just sufficient for a day and a half of battle. He asked for 3,000 shells per gun. Only 1,400 were granted, provision being made for the manufacture of 13,500 shells a day in the government arsenals. The first of the war showed that all estimates as to needed ammunition were too low. French arsenals and private factories are now said to be producing 170,000 shells a day. Notwithstanding the continued demands of the press for more ammunition, this is supposed to be sufficient for current needs, besides creating a big reserve stock, careful estimates putting at from 100,000 to 150,000 the number of shells now being used each day.

The prodigality of the French army in shells already has been set forth in dispatches.

14,000 Shells an Hour.—The intensity of the German fire is indicated by an actual count of 20,000 shells fired in an hour and a half upon a French position, 250 yards in length and 400 yards in depth in the Bois Pailly. It is estimated that more than 200,000 shells were used by them in the actions between the 9th and the 13th of April in the forest of Aprimont, while the French over a limited front near Soissons in Champagne, fired 100,000 shells of large caliber. The Germans are at present less prodigal with ammunition on the western front, while their artillery is making its great effort against the Russians around Presnyai.

Within an Hour.—The consumption of small arms ammunition, though there have been no great pitched battles since the battle of the Yser, is also a great problem, due in part to the greatly extended use of machine guns. Sixty tons of these weapons firing constantly at the rate of 300 cartridges a minute, use more than 1,000,000 an hour. The number of cartridges used on both fronts from the Carpathians to the North Sea has been estimated at 20,000,000 a day. The equipment of the French army alone, not providing for the reserve ammunition, requires 300,000.

The two inch knife blade Demarest was not seriously hurt. His mind is supposed to be deranged.

SUBMARINE LOST PREY

FAMOUS BOAT MADE VAIN PURSUIT OF STEAMER.

Superior Speed and a Zigzag Course Saved the Vessel, Though Ship's Boy Has His Own Ideas of the Matter.

The German submarine U-28, according to seamen who travel between Rotterdam and England, has a regular beat which she patrols both north and south. Practically every day she is on duty along that route watching for the railway and cargo steamers on their way to Hull or Harwich or Rotterdam. She has a number of captures to her credit at this point, although she has not yet succeeded in getting any of the fast mail or railway packet boats. Their speed is superior and they vary their courses on each trip so as to make it impossible for the submarine to lie in wait along the way.
The following description of the pursuit of one of the railway steamers is published here:
"The ship was pounding along at 12 knots, when suddenly there was a flash of sunlight on the surface of the sea, maybe two miles away, and the lookout called sharply, 'Submarine on the port bow!'
"There was a sharp command to the man at the wheel and the chip changed her course. Then a quick call down the tube and the engineer sang out to his stokers, 'Best-her up, boys, U-28 is having another go.'
Down the stokehold tumbled the deckhands, eager to help with shovels and oiled. The water jumped in the gauge, the safety valves showed signs of torment, there was a small of heated bearings, the ship began to quiver, while the perspiring crew made bets with each other on the race.
"The captain himself took the wheel. Beside him stood the ship's boy, watching with fascinated eyes the white wake which marked the course of the submarine sailing at 14 knots to cut them off. Smoke and fire streamed from the funnels and there was an odor of burning paint. The iron deck chattered and groaned under the demands of the engines and the ship gained headway.
"Suddenly the captain's shoulder gave a lurch, his arms shot down, the boy, thrown off his balance, fell against the bulwarks, and the ship swerved in a half circle on a new course. Gradually the speed rose to 12 1/2 knots. The captain's face relaxed into a smile.
"What if the engine should break down, thought the boy, as his eyes again sought that distant white wake. In the long-stem chase the same thought often came to the captain, but he has showed nothing but a quiet interest and his hands held strong on the wheel. Smaller and smaller grew the pursuer, until finally it suddenly gave up the chase. Then came a call down the tube, a heavy sigh of relief from the engineer, and the men came tumbling back to deck.
"Good-by old U-28, we've beaten her again, shouted one of the crew, gazing astern.
"Yes, I'nd the old man did, exclaimed the boy."

BOTH MEN KILLED IN BAYONET DUEL

Boulogne, France, June 16.—The story of a duel with bayonets in which both contestants were killed, is told in a Red Cross report from one of the field hospitals.
"Two miles south of the hospital," says the writer, "a French Zouave got separated from his fellows when they retreated after an unsuccessful effort to take a German trench. A German soldier leaped out of the trench and charged the Zouave, bayonet fixed. The Zouave met his foe in like manner and an extraordinary duel took place. Neither man saved fire for fear of killing his own men."
"It was about 9 at night and the moon illuminated the grim contest. Round and round the men circled. The contest lasted for nearly five minutes, when suddenly both gave desperate lunges which went home. For a second the opponents each stood transfixed by the other's bayonet. Then they fell dead."

TORPEDO BOAT SUNK IN COLLISION WITH STEAMER

By Associated Press. Cherbourg, June 16.—The French torpedo boat No. 321 sank today after a collision with the British steamer, Arleya. Six of the warship's crew drowned, the others were rescued by torpedo boat No. 327.
Torpedo boat No. 321 was launched in 1907, it had a displacement of 97 tons and could make 26 knots an hour. Available shipping records contain no mention of the British steamer, Arleya.

EVANGELIST NELSON'S SERMON ON "ACTS"

Says This New Testament Book Gives World History of Primitive Christianity

Evangelist J. B. Nelson preached a forceful sermon last evening on the book of Acts. He told his hearers that this book gives to the world a history of primitive Christianity. It tells of the work of the Apostles. This book is rightly called a book of conversions. If you want to know how to become a Christian, read the book of Acts. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John were written to make believers by Christ, but the book of Acts tells how to exercise that faith in becoming Christians.
In John 3:14 Jesus says: "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the son of man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." We here note that the Saviour says that He must be lifted up or crucified before they will have the eternal life. We must go to the Acts of the Apostles which things were carried out after Jesus was lifted up on the cross and we will find where people believed on Him and how that faith brought to them salvation. Faith saves men, but it must be an acting faith, a faith that works by love and carries out the will of God. In Rom. 12 Paul says: "Walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham." We see that faith has steps in it, so we can appreciate what our Saviour said in Mk. 16:16, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned," or as the Apostle Peter said in Acts 2:38, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." About three thousand became Christians on the day of Pentecost and about five thousand on the next day. The book of Acts records conversions in chapter after chapter. Read and note them.

The Wichita State Bank. The Guaranty Fund Bank.

SOLICITS YOUR BUSINESS AND OFFERS SAFETY FIRST.

SAFETY FIRST is our principle and the GUARANTY FUND LAW your protection—it means that your money deposited in this bank is absolutely safeguarded.

It is one of the best things we have to offer together with COURTEOUS TREATMENT and every accommodation consistent with conservative banking.

Below is a newspaper clipping showing how this GUARANTY FUND LAW WORKS and how you are protected.

We will soon be the only bank in town operating under this Guaranty Fund Law.

Newspaper comment: The Wichita Daily Times says:
A few days ago there was a bank failure at Amarillo. It was a state guaranteed bank, however, and the depositors will not lose one cent. The state guaranty fund has in it $60,000 and the closing of the Amarillo bank will take from it the sum of $39,000 with which to pay the protected depositors. The more we see of this law the better we like it. Every depositor who trusts his hard-earned money to a bank should be protected to the limit, and that is what has been done in every instance where a bank operating under this law has failed or closed its doors.

And the El Paso Times says:
According to a statement made by Receiver Arnold, depositors of the defunct Arizona Bank and Trust Company will receive 75 per cent when its affairs are finally wound up. The first dividend of 50 per cent will be paid on May 4, it is said.

The patrons of the Texas bank will get their money promptly. The patrons of the Arizona bank will only get 75 per cent and will have to wait for that.

DOG'S DEVOTION TO MASTER

Pet of French Soldier, as an Instance, Saves Wounded Master, Half Buried in Trench.

The dog of a French soldier followed him to the war, huddled with him in the trenches and shared his blanket at night. A shell killed a dozen men and buried this one, badly wounded.

What does it mean? Here is devotion which exceeds that of many mothers, of many men. Here is affection manifested in a lower order of life which equals our own.

Not for Practical Use. Congressman William G. Sharp, when the conversation turned to the practical use of things, said he was reminded of an incident that happened in the West.

"Young man," sternly remarked the magistrate in opening the case, "you are charged with carrying a razor. What have you got to say for yourself?"

"Dat am berry true, boss," earnestly protested the defendant, "but dat razah am a safety razah."

"Well," impatiently demanded the magistrate, "what has that got to do with it?"

"It am dis way, yo' honah," explained the colored party. "A safety razah am only carried fo' de moral efec'."

stark. Lorry weds the princess and is crowned. Marguerite Clark, the dainty and magnetic little star, who sprang into instant national popularity as a screen favorite through her two previous Famous Players' productions, "Wildflower" and "The Crucible," returns to the screen at the Empress in the Famous Players Film Company's four-part picture of Grace Livingston Furniss' celebrated romantic comedy, "Gretna Green," in which she far surpasses all her former successes. This latest appearance of the diminutive and charming star on the Paramount Program is certain to establish her as one of the foremost screen artists of the world.

The play possesses all the essential elements valuable to the successful screen drama—love, sacrifice, humor, mystery and thrill—and is of the picturesque period of the early nineteenth century, when romantic elopements to Gretna Green, a lovers' haven in the North of Scotland, added a dash of excitement to many true love-matches, when hearts reigned over the marts of commerce, just before the prose of business usurped the poetry of romance in old England.

In "Gretna Green" Marguerite Clark portrays the character of Dolly Erskine, a little English belle and a bit of a flirt, but loyal to her friends and brave of heart. She queens it over Harrogate's beaux with sovereign handsome Richard Murray, and sets away, until she loses her heart to handsome Richard Murray, a riding master. She is too proud to confess her affection for him, however, even to herself, but nevertheless often favors him above others with her society. Richard has lost his head and heart, too, and has determined to win the willful Dolly. Throughout this period of the story, the audience knows that Murray is in reality the Earl of Bassett, who, weary of the fawning hypocrisy of society, is living incognito in Harrogate and hugely enjoying his first experiences as a laboring man.

A friend whom Murray accidentally meets is about to reveal his identity, but Richard dissuades him from this course, as he has resolved to win Dolly's love in the guise of a riding master, and without the assistance of title and position. To save a frivolous married sister's reputation, Dolly asks his aid, and they arrive at Gretna Green to prevent a disgraceful elopement. How Dolly's reputation is thereby placed in jeopardy, how, unaware of the full import of what she is saying she makes a statement which according to the Scotch law makes her Richard's wife, the many complications that follow this marriage, and the delightful comedy of Dolly's final capitulation to the husband she pretends to detest but really adores, are thrillingly unfolded in this fascinating plot.

Germany who have been excreting Bryan because his son-in-law is an Englishman are reminded that the Kaiser's mother was a Englishwoman.

If it be true that as many as 500 people are dying daily from starvation in the city of Mexico, and one report on conditions down there says that is the case, then it is time the American government was taking a hand in Mexico's affairs, and judging from the demand President Wilson has made on the leaders of the various warring factions, intervention on the part of the American government in Mexico may be looked for any day.

It now develops that General Obregon, chief in command of the Carranza troops in Mexico, did not die from his wounds received in battle. This reminds us that a story to the effect that General Villa had been shot by his body guard several months ago, and died of his wounds, has often been both affirmed and denied, and even now, it is not definitely known in this country whether he is living or dead.

The state tax rate for this year will be fixed, it is said at about twenty or twenty-five cents on the $100 valuation, which, considering that it was four cents on the $100 valuation during the last year of the administration of ex-Governor Campbell, is considerable of a jump.

Without the support of Bryan at the Baltimore convention, Champ Clark and the friends of Champ Clark, claim and assert to this good day it would not have been possible to nominate Wilson. In other words, when Bryan threw his influence to Wilson instead of to Clark he did his country a great service, and for this great service the people of the United States owe to Bryan a great deal.

error, are not all of us prone to error? Great men are not different from others in that it is impossible for them to err. And just let us think what would have happened had not Bryan took the bits in his mouth and acted as he did at Baltimore? Would there have been any Democratic victory to celebrate? The Democrats of the United States were tired, and are yet, if we read aright, of having Tammany hall dictate who they should put up as a candidate for the presidency.

Some of the newspapers of Texas are cutting up mightily because of the alleged "butting in" of the federal authorities in what they call state affairs. Most of these criticisms are aimed at the Corpus Christi incident wherein forty-two prominent citizens were indicted for violation of the election laws.

Some of the newspapers say that after the Federal grand jury returned indictments against the Tette Haute, (Ibidana) officials for participating in election frauds President Wilson visited Terre Haute ostensibly for the purpose of delivering an address, but chiefly to see the Federal district attorney and stiffen his backbone.

All know what happened in Terre Haute, and if reports are true, the same conditions, or about the same, exist in some cities and counties in Texas. There is also some evidence that the officials whose duty it is to prosecute those indicted for election frauds by the Federal grand jury sitting at Corpus Christi, need to be encouraged by officials higher up.

Hillsboro, Tex., June 14, 1915. Editor Wichita Daily Times. Wichita Falls, Texas. Dear Sir: Pardon me for again writing you, but your Sunday's editorial of June 14th in which you attempt to refute the claim that has been made that by reason of the Robertson law and the result thereof, most of the large life insurance companies are receiving for their money in Oklahoma from 3 1/2 per cent to 6 per cent and that it is costing the farmers, including all commissions from 6 1/2 per cent to 7 per cent.

I feel impelled that I should not let your statement go unchallenged, especially as you say in your editorial that if the figures are not correct, you would like to be advised. In one of my former letters to you I gave the net rates received by some of these companies for their money in other States, and what the foreign companies doing business in Texas were receiving for theirs; and likewise what the Texas companies were receiving for theirs.

I enclose you a booklet on the Robertson law in Texas, and will ask you to look on the sixth page and read the letter from the Hicks Loan & Investment Company of Oklahoma City, which states that the insurance companies are receiving for their money in Oklahoma from 3 1/2 per cent to 6 per cent and that it is costing the farmers, including all commissions from 6 1/2 per cent to 7 per cent.

of that Oklahoma farmers had to pay the banks of Oklahoma for loans. This did not apply to all mortgage loans and the insurance companies only invest in mortgage loans and bonds, as a rule, and certainly they cannot affect the rates of interest on any other character of loans.

The statement you made in your editorial was made at Austin before the House committee in the hearing that they gave on the Gibson bill. It was explained and refuted. The statement is wholly unfair and misleading, and I can understand why a newspaper would publish it, thinking it was publishing the real facts.

I do not ask you to publish this letter, but I hope you will correct the impression that you gave out in your article. I am, Yours very truly, ED WOODDALL.

THE SUMMER TASK.

The days grow hot, and we must sweat, with energy unceasing; yes, we must rise and soak the flies, to keep them from increasing. If we pass by a single fly, it soon will rear a million, and they will raise in summer days, four hundred thousand billion. And they'll produce, while running loose, such swarms of filthy critters, such hosts of flies, they'll hide the skies so let us not be quite so sure to go forth and sweat in humble cot, and in the lordly palace, sweat left and right, keep up the fight, until you break a gallus. Strike stalwart blows, and crush the foe, or later you will rue it, and I'll sit here through-out the year, and tell you how to do it.

A THRILLING VOYAGE OF A CORK STEAMER Rotterdam.—After being attacked in succession by a Zeppelin, a submarine, and a German aeroplane, the Cork Steamship Company's ship, Lestrin has reached this port safely from Liverpool.

There were more thrills packed into this short voyage than ever before before seamen. The first part of the trip was uneventful, but as we neared the Dutch coast things began to happen. First came a Zeppelin, which attacked us before daybreak one morning, dropping twenty or thirty bombs. Considering that we carried all the regulation lights we were lucky not to be hit.

143,000 DIED FROM TUBERCULOSIS 1913

APPROXIMATELY 1,430,000 PERSONS IN U. S. AFFECTED WITH DISEASE STARTLING FIGURES SHOWN

Seattle, Washington, June 16.—Tuberculosis in all its forms carried off during the year 1913 over 143,000 victims in the United States, which signifies the presence of approximately 1,430,000 consumptives with an economic loss of at least $214,500,000 per annum, according to the figures given by the President of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, Dr. George M. Kober of Washington, D. C., in his annual address at the meeting here today.

Among the recommendations for immediate action urged by the National Association, Dr. Kober made the following: "1.—In view of the fact that from 6 to 7 per cent of the samples of the average market milk contains tubercle bacilli, let us urge, by education and otherwise, that all milk, unless derived from tuberculin tested animals, be pasteurized or scalded."

Special Measures. Among the special measures to be taken for the prevention of tuberculosis by states and municipalities, Dr. Kober emphasized the following: "1.—Compulsory notification of cases to the health authorities as soon as the disease is recognized. The health authorities should also resort to disinfection of the home and personal effects, especially upon the death of the patient or vacation of the premises."

An injunction restraining Constable Will Allen, Justice of the Peace Jones and A. Drake from leaving upon and selling an office safe belonging to him was granted W. B. Reeves late Tuesday in the 30th district court. The execution followed. That's splendid! cried Marietta, and all the children shouted for joy. Look at the cow turn a somersault to get out of the way, said Charles to the fairy engineer. It's a good thing she did, he replied. We're going faster than any train ever went; almost as fast as lightning. It was quite cool when they started, but it soon commenced to grow warm. How funny! exclaimed one of the little girls. It's hot now, yet there is no smoke from those fields. That isn't snow, explained the conductor. It is cotton. Stop the train, Mr. Engineer, so they can see better. The wheels ceased to turn and the little passengers from the North found themselves among thousands of bushes. Growing on the branches were fluffy balls of white. Up and down, along paths between rows of these bushes, walked colored people, men, women and boys. They carried baskets into which they placed the fluffy balls as they picked them off. These people sang while they worked. It's just like a scene in Uncle Tom's Cabin, said Marietta. Is this the same cotton they make goods from? Yes, miss, he replied. After it is taken from the field it is packed into bales, then shipped north or to Europe and made into cloth by machinery. Now we must start again, and he pulled the bell-cord. Oh, look at those funny trees! exclaimed Marietta soon after they left the cotton plantation; they seem to be draped with veils. That is moss, explained the fairy. Now tell me what you see. The little girl clasped her hands. It's the ocean! she exclaimed. Yes, or rather it is the Gulf of Mexico. Our train will run beside the water for several minutes. Are we going to stop in Mexico? Charles asked the engineer. No, they are having terrible times in this country and it would not be safe. They are having a civil war. Everybody hopes that it will soon be ended so that the men can return to work. Some day Mexico will be a wonderful country, but first the people must learn how to govern themselves. Although the train did not stop the children were entertained by the sights of tropical trees and plants. They called out in surprise when they passed through a field of cacti, those curious plants that have such odd shaped leaves with little spikes growing out. Then they saw great forests where the trees appeared to be woven together, and where grass grew so thick and high that a man could hardly walk through.

CHRISTIAN WARFARE IS EVANGELISTS THEME

Christian World Needs Red Blooded Workers, Not Shirkers—Response Gratifying. "What is Sin" will be the theme of Rev. F. J. A. Maples at the corner of Eighth and Lamar streets tonight at 8:30. Song service begins at 8 o'clock. At noon today Rev. J. A. Maples spoke to about 150 employees at Ball Bros. plant. Rev. Maples will conduct two services daily, one at noon at some shop or factory and the other at 7 p. m., at the corner of Seventh and Indiana. Dr. Friar advised those looking for an easy job to do something besides try to follow in the footsteps of Christ. The Christian life is a struggle, but one that pays in the end. The church members, who rent property for saloons and immoral purposes were scored severely. Dr. Friar never letting any opportunity to strike a blow at the saloon and kindred evils escape. The response to the invitation given was most gratifying, about four score of men and women professing to a desire for the better life.

The Panama Express By Walt Gregg.

ON! HONK! shouted Charles, as he sat on the window seat in the dining room and twisted the top of a paper hat box which he pretended was an automobile steering wheel. "Oh, don't play that," said his sister Marietta, who leaned bounding into the room; "it's a baby train." "All right," answered her brother, and climbing down he helped place the chairs in line. Five were arranged, one behind the other, and the baby's high-chair was put in front, to be the locomotive. Charles climbed into it and called, "All aboard!" and then Marietta took a seat in a chair passenger car. "Ding-dong! ding-dong!" went Charles; then he hissed in imitation of steam blowing off, and finally shouted, "Choo! Choo-choo-choo!" which was a whistle to warn people off the track. "Where do you want to go?" he asked. "Don't you wish this was a really truly train," said his sister; "and that we were going to another country?" "Let's pretend we are," replied Charles, and he sounded the bell again. "But you don't have to pretend," said a soft low voice, and Charles turned around quickly to see who it was that had spoken to him. And there, by his side, was a fairy, dressed in blue overalls, like an engineer. The little boy was so surprised he could not speak, but he was even more surprised to see that the baby's chair had turned into a little locomotive, and that his sister was sitting in a real passenger car and that other passenger cars had taken the places of the chairs. Marietta was waiting to him and calling, "Isn't this fine!" and then the little train started along some rails that had appeared on the dining room floor. "Look out! You'll bump into the wall," cried Charles; but the fairy engineer only laughed and put on more steam. And then the most curious thing happened: The wall opened and the train ran outdoors as if going through a tunnel. It stopped at the corner and the engineer rang the bell again. Charles looked back. A fairy conductor came in, and a passenger car beside one of the coaches and was helping other children up the steps. Why, his boy friends and Charotta's girl friends were also going. "Hello, Robert!" he called. "Hi, up, Sonny! Get aboard, Ralph!" At the same time Marietta was welcoming Fannie, Grace and Mary and other schoolmates, and just as the conductor was about to wave a signal, her sister Marietta's finger pointed at was lifted on board as the train started. "Isn't this perfectly lovely!" said Marietta. "Where are we going?" "You are on board the Panama Express," said the fairy conductor. "That's splendid!" cried Marietta, and all the children shouted for joy. "Look at the cow turn a somersault to get out of the way," said Charles to the fairy engineer. "It's a good thing she did," he replied. "We're going faster than any train ever went; almost as fast as lightning." It was quite cool when they started, but it soon commenced to grow warm. "Now we shall stop for a minute," said the conductor, and the train slowed down again. "Where do you think we are?" and he pointed to great mounds of cacti that looked as if they had been piled up by giant shovels, and to muddy water that was between. "I know!" shouted Marietta; "it's the Panama Canal." "Correct," said the conductor. "This is the great work you have heard so much about. This canal connects the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans. In another year ships will be passing through." The children were too young to understand much that he told them, but what they did enjoy was touching the sensitive plants that were growing near the track. Every time they touched a leaf it shivered and closed as if afraid. "All aboard!" shouted the conductor, and they were off again. "Now we are going north," said the fairy, and will pass through all the Central American republics except British Honduras. Of course we did that coming down, but we went so fast there wasn't much chance for me to tell you anything about them. This," and he waved his hand, "is Costa Rica. I'll stop the train a minute and you can tell me what you see." "Bananas!" exclaimed Marietta. "Is that the way they grow?" "Yes, on trees. See, that man is cutting off a bunch." "But they are green," said Marietta. "That is how they must be picked for shipping. They ripen during the voyage north and while hanging in warehouses." Another start was made and the conductor soon explained that they were traveling through Nicaragua. "Many persons wanted the great canal to pass through this country," he said; "and perhaps another will be dug here some day. Now," he added, "we are skipping over a part of Honduras and are coming into Salvador, which is the smallest of these republics. And this is Guatemala from where a great deal of coffee is shipped; but I must show you how that grows another time." After leaving Guatemala they scooted as fast as the locomotive could go through Mexico, for Charles did not want any of those revolutionists shooting at him with their rifles. "What a beautiful city!" Marietta exclaimed a few minutes later. "That is Los Angeles," said the fairy. "We are in the United States again. Yes, it certainly is a beautiful place. And so is San Francisco, which you will soon see. There it is now, straight ahead." "And is that the Golden Gate?" asked Marietta, standing up. "Where's the gold?" "The Golden Gate," the fairy explained, "is only the name for a narrow passage of water between two headlands. It is a channel for ships from the ocean." "Are they making another city next to San Francisco?" asked Marietta, and she pointed to a place where very large buildings were being erected. "These are for the big exposition that will be held next year," said the fairy. "It is to celebrate the completion of the Panama Canal. But, and he looked at his watch, "we must be going home now. It is nearly time for luncheon and your parents will wonder where you are." "Choo! Choo-choo-choo!" Charles found that he was whistling again. The fairy engineer had disappeared. He looked back. There was no fairy conductor and the passenger cars had changed into chairs. Marietta waved her hand. "Wasn't that a lovely trip?" she called. "Come children," said mother, who had entered the dining room; "we must have those chairs for the table." Charles climbed down. "We'll ask the fairies to take us again," he said to his sister. "When they tell their mother all about their wonderful ride, and asked if they might take another trip some day. "If you will hang up your clothes neatly every night for a week and put your shoes where you can find them in the morning you may go," she said. "But why didn't you ask me this time?" "Because we started before we knew it," said Charles. "All aboard for South America!" Three nights after the train left the Panama Charles dropped his trousers on the floor and his mother found them there in the morning. "Oh, please don't let that count," he said; "and I'll always remember to hang them up." "Very well," said mother. "But if it happens again another day will be added." The girls were very careful about their clothes and as Charles did not forget again they were told at the end of the week that they might go on another journey. "I wonder how we'll let the fairies know?" asked Charles. "Just like we did before, I suppose," said Marietta. "Well, it makes a train with them and they won't say that we wish we could really go somewhere." "All right!" roared his brother. Then, after a few minutes, he added, "Let's start at once!" "Why?" asked his sister. "I think they would have sleeping cars," said Charles. "Oh, wouldn't that be fun!" and the little girl clasped her hands. "And then we could go through the place where the snow was and where it is dark. They would be asleep and wouldn't see us." "Charles," said his sister, "you mean Mexico?" "Yes, brother," he replied. "Well, it won't do you any good, but I'll tell the girls to see what they can do."

"Yes, and I must tell my boy friends." "When the dishes had been cleared away Marietta, Charotta and their brother went back to the dining room and placed the chairs in position. Then Charles climbed to his post and said: "Let's pretend we're on a really truly train." The next instant he saw the fairy engineer and heard him say, "Good evening, sir. It is fine weather we're having." Charles looked back. Yes, there were sleeping cars, and near the steps of each stood a porter. "I think I'll go into one of those and come back here in the morning," he told the engineer. So he climbed down and walked along the train until he saw Marietta sitting at a window. "Where are we going this time?" he asked the conductor. "To South America," was the reply; and then the conductor called, "All aboard!" and waved his lantern. Charles had no sooner taken a seat than the train stopped outside the house and all the boys and girls came in. What a merry crowd it was and how they did shout and laugh! It was lots of fun watching the porter make up the berths and while this was being done the fairy conductor came in to have a chat with his passengers. "We are not moving nearly so fast as we did last time," said Marietta. "No," replied the conductor. "That is because we do not want to reach Panama during the night. It is better to arrive there in the morning and then you can see the new countries that we are going to visit." By nine o'clock the children were in the little berths and a half hour later they were sound asleep. Charles was the first to awaken in the morning and he pushed the button that was by the side of his bed. That rang a bell at the end of the car and called the porter. "Wake them up," said the little fairy. Breakfast was served in the sleeping car and soon after the children had finished the train stopped at Panama. Charles then ran to the engine and climbed up beside the engine and the other children went back to their berths. When they finished breakfast the berths had been changed to seats again and everything arranged for daylight travel. "Sooner they started great movements came into view. "Look at that snow," cried Marietta. "That's snow that never melts. It is in England and there machinery is used to separate the tin from the silver metal and from the rock." The train was now running over mountains and they saw the ocean again. "We are looking at the Pacific," said the conductor. "And that is where the waves are washing in on us. It is the longest country in the world. It is a very narrow strip, but it is the longest of any of the great continents. They passed a city that was surrounded by mountains on all sides. "That is Quito, the capital of Ecuador," said the conductor. "And now, children, what do you see?" he asked as the train stopped in a forest. "They saw strange looking men (rubber men) and looking closer they could see that holes had been made in these trees and that something black was running into the hills. Children were standing near little streams and were holding in the smoke from the pipes that had been dipped into the water. "Are they making maple sugar?" asked Marietta. "No," said the fairy; "that is rubber." "Rubber!" shouted Charles. "What for?" he asked. "They make automobile tires out of it, and balls and pencil erasers." "Yes," said the fairy. "The sap comes out of trees like maple sap; only it is thicker. It is made hard by being held in the smoke and then it is shaped into sheets and shipped down that river," and he pointed to some water near where they stood. "That is a most wonderful river," he continued. "It may not be as long as the Mississippi but more water passes down it to the ocean. Who can tell the names of the countries it flows through?" A half-dozen children held up their hands just as if they were in school. "What is it?" asked the conductor. "The Amazon!" they shouted. "That's right. Now all aboard!" a few minutes later he told them that they were passing through Peru. "What are those men cutting?" asked Marietta. "It looks as if they were gathering fishing rods and fish traps," the fairy explained. "Those rods are filled with sweet sap. They're crushed by machinery. The rods are held in tanks and pressed in a process that changes them into sugar." "Look at that beautiful lake!" exclaimed Marietta. "That's Lake Titicaca. It is the highest lake in the world." "What a pretty name," said Marietta. "And now we are in Bolivia," said the fairy. "You see those men getting down into the mines? They are going to get tin. You can see piles of tin ore lying there." "It doesn't look like tin," said Charles. "That is because it is mixed with something else. It is shipped from here to England and there machinery is used to separate the tin from the silver metal and from the rock." The train was now running over mountains and they saw the ocean again. "We are looking at the Pacific," said the conductor. "And that is where the waves are washing in on us. It is the longest country in the world. It is a very narrow strip, but it is the longest of any of the great continents. They passed a city that was surround right is the man who has made a profession of faith and then come back to the world. "The sham of life in the church is what hurts the Christian world, needs red blooded workers, not shirkers." Dr. Friar advised those looking for an easy job to do something besides try to follow in the footsteps of Christ. The Christian life is a struggle, but one that pays in the end. The church members, who rent property for saloons and immoral purposes were scored severely. Dr. Friar never letting any opportunity to strike a blow at the saloon and kindred evils escape. The response to the invitation given was most gratifying, about four score of men and women professing to a desire for the better life. "We are entering Brazil," said the conductor. "This is the largest country in South America and is nearly as large as the United States," he claimed Marietta. "Why, some of them are as large as my two hands. Look at that one. It is a deep purple." "And this one," said Marietta pointing to a brilliant creature that had flown into the car, "is crimson with black stripes." "Here's another with perfectly white wings fringed with gold," said Marietta. "And real orchids are growing on the forest," shouted another child. "Brazil is the home of orchids," said the conductor. "Now tell me what you see," he added as the train stopped again. "Men picking berries from little trees," said Marietta. "And their's such funny trees." "Those are coffee berries," explained the fairy. "They are taken from here and dried, then they are poured into sacks and shipped on steamers to the United States and other places. Brazil grows more coffee than does any country in the world." A few minutes later the conductor pointed to some water that was very dark and muddy. "Notice, children," he said, "how different in color it is from the ocean. That is where the Amazon river empties into the Atlantic. All those boats you see are loaded with rubber and they will soon sail for the United States. Now we must be going home," and he pulled the bell cord. Again the children found themselves in the dining room. "Did you have a pleasant trip?" asked mother when she had kissed them. "Perfectly splendid," said Marietta. Then she added, "Mother, can we have coffee for dinner?" "Yes, if you wish it. But why?" "Because we saw it grow," said the little girl. "If we ever go again," said Charles, "we must ask the fairies to take us where the tea comes from."

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS IDEALLY LOCATED

By popular election in September, 1881, the University of Texas was located in Austin. The wisdom of this selection becomes increasingly apparent as the years go on. Three regions typical of a vast extent of the state lie contiguous to Austin: (1) the picturesque hills of the Edwards Plateau to the west, a typical ranching country; (2) the rolling prairie to the north and east, a sample of the great blackland cotton belt of Texas; (3) to the south the Colorado river bottom, a region of large plantations, reminiscent of the earliest settlements of Texas, when colonists sought the rich bottom lands, and similar to the very productive sections on the Brazos, the Trinity, and other smaller rivers. It is particularly fitting that the State University, the head of the public school system of the state, where thousands of students, rich and poor, from every portion of the state come early for instruction, should be located in a section that sums up in itself such a vast extent of the commonwealth which it serves.

The above photograph was taken a few miles above the University boat-house on Lake Austin, where the magnificent lake, thirty-five miles long; and over a mile wide in places, invites the hardy young Texans to wholesome outdoor sports when the drill of class and laboratory instruction for the week is ended.

TO RULE HONDURAS

Dr. Alberto Membreno, minister from Honduras, in Washington, has been designated as first vice-president of Honduras to serve as chief executive of that country pending the election of a new president January 31, 1916.

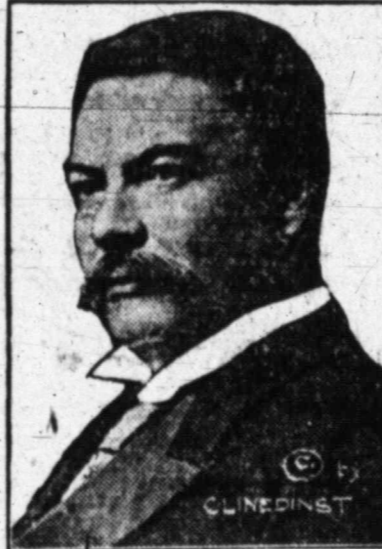

Dr. Francisco Bertrand, the present constitutional president of the republic of Honduras, decided in obedience to the will of the people to retire from office next July 31, six months before the expiration of his presidential term, to enable himself to become a candidate for the succeeding period.

The Honduran constitution prevents the re-election of a president unless he retires six months before his term ends.

The Honduran congress found it necessary to elect a vice-president to succeed Doctor Bertrand, and Doctor Membreno was unanimously elected "primer designado," and accepted.

He will leave Washington late in the spring. Doctor Membreno was born in Honduras fifty-four years ago, and received his early education at Tegucigalpa, the capital, and at Guatemala city. Later he had conferred upon him by the University of Honduras the degree of doctor of laws, was appointed as a judge, and subsequently was selected as professor of law and procedure in the university sustained by the government.

The elevation of Doctor Membreno to the presidency of Honduras is regarded with distinct approval by officials of the state department and the various Latin-American diplomats accredited near this government, particularly those of Central America, who see in him not only a man of great talent and learning, but one of moderation and respect for the law. He is not only a distinguished lawyer and diplomat, but also a noted amateur botanist, and has written several interesting papers on certain phases of plant life in the tropics and in the north temperate zone.

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS DOMESTIC SCIENCE LABORATORY; FUTURE HOUSEWIVES LEARNING FOOD VALUES

Statisticians estimate that $9,000,000,000.00 is spent annually in the United States to satisfy the primary wants of man; food, shelter, clothing. Women spend three-fourths of this vast sum. Is it not the part of wisdom for the state to see to it that they are equipped to spend this money judiciously? To teach the future housewives of Texas this important art is being attempted with splendid success by the University of Texas, at Austin, through its department of domestic economy. Girls are here afforded scientific instruction in all that pertains to home-making. The student is taught to judge textiles properly, the elements of dress-making, home decoration, the value of home-furnishings, food values, cooking, and so on. In short, girls are given a thorough course in the science and art of home-making.

"STAR—A Good Thing To Pass Along"

Men Who Chew Are Men Who DO

LOOK at Woolworth's, New York, the world's tallest building. Each of its fifty-one stories was a "job" that required clear thinking, accurate action—the highest mental and physical powers. And the majority of the men engaged in the work were tobacco chewers.

Wherever buildings are being erected you'll find men chewing and boosting STAR, the great American tobacco.

STAR makes their thinking easier, their labor lighter and their leisure moments more pleasant.

You'll like the thick, tasty STAR plug that gives the utmost in mellow chewing satisfaction. You'll find each bite as good as the one before; you'll find that a STAR plug won't dry out like a thin plug and you'll like the honest weight—each plug a full 16 ounce pound, all the time.

So many men who "do" are men who chew STAR that one day's output would build a STAR plug as high as the Woolworth Building and 23 feet broad.

GOOD TEETH ESSENTIAL TO GOOD HEALTH

According to the United States public health service there will be a falling off in the sale of store teeth in the future, and plates and toothless gums will be seen less frequently than formerly. This is due to the epoch making discovery of the cause and method of treating what is known to the scientist as pyorrhea dentalis and alveolar, and to the layman as Riggs' disease. This is a suppuration around the roots of the teeth and causes an inflammation which produces loosening and loss of the teeth. At one time or another practically everybody has Riggs' disease. It is caused by a minute single celled animal called the endamoeba buccalis. This malevolent parasite does its work in combination with the pus producing bacteria or germs. The skillful teamwork between these two deadly agents destroys the delicate membrane which surrounds the roots of the teeth and causes them to fall out.

The necessity of good teeth in order to have good health has been recognized a long time, but the scientists of our country have only recently worked out the relationship between decay of the teeth and Riggs' disease on the one hand and rheumatism, serious heart disease and high blood pressure on the other. So firm have these facts been proven that the modern up to date physician begins the treatment of such diseases by an inquiry into the condition of the teeth and their sockets. If these are found to be diseased, the condition is cured before the treatment goes further. The discovery of the cause of Riggs' disease is, therefore, of the very greatest importance.

Just as soon as the cause of Riggs' disease was found out, the search for the cure began in earnest. It had been previously discovered that the use of ipecac would cure the diseases which are caused by infection of the intestine with endamoebae. From this it was deduced that a similar treatment would cause the destruction of endamoebae in the mouth. This was found to be the case and emetin, the form of the drug used, is now administered by physicians for the cure and prevention of the disease. It sometimes takes a considerable time to get rid of all of the malignant germs in this way but the results

THOROUGH INVESTIGATION OF PENITENTIARY AFFAIRS

By Associated Press.
Austin, Texas, June 16.—What the members of the committee declared would be a "thorough investigation" and not an "attempt to whitewash" is being conducted here by a special committee of five state senators, appointed at the recent special session. The committee was instructed to learn why, if true, the penitentiary system is being operated at a loss of nearly $1,000,000 per year, and is expected to recommend radical legislation designed to put the system on a self-sustaining basis. The committee has sixty days in which to complete its work and is to report to the next session of the legislature, a special one expected to be called during the coming winter. There was some delay in the committee starting its work, the state comptroller general declining to approve warrants for the committee's expenses. The attorney general, however, ruled that the money for the committee could legally come from the legislative contingent expense fund and the comptroller general then approved the warrants.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE

And Be Free From Her Troubles, but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering, from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without pulling at something to help me, and stayed in bed most of the time. I could not do my household work."

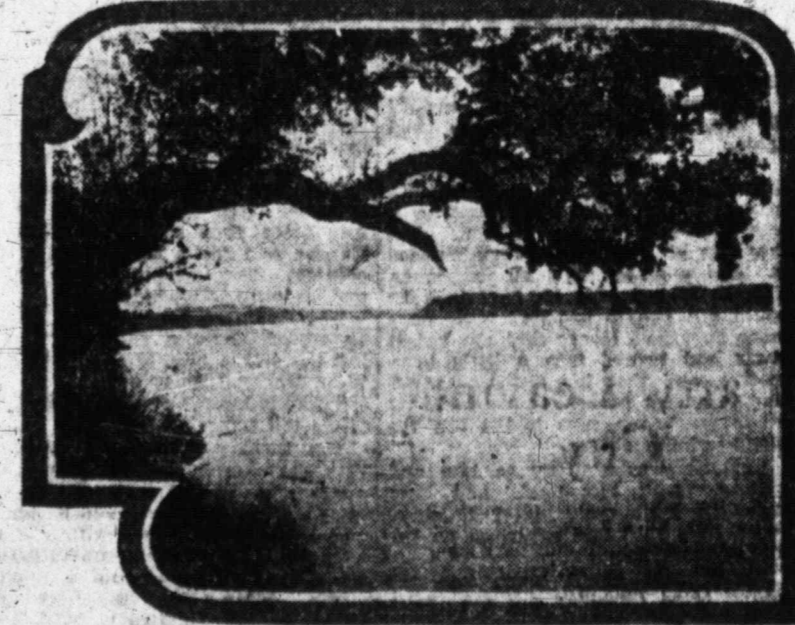

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim, and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally, I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles."

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts with nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen the worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all drug stores.

Write to: Chattanooga Medicine Co., Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga, Tenn. For full instructions on your case and 64-page booklet, "Woman's Friend," Cardui, in plain English.

A VISTA FROM LAKE AUSTIN

From University of Texas property, on south shore.

The completion of the gigantic dam across the Colorado River near Austin, supplies the one thing needed to make ideal the location of the State's greatest institution of learning, the University of Texas. The lake runs back winding among the evergreen hills of Edward's Plateau for 35 miles, offering students who are disposed to take their recreation out-of-doors, such wholesome sports as rowing, fishing, motor-boating, swimming, sailing and so on. A large part of the land bordering the lake near Austin is owned by the University, and the students have erected a boat-house at a convenient place where their canoes, rowing and motor-boats are kept at a nominal charge.

THE STORY OF DAMON AND PYTHIAS

Based upon the scenario of the mammoth photo-play production, spectacular, stirring, gripping are its scenes, laid in Greece in the pomp and glory of her greatest day, with its colossal grouping, classic dances, the thrill of the chariot race, battles upon sea and land, cities built and cities destroyed and through all this, with a dramatic fire and touch of sentiment runs the story of human friendship and its lesson of man's humanity to man.
