

FRY CASE GIVEN TO JURY AT 3:25 P. M. SATURDAY

NO VERDICT HAS YET BEEN REACHED

MEMBERS OF JURY LAST NIGHT SENT OUT FOR CHANGE OF CLOTHING

JURYMEN GO TO BED EARLY

Reported that Trial of Other Cases May Be Continued Until the September Term

The fate of E. W. Fry, under indictment for forgery, is now with the jury. The argument ended at 3:25 Saturday afternoon and up to a late hour last night there was no indication of a verdict. On the contrary, with an unconfirmed report that the jurors stood eight to four for acquittal, there was evidence of a long drawn out session. Late Saturday the jury sent out for changes of clothing and asked that arrangements be made for them to have baths this morning.

Judge Fry was tried on one of 50 indictments charging him with forgery and passing of forged instruments, the case having been on trial since Wednesday. The argument was completed early Saturday afternoon, and after court and attorneys had waited nearly two hours, word came from the jury room that supper was the next thing on the program.

The presentation of the case to the jury was marked by both bitterness and eloquence in the arguments of the attorneys. A large crowd heard the speeches, although the gathering did not compare in size with that which heard the arguments in the murder cases last April. Judge John C. Kay opened for the prosecution Friday afternoon, being followed by Fred Arnold for the defense. Saturday morning Judge Scurry for the defense, Leslie Humphrey for the state, Judge Taylor for the defense and Judge Martin for the state were the order of speaking.

Mrs. Fry argued by her husband during the argument and was visibly affected by some of the remarks of the attorneys. It was announced that the next of the 48 remaining cases against Fry would be taken up probably Wednesday of this week, but last night it was reported that the attorneys on both sides had reached an agreement for a continuance to September, provided this was accepted by Judge Nicholson. Although the matter had not been brought formally before Judge Nicholson he said that such an arrangement would be satisfactory to him provided that the attorneys on both sides agreed to it.

Judge Nicholson's charge, which was given to the jury early Friday afternoon, was the usual charge covering forgery cases, with a special charge on circumstantial evidence and another relating to the purposes of the jury. Judge Nicholson said that the one upon which the indictment was based were introduced in evidence. The defense submitted a number of other special charges which were refused by Judge Nicholson. The first to speak was Judge John C. Kay, opening for the prosecution. He referred in his early remarks to the high position which Judge Fry had held and to his standing in the community when he was indicted. "There's a wide spread conviction, gentlemen of the jury," said Judge Kay, "that you can't put that kind of a man in the penitentiary."

The defense at once took exception to this remark, and the jury was instructed to consider it. Continuing, Judge Kay said that the laws were not framed to reach only the poor and the ignorant. He dwelt with emphasis upon the fact that the defendant was a man of high position and that he did not believe that the hand-writing which Judge Fry, as a county official, had no business handling the checks at all, he said, and he mentioned the many warrants and checks involved in the proceedings against Judge Fry. Judge Kay spoke at length upon the failure to locate 46 of the men to whom checks were issued and said that the defense never had the idea "that there were any such humans in existence."

Misplaced Confidence. Four of the men to whom checks were issued had testified, said Judge Kay, that they never saw them, and he said it was little wonder, under such circumstances, that the defense rested its case without putting on any witnesses, but decided to use "the same weapon that samson used against the Philistines—jawbone." The first checks were small ones, but the amounts grew steadily larger as the practice continued, the attorney said, and every circumstance pointed to Judge Fry's guilt. It required no courage nor manhood to perform such acts, said the speaker, such as was needed by a man who was holding up a train, but the defendant had taken advantage of the confidence which the county treasurer had reposed in him. Judge Kay spoke of his long friendship for the defendant and said he regretted that it had become his duty to prosecute him. He said that when the jury looked upon the tears of Mrs. Fry, who had given way to her feelings several times during his argument, they must consider that it was not the law, not the jury and not the prosecutors that brought those tears, but the act of the defendant. "The law is helpless except in the house of its friends," said Judge Kay, "and it is in the jury room that the law most often breaks down."

Fred Arnold's Argument. The first speaker for the defense was Fred Arnold, a young attorney of Graham, who addressed the jury for about 25 minutes Friday afternoon. He said he could join with Judge Kay in asking the jury to do their full duty as citizens and that while there was no testimony offered by the defense upon which he could argue, it seemed to him, from Judge Kay's address, that the prosecution might have been without testimony also.

Taking up the matter of reasonable doubt, Mr. Arnold said that the fact that there could easily be more than one J. M. Watson was sufficient to raise a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors. He referred at some length to the "self-accused expert" and reviewed the testimony showing how unlike the signatures were. "There was evidence to raise doubts in the minds of the jurors," said the speaker. As much evidence existed against Cusenberry and Padgett as against Judge Fry, said Arnold, and he cited the fact that these men, familiar as they were with Judge Fry's hand-writing, testified that the signatures did not appear to be by him. It was the state's duty to explain the signatures, he said, not the defendant's, and he showed how he got the money on the Watson checks.

Upon circumstantial evidence such as had been presented, said the attorney, it was the state's duty to show guilt clearly, and he contended that this had not been done. Judge Scurry Speaks. When court convened Saturday morning, Judge Scurry was the first speaker for the defense. He began by saying that to ask for a conviction, the state must show either that Judge Fry forged the Watson check or that he passed it after it had been forged, and this proof must be, he said, beyond a reasonable doubt. The jury could not convict upon the kind of testimony that had been presented, said Judge Scurry, with the fact being that Judge Scurry, with the fact being that another J. M. Watson in the county's employ. He said that Judge Kay, in his argument, had denounced the defendant in terms not justified, Judge Fry, far from being rich, had not received money to pay his lawyers, the speaker declared.

Judge Scurry said there was nothing strange about being unable to locate, out of the number of men employed on road gangs in this case, in 1913, the man who wanted in this case. He referred at some length to the expert testimony on the hand-writing. It was often the case, he said, that transient laborers could not be located in a county after their work was finished. The search for these men had been made by the sheriff of the county from which the case had to be transferred in order that the defendant could get a fair trial. Judge Martin interrupted at this point to serve notice that Judge Scurry had referred to the record on this question, he would consider himself privileged to discuss it also.

Referring to Judge Kay's remark about his friendship for the defendant, Judge Scurry said that no money could hire him to prosecute a man who was his friend. Judge Fry, he said, had been hounded by officials, in spite of his good reputation and official record. He discussed the testimony of Tax Assessor Groves, that he did not believe that the hand-writing which Judge Fry, as a county official, had no business handling the checks at all, he said, and he mentioned the many warrants and checks involved in the proceedings against Judge Fry. Judge Kay spoke at length upon the failure to locate 46 of the men to whom checks were issued and said that the defense never had the idea "that there were any such humans in existence."

District Attorney Speaks. The next speaker was District Attorney Leslie Humphrey, who, answering Judge Scurry, said that in what ever position Judge Fry now found himself, it was the result of his own actions. He considered Judge Kay's speech a fair one and said there came a time when a man, by his conduct, forfeited the friendship of those who had stood by him. A considerable part of Mr. Humphrey's argument dealt with the testimony given by the hand-writing expert, and he went over this in detail with the jury. Discussing the differences in the hand-writing, he said that it was not reasonable to suppose that a man who was forging an instrument would attempt to disguise his hand-writing to some extent. He emphasized the fact that only four of the men whose names appeared on the checks had been found, and said that others had disappeared, leaving no trace. The motion for continuance based upon this disappearance, he said, was a play for time.

Mr. Humphrey read Judge Fry's motion for continuance, signed and sworn to by the defendant himself. Judge Taylor objected, saying this could not be considered as testimony because Judge Fry had merely signed an instrument prepared by his lawyers. This objection was overruled. This motion for continuance, as read by Mr. Humphrey, indicated that Judge Fry expected to prove by the missing men that they authorized him to sign their names. Mr. Humphrey closed with an appeal to the jury for conviction.

Protests Against Efforts by Certain Elements to Make War Out of Territorial Conquest. By Associated Press. Berlin, June 26.—The managing committee of the Social Democratic party in Germany has caused to be published in the Vorwaerts a full page appeal for peace. This document calls for peace under certain circumstances which will make possible friendship with neighboring nations, and it set forth the opposition of the party to territorial conquests and annexations. "The people want peace," it declares, "and the government is called upon in the name of humanity to enter peace negotiations."

The appeal was published under the heading "Social Democracy and Peace." It begins with a reference to the fact that Socialists forswore the ending of the war, they worked mainly for an international understanding but when war did come they placed themselves at the disposal of the Fatherland. It then refers to the declaration of the party made in the Reichstag on August 4, 1914, which said: "We demand as soon as safety has been secured and our opponents are inclined to peace that the war be brought to an end through a peace which will make possible friendships with neighboring nations."

The appeal closes with these words: "The managing committee of the Social Democratic party always has been opposed to a policy of conquest and annexation, we raise now our sharpest protest against every effort and every proclamation the purpose of which is the annexation of foreign territory and the oppression of other nations efforts and proclamations which have become public in Germany through the demand of great economic newspapers as well as through the exposition of leading non-Socialist politicians. Even the recital of such efforts serves further to postpone that peace which is warmly desired by the whole nation."

"The people want peace. If this war, which daily demands new sacrifices, is not drawn to a close, it will tend to endure until the full exhaustion of all the nations in it, one of the participating powers must offer the hand of peace. Germany, who, attacked by greatly superior forces, has so far victoriously defended herself against all her enemies, brought their starvation plans to naught and demonstrated that she is unconquerable should take the first step to bring about the peace. In the name of Kultur and supported by the favorable military situation brought about by the bravery of our comrades in arms, we demand of the government that it make known its readiness to enter peace negotiations in order to put an end to this bloody conflict. We expect our Socialist comrades in other belligerent lands to exert their influence on their own government in this same sense."

Hisses and Cheers Greet Governor Slaton When He Appears at New Governor's Inauguration.

By Associated Press. Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—At a luncheon given this afternoon by the Rotary Club of Macon, in honor of Georgia's new governor, N. T. Harris, inaugurated today, John M. Slaton, the retiring governor, referred to the case of Leo M. Frank, his action in which evoked against a hostile demonstration against him. "An honest man may disagree with an honest man," said the former governor, "but we realize that we must be measured by our conscience. Two thousand years ago another governor washed his hands of a case and turned over a Jew to a mob. For 2,000 years that governor's name has been accused. If today another Jew were lying in his grave because I had failed to do my duty I would all through life find his blood on my hands and would consider myself an assassin through cowardice."

Governor Slaton indicated that he intended going away next week for an extended vacation. No reference to the Frank case was made by Governor Harris in the speech of thanks he made to his fellow citizens in Macon. He expressed hope, however, that "we will have no more trouble."

During the inauguration ceremony at the capitol there were several tense moments. When Governor Slaton approached the governor to deliver into

GERMAN RUSH IS STOPPED

TASK OF FORCING RUSSIANS BACK GROWING MORE FORMIDABLE DAY BY DAY.

BOTH LOSE HEAVILY

Reports of German Activity in Poland Indicate Another Drive Planned at Warsaw.

By Associated Press. London, June 26.—The battle of the Dniester which will decide the fate of the left wing of the Russian army in Galicia sways back and forth along the banks of the river, so far without decisive results. The Russians have thrown considerable reinforcements into this area but whether they are making a serious offensive or merely fighting stubbornly prefrontary to another retreat is uncertain.

Both sides have lost heavily. Gen. Von Linsingen's right flank and center having been badly cut up when the Russians threw the Austro-Germans back across the river. The Russians have been fortifying their line from the river to the Russian frontier and with the Austro-German line of communication lengthening daily the task of forcing the Russians eastward becomes more and more formidable although Berlin claims that the Teutonic allies have been forging ahead between the Dniester and the district they occupied east of Lemberg. The advance lacks the characteristic of an impetuous rush so notable in former stages of the Galician campaign.

Reports of German activity in Russian Poland come at the same time as reports that many big guns from Essen, Germany, are being shipped into that region possibly in preparation for another drive at Warsaw. Pronounced German successes seemingly have occurred not far from the east Prussian border. The Germans claim the capture by storm of a Russian position north of Przanys and the Russians admitting a reverse there through superior artillery fires.

Neither French nor German statements indicate preparations of any moment in the west. The French admit lack of progress due in many cases, it is declared to a storm ravaged territory on the fighting front, while the Germans set forth the repulses of all French attacks and the regaining of some trenches previously lost.

The German socialists are again active for the cause of peace, according to dispatches from Germany and the prominent paper Vorwaerts has been rebuked for publishing their peace appeal by indefinite suspension. Recruiting in England seems to have been temporarily forgotten since the high tension of the campaign for munition workers.

CARRANZA FORCE ADVANCING TO TAKE CAPITAL MEETS WITH SEVERE DEFEAT.

HUERTA IS BEING WATCHED

His Adherents Reported Gathering at the Border and Are Believed to be Planning Coup.

By Associated Press. Washington, June 26.—Official news of a severe defeat of the Carranza force commanding on Mexico City was only revealed in interest today by an announcement from both the Carranza and Villa agencies that many Huerta adherents, former military commanders and legislators, were en route to El Paso, presumably to start a new military movement. The Villa agency announcement, communicated to the state department, said it had a report, which however, was not positive that Victoriano Huerta was in the party. General Huerta's secretary in New York denied the former dictator was on his way to the border. General Huerta left New York for the west last Wednesday and it was reported he was bound for San Francisco.

The Carranza agency, in a statement, charged that General Felipe Angeles, Villa's chief lieutenant now in the United States, came to set the new movement afoot. The Carranza and Villa agencies have agreed on their public announcement, probably never before since they were established. The fact that both agreed that a new movement was afoot in Mexican affairs was regarded as more than usually significant.

Enrique Lorente, confidential agent in Washington of General Villa, also announced a confidential agency was advised today that the Carranzas army under General Obregon was repulsed at Uenusual, south of Aguax Calientes.

RUSSIANS SUCCESSFULLY HOLD DNEISTER LINE.

By Associated Press. Petrograd, June 26.—The Russians are continuing successfully to hold their line along the Dniester. After a six days' battle the Austro-Germans have been defeated at Kozara and Hudzny, southwest of Hallez. At Martinova (Martynoffstany) a similar attempt to gain a foothold on the Russian side of the river failed. The grand Duke Nicholas' troops captured forty officers and 1700 men.

At Kosmierzine the Austrians were repulsed June 22 and June 23, and having previously been defeated at Sniavitz, were driven across the Dniester fighting a rear guard battle and losing heavily. The reverses have caused great confidence in the vicinity of Kosmierzine and a new and stubbornly contested battle is being imminent. A German army attempting to cooperate in this region is defending the Lemberg-Drzewany railroad, but is being opposed stubbornly.

AWAIT GERMAN REPLY.

Developments are expected, however, as soon as the German note arrives in the next two weeks. It is thought certain in diplomatic quarters here that Germany will take advantage of the invitation of the United States to submit suggestions for a modus operandi to the allies whereby submarine warfare might be abandoned. If the so-called blockade were dropped and restrictions removed the shipment of foodstuffs. This would require consideration in connection with any note which the United States may be ready to send to the allies on the subject of the blockade. Before the note is sent, however, it is considered possible the statement of the American importers will be transmitted to Ambassador Page for presentation to the British foreign office in order that Great Britain may appreciate the growing unrest of American merchants. The importers' petition follows the argument by the United States in its previous note to Great Britain, but points out in addition that the so-called blockade since Sweden can trade freely with Germany. The test of the validity of a blockade is its effectiveness and the importers declare the citizens of the United States should have the same rights as those of Sweden.

A baseball which antedates the Pittsburgh one by five years is, or was, until recently, in the possession of P. M. Wilhite of Emporia, Kas. This sphere was used in what is claimed to be the first championship game ever played in this country. It figured in the contest between the Tri-Mountain club of Boston and the Portland, Me., team in a game played September 9, 1857.

The previous non-stop record in competition was 305 miles. Twenty-one cars started and eight dropped out in the course of the grind. J. Cooper, the last of the ten drivers to finish was but 25 minutes and four seconds behind the victor. A remarkable feature of the race was its freedom from injury to drivers or spectators.

ATTEMPT TO INTIMIDATE NEGROES NEAR BALLINGER.

By Associated Press. Ballinger, Tex., June 25.—Officers are in the northern portion of the county today investigating a raid made upon negroes Wednesday night, when it is alleged a mob visited the home of Thomas Puckett, a prominent farmer, and shot into the negro's house on his place. Bullets lodged in beds where the negroes were sleeping and window lights in several cabins were shot out. This is said to be the third attempt to run negroes out of that section, white cap notices having been posted in the spring and last fall it is said, attempts were made to drive out negro cotton pickers.

The boxing expert of the Evening News attacks the whole system of timing at the British ringsides. The method he characterizes as "extremely unsatisfactory and unreliable from the point of view of every one concerned." He continues: "Boxing is the one grand old English sport that ought not to be endangered by pandering to the interests of the contending parties. Every boxer ought to know that when he is knocked off his feet he must get on to them within ten seconds, or lose. The limit of the ten seconds ought to be marked in only one way, and that is by the gong."

KIMURA, THE BILLY SUNDAY OF JAPAN

HIS AIM IS THE CONVERSION OF JAPAN'S SIXTY MILLION TO CHRISTIANITY.

WAS STUDENT UNDER MOODY

Associated Press Correspondent Visits Revival Meeting And Gives His Impressions

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)
Tokio, June 26.—Close by the houses of Parliament, within which members were discussing the question of China, there stood a big tent, fringed and flanked by many brightly-colored Japanese banners. Through the flaps came the sound of a man's voice, pleasant, resonant and powerful. The voice was exhorting people to come to God and be saved.

The correspondent of the Associated Press, who was on his way to the Diet, stopped at the entrance of the tent. A little group of smiling, welcoming Japanese were there.

"Who is that man speaking?" was asked.
"Why, don't you know?" came the answer—"That's Kimura, the Billy Sunday of Japan."

At the same moment the notes of a Christian hymn sung in chorus filled the great tent and bursting without caused hundreds of passing people to stop, listen and inquire. They were informed that it was all part of the great Christian Evangelistic movement now under way throughout Japan, and that Seimatsu Kimura, the young revivalist of Japan, friend and student of Dwight L. Moody, was conducting the Tokyo meetings.

The picture was much the same as American revivalist meetings with the added interest by the rich-colored flowing Kimono, the black hair of the Japanese women, the occasional clatter of the wooden shoe, and the many-hued Japanese decorations.

The music ceased. Then a Japanese with regular handsome features, medium in height, rather stockily built, dressed in European clothes, stepped forward from his co-workers on the platform and began to talk in Japanese. He began quietly, but soon his voice rose and his face changed as becoming more impassioned he discoursed eagerly upon the theme of salvation. Leaning forward and shooting out a clenched fist before him, the evangelist cried to the men: "You students in Tokyo, sitting there on your Webster dictionaries, you think you are fine and mighty indeed. You think how much better you are than other people; but, I ask, have you found the love of Jesus Christ?"

Then turning to the young ladies he shouted: "You with your pretty kimonos and pretty faces—think you, perhaps, that you are saved by these things alone? Prepare yourself ere it is too late. Come into the kingdom of Jesus Christ and be saved." Then he went on hammering home truths to the different sections of his audience, gesticulating violently at times, moving nervously back and forth upon the platform, jumping up and down, crouching to his knees, and especially using his wonderful black eyes, and his expressive face to bring home the thought he was trying to communicate.

Suddenly he flung his right arm upward towards a sign which rested above the platform and read it both in Japanese and English.
"Christ for the citizens of Tokio! The citizens of Tokio, 'Christ!'"
"Harken to the words, my brothers. Harken to the words, my brothers and sisters. My aim is to convert to Christianity every one of the 60,000,000 souls in Japan today. I believe in sudden conversions. Come here now, and give me your hand as an emblem that you have accepted the faith."

A number of people walked up to the revivalist and accepted Christianity. Then there was more music and the correspondent was introduced to the Sankey of the Tokio revival movement. His name is called "Yip" Sakai, because he loves the violin and as Sankey was singer for Moody so Sakai, the player for Kimura.

SINKING OF THE LUSITANIA BLASTED GERMAN HOPES

Dr. Gerhard Reports That Sinking Of Passenger Ship Has Created A Serious Situation

By Associated Press.
Berlin, June 26.—It was learned here tonight that Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard's report to the officials charged with drafting the German answer to the American note indicated to them the serious nature of the situation. Dr. Meyer-Gerhard was sent to Berlin by the German ambassador at Washington to indicate to the government the real attitude of the American government and people. He reported that sentiment in the United States had been growing somewhat more favorable to Germany, particularly regarding the prohibition of the export of munitions of war to the allies. The sinking of the Lusitania, he said, undid all this.

Mr. Moody said: "If you ask five people you will have five different advices. There is only one being who can advise you truly and that is God. And I said to Mr. Moody at once: 'It's all decided, I'm going to the Moody Institute at Chicago.'"

Mr. Kimura was getting interested in his reminiscence and was punctuating his story with some of his expressive gestures.

"Mr. Moody looked up at me and said: 'Young man, how much money have you got?' I answered: 'Mr. Moody, I have got 35 cents.' The great evangelist looked me over with a good deal of astonishment. 'Well,' he ejaculated, 'how do you ever expect to study two years in Chicago on 35 cents?' And I said quickly: 'Mr. Moody, Philippine 4-19.'"

Mr. Kimura came back to Japan and proceeded to have six years of evangelistic work with the Japanese people. He told his friends to give him 'the most broken-down old church in Japan.' There were only thirty-five members when he started, but there were three hundred when he finished. Then he resigned to take up bigger evangelistic work and in June 1914, he went to the United States, stopping at Honolulu long enough to convert over a thousand Japanese to Christianity.

"There is one thing that I have learned from you Yankees, you Americans," declared Mr. Kimura, as a pleasant aside, "and that is your 'sticktiveness.'"

It was in Denver that Kimura first saw Billy Sunday. "It was the first time in twenty-five years that I had such an experience," he said. "I went six times in one hour on hearing him. He joined Sunday's meetings at Des Moines and during three weeks attended over fifty meetings. As a result of this year and began to take part in the great evangelistic campaign. He has been talking to big crowds and every week for the next year and a half is filled with engagements. When he preached he used a blackboard upon which he writes in Japanese or Chinese characters the texts of his sermons. This method, he said, made things much clearer to everybody. Sometimes, when his voice fails he uses a megaphone. He found that preaching two or three times a day in the vigorous manner he uses was very tiring so he goes to bed every afternoon to prepare for the evening sermon. "I try to make things as simple as possible for everybody," he said, "and I think nobody ever goes to sleep when I'm preaching. Capes, I'm after them all, everyone of the 60,000,000 people."

SONS OF TEUTONS DON'T WANT TO HEAR PEACE TALK

By Associated Press.
Chicago, June 26.—Mr. Bryan was invited to address the "Sons of Teutons" on his visit here Monday, the request being made that he discuss the British embargo on exportation of munitions. He telegraphed that he would address them on the subject of peace and the invitation was withdrawn, according to Carl Ansoorge, president of the Sons of Teutons.

JAPANESE INNS ARE QUEER

Guests Must Leave Their Footwear in the Vestibule When Going to Their Rooms.

The entrance to native inns in Japan is most always a roofed vestibule with a well-trodden earthen floor backed by a raised platform about twenty inches high, forming at once a seat and the outer extension of the first floor.

A scattered line of shoes, sandals and gets belonging to the guests usually lie along it, and at one side is a cupboard where umbrellas and foot-gear are deposited. A big drop cotton clock on the wall, a low desk, a hibachi and a pile of cushions generally complete the office equipment.

The traveler's jinkiki customarily deposits him in the vestibule, at the edge of the platform, beneath the overhang of the roof. Shouts of "O Kwaku san" (honorable visitors) apprise the masters and the maids that a guest is arriving, and all hurry forward to receive him, uttering cries of welcome and bowing glossy black heads to the floor.

As the traveler sits on the platform a servant removes his shoes and others divest him of his wraps. Shoes are seldom cleaned, and if they be wet or muddy they are left untouched. Habitual frequenters of inns often provide themselves with foot coverings to slip over shoes and thus be able to wear them to the apartment. Without them one must don the hellish slippers furnished or go to one's room unshod.—Kansas City Times.

FOND OF QUOTATION MARKS

Irish Editor Thought Them Protection Against Libel Suit and Excuse for Eccentric Style.

Judge Bodkin's book of reminiscences contains many good things. Among them is his description of one of the editors under whom he served, John B. O'Flaherty, who is said never to have read a book in his life. It was he, says the Dublin General Advertiser, who revised the reporter's copy and mercilessly mutilated the manuscript.

He had one curious delusion. He fancied that inverted commas were a protection against a libel action, and stranger still, an excuse for any eccentricities of style. On one occasion Mr. Bodkin, in describing a theatrical performance, wrote that it was "exquisitely amusing." "Old G." cocked his head critically on one side. "I don't like that word 'exquisite,'" he said. "All right, sir," I answered, "I'll strike it out."

Attorney General Looney says that he has determined to become a candidate for reelection, and will make formal announcement to that effect soon.

The German government has made prompt and emphatic denial of the charge that the commander of the Lusitania was decorated for the special act.

There is talk now that the legislature will meet again in September, and probably at that time do what it ought to have done two years ago—redistrict the State into eighteen congressional districts.

Orders for war material to be used for the slaughter of men in the European war is the source of considerable prosperity in America. In fact, they are coming so fast that our factories, though working night and day at full capacity, are unable to fill them in the time specified.

The threshers have had a steady run all the week throughout this section of the state and so far as The Times can learn the crops threshed have made a yield of from 16 to 20 bushels per acre, which is quite as good as was expected.

The Fatherland publishes figures showing that of the 208 German-American newspapers published in the United States, representing a total voting population of 2,110,355, about one-half of whom voted for Wilson in 1912, only about two per cent. would do so again, on account of the president refusing to allow war supplies to be shipped from this country to the allies.

The home of George Thorburn in Floral Heights was burglarized Thursday night while the family were out at the lake. The burglar or burglars entered the house through the light and evidently made a leisurely and thorough search of the premises. They secured a few dollars of Mr. Thorburn's, some money from a guest and several dollars belonging to a servant girl. The family returning from the lake found the lights burning and the house ransacked.

LOCKER CLUB LAW IS HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL
By Associated Press.
Memphis, Tenn., June 26.—Tennessee's new Locker Club law prohibiting storage of liquors for individual use in social and fraternal clubs was held unconstitutional in a decision handed down here today by Judge Jesse Edgington in the criminal court. The law became effective June 1 last, the state supreme court is expected to pass upon the case at its September term.

EIGHTY TWO NEW LAWS IN EFFECT THIS MONTH

(Fort Worth Record)
Eighty-two general acts of the Thirty-fourth legislature in regular session become laws of Texas and effective as statutes this month. These are the acts of general importance that because of the failure to pass both houses by a two-thirds vote were carried over ninety days after adjournment. Aside from these general acts, there are nineteen of local importance that also became effective, making a total of 101 acts of the entire number of 156 acts passed at that session.

Although the compulsory attendance law becomes effective, there is a provision in the law itself stipulating Sept. 1, 1916. Other educational measures require the teaching of agriculture in summer normal schools and in farmers' institutes; providing for the printing of text-books for schools in Texas; increasing the scholastic age from 6-15 to 6-17 years, inclusive.

One law that becomes effective prohibits betting on elections in the state under a penalty of fine upon conviction of from $100 to $1,000 and confinement of from twenty to sixty days in the county jail, or both fine and imprisonment. Another law that is of importance allows corporations to contribute to Chambers of Commerce, bona fide Commercial Clubs and associations.

A bill becomes effective which makes it compulsory for restaurants, boarding houses, hotels, etc., to sterilize their dishes, utensils, etc., in boiling water.

Other laws which became effective are:
Requiring fire escapes on all buildings over two stories in height used as schools, dormitory, lodging houses, factory, wholesale or retail department store in any place where five or more persons may be assembled. Residences exempted. Penalty $50 to $200 fine.
Preventing railroads from changing location of roundhouses, general offices, machine shops, without the consent of the railroad commission.
Defining loan brokers, providing they shall give bond, record all transactions, pay annual tax of $60, etc.
Placing the general management and control of public free schools in common school districts in the hands of five trustees.
Empowering county commissioners to provide for county parks.
Woman's fifty-hour hour law.
Preventing obstruction of highways, crossing of streets at railroad crossings for more than five minutes.
Providing for fish ladders where any obstruction is placed across any regular flowing stream.
Requiring section foremen and hands on railroads to take description of animals found dead along railroads.
Authorizing consolidation of electric light, gas, steam, water or street railway companies upon consent of people of city, given voice in election. Providing for taking appeal in criminal cases by giving notice in open courts.

Making it possible to prosecute for theft of auto by imprisonment in the county jail not less than six months or more than one year.
Providing for printing of text-books for schools in Texas.
Providing that tax collectors shall mail notices of delinquent taxes to owners of real estate, and providing for perfecting records of the various counties and making penalties.
Extending power of state inspector of a masonry to public works in counties, municipalities, cities and other political subdivisions.

STATE TRYING TO FIND EVELYN NISBET THAW.
By Associated Press.
New York, June 26.—In the lull today in the court proceedings to determine the sanity of Harry K. Thaw, it became known that the state is trying to find Evelyn Nisbet Thaw, to place her on the witness stand. The process server sought her throughout the city but was unable to find her. William T. Jerome may be another witness for the state. He is not connected with the present proceedings.

FURTHER DECLINE IN NEW ORLEANS MARKET
New York, June 26.—There was a further decline in the cotton market today, prices closing at a net loss of nine points. Liverpool was lower than due and the local market opened at a decline of six to nine points under liquidation and scattering local pressure. Covering by near month shorts caused slight rallies at the close but last prices were at practically the low point of the day on later deliveries.

CLAIMS OF BOND HOLDERS REFERRED FOR EXAMINATION
By Associated Press.
St. Louis, June 26.—Claims of bond holders to the Cape Girardeau and Northern railroad against the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad were referred back to a special master for examination today by circuit Judge Sanborn sitting in the federal court. The claims arose out of the failure of the Frisco to pay interest on first mortgage loans of the Cape Girardeau line, aggregating $1,275,000.

"Most of the Best for the Least" "On the Busy Corner"

THE SECRET CLAUSE

By GEORGE MUNSON.

John had been compelled to leave college after his first year, on account of his father's death. His mother's small annuity was barely sufficient to support her. It was necessary for John to give up his ambition of becoming a physician—for the present, at least—and look for a position.

He had answered an advertisement and had been invited to call. The world looked very cheerful as he surveyed it from his strap in the elevated train.

He was in the way of becoming a business man. John smiled. And the girl to whom he had given up his seat could not help smiling too. It was not a flirtatious smile—just a happy one, because John's happiness infected her, as everyone else who looked at the well-groomed young fellow clinging to the strap as the car lurched and swung round the bend.

In the president's office nine young men were being cross-examined. John was the tenth. The president put a few prefatory questions.

"I shall write today to the man whom I consider to be best suited," he announced.

The ten young men filed out of the office. Nine of them, knowing their individual chances to be small, looked glum. John was smiling. As he was about to leave, the president called him back.

"You'll do. I like your face," he said. "Your name is Barrett. Any relation of the late Thomas Barrett of the United corporation?"

"He was my father," answered John.

"Indeed! And you are not thinking of taking control of the corporation ultimately?"

"My lawyer informed me that my father died heavily in debt," John answered. "In fact, he left my mother only a bare annuity."

"I am surprised to hear that," answered the president. "I thought—well, I am greatly astonished. Everyone thought Mr. Barrett retained the controlling interest. Come to work on Monday."

On the way out John saw the girl of the elevated. She was taking notes for the manager, pencil in hand.

Sometimes He and the Girl Had Lunch Together.

book on her knees. She nodded to John. Everyone nodded or smiled at the sight of the young fellow. Somehow he radiated good-nature.

John smiled all the way home. Ten dollars a week meant a great deal to him and his mother. He was as happy as if he had been left a millionaire.

Some men grin and a few simmer, but in six months John had worked his way up to twenty dollars and reasonable responsibilities. Sometimes he and the girl had lunch together, usually after pay day. Their companionship had come to mean a good deal to them.

Molly was not an educated girl, but she had that simplicity and charm that are the fruits of a sweet and happy nature. The first time John invited her to his mother's apartment to tea on a Sunday afternoon Mrs. Barrett knew that the die was cast.

"John, dear," she said that night, looking at him searchingly. "Is she?" She could get no further, but cried on his shoulder.

They loved with all the frankness of twenty-one. They knew that they would always mean everything to each other. John asked Molly to marry him.

She refused. And when they had talked things over John saw it in the same light.

"Your mother talks about you all the time," said the girl. "She couldn't support herself on that little income. It makes it impossible for the present, dear."

"She could live with us," John said.

Molly shook her head. She was wise enough to know the impracticability of that suggestion.

"But I shall get on with the firm. In a few years I shall be getting thirty-five," John urged.

And then Molly expounded the situation to him as impressively as if she were discussing an abstract proposition. She had steeled herself to this on that night when she had decided that she must give John up forever. And it was that uncanny coldness that engraved the truth on John's heart.

If he married her he must give up forever his hopes of becoming a doctor. It meant all John's future. It meant his mother's happiness. And she would not sacrifice John to their love.

"In five years," he urged. "Wait for me, Molly. Only wait. Promise me!"

Molly shook her head and then, her calmness deserting her, burst into passionate tears. She sobbed as if her heart was broken.

John put the situation up to a friend as an abstract proposition.

"I should advise you—I mean the man you are telling me of—to see his lawyer," he said. "It is often possible to anticipate a legacy, and if your mother's annuity does not cease with her death—the reversion would have a certain cash value at present. That is my advice. See your lawyer!"

John got cold comfort from his lawyer. "Come back in six months," was all he would say. "I'll see what I can do then."

And for six dreary months John waited. He saw Molly each day, but she passed him now with only a cold little bow. There was worse to come. One day, at the end of the six months, the president called John into his office.

"We've been hard-hit by the financial depression, Barrett," he said. "I'm sorry, but we are laying off all the men we can do without, and naturally we are keeping our oldest members."

John understood. He conjured up his last smile and left the office.

Molly had promised to meet him the following Sunday to say good-by. On the Saturday afternoon John went to his lawyer, flaming with indignation. He demanded a plain answer to the proposition he had suggested six months before.

"John," said the lawyer, placing a hand on either shoulder of the young man, "your father has been dead just a year yesterday."

"I know—," John interposed.

"John, there was a clause in his will, known to your mother but not to you. He wanted you to become a man and to gain knowledge of life. You were to leave college in the event of his death—while you were there, and take a position. If, after a year, you were, in my opinion, worthy of it, you were to receive entire control of his fortune of twelve millions."

"What!" gasped John.

"Your father was especially anxious that you should not make an unhappy marriage, John," pursued the old man. "Especially that you should not become the victim of an adventurer. He wanted you to find some sweet girl who was ignorant of your wealth. He thought that, if you did not find her within the year, at least you would obtain enough knowledge of the world—"

"Where are you going, John?"

"I'm going for her!" John shouted. "Stay here till I come back. She lives ten blocks away, and I was to have seen her tomorrow, but this is one of those situations that won't wait."

HENS PROVE POOR JUDGES

At Least, When Asked to Perform Early in Afternoon, Was Claimant's Assertion.

When Squire George H. Bartholomew of this place, with Solomon-like wisdom, suggested that two cackling hens claimed by J. F. Brendlinger of Gilbertsville, should settle it themselves whether they belonged to him or to a neighbor, he thought there would be an end to the case. Brendlinger sued Mrs. Ella Frick, seventy-two years old, to recover the "biddies," and at the hearing the woman alleged that they belonged to her daughter Ella. It was agreed that the hens should be let out of their roosting places at the Frick plant the other evening. If they went over to Brendlinger's, they established his ownership, and Mrs. Frick should pay the costs, and if they remained in the woman's place Brendlinger should settle the bill.

Squire Shankweiler of Gilbertsville acted as an umpire when the Frick chicken house was opened at 5:30 in the evening. Only nine of the twenty-nine came out, and the fowls in dispute were among those that stayed in. The twenty that came out hopped about and looked at the setting spout for a few minutes and then hopped back to roost. Brendlinger, who claims he saw his two hens in the Frick poultry house, is not satisfied, and, claiming that 5:30 was no time to make the test, will appeal to court.

Pittstown (Pa.) Dispatch to Philadelphia Record.

Her Own Version.

A little girl in Connecticut aged two and one-half years was allowed to go to church Christmas Sunday on condition she would not talk out loud, but could join in the singing. The first hymn happened to be, "Joy to the World," sung to "Old Antioch." She recognized the tune and felt her opportunity had come. But the only words she associated with that tune were not the words of Isaac Watts. This made no difference and the congregation was convulsed to hear a high childish voice ringing clear above the voices around her: "There was a man in our town and he was wondrous wise. He jumped into a bramble bush and scratched out both his eyes." Especially effective was the repeat of the last line when, instead of hearing "And heaven, and heaven and nature sing," they heard "And scratched, and scratched out both his eyes."

TAKING FORTY WINKS

By DOROTHY BLACKMORE.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

She descended the stone steps leading from the house in which she had a miniature home. Delphine Brewster waked on a morning newspaper, and her work kept her away from home until late. Tonight she had absently-mindedly left her key inside the apartment, and did not realize that she had done it until now.

At daylight she could get a locksmith to open the door for her, but it was nearly six hours until she could expect to approach such a convenience. The spring night air was chilly and Delphine did not entertain with much joy the prospect of walking about the streets all night.

"If I had a laprobe I could make myself comfortable in a park, but I should freeze myself into pneumonia without one," she considered as she passed one of the neat but now lonely squares of the neighborhood.

Whenever she saw anyone approaching she immediately began to walk briskly as if with a purpose, and kept up this gait until the passerby was well out of earshot.

At four o'clock she felt as if she could walk no longer, and in spite of the fear of cold she sat down on a bench in Franklin square. Not another soul was in sight. She almost wished it were one of the big New York parks, where she would at least have the society of other vagrants.

"Vagrants? I never expected to be a vagrant. Why—I might even be arrested. Then I'd lose my precious position and my career would be gone. Father would never let me go away from home again if he knew of this."

In the midst of those soliloquies, she saw an automobile dash around the corner of the square and stop before a house on the opposite side of the square and in which she had already noticed many lights.

A young woman jumped out first and ran up the steps to the house. The man stopped to throw a robe carefully over the engine of the car, and as he passed under the now illuminated archway of the door she saw that he carried a bag.

"It must be a doctor—and there is illness," Delphine decided.

She was nearly stiff with cold by now and began to walk again. She crossed the small square and passed the house in front of which the automobile stood. She stopped for a moment and looked into the warm, cozy-looking car.

"Why not?" she asked herself suddenly, stealing a quick glance at the house. I would be gone by the time he returned. I—I can't resist it!" she almost whispered, she was so cold and miserable.

It was all she could do to keep from crying as she felt the soft comfort of the leather cushion and tucked the rug about her. Every minute she told herself that she would get out and proceed on her lonely way, but every minute brought her further comfort and she could see no sign of anyone coming from within.

At last Delphine slept; she slept in a strange automobile on a city street at 4:30 o'clock in the morning. She had been too utterly weary to resist the call of sleep.

When she awoke an hour and a half later it was to look into the anxious eyes of Dr. Baldwin Gray. He was bending over her. She was not sure that he had not shaken her; she recalled having been dreaming that someone was trying to waken her.

"Oh!" she said, sitting erect. She took in long drafts of fresh morning air and rubbed her eyes.

"You slept," said the man. Delphine nodded. Then she looked closely at him. "Why—it's Doctor Gray," she cried. "How—how strange!"

"Remember you have the advantage over me in that you know my name. You did not give me your name the first and only time I saw you—when you came to my office to have a finger treated."

"I'm Delphine Brewster," explained the girl. "And I'll be getting out. Wasn't someone with you when you drove up?" she asked, looking about.

"A nurse—she's inside. A new baby happened to arrive while we were there, and the nurse has remained to take care of it," the doctor told Delphine.

"What a night!" said Delphine half to herself.

After that the doctor asked for explanations and received them in full while he drove Delphine to a locksmith and helped her into her apartment.

"Can I ever repay you, Doctor Gray?" she asked as she stood in the now open door.

"You'll repay me if you will let me know you, Miss Brewster. I'll ask my mother to call on you since you are alone," the doctor said, seriously.

"And you'll come with her?" the girl asked naively.

Doctor Gray laughingly nodded. "More often than you'll want me to come—I'll come."

But it proved to be not too often to please Delphine. She had had her adventure and her romance was beginning.

If you wait until making your last will and testament in the matter of distributing charity you will never have any fun over it.

BULGARIAN ARMY BETTER PREPARED THAN EVER

By Associated Press. Sofia, June 26.—The Bulgarian army is now far better prepared for war than it was for the Balkan war of 1912. It comprises four divisions of 120,000 men ready for action, with another ten divisions of 300,000 men of first class reserves, who could be mobilized in a few days. If necessary should arise, this force could be more than doubled.

Bulgaria's entry into the war as the foe of Turkey would relieve pressure on the Allies to the south. Adrianople, which the Bulgarians were forced to hand back to the Turks after the last Balkan struggle, has been denuded of its arms for use in the Dardanelles campaign. This ought easily to fall to the Bulgarians, who could then cross down to Rodosto on the sea of Marmora. This would cut Constantinople off from Keshan, where the Turks have concentrated their forces for the operations on the Gallipoli peninsula. At least, the Turks would be reduced to communication by sea.

Bulgaria no longer demands Saloniki. Her claims are small compared with those of the other Balkan nations, being confined to the really Bulgarian portion of Macedonia with Kavalla and its natural outlets on the Aegean Sea.

GERARD DELIVERS NOTE ON SINKING OF FRYE

By Associated Press. Berlin, June 26.—Ambassador James W. Gerard today called at the German foreign office and presented the American note regarding the American ship William F. Frye, sunk by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich in the Pacific. The note finds the German condition for delay in the payment of compensation until the case is passed upon by a prize court to be unconvincing and asks that payment be made now.

EVELYN IN CAMP NEAR MALONE, NEW YORK.

By Associated Press. Malone, N. Y., June 26.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is with her son in a summer camp at Chateaugay Lake near this place.

New Orleans, June 26.—In spite of bullish week-end figures and too much rain in the belt, cotton stood at the decline throughout the session today, closing within a point of the lowest at a net decline of four to six points. Support was almost wholly from covering shorts. Little fresh buying being apparent. Liverpool was considerably lower than due which opened the market at the decline.

Two industries are absolutely benefitted. There has never been a time in the history of the country when farming and stock raising was so profitable as it is today and it will be for years to come. The SATISFACTION

You get for the money you pay—a tailor does not depend on the building he is in, what his name is, or the amount of warm atmosphere he peddles. You get your satisfaction from the way the suit looks, hangs and fits. Amateur cleaners and pressers make a suit look as though you had cleaned it in a rain and pressed it by sleeping with it on. Our work is guaranteed to please you. We make suits that fit. We have laid the tape on every different shape of human being from the animated bean pole to the living tub who is wider than he is tall.

Whereas, an All Wise Providence in His wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst Sovereign G. W. Johnston and translate him to the Camp Universal, and

Whereas, during the time Sovereign Johnston walked among men his character and conduct were such that he commanded the respect of all and set an example worthy to be emulated, and

Whereas, as a member of Wichita Camp No. 456 of the Woodmen of the World he was a shining member and was at all times faithful in the discharge of every duty imposed upon him and with singleness of purpose was ever vigilant in promoting the interest of his Camp and administering to the wants of those in need of succor or counsel, and

Whereas, this Camp has sustained an inestimable loss in the death of our Brother Johnston, and Whereas, the family of our departed brother has lost an unusually kind and affectionate husband and father and one who carried them in every thought,

Therefore, be it resolved by Wichita Camp No. 456 of the Woodmen of the World that we tender to the bereaved family of our departed brother who so nobly exemplified the teachings of our illustrious order our tenderest sympathy in this sad ordeal and further resolved as a Camp to endeavor to attain that degree of perfection sought by our departed brother and further that a copy of the resolutions be furnished to the family of Sovereign Johnston, a copy be given to the press and also a copy be spread upon the minutes of this camp.

Witness this the 26th day of June, A. D. 1915.

GERMANS MARVELOUSLY SKILLFUL WITH GUNS

British Headquarters, France.—It is almost impossible to exaggerate the importance of the German strength in machine guns, which they use with the greatest skill and courage. They had a stock of 50,000 on hand at the beginning of the war, and have been keeping this supply replenished constantly from their arms factories. A favorite trick is to leave a machine gun or two hidden in a cellar or similar place of concealment until the enemy's advance has swept by and then open fire on the rear. The post of the men serving the gun is of course hopeless, but they are fairly certain to sell their lives dearly, continuing to fire their gun to the last.

As an instance of the deadly swiftness of machine gun fire, it is stated that a man coming under the fire of one of these weapons and shot through the head can be struck yet ten times more in the second or two that he takes to fall to the ground.

DO YOU WANT TO KNOW WHAT THE STYLES WILL BE?

On Monday, all day, we shall have with us Mr. Wm. Gleason, factory representative of the famous Bischoff suits and coats, who will show what the styles will be for Fall and Winter. Of course, it is very early to talk about fall styles, and really we don't expect you to buy. But if you would care to see in advance what the styles will be—how long the skirts will be and how full, how the coats will be cut, what the colors and materials will be, and the thousand and one things that go to make up "style," we would be glad to have you come to our store Monday.

Just come in and spend a little time looking over the Bischoff line. We have sold these suits and coats for ten years, and while our first sight of this fall's styles will come Monday, our confidence in this well-known style-maker justifies us in anticipating a most delightful event.

Remember the exhibit will be on all day and you can drop in any time it is most convenient.

PRETTY MRS. SMITH

A diverting comedy-drama written by Oliver Morosco and Elmore Harris, is a charming story with beautiful Fritz Scheff in the title role, with a strong supporting cast, including Louis Bennison, Forest Stanley, Owen Moore and Lela Bliss. No expense has been spared to make this, the first of the Oliver-Morosco releases, a tremendous success, an elaborate display of beautiful gowns, unusual variety of scenery ranging from beautiful interiors to wild mountain locations. It will do the tired nerves good to view this picture in which the world famed prima donna and star of the legitimate stage, armed with good looks, a charming vivacious manner and unsurpassed wardrobe wins three husbands and then quietly disposes of all (if you have one you'd like to dispose of you might get a tip) only to relent in the last act and in a moment of weakness restores one of them to her favor. A very fine picture—a Paramount in name and quality.

Regardless of the Car You Buy or the Price You Pay,
Nowhere Can You Get Greater Value

More enduring than chrome vanadium steel, more wonderful than the finest workmanship, is the idea that can dominate an industry.

In this day when more Buicks are being built than ever before it is interesting to remember that the distinguishing characteristic of the Buick, the Valve-in-Head Motor, has existed as an idea for twenty-five years and been built into Buick cars for thirteen years.

From 1903 to 1907 the Buick Valve-in-Head was a two cylinder engine. From 1908 to 1914 four cylinders dominated the field and the Buick Valve-in-Head Four dominated other types. The Buick Valve-in-Head Six was first put on the market in 1913. Fours were also continued—but the Valve-in-Head Six had stirred the imagination of the car-buying public. The demand from the start outpaced the production.

1916 SIXES

EXCLUSIVELY

This demand has become so overwhelming that now—for 1916—the Four gives way to the Sixes. Two chassis, both Sixes, with roadster, touring car, coupe, sedan bodies. The Six the Valve-in-Head idea has its greatest opportunity for service.

Also since the first appearance of the Buick Six there has risen an insistent demand for smaller Buick Sixes. The Six is a natural, logical, efficient form for the Valve-in-Head type. Never before has the Valve-in-Head idea had such adequate materialization.

This year the Buick factory is arranged for Sixes exclusively. The production will be large. Demand necessitates a steady stream of Buick trains leaving the factory during the season.

And the Power, Economy, Dependability and Comfort of 1916 Buick Sixes justify this demand more than ever. Study the specifications and you'll see why.

HORSE POWER—Built regularly in 45 and 55 horse power, Six-Cylinder Valve-in-Head motor with two size chassis. WHEEL BASE—115 and 130 inches. REAR AXLES—Genuine full floating, with spiral bevel gear drive. REAR SPRINGS—Buick special cantilever. BODY—Full stream line exceptionally roomy for both passengers and driver. Quick demountable rims. UPHOLSTERING—Fine quality, genuine leather, luxuriously trimmed over curled hair and deep coil springs. Handsomely painted and finished. Blouses Are In Again

New York, June 26.—In this day of revivals, it is not surprising that blouses again find favor. Summer suits foster their popularity. Indeed, the separate waist and skirt may be as smart as the one piece frock, provided there is a silk coat to top the costume.

Paris takes special delight in turning out new surprises in sheer waists. There is no name in blouses that quite covers these transparent confections of the famous couturiers. Lingerie is too frilly, and tailored is entirely out of the question, for who would ever call a blouse tucked Swiss, or organdy by so harsh a name? They are original in contour. Strange as it may seem, coming from Paris, the source of true color, they are white, pure white; crispness, the chief charm of the garment, bespeaking loudly the midsummer they are made for.

The mystic charm of the French white wear is woven in every stitch of these waists. Style is a secondary thought. They are Frenchy, white, and made for warm weather; further scrutiny seems a sacrilege. Since they come from the great fashion center, their long sleeves, and short sleeves, graceful V-neck, soft frills and delicate insets of embroidery will be copied, modified and twisted about, again and again, in the blouses that are made on this side of the Atlantic.

Already the jabot frill, which originated in Paris, is finding favor here. One of the blouses above, made of white Swiss in true French fashion, shows this feature. It also has the famous two in one collar, which can be worn high or turned low, and the raglan sleeve, which has come to be regarded as a staple. It is rumored from the other side that drop shoulders are the next step in blouses; in view, however, of the popularity of the regulation sleeve, it will take considerable time to bring about the change. Certainly the comfort of the high shoulder in wash waists will not be relinquished readily, even if the drop shoulder style is easier to make. At the present time the set in sleeve dominates the fashion, so far as tailored blouses are concerned, except for now and then a raglan. The treatment of the neck marks the real difference in styles. Stocks and high collars were, in the early season, the ultra mode, but these have given way gradually to the broad Quaker collars, especially for the younger women. These collars come detached, to wear with any blouse or dress, in sets with cuffs to match. The shops show them in organdy and Swiss, plaid, edged, hemstitched, or with an inch-wide strip of corded organdy or figured cretonne around the edge. Whole collars of cretonne are offered, too; they are extremely attractive on the blue and pink linen blouses. The style of the waist must be plain to carry these broad collars well. Many of the new striped blouses show them. There is one model in particular, a broad awning stripe which has been shown from one end of the town to the other, none in the same material, but nevertheless always having the same general appearance, for all of these waists are cut absolutely plain. Sometimes the material is linen, again mull and even crepe; but the stripes are ever the broad green, blue, pink or black and the collar and cuffs always the same Quaker style of sheer transparent organdy.

This craze for stripes grows more pronounced as the season advances. Not only are the wide awning stripes popular, but the narrow blazer and candy stripes are featured, too, in crepe de Chine and cotton crepes. There is an especially attractive crepe de Chine on the market with satin stripes. This is made up mostly in the plain tailored blouses with the two in one stock collars. Pongees are also used in this type of waist, as well as white, and baby flesh pink crepe de Chine, Georgette crepes, and deeper rose and solid blue linens. One military blouse is shown in pongee with strapped pocket, low in front. This waist has a green collar of black silk, with flaring points of white organdy. It is a stunning model for a pongee coat suit especially when worn with one of the new white kid belts striped with black patent leather. The roar of the cannon is echoed in other waists of the season. Rose and blue linen are used to carry out the effect. Either the waist is made of rose linen, with the collar and cuffs faced with blue or vice versa, with brass buttons down the front.

None of these waists touch the verge of the chiffon, net or lace blouse. Not even the French waist of white can take their place, for the dress waist must necessarily blend in with the color of the skirt to make a complete costume. When the coat is removed at the restaurant, theatre, or church, many of the new blouses give the costume the appearance of a one piece dress. In chiffon models, black embroidered in silver, brown and blue predominate, as in the suits themselves, while the nets and laces are white, or gold, over flesh colored chiffon. These are usually combined with silk or satin.

The upper illustration is one of the very newest blouses of this type, showing the use of satin in a bodice effect under the net. The short sleeves are the flowing style, with the circular cuff, used so much where a dressy effect is desired. Some of the extreme models show low necks, with short sleeves; but like Mrs. Vernon Castle and her monkey, despite predictions, few will follow thefad. Blouse styles, seek the more natural course. Where the neck is really low, the sleeve is short; and with the V-neck and high collars, long sleeves are worn. Gloves, however, are invariably short, both with the short and long sleeves. Very ornate styles are favored; the lace must being worn with the sheerest waists. White kid gloves are also quaint; often they are worn with a band of black velvet at the top. Already this idea of the black band at the top of the glove is being carried out in the glove itself. Some of the stores have in their fall stock, white gloves with black and colored bands at the top and the fourchettes between the fingers match this trimming. Heavy embroidered bars on the back are another feature. Judging from this first showing, fall will be a season of fancy gloves, even as spring was a season of fancy shoes.

TIME TO ACT

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit By Wichita Falls People's Experience. Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are frequent symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but generally return with greater intensity. Don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills and keep up their use until the desired results are obtained. Good work in Wichita Falls proves the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. M. A. Smith, 1401 Scott Ave., Wichita Falls, says: "My kidneys bothered me pretty badly, some time ago, after I had had a bad cold. I had a constant ache across my kidneys and I couldn't bear to even touch my back, as it was so sore. My sight blurred and I became very dizzy. I treated with four doctors, but none of them gave me the relief which Doan's Kidney Pills did. I used three boxes of this medicine and all these ailments left me. My kidneys have remained normal ever since."

FEDERAL MEAT INSPECTION COSTS 6 CENTS PER ANIMAL

By Associated Press. San Francisco, June 26.—The fact that the cost of federal meat inspection is less than six cents for each of the millions of animals slaughtered was brought out in a paper by Dr. George Ditewig, of the Bureau of Animal Industry, of the United States department of agriculture, presented before the annual meeting of the American Academy of Medicine here today. In citing his figures, Dr. Ditewig was trying to drive home "The Economic Importance of the Federal Inspection of Meats and Meat-food Products Destined for Commerce," which was the subject of his address.

"In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914," he said, "inspection maintained at a total of 893 establishments in 244 cities and towns in the United States. The total of animals inspected at the time of slaughter was 56,909,000, and the number of these passed on slaughter inspected was 56,473,000. The quantity of meats and products condemned on re-inspection, on account of having become tainted, rancid or otherwise wholesome, amounted to several million pounds.

"The sum appropriated by Congress for meat inspection for that year was $2,200,000, within which sum the service was maintained. In other words, the cost to the people of the United States was less than six cents for each of the 56,909,000 animals slaughtered. This charge covered the entire inspection, from the live animal to the final examination of the meats and the finished products when ready for delivery to dealers or customers."

It was, however, not only in the protection of the people from unfit food that the value of federal inspection should be found, he said, but also in the eradication of diseased herds, which cause such enormous losses on the farms.

On such a mission he pointed out that the federal inspectors were without authority to enter the several states without their consent, and as essential to the success of the project he urged the adequate exercise of state police powers. "When that time arrives," he said, "the federal meat inspection service will be found ready to provide in great volume the essential data, and in other ways contribute to the success of the undertaking."

DECATUR PAPER PAYS TRIBUTE TO "DICK" HOLLEY

(Wise County Messenger) H. D. better known to his hundreds of friends in this town and community as "Dick" Holley died at his home in Olney Thursday, June 17. The body was taken to Wichita Falls and interred by the side of the little daughter who died in 1907. Dick with his wife and child had been residing in Olney for some time. Dick Holley was a most likable fellow and he numbered his friends here by the score. He was at all times friendly and a man easily approached. He was honorable in his dealings, true to his friends, a good husband and this above all—he was one of the most devoted sons that ever laid claim to a good mother. Too many, after they reach man's estate, neglect in a measure, the mother, they seem forgetful of the trials and tribulations she confronted in rearing the son. But those who were intimately acquainted with the home life of Dick Holley can say he was one of the best sons a mother ever had.

NO APPROPRIATION TO CONTINUE HOOKWORM CAMPAIGN

By Associated Press. Austin, June 26.—The hookworm campaign which has been carried on in Texas for the past three years through the Rockefeller Foundation and sanitary commission is to end on June 30 because of the failure of the State of Texas to make any appropriation of funds for carrying on the work. This announcement was made here today by Dr. John A. Farrell, assistant director general of the Rockefeller Foundation and International Health Commission, successor to the sanitary commission. Dr. Farrell was here today and conferred with Dr. W. B. Collins, state health officer.

GREAT GOOD RESULTS FROM OPEN AIR MEETING

Church of Christ Here Strengthened As Result of Sermons Preached By Evangelist Nelson.

The open air meeting under the auspices of the Church of Christ closed Friday night at the corner of Tenth street and Scott avenue and Evangelist Nelson left Friday night for Bartlett, Texas, where he will take part in another series of meetings. As a result of the meetings the Church of Christ has been greatly strengthened in Wichita Falls. Good sized crowds attended the meetings each night and heard Rev. Nelson's exposition of the scriptures with great interest. In his closing sermon Rev. Nelson discussed infidelity. He called attention to the different kinds of infidelity—such as atheism, deism, agnosticism, etc. He showed that not only was a man an infidel who rejected the Bible as a whole, but he who disbelieves any part of it is, to that extent an infidel. He enlarged upon this point. He then showed the cause of much infidelity. The confusing religious creeds, he said, was the greatest cause. The remedy, he said, was to take the Bible alone. 1 Peter 4:11. He closed the service with a touching exhortation to the church to be faithful.

REPORTER.

WHEAT CONTINUES AT 90 CENTS A BUSHEL

Light Showers Interfere With Threshing and Hold Down Receipts in Local Markets.

Wheat continued at ninety cents a bushel yesterday less than a thousand bushels being marketed here. Oats are still selling at 30 and 32 cents a bushel.

Wheat was bringing 85 cents a bushel at Oklahoma points last week. Eighty-five cents was all that was being paid also at some Texas points, but a Decatur paper reported that 92 cents was being paid there Thursday. The light showers Friday and Saturday morning checked threshing for several hours, but it was on in full blast all over the county Saturday afternoon. Two weeks more of fair weather will see a great part of the crop in this section threshed, although some farmers are still trying to cut that which has fallen flat upon the ground. Many fields in the eastern part of Wichita and the western part of Clay counties will not be cut.

THE LAMAR AIRDOME NEW PICTURES AND VAUDEVILLE

With the usual interesting new vaudeville opening Monday night will be shown a Universal special feature, "The Corsican Brothers." Both King Baggott and Producer George Lessey are to be congratulated in equal terms on the completion of the wonderful three reel production, "The Corsican Brothers." Mr. Baggott in the modern-photoplay version of Alexander Dumas' famous novel plays the difficult dual roles of Louis Del Franchi and Fabien Del Franchi. "The Corsican Brothers" and his arduous, one dramatic critic who viewed the film in private has declared, rivals that of Mantell, Booth and Richter who enacted the roles on the legitimate stage years ago.

"THE JUGGERNAUT" GEM FEATURE FOR WEDNESDAY

Anita S. Stewart, Earle Williams and Julia Swayne Gordon are featured in "The Juggernaut" showing here at the Gem next Wednesday. The wrecking of a locomotive and three passenger cars while crossing a high trestle on which are defective railroad ties, provides the highly sensational incident which deserves and will win applause for "The Juggernaut" and the scenes leading up to the disaster arouse high suspense. There is also a live theme in the play, something unusual in stories constructed around mechanical accessories. The vital motive and the characterization, particularly that of Philip Hardin, raise "The Juggernaut" above the melodrama class to which it naturally belongs. It is directed against the greed and graft so rampant in railroad properties run as stock jobbing propositions rather than in the public interest.

The central figure is Philip Hardin, the dissipated son of an old railroad magnate. The latter's death brings some of life's sweetest rewards to Philip, including wealth and a beautiful wife. She dies and leaves him a daughter who becomes a maternal replica some twenty years later, at a time when Philip has accepted a railroad presidency as the tool of a stock manipulating syndicate. Meanwhile, growing in the legal profession to become District Attorney is John Ballard. The lives of these two men are strangely interwoven at the beginning of their active careers when they were classmates at college. Ballard assisting Philip to pass his examinations and extricating him from a man handling experience in a gambling joint. Though the rescue was made at the peril of Ballard's own life, the death of one of the gamblers, supposedly at his hands, puts a weapon in the hands of Philip in case he clashes with his friend.

There is nothing heroic about Philip; he is very human; he accepts the wealth his father earned and the lovely girl his friend gave up as two of the prime essentials of happiness on earth. He loves his wife while she lives, and loves his daughter after the mother's death. He would even be scrupulous in business in response to District Attorney Ballard's personal pleading, but he is dominated by the Wall Street clique, and he reneges in favor of the clique at a time when public opinion runs high against the deadly economy of his road. He menaces the attorney with exposure of his supposed crime only to have his daughter reveal to Ballard that no such crime was committed.

The end is tragedy. A train bearing Philip's daughter is wrecked in consequence of his business policy, and he dies of heart failure in sight of the wreck. Ballard is also on hand and he attempts the rescue of Philip's daughter, but she expires, and the attorney's closing act is to lay the girl, beautiful in death, by the side of her erring father—an artistic conclusion.

A PROBLEM PRESENTED AT EMPRESS MONDAY

What would you do if you married a missionary, went out to Africa with him, tired of the life and came home? Having received news that your husband was dead, promptly proceeded to marry another man with the same last name.

With this husband you attempt love in a cottage and finding he is not a good rovider you threaten to sue him for non-support. He disappears, leaving a note of farewell pinned to his coat, which is discovered at the edge of the sad sea waves.

Having thus disposed of No. 2, you fall in love again, this time with a wealthy clubman; athletically inclined, but of a jealous nature, and No. 3 threatens to sue for divorce, after having left you to your own devices. Now, suppose all three husbands should reappear at one time, do you think that you would really be a bigamist and what do you think you would do? This is the situation in which Fritz Scheff finds herself in the title role of "Pretty Mrs. Smith." The best method of solving this problem is to see for yourself how she does it. BETTY NANSEN TO PLAY AT THE MAJESTIC

Betty Nansen, the famous star of "The Celebrated Scandal" is to be featured at the Majestic Tuesday in

"Anna Karenina" one of Count Leo Tolstol's famous novels picturized. The story in brief is as follows:

Alexis Karenina, secretary of state to all the Russias, is married to Anna, a creature of impulse, warm, passionate and beautiful. Alexis, on the other hand, is a pillar of society. Cold, correct and a model of statesmanship. Judging from his frigid exterior one would never dream that deep in his soul slumbers a mighty love for his beautiful wife. The couple have one child; whom they both equally idolize. In fact, it is only when with his son that Alexis allows his stern nature to relax.

One day Prince Wronsky, a handsome and dashing young cavalry officer, enters into their lives. From the first there is a mutual attraction between Wronsky, who is unscrupulous as he is attractive, and the neglected Anna. Their friendship rapidly ripens into love. Alexis, cold and dignified on the surface as ever, yet suspects and suffers tortures of jealousy without unsealing his lips. He waits and watches.

Then the crash comes. In a tremendous scene, the husband at last unlatches the flood gates of his soul and heaping denunciation upon the woman who has betrayed him, drives her and her lover from his house forever. But the child he retains. Anna and Wronsky at first are happy together. But a revulsion of feeling soon sets in. Wronsky finally abandons Anna. Too late, she realizes that no matter how she may suffer, woman may not defy the law.

By a supreme effort she decides to seek her husband and implore his forgiveness. But Alexis is unrelenting. Sternly he orders her away. Prayers, persuasion, pleading on her hands and knees, avail nothing. The wretched woman creeps broken heartedly away from the house that now holds all that is dear to her. The bitterest remorse gnawing at her heart, she hides from the world, like a stricken animal. Finally, driven to desperation by her misfortunes and sufferings the miserable Anna decides to end it all. Through a blinding snowstorm she makes her way to the railroad station. In the distance there is the screech of an approaching locomotive. The glare of its headlight penetrates the storm and gleams on Anna's white, desperate face. The thunder of wheels grows louder, and a woman's scream mingles with it. Anna leaps outward from the platform.

Later in death, she is admitted to the home of the suffering Alexis, who alone with his dead at last, gives vent to the pent up passion of his life.

MAN'S EYE KNOCKED OUT IN SALOON YESTERDAY

Leroy Allen, Harvest Hand, Hit With Glass By Man Who Made His Escape.

Leroy Allen, a harvest hand, was attacked by a person whose identity the police have been unable to learn in a saloon on Indiana avenue Saturday afternoon and his right eye was so badly injured that it will be removed today. According to the statement of a negro porter in the saloon, Allen was struck with a lemonade glass. His eyeball was burst. The man who hit him walked out the back door of the saloon and got away. Efforts to locate him have failed. The affair was reported to Policeman McIver who took Allen to the city hall where Dr. Mark Moore made an examination of his injuries and after a consultation it was decided to operate to remove the injured eye today. Allen says he is 26 years old and that he had been working in the harvest fields in this section. He has no home or no relatives and says that he has been working at various Oklahoma points for several years, not staying any place long enough to call it his home. He is without funds. Allen is being cared for at the city jail in the absence of a better place available for him.

LOSS OF ITALIAN TRADE A BLOW TO GERMANY.

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)
 Berlin.—German business circles are not particularly concerned about the war with Italy, trade with that country having already fallen off sharply before it threw in its fortunes with the Entente Powers. In 1913 Germany's imports from Italy amounted to $75,000,000, and its exports thereto $35,000,000, but the recent volume of the trade movement was much less than these figures. Italy has been taking, since the war began, more of German iron and steel than previously, but the German market and those of Scandinavian countries are now keeping the iron works so busy that the cessation of Italian orders is not expected to influence the existing upward tendency of prices. Besides these goods Germany's exports to Italy distribute themselves over a great variety of wares, very few of which exceeded $1,000,000 in value; coal to the amount of $2,500,000 and woolen goods and leather each to nearly $3,000,000.

WHEAT OPENED AT 85 CENTS AT GRANDFIELD

(Grandfield, Enterprise)
 Threshing began in the Grandfield country Monday and by the last of the week every machine in the Big Pasture will be running full time. The wheat is turning out much better than was expected, on account of the prolonged rains, the damage only averaging about ten per cent including the crops that were hulled out and completely ruined. The first load of 1915 wheat was brought to Grandfield Tuesday and was sold to the Wichita Mill & Elevator Company by C. S. Tant, who has about 125 acres south of town. C. W. Atchey also brought in his first threshing Tuesday and Wednesday. The wheat is testing 60 and 61 pounds to the bushel, which is a fine test. The new wheat brought in is bringing 85 cents per bushel. By the last of the week the streets will be full of wheat wagons from daylight until dark and the Grandfield farmers will be flush with long green and filthy lucre.

The Wichita State Bank. The Guaranty Fund Bank.

SOLICITS YOUR BUSINESS AND OFFERS SAFETY FIRST. SAFETY FIRST is our principle and the GUARANTY FUND LAW your protection. It means that your money deposited in this bank is absolutely safeguarded. It is one of the best things we have to offer together with COURTEOUS TREATMENT and every accommodation consistent with conservative banking. Below is a newspaper clipping showing how this GUARANTY FUND LAW WORKS and how you are protected. We will soon be the only bank in town operating under this Guaranty Fund Law. Newspaper comment: The Wichita Daily Times says: A few days ago there was a bank failure at Amarillo. It was a state guarantee bank, however, and the depositors will not lose one cent. The state guaranty fund has in it $961,000 and the closing of the Amarillo bank will take from it the sum of $39,000 with which to pay the protected depositors. The more we see of this law the better we like it. Every depositor who trusts his hard-earned money to a bank should be protected to the limit, and that is what has been done in every instance where a bank operating under this law has failed or closed its doors. And the El Paso Times says: According to a statement made by Receiver Arnold, depositors of the defunct Arizona Bank and Trust Company will receive 75 per cent when its affairs are finally wound up. The first dividend of 50 per cent will be paid on May 4, it is said. The patrons of the Texas bank will get their money promptly. The patrons of the Arizona bank will only get 75 per cent and will have to wait for that.

DENIED THAT HUERTA HAS BOUGHT TICKET TO EL PASO

By Associated Press. New York, June 26.—General Victoriano Huerta, who left New York Wednesday afternoon is not going to El Paso, according to A. Z. Ratner, his confidential business associate here. It was stated early in the week that General Huerta was on his way to the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

BIG TRACTION MERGER IS TO BE MADE SOON

Southern, Texas, Strickland and Other Properties Are to Be Consolidated.

By Associated Press. Dallas, Texas, June 26.—The Times-Herald says today: "It became known Saturday morning that it was the intention and generally accepted as the project of the Southern Traction Company and the Texas Traction Company known as the Strickland-Goodwin traction interests to consolidate under the new interests a consolidation law passed by the recent legislature. This consolidation will take place when financial conditions are such as will allow it, presumably within the next few months. The consolidation will be effected by means of placing the securities of the two companies into one company with a big bond increase to cover the cost of improvements and extensions, tremendous in their nature."

JAPANESE OFFICERS COMMIT HARI KARI

Two Fighting With Russian Army at Lemberg End Their Lives Rather Than Surrender.

By Associated Press. Tokyo, June 26.—Major Nakajima and Captain Iizumi, Japanese officers fighting with the Russian army at Lemberg committed hara kari when the Galician capital fell rather than suffer what they considered the dishonor of being made prisoners of war, according to official advices received at Petrograd.

Hara kari is the Japanese method of committing suicide. In the days of old officers killed themselves by throwing themselves on their swords when it seemed probable that they would have to surrender their army.

BIG TWO DAYS FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION HERE

GRAND JURY RECOMMENDS THAT LAW BE FOLLOWED

Change in Method of Paying Laborers Engaged in Road Work for County Probable.

If the commissioners court adopts the recommendation of the grand jury which recessed last week, no warrants will be issued hereafter until the accounts have been allowed by the court and an order issued for their payment. For convenience and to obtain the necessary labor it has been the custom in road work for the commissioner in payment for labor in his district to give workmen slips which they could assign to a bank which would cash them and in turn at the following session of the commissioners' court orders would be passed for warrants for the amounts of the slips. This method has been followed in order to obtain labor as it would be very difficult to find men who would be willing to wait until the commissioners' court met for their pay. The matter has been up several times in the commissioners' court but no way out of the irregularity has presented itself. In view of the grand jury recommendation now, however, it is expected that the procedure outlined in the state statutes will be followed to the letter.
