

DALLAS MAN ATTEMPTS TO BLOW UP CAPITOL AND SHOOTS J. P. MORGAN, JR.

DALLAS EDUCATOR SHOOTS FINANCIER

SHOTS FIRED AT MORGAN'S HOME WHERE BRITISH AMBASSADOR WAS GUEST.

WOUNDS MAY NOT BE FATAL

Would-Be Assassin, Who is of German Descent Believed Insane Over War in Europe.

By Associated Press. Glencove, N. Y., July 3.—Frank Holt, former Cornell University instructor and well known in educational circles in Texas and Oklahoma, attempted to assassinate J. P. Morgan at East Isle, Mr. Morgan's summer home, near here today.

He confessed tonight he was the man who set the bomb which exploded in the United States capitol at Washington last night. Mr. Morgan, the victim of the bullets which Holt fired today was said by specialists at his bedside to be resting well tonight. No vital organ, the physicians announce, has been involved in his injury. The physicians, however, declined to state the exact location of Mr. Morgan's wounds.

Holt, by his confession and the detailed description of the bomb he used in the capitol outrage, stamped himself as an expert in the use of explosives, the police assert. Immediately after his confession was obtained, the chief of the Washington police, a squad of secret service operatives and New York City detectives and Bertillon and fingerprint experts were summoned to Glencove.

The belief prevailed that Holt had been connected with other bomb outrages which have baffled the police notably the finding recently of a bomb on the ground of Andrew Carnegie's Fifth avenue residence in New York City. Detectives prepared to ply Holt with questions all night if necessary.

Thomas Tunney, captain of the bomb and anarchist squad of detectives of the New York police department and William E. Luyster the justice of the peace before whom Holt was arraigned today, obtained the confession.

An authoritative statement of the shooting was obtained here late today after many conflicting reports had been circulated. The statement is as follows: Holt called at the Morgan home at 9 o'clock while Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were at breakfast with Sir Cecil Spring Rice, British ambassador to the United States and over night guest at the Morgan home. Fisk, the butler, answered Holt's ring. Holt handed the butler his card, telling him to inform Mr. Morgan it was from a friend.

The butler started back through the hall way Holt slipped a pistol from his pocket and pressed it against the butler's stomach. "See this gun?" he demanded. "I have another one." The butler backed into the hallway. Holt following.

As the front door closed behind them the butler realized the determination of the visitor and spoke in a low voice so that Mr. Morgan might hear. "Mr. Morgan in the library." Holt was not diverted by this, but continued to press the butler backward down the hallway toward the dining room. As they neared the dining room door, the butler spoke again.

"Butler Shouted Warning." "Upstairs, Mr. Morgan, upstairs," he shouted. Alarmed by the shout Mr. Morgan and his wife left the dining room by another door, entered the rear hall way and went upstairs. They found nothing amiss there, and started back, using the front stairway. Unwittingly they walked into the assassin's arms. Mrs. Morgan saw him first, screamed and drew back. Holt turned and fired twice before Mr. Morgan could seize him.

"Man proposes, God disposes. Don't come here until you get my letter. Be strong."

Holt telegraphs wife.

With a pencil borrowed from the newspaper man, Holt addressed a telegram to his wife at 101 Marsalis St., Dallas, Tex.

The telegram said: "Man proposes, God disposes. Don't come here until you get my letter. Be strong."

No Vital Organ Touched By The Assassins Bullet

By Associated Press. New York, July 3.—A statement issued by the Morgan firm shortly after seven p. m. reads: "A further examination of Mr. Morgan's wound shows that the bullet did not involve any vital organs. The condition of the patient continues excellent. (Signed) J. W. Markoe, H. M. Lyle. 6:15 p. m.

Holt Wanted Export Of War Munitions Stopped

By Associated Press. New York, July 3.—Holt made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"My home is in Dallas, Texas. I have a wife and children and am 40 years old. I was born in this country, and so were my father and mother. My ancestors were French and German. It was all mixed up. I received a degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Cornell in 1914, but before that I was an instructor in French. I was formerly an instructor in Vanderbilt University. I came to New York two weeks ago from Ithaca, and registered under my own name. About a month ago I conceived the idea to use my influence in stopping the exportation of arms, which makes you and me responsible for the murder which is going on over there. I could not go from manufactory to manufactory myself but I thought that Mr. Morgan's banking connections would render it more easy for him to accomplish this. I have not been influenced to do this by anybody else. I think that President Wilson's notes were fine, but they did not seem to do anything to stop the war."

Claims Citizenship. The prisoner, a tall, thin man of the raw boned type, was extremely reticent at first, but afterwards was persuaded to talk, although he would not say much about himself, although he claimed to be an American citizen. Court house officials said he spoke with a marked foreign accent. When asked by the officials who inspired the plot, he denied that anyone had done so.

"It came to me from on high," he declared. The man seemed to lack complete comprehension of what had happened in the Morgan home and of the effect of the shot he fired. Told that he had endangered his own life by his act because he might have killed Mr. Morgan, the prisoner said he did not mind that, as he is willing to die, as he could not stand the European war any longer. When Judge Luyster told him that his shots had wounded Mr. Morgan, the prisoner insisted this could not be so.

Shot to Frighten. "I didn't hurt him," he cried. "I shot to frighten him. I hope he isn't hurt. I shot away from him, just so he might be frightened. You can do as you wish with me. I did my duty. You do yours," he told Judge Luyster. The court house officials concluded, after the completion of their examination that the man was not a radical. Among other things the man had with him were railroad tickets to points in various parts of the country. He also had $40 in cash. Expecting to leave on July 8 and return about the end of August.

Statement to Lewister. A statement prepared by Holt addressed to William E. Lewister, who had questioned the man about the shooting says: "F. Holt, Dallas, Texas and Ithaca." The statement reads: "My motive in coming here was to try to force Mr. Morgan to use his influence with the manufacturers of munitions in the United States and with the millionaires who are financing the war loans to have an embargo put on shipments of war munitions, so as to relieve the American people from the death of thousands of our European brothers. If Germany should be able to buy munitions we would of course positively refuse to sell to her. The reason that the American people have not as yet stopped the shipments seems to be that we are getting rich off this traffic, but do we not get enough prosperity out of non-contraband shipments and would it not be better for us to make what money we can without causing the slaughter of thousands of Europeans? I am very sorry that I had to cause the Morgan family this unpleasantness, but I believe that if Mr. Morgan will put his shoulder to the wheel he could accomplish what I have endeavored to. Of course, I did not want to injure Mr. Morgan."

CONFESSES TO BOMB OUTRAGE

HOLT WAS MAN WHO ATTEMPTED TO BLOW UP NATIONAL CAPITOL BUILDING.

TELLS HOW BOMB WAS MADE

Dynamite, Sulphuric Acid and Matches Were Used—Confesses After Denying Charge.

By Associated Press. Glencove, N. Y., July 3.—Holt is the man who set the bomb that exploded in the United States capitol in Washington last night. In a statement made to Justice Luyster and Thomas Tunney, head of the bomb and anarchist squad of the New York City detective bureau, Holt confessed setting the bomb and described it in detail. As a missile of terror it was said to be unique in the annals of the New York police department.

"I made this bomb," Holt is quoted as having said in his confession, "with three sticks of dynamite, some match heads and a bottle of sulphuric acid." "Pretty stick," commented Captain Turner, "I don't see how you did it." "Well you see," Holt answered, "my eyes brightening," "I had experimented on it before. Not once, you know, but many times. I knew just what I was doing and how to do it. I really did not take any chance for all my observations have been kept up and I knew when the bomb would go off almost to the minute. In fact I waited in Washington until I heard it go off. Then I hurried away as fast as I could and caught the train for New York. I didn't have much time so I had to hurry."

"How did you make the bomb?" he was asked. "Well," he answered, "I took three sticks of dynamite and bound them together. Then I took sulphuric acid and poured it into one of the sticks. When I had cleaned it out deep enough, I put some match heads into the hole—three or more I don't know exactly how many. When the match heads were put in the hole I took a little bottle of sulphuric acid out of my pocket and put a regular cork in the neck. I turned the bottle upside down and fastened the cork in the hole in the dynamite just about the match heads. You see, I had timed the sulphuric acid in my tests before and I know just about how long it would take to eat through the cork and get to the match heads. When the acid reached the match heads it set them on fire and caused the explosion. There wasn't much guess work about it. I knew how much time I had so I hung around while the acid was eating through the cork. I pulled out my watch and said to myself it ought to be going pretty soon. And sure enough it did."

First Denied Bomb Charge. Holt's confession of the capitol outrage came fast on the heels of his denial to newspaper men of the same charge. Reporters told him the story from Washington calling his attention to the marked similarity in the language used by him in his statement today and that of the writer of the letter relating to the bomb in Washington.

"Don't you know anything about this?" "No, I don't," he answered, "I was not in Washington yesterday at all. I was in New York. I had my breakfast and luncheon at Mills Hotel at 36th street and Seventh avenue, so you see I couldn't have been in Washington."

"What were you doing all day?" "I was walking around the streets in New York making up my mind to come out here today and do my duty. That was all. I was thinking it over."

When Holt was told that the Mills Hotel clerk had not recalled seeing him there yesterday he stuck to his story.

"It does look strange, doesn't it?" "Renewed attacks by the British during the last three days near Avil Burnu and Seddul Bahr on the Gallipoli peninsula were beaten with a heavy loss. The British were driven back into their old positions."

ROME NEWSPAPER MAN TELLS OF POPE'S VISIT

Quotes Words Used by Pope Benedict When Latter Visited His Office Last Week.

By Associated Press. Paris, July 3.—An account of a visit to Pope Benedict last Monday by Ferdinand Laudet, director of the Review, Hebdomada Diarie, is published in the Figaro. While Mr. Laudet does not pretend he secured an interview—he quotes the words said to have been used by the pontiff. "When he mentioned neutrality Mr. Laudet says he was interrupted by the pope with the exclamation 'Oh, that France would understand well that this neutrality was not indifferent. I love France as I did fifteen years ago and I have remained the same.'"

"I have prayed for peace," the pontiff is quoted as saying, "having no other concern than to implore the Lord to restore tranquility. You speak to me of the cathedral at Rheims which the Germans continue to attack, but from the beginning I directed the cardinal archbishop of Cologne to ask the emperor to spare religious edifices in the future, the reply has been the best that could be done. If this promise has not been kept what can I do about it? I have done all I have been able to in this and many other things which France ignores. You ask me if I condemn in principle the atrocities committed. I condemn them sincerely. Everybody knows Germany has committed some atrocities but I can not classify reprobation as some would have it because I have not the necessary elements."

At the sound of the Angelus Pope Benedict withdrew. Mr. Laudet asserts, with the words, "On August 9, I condemn highly the martyrdom of Belgian priests and many other horrors on which the light has been thrown. I await only the occasion to convince France of my sincerity."

GENERAL HUERTA LODGED IN JAIL

FORMER PRESIDENT OF MEXICO AND SEVERAL GENERALS INCARCERATED AT EL PASO.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED

Will Be Prosecuted for Attempt to Violate Neutrality Laws—General Orozco Has Escaped.

By Associated Press. El Paso, Texas, July 3.—General Victoriano Huerta, former president of Mexico, was lodged in the county jail here late today. Incarcerated with him are Ignacio Bravo and Eduardo Caux, former Mexican federal generals, General Jose Delgado, J. Rainca and Enrique Gorostiza. Huerta had been rearrested and the other five taken to custody on federal warrants issued at San Antonio charging conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws of the United States by attempting to launch a new revolution in Mexico. Measures to procure bond of $15,000 each resulted in their imprisonment.

While being searched, Huerta handed Lieut. M. C. Shallenberger, provost marshal, a purse containing probably $30 in miscellaneous coin. "Give this to needy Mexican children," said Huerta, "you will find lots of them." "Had anyone told me a man would be locked up in the United States before a hearing I would have knocked his head off," remarked General Bravo while being searched, "but I have changed my opinion."

This formally concluded, the six men were locked up in the hot cells of the federal wing of the jail. Hearing July 12. The date on which General Huerta is under another bond of $15,000 to appear before George B. Oliver, United States commissioner, on similar charges previously filed. It was recalled that Huerta and his former general-in-chief were imprisoned within sight of Juarez where the Madero revolution against Diaz was launched and to which place Orozco retreated after his revolt had been crushed by Huerta at Bachimba in 1912. The developments of the afternoon overshadowed the discovery earlier that Gen. Pascual Orozco had escaped from his home here, where he had been under civil and military guard. Although diligent search was continued all day, no trace of Orozco was found and tonight it is generally believed he had succeeded in crossing the boundary into Mexico.

Huerta Sends Message. Just before he left his home with the officers Huerta dictated a telegram to the chief justice of the United States supreme court. The message follows: "I have the honor to inform you on the following affairs: That the representatives of the judicial department of the government in this city have without just reason, molested me and my family here. I am already under arrest here, under certain charges and have furnished bond with the local authorities. Now I have been rearrested. I respectfully ask an order from your court that your representatives here be instructed to tell me of the duties I am to perform and the conduct I must pursue in order that henceforth they may leave me and my family unmolested."

Huerta reiterated and added to this protest when he appeared before Commissioner Oliver. R. E. Crawford, assistant United States district attorney, had just asked that Huerta's bond be fixed at $100,000 and $15,000 for each of the others, when Huerta asked to be heard.

Protests Against Methods. "While I respect the laws of this country," said the former president of Mexico, "I must protest against the manner used here since I was arrested. I gave the bond demanded. Then I was guarded like a prisoner who had not given bond. The doors and windows of my house have been kept open that guards might watch me and listen to all I had to say to my friends and to my family, even Agents appeared from time to time in my house in search for those they would arrest."

Huerta's eye flashed as he turned in the direction of the deputy United States marshal and personally accused him of failure to treat with respect him or his family. "Having held high position," continued Huerta, "it is natural that I should have enemies and these are the ones who are making the trouble. I came here to visit my daughter and then go to San Francisco, but no, I am a revolutionist. I am a trouble maker. I must be arrested and my home turned into a prison. I cannot eat, cannot sleep and cannot talk without espionage. I am mortified and my family is shamed by the situation in which I am placed."

Charges Undue Vigilance. Huerta criticized Edward Bryant, deputy United States marshal, for what he termed "undue vigilance" after having given bond. "Had I not been placed in the circumstances in which I was," said Huerta, "I would have shot him."

In his speech before the commissioner, Huerta did not disclose the cause of this declaration. Late in conversation Huerta said that his son was aroused when his little son was pushed from the running board of the automobile by Bryant as they started from the house. There was emotional in his voice and a tear in his eye as Huerta said: "That is the first time I have permitted my temper to run away with me."

GERMAN MINE LAYER FORCED TO RUN AGROUND

By Associated Press. Berlin, July 3.—A statement issued by the German admiralty tonight relates to Friday's engagement in the Baltic confirms the report that the German mine-layer Albatross was forced to run aground on the coast of the island of Gotland and states that 20 of her crew were killed in the fight and 27 wounded. The Albatross ran aground in a sinking condition after two hours of heavy fighting with four Russian cruisers.

TEUTONIC ARMIES CONTINUE ADVANCE

DRIVING RUSSIANS ALONG 150 MILE FRONT AND OCCUPYING LOWLAND OF LA DUNKA.

FRENCH ACTIVE ON THE WEST

Germans Admit They Have Given Up Attempt to Hold Heigen Ridge in the Vosges.

By Associated Press. London, July 3.—The Teutonic armies continue their impetuous drive against the Russian forces along a front measuring approximately 150 miles in southern Russian Poland and Galicia. The Teutonic troops according to the German statement, have gained possession of the lowland of La Dunka in the Russian province of Lublin, despite desperate and stubborn resistance, and also have advanced in pursuit of the fleeing Russians in the Gnila Lipa section of the Galician front.

Petrograd admits the retirement across the Gnila Lipa and explains that the retrograde movement further to the north was caused by strong flanking operations of the Austro-Germans in the Tanow region making the Russian position untenable. Russian military experts profess to believe the Galician campaign now is ended.

On Western Front. Fighting in the west has been especially severe in the Aronne forest where the German crown prince commands. The French assert they have inflicted heavy losses on the Germans here. Berlin admits the Germans have given up the game on the Heigen ridge of Vosges mountains.

In the Italian theater the Italians claim slow but steady gains, though the Austro-Hungarians are augmenting their forces and counter attacks are said to be becoming more resolute. Official reports say Tolmino on the Isoszo river has been occupied by the Italians.

In the Dardanelles the Turks claim to have beaten off renewed attacks of the Anglo-French forces with heavy losses. German submarine activity has accounted for five more British steamers and one Belgian vessel aggregating 19,277 tons gross. All the crews were saved.

A Russian submarine in the Black Sea sank two Turkish steamers and a sailing ship carrying provisions and coal and later engaged and drove aground three more schooners near the mouth of the Bosphorus.

Official Russian details of the naval battle off the Swedish island of Gotland in the Baltic affirm that a German cruiser was damaged and driven aground and that the other German warships fled. Official reports of the engagement, however, identify the disabled vessel as the German mine layer Albatross and intimated that the naval action was stopped by the appearance of a large German fleet.

Military writers in Berlin declare that eight weeks from May 2, until June 27, the Germans captured 1,630 Russian officers and 520,000 men and that they also took 300 field guns and 770 machine guns.

FORMAL APPLICATION FOR EXTRADITION FILED

By Associated Press. San Antonio, Texas, July 3.—An application to the United States for formal extradition of Victoriano Huerta, Felix Diaz, Manuel Mondragon and Aureliano Blanquet was filed with Secretary of State Lansing yesterday afternoon by Eliseo Arredondo, confidential agent for Carranza. The text of the application was received here this morning by wire. It calls the attention of the American government to alleged crimes committed during the month of February, 1913, uprisings in Mexico City and lays the blame for Madero's death to the alleged combination. It then asserts that they are planning another revolution and asks that they be detained and sent back to Mexico for trial.

ONE SERVICE ONLY AT THE FRIAR TENT TODAY

Rev. Friar Will Speak on "Unpardonable Sin" Tonight—Over 100 Conversions During the Week.

There will be only one service at the Friar tent today and that will be tonight at eight o'clock. At that hour Rev. Friar will speak on the "Unpardonable Sin." Last night he delivered a talk on "Old Man Boozie" speaking from a dray at the corner of Seventh street and Indiana avenue. A crowd numbering many hundred heard him.

The attendance at his meetings have been growing during the past week and a change of sentiment toward the week there were more than 100 conversions. Mr. Friar said last night: "The issue is being forced; the line is being drawn and the people are taking sides." He said that he had received several letters urging him to continue the fight. Several have promised him financial aid.

Friday night Rev. Friar preached from the text: "Be sure your sins will find you out."

"I want to do my part in any fight," he asserted. "If I go to the dance I will help pay the fiddler."

"There is one thing," he said "you cannot do, that is to shake loose from the sin question. Like a sleuth hound out of hell that sin will find you out. There's many a man goes about respected but back in the corridors of life is a black skeleton caused by sin. Young man you are leading a double life. You can fool your sweetheart, but not God. You had better heed the red signal light of danger for some day you will have to answer before God for that sin."

"If I had the power to unmask some of the so-called society stunts in your city, some of your women and men would be run out of town before morning. Such a shame of respectability is no more potent than a tin-born gambler. Turning to the amen corner he hurl ed this at those on the benches: "You say that because you are a church member and sit in the amen corner, you are fixed, but if God finds you living in sin, hell will be your portion."

He said that it took nerve to face sin and that the cowardly man will go to hell. "Praise," he said, "is cheap public opinion, an easy thing to handle and can be bought at cheapest prices."

PUNISHED FOR INTERFERING OUTPUT OF MUNITIONS.

Glasgow.—The first case of a Glasgow workman charged with interfering with the output of munitions was dealt with severely by the local court. The workman, James Marshall, was charged with assaulting another workman because he was turning out too many shells. The court's sentence of three months at hard labor was accompanied by the following statement:

"Although you are making 22 cents an hour and have constant work, you are finding fault with a fellow-workman because he is doing his duty to his country in 10 hours of agony. This assault was committed by you to intimidate him from doing his work like a man. If this happened in Germany you would have been taken out, put up against a wall and shot. The same thing would have happened in France. I am sorry it cannot be done to you here."

as I wanted him to do the work I could not do. I hope that he will do his share anyhow. We must stop our participation in the killing of Europeans and God will take care of the rest."

When the news of the shooting of Mr. Morgan reached financial circles in New York, the question was raised as to whether the financier's activities in connection with the European war had anything to do with the motive for the attack upon him. The house of J. P. Morgan & Company was the purchasing agent of the British government for munitions and supplies bought in this country. It was only this morning that the announcement had been made in New York newspapers of details of a plan of group of bankers of which Mr. Morgan was one of the leaders, for the flotation in this country of $100,000,000 of the new British war loans. In March last, Mr. Morgan crossed the ocean on a mission which he himself did not disclose, but which was generally supposed to be the arranging of credit in this country for the powers at war with Germany.

Holt Arraigned

Late today Holt was arraigned before Justice Luyster on a charge of assault with intent of malicious killing. The prisoner was brought from the cell with a white bandage around his head through which showed a dark stain of blood from a cut on his head. He appeared to have been weakened by the loss of blood and tottered as he stood before the justice. "How do you wish to plead?" asked the justice. "I'll stay forward so far that it appeared he would fall. He threw out his arm and it circled the neck of a county detective. Another detective sprang to Holt's side and between them they supported him during the rest of the proceedings. "How do you wish to plead?" asked the justice. "Take out all that about the malicious killing," Holt replied. "It oughtn't be there." Justice Luyster informed the prisoner that the workings of the charge was according to the legal code. "Do you want a preliminary examination?" the justice asked. "I don't know what you mean," Holt replied, "but I want to object to the part that talks about malicious killing. That isn't right." The justice explained his question and again asked Holt how he pleaded. Finally Holt said he pleaded not guilty. He appeared undecided as to whether he wanted a preliminary examination. The assistant district attorney stepped forward while Holt seemed to be trying to make up his mind and told the court he would like to ask a postponement of all further proceedings until next week. HOLT OVERWORKED SAYS FATHER-IN-LAW

Dallas, Texas, July 3.—Frank Holt of 101 Marsalis street who now is believed by his wife and family here to be the man held in silence, Long Island for shooting J. P. Morgan, was described here tonight by his father-in-law, O. F. Sensabaugh as a man who had "thought deeply on the European war" and who was "opposed to all war and all strife."

"He never advocated silence, however," said Mr. Sensabaugh. "Frank was born in Wisconsin. I can't remember the name of the town. He was of German descent and was closely associated with the German element at Cornett and naturally his sympathies were with Germany, but above all he desired peace."

Mr. Sensabaugh who is presiding elder of the Dallas district of the M. E. Church, South, with headquarters here declared "that temporary insanity must have caused the deed." "Frank was overworked himself this summer preparing for his duties this fall," he said.

Mr. Holt was to become head of the romance department at the Southern Methodist University here which opens its doors for the first time this fall.

Told that New York police said Holt had confessed to getting the bomb which wrecked a room in the national capitol last night Mr. Sensabaugh exclaimed: "O, that can't be true; but I thank you for telling me."

"I begged him not to go to New York this summer," he added, "he has just overworked himself."

Mr. Holt late today received from Glen Cove the telegram which pressed her.

None of Holt's family in Dallas would receive newspaper men except dispatches today said Frank Holt Mr. Sensabaugh. Mrs. Holt and her two children, one two years old and the other eight months spent the afternoon at Mr. Sensabaugh's home where they have been residing pending the arrival of Mr. Holt.

"I can't discuss my daughter," was Mr. Sensabaugh's reply to newspaper men this afternoon when asked if Mrs. Holt had been told of the affair. Tonight, however, he said she had been told but that she would see no one.

"I will talk for her," he said. Mr. Sensabaugh tonight still expressed the hope that it might not be his son-in-law who shot Morgan.

"Frank has not answered any of my telegrams," he said, adding that the telegram to Mrs. Holt might be the work of some one else.

E. S. Holt, a well known Texas educator, also has been appointed on the Southern Methodist University faculty. Officials of the institution tonight said they hoped the two names would not be confused.

FATEFUL FOOTSTEPS

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

It was hard pulling, for the business was a petty one. The stock consisted mostly of candles, cakes and the more common and popular delicatessen commodities. However, there came from the trifling sales sufficient to keep the two children in comfort and the patient mother was content. How she longed to have them with her and how she hoped that such a consummation would soon come to pass! The echoing footsteps of passing pedestrians brought her rare dreams.

This night the dreamer aroused to a new sound. It was at the echo of a strange, unfamiliar footfall. First, there was the sliding wish of a halting foot, then a weird echoing as of an iron ferrule striking on the hard smooth concrete pavement.

Mrs. Howard leaned beyond the open doorway to observe a man pass swiftly by, despite a hindering infirmity. One lower limb was missing and he wore a wooden stump, metal shod and propelled with decided celerity. She noted that he used haste. He got past the little shop and stared excitedly in all directions. He suddenly observed her and ran up to her.

"Have you noticed a tall, thin, dark young man pass by here carrying a bundle done up in a shawl?" he shot out quickly, forcibly.

"No," replied Mrs. Howard, recalling from a sinister face set with evil eyes that seemed to glow into her very soul.

The man disturbed her—nay, more, alarmed. She closed and double-locked the front door. The rear one had been left open to insure a circulation of air. She hastened through the unlighted rear room to secure it also. As she closed it Mrs. Howard felt some wet cold substance upon its knob smeared across her hand.

"Blood!" she gasped and trembled all over. Then she carried the store lamp into the middle living apartment. It was to confront a new amazing disclosure. Upon its floor lay a man—tall, thin, dark! Across his forehead was a lurid gash. In one arm he shelteringly held a shawl-enveloped burden. She made it out to be a cherub-faced infant, slumbering peacefully.

The spectacle dumfounded her and then appealed to her deepest emotions as would a thrilling and entrancing picture. The man suggested a poetic nature. In a sense his face was beautiful. The child was like some stray cherub dropped from the skies. It was clear that the young man was insensible. He stirred and she drew back. He raised up and stared about in a dazed way. Then he shivered and covered.

The footsteps! Plainly, across the pavement in front of the store echoed the sharp clump of that metal-ended false limb. It passed, repeated, faded away in the distance.

It was just here that the wounded man discovered the woman. "Madam," he faltered, "forgive! See, I have frightened you. The intrusion—the shock—the blood—oh, forgive! Because of the little one, as you love children, protect this dear innocent child. She is pursued—by murder! She is the last of a doomed family. Madam, do not be terrified. Allow us shelter here till the scourge has passed—the dread, menacing footsteps!"

Mrs. Howard went for towels and a bowl of water. He seized her hand and kissed it fervently when she had dressed the wound. By sections his tragic story came out. He, Arlo Badein, had been the friend and companion of one Victor Ramirez. An old world vendetta pursued Ramirez and his lovely wife. The man with the false limb had located them, had murdered them. Nearly at the cost of his life Badein had saved the child.

There was but one thing to do, he told Mrs. Howard. He must remain in hiding until he could get word to the grandfather of the little orphan in Portugal. Would she shield him, pen-

THROUGH THE LINES

By WALTER JACOBS MORSE.

"Whisper!" Jan Voorst, burgomaster, leaned over, seized my ear—for he was pudgy and short-puffed himself up and myself down and murmured an ominous word. I thrilled. I started, too, and ten feet distant the beautiful lady who was performing my prospective companion for a long and dangerous journey, regarded us both with close attention, almost suspiciously.

What Jan Voorst had told me answered a question I had asked. It related to a patient, plodding pack horse, standing beside the one where "Lady Didsain" sat, superb and statuesque, in the saddle of a more mettled steed. Why I called her so was, first, because I did not know her real name; next, because when she was not secretly weeping over the great anxiety and surprise that filled her mind she was cold as ice in her manner. She suggested the lofty disdain of a person forced into an unpleasant and disturbing situation and submissive only because circumstances compelled it.

This much only I knew concerning her—she was a lady of high breeding and the daughter of an affluent American family. Separated, they had been caught in the battle zone. It might be that her parents were dead, for she had not heard from them. Stranded in the city where I myself had been halted in my art labors by the progress of the war, an acquaintance, a native college professor, had become interested in getting her past the disputed frontier.

I, too, was anxious to leave the war center of peril. I had a good friend in Belrne, the burgomaster, Voorst. In fact, he was a relative by marriage of my brother-in-law. Few and selected were those who were allowed to leave Belrne, and they practically smuggled out. Honest, helpful Jan came to me one day.

"My friend," he said, "I have secured a passport, or rather a safe conduct, through the Belgian home lines for yourself and your wife. "But I have no wife!" I exclaimed. "You must imagine that you have; then," he returned. "A friend is interested in getting a charming and deserving young lady through the lines. I have a limited influence. I have suc-

FEEL THEY HAVE GRIEVANCE

Certain Class of Swiss Who Have No Use at All for Visitors to the Country.

Swiss patricians plume themselves on being the most exclusive aristocracy in Europe. So exclusive are they, indeed, that of late years they have been reduced to associating solely with one another, for they are for the most part not rich enough to travel, and it very rarely happens, in these topsyturvy days, that anyone goes to Switzerland who has a long enough lineage to be permitted to associate with them.

Besides, they have a marked dislike of foreigners, because, as one of them was kind enough to explain, foreigners, although a source of profit to innkeepers and the like, are to them a source of positive loss.

Before the tourist took to stalking about in their midst living was cheap there, it seems, and servant maids were plentiful. Now living is terribly dear, as they count dear, and not a servant maid is to be had. Nor is that all. Although the tourist does nothing for them but step on their toes and annoy them, they must pay higher rates and taxes that he may have good roads to walk on and spiral railways in which to travel. This, at any rate, is their tale. Thus, if they soot when they meet him—and they certainly do—it is not without reason.—New York Telegraph.

SAWDUST TO PUT OUT FIRE

We are not accustomed to regard sawdust in the light of a fire extinguisher. On the contrary, most of us look upon it as fuel for the flames and would never dream of throwing it upon a fire which we were anxious to put out.

Nevertheless it is very valuable indeed in certain fire emergencies, especially in cases where little volumes of gasoline or other inflammable liquids have become ignited. The motorist in particular will be glad to know that there is perhaps nothing within reach more effective in such cases. The principle upon which sawdust works is obvious. Combustion ceases as soon as there is not enough oxygen to support it. That is the reason that one may extinguish a small fire by simply covering it with a cloth. The sawdust, indeed, works precisely in this manner. Its particles adhere so closely together that they effectually blanket the burning body upon which they are thrown, thus robbing the fire of the oxygen necessary for its support.

THROUGH THE LINES

By WALTER JACOBS MORSE.

"Whisper!" Jan Voorst, burgomaster, leaned over, seized my ear—for he was pudgy and short-puffed himself up and myself down and murmured an ominous word.

I thrilled. I started, too, and ten feet distant the beautiful lady who was performing my prospective companion for a long and dangerous journey, regarded us both with close attention, almost suspiciously.

What Jan Voorst had told me answered a question I had asked. It related to a patient, plodding pack horse, standing beside the one where "Lady Didsain" sat, superb and statuesque, in the saddle of a more mettled steed. Why I called her so was, first, because I did not know her real name; next, because when she was not secretly weeping over the great anxiety and surprise that filled her mind she was cold as ice in her manner. She suggested the lofty disdain of a person forced into an unpleasant and disturbing situation and submissive only because circumstances compelled it.

This much only I knew concerning her—she was a lady of high breeding and the daughter of an affluent American family. Separated, they had been caught in the battle zone. It might be that her parents were dead, for she had not heard from them. Stranded in the city where I myself had been halted in my art labors by the progress of the war, an acquaintance, a native college professor, had become interested in getting her past the disputed frontier.

I, too, was anxious to leave the war center of peril. I had a good friend in Belrne, the burgomaster, Voorst. In fact, he was a relative by marriage of my brother-in-law. Few and selected were those who were allowed to leave Belrne, and they practically smuggled out. Honest, helpful Jan came to me one day.

"My friend," he said, "I have secured a passport, or rather a safe conduct, through the Belgian home lines for yourself and your wife. "But I have no wife!" I exclaimed. "You must imagine that you have; then," he returned. "A friend is interested in getting a charming and deserving young lady through the lines. I have a limited influence. I have succeeded in securing a pass for "Walworth Doty and wife." It is your last chance. Within forty-eight hours access to the whole frontier will be impossible. The lady and yourself must go on horseback. You will lead a pack horse with a heavy load. It's to be delivered at the end of your journey. The fact that you are to thus act for us is the excuse for your safe conduct. You will follow to the letter the route marked out.

"But the young lady—has she a knowledge of this awkward arrangement?" "I will confess that she has reluctantly agreed to it," replied Voorst. "She is proud, angered at the treatment she has received in the war zone and half distracted with the fear that her parents have perished. I need not ask you to be courteous. Be more indulgent. She seems never to have before experienced the rigors of deprivation, nor the horrors of the scenes through which she has been forced to go."

"The restriction that I should deliver the pack horse and the heavy burden the animal carried had something mysterious about it. Now that the nature of that burden was made clear to me in one ominous, almost terrifying word, I shrank and thrilled. For a moment it dazed me. Then I said: "Very well. I will carry out your instructions to the letter."

It was dusk when we started. As Voorst bade the lady good-by, she took his hand and expressed her gratitude tearfully but with warmth. "As he waved his hand towards me with the words: "This is your guide and my friend. He is brave and a gentleman," she drew up haughtily and gave me simply a cold, formal bow. It rather nettled me, but I said simply: "I will lead the pack horse. You had better follow at, say, twenty feet."

She viewed me with a challenging stare, as though wondering at the arrangement. "It is best," spoke the burgomaster, and the approving look in eye told that he appreciated my desire to run all the risk—for risk it was.

There was a clear half-moon, and the road was broad and even the first part of the journey. I noticed my companion shiver as we diverged into more obscure bridle paths. Twice she urged up her horse and kept close to mine. I saw that the weird loneliness of our environment affrighted.

"You must fall back," I spoke definitely, but pleasantly. "But—but I fear—I am afraid!" she demurred. "It must be as I say," I insisted. "It is necessary to your safety. You will appreciate what I say when the journey is completed."

She did not understand, and bridled. She fell back, but with an offended look upon her face.

Twice up to midnight we came upon friendly encampments. My credentials passed us on. At the last place the commandant read the safe conduct: "One Walworth Doty and wife. Madam, I salute you."

She directed a flashing glance at me, as if arraigning me for an affront I met her glance steadily. That beautiful face enchanted me, but I tried to act the guide under strict discipline.

It must have been three o'clock in the morning when we reached the most difficult part of the route. Here the road ran along the edge of a cliff. I had been advised by Voorst that the enemy were likely to be prowling about. I thought of that—and of the load the pack horse carried. I increased the space between myself and my convoy. Her angry, yet anxious face presented this. I had to speak sharply to have her maintain the distance. She received it with a pout and a toss of her head. Suddenly, turning a curve in the rock-lined road, there came a quick word:

"Halt!" I made out an armed officer. He was of the enemy. Beyond him, 50 feet in a ravine, was a temporary camp. He kept a revolver and leveled at me as he grabbed out to seize the bridle of the pack horse.

The animal swerved, threw up its head, curvetted past him and broke into quite a trot. The officer turned and leveled his weapon, intent on halting the flight with a shot.

"Stop! Stop!" I shouted. "Too late!" The well-aimed bullet struck one of the packages on the back of the horse, bored into it and there was a frightful detonation. I saw the officer, struck by a huge fragment of rock, fall prone and lifeless. I saw the pack horse, blown to atoms, go over the ledge into the midst of the camp below. I heard a shriek and ran back to my charge.

"You are hurt!" I cried solicitously. "No! No! But you—" and I felt the warm blood trickling from my forehead, where a flying piece of rock had struck me. Then I hurried on her horse and my own past the motionless officer, away from the camp.

"What was it?" she shuddered, as we deviated to a broader road. "Dynamite." She started and paled. Then she insisted on binding up my wound with a lace scarf. She kept close beside me.

"And it was to shield me that you took all the risk!" she murmured. Within the hour we were safe in friendly hands. All her disdain and coldness was gone now. She seemed to look to me for help. I placed her in kindly hands.

Within two days I located her father and mother. She insisted on my taking her to them. Then that I become their guest. And thus it was that out of a great war I won a bride—no longer, however, my dear Lady Didsain! (Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

THOSE THAT ARE BORN TIRED

World Has Different Ways of Looking at Them, According to Their Station in Life.

Out of the words of some modern thinkers—those who are "born tired" may find consolation. They are the victims of a malady as incurable as birth itself.

Like many other ailments, and like certain crimes, it bears different names in different circles of society. He of low degree is the "incorrigible idler" of the police-courts, the "Weary Willy" of the comic papers.

More fortunate lotus eaters escape with an epithet: they pass for "dreamy" or "thoughtful" among their fellows—the delicious phrase "temperamental languor" was recently coined as an eminent specimen—and they acquire actual kudos instead of a "wee's hard labor" for their lounging. They are commonly great readers, long sitters in armchairs under the light of green-shaded lamps, when it is assumed that they are revolving mighty matters.

Often, indeed, they experience the exquisite pleasure of being begged to "stop working now" for their eyes or health's sake, and Melancthon himself, after days and nights of intense study, never rose from his bench more crumpled than they, for they are really tired.

The world holds no such hero as he who, thus afflicted, conquers his very nature and works. Making Ends Meet. "Here's a man who keeps a shoemaker's shop and his wife runs a dressmaking establishment." "That is what I call going to extremes."

Walt Mason on Home Patronage

Kersmith & Kickshaw deal in wax, and chinese eggs and carpet tacks. They are good sports in every way; they cough up money every day to make the town a better place in which to live and push your face. They hire a couple of clerks or more who wait on patrons in the store. Our cross-roads burg they would up-build, and see it with glad people filled. And to that end they blow their scads like truly patriotic lads. But when we need of eggs a few we send away to Timbuctoo, and when a carpet tack we wish, it's shipped from Ypsilanti, Mich. Each has the notion in his dome that things are best away from home; and so we order hods and hats and humming birds and maltese cats from strangers in some towns remote, who wouldn't know us from a goat.

We ship away our hard-earned kale, and get our fourth rate junk by mail. Say, are we seers, or are we fools? Those strangers don't support our schools, or keep the peeler on his beat, or help to pave the muddy street. They do not paint the village pump, or build a fence around the dump. If our old burg were blown away they wouldn't care a wisp of hay. Well, if we send everything away, sometime we'll have no tax to pay, because likely we will have no town—our burg will just be out and down. That don't sound very good, you say?

Starve Germany? Why There Isn't A Chance

(Charles Edward Russell in Dallas Dispatch.)
Germany isn't being starved. A great many persons in the United States and elsewhere think she is, but that is merely one of the price inclusions about the war. So far as starvation is concerned we can withhold the ready hand. Germany isn't being starved and can't be.

The food that before the war Germany was in the habit of importing wasn't imported of sheer necessity, but for convenience and profits. Germany can feed herself. If you could cut off every pound of food supplies from Germany you could not starve Germany—so long as the German farm was on the job. It grows everything necessary to sustain the German people. What it doesn't grow they can get along without.

This year the produce of the German farm probably will exceed all records. It was supposed by some persons, mostly of the type of the over- sanguine and ill-informed Briton, that so many men had gone to war that Germany would be unable this year to plant her crops; or if partly planted, there would be no labor to harvest them. That was another dream.

All the women were left at home; also the boys and the old men. In ordinary times these did about four-fifths of the farm work, so what was the difference? Also the dreaming ones forgot the prisoners of war. What was lacking otherwise when so many came around these handily supplied.

The result is an increased acreage and Germany never looked so blooming. People have turned their door yards and waste spaces into vegetable gardens. Everybody that has any land is growing something to eat—potatoes, cabbages or carrots.

The grain harvest of course is another matter. The labor usually imported from Russia will be missed a little when that time comes, but there are more than a million prisoners of war in Germany and they will get in the harvest. The cost of food has risen, that is true, about 55 per cent, but it will not rise any more. The government has attended to that. It has taken over control of the staple supplies and blocked the speculators.

Early in the winter the government issued an order that all bread must contain a certain percentage of potato flour and this was taken elsewhere to mean a shortage of wheat and a sign of impending famine. As a matter of fact, the government was only paying safely for the flour. It was determined that it should have an assured supply of bread for the soldiers, and so it conserved the wheat supply against the next harvest.

Experience has shown that under present conditions one wheat harvest will last until the next, so that there is no longer the least danger of inadequate supply.

A great many persons have asked me how a nation like Germany, with a colossal and hourly mounting debt, with no foreign commerce and little business outside of war, can finance herself and these enormous operations, costing between 7 and 8 million dollars a day.

We used to think that there could be no more wars because the cost would be prohibitive; the financiers would never lend the money to carry them on. Behold one more deception some glimmering. The financiers have nothing to do with it. Germany finances her war on paper money passing absolutely at par, backed by all the credit of all the empire, all its resources, and all its people, and as good as gold. So far as anyone can see now she can continue to finance her war in the same way indefinitely.

MERCHANTS AND CLERKS TO HOLD BASKET PICNIC

Lake Wichita Will Be Scene of Informal Gathering Tomorrow Evening at Pavilion

The merchants of this city will celebrate July Fourth tomorrow, first by remaining closed all day and second by a basket picnic at Lake Wichita late in the evening. The clerks will also participate in this function which will be entirely informal. The merchants will bring their families and the luncheon will be spread at some convenient point.

Almost without exception, local business houses will remain closed all day tomorrow. The banks will be closed and holiday hours will be observed at the postoffice, with one collection and one delivery and the general delivery and other windows open from 9 to 10 o'clock in the morning.

SERVANT PROBLEM EVEN IN HOLLAND

WITH MALE POPULATION CALLED TO COLORS WOMAN SERVANTS ARE INDEPENDENT

DUTCH SERVANT CUSTOMS

Hired By Year and Can Be Discharged Only On Quarter—Tipping a Very Common Practice

Rotterdam, Netherlands.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—For the first time in history, the Dutch housewife is today face to face with a servant problem. With 18 per cent of the male population of the country called to the colors, the girl who does not wish to be a servant can very readily find well paid work as clerk or factory hand, or in an office or even on the farm. Many are doing so, and it is now rare to see in the Dutch papers the customary form of advertisement for a place in domestic service.

Following the Dutch custom, domestic servants are employed by the year at yearly fixed wages; and in case of dissatisfaction on either side, a rupture of the contract can only take place quarterly, on the first of February, May, August or November. Notice by either party must be given at the very least three months in advance, on or before one of these dates, and runs for full three months from the next following term date. Thus, to discharge an ill-tempered or incompetent girl the day after she has come to work, requires six months' toleration of her, or the payment of six months' wages.

Wages Not High.
The wages, however, are not high, though the war and the consequent servant famine is tending to raise them. A cook ordinarily receives $160 per year with all her food and washing paid, and one cent as commission in every dollar's worth of household supplies purchased which the cook collects from the tradesmen.

A good housemaid received $80 per year, all included with the added hope of falling heir to some of her mistress's clothes. A footman or houseboy receives about $140 a year, also all food. The housewife must, in addition, pay workmen's compensation insurance.

Tipping a Custom.
The tipping system is the curse of domestic service in The Netherlands. In addition to the cook's commission, each servant, at the New Year and All Saints Day receives a golden guinea, or hundred of yearly wage or $1 on every $20.00. But these are not all, nor indeed the most important tips in a Dutch house. Every guest invited to dinner is expected to leave a florin (40 cents) with the butler on departing. All receipts from this source, as well from an equally important tax placed upon guests stopping in the house, go into a common pot under the guardianship of the butler, to be distributed at the end of the quarter, among all the servants, in the proportion of their yearly wages.

At a recent meeting of the Netherlands Association of Housewives, Miss G. M. van Oorschot, Assistant Director of the Amsterdam Municipal Labor Exchange, made a spirited and frank talk upon existing conditions in domestic service in the Netherlands. "The servant problem," said Miss van Oorschot, "is rightfully an international question which, until now, has received altogether too little serious attention. The principal trouble is that the relationship between the housewife and her domestic employee is regarded rather as a patriarchal one than as one of pure business, with social and economic aspects far outweighing the purely personal considerations." Many a girl today has left domestic service for factory or shop work solely because her personal freedom has been abridged by the terms of her employment and by the inflexibility of her employer. The smallest matters, which may seem to have no fundamental significance, are sufficient to make a girl dissatisfied. Many girls, for example, object to wearing caps as a mark of service, or to being dressed as "servants."

There is but one solution of the social difficulties presented by this problem. That is to provide for competent instruction in domestic service, and to regard those who have availed themselves of this training as skilled workers, pursuing a trade for the exercise of which there shall be as many and as definite legal guarantees as for the exercise of the bricklayers', tailors', or plumbers' trades.

The hours of labor demanded of domestic servants, their rare hours of freedom, and the tipping system in vogue here in Holland all need regulation.

MANY ENGLISHMEN HAVE INCOMES IN EXCESS OF $3,500.

London.—An analysis of government statistics made by the Fabian Society shows that in the United Kingdom there are 1,500,000 persons whose incomes exceed $3,500 a year, 4,500,000 with incomes between $800 and $3,500, and 22,220,000 who receive less than $800 annually. It is calculated that the average wage of the adult laboring man equals $6.50 a week and of the adult woman worker but $3.75 weekly. Since 1895, the purchasing power of a pound has declined to little more than half that five dollars goes no farther now than $2.95 did in Great Britain in 1895.

Out of a national annual income of eleven billion dollars, something over a billion and a half are absorbed in rent, two billion and a half go for interest and $2,750,000,000 for profits and salaries.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS APPEAL TO COMRADES EVERYWHERE.

Berlin, via Wireless to Sayville, July 1.—The governing board of the German Socialist party, in a manifesto passed by the censor yesterday, called upon the German Government "in the name of humanity and culture" to be lenient to the revolutionaries.

The German Socialists expect that their friends in other belligerent countries will take the same steps," the statement declared.

The manifesto amplifies the statement recently published in the newspaper Vorwarts.

It places the blame for failure of earlier peace efforts on the French and Belgian Socialists.

The manifesto reviews the efforts of the German Socialist leaders to prevent war and expresses regret that those efforts were "too weak to stem the tide of the world conflagration."

MOTOR CAR LINE NOW IN OPERATION TO LAWTON

Two Cars Will Be Operated Daily Between Wichita Falls and Lawton via Burk Burnett.

Wichitans who wish to visit the Medicine Park resort near Lawton, Okla., may now make the trip by automobile, a line having been established by S. F. Southerland and S. K. Reese of Burk Burnett. They will operate two cars, each making a round trip daily. A car will leave Lawton at 3 in the morning and reach here at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. A number of Wichitans visit Medicine Park every summer and quite a few Oklahomans visit Lake Wichita, so that the line is expected to prove a convenience for both sides of the river. At Lawton, connection can be made with the bus line for Medicine Park.

"It's easy enough to be pleasant
When a man has all he requires;
If his health is all right
His heart will be light
While he's riding on Diamond
Tires."
—Mr. Squeegie

A man is a good deal like a tire.
His greatness depends on the crowd he is in.
The really great man—the leader—literally has to meet all comers in the contest for public approval.
Any tire is the best tire in a crowd of inferiors.
But nowadays a tire has to be extraordinary if it is to make and hold a record for superior service and mileage economy.
It is the extraordinary quality of Diamond Tires that has given them their deserved pre-eminence.
Send for our book of letters from dealers who sold Diamond Tires in 1914.
It tells how more than 99 out of every 100 of the more than half a million Diamond Tires sold last year gave maximum service at minimum mileage cost.
It is yours for the asking.

AUTOMOBILE PARADE
MONDAY MORNING

PARADE OF MOTOR VEHICLES TO
BE FEATURE OF CELEBRA-TION OF FOURTH

PRIZES ARE BEING OFFERED

Ten Dollars For Best Decorated Car.
$5 to Agency Having Most Cars in Line

An automobile parade in which all local machines are expected to take part, will be among the feature of Wichita Falls' observance of Independence Day tomorrow. The parade will start at 10 o'clock and will go through the business district, after which the celebration at Lake Wichita will be the attraction.

Two prizes will be offered by the Chamber of Commerce, one of ten dollars for the best decorated car, and another of five dollars to the agency which has the largest number of cars of one make in the parade. In this contest two Fords will count as one automobile, this arrangement being made on account of the preponderance of Fords here. In other words if there are 25 cars of one make in the parade, there would have to be 51 Fords for the latter agency to win the prize.

Decorations Not Required. While it is hoped to have most of the cars appropriately decorated, lack of decorations need not keep any motorists out of the procession, and it is likely that a number of undecorated cars will be in line.

The cars are to meet at the city hall at 10 o'clock promptly and will be lined up on Ohio avenue. They will then encircle the business district and proceed out Tenth street. On the latter thoroughfare they will be halted for a photograph. The cars will proceed in single file unless there are too many of them to make this feasible.

Lineup of Cars. The order of different makes of cars has been established. The procession will be headed by the band, carried in four eight-cylinder Cadillac cars; then will come the fire department machines and a car containing city and Chamber of Commerce officials. The following order will then obtain:

- Cadillac.
- Buick.
- Chalmers.
- Hudson.
- Overland.
- Hupmobile.
- Electric.
- Imperial.
- Maxwell.
- Oldsmobile.
- Dodge.
- Ford.
- Miscellaneous cars.
- Motor trucks.

The cars will be assigned to their positions in the order of their arrival and promptness is requested. With more than 1300 cars registered in the county and probably 1000 of that number belonging to Wichita Falls residents, it is believed that hundreds of machines will be in line. The Cadillac agency has agreed to supply four of its new eight cylinder machines to carry the band, which will head the procession.

BECKER MAY DISCLOSE SHARERS IN HUGE GRAFT

Six Men Said to be Named in the Statement Becker Has Prepared to be Given Out.

By Associated Press. New York, July 3.—On the authority of Charles Becker's counsel, Martin T. Manton, it was said today that if Becker failed in his appeal to the United States Supreme Court he will before going to the electric chair for the murder of Herman Rosenthal make disclosures of the names of the men with whom he is alleged to have divided $100,000 in graft money collected from gamblers and keepers of illegal resorts during his career as head of the famous police-strong arm squad.

MANTON GIVEN PERMISSION TO DIVULGE THE NAMES.

By Associated Press. Albany, N. Y., July 3.—Governor Whitman, in a statement issued today, gave Martin T. Manton permission to divulge any names which Manton mentioned to him in his appeal for executive clemency for former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker. In the statement, the governor said he was "absolutely convinced" that Becker is guilty.

ODD FELLOWS TO OBSERVE THE FOURTH OF JULY

Initiatory Degree Will Be Conferred On Three Candidates and Talks Will Be Made.

Panhandle Lodge No. 341 of I. O. O. F. will observe the Fourth of July on Monday night at the hall. They are too busy to stop for other worldly pleasures, but must continue with their regular duties.

This lodge is having a remarkably good season this year in the way of applications and the conferring of degrees on new members and the attendance has been better than it has in a long time before. The initiatory degree will be conferred upon three candidates Monday night. There has hardly been a meeting night this year when one or more degrees have not been conferred on some candidate. The other degrees are expected to be conferred on the candidates in the order on which they come.

Officers are to be installed Monday night, and other features and surprises are expected to develop.

AUSTRALIA SET RECORD FOR DISTANCE EXPLOITS.

Melborne.—Australian has set a number of records for distance including the despatch of troops thousands of miles to the front line and the extraordinary exploits of the submarine AE2 in covering 20,000 miles before her loss at the Dardanelles. Hundreds of wounded Australians are also to be brought back to the Commonwealth from the hospitals at Alexandria as soon as the heat of the Red Sea has lessened. The influx will begin about next October or November, but already steps are being taken to cope with the situation. The Red Cross will bear the brunt of the burden and arrangements for money, supplies, hospital room and other necessities are being made. Many offers of private homes are forthcoming although it will be several months before the wounded men arrive.

HALTOM-FRIEDLY JEWELRY OPENED FOR BUSINESS

One of Best Known Jewelers of the Southwest Head of New Business Firm Here.

The Haltom-Friedly jewelry store on Eighth street in the building formerly occupied by the Strange-White shoe store is now open for business. The store is one of the handsomest in North Texas and it is the intention of the owners to maintain a high class store.

G. W. Haltom, the senior member of the firm is one of the best known jewelers in the Southwest, having started in the jewelry business at Bowie, more than twenty-five years ago. After establishing stores at Chickasha and Tabor, Okla., and finally opening a store at Fort Worth which is one of the biggest stores of the kind in this section of the State. After establishing the Fort Worth store Mr. Haltom associated with himself in his Bowie store with his brother-in-law, T. H. Friedly. Desiring to move the Bowie store to a more progressive city Messrs. Haltom and Friedly visited Wichita Falls a number of times and decided this was the place and several months ago they leased the room at 614 Eighth street, believing it the most desirable location for a jewelry store in the city. They purchased the fixtures of the S. Foyville store which new fixtures have been added making the store one of the finest to be found anywhere.

The new firm hopes to merit the support of the people of Wichita Falls and pledges itself to serve the people to the very best of its ability. Messrs. Haltom and Friedly bring splendid reputations as business men with them to Wichita Falls and no doubt will receive a liberal patronage from the start.

RE-INSPECTION OF TEXAS NATIONAL GUARD ORDERED

Special to The Times. Austin, Texas, July 3.—Upon his return this afternoon from Washington, Adjutant General Henry Hutchings announced that the war department had granted the request of Governor Ferguson for a reinspection of the five companies of the Texas National Guard which failed to come up to the standard when the first inspection was made by Captain Collins H. Bell, U. S. A., inspector in charge of the Guard, and which companies were to have been mustered out of service. General Hutchings said that the second inspection would be made some time during this month by Captain Bell. The five companies are: Company B, San Antonio; Company C, El Paso; Taylor, Waxahatchie and Temple. General Hutchings did not care to discuss his conference with the war department relative to the unlawful selling of old military equipment for which two former officers of the Guard are charged.

SENATE PENITENTIARY PROBE COMMISSION TAKES REST

Special to The Times. Austin, Texas, July 3.—The Senate penitentiary probe commission has about half-completed its labors and has taken a recess of ten days in order that the secretary and official stenographer may compile the statistics and data obtained while making the investigation, according to W. F. Howerton, secretary of the committee who reached here this afternoon. Mr. Howerton also reported that the committee had already made an investigation of the Huntsville and Rusk prisons and Harlem, Imperial, Clemons, Goree and Wynne state farms. The committee will be probed. It is also expected that a second visit is to be paid to Rusk. The committee will resume work within the next ten days and after concluding its investigation will compile its report and make its recommendations. This will likely be made at Huntsville so that the committee will be in close touch with the prison commission. Much new data not heretofore made public has been obtained by this committee, declares Secretary Howerton.

FOOD STUFFS BIG PART OF AMERICAN EXPORTS

In Eleven Months Up to June First, Exports of Foodstuffs Totaled $724,000,000.

By Associated Press. Washington, July 3.—How the United States is feeding the world now that European fields grow battles instead of crops, was shown today in official figures of the state department of commerce, which disclose a comparative increase of a half billion dollars worth of food exports since the war began. In the eleven months ending June 1 foodstuffs to the value of $724,000,000 went out to the world from America, an increase of $145,000,000. This great movement was a contributing factor to the record billion dollar trade balance in favor of the United States.

SIX YEAR OLD KURDISH GIRL RUSSIAN MASCOT

Trifly.—Hadshina, a wild little six year old Kurdish girl, has become the mascot of a Russian artillery regiment operating on the Persian frontier. She was left behind when the population of the Armenian village of Aiazar fled and the Russian soldiers found her, clad in a flimsy shirt, hiding in the depths of a bake oven. After she had recovered from fright under the kind treatment of her captors, the little one told through an interpreter how she had been left behind by her mother who escaped taking with her another child. Her father, she said, was a soldier and had been taken prisoner by the Russian troops.

VALVE-IN-HEAD MOTOR AND OVERHEAD CAMSHAFT First Ten Cars in Recent Indianapolis Races Were Equipped With Such Motors

Few people realize the terrific strain brought to bear upon every running part of the car that kept up the record-smashing whirlwind of velocity, ninety miles an hour for five hundred miles, was the tribute paid to de Palma's winning Mercedes by Paul Sitch, sales manager of the Chalmers Motor Company upon his return from the races at Indianapolis. "No previous test has so thoroughly demonstrated the superiority of the valve-in-head motor with the overhead cam shaft. In that one afternoon Ralph de Palma inflicted more cruel punishment upon his car than the average owner gives a motor in a whole season. He was never forced to the pits because of motor trouble. In previous years 'luck' has often been advanced as the heaviest factor directing the award of the Indianapolis speed palm. The race was particularly significant. A principle won the race, Chalmers engineers were not surprised at the announcement. I do not mean to say that they predicted necessarily, that de Palma would win; but they said that a motor equipped with a valve-in-head motor and overhead camshaft would come out victor. "Their beliefs were most convincingly vindicated. The first four cars to finish carried this type motor. Eight out of the first ten were constructed along this principle. Correct motor design, not luck, won the five hundred mile race. "False economy in the automobile world has seen its day. The buyer no longer counts minimum initial cost as the most vital essential of the car he is considering. Repair shop bills are the bogie he wants to avoid. "The simplicity and compactness of the valve-in-head motor with the overhead cam shaft mark it inevitably as the type of the future. While the Chalmers Company is the only American concern now building stock cars along these lines, I confidently predict that 75 per cent. of all manufacturers of high grade motor cars will adopt this type of motor as soon as production facilities permit."

POLICEMAN TELLS OF HARRY THAW'S DELUSIONS

By Associated Press. New York, July 2.—In the Thaw sanity trial today the state called J. M. Barrett, a policeman who was at the police station the night Harry Thaw was taken there after killing Stanford White. The witness said: "I have heard me two or three times, 'where are those little girls screaming?' I told him there were no little girls. Some women had been arrested and one was shouting. I told him they were women and he said, 'no they are not, they are little girls. I heard them screaming.' He asked me who was beating and abusing them."

NEW GAME LAWS IN EFFECT IN OKLAHOMA

By Associated Press. Oklahoma City, July 1.—The new state game laws, which limit the hunting season, somewhat compared with the previous law and which also cut down the bag limit, became effective today. There is a provision in the law under which propagation of fish and game may be undertaken and the sale of such propagated fish and game is permitted, either alive or dead to be used for food or for propagation.

Another Out-of-Pawn Diamond Sale

The Condition of times the past six or eight months has put in our loan department a great many diamonds, as well as much other jewelry. Most of the loans we made were short time, and the loan values were small in comparison to the real value of the articles. Our finances have been tested to the limit to meet the demands of our loan department, and to recuperate as far as possible, we were compelled recently to take out of pawn a large number of Diamonds. These are in rings, pins, cuff links, bar pins, la valliers, etc, and to get our money out of them quick we are going to sell them for the loan price, plus the accumulated interest. In hardly any case will the total amount to much more than half the actual value. It is not our fault, or your fault, that the condition of the times had made this sacrifice necessary, but the diamonds are here for sale, and if you ever wanted a diamond, now is the opportunity to get one at a price that will mean that you can cash it any time for more than you paid for it.

NANCE O'NEIL AT THE MAJESTIC NEXT TUESDAY

Tuesday is looked forward to as "Fox Feature Day" and next Tuesday "Princess Romanoff" will be shown with Nance O'Neil in the title role. Nance O'Neil, with her vital personality and compelling magnetism is beyond question America's most eminent emotional actress. She has been proclaimed as such by no less a master of stagecraft than David Belasco, in whose drama "The Lily" she electrified New York audiences into perfect storms of noisy enthusiasm. The enterprise of William Fox, the president of Fox Film Corporation, in securing for the screen the services of this gifted actress, was amply demonstrated in "Kreutzer Sonata," the William Fox production in which Miss O'Neil made her photoplay debut. She now appears in the wonderful character of Princess Romanoff in the William Fox feature, "Princess Romanoff" based upon Victorian Sardou's greatest play "Fedora."

All over the world, for she has played by popular demand in every civilized country on earth, Miss O'Neil's marvelous rendition of the character of "Fedora" is known and acclaimed "Princess Romanoff" as adapted for the screen by Clara S. Beranger and produced by Frank Powell, director of the William Fox successes "A Fool There Was" and "From the Valley of the Missing" is an infinitely more powerful drama in any way than the stage version of the Sardou play.

GERTRUDE MCCOY AT THE GEM THEATRE MONDAY

Gertrude McCoy, Duncan McRae and Edward McRae are featured in "Greater Than Art" an Edison feature production. A story is given.

Lavinia, preferring art to a social career, leaves for Paris to study, enrolling at the Art Academy of which Pierre Panchanteau is the head instructor. While out in the woods sketching, Lavinia sees Cora Franklin, an American girl, about to kill herself and succeeds in restraining her. A warm friendship is engendered. Lavinia sees Cora's passage to New York. At a meeting of the directors to consider keeping Lavinia at the Academy free of charge, because of her prodigious ability, Count Paul La Fleur, a director, becomes infatuated with her and persuades her to accept his help, after the directors have refused to keep her at the Academy.

In America, Cora, a model, has been posing for Guy Crosby, who has some trouble with his eyes, and is apparently dissatisfied with his work. He decides to go to Paris and is given a letter of introduction to Lavinia by Cora. In Paris, by a singular coincidence, Guy attends the Art Academy at which Lavinia is a student, and soon they become enamored of each other. Count La Fleur challenges Guy to a duel Guy receives a bad scalp wound.

His eyes much strengthened, Guy begins work on his masterpiece for which Lavinia poses. In a distant land, the Count finds the letter Lavinia wrote him before the duel and sends it to Guy. Upon receiving it, Guy, convulsed with passion, and Lavinia's apparent perfidy, goes blind. Her love for him still as unquenched as before, Lavinia visits his studio daily and finishes the painting, unknown to him. At the salon, the painting attracts universal attention, and an American millionaire calls at Guy's studio and purchases it. A short time previous, Guy had received a letter from the Count, to the effect that she had written the letter to save him (Guy). Lavinia slips her hand into his, and Guy is again able to see things in their proper light.

THE EMPRESS TO FEATURE "WHEN WE WERE TWENTY-ONE"

The Monday Paramount feature will be "When We Were Twenty-One" with William Elliott, Charles Walden, Marie Empress and Winifred Allen. William Elliott, a popular member of the more youthful element of prominent Broadway stars, who is at present achieving a tremendous personal triumph in the current dramatic sensation, "Experience" makes his first appearance in motion pictures in an absorbing film adaptation of H. V. Esmond's celebrated play, "When We Were Twenty-One." Nat Goodwin's former starring vehicle. Mr. Elliott portrays the role of "the Imp" as young Richard Audaine, the central character of the play, is known that irresponsible and light hearted young man whose tragic love affair so nearly brings ruin to himself and to the guardian who loves him as a son.

Mr. Elliott won laurels in Henry W. Savage's phenomenal success, "Madame X" in which he took the country by storm by his powerful portrayal of the impassioned young defender of the accused woman.

In "When We Were Twenty-One" Mr. Elliott's winning personality and magnetism will have full scope, both in the lighter moments, when "the Imp" enjoys the freedom of college life and breaks loose in the New York cabarets, and in the later ones, when he meets the notorious "Firefly" who, hearing from a practical joker that "the Imp" will come into a fortune when he is of age, marries him on the day he is twenty-one and flings him aside when she hears he is penniless.

CHILLICOTHE OFFICER SHOT BY HACK DRIVER MONDAY

(Quannah Tribune-Chief)

A feud of a couple of years standing terminated in a shooting-escape Monday evening at Chillicothe at which an officer was dangerously hurt. John Bell, a young hack driver, had been tried in justice court for gambling that morning and was acquitted. The next morning he waited examining trial before Squire Matlock and his bond was assessed at $1500 which he gave.

ent it is hard to say whether his condition will prove fatal or not. Being a man of excellent habits, strong and robust, his speedy recovery is hoped for. Meanwhile officers had left Quannah to arrest the shooter. A few miles out of town they met Bell coming at a speed of sixty miles, going to give himself up. He was lodged in jail for the night. The next morning he waited examining trial before Squire Matlock and his bond was assessed at $1500 which he gave.

PRECAUTIONS TO PREVENT GOODS REACHING ENEMIES

London.—The British government, through the Board of Trade, has warned all British commercial firms that they will be expected to exercise the most scrupulous care in the transaction of their business abroad, during the period of the war, so as to avoid any likelihood of making themselves agents for the supply of goods to hostile countries. It is inadvisable, says the official circular, "that any new accounts should be opened by any British trader in neutral countries without the fullest inquiries as to the character of the business proposed to him."

allies. British firms, therefore, "must survey with great caution every opening for business which is offered them by neutral importers or exporters." It is added that "the proclamations relating to trading with the enemy cover indirect trading through neutral agents; and carelessness in transacting neutral business may involve traders in the severe penalties attaching to trading with the enemy."

London, July 2.—Introducing the munitions bill in the house of commons today Lord Curzon announced that the first week of the campaign to speed up manufactures resulted in enrolling 46,000 workers in the munitions army. He said: "Before the end of the year the advantage in both men and materials will be decidedly on the side of Great Britain and her allies."

REMODEL BUILDING FOR BAUM-GARDNER STORE

Famous Mulberry Tree at Rear of Bean & Gohlke's Office to Fall Before Progress.

Work will start within the next few days on the remodeling of the Bean building on Eighth street at the rooms now occupied by the Davis-Schnell store and the Bean & Gohlke office to be vacated. The new quarters will be occupied by the store of Harry Baum and Max Gardner and will have a front of 40 feet, extending back 75 feet. A 25 foot addition to the rear of the building is to be made.

The Bean-Gohlke office will be moved to the Anderson-Bean building on Indiana avenue, where the clothing store is now closing out. The remodeled building is expected to prove an excellent site for the business to be started by the Baum-Gardner firm.

The addition to the building will force the removal of the famous mulberry tree beneath which so many thrilling games of dominoes and horse-shoes have been fought. It was here that the Mulberry club was born, waxed and waned. Pitching horse-shoes was the purpose of this club and each new member, upon initiation, was required to pitch horse-shoes against some club member. Upon the defeat of the novice, which was a forgone conclusion, an official of the club would go out on Eighth street and shout "Mulberry! Mulberry!" At this signal all of the members within hearing, usually two or three dozen, would congregate at the Palace drug store and enjoy soft drinks at the expense of the initiator. The club ceased to exist when everybody in town had been initiated.

MARRIAGE BROKERS DO THRIVING BUSINESS IN GERMANY.

Berlin.—The war has given a sudden and unprecedented impetus to the "marriage brokerage" game, and advertisements for husbands are everywhere in many cases were never so plentiful as at present. Many women exhibit an irrefragable desire to get married right away and appear to be quite unconcerned about the kind of a husband they get.

Individual women who want to get married at any cost are not the only ones however, who have taken advantage of the unusual situation. The more or less shady matrimonial agencies are making hay while the sun shines, and apparently stop at nothing in order to turn a questionable penny.

Thus many have, in some manner, secured the names and addresses of women whose husbands have been killed at the front, and intrude upon their grief with brazen offers of second husbands. These men for the most part are mere adventurers, but in a few cases are invited suitors, either anxious for a home or beguiled into letting their names be used.

$35,000 REAL ESTATE DEAL IS CONSUMMATED

A $35,000 deal was consummated here last week through the real estate agency of A. L. Lane whereby Mrs. G. R. Hoge becomes the owner of the two story brick, 50x150 feet on lot 153, block 10 on Ohio avenue. G. W. Riley, the former owner, took a 480 acre black land farm near Rhombs in on the deal at a valuation of $28,000. The remainder of the consideration was cash.

Another deal involving a consideration of $90,000 has been practically closed. It is understood.

K. B. KENSNER'S HAND MANGLED IN WRINGER

Caught Hand in Cog and Losses One Finger and Others Are Severely Injured

Catching his left hand in the cogs of a wringing machine at which he was working, K. B. Kensner, employed at the Union Cleaning and Dye Works Saturday, sustained injuries that resulted in the amputation of one finger and severely crippled the other finger of that hand stripping most of the flesh from the bones and even mangling the palm. It is believed that Kensner had seized the cog to stop the machine. The proper way to stop the machine is by a handle or lever that shifts the belt.

ANTI-PROHIBITIONISTS WILL ORGANIZE SOON

Meeting Will Be Held This Week at Which Plans For Contest Will Be Discussed

Plans for the organization of the forces opposed to prohibition are under way, and it is probable that a meeting will be held this week to plan a campaign against the voting out of the saloons. Nothing has been done as yet by the anti forces, but the matter has been thoroughly discussed and it has been tentatively decided to hold a meeting this week.

The petition for the prohibition election will probably be presented to the county commissioners when they convene next week and it is thought likely that the election will be called for some day in the first week of August.

SPECIAL WAR TAXES VOTED IN SWITZERLAND.

Berns, Switzerland.—An amendment to the Swiss Federal Constitution, providing for the levying of a special war tax to meet the expenses incident to mobilization of the army for the maintenance of Swiss neutrality, which was submitted to a referendum vote of the entire people has been accepted by an overwhelming majority, the vote being 435,500 to 26,500.

The new taxes are both on property and income. Persons possessing less than $2,000 worth of property or earning less than $500 a year are exempt. The rate of tax is progressive, ranging from $1 to $15 per thousand on property and from $5 to $100 per thousand on income. The rate on property and income will be fixed at a rate rising from $2 to $10 per thousand of capital. The rate will vary according to the rate of dividend paid.

The campaign on behalf of the war tax amendment to the constitution had the support of all the political parties. The tax is expected to yield about $10,000,000. The neutrality of the Swiss indebtedness on account of the war will have to be funded through the issue of bonds. The present cost of the war to Switzerland is estimated at nearly $5,000,000 a month.

"THE OLD DOCTOR" AT THE LAMAR AIRDOME MONDAY

The Airdome pictures are ever a feature of the program and Monday's picture bill is an exceptional one. Murdock McQuarrie is seen in a two part special, "The Old Doctor," a drama with threads of pathos and humor running through the woof of the story.

Murdock McQuarrie may have his peer as a photoplay character actor, but, if so, his superior so far has failed to present himself to the public gaze. In "The Old Doctor," a Big U two reel drama McQuarrie is presented to his admirers in a vehicle which again affords him opportunity to display his wide range of characterization.

The vaudeville acts are the McGreeney with a rural comedy and Powell and Juno, singing and dancing.
