By Associated Press. Bulletin: Nogales, Ariz., Aug. 4.—Bombardment of Nogales, Sonora, held by Villa troops under Governor Maytorena was begun shortly before noon by Carranza forces led by General Calles. The Carranza guns appeared to be only two miles from the border town.

The United States authorities have warned the Mexican factions that they must not endanger American lives by firing across the border. General Funston in command of the American troops has instructions to open fire on the Mexicans if necessary and drive them back from the border.

After firing Fannan ran out of the bank and took refuge in a printing establishment. He later was caught by police and civilians.

SEVERAL CASES TRIED IN COUNTY COURT TODAY

W. E. Clark Acquitted on Charge of Having Jumped Over Electric Current Meter.

W. E. Clark was acquitted in the county court today on the charge of preventing electricity used by him from being registered by his meter. The evidence showed that there was a "jumper" on the wires at Mr. Clark's place of business, by which the current did not pass through the meter, but it was not established that Mr. Clark was responsible for its being there.

This afternoon a case of assault resulting from a free for all fight on July 5 in the flats was on trial, being appealed from the city court. This case was still on trial at 3:30 this afternoon.

NO LIGHT SHED ON THE HOTEL COURT MYSTERY.

Indications are that the mystery surrounding the case of the man who was injured last Thursday night will not be solved. Lindsey, who was badly hurt when he either fell or was thrown from the roof of a building adjoining the Main hotel, was much better today but seems unable to give any coherent account of what caused his injury. He became irritated when questioned about it, and professes his ignorance of the affair.

WIDER OPENING BENEATH HOLLIDAY CREEK BRIDGE

This Reported to Be Decision of the Denver Officials Following a Recent Survey.

The opening under the Fort Worth & Denver bridge over Holliday creek is to be enlarged so as to allow freer passage for the waters of the creek. This step is said to have been determined upon by the railroad and as soon as the survey, which is now being made is completed, to determine how large an opening is necessary, the work will be started. The present opening is a very small one, and it was alleged during the floods of June that the embankments on each side were largely responsible for the Holliday creek overflow. Several suits were filed against the Denver as a result.

Nothing further has been heard from the state levee and drainage commissioner as to when he will be in Wichita Falls to ascertain what steps may be taken to protect the city from further overflows on the Wichita river.

WILL ADJOURN THURSDAY

Officers will be Elected and the Next Meeting Place Selected at Tomorrow Morning Session.

National Officer-Speaks. At Tuesday afternoon's session, John Cosgrove of Indianapolis, second vice-president of the U. B. A., the carpenters' national organization, addressed the council. His talk was a very interesting discussion of the general labor movement, giving a contrast between conditions as they formerly existed and as they are today.

James P. Ogletree, national executive committee man from the fourth district, also spoke Tuesday afternoon and Harry Blackmore of the fifth district also addressed the council. T. C. Jennings, chairman of the legislative committee of the State Federation of Labor, discussed some of the new labor laws that have been enacted, particularly the new mechanics' lien measure, which he said would properly protect the mechanic.

Organizer O. Olsen of Houston, J. A. Burton of the local broommakers' union and J. J. Manley of this city also spoke. Mrs. Olsen of Houston and Mrs. Proctor of Houston spoke on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Tuesday afternoon a branch of the ladies' auxiliary was organized here, with 25 members and application was made for a charter. Hunter, an attorney of this city who was once a carpenter and State Labor Commissioner Woodman spoke. Secretary Treasurer J. E. Proctor entertained the guests with some slight of hand tricks that were much enjoyed.

POPE HAS NO AUTHORITY IN CIVIL MATTERS

In Report on Religious Prejudices K. of C. Express Confidence in American Fair Play.

By Associated Press. Seattle, Wash., Aug. 3.—The supreme council of the Knights of Columbus, in convention here, received today the report of the commission on religious prejudices which expressed the belief that "American fair play will prevail over religious bigotry."

The report, presented by Col. P. H. Callahan, chairman, expressed satisfaction for aid by the general public and special mention was made of the fairness shown by the Associated Press and newspapers in general regarding religious matters. Seven recommendations were attached to the report. The first of these declared a principal cause for prejudice against Catholics arose from an erroneous belief among non-Catholics that we owe such allegiance to the Pope as is incompatible with proper allegiance to our country.

"We should lose no proper occasion to declare the position of Catholics," stated the report, "and the teachings of the church on this matter, namely: that while Catholics acknowledge the Pope to be supreme in spiritual matters, they do not hold that he has any authority in civil matters. If any spiritual authority were to direct us to do any act contrary to the rights of free citizens, or the welfare of society, we would be bound to disobey."

The report declared that Catholics uphold and support the public school system, but feel that religious instruction is necessary, and therefore bear an extra burden for private schools. An opinion was expressed that in time all general forms of religion will be taught in free schools. The report condemns the action of politicians in raising religious issues in campaigns as well as the activities of quasi-political societies in discriminating against persons of any faith. It was recommended that the commission be made permanent.

The report of the secretary stated $1,921,943.04 was collected during the past year and that the assets of the order exclusive of special funds are nearly $6,000,000. There are now nearly 350,000 members.

BAVARIANS BEING HURLED AGAINST FORTS BEFORE THE POLISH CAPITAL

By Associated Press: Berlin, August 4.—The forces of Prince Leopold of Bavaria are hurling themselves against the fortresses defending Warsaw, according to the official statement given out today by the German army staff. The statement adds that the Russians have been thrown from their positions at Blonie, fifteen miles west of the Polish capital back onto the outer line of defenses of the city.

RUSSIAN REAR GUARD FIGHTING EFFECTIVE

By Associated Press: London, August 4.—Rear guard fighting of the Russians to the northeast of Warsaw has proved so effective that the German tide seems to have been held up. South of Warsaw Von Mackensen's forces who are pushing north are being badly battered. About the only German progress is toward Riga and before Ivangorod.

Warsaw still holds out and the hope that the capital may yet be saved is growing stronger throughout Russia, France and England.

The German press notes the pause in the German offensive and explains that with the daily lengthening of communications the problem of transportation and reinforcement becomes more complicated which accounts for the delay. At the same time the efficiency of the Russian rear guard blows is not disregarded by the German newspapers.

The German emperor and empress previously reported on their way to Warsaw for triumphal entry into the city have had to postpone completion of their trip. The British empire today observed with prayer the anniversary of the declaration of the war. Services were held through the British provinces.

Nevertheless we soon saw a complete German defeat in this sector for it took the enemy a week to drive back from the village of Serwatka our rear guard resistance while the battle for the passages of the Narew near Novogorod has not even begun."

BRUSSELS MILITARY COMMANDER NOT HARSH

Amsterdam.—General von Krawell, military commander of Brussels, has been recalled to Berlin as the result, it is reported, of disagreement with General von Bligis as to the administration of affairs in the one time Belgian capital. The former, it is said, was in favor of conciliating the Belgian population, while von Bligis believed in a stricter discipline. Matters came to a crisis when the government issued an order that no Belgian should be allowed to wear the Belgian or allied colors. Von Krawell protested that such a measure could be of no possible benefit, and would merely irritate the populace.

"IT WAS MY FAULT"

By ANNE PAGE.

Suddenly they had separated; he to go to town to live, she to her daughter's house. For the pair had a married daughter—their only child—and an infant grandson.

Nobody seemed to have an idea of what the trouble was; everyone in the community wanted to know, for Mr. and Mrs. Sefton had been popular in the little social circle for years.

The beautiful home of the Seftons was for rent, and summer vacationists were looking at it every day with a prospect of renting it.

Mrs. Sefton spent every moment of her grandson's waking hours with him. She took him out into the parks; she sewed for him and romped and played with him as if she had been 20 years younger.

Mother and daughter had never discussed the separation since the first day that Mrs. Sefton came there; and then the explanation had been brief. Lella knew nothing. But she was a loyal, loving daughter, and she knew that whatever had been the trouble her mother could have done no great wrong.

"You are utterly spoiling Peter and me," Lella said to her mother one day when she had returned from an afternoon spent under the trees with Peter.

"I—I must spoil someone, dear," the mother answered. "A woman can't spoil and pet a human being for 30 years and then find herself empty-handed of anything to indulge. You're young, and may not understand how long 30 years is, daughter."

"Perhaps, not, mother," said Lella. "And don't think I'm seriously objecting to the spoiling. I love it. It's wonderful to have you with us—even Ned says so, and that's a concession from a son-in-law, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," Mrs. Sefton said, absently. Her mind was far away, back to the days when her own little daughter was in arms as was Peter now.

Lella had sensed her mother's loneliness for some weeks, though this was the first time she had ever given utterance to a word that would lead anyone to think that she missed her partner.

That night Lella and Ned talked until far into the night. They were planning a ruse by which they could get their baby's grandparents to gether.

"For, once together again, I'm sure they could not bear to separate," Lella had said. "Mother may have a little too much Bruce stubbornness in her, but father—like all his family—is downright obstinate. I honestly think they quarreled over some trivial matter, and having nothing else to think about and very little to do, the quarrel became serious and neither one would give in."

"It can't be anything else, dear. It will come out all right—I feel it," comforted Ned.

Lella was in touch with her father, and on the following day she spoke with him on the telephone. "Hello, daddy," she said. "Mother's out tonight and we—Ned and I—thought perhaps you'd like to come and see us and Peter."

She waited for a few minutes for the answer, but when it came it was satisfactory, for she promptly telephoned to her husband that she would join him for dinner, and that they would spend the evening at the theater or on a roof garden.

John Sefton rang the door bell of his daughter's apartment with a feeble touch than had ever been his before. He did not admit it to himself, but he was declining in strength very fast.

He left his hat and old walking stick and gloves in the hall and he stopped to listen to the baby's cooing and laughing before he pushed inside the portieres and stepped into the cozy living room.

"Mary!" he gasped, looking at his wife, who was as surprised as himself.

"John Henry Sefton! You!" she said, holding the baby close.

"Mary—Mary," began the elderly man, brokenly. "I—I didn't know how much I wanted to see you till I laid my eyes on you this minute. This is some of Lella's doings," he added.

"It must be," Mrs. Sefton said, blinking away the tears of joy that would spring to her eyes at sight of her husband.

There was silence for a full minute while John Sefton stepped closer and closer to his grandson and his wife. They both looked into the round, laughing face of the infant and then into each other's eyes. "It was my fault," they said in unison.

She looked at her husband with the old-time smile.

"And you remember when we said when we celebrated our silver wedding, that our love had been full blown for so long that we could remember nothing else but that perfectly developed understanding?" asked John softly.

"Oh, don't—I do know it, kiss Peter and—"

Her words were never made articulate, for Peter began to demand attention and the fond and doting grandparents tried all their wiles to quiet him. At last he screamed himself to sleep, and the reunited pair found as much to say to each other as if their love were just in the bud, instead of full blown.

Winston Hedges, son of a wealthy farmer, carries his worthlessness to a point where the old man will endure him no longer. Winston is sent off on a yachting trip in order that he may be removed from the city's temptations. Chance brings the yacht aboard the cottage of the keeper of a lighthouse, Peters, who leads a frugal but happy existence with his young wife and baby. Peters' savings are carefully invested in government bonds, which he adds to from time to time, securing them in a place known only to himself. It is his desire to leave his wife and baby comfortably off, and arrive at the Peters cottage just as the latter is about to succumb to an attack of heart failure. Winston sends Mary, the wife, to the landing platform to dispatch a sailor for Dr. Bruce, the yacht's physician. Winston is thus left alone with Peters who realizes that he may die before Mary's return. He succeeds in obtaining the bonds before his wife returns with the doctor. Winston knows that Peters had told no one of the existence of the securities, consequently the net do well is suddenly confronted with an opportunity to rehabilitate himself financially. Then Mary, the wife, returns. The way Winston deals with this temptation and his further acquaintance with the lighthouse keeper's wife and daughter culminates in a tremendous thrill and goes to make a picture of unusual dramatic power and moral value.

The Gem. Commencing today "The Heart of Maryland" opened a two days' engagement at the Gem theatre. Mrs. Leslie Carter is featured in this film production of the drama which she made famous on the legitimate stage.

Maryland Calvert at the beginning of the Civil war, endeavors without success to induce her sweetheart, Alan Shay, to join the Southern forces. Her brother joins the rebels, while in reality he is a Northern secret service man. Colonel Thorpe, Allan's bitterest enemy, a Southern Colonel, captures Alan during battle and sentences him to die. Maryland, during a raging heat, sees Colonel Thorpe and pleads for Alan. Colonel Thorpe is adamant and refuses to commute his sentence. In a scuffle, Maryland renders the Colonel unconscious and Alan escapes. The colonel upon recovering, orders the church bell rung to notify his pickets that Alan has escaped. Maryland makes her way to the lofty belfry and swinks on the clapper preventing it from ringing and Colonel Thorpe, upon learning Alan has escaped, arrests Maryland. General Hooker, to whom Maryland hoped to protest, has been killed and while a great battle rages, the air filled with shrapnel, the moans of the dying and wounded, the din of a million noises all rend the air Maryland—See the end in the wonderful picture, The Heart of Maryland.

The Empress. Gertrude McCoy, Viola Dana, Robert Conness and Duncan McRae are featured in "The House of the Lost Court," a Paramount production showing here today.

Sir Anthony Elliott, an artist, is secretly engaged to Elinore Vane. At the same time that Anthony gets a letter from his brother Paul, that he is coming to London for a visit, Elinore gets word that her friend Nina is to pay her a visit. The arrival of the two guests is marked by a festive event.

Paul, who has been in the army in India, produces a ring which he says was given him by a dying Indian. The ring contains a vial filled with the sleep of death. Lady Rosamund, mother of the young man, allows the ring to be placed on her finger.

Subsequently, while the four are out on a mountain-climbing trip, Anthony rescues Nina, who has fallen over a cliff and caught in a protruding snag. In consequence of the rescue, a strong friendship is engendered between Nina and Anthony. On the other hand, as warm a friendship has arisen between Elinore and Paul, much to Anthony's discomfort. Upon questioning her as to whether she has told Paul of her engagement to his brother, Elinore tells Anthony that she has not mentioned it to him. Rather than cause a breach in the family, Anthony countenances the love affair of Paul and Elinore and they are married.

In a short time, Paul becomes a gambler, and Elinore realizes that her path is not one of primrose. In his bachelor apartments in London, Anthony is visited by Nina, who admits her great love for him, and implores him to take her to America with him. She sacrifices all her pride in the manifestation of her affection for him. He repulses her, however, and hearing Elinore approach, directs her quickly into the next room. Elinore enters and tells Anthony how unfaithful Paul has been to her, and asks him to take her to America with him. Anthony refuses flatly. Elinore then uses invective language, and a paper-knife, which Anthony has been handling, stiffens in his hand. Nina gives a startled scream from behind the door where she has been watching through the keyhole. She decides to get even with Anthony and accuses him of the murder of Elinore. Anthony is accordingly sentenced to death for murder, and is found dead in his cell the morning after the trial.

Lady Rosamund leaves part of the Castle to Dolores Edgerton and her mother. One evening, Dolores sees a gondola on the lake near the Castle, and curious to know who is in it, she investigates and discovers a secret compartment under the Castle, occupied by a man, an artist. She tells no one and visits the place several times. Eventually, Anthony, for it is he, tells her how he was given the sleep of death by Lady Rosamund in the prison, and how he was awakened and rescued, after prison physicians had pronounced him dead. Dolores, now in love with Anthony, through a stratagem, gets a confession from Nina that it was Elinore who killed herself, and Anthony is once for a free man.

An interesting phase of this powerful story is the attitude of Nina and Paul toward each other after they have met Dolores at the Castle, and Paul has become infatuated with Dolores. The story is the quintessence of power, picturesqueness, and dramatic artistry.

WOULD BRING LIBERTY BELL THROUGH HERE

There is a possibility that the Liberty Bell which was recently taken to the San Francisco exposition, will be taken back east by way of this city and in such a case a determined effort will be made to have the famous relic on exhibition here for a short time. The bell will pass through Texas on its way home, and Dallas is making a strong effort to have it brought there. El Paso is also seeking to have the bell brought through that city. It is believed that the journey from El Paso to Dallas could easily be made through Wichita Falls, if an organized effort were made, and the matter will be taken up as soon as definite information is available. Comparatively few people in this part of the United States have ever seen this bell, which, next to the original manuscript of the Declaration of Independence, is probably the most treasured memento of revolutionary days.

ASKS VIGILANCE TO ELIMINATE COTTON BALE "SPIDERS"

State Labor Commissioner C. W. Woodman who has been in this city several days attending the state convention of the Carpenters' Union has issued an appeal to the compresses of the state urging great vigilance against permitting spiders to remain on cotton bales.

"I was in the holds of ships and saw the cotton loaded and know that if a spider engages the inspectors it is almost certain not to be discovered in the dark holds of the ships by the men who load it until too late to escape injury."

"The result of this study is a determination to leave nothing undone that will promise a lessening of the danger and to this end I am going to ask each of the compresses of Texas to tag their cotton, in order that we may more readily check the undiscovered spiders for it is my intention to carry out the arrangements agreed upon with your representatives to the letter and I am sure you propose to do the same."

"During the cotton season my entire force will be at the ports assisting the other inspectors. If spiders are found at any of the ports which indicate carelessness on the part of any compress that compress will be visited to see wherein lies the trouble. Trouble discovered and not remedied, then recourse will be had to law."

"In addition to tagging your cotton, permit me to suggest that you post a notice where it can be read daily, stating plainly that a spider may mean death and also talk to your inspectors and try to impress upon them what a spider means."

"Please understand that it is not the law I want to use to eliminate spiders, but the fact that there have been many deaths from them at the ports, that there are many cripples and that a spider bite surely means blood poisoning and loss of time."

WASH FROCKS HAVE THEIR DAY

New York, Aug. 3.—Wash frocks are not what they used to be. Indeed you have to rub your eyes and look twice to believe such altogether smart garments were ever intended to touch water.

One of the New Figured Voiles in an Afternoon Dress, with a Smart Satin Hat and Japanese Parasol.

There are frocks with slightly raised waistlines and plain, inch-and-a-half headings, others with wide girdles below the headings, and, again, the skirt is shirred or corded, with the heading extending above. The peplums, too, are treated in different ways.

The Popularity of Voile.

It has been said, and with truth, that this is a voile season. As in silk, taffeta is the favored weave, so in wash materials voile predominates.

One model of unusual merit is a symphony in pink and white, standing on the spacious third floor of an Avenue store. The pink is a delicate salmon shade, printed in bars and embroidered in big, coin dots in every fourth square.

Pockets are a feature in misses' skirts. If misses' skirts are properly pocketed, they are smart this season.

A CONFESSION Hopes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

"Misses, Ala.—I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Mae Reid, of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good."

"Before I commenced using Cardui, I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously."

"Since taking Cardui, I feel entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight."

"If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer."

"For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year."

"Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and helps build the weakened organs back to health and strength."

"Cardui has helped others, and will help you, too. Get a bottle today. You will regret it. Your druggist sells it."

deed, pockets in their newly found popularity have outgrown skirts and extended into straps on the blouses. They are real pockets, conveniently placed squarely over the hip, that a girl can put her hands into and swagger down the street like her big brother—pockets that are big enough to hold the knickknacks of the handbag, and last, but not the least important, pretty enough in shape to trim the skirt.

They appear on the rough-and-ready kind of linen, washable corduroy, and cotton corduroy. There are some charming models in soft blue and rose linens, with suspender pockets; sports skirts of corduroy have pockets that button over the belt—big, roomy affairs—at the sides that will be the pride and joy of some girl's life.

Pipings for Linens.

One of the smartest ways of finishing the linen skirts is with pipings. A store that makes a specialty of junior dresses is featuring a rose linen piped in white. The skirt is made with the large patch pockets at the side that extend into suspenders, on the waist.

Midsummer Hats of Satin.

Satin hats are an innovation of the midseason. Large shapes are favored in these, and trimmings are unique and original. A broad-brimmed white satin has a flat bow inserted in the front of the crown; a black satin has white velvet birds fastened flat on the crown, and still another white satin has a crown of wool made in four sections, each section embroidered in a different color.

Velvet Combines with Hemp and Chip.

Velvet is one of the fads in summer hats. However, it is seldom used alone. This season, it combines with hemp and chip. One particularly attractive hat has a wide soft brim of white hemp, with the low, close-fitting crown of black velvet finished at the front with a swirl of black velvet.

Suspender Pockets on a Linen Skirt

of wood and painted in color. And, so it goes, each hat is a story in itself, absolutely different from its neighbor.

Parasols are the one Oriental note in the fashions.

While there are some long-handled, fluffy models shown, the Japanese parasol is by far the favorite. These are made of silk, cotton crepe and paper—blunt at the end with many ribs and flat when opened. They come in broad awning stripes, plain colors and flowered. The very latest is the "Garden of Eden." This is a curious affair with black ebony handle, white ivory ribs and a white crepe top printed in black to represent Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, with all the trees and animals present.

Tapestry Handbags.

Gate-top handbags are still popular. Rare bits of tapestry are now used for the bottom, with gorgeous tassels to finish them off. The rich tones of the material oddly contrast with the light dresses. There is one bag in charming Oriental effect, with peacock coloring of gold and purple combined with dark red. This is finished with a gold tassel and heavy gold cord at the top. Other bags have bracelets at the top in place of the cord; and, for those who do not care for the deep tones of the tapestry, there are beaded effects and silver mesh bags in the same gate-top style.

"IT WAS MY FAULT"

By ANNE PAGE.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Suddenly they had separated; he to go to town to live, she to her daughter's house. For the pair had a married daughter—their only child—and an infant grandson.

Nobody seemed to have an idea of what the trouble was; everyone in the community wanted to know, for Mr. and Mrs. Sefton had been popular in the little social circle for years.

The beautiful home of the Seftons was for rent, and summer vacationists were looking at it every day with a prospect of renting it.

Mrs. Sefton spent every moment of her grandson's waking hours with him. She took him out into the parks; she sewed for him and romped and played with him as if she had been 20 years younger.

Mother and daughter had never discussed the separation since the first day that Mrs. Sefton came there; and then the explanation had been brief. Lella knew nothing. But she was a loyal, loving daughter, and she knew that whatever had been the trouble her mother could have done no great wrong.

"You are utterly spoiling Peter and me," Lella said to her mother one day when she had returned from an afternoon spent under the trees with Peter.

"I—I must spoil someone, dear," the mother answered. "A woman can't spoil and pet a human being for 30 years and then find herself empty-handed of anything to indulge. You're young, and may not understand how long 30 years is, daughter."

"Perhaps, not, mother," said Lella. "And don't think I'm seriously objecting to the spoiling. I love it. It's wonderful to have you with us—even Ned says so, and that's a concession from a son-in-law, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," Mrs. Sefton said, absently. Her mind was far away, back to the days when her own little daughter was in arms—as was Peter now.

Lella had sensed her mother's loneliness for some weeks, though this was the first time she had ever given utterance to a word that would lead anyone to think that she missed her partner.

That night Lella and Ned talked until far into the night. They were planning a ruse by which they could get their baby's grandparents to gether.

"For, once together again, I'm sure they could not bear to separate," Lella had said. "Mother may have a little too much Bruce stubbornness in her, but father—like all his family—is downright obstinate. I honestly think they quarreled over some trivial matter, and having nothing else to think about and very little to do, the quarrel became serious and neither one would give in."

"It can't be anything else, dear. It will come out all right—I feel it," comforted Ned.

Lella was in touch with her father, and on the following day she spoke with him on the telephone. "Hello, daddy," she said. "Mother's out to night and we—Ned and I—thought perhaps you'd like to come and see us and Peter."

She waited for a few minutes for the answer, but when it came it was satisfactory, for she promptly telephoned to her husband that she would join him for dinner, and that they would spend the evening at the theater or on a roof garden.

John Sefton rang the door bell of his daughter's apartment with a feebler touch than had ever been his before. He did not admit it to himself, but he was declining in strength very fast.

He left his hat and old walking stick and gloves in the hall and he stopped to listen to the baby's cooing and laughing before he pushed inside the portieres and stepped into the cozy living room.

"Marry!" he gasped, looking at his wife, who was as surprised as himself.

"John Henry Sefton! You!" she said, holding the baby close.

"Marry—Marry," began the elderly man, brokenly. "I—I didn't know how much I wanted to see you till I laid my eyes on you this minute. This is some of Lella's doings," he added.

"It must be," Mrs. Sefton said, blinking away the tears of joy that would spring to her eyes at sight of her husband.

There was silence for a full minute while John Sefton stepped closer and closer to his grandson and his wife. They both looked into the round, laughing face of the infant and then into each other's eyes. "It was my fault," they said in unison.

She looked at her husband with the old-time smile.

"And you remember when we said when we celebrated our silver wedding, that our love had been full blown for so long that we could remember nothing else but that perfectly developed understanding?" asked John softly.

"Oh, don't—I do know it, kiss Peter and—"

Her words were never made articulate, for Peter began to demand attention and the fond and doting grandparents tried all their wiles to quiet him. At last he screamed himself to sleep, and the reunited pair found as much to say to each other as if their loves were just in the bud instead of full blown.

Winston Hedges, son of a wealthy farmer, carries his worthlessness to a point where the old man will endure him no longer. Winston is sent off on a yachting trip in order that he may be removed from the city's temptations. Chance brings the yacht aboard the cottage of the keeper of a lighthouse, Peters, who leads a frugal but happy existence with his young wife and baby. Peters' savings are carefully invested in government bonds, which he adds to from time to time, securing them in a place known only to himself. It is his dearest desire to leave his wife and baby comfortably off. Winston goes ashore to secure some ice and arrives at the lighthouse cottage just as the latter is about to succumb to an attack of heart failure. Winston sends Mary, the wife, to the landing platform to dispatch a sailor for Dr. Bruce, the yacht's physician. Winston is thus left alone with Peters who realizes that he may die before Mary's return. Peter succeeds in obtaining the bonds before his wife returns with the doctor. Winston knows that Peters had told no one of the existence of the securities, consequently the doctor does well is suddenly confronted with an opportunity to rehabilitate himself financially. Then Mary, the wife, returns. The way Winston deals with this temptation and his further acquaintance with the lighthouse keeper's wife and daughter culminates in a tremendous thrill and goes to make a picture of unusual dramatic power and moral value.

next room. Ellmore enters and tells Anthony how unfaithful Paul has been to her, and asks him to take her to America with him. Anthony refuses flatly. Ellmore then uses invective language, and a paper-knife, which Anthony has been handling, stiffens in his hand. Nina gives a startled scream from behind the door where she has been watching through the keyhole. She decides to get even with Anthony and accuses him of the murder of Ellmore. Anthony is accordingly sentenced to death for murder, and is found dead in his cell the morning after the trial.

Lady Rosamund leaves part of the Castle to Dolores Edgerton and her mother. One evening, Dolores sees a gondola on the lake near the Castle, and curious to know who is in it, she investigates and discovers a secret compartment under the Castle, occupied by a man, an artist. She tells no one and visits the place several times. Eventually, Anthony, for it is he, tells her how he was given the sleep of death by Lady Rosamund in the prison, and how he was awakened and rescued, after prison physicians had pronounced him dead. Dolores, now in love with Anthony, through a stratagem, gets a confession from Nina that it was Ellmore who killed herself, and Anthony is once for a free man.

An interesting phase of this powerful story is the attitude of Nina and Paul toward each other after they have met Dolores at the Castle, and Paul has become infatuated with Dolores. The story is the quintessence of power, picturesqueness, and dramatic artistry.

WOULD BRING LIBERTY BELL THROUGH HERE

There is a possibility that the Liberty Bell which was recently taken to the San Francisco exposition, will be taken back east by way of this city and in such a case a determined effort will be made to have the famous relic on exhibition here for a short time. The bell will pass through Texas on its way home, and Dallas is making a strong effort to have it brought there. El Paso is also seeking to have the bell brought through that city. It is believed that the journey from El Paso to Dallas could easily be made through Wichita Falls, if an organized effort were made, and the matter will be taken up as soon as definite information is available. Comparatively few people in this part of the United States have ever seen this bell, which, next to the original manuscript of the Declaration of Independence, is probably the most treasured memento of revolutionary days.

It has been said, and with truth, that this is a voile season. As in silk, taffeta is the favored weave, so in wash materials voile predominates.

One model of unusual merit is a symphony in pink and white, standing on the spacious third floor of an Avenue store.

Pockets are a feature in Misses' Skirts. If misses' skirts are properly pocketed, they are smart this season.

A CONFESSION

Hopes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

Hines, Ala.—"I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Mae Reid, of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good."

Before I commenced using Cardui I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously.

Since taking Cardui, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight.

If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer.

For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year.

Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and helps build the weakened organs back to health and strength.

dead, pockets in their newly found popularity have outgrown skirts and extend into straps on the belts and even into suspenders on the blouse.

They appear on the rough-and-ready skirts of linen, washable corduroy and cotton sardanie. There are some charming models in soft blue and rose linens, with suspender pockets; sports skirts of corduroy have pockets that button over the belt—big, roomy affairs—at the sides that will be the pride and joy of some girl's life.

Pipings for Linens

One of the smartest ways of finishing the linen skirts is with pipings. A store that makes a specialty of junior dresses is featuring a rose linen piped in white. The skirt is made with the large patch pockets at the side that extend into suspenders on the waist.

Midsummer Hats of Satin

Satin hats are an innovation of the midseason. Large shapes are favored in these, and trimmings are unique and original. A broad-brimmed white satin has a flat bow inserted in silks in the front of the crown; a black satin has white velvet birds nested flat on the crown, and still another white satin has a crown of wool made in four sections, each section embroidered in a different color.

Velvet Combines with Hemp and Chip

Velvet is one of the fads in summer hats. However, it is seldom used alone. This season, it combines with hemp and chip. One particularly attractive hat has a wide soft brim of white hemp, with the low, close-fitting crown of black velvet finished at the front with a swirl of black velvet. This is held at the center with a pin stuck through diagonally. The head of the pin is a flower cut out of a flat piece of wood and painted in color. And, so it goes, each hat is a story in itself, absolutely different from its neighbor.

Parasols are the one Oriental note in the fashion.

Parasols are the one Oriental note in the fashion. White, these are, some long-handled, fluffy models shown; the Japanese parasol is by far the favorite. These are made of silk, cotton crepe and paper—blunt at the end with many ribs and flat when opened. They come in broad awning stripes, plain colors and flowered. The very latest is the "Garden of Eden." This is a curious affair with black abony handle, white ivory ribs and a white crepe top printed in black to represent Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, with all the trees and animals present.

Tapestry Handbags

Gate-top handbags are still popular. Rare bits of tapestry are now used for the bottom, with gorgeous tassels to finish them off. The rich tones of the material oddly contrast with the light dresses. There is one bag in charming Oriental effect, with peacock coloring of gold and purple combined with dark red. This is finished with a gold tassel and heavy gold cord at the top. Other bags have bracelets at the top in place of the cord; and, for those who do not care for the deep tones of the tapestry, there are beaded effects and silver mesh bags in the same gate-top style.

FIVE OUT OF TWENTY-SEVEN APPLICANTS ACCEPTED

The following named men were enlisted in the United States navy at the local recruiting station during the month of July: C. E. Jennings, E. Grant, R. C. Nolan, B. F. Hardin, G. O. Watson. These men were accepted out of twenty-seven that were examined. They were sent from here to Dallas where they passed the final examination and were sworn in and transferred to San Francisco for duty.

Most People Use Van Camps Catsup

That particular brand seems to have a snap and quality that appeals to the majority. It's just heavy enough to flow nicely from the bottle and it's very rich and appetizing. Two size bottles—15c, 25c. Most people keep a bottle in reserve. It never spoils before opening.

The European war is now a few days older than a year, and more than 8,000,000 have been killed, but not a king or ruler among them.

Dallas has secured Billy Sunday for a seven-week campaign beginning early next fall. Withstanding the great evangelist had stated very positively only a few months ago that all his time was engaged for the next two years.

On August 14th there will be held at Galveston a conference of the presidents of all banking associations in the south for the purpose of making arrangements to finance the cotton crop of this year.

Wm. Capps, principal owner of the Fort Worth Record, has instituted suit against the Fort Worth Publishing Co., publishers of the Star-Telegram asking for damages to the amount of $150,000.

Philadelphia Record: It is inconceivable to the normal mind that a man standing on the brink of the next world, with certain knowledge of the imminence of his death, should protest to the last minute his innocence of the crime for which he was about to die.

The first anniversary of the beginning of the war elicits from the leading statesmen of each belligerent a statement of results accomplished and a declaration of future purpose.

Just now the newspapers of this state and other states are commenting editorially and hardly without exception condemning the burning of the negro at Temple one night last week on the public square and with the approval of 10,000 cheering Bell county citizens who had gathered on the scene.

Mr. Editor:—Have conditions reached a point in Wichita Falls where a working man may not even cast his vote without first consulting his employer and the powers that be?

Speaking of the recent advance of ten cents on the barrel for crude oil, the Tulsa Democrat has the following to say:

There is intense excitement about the hotel lobby and everybody is in the best of humor owing to the good news posted by the Prairie Oil & Gas company this morning.

The Prairie has posted a ten cent advance in the price of its oil, which now makes it 50 cents per barrel. This is the best news in a year. Nothing so much pleases the ear of the average oil man as an advance in the market. Business will improve from now on and by the time the hot weather is over and the vacation season passed, it may be anticipated that work will have greatly improved with the outlook for a busy winter very good.

The rise of ten cents in the posted price of oil in the Mid-Continent field was not unexpected by well posted producers. Conditions seemed to justify it and other raises may follow. The history of the rise and fall of prices of crude petroleum shows that whenever the pipe lines are getting less oil than their capacity, prices go up, whenever there is more oil being produced than the pipe lines can conveniently handle, prices go down.

Since the wonderful production of the Cushing field overwhelmed the carrying capacity of the pipe lines, the pipe line facilities for carrying oil from this field to the big eastern refineries and seaports has been greatly increased. The field estimate on the Cushing production for August 5, 1914 was 155,000 barrels.

Of course, if the Paden well had indicated another gusher field in that vicinity, the story would probably have been quite different.

The best feature of the situation is that, barring the discovery of another gusher field—and such pools are not often found—other raises will naturally follow. But even this ten cent raise will start a lot of talk, for it will be adding very materially to the profits of those properties that have been paying expenses during the depression and putting many properties that have been paying no profit on a money making basis.

A GOOD JOB. Buffalo News: A certain cottage and its old mistress had improved so greatly in comfort and appearance that a visitor shrewdly surmised that the son of the house, a lazy ne'er-do-well, had turned over a new leaf. He inquired about it. "Yes, sir, my son's in work now," said the smiling old mother. "Makes good money, he does, too. All he has to do is to go twice a day to the circus and put his head in the lion's mouth. The rest of 'is time 'e has to himself."

WAS THIS MAN GUILTY. Philadelphia Record: It is inconceivable to the normal mind that a man standing on the brink of the next world, with certain knowledge of the imminence of his death, should protest to the last minute his innocence of the crime for which he was about to die.

BRITAIN'S REPLY IS MADE PUBLIC

HOLDS THAT NEW KINDS OF WARFARE JUSTIFIES NEW METHODS IN BLOCKADE.

PRECEDENT OF U. S. CITED

Action of American Government in Stopping Goods to Mexico in the Civil War is Referred to.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Great Britain's reply to the latest American representations against interference with neutral commerce rejects entirely the contention that the orders in council are illegal and justify the British course as being wholly within international law.

"Unsoundable either in point of law, or upon principles of international equity" is the British reply to the American protest against the blockade of neutral ports, with an invitation to submit to international arbitration any cases in which the United States is dissatisfied with the action of British prize courts.

Great Britain's reply, embodied in two notes, one supplementally was made public here and in London simultaneously by agreement between the two governments. With the notes was made public also the correspondence over the American steamer Neches, seized by the British while en route from Rotterdam to the United States with goods of German origin. All the correspondence aggregates 7,000 words.

Conditions of Warfare Radically Changed.

Changed conditions of warfare, the British note contends, require a new application of the principles of international law. The advent of the submarine, the airship and the alleged atrocities by German troops in Belgium are cited as justification for the exercise of extreme measures. The blockade is justified on the contention that the universally recognized fundamental principle of a blockade is that a belligerent is entitled to cut off by effective means the sea borne commerce of his enemy.

The note reiterates that Great Britain will continue to apply the orders complained of, although not without every effort to avoid embarrassment to neutrals, and observes that the American statistics show that any loss in trade with Germany and Austria has been more than overbalanced by the increase of other industrial activities due to the war.

Asserts Old Principles Under New Conditions.

In the general reply to the American representatives against the orders in council, Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, addressing Ambassador Page, begins by expressing the hope that he may be able to convey the administration in Washington that "the measures we have announced are not only reasonable and necessary in themselves but constitute no more than an adaptation of the old principles of blockade to the peculiar circumstances with which we are confronted."

"I need scarcely dwell upon the obligations incumbent upon the allies," wrote Sir Edward, "to take every step in their power to overcome their common enemy in view of the shocking violation of the recognized rules and principles of civilized warfare of which he has been guilty during the present struggle."

Sir Edward then refers to alleged atrocities in Belgium, poisoning of wells in German-occupied Africa, use of poisonous gases against the allied troops in Flanders, and finally the sinking of the Lusitania, to show how indispensable it is that we should leave unused no justifiable method of defending ourselves.

Coming down to the question of the allied blockade of neutral ports, the note continues:

Unable to Accept America's Contentions.

"In the various notes which I have received from your excellency the right of a belligerent to establish a blockade of the enemy ports is admitted, a right which has obviously no value save insofar as it gives power to a belligerent to cut off the sea borne exports and imports of his enemy. The contention which I understand the United States government now puts forward is that if a belligerent is so circumstanced that his commerce can pass through adjacent neutral ports as easily as through ports in his own territory, his opponent has no right to interfere and must restrict his measures of blockade in such a manner as to leave such avenues of commerce still open."

tion which his majesty's government feels unable to accept and which seems to them unsustainable either in point of law or upon principles of international equity.

"They are unable to admit that a belligerent violates any fundamental principle of international law by applying a blockade in such a way as to cut off the enemy's commerce with foreign countries through neutral ports of the circumstances render such an application of the principles of blockade the only means of making it effective. The government of the United States, indeed, intimates its readiness to take into account the great changes which have occurred in the conditions and means of naval warfare since the rules hitherto governing legal blockade were formulated and recognizes that the form of close blockade, with its cordon of ships in the immediate vicinity of the blockaded ports is no longer practicable in the face of an enemy possessing the means and opportunity to make an effective defense by the use of submarines, mines and aircraft.

"The only question then which can arise in regard to the measures resorted to for the purpose of carrying out a blockade upon these extended lines is whether to use the excellency's words, 'they conform to the spirit and principles of the essence of the rules of war,' and we shall be content to apply this test to the action which we have taken in so far as it has necessitated interference with neutral commerce."

How Would You Like To Be Brakeman On Submarine Freight?

The success of the submarine in the great war of Europe has suggested to imaginative minds wonderful possibilities in the use of the submarine in the business world. It is now proposed to have submarine freight trains, which may be operated at small expense, and with less danger from storms at sea.

To Simon Lake, the well known submarine inventor, belongs this newest train idea. It takes the form of two or more submersible cars, cigar shaped, water tight, fitted with buoyancy tanks inside and wheels on the bottom, and they go bobbing through the water like corks, to rest on the bottom or lie on the surface at will. They have no propelling machine, no quarters for crews, and are towed behind a self-propelling submarine, which operates them by means of electric air tube connections.

Should the weather be fine, air pumps on the forward boat connecting by air hose to the water ballast tanks of the trailers, regulate whether they shall float a few feet below the surface or upon the top. Should an enemy be sighted, or storm come up, the air pressure is released, the ballast tanks filled with water and the cars quickly sink out of sight, where all is serene. It is said that some such device as this is now in operation with the submarines of Europe, enabling them to go long distances, with submarine trailers that contain compartments for fuel, oil, fresh water, food supplies and ammunition.—National Magazine.

BIG PEACH CROP BEING PICKED AT THORNBERRY

Elberta Peaches Bringing 50 Cents per Bushel at Orchards—Others Sell at 65 Cents.

The Elberta peach crop is now being picked in this section. In most orchards the yield is bountiful and the quality good. Hundreds of pickers are visiting the Stevenson, Bentley, Riggs and other famous orchards in the Thornberry section daily and the road from Wichita Falls to Thornberry is almost a continuous stream of wagons and other vehicles bringing back peaches.

Elbertas are generally bringing 50 cents a bushel at the orchards while a white freestone peach is selling at 25 cents a bushel. Despite the big demand hundreds of bushels of peaches are going to waste in the Thornberry section because they cannot be marketed as rapidly as they ripen. Drove of pigs have been turned loose in some of the orchards but even the hogs haven't sufficient capacity to keep the ground free from fallen peaches.

A number of growers in the Thornberry district are operating home canning plants some of them having a capacity of a hundred or more quarts daily. These are now in full operation.

The product being hand packed and carefully inspected is said to be superior to the best quality of peaches that come from the California canneries and the Thornberry canners have no trouble in disposing of their canned peaches at attractive prices.

SEVENTH STREET MAY BE PAVED TO COURT HOUSE

Eighth and Ninth Streets Also May Be Paved to Lamar—Move Also to Pave Lamar.

The paving of Seventh street from Lamar to Scott is now practically assured, most of the property owners along that block having agreed to let the work proceed. Work is already under way on the paving of the Scott-Lamar block on Ninth, and it is possible that the same block on Eighth will be paved as a number of the property owners are anxious for it. If all three streets are paved, an effort will be made to have Lamar paved from Seventh to Tenth.

As soon as the work on Scott and adjoining streets is finished, Contractor Roberts will start to work on Tenth street, where the paving is to be extended as far as Kemp boulevard.

New York Cotton Futures.

By Associated Press. New York, Aug. 4.—Relatively firm cables were followed by an opening advance of two to three points but their influence was offset to a small extent by reports of further rains in the eastern belt and trading here was very quiet with fluctuations narrow and irregular during the early session. Offerings were light during the entire morning and the market gradually worked higher on Liverpool buying.

Chicago Grain Futures.

By Associated Press. Chicago, Aug. 4.—Black rust reports becoming more numerous gave the wheat market today a decided upturn. According to one expert 50 per cent of the crop in South Dakota was in danger. Opening prices ranged from ¼ off to ¼ up. Abnormally cool weather made the corn market higher. Oats rose as a result of rains. The fact that country offerings were next to nothing tended to keep the wheat market on the upgrade. The close was steady at 1½ to 2½ and 2½ above last night. Wheat, Sept. $1.08 3/4; Dec. $1.09 1/2; May, $1.14 1/2. Corn, Sept. 76c; Dec., 75c; May, 67c. Oats, Sept. 42 1/2; Dec., 42 1/2; May, 45 1/2.

Our Contagious Accent.
"Speaking with a strong American accent," a navy man has returned as a deserter for service here after seven years across the Atlantic. Seven years! Why seven weeks will do the trick. What is known as the "American accent"—and it differs as widely as the American continent—is the most infectious in the world. A couple of months, as I know personally, is sufficient to alter the pitch of voice, and no man comes back from America without being detected in his speech, which has unconsciously caught the pitch. He gets over it in time. But Britain has never succeeded in imposing its lingual pitch on America.—London Chronicle.

VERDUN FORTRESS IS AN UNDERGROUND CITY

Trenches Run for Many Miles and Have Every Convenience For the Troops.

Verdun, via Paris, Aug. 4.—The German hammering at Verdun, the fortress on which the drive of a year ago went to pieces like a wave on a rock, may continue for years and years without making the slightest impression.

The underground life with which the trench combats of this war have familiarized the world and to which the modern soldiers already are accustomed here has reached its climax in an immense underground city prepared for the defenders of the "key to northern France."

Miles upon miles of streets, alleys and public squares, chambers stocked with wine, flour and tinned meats, lodgings, recreation rooms, a bakery equipped to make bread for 50,000 men, heat, light and telephones like a modern apartment house have been constructed beneath the smiling, unrevealing surface of the meadows of the valley, of the Meuse surrounding France's barrier which has been placed in the path of whoever attacks from Metz.

A entire army corps easily can be accommodated underground with everything necessary for its livelihood for months and an abundance of ammunition. The last violent bombardment by the German long range guns was a marked effort. The stronghold was not even scarred. Nor are the Germans so near as one has an idea. The correspondent this morning visited the trenches facing the most advanced lines ten miles out beyond Cumiers near Champneville, situated at the bend of the Meuse. The French position, on a hill, is exceedingly strong and can be held by a comparatively inconsiderable force. It is being intermittently shelled by the Germans and one shell bursting in trench just ahead of the visiting party killed three soldiers. "The spirit of determination and the serene confidence of the men are inconceivable to those who have not seen them."

Believe Fort Impregnable.
They seem to feel that their positions are impregnable and that it is only a question of time when the Germans worn out by fruitless efforts to break their line, must give way. The anniversary of the commencement of the war was everywhere celebrated by the men.

GET TO THE CAUSE. Wichita Falls People Are Learning the Way.

There is but little peace or comfort for the man or woman with a bad back. The distress begins in early morning—keeps up throughout the day. It's hard to get out of bed, it's torture to stoop or straighten. Plasters and liniments may relieve, but cannot cure if the cause is inside—the kidneys. When suffering so, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the tested and proven kidney remedy, used in kidney troubles for over 50 years. Doan's Kidney Pills are recommended by thousands for just such cases. Proof of their effectiveness in the testimony of this Wichita Falls resident:

Mrs. J. H. Gibson, 309 Lee St., Wichita Falls, says: "I suffered badly from my back. My feet and ankles were slightly swollen and I was terribly dizzy. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they restored my kidneys to a normal condition. The dropsical swellings were reduced and my back felt stronger. I haven't had any trouble to speak of since."

GERMANY GETTING READY TO FLOAT NEW LOANS.

Berlin, Aug. 4.—The chief business of the Reichstag, when it assembles Aug. 19, will be to vote new war credits. While details of the new bonds have not been arranged, it is assumed in banking circles that the amount, like that of the last loan, will be unlimited. The rate will be 5 per cent, but the subscription price is expected to be somewhat above 99 per cent, as compared with 98 1/4 for the March loan. Prospects for the success of the new loan are regarded as highly satisfactory. The great German banks say they have completely sold out their holdings of the two previous war loans and have unusually heavy deposits. These recently were swollen so abnormally that the Berlin banks a short time ago reduced the rate paid on current deposits to the normal level.

AUSTRIANS MAY ATTEMPT TO INVADE ITALY

Rome, Aug. 4.—That Austria will begin a determined attempt to invade northern Italy through the Adige valley when the Warsaw campaign is ended is the information brought to Rome from several Swiss frontier towns.

From some sources it is reported that the massing of Austrian troops and guns between Trent and Rovereto has already begun. This was partially corroborated in the last official dispatches from General Cadorna, who said, observers have reported the arrival of troop trains at the Rovereto station.

At several points along the Tyrolean frontier, particularly in Lerdor valley, small Austrian forces have attempted to take the offensive, but have been repulsed in every attack. These assaults, it is generally believed here were for the purpose of feeling out the strength of the Italian positions inside the Austrian frontier.

HIS FIRST PAIR OF GLASSES

Man Thought He Was "Seeing Things," and Unjustly Blamed His New Aids to Vision. It happened in Boston. He had gone there to get fitted to some eye-glasses. It was the first time he used them and when the oculist handed them to him he remarked that he guessed he would put them on and wear them.

But the man put them on just the same, paid the bill, left the office and started down the street. Everything went fine. He could see everything in sight with clearness and distinction. He turned into Winter street and threaded his way through the throng. Suddenly something seemed to go wrong. Standing out from the rest of the crowd appeared an enormous man. He towered high above everyone else on the street. The man again focused his gaze, thinking it was a trick of fancy. But there loomed the big man, feet above him. With a startled exclamation he jumped to the conclusion that his glasses were the trouble. He snatched them from his nose and with his naked eyes looked again.

There he saw the giant man still approaching on high stilts and bearing placards of invitation from his employer. It was no fantasy of the glasses, after all. But he did not put them on again until after he reached home. "I had all I wanted of 'seeing things,'" he remarked.

ITALY UNDER MANY RULERS

Fertile Land, During the Centuries, Has Been Prize Worth the Expenditure of Blood. Charlemagne tacked Italy to his unwieldy empire and left it to his weakling son, Lothair, by the treaty of Verdun in 843. The peninsula enjoyed a measure of peace for some years, then petty counts and dukes began a series of internecine wars which continued until Otto the Great marched into Rome in 962 and forced the pope to place the imperial crown of gold on his head. That was the beginning of the Germanic holy Roman empire. It established a precedent for the German emperors, and they continued bringing their armies across the Alps to feast on Italy's plenty until Conradin, the last of the Hohenstaufens, was defeated in 1268. The Hapsburgs then took up the pursuit of Italy.

The feudal system never gained a firm hold in Italy, which lightened the labor of Germanic commerce. In 1056 the pope and the free commercial cities made a common defense against the emperor. They had more or less success until Frederick Barbarossa swept down on the land and buried all opposition. The Lombardy league collapsed in 1167, and Italy became as much a German province as Alsace is today. No German emperor in those days rested content until the pope had placed the imperial crown on his head—first the silver crown at Aix la Chapelle, then the iron crown of Lombardy, and then the one at Rome.

Suspicious Characters. At a station in northern Pennsylvania a number of young ministers, proceeding to a religious conference in Philadelphia, boarded a coach where in there was a dilapidated young woman smelling of beer. For some time the young men in black garb conversed gravely on conference affairs, while the beery young woman nodded in her corner.

The train approached a long tunnel. The young woman roused herself. She pinned back lazily a long strand of hair that had fallen on her shoulder, and fixed her gaze upon the ministers. Then she produced from her basket a huge bread knife. Making a few unsteady lunges in the air with this implement, she addressed the reverend gentlemen thus: "Don't none of you boys try no tricks on me in the tunnel, or mark my words, I'll open ye!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Let Us Do the Baking

This extremely hot weather it is a bad policy for women to try to do the family baking, especially when they can get good, FRESH HOME-MADE BREAD, right out of the oven and wrapped in sanitary packages. Telephone and our auto will stop and demonstrate the quality of our bread.

THE DOLLAR In the standard by which values are measured in this country. But do you always get a dollar's worth for your dollar? The dollar is the measure used in our cleaning and pressing department. To call and get your suit, clean and press it and return it to your home is the dollar's worth at our shop. We could get more but we feel in our bones that a dollar is just right. And our cleaning is just as RIGHT as the Dollar. No dingy rings where the spot was. No grease spots show up the third wearing. We made the price a dollar. We made a dollar the price. And we give you more for your dollar than you can get elsewhere. You don't have to phone us but one time about your suit.
