300 LOST IN TORPEDOING OF ANCONA, ITALIAN BOAT

Liner Sinks In Mediterranean Following Attack By Submarine Flying Austrian Flag

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 10.—A dispatch to Lloyds from Bizerta says that 300 persons on the Ancona were drowned. Most of those lost, the message says were women and children emigrants; 130 survivors have thus far reached Bizerta.

STATE DEPARTMENT IS AWAITING DETAILS.

By Associated Press.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—Secretary Lansing indicated today that if official word is not received within a reasonable time on the sinking of the Ancona, the department will inquire into the affair through the embassy at Rome. D. B. Mason, consul at Algiers, who was 300 miles east of Bizerta, is the American consular officer nearest the scene of the torpedoing. Two Italian-Americans sailed from Naples on the steamship Ancona, according to a dispatch to the state department today from Consul White. One of them was Mrs. Francesca Mascolo Lamur, and the other was an infant child.

AMERICANS SAID TO BE AMONG VICTIMS.

By Associated Press.

Rome, Nov. 10.—The Italian liner Ancona, sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine, had on board 83 first cabinet passengers, 60 second cabinet passengers and 339 steerage passengers. Some of the passengers are said to have been Americans. The submarine which sank the Ancona is said to have been a large one, flying the Austrian colors.

Boat Leaves Pensacola Mysteriously, With German Sailors and is Believed to Have Supply of Copper on Board.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The American steamer Zealandia was forcibly searched by a party from a British cruiser last week, while lying in the port of Progreso, Mexico. The American consul there reports the cruiser now is lying outside, presumably waiting to seize the ship.

On the face of such a report as the consul sent, even though incomplete, the conclusion here is that the British naval authorities not only violated Mexican neutrality, but far exceeded their rights in forcibly searching an American ship in a neutral port. The Zealandia figured much of late in reports of the British investigators who were on the trail of ships supposed to be fitting out in the United States for attacking oil carrying ships from Mexican fields, where the British navy draws a great proportion of its supply of fuel oil.

On October 7, the Zealandia mysteriously left Pensacola, Fla., at night, clearing for Tampico, Mexico, carrying a large stock of provisions and manned principally by a crew of Germans. An American flag painted on her hull had been painted over and it was reported that while at sea she flew the German colors, though that was flatly denied by her owners. The ship moved from Tampico to Campeche, where British agents located her and reported she bore a large quantity of rosin for which there was no ostensible use in Mexico, though it is used largely in making shrapnel.

They also reported their suspicion that she bore a large quantity of copper and the British idea was that the ship was waiting for an opportunity to slip out with its cargo for some port where it would find its way to Great Britain's enemies.

TEUTONS TIGHTEN HOLD UPON SERBIA; BULGARIANS LOSE

DEFENDERS' POSITION IN NORTH MUCH WORSE, BUT ALLIES HAVE WON VICTORY OF SOME IMPORTANCE IN SOUTH

INVADERS CONTROL RAILROADS

Only One Small Section of Line Through Belgrade in Serbian Hands and This is Expected to Be Attacked Shortly

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 10.—The Serbian situation grows steadily worse in the north but offers fresh grounds for encouragement in the south. All the important railway lines through Nish that remains in Serbian hands is a small section near Aleksinac, north of Nish, and this is threatened by the Bulgarian advance to the Morava river, and the southward drive of the German forces from Kruzevac, both converging upon Aleksinac, where it seems likely that a junction soon will be effected.

South of Nish the railway is undoubtedly in the hands of the Bulgarians as far as Velez, since Leskocav has been recently taken by them, but north of Velez near Krivopalce the situation has taken a turn decidedly more favorable for the allies. The Bulgarians are still attacking this point, but Saloniki dispatches report they have been driven back four times and the net result of the Bulgarians' desperate attempt to work themselves behind the Serbian army has been heavy losses without the gain of a foot of territory.

French and British troops figured conspicuously in this Belgian repulse, and it is confidently believed here that, reinforced by troops now arriving in large numbers, a decisive offensive by the allies will be possible soon.

The loan by the allies to Greece, definitely announced today, will, it is thought, tend to cement friendly sentiment and by showing the confidence of the entente powers in Greece, do more than offset the territory or other inducements to quicken the country's benevolent inclinations into positive action.

Reports differ as to the probability of the dissolution of the present Greek chamber, some stating that dissolution is imminent and a declaration on the point of being promulgated. Others say that former Premier Venizelos and his party are prepared to support the Skoufoudis cabinet. General opinion seems to be that all the elements are anxious to avoid a political contest under the present disturbed conditions.

GOVERNOR FERGUSON BECOMES ISSUE IN BELL COUNTY FIGHT

CHARGES THAT PROHIBITIONISTS THERE ARE SEEKING TO DISCREDIT HIS ADMINISTRATION—WILL TAKE PART IN FIGHT.

CONTEST BEING HOTLY WAGED

Charges and Counter Charges, Denials and Recriminations Flying Thick and Fast—'Cyclone' Davis Involved in Campaign.

Special to The Times.

Temple, Tex., Nov. 10.—A local option campaign is being waged in Bell county that makes the recent argument in Wichita county look like 20 cents. The governor of the state, an United States senator, a congressman, preachers and speakers of more than state wide fame, and others have been brought into the campaign for speeches and statements. The election takes place next Saturday and the campaign has already reached "Another Lie Nailed" and "You're Another" stage.

Tomorrow Governor Ferguson "is coming home" as the anti advertisements state "to expose the political plot of the Anti Saloon League." The day's say that the controversy has been "duped" by his pretended friends at liquor headquarters and has been dragged into an absolutely false situation. They declare that Governor Ferguson was supported by hundreds of prohibitionists in Bell county and that "by coming back home to fight there on a local issue which the liquorites themselves have manufactured Governor Ferguson is placing himself in the light of a political infractor for which he can make no satisfactory explanation.

"We now offer Governor Ferguson or the liquor headquarters $500 reward to find one man in Bell county who has been asked by any member of the prohibition campaign committee to vote dry to discredit Governor Ferguson in his home county," says the prohibition advertisement.

"Have done Governor Ferguson a mean political trick which his honor and manhood ought justly to resent and denounce." The anti committee advertises that Governor Ferguson, "will in the course of his fight against the prohibitionists, have to face the Antis Saloon League, Reverend Ham and those others who have seen fit to make his administration an issue in this campaign. The anti committee further invites the pro committee to come out over the signatures of his constituents and announce their state that Governor Ferguson is not an issue; that he has made a good governor and that they will support him for a second term.

Will "Meet His Detractors." Advertising his meetings, of which there will be five, at the state stage, "he will meet his detractors face to face; he will defend his administration and show up the plot existing between the Anti Saloon League and his personal and political enemies to embarrass him and his administration through this campaign. The pro committee has offered $200 for a joint debate between Governor Ferguson and Cyclone Davis, or for a debate by any anti speaker with Davis.

The anti, in the last few days of the campaign seem to have taken the initiative to use a military term—brought on by the election committee has offered a reward of $200 for a statement declaring Governor Ferguson and Cyclone Davis, or for a debate by any anti speaker with Davis. The anti committee also charged that "Reverend Ham works and cooperates with the Anti-Saloon League. Rev. Ham is a signed statement declaring that he has never been anywhere in the United States, or in the world, under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League, and offered $1,000 to any person proving that he had.

Sheppard's Name Used. The anti committee charged that telegrams and statements made by Senator Sheppard while at the border were part of an organized effort to discredit the Governor. Senator Sheppard in comment on the president's recent quotation from the Scriptures in support of his advocacy of military preparedness. The same quotation had been used by Col. Roosevelt in a recent article, he said.

NEW EMPEROR OF JAPAN ASSUMES OFFICE TODAY FOLLOWING ANCIENT AND QUANT CUSTOMS OF LAND

Announces Assumption of Office to Assembled Dignitaries Amid Rare Scene of Oriental Magnificence

By Associated Press.

Kioto, Nov. 10.—Politics of an unusual type failed to prevent Japan's "grand old man" Premier Count Shigenobu Okuma, from playing a leading role this afternoon at the second great coronation ceremony when Emperor Yoshihito announced his accession to the people of the realm.

Incensed at Okuma's retention in power, despite revelations of corruption during the cabinet crisis of last summer, members of the parliamentary opposition launched a campaign based upon a curious superstition. They argued that in conducting the ceremony of the coronation of the Emperor the principle of purity should prevail throughout. Any form of imperfection must be scrupulously avoided, any physical disability or deformity was a form of imperfection.

A co-related objection inspired by ultra-conservatives among the Shinto ritualists who feared the endangering of the sanctity of the imperial throne was based on the idea that the alleged political corruption which forced the retirement of Viscount Okuma in the Okuma ministry was irreconcilable with the principle guiding the sacred ceremonies of coronation. These objections were generally received with ridicule by the people, the campaign of the opposition collapsed utterly and Count Okuma representing the now constitutionally governed people of Japan participated in this afternoon's ceremony as a figure second only in importance to the Emperor himself and the members of the imperial family.

Emperor's Announcement. In the morning Emperor Yoshihito had informed the spirit of his imperial grand ancestor of his formal accession and of his acquisition of the Three Sacred Treasures. This afternoon's ceremony belonged in a special way to the people for it was dedicated to the purpose of announcing to them the accession of the Mikado. The Emperor actually mounted the throne and read an address to his subjects who, as during the morning rites, were represented by the members of the Diet, governors of prefectures and the mayors of the cities of Kioto and Tokio. The function was held in the renowned Shishinden Hall where the illustrious monarch, Mutsuhito became Emperor and which, except for reconstruction in several directions, retained its ancient simplicity and beauty. Shishinden, which signifies "purple hall of mystery" faces south and is made of the sacred kinko

YOUNG YOSHIHITO FORMALLY ACCEPTS RULERSHIP TODAY

CEREMONY OBSERVED THROUGHOUT EMPIRE—EMPRESS NOT ABLE TO PARTICIPATE IN RITES OF OCCASION.

NO CROWN OR OFFICIAL OATH

Merely Announces to Spirits of Imperial Ancestors that He Has Ascended Throne—Ancient Rites Are Followed in Coronation.

By Associated Press.

Tokio, Nov. 10.—Yoshihito was confirmed or consecrated Emperor of Japan in Kioto, the ancient capital, today, and in every city, town and village throughout the Empire, wherever indeed, a Japanese was to be found, the event was celebrated in some fitting manner. The Japanese call the consecration "Go Tairei," or the Great Ceremony, implying the greatest of all national ceremonies. When they are speaking English they refer to it as the Coronation.

The new sovereign neither subscribed to oaths nor took a hereditary crown upon his head. No clergyman, priest or archbishop officiated as the intermediary between Heaven and Earth.

Here the Emperor himself is supreme. Here the coronation takes the form of announcing to the spirits of the imperial ancestors that he has formally succeeded to the emperorship, that he has come into possession of the three Divine Treasures, and that he has actually ascended the throne and duty through the throne he announces to his subjects that he has been consecrated as Emperor.

Empress Not Present. There is no break in the sovereignty over the Japanese Empire. When the Emperor Mutsuhito passed away his son Yoshihito on July 30, 1913—immediately acceded to the throne and duly acquired the Sacred Treasures. Simultaneously the new ruler, who was today consecrated, received his ministers of state and members of the court and proclaimed his reign as that of "Taisho" or "Era of Great Righteousness."

Mourning for the Emperor Meiji, who caused a postponement of the coronation ceremonies, and today they were conducted without the presence of the Empress Sadako, consort of the Emperor, who is soon expected to present another heir to the throne. Commemoration of the coronation is found in many other directions. The government issued a special series of postage stamps and picture postcards and presented special coronation medals to all participating in the various ceremonies. This medal is of silver. On the front is engraved a golden chrysanthemum with a branch of the citron and sacred cherry tree on either side. On the back are inscribed twelve Chinese characters meaning "Coronation Commemorative Medal," and the date, "Eleventh Month of Fourth Year of Taisho."

Officials and clerks in the service of the government contributed one and a half per cent of their salary to present suitable gifts to the Emperor and Empress. The army gave a miniature field piece and the navy a miniature ship.

Weddings Mark Occasion. Congratulatory lanterns were hung at every house in the Empire. Thousands of betrothed have hastened their marriage so that it may occur during the auspicious year of coronation and be sanctified by prosperity, health and joy.

Prior to the commencement of today's ceremony an imperial messenger was dispatched here from the imperial headquarters in Kioto to announce the celebration of the coronation ceremony before the Korei-den, a shrine dedicated to the souls of the imperial predecessors, and the Shin-den, another shrine dedicated to the souls of the imperial ancestors in the prehistoric deity period. The ceremony before the shrines, which are located in the imperial palace, was conducted in a solemn manner according to Shinto ritual by court officials. Imperial messengers were also dispatched from Kioto on similar missions to the great shrines at Ise and to the principal Shinto shrines throughout the country, where similar ceremonies were performed this morning. The imperial messengers to the prefectural shrines (there are 36 state shrines in each province) were represented by prefectural governors.

The day was signified by informal meetings and reunions given by public or private corporations in honor of the occasion.

sun while south of the orange tree was a banner of white brocade worked with the figure of the moon. Next to the sun banner was a larger banner with the pattern of the "Good omened Clouds of Five Colors" and an embroidered figure of the Yarasarasu or eight headed crow which traditionally is supposed to have guided the first Emperor Jimmu Tenno in a successful expedition against native tribesmen.

the land ascended the throne as the founder of the dynasty. On the banners the golden ideographs for Banzai appeared under five figures of the fish.

in front of the row of banners stood ancient gongs and drums, each hung on a stand decorated with the figure of a flame which, according to Japanese mythology, is masculine and positive and implies magnificence and grandeur. Also, were seen ten halberds, each with a golden sword guard, a black lacquered shaft, and a bannerlet of scarlet brocade bearing a gold woven crest.

The stage setting now was almost complete—the banners and flags posted at regular intervals attended by their guards or warriors. With their robes of varied hues, their ancient armor, their bows and arrows their coronets and their cockades they made up an ancient oriental picture which could only enchant the occidental spectators.

All preparatory arrangements having been concluded the officials in charge beat the gongs and drums in the courtyard. The high officials, civil and military, peers, foreign ambassadors and ministers, other dignitaries and their wives who were assembled at the waiting hall were ushered to the high corridor about the hall, the doors of which were all thrown open.

When these officials and dignitaries had taken their seats there entered the grand master and vice grand master of ceremonies, accompanied by junior masters of ceremonies, all attired in ancient court robes with decorated swords at their sides. They took their positions on the southern corridor. Next came the chief and vice chief of the coronation committee and the prime minister and the minister of the household. Subsequently there appeared the Crown Prince, princes of the blood and other male members of the imperial family who stood on the platform in front of the imperial throne.

The Crown Prince, who is only fifteen years of age, was a very fascinating figure. His robe was the same as worn by ancient courtiers. It was five folded kimono of figured silk of reddish brown color. The design was ducks nests. The kimono showed the edges of a pair of white hakuri trousers woven with figures of half stones. The kimono was encircled with a jewel band or belt inlaid with eleven pure white agates from Hokkaido, each agate carrying an engraving of a mandarin duck. The Crown Prince carried a small wooden scepter.

As the spectators entered they were able to see the throne of the Emperor standing in relief from the central part of the Shishinden and facing the south—a dazzling object of purple, gold and crimson. The floor of the hall was covered with rich brocade of gorgons, blue and from the northern steps of the throne a series of fine matings was observed leading to the inner halls of the palace, for the access of the imperial retinue. On the wall between ceiling and floor there hung a lot of the sun framed in brocade and bearing the clouds of good omen. The dais for the seat of the Empress was provided on the platform to the east of the imperial throne.

A great stillness followed as the last beat of gong died away. Then the Emperor appeared from the recesses of the palace. He wore a regal vestment of dark orange colored silk. The Japanese describe it as "the yellowish red brown colored august robe." The hue is supposed to be that presented by the sun when in the morn it has just risen above the horizon. The dress gave an impression of massiveness and its general form might be described as cubist. This effect was heightened by the huge square cut wide sleeves and the pair of lacquer half low wooden shoes which just showed under the hem of the kimono.

The material of the robe, which was half Japanese, half Chinese in origin, was a silk fabric of rarest weave and texture. The design, cannily interwoven, consisted of the bamboo tree surmounted by the leaves of the sacred paulownia tree which is the secondary crest of the imperial house, the chrysanthemum being the first. About the trees were figures of the kirin, a fabulous Chinese animal resembling a small griffin and the mythical, nine-tailed Chinese bird—both of which, according to Chinese tradition, are symbols of the wise and enlightened ruler. On the Emperor's head rested the imperial hat or coronet made of silk with a pennant of silk gauze extending upright somewhat after the manner of a very high top knot.

Attire is Fantastic. Beneath the skirt of the robe could be seen the bottom of white silk trousers which reached to the ankles and were made of white silk damask lined with scarlet silk. Another pair of trousers worn inside just showed their edges, likewise of white silk. A loose tunic with a short front and the sides slit formed in the rear a long trailing train. In front it was folded over in a flap. Around the kimono was girded a belt of black leather inlaid with flat precious stones, chiefly jade. The tones were visible only at the back.

The Emperor's robe was an interesting contrast to that adopted in earlier coronations when it was identical with that worn by the Emperors of China on similar occasions. The dragon, sun, moon, stars, mountain, gheasant and other figures conceived as good omens were embroidered on the Chinese robe. The last Emperor Mutsuhito abolished Chinese robes as he did Chinese customs, and at his own coronation ceremony donned a kimono of pure white. The Emperor's robes as seen today was a combination of Japanese and Chinese. The color and design were designated by the provision of the imperial accession law enacted during the reign of the late Emperor.

The Emperor was followed by two chamberlains who carried the sacred sword and divine jewel and by the lord chamberlain and other officials. Ascends Beautiful Throne.

The Emperor, ascending the northern staircase leading to the imperial throne took his seat provided under the dome. The chamberlains placed the sacred sword and jewel on the tables to the right and left of the imperial throne within the curtains. Then they handed His Majesty a baton or scepter made of ichi wood. This the Emperor held upright and rigid against the lower part of his chest giving an appearance of dignity, which is its object. The throne which is called Takamiku in Japanese language expressed all that is beautiful in Japanese art. It possessed great importance because the Emperor's ascension there signified his formal coronation as the ruler of the Japanese Empire. The throne was of wood covered with lacquer being mounted on another base dais 20 feet by 18 feet. The base dais had three steps each to the right, left and rear and exquisite crimson lacquered railings on all sides. The front side of the great base was decorated with three pictures representing the classical bird, the phoenix and two animals, the dragon and the tapir. These pictures were all painted in beautiful colors on a golden background. The surface of the base dais was covered with green brocade. The first and second steps of the dais were spread with scarlet and the third with green brocade. Hereupon was placed the imperial dais, which was crowned with an eight cornered dome and which was surrounded with a beautiful purple curtain whose design was the "holly-hock."

Dome Beautifully Decorated. The top of the dome was covered with black lacquer and was crowned with a blazing gold phoenix with outspread wings. The eaves all round the dome were decorated with silver mirrors, small and large, and at each corner stood a gold phoenix, smaller in shape than that at the pinnacle. Each side of the octagonal or dome was decorated with the figure of a blazing phoenix with outspread wings. The design, cannily interwoven, consisted of the bamboo tree surmounted by the leaves of the sacred paulownia tree which is the secondary crest of the imperial house, the chrysanthemum being the first. TEXAN PRAISES PREMIER PREPARATION

Dallas, Texas, Nov. 8.—Mr. R. M. Harper, who lives 130 Jefferson street, Dallas, is one of the most earnest of the hundreds in this section who praise the premier preparation, Tanlac, for the good that it has done them.

Mr. Harper said: "Why shouldn't I be grateful to Tanlac and praise its merits to all my friends, when this new medicine has accomplished more good for me than everything else I have tried combined?"

"I could hardly eat anything as I had lost nearly all my appetite. I was losing weight, was all run down and very pallid. I simply dragged along and my run down condition caused me to become nervous which is unusual. I saw Tanlac advertised and also took a friend's advice and decided to try it. My relief was so rapid that I was astonished."

"I have taken one bottle of the new medicine and now feel as well as I ever did in my life. I have gained five pounds in weight, have a healthy, hearty appetite, have no indigestion and my nervous condition is a thing of the past. As a general tonic for a run down condition, I think that Tanlac is the greatest medicine I ever tried. The bottle that I have taken was worth much more than the purchase price to me."

corridor of the hall and descending to the courtyard stood there facing the throne.

Announcement is Read. The Emperor then read an edict announcing his accession to the throne as ruler of the Empire. It was an address to his subjects and at the same time a communication to the powers of the world that he had been consecrated as Mikado, or speaking more truly that he had consecrated himself as Mikado.

To his people Yoashito announced that following the example of his imperial ancestors he hoped to promote the welfare and happiness of the nation and that he would strive for the advancement of the state and at the same time endeavor to strengthen the basis of national prosperity with the support and cooperation of his loyal subjects.

In former times this edict was read out by a court official in the courtyard.

When the Emperor had concluded, the prime minister ascended the hall from the southern staircase and standing directly in front of the throne made a response to the imperial address congratulating His Majesty on his coronation and wishing the everlasting prosperity and perpetuity of the imperial reign. The prime minister then returned where the Banzai flag was planted and raised his hand.

Banzai is Heard. Instantly the thrilling national cry "Banzai" swelled from the throats of all. The cry was heard outside the palace and in accordance with previous arrangement was taken up by the multitudes in the street.

The Emperor followed by his retinue left the hall and amid reverent bows from the spectators departed from the palace while the gongs pealed and drums rolled.

The time of the acclamation was estimated beforehand to be three o'clock and in pursuance of an understanding Japanese throughout the nation and its dependencies—indeed wherever they might be found throughout the world—precisely at the hour of three raised the cry of "Banzai" in salutation of their sovereign and Mikado—Son of Heaven—Ruler Eternal.

The robe in which the Empress would have appeared had she been present was created by the court couturiers and is described as follows:

The dress was a scarlet kimono of five thicknesses made of silk damask exquisitely embroidered. It was not actually of five thicknesses throughout but only at the edges of the sleeves and skirt, the idea being to give the appearance of five separate robes worn one over the other. The kimono was long and trailing but disclosed in front the exceedingly wide hakama or Japanese divided skirt trousers which were so wide as to resemble a very full skirt and which completely hid the feet. Over the shoulders was placed a short outer garment called the hariginu and resembling a mantle.

The imperial princesses wore the same ancient coronation robes this afternoon as during the morning ritual ceremony, their hair unbound and hanging straight. The robes of the court ladies who represented the Empress and who made obeisance at the proper times in her behalf were of the same general style as the Emperor's robe though different in color and without certain features designed for royalty. The court ladies were grouped near the throne and with the princesses and the pooresses of the realm, who were also present, forming a group of gorgons and fascinating features of this historic tableau of old Japan.

It was not actually of five thicknesses throughout but only at the edges of the sleeves and skirt, the idea being to give the appearance of five separate robes worn one over the other. The kimono was long and trailing but disclosed in front the exceedingly wide hakama or Japanese divided skirt trousers which were so wide as to resemble a very full skirt and which completely hid the feet. Over the shoulders was placed a short outer garment called the hariginu and resembling a mantle.

The imperial princesses wore the same ancient coronation robes this afternoon as during the morning ritual ceremony, their hair unbound and hanging straight. The robes of the court ladies who represented the Empress and who made obeisance at the proper times in her behalf were of the same general style as the Emperor's robe though different in color and without certain features designed for royalty. The court ladies were grouped near the throne and with the princesses and the pooresses of the realm, who were also present, forming a group of gorgons and fascinating features of this historic tableau of old Japan.

and honor; that it is a hot-bed of crime, a nursery of affray, broods brutality, engenders strife, suborns witness, corrupts courts and peoples hell with its victims, and when the speakers get down on the common level of the institution they are defending they are only fulfilling the old German law, that birds of a feather flock together and they are to be pitied rather than censured for being governed by the inherent law of their nature."

It is into an atmosphere such as could be expected to result from such charges, counter charges, denials, and "lies nailed" that Governor Ferguson has plenty of friends in Bell county who believe that the whole campaign of the pros is a conspiracy against him. Others of his friends believe he is being "duped" and are generally sorry to see him enter the campaign.

COURT HOUSE BOND ISSUE OPPONENTS MEET TONIGHT The opponents of the court house bond issue will meet at the court house tonight at 8 o'clock to discuss a plan of campaign. A call for the meeting was issued by Mr. Van Horn who lives near Iowa Park and was published in Sunday's Times so that it has been well advertised over the county. So far as is known there is little opposition to the bond issue in Wichita Falls and as most of these opposed to the new court house live in remote parts of the county a large attendance at tonight's meeting is not expected.

SAVES DAUGHTER Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End. Read, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months. I tried Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, and was down in bed for three months. I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles. My family doctor told my husband he could do nothing good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me. At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took Cardui, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing. I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health." If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui. #### Love.

Love came back at eventide, smiling as of yore;
Love came back as he had come many times before,
To my lips a welcome rushed, to my eyes a flame,
And again my lonely heart sang because he came.

Love came smiling through the dusk—light-heart love and gay—
And I knew the words to send love up on his way:
"He who wanders in at dark finds no torch allight;
Turn—the door is barred—so go back into the night."

"One sleeps here in peaceful dark who came in by day,
No new tenants enter here. Stranger! On your way!
These the words I said to love, rivins us apart,
Peace I sought—now I know that I broke my heart."

AT THE THEATERS

OLGA PETROVA AT THE LYDIA MARGARET FRIDAY.

Friday the Lydia Margaret theater will offer the first of their new feature series of Metro productions, the Friday picture to be "The Heart of a Painted Woman" with Olga Petrova in the title role of the "Painted Woman." The picture tells a story in allegory that points a well known moral. It is a story of life among the white light and the famous Russian actress is seen at her best.

The Gem.

"The Phantom Happiness," a three-part Lubia and a two-part "The Man Who Was Never Caught" make up today's program at The Gem. "The Phantom Happiness" is the story of the eternal triangle with a rather peculiar turn.

Earl Metcalf is the husband, Ormi Hawley and Rosie Brice the women and William Turner the lawyer. Joseph Kaufman did the directing. The characters played the attractive Ormi and the clever Rosetta are likewise reversed from the usual order of wife, Ormi and Rosie the injured wife, Ormi and Rosie the injured wife.

Don the husband and author, finds himself attracted to Mary because she is the living image of his latest heroine. At this important psychological moment, Alice must needs inherit a fortune and start to splurge. The social climber tries to make the author the point of seeking solace in the arms of the wife, Ormi and Rosie the injured wife, Ormi and Rosie the injured wife.

Alice, repentant and lonely, seeks her lawyer. He advises her to offer a large sum to Mary provided she persuades him to return to Alice. Overhears the interview, sees his wife's grief and the reaction sets in. Telling Mary their happiness is only a phantom, he leaves her in spite of protests and returns to his "rain fireweed."

The Lydia Margaret.

Today's feature picture is a two-part Rex with Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips "The House With the Drawn Shades." Dr. Jamison, on a visit to New York calls at the club to see his old college chum, Henry Mason, an inventor who invites him out for an automobile ride. ### The Majestic.

"Under Oath," a two-part Kalem, one of the series of the "Mysteries of the Grand Hotel" is today's program with a Selig one reel, "The Wonderful Adventures of an Aviator," and a cartoon-comedy "Dreamy Dnd, Cowboy." These cartoons have become popular features of the program at the Majestic and today's picture promises to be exceptionally clever. "Dreamy Dnd," raising at bill board announcing the coming of a Wild West show, enthralls over the lot of the cowboy, and informs Wag, his dog, that he, "bloody, bloody" life is the real thing. Fortwain Wag is transformed into a blooded stevedore, and Dud's commonplace "duds" give him a jaunty "Broncho Billy" outfit. Dud's stevedores over hill and dale, leaving oily crags like a mountain goat. Suddenly Dud finds himself on the edge of a canyon. On the other side, a fair lassie, bound to a tree, is about to be unchained by an Indian. Dud rescues the Indian, who falls, apparently to his death, down the canyon. Dud crosses the canyon on his last. The lassie is freed and she is kissing him when the Indian pops up from behind a boulder and is just shaking the life out of Dud when Dreamy Dnd awakens to find his mother standing over his bed, telling him it's time to get up.

The Empress.

Elsie Janis is today's feature in the Paramount production "Nearly a Lady." The story is one full of interest and also of comedy to a regular. Not hearing from Jack Rawlins after his departure to New York, Frederica Calhoun meets and becomes engaged to a fastidious English lord who comes to her father's big Montana ranch as a prospective buyer. Her car riding, her dances she has learned from the cowboys and her unfaltering sunny spirits quite captivate the critical Englishman despite the fact that he came the of the fact that she was for anything much but spreading bread. The betrothed couple go to New York to visit Lord Grosvenor's sister, a well known society woman. Frederica meets and a quick assimilation of the social graces of the gay Knickerbockers, fortify Frederica in her fiancé's eyes against the new attractions with which she must face comparison, but finally she grows suspicious that his fancy is straying. Dressing in a borrowed suit of men's evening clothes, Frederica picks up his trail the night of the French ball and waiting in the garb of a stage-door Johnnie at the door of the Safety Theatre seen him come forth with a seductive show girl.

This breach of good faith is after all not heart breaking. Jack Rawlins, whom Frederica has not again and whose ardent suit she has been resisting in order to play square with Lord Grosvenor, now has a clear field. Frederica tosses the English lord over with a right good will and returns to her old love—and Montana—too as "Mrs. Jack Rawlins."

There are six freshman basket ball teams of girls, one sophomore team and one junior team. These teams are busy every afternoon of late on the outside court, making the most of the fair weather for practice games.

MILITARY DRILL PART OF ROUTINE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Senior Boys Are Receiving Daily Instruction, Though Without Guns and Uniforms.

The military drill at the high school has become a part of the regular routine of school life for the members of the senior class. H. A. Baker, military instructor, states that the boys are very apt and have no difficulty in grasping the fundamentals of the drill. As soon as the senior boys who are interested in the work are sufficiently proficient in drilling the formation of companies from the other classes will take place. The majority of the officers in the companies will be given to the seniors.

Mr. Baker hopes to get arms from the government but at this time it is somewhat doubtful if the full amount can be secured, owing to the shortage in arms of all sorts. The question of uniforms and equipment is one that will wait however, until after the formation of the companies.

A prominent Texas Republican who heretofore has figured conspicuously in National Republican politics, gives as his candid opinion that ex-President Roosevelt is about the only man the Republicans could nominate and elect over President Wilson.

In the event the President's plans for an increased army and navy for defensive purposes is acted upon favorably by the next Congress to convene in December it will mean that the general government will be forced to levy a heavier tax than now in order to meet the increase in expense.

Cone Johnson of Tyler, solicitor for the Department of State, who has been visiting his home state, gives out the following concerning the attitude of the people of this state toward President Wilson and his administration.

SAYS THERE WILL BE NO INCREASE IN RATES FOR LIGHT AND POWER.
As is well known the people of this city are to vote upon a proposition for the purchase of the physical properties of the Citizens Light and Power Company.

There is opposition to the proposition principally for the reason there is a feeling which is general, that if the people vote for the old company to absorb the new company light and power rates will be increased.

Editor, Times:
In reference to your recent editorial in regard to the election called for Nov. 20, 1915, to decide if the voters of this city are willing for the Citizens Light and Power Company to sell its machinery and pole lines to the Wichita Falls Electric Company, I wish to state most explicitly that no increase in the present rates of our company in the City of Wichita Falls was ever contemplated or will be made as a result of said election.

So far as the Times can determine the rates now being charged by the old company are fair and reasonable, and in line with the rates charged by other electric and power companies in other cities.

NOTES AND NOTES.

The note of this government to England, protesting in the matter of American shipping to neutral countries, is now on the way to England, and is said to contain some words. England, of course, will take her own time in making reply, and when the reply is made, it will probably be in such a way as to evade the questions involved and thereby call for further exchange of notes of protest.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

"They tell me McBillowitz is on the wrong side of the stock market." "Yes; he makes what you might call a bear living."—New York Mail.

"Money will not take a man to the top, Henderson." "I know; but it will give him a lot more room at the bottom."—Puck.

"Oh, doctor, I feel funny inside." "What have you been eating?" "That's just the trouble, doctor. I ain't had nothing to eat for a week. Could you spare me a copper?"—Punch.

"What is in the mail from daughter?" "A kiss," answered father solemnly, "and sixteen handkerchiefs, two waists and four batches of ribbons for you to wash and mend."—Kansas City Journal.

WHAT SAY YOU, VOTERS?

Mr. Editor:—Article 11, Section 3 of the new city charter lately adopted by the good citizens of the City of Wichita Falls shall have the power by ordinance to buy or construct, own, maintain and operate a system of water works, gas or electric lighting plant, telephones, street cars and sewers, or any other public service or enterprise that may be approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the City of Wichita Falls voting therefor at a regular election for city officers in accordance with the provisions of this act; and may demand and receive compensation for such service furnished for private purposes and shall have power to consume the property of any person, firm or corporation for the purpose of operating and maintaining such utility, and for distributing such service throughout the city or any portion thereof, but in such condemnation proceedings no allowance hereof shall be made for the value of franchise and only the actual physical assets shall be purchased by the City of Wichita Falls.

On the 20th of November the voters are asked to say whether or not the Wichita Falls Electric Co. may purchase the Citizens Light and Power Co. of Wichita Falls.

FRENCH AVIATOR'S DIARY TELLS INTERESTING STORY

Journal Kept By Pegoud Gives Detailed Account of His Experiences in Midair

By Associated Press. Paris, Nov. 9.—Friends of Pegoud, the French aviator, are planning to make a permanent record of his services to aviation by publishing his diary which contains a minute and characteristic chronicle of his daily work. His activity, as shown by his diary, was extraordinary.

"Weather cloudy. Morning observation at Verdun. No Boche aeroplanes about. At 3:20 leave with eight shells for Nantillois. At 4:50 feet over Bras I get into clouds. Fog and rain continue over Nantillois. More than twenty. My machine in all positions. Can see nothing. Am continually wiping my glasses; compass jammed.

"After 1 1/2 hours of all sorts of worry, dive to get my position. I notice 1,800 feet under the clouds a fine captive balloon and drop my eight bombs. General panic in the company. Several guns are fired at me. I rise up into the fog. Lost again. Dive down to see and continue flight at 3,000 feet. Up again among the clouds and dive down to 2,400 feet.

"I steady machine and compass and take the direction S. W. I have an hour's petrol left. Swearing like a pickpocket. It's the limit. I don't know where I am and am fired at. I am 2,400 feet up. Up into the clouds. Down again. Note a rather large, steady plane. Am about to slip into the clouds. Dive twenty-six minutes later and am again over the station. I'm like a roaring wild beast. Only 15 liters of petrol left. Don't know where I am; am shot at. I make up my mind, and am going to fly under the clouds at 2,400 feet S. W. till petrol gives out completely.

"I note a village far off, and as I get nearer recognize Etain. I can use my lungs to breathe now. Saved! Good Heavens, to think how mad I have been with rage. I dive with the motor at full speed. The wind is in my nose. I keep wiping the glasses and head in one case and all. Pass over Etain at 1,450 feet, still diving with motor at full speed.

"Reach Verdun in fog at 150 feet, and get hail and rain. Can see nothing. One of my eyes is hurting badly. Land. It's a splendid feeling after all. I can breathe now with my face to the wind and take in lungfuls of air. But I think how I have cursed. Another lesson for me, and I shall keep my eyes open more than ever. Report made at once. Captain astonished, and boasts about it to other officers and makes his report. Food. At my case, very pleased to be by the fire-side at Verdun. Smoke several pipes, which are excellent. Bed."

SUBMARINE INCIDENT HAS EFFECT UPON COTTON MARKET TODAY

WEATHER INFLUENCES GRAIN

Prospects For Lower Temperatures Cause Advances in Wheat, Corn and Oats

By Associated Press. New York, Nov. 10.—After opening steady today at an advance of one point to a decline of two points, the cotton market eased off during the early trading under scattered selling which seemed to be inspired by weakness in New Orleans, reports that a travelling expert estimated the crop at 12,890,000 bales including linters and the unsettling effect of increased submarine activity in Italian waters. January contracts sold off to 11 1/8 and March to 11.69 shortly after the call, or about ten points lower, but at this level the market was steadied by covering and prices rallied seven or eight points from the lowest before the end of the first hour.

Chicago Grain. Chicago, Nov. 10.—Predictions of snow and cold and rain had a bullish effect today on wheat. Traders who professed to believe that the maximum of the spring crop movement had been reached were conspicuous buyers. Advancing prices at Liverpool tended to handicap the bears. After opening 1 1/2 and 1 1/4 to 7 1/8 and one cent higher, with December at 1.02 5/8 to 1.03 and May at 1.03 1/4 to 1.04 1/4, the market scored a material further upturn.

Corn felt the influence of unsettled weather. The opening which ranged from 1 1/4 and 3/8 to 5/8 and 3/4 advance was followed by moderate additional gains. Firmness developed in oats as a result of the strength of other cereals. Lower prices on hogs weakened provisions.

PROSPERITY AGAIN GENERAL IN ENGLAND

TIMES ARE IN MARKED CONTRAST WITH THOSE OF YEAR AGO

UNEMPLOYMENT IS UNKNOWN

Warning Note is Sounded by Those Who Fear That Apathy May Result

By Associated Press

London, Nov. 9.—How completely the war has baffled the foresight of economic experts is shown by the remarkable wave of surface prosperity which the masses of Great Britain are experiencing. Only a little more than a year ago political economists were discussing seriously the need for organizing public works on a great scale for the tens of thousands who would be thrown out of employment. Now financiers like Sir George Paish, editor of the Economist, and Edwin Montagu, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, are sounding strong warnings against the extravagant living of the nation as a whole. "Money is being squandered on all sides," declared Sir George Paish in a recent speech, and the newspapers are taking up the same cry.

The conditions which the war has developed have settled the problem of public works on lines which appear to be not far from the mark. The enormous increase of the British army to three million men, and the demand for workers in the public and private munitions works, has absorbed all the available manhood of the country procurable on a basis of voluntary service, and given a great surplus of employment to the United States. Money is being discharged freely and even lavishly and extravagantly to contractors and to workingmen, and for the support of the families of soldiers, according to the economist; and it is being spent by the people at large with equal lavishness and extravagance.

These conditions cause excited debate by all classes. In the enormous redistribution of wealth the general drift would appear to be from the hands of the rich and the middle classes into the pockets of the workingmen and the families of soldiers. While the workers furnish a majority of the men under arms, the people with large estates and those with savings and middle class incomes believe that they furnish, through taxation and war loans, the bulk of the money which is carrying on the war, and which finds its way down through the government and contractors to the small merchants and workmen. This results in the enforcement of unusual economy upon the wealthy and the middle classes, (except those concerned in war work, who are many), and encourages unusually free spending in the stratum usually most economical. While the Covent Garden Opera has been suspended during the war time the theaters of the masses, and the picture shows are prospering. The hotels and restaurants supported by the wealthy pass their dividends; the popular resorts are doing good business.

Mr. Montagu complained of great spending on luxuries, and cited the fact that the sale of pianos has increased. He called upon every citizen to be prepared to put at least one-half his current income at the disposal of the state. The wealthy classes of England would not agree that the luxury and extravagance charged is practiced by them. No observer could fail to credit them with accepting the enormous war taxes imposed upon incomes with a remarkable patriotism and resignation.

Speaking for the other side of the case, Sir Alfred Mond, a wealthy manufacturer, told the House of Commons that men from agricultural districts who formerly earned four dollars a week are getting fifteen and twenty dollars from the government, and men are being paid five dollars a day for putting up hats for the soldiers. Another Bryce, brother of the former Ambassador to America, testified that boys who formerly worked for two dollars a week are being paid by the government more than ten dollars for carrying the bags of government carpenters.

A writer in the Daily Mail says: "I met a man who, without any previous experience as a craftsman, was earning from six to eight pounds a week ($30 to $40) making shell cases in a certain government munitions factory. I am told that workmen in Birmingham now drive up to their daily task in taxi-cabs, and that in that fortunate city the shops are doing a trade in expensive luxuries which has never been known before."

Extravagant payments to contractors, and to buyers and experts who have been taken into government employ, is a complaint against the government levied by many business men. Corruption is not charged, but high wasteful disbursements due to ignorance of business affairs on the part of officials and the necessity for making hurried contracts. The country would not suffer so much from these conditions if it was self contained like Germany and money merely flowed in a circle from the government into the hands of the people and back to the government in taxes and loans. But Britain is importing enormous quantities of goods for the use of the people, besides war supplies, and the exports do not balance the imports by many millions.

Advocates of economy in the popular press take advantage of the opportunity to call upon the government for retrenchment. The office of Lord Chancellor alone, with almost nominal duties, is costing $125,000 a year. Lord Bessborough, recently the head of the Press Bureau, is drawing the salary of $35,000, while his predecessor Lord Halsbury, and two other former incumbents of the office are receiving pensions of $25,000 each. The two law officers of the Crown, the Attorney General and the Solicitor General, are compensated chiefly by fees which amount to about $100,000 for each official. Sixteen cabinet ministers draw salaries of $25,000. The payment of $2,000 salaries to members of the House of Commons is a comparatively new law. The writers for newspapers which circulate among the working classes call upon the government officials to set the example in responding to Mr. Montagu's appeal to citizens to place half their incomes at the disposal of the government.

London, Nov. 9.—The effect of the new anti-treating order has been immediately felt in the police courts in the laboring districts. Where the North London magistrate dealt with sixteen cases of drunkenness the same day a week ago, on the day following the new order he had but three. Similar reductions were noted in the East End districts. The public house owners complain that when men pay for their own drinks in a crowd, they seldom take more than one. But there has been no organized protest, as the owners know that if the anti-treating order proves a failure, the hours of opening will be materially reduced.

DORT THE GREATEST LOW PRICED CAR ON THE MARKET

Let me show you the Dort. It will demonstrate itself. It will show you how much merit can be put into an automobile made to sell for $650. It is completely equipped with electric starter, electric lights, 28-h. p. engine, one-man top, and every convenience that is found on cars at twice the price

F.O.B., FLINT, MICH.

It is put on the market only after two years of hard service on all kinds of roads and under all conditions. It is built by builders who tested it out at their own expense before giving it to the trade. I will be pleased to show the Dort at any time, under any conditions—I know it will make good.

BLOODED LIVESTOCK WILL TRAVEL WITH ATTENDANT

More Guernsey Cattle Brought Here By Mr. Kemp-Will Encourage Breeding

J. A. Kemp has returned from a trip to Wisconsin, where he purchased fifteen thoroughbred Guernsey heifers from George McKeown and Sons at Pewaukee. These heifers will arrive in Texas next week to be added to Mr. Kemp's herd of these cattle here. They will be shipped on special schedule of fast freights so as to get through as quickly as possible. They will be accompanied by an attendant who will remain to look after the herd for a time at least. Mr. Kemp intends to build up one of the finest herds of Guernsey cattle in the country with the object of the introduction of these cattle into this section. To encourage the breeding of these cattle Mr. Kemp is offering free service of his imported bull, Governor, to owners of cows in this section. This bull is acknowledged as one of the finest Guernsey specimens in America.

NAME OF WICHITA FALLS APPEARS ON JAR SHIPMENTS

This City Given Publicity By Ball Brothers on Cartons Containing Jars

The name, Wichita Falls, is now being identified in the public mind with Ball Brothers fruit jar plant, the name of the town appearing on all cartons in which fruit jars are shipped from the Wichita Falls plant. Heretofore the cartons bore the name of Muncie, Ind., Ball Brothers headquarters only. The matter was taken up with Ball Brothers by the Chamber of Commerce with the result that the new cartons have the name of Wichita Falls, Texas and Muncie, Ind., printed on them.

M. BLAND SPEAKER TODAY AT ROTARY CLUB LUNCHEON

Attendance at today's luncheon of the Rotary Club was the largest so far recorded, these being a total of 44 members and guests gathered around the board at the Metropolitan. The speaker was J. M. Bland, who told a few things about the real estate business. Captain H. G. Robb of the Salvation army also spoke briefly, telling what the army is trying to do toward a permanent home in this city. O. T. Bacon, second vice-president, occupied the chair in the absence of President Keith, who was unavoidably detained. In his talk, J. M. Bland said that while the real estate business had suffered somewhat by reason of the bad repute of "carb-stomers" and others who made real estate their calling, he still considered it a business that meant much to a community. He called attention to the fact that real estate men are at the front whenever a movement to help the city is under way, and that no one surpasses them in faith or in works. J. W. Bradley, who represents the furniture business in the club will be the speaker at the next meeting. On Thursday night of next week some moving pictures of special interest to Rotarians are to be exhibited, at a place to be designated later. Several new members were added to the roll today. Those present today were Messrs. Bacon, Bland, Arnold, Friday, Auld, Hanks, Stampliff, Stanforth, Harvey, Shepperd, Roberts, Jones, Lawton, Stokes, Downing, Phillips, Friedly, McFall, Anderson, Stripling, Deatherage, Brittain, Clifford, McCoy, Brown, Bray, Carthers, Newton, May, Whalley, Moore, Hurley, Marcus, Thomas, Hendricks, McGregor, Noble, Carter, Bradley, Smock, White, Bundy, Gould, Robb, Hardeman, Henderson, Bacon, Wren, Taylor, Bean, Havis, Shelton, Schaff, Thornberry, Berry, Martin, Robertson, Smith, Hirschfelder, Davis and Maxwell.

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 9.—The Australian wheat crop will be far beyond any yield which the Commonwealth has ever known. The Greatest Coat Cutter

In America can do nothing more than follow the measurements he has at hand. The finest tailors in the world make clothes that would not fit anything but a hippopotamus. But don't blame the tailors—the engineers who design clothes because the fit depends on the man who LAYS THE TAPE. The artist of the craft tailoring must depend for his specifications on the man who measures the form that is to wear the suit. For years I have laid the tape on every shape and size of man from the "Beef Trust" to the "Bean Pole" and made the suits fit. Any time the suit don't fit it is my suit and you can't leave my shop with it. It won't cost you a penny to find out whether or not I can make these statements stick.

Only a small part of the $900,000 available for this fiscal year has been apportioned thus far. Only 251 common or rural schools were granted aid at the last meeting of the board in October. Of the 750 applications expected today, about one-third will be given state aid it was stated.

It Time To Think About Thanksgiving Dinner

We have everything you will need for your Thanksgiving Baking—Glace Cherries, Pine Apple, Citron, Cleaned Currants, Seeded Raisins, Dates, Shelled Pecans, Bordeaux Walnuts, Jordan Almonds, Toasted and Salted Pistachio, Shredded Coconut, Chocolate, etc. Then we have ALL THE SPICES, whole and ground, each the best of its kind and strictly pure. All of the fruit flavors and extracts, color pastes, condiments and sauces. Make out your list and if it is to be had any where in the United States we have it. We are indeed sorry to say that so far we have been unable to secure a pound of Smyrna Figs as not a single package will reach our shores this season. We have used every endeavor to find some of last season's stock but so far have met failure. What we do we do as well as we know how.
