

SUPPORT FOR WILSON'S PLAN OF PREPAREDNESS IS URGED AT MEETING WEDNESDAY NIGHT

CONTEST ARISES OVER EFFORT TO HIT AT STEPHENS

MEMORIAL IS ADDRESSED TO CONGRESSMEN AT LARGE AND SENATORS AS WELL AS REPRESENTATIVES OF DISTRICT

DEBATE IS SPIRITED

Speaker Expresses Desire to "Plaster" Judge Stephens, But Action Finally Taken in Personal, Several Speakers Heard

Resolutions endorsing President Wilson's program for preparedness were adopted at an enthusiastic mass meeting at the Wichita Theatre Wednesday night called to give expression of the views of the voters of Wichita Falls on this question.

The report of the committee drafting the resolution directed it to Representative Stephens and a spirited debate followed the motion to include the congressmen at large and the two United States Senators from Texas.

They express an earnest desire that the president of the United States be earnestly and fully supported in his reasonable recommendations for preparedness.

Major Britain called the meeting to order and stated its purpose. He declared that those attending were not meeting as partisans; that their mission was far above partisanship.

"I believe our congressmen have lost their hold on the pulse of their constituents when they say they are opposed to our country being prepared to meet any foe that may come against it," he said.

"Our president admits a change in his views in the last year. He has so far kept us from a conflict. He says preparedness is necessary. I believe it is our duty as patriotic citizens to let our representatives know how we stand."

Judge Huff made chairman. Organization was then made with R. E. Huff as chairman and B. D. Donnell as secretary.

J. T. Montgomery was called on for a talk. He declared that President Wilson had faced crisis after crisis in our foreign relations and that the people ought to stay with him.

The resolutions committee then brought in its report in the form of a communication to Representative Stephens, as follows:

"Resolved, that we do make known to our representative in Congress that we earnestly desire that the president of the United States be earnestly and fully supported in his reasonable recommendations for preparedness.

to our representative in Congress that we earnestly desire that the president of the United States be earnestly and fully supported in his reasonable recommendations for preparedness.

SUPPORT FOR WILSON PLAN PREPAREDNESS

you in the spirit of friendship and good-will, respectfully submitted. Debate Ensues. Mr. Montgomery moved that the resolutions be amended so as to include the two Texas senators and two congressmen at large. John C. Kay opposed the amendment declaring that this meeting was to bring sinners to repentance and that we don't want to scatter our shot all over Washington. He said the man he wanted to reach was the fellow who had been parading around Washington saying: "I'm not in sympathy with the president's plan for preparedness."

Mr. Jones favored including the two congressmen at large in the resolution. J. T. Montgomery said he had come out not to launch a campaign against anyone and declared that if the resolution was intended as a censure he was not in favor of it at all. R. E. Huff said that he was unwilling to go further than to uphold the president and said that he was not willing to stay there until "the last day in the morning."

"I'm unwilling to say that we came out to put a plaster on Mr. Stephens," he said, and declared that if that was the purpose he was through. He said that Mr. Stephens had never said in Congress that he was opposed to the president's plans, that he had never said so over his own signature. He said like all other Democrats until within the last year Mr. Stephens had been opposed to a big army and navy.

Other Speakers Heard. While the signatures of those present were being secured talks were made by Judge Martin, Edgar P. Haney, Lindsey Bibb, Judge Akin, E. C. Becker, naval recruiting agent here, and Mr. Penn of the Penn Land Company. Mr. Penn said he had doubted whether the country would remain asleep in the face of the grave dangers that faced it, but that his doubts had been dispelled when in Kansas City last week when the president spoke there and he saw the enthusiasm that his patriotic message evoked.

Those signing the resolution were: W. J. Howard, F. N. Lawton, J. C. Kay, W. M. O'Reilly, Walter Nelson, W. T. O'Connell, H. B. Mask, Ed Howard, Wiley Blair, G. C. Wood, R. S. Jones, W. P. ACTION DELAYED ON SECRETARY

NAME OF F. H. GOHLKE IS SUBMITTED TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

DECISION DEFERRED

Mr. Kell Considers Time is Not Propitious For Election Before Next May

The employment of F. H. Gohlke as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, if it was deemed advisable to employ a secretary at this time was recommended in the report of the committee appointed some time ago to make a recommendation to the directors of that organization this morning. The report of the committee was accepted and approved, but it was voted to wait until the first meeting in May to decide whether a secretary should be employed at this time. Mr. Kell made the report for the committee.

Mr. Kell speaking on his motion to defer a decision as to whether a secretary should be employed said that the time was not propitious for a campaign to bring new industries here and that he doubted whether much in that line could be done until there had been further developments in the war. He said Wichita Falls was growing steadily and in fact was growing as rapidly now as he would care to see it grow, for if it grew more rapidly there would be a boom with inevitable reaction. He said conditions were the soundest ever known here and that he believed the future was very bright. After some discussion and voting on parliamentary procedure Mr. Kell's motion to defer action until May was adopted.

PYTHIANS PLAN TO ORGANIZE 'DOKIES'

Chapter of Unique Side Degree Order is To Be Formed Here

A movement is on foot here for the organization of 'Dokies' Temple or the Dramatic Order of the Knights of Khorassan, an order of the Knights of Pythias. Petitions for membership in the order are now in circulation. It will be necessary to secure 100 members before the temple can be authorized and it is planned to include members from surrounding towns in this section in its membership.

A. C. Deatherage, J. K. Roach and A. C. Wilson have been appointed a committee on organization. There are at present about 100 temples of the 'Dokies' in the United States, all in the larger cities. The parades of the order in costume are spectacles that attract great attention wherever they are given. The Times has been furnished the following synopsis of the order and its objects: The object of the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan is to cultivate the social and fraternal spirit and to afford opportunity for those who enjoy sociability to spend an evening each month in association with kindred spirits, where they may participate in ceremonies enlivening, entertaining and provocative of amusement as well.

The order is particularly designed to create a greater, broader and better acquaintance among Pythians, furnishing a middle ground upon which the members of the different lodges can meet, mingle and keep one another, thus breaking down those lines of separation that too often exist as between the membership of separate Lodge organizations.

The initiation is a new and pleasing, performed in a dramatic manner of dramatic character, a beautiful ceremony refined in thought and amusing in form; free from vulgarity or degenerating practices; entertaining and instructive to the element—that of a gentleman—to whom and none other it extends an invitation to membership. Under the ritual and ceremony, ancient and modern Knighthood and past current life, and their features are portrayed in dramatic form, a feature new and novel in fraternal secret organization.

It has done more to cement the bonds of friendship between Pythians than any other branch of that Order. Where formerly it was an exception to see visitors in large cities from lodges in the same territory, it is now a common thing to have a comingling of the entire fraternity at almost every lodge meeting—it has broken down the barriers that were erected through petty jealousies, and established a true friendship among the members in every place where located.

It proposes to go on with the good work and assist in carrying out the true principles of Friendship, Charity and Benevolence. No Votary can remain a member of any temple who allows his membership to lapse in his Pythian Lodge for any cause, except to transfer his membership from one Lodge to another, he is at once dropped from the roll of his temple.

Who Knows?

The emperor had in his grime, With hand clenching up toward the sky, He finds it not hard to determine The patriot's duty to die, So the emperor speaks and the emperor shrieks His imperator will, or his won't, But the man in the trenches— And stretch of stench— Knows something that emperors don't.

The philosopher sits in his study, And writes on a scroll of lore, And that which was forged and mud-died Is held as never before. The philosopher reasons as sure as the seasons And cites you by that and by this, But the man who must borrow His way, tomorrow Knows something philosophers miss.

The minister talks to his people And tells them commandments and laws; As plain as the bell in his steeple, He reasons on sin and its cure, And the minister prays (like the organist plays) And the minister earnestly pleads, But the girl who is working At five dollars clerking Knows something that's not in the creeds.

Yes, rulers and writers and preachers, We think, but how much do we feel? Yes, judges and talkers and teachers, We talk, but we cannot reveal. We read, but we write and we judge, And we etc., And prescribe for the world and its woe, But the man at the dead line, And he in the bread line, Say nothing at all—but they know, —Edmund Vance Cooke.

What has become of all that much boasted senatorial courtesy. In the course of a debate the other day in the Senate Senator Stone is quoted by the Congressional Record as having made use of this kind of language: "The gentleman's remarks are vociferous, scattering, dreary, insane, partisan harangue."

The friends of ex-Senator Bailey do not seem the least bit discouraged by his refusal to enter the senatorial contest and apparently have not given up hope of inducing him to at least come back to Texas and go over the situation with them more thoroughly. This, it is said, Mr. Bailey has agreed to do on his return from a business trip to the Pacific coast.

Justice Hughes, who has been and is yet being prominently mentioned as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, has again declined to have his name used in that connection. Writing Congressman Slemm, chairman of the Virginia Republican committee, Mr. Hughes makes use of this language: "I am totally opposed to the use of my name in connection with the nomination and to the instruction of any delegates in my interest, directly or indirectly."

"Is there not a law prohibiting swearing and the use of vulgar and obscene language in public places," inquired a young lady of The Times editor today. "Oh, answer was that there was such a law but that so far as enforcing it, that was a different matter. She then pointed to two men standing on the sidewalk, both of whom were apparently sober and friendly with each other, but who were talking loudly, issuing vulgar language regardless of who might be hearing and thereby being a nuisance to every one. It is bad enough for people who are drunk to curse and swear on the streets, but some people seem to have an idea that so long as they are sober they have the right to say just about what they please.

Congressman A. W. Gregg of the seventh district of Texas, is another Texas congressman who has swung around to the President's way of thinking on the "preparedness" proposition. In making the change Mr. Gregg wrote a friend, Mr. I. H. Kemper of Galveston, as follows: "Until recently I never dreamed that any civilized nation would in event of war disregard the rights of neutrals as they have been disregarded in the European war. I now very keenly feel the necessity of our government having something more formidable than diplomatic notes and protests to enforce our rights and to secure the protection of American lives, property and commerce."

Whatever might be said of the balance of Texas or of this congressional district, if there are opponents of President Wilson's preparedness program in Wichita Falls or Wichita county, they are in the great minority. At last night's mass meeting at the Wichita Theater, which was comfortably filled with representative citizens of all classes, there was no opposition that made itself apparent, and those who did not vote to endorse the President kept silent. This leads The Times to believe that the people of Texas, or at least the great majority of them, are heart and soul, regardless of political leanings, squarely with President Wilson on strengthening our navy and army for defensive purposes.

The Jacksonville, Florida, Times-Union has taken its stand against Woodrow Wilson's preparedness campaign. Since taking that stand it has been besieged with communications and criticized by newspapers from all parts of the country. That ought to show Martin Dies the futility of attempting to deny preparedness by this government. The people of Texas are behind President Wilson in this stand, and any one of our Congressmen has only to announce his pronounced opposition to preparedness to very quickly learn the temper of the people of his district.—Greenville Herald.

The Texas congressmen now in opposition to the President's preparedness policy will get in line just as soon as their constituents are heard from, and they are being heard from in great numbers just now. There is hardly a doubt but that the people of Texas have changed their way of thinking very suddenly since reading the speeches of President Wilson, which ought to be convincing enough to bring about such change of sentiment. When the President says the country is in danger and unprepared to defend itself against foreign foes it is time all Americans should back the President to the very limit.

THE CASE OF MR. DIES.

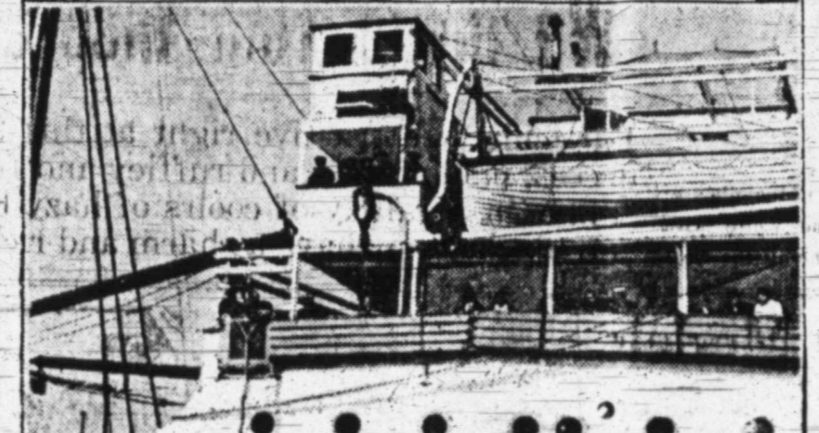

When a group of citizens wired Congressman Dies, asking him to change his views, and support President Wilson in the matter of preparedness, he replied with the customary answer. First, he said that the district is against preparedness, characteristic of the "know-it-all" attitude with which the public is familiar. Next he said the petition had been signed as a result of "misinformation," substantially telling his Second District constituents they have not sufficient sense to discern truth from falsehood or prevent themselves from being deceived in important matters.

Mr. Dies will have to thrash out that matter with his constituents. It is none of our business if he chooses to tell them they don't know beans. Personally, however, seeing they have kept the Honorable Martin in Congress for some years, the presumption seems in favor of his declaration that they act upon "misinformation."

AWFUL EASY.

Most anyone can be an editor. All the editor has to do is sit at a desk six days out of the week, four weeks of the month and twelve months of the year and "edit" such stuff as this: "Mrs. Jones of Cactus Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut her self in the pantry." "A mischievous lad of Picketown threw a stone and hit Mr. Lake in the alley last Thursday." "John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the porch." "While Harold Green was ascending Miss Violet Wise from the church social last Saturday night, a savage dog attacked and bit Mr. Green on the public square." "Isiah Trimmer of Running Creek was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda." "Mr. Fong while harnessing a bron-

MARLIN SEES MOVIES OF CITY'S "DISCOVERER"

By Associated Press. Marlin, Tex., Feb. 10.—A few days ago nearly all Marlin paid homage to Ted Sullivan, athlete, trainer, former big league, but locally known as the discoverer of Marlin as spring training grounds for big league teams. Sullivan appeared here in a motion picture and the fact being heralded record crowds saw him in the films. It was in 1902 that Sullivan found Marlin. He was playing with the Chicago White Sox and was looking over the country for a training camp. He came here, took a sample bath, drank a few quarts of the hot water and then wired President Comiskey to bring his team to Marlin for conditioning. Since then Marlin has entertained half a dozen big league teams and is now the permanent spring home of McGraw's New York Giants.

AT THE THEATRES

Thrilled By "Battle Cry of Peace"

While some of the Wichitans who favor preparedness were at the Wichita Theatre Wednesday night urging support for the president's program, hundreds of others were having the question brought home to them in a much more forcible manner, through the presentation of the picture, "The Battle Cry of Peace." This picture was shown yesterday at the Majestic Theatre and is being repeated today. The attendance was limited only by the capacity of the theatre, several hundred being turned away.

The picture is one that grips and holds and the spectator was apt to run the entire gamut of emotions before it was over. There was not much "story" to it, as moving picture stories go, but the lesson that it sought to set forth—the lesson of preparedness for national defense—was brought home directly and unforgettably. Music by Katz orchestra added to the effectiveness of the production.

Scenes showing this country in the grip of invasion by a foreign foe predominated in the picture; warships sinking under superior shell fire, bombs bursting in the streets, homes wrecked and burned, then the invaders marching in the streets, entering homes, abusing women, shooting down non-combatants, all these were shown, and lest the spectators view it too complacently or imagine the picture exaggerated, words were screened emphasizing the fact that similar and worse things are being enacted in Europe today. But being complacent was not easy at times, especially when one saw the American girl put a proper finish to the spy to whose embraces she had yielded in order that she might reach the weapon in his pocket, or when that same girl and her younger sister were shot to death by their own brother who thus cheated the invading soldiers of their prey.

The invaders were not identified and it was explained that the uniforms were nondescript; but each must have been in the mind of each spectator, and certain nations. It wasn't intended that way, perhaps, but the implication couldn't be denied.

A feature of the picture was a series of diagrams showing the military strength of the United States as compared with that of other nations; each nation was represented by the silhouette of a man to show its population, then another man to show the comparative size of the army. European and Oriental nations were shown, the figure representing the army looming up in considerable proportions, but when the figure representing the United States army appeared on the screen, a very small speck on the screen was of sufficient size to designate it.

The crowd laughed. Then screened words appeared as if the pictured figures had heard the laughter.

"You laugh at these things," it said, "but it's no laughing matter."

And the crowd, on second thought, apparently decided that it wasn't.

The picture lasted for nearly three hours and it would take that long to describe it in detail. It had its amusing features, especially when the peace meeting, largely conducted by spies, broke up in a perfectly nice row in the peace party.

The spectators had ample opportunity to show their patriotism, and applause greeted numerous features of the picture. Sayings of Washington, Lee, Grant and Lincoln, with pictures of those immortals, were screened and each was cheered vociferously, but the likeness of Theodore Roosevelt evoked only dense silence. There was a lovely opening for a picture of Woodrow Wilson, who might have been shown saying "The world is on fire and no one knows where the sparks may fall" only of course Wilson hadn't said that when the picture was made.

The picture stressed one feature of the defense question that is often overlooked—the need of heavy artillery, and plenty of it. Other military and naval deficiencies of this country were shown, and they were on the authority of Hudson Maxim, the well known expert on such matters.

The picture is being repeated today and tonight. Those who see it will not only gain some interesting and important information on the subject of national defense, but they will be well entertained.

THIRD LYCEUM NUMBER AT HIGH SCHOOL SATURDAY

Saturday evening, February 12, the third lyceum number of the course which is appearing this season at the high school will be staged, the engagement being filled by Morton H. Pemberton, humorist. The number is said to be of much excellence and to afford splendid entertainment. A notice says:

"The mission of the humorist is to make men smile. Any world where there is a creak on the public highway and Pain is man's companion spirit, the mission of the humorist is high and holy. Laughter lengthens life. The ability to smile and the reason therefor gives strength and sustenance. The humorist is a benefactor of the human race. He drives away sorrow, puts courage into fainting hearts, chases the clouds from the sky. He is both tonic and anesthetic. A real humorist, in fact, is an entire medicine chest.

Morton H. Pemberton has had little time to develop humorists. Her people have been too busy conquering the wilderness and building a State. The humorist is a product of less strenuous times. One, however, has come from within the borders of Missouri who will make the world glad with his wittolful speech. Wherever there is innocent laughter Mark Twain is known and loved. Now is introduced another, Morton H. Pemberton, or to employ his humorously suggestive pen-name, "Reuben."

Mr. Pemberton is a native Missourian. He was born in the Kingdom of Callaway and attended Westminster College and the State University. At the University he took the two highest medals for oratory. He has practiced law, edited a newspaper, traveled in Europe, taken an active part in politics and made notable success on the lecture platform. He has a most attractive style, his humor is untarnished by coarseness, and the touchiness of pathos are never overdone.

Those who have read "Reuben" will wish to hear him on the lecture platform and to read more from his graceful pen.

Republicans Tell President House Committee is Firmly Against it. Washington, February 10.—President Wilson was told flatly today by Republicans of the house military committee that they believed the committee was practically unanimous in their opposition to the continental army plan sponsored by the war department. The Republicans left the white house with the impression that the president still believed the continental army plan the best so far devised.
