Veteran actor, Maytag spokesman Gordon Jump visits Do-It Center

A well-known actor made the "jump" from sitcoms to commercials seven years ago and has not regretted a single minute.

Gordon Jump, known for his role as Arthur Carlson on "WKRP in Cincinnati," now portrays the lonely Maytag repairman in television commercials.

Jump is making service calls to Maytag dealers and made a stop at the Spring City Do-It Center Wednesday morning.

"I had done commercials before doing WKRP and, when it was over, I could not find a job as good as the one with WKRP. I used Maytag products in my home. I thought it would be a grand thing to get into commercial work and represent a product I believe in," remarked Jump.

The actor says he really enjoys traveling across the country as "Ol' Lonely," because he gets to meet people and talk about some great products.

He even attends Maytag dealer meetings and renews those acquaintances when he travels.

"The crowds that come out to see me remember WKRP and want to talk about the show. It is still in syndication all over the world. I would be fortunate if a show of that caliber came along for me again," he said.

Jump graduated from college in 1957 and had his first television job at a station in Topeka, Kan. until 1962. He then went to work for WLWD-TV in Dayton, Ohio for a year before moving to California.

He says he has always wanted to be an actor and struggled doing various commercials until "WKRP in Cincinnati" began in 1978.

Since 1967, the Ol' Lonely character has shown America how he combats his solitary life by teaching a parrot to talk, working crossword puzzles or just sleeping.

United Way OKs allocations

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Big Spring/Howard County chapter of the United Way presented its annual report and 1995 allocations to member agencies at its annual luncheon Tuesday. Elected officers for 1995 were also presented.

The 1994-95 goal for the Big Spring/Howard County United Way was $225,000 and the final donation total was $205,890, slightly more than last year.

Campaign Chairman Rey Villareal

Any United Way of comparable size might have thought twice about setting a goal of $225,000, given the events affecting our organization in 1994. But we did and came close to the mark.

lreel said, "We didn't reach our goal, but we're very grateful to everyone who gave and I, personally, am grateful to all of the people who helped with the campaign.

"Any United Way of comparable size might have thought twice about setting a goal of $225,000, given the events affecting our organization in 1994. But we did and came close to the mark. This is a remarkable achievement and can be attributed to those in our community who believed in our campaign theme - Serving the need in Howard County the United Way."

Villareal said one of the most important goals of the United Way is already being addressed - duplication of services among agencies benefiting from United Way funds.

Gingrich: Parts of contract in trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Newt Gingrich admitted that key elements of his 'Contract with America' that propelled Republicans to majorities in both the House and Senate in the November elections are in political trouble.

"I'll be quite frank with you," Gingrich told a sympathetic audience of business people Wednesday night. "I think term limits is going to be very hard to pass and I think litigation reform is just going to be a brawl."

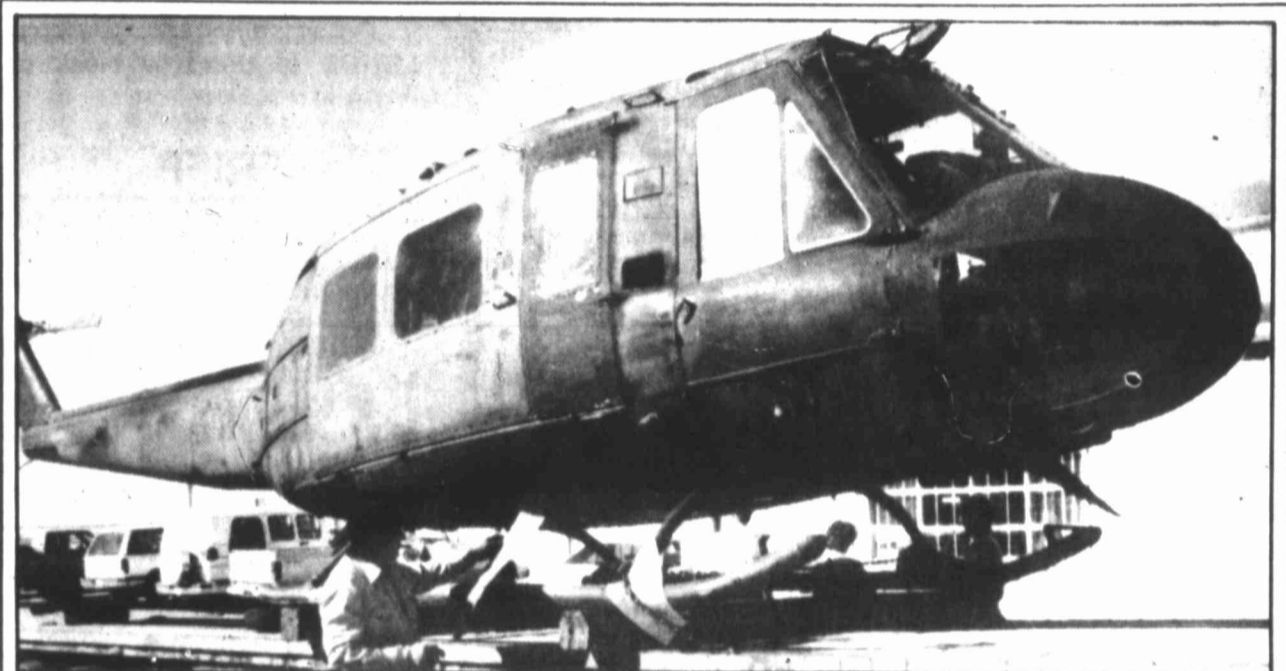

"We (also) need your help on the balanced budget amendment, which I think is in serious difficulty," Gingrich, R-Ga., told the National Association of Wholesaler-Distributors, an organization representing 45,000 businesses.

Gingrich also criticized the "elite media," whose bias he said "makes it hard for us to win the debate."

Term limits on federal lawmakers, a balanced budget amendment and product liability reform are but three elements of the 10-point outline of legislation that Gingrich has pledged to bring to votes by mid-April.

"This really matters," he said, removing a copy of the document from his jacket and holding it up to the audience. "We really want to keep our word and we need your help."

Gingrich has made similar appeals in other speaking engagements since becoming speaker on Jan. 4. He said Republicans were facing an opponent larger than the Clinton administration, the federal bureaucracy or Democrats.

A Vietnam-era helicopter is unstrapped from a trailer after it arrived at the Big Spring Airpark Wednesday afternoon. The chopper will be stripped of any mechanical and electrical parts and set on display at the Vietnam Memorial in the near future.

Vietnam vets' committee adding war-era helicopter to memorial

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Big Spring will soon have a new addition. A United States Army helicopter used during the Vietnam War will be displayed on top of a 25-foot pole.

But first, students from Texas State Technical College in Abilene will remove the engine, avionics and other mechanical equipment. The helicopter is being stored at Lone Star Aviation and the students will arrive on Monday to begin their project.

"Once that portion of the project is complete, we will seal up holes and the exhaust system. A 25-foot pedestal is being built and the helicopter will be mounted on top of it in either a landing or diving position," said Charlie Lewis, president of the Vietnam

Memorial Committee of Big Spring, Inc. The memorial committee has been working on this project for two and a half years. Lewis says he initially contacted Rep. David Counts about the idea of having a helicopter at the memorial.

Counts then made some contacts and was able to find the helicopter in Lexington, Okla. The committee paid $600 to have the chopper transported to Big Spring. John Huckabee made the trip for the committee. The technical college and one of its instructors, Randy Ray, paid $1,200 for the transfer and legal fees.

Clyde McMahon donated his time and equipment Wednesday afternoon to help off-load the helicopter from Huckabee's truck to the hanger at Lone Star Aviation.

Lewis adds he hopes to have the helicopter mounted by Memorial Day. The committee is also seeking donations from the public to help defray the cost of the project including the materials and labor to build the pedestal.

Former med school dean Clinton's choice for surgeon general

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's choice for surgeon general founded a program that distributes condoms to youths, and he supported an organization that provides abortion counseling.

Still, the administration is convinced that Dr. Henry Foster

Jr. will be far less provocative than the person he is slated to replace, Dr. Joycelyn Elders.

Foster's selection, which is subject to Senate confirmation, was expected to be announced today, said White House officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Foster, an obstetrician-gynecologist in Nashville, Tenn., drew Clinton's attention by working to reduce teen-age pregnancy in Nashville housing developments. He is a former dean and acting president of Meharry Medical College in Nashville, one of four historical black medical schools in the United States.

Clinton wants the doctor to head his national campaign against teen-age pregnancy, aides said.

Foster, 61, founded Meharry's "I Have a Future" program, aimed at delaying sexual activities among teen-agers by building their self-esteem, developing job skills and teaching sexual responsibility, self-control and how to deal with conflicts in relationships.

The 7-year-old program, operating out of two Nashville housing projects, also offers comprehensive health services, emphasizing primary health care, physical exams, screening for sexually transmitted diseases, pregnancy tests and distribution of contraceptives.

Foster also has been on the address people's concerns and we're definitely trying to avoid duplication of services," he said.

According to Executive Director Carroll Jennings, now that allocations have been decided, the interim period from February until August will be used to recruit and train volunteers for the 1995-96 campaign and to focus on any companies that haven't participated with United Way and want to. The United Way will show these companies how to get started and how to use the payroll deduction plan.

"It allows people to give more and it's a steady flow of income for the United Way," Jennings said.

Agencies will begin receiving 1994-95 United Way campaign funds this week and will continue to receive a check each month throughout the year.

The board of directors recently elected Villarreal as United Way's 1995 president and Organizations to be assisted by United Way funds in 1995 include the Boy's Club, $32,484 plus $1,216 in combined federal campaign designations; Buffalo Trail Council Boy Scouts, $3,700; Rape Crisis & Victim Services, $5,852 plus $1,448 in combined federal campaign designations; Northside Community Center, $11,850 plus $1,050 in combined federal campaign designations; Dora Roberts Rehab Center, $12,435 plus $1,565 in combined federal campaign designations; YMCA, $9,378 plus $1,322 in combined federal campaign designations; Westside Community Center, $20,500; Westside Day Care Center, $21,000; and the Salvation Army, $22,600.

advisory board of Planned Parenthood of Middle Tennessee, an organization whose services include abortion counseling.

Lorraine Williams Greene, who succeeded Foster at "I Have a Future," said the program does not offer abortion counseling but refers pregnant teens to other programs. "We have our hands full ... trying to keep them from getting pregnant," she said.

Administration officials involved in the surgeon general search described Foster as eloquent but careful, someone who measures his words to avoid unnecessary conflicts.

Elders, a pediatrician and medical school professor from Clinton's native Arkansas, was noted for plain-spoken comments. She was fired in December after saying students should be taught about masturbation. Her support for distributing contraceptives to students and her strong abortion-rights views also drew criticism from conservatives.

Friends and associates predicted Foster wouldn't be as controversial.

"One of his strengths is he is sensitive to a balanced approach — to the concerns of a number of groups in our society, even though he's a supporter of Planned Parenthood," said Shelby Tabelling, Planned Parenthood's associate executive director in Nashville.

Clinton, in his State of the Union address last week, called teen-age pregnancy the nation's most serious social problem and urged parents and community leaders to join a national campaign "to make a difference."

Aides say the campaign will involve few new initiatives, but the president hopes to get more people interested and involved in the issue.

The nation's surgeons general usually use their visibility to highlight public health issues — from AIDS prevention to anti-smoking crusades. But the job actually holds little direct authority over health programs and policy.

Called "Hank" by friends and associates, Foster is described as a consensus-builder with a mellow charm and a long resume.

"I don't think I've ever seen Hank Foster out of control, angry, anything like that," said Dr. Fredia Wadley, Tennessee's commissioner of health.

Like Elders and Clinton, Foster has Arkansas ties. He was born in Pine Bluff and earned his medical degree from the University of Arkansas.

Foster took a sabbatical in July from Meharry to become a health policy fellow at the Association of Academic Health Centers in Washington.

He earned his undergraduate degree from Morehouse College in Atlanta and spent two years as an Air Force medical officer. He has worked at hospitals in Detroit; Malden, Mass.; and Tuskegee, Ala.

Book reinstated in Conroe schools

CONROE (AP) — Conroe school officials have reinstated a critically acclaimed novel they had withdrawn over complaints that racial slurs read aloud were embarrassing to some black pupils. But officials said Wednesday that pupils offended by the language in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" can choose to read it in the library or read another book from an approved list. The book is a fictitious story of a freed slave's 100-year struggle for civil rights.

Breast implant case wrapping up

HOUSTON (AP) — The most pivotal case yet in the lengthy line of lawsuits over breast implants goes today to jurors who must decide if corporate giant Dow Chemical Co. is responsible for the actions of its offspring company. A six-man, six-woman jury must decide whether Dow Chemical was highly involved in the development and marketing of a implants made by Dow Corning Corp., of which it owns a 50-percent share. After 10 weeks of testimony, attorneys began delivering their closing arguments on Wednesday. The defense was expected to finish today and turn the case over to jurors.

Bill calls for tougher punishment

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Criminal Justice Committee's chairman says legislation to toughen the new penal code would give Texas the nation's strongest set of criminal laws. "With these improvements, we're going to have the most modern, tough penal code in the United States," Sen. John Whitbread said Wednesday. Backed by all 51 state senators, the legislation calls for longer sentences for state jail felons. The bill also would make it a third-degree felony to assault a public servant — including police officers and teachers.

Border lawmakers oppose border fee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers apprehensive that President Clinton's fiscal 1996 budget will include a border crossing fee are voicing their opposition to any levy on the movement of people into the United States from Mexico and Canada. Administration officials will not confirm that the budget plan being unveiled Monday will include a crossing fee to pay for immigration control initiatives sought by the White House. But congressional sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, suggest the administration tentatively has approved the proposal.

Law hits baseless lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Senate has approved bills to penalize people who file groundless lawsuits or engage in courtroom delaying tactics. "People are going to think twice before they file a lawsuit that might be frivolous," said Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, author of a measure co-sponsored by the 30 other senators. His bill — which passed the Senate Wednesday and goes to the House for consideration — would provide for a judge to levy attorney's fees, court costs and monetary damages against people who bring groundless or harassing lawsuits. People on both sides of a case also would face penalties for certain conduct, such as harassing or delaying tactics or abusing the discovery process by which parties obtain information from each other. Lucio said the existing rule addressing frivolous lawsuits is not strong enough. Even though they are co-sponsors, some senators noted potential concerns with the measure, which has been supported by business, consumer and lawyer groups.

People are going to think twice before they file a lawsuit that might be frivolous.

Sen. Eddie Lucio

"I think it is a legitimate concern as to how a judge determines what is a frivolous lawsuit," said Sen. Rodney Ellis, D-Houston. He said that in 1949, the lawsuit challenging "separate but equal" schools for black and white children "probably was considered fairly frivolous." Lucio noted that a judge's decision would be subject to review by an appeals court. Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas, said because justices of the peace also would fall under the legislation, it should be noted that lawmakers don't intend to discourage people from bringing disputes to small claims courts.

Limits put on cash benefits

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas welfare recipients would be required to work and be limited to a minimum of three months of cash benefits under legislation proposed in the state House. "This plan is tailor-made for Texas and recognizes the diversity of our welfare population," Rep. Harvey Hilderbran, R-Kerrville, said Tuesday. Under Hilderbran's bill, adult welfare recipients would be required to work at least 30

Thousands of Kelly Air Force Base workers gather in the base's largest hangar to hear a pep talk about the future of the base from Maj. Gen. Lewis E. Curtis, commander of the Air Force Logistics Center at Kelly, Wednesday. Curtis said that Kelly is rebounding from tough times but should be competitive in this year's round of base closures.

Commander: Kelly AFB rebounding, ready for next round of closing talks

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — With more base closures looming, the commander of the air logistics center at Kelly Air Force Base wants workers to concentrate on productivity and not get too distracted by a shutdown threat. Maj. Gen. Lewis E. Curtis III, in pep talks to thousands of workers Wednesday, said Kelly is rebounding from tough times but should be competitive in this year's round of base closures. "There are a lot of distractions out there, like the (Base Realignment and Closure Commission). But we need to continue to focus on the important things — our customers, our values as an organization and our people," Curtis said. The San Antonio Air Logistics Center at Kelly employs about 10,400 civilians and oversees maintenance, repairs and parts for several aircraft. Kelly was considered for shutdown during the 1993 round of base closings but, like the nation's other four logistics centers, it remained open. The Pentagon is expected to make recommendations by March 1 for this year's round of closures. Curtis said he believes Kelly will fare well because of its military value, which he said is the top base closure criteria. But he wasn't willing to make an absolute prediction. "I don't even travel to Las Vegas to bet, OK? I don't like the word 'prediction.' But I will tell you, just like in '93, I am optimistic. ... Guardedly optimistic, but optimistic," he told reporters. Curtis spoke to seven different groups of employees Wednesday, including one group of about 2,000 aircraft workers gathered in a huge C-5 aircraft hangar. The center lost $43 million on depot maintenance in 1993 and began fiscal 1994 expecting to lose $72 million, Curtis said, but noted the center instead lost $25 million in 1994, he said.

Abducted teacher makes his escape in Florida

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities today were trying to determine why an Arlington junior high school teacher was abducted at gunpoint from his home and driven to Pensacola, Fla., where he escaped by jumping from the car. Pensacola police and the Escambia County Sheriff's Department would not comment Wednesday night on the kidnaping of 27-year-old Robert Race. An FBI agent in Pensacola, who refused to give his name, said Race was safe but he would not release any additional information. "I'm afraid we're not releasing anything right now because it's an ongoing investigation," he said. "The guy was released in Pensacola and we're trying to figure out what's going on." The episode began unfolding when Arlington dispatchers received a 911 call from Race's apartment about 4 a.m. Wednesday. They heard a man breathing

TDH moves quickly to stop spread of rabies

AUSTIN (AP) — State Health Commissioner David Smith says officials are moving quickly to try to contain the threat of rabies. Under action by the state Board of Health last month, the entire state has been designated a quarantine area to prevent the spread of rabies. That forbids transport of potentially infected animals within or from the state.

In a statement released Wednesday, Smith said the Texas action followed reports about the exporting of coyotes and foxes, including some infected animals, to other states.

"We know that South Texas coyotes have been shipped out of state to stock hunting clubs. And just this week we learned that two of four foxes shipped from Texas to Montana have been confirmed with rabies," Smith said.

"This is a dangerous situation — one which can spread rabies beyond the point of our ability to control it."

Animals subject to the quarantine are dogs and cats over 3 months old without a current rabies vaccination certificate, hybrid animals such as domestic dog-wolf crosses, and wild animals with a high risk of rabies, including skunks, bats, foxes, coyotes and raccoons.

The Texas Department of Health plans an air drop of coyote bait containing oral rabies vaccine in hopes of stopping the spread of the disease in South Texas.

Bill cans frivolous lawsuits

People are going to think twice before they file a lawsuit that might be frivolous.

So says Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, author of a bill passed by the Texas Senate that would penalize people who file groundless lawsuits or engage in courtroom delaying tactics.

This bill, co-sponsored by 30 other legislators, now faces debate in the House.

This bill, if passed, would greatly relieve the burden placed on our judicial system.

Attorney General Dan Morales has been calling for such legislation, due mainly to suits filed by inmates for such things as being served smooth peanut butter instead of crunchy; a guard who allowed space aliens to visit his cell; because a dessert was too small; and because fireworks were removed from a prisoner's cell.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

And those are just frivolous suits filed by inmates.

Lucio's bill provides penalties for certain conduct - harassing or delaying tactics, abuse of the discovery process - for both sides of the case.

There is one concern, which some of the sponsors have expressed - how does a judge determine what is a frivolous lawsuit?

While Lucio says the judge's decision is subject to review on appeal, this could tie up the appeals process even more than it already is.

The idea is a good one. Our legal system is bogged down and steps have to be taken to correct the problem.

Baylor turns 150

Dr. John Belew, right, leads a procession of faculty members from Pat Neff Hall on the Baylor University campus during Sesquicentennial Founders Day ceremonies Wednesday. Baylor is the oldest university in Texas, chartered in 1845.

Baylor celebrates status as oldest state university

WACO (AP) — Baylor University survived the Civil War and years of social change due to the determination of the university's founders and builders, speakers told a crowd of about 1,600 Baylor faithful attending the school's 150th anniversary.

In the face of a changing world and hostile political forces, Baylor will adhere to its "Baptist heritage, Christian values" and "academic excellence," President Herbert Reynolds said on Wednesday.

"There is no compromise. These are not negotiable items," Reynolds said.

"This Board of Regents will hold the line. We will keep faith. Our goal is to be the preeminent Christian university in the world."

Never mentioned during the 95-minute sesquicentennial convocation in Waco Hall on the Baylor campus was the recent political strife between Texas Baptist conservatives and moderates over the control over the university.

In 1990, the university established a Board of Regents separate from the Baptist General Convention of Texas for the purpose of maintaining academic freedom from sectarian intrusions. The Convention upheld that move in 1991.

Nevertheless, faint echoes of that conflict could be heard in some of the speakers' comments.

"Freedom's a hard-bought thing. On both political and religious fronts, we are challenged at home and on the international front," said Dr. Franklin H. Wittell, Baylor's former Cherry Distinguished Professor of Religion and professor emeritus of religion at Temple University. Wittell spoke of unnamed forces that he called "cadres, arrogant and extreme ... insolent in the face of truth and contemptuous of the principles of fair play."

"We confront mortal enemies of our convictions and our lives," he said.

He spoke of unnamed schools that "will never rise above a C grade because they never raise the tough questions. ... Learning is not a sedimentary deposit. It must be drilled for," he said.

The oldest alumna and former faculty member on hand was Dr. Cornelia Smith, Baylor biology professor emerita and member of the class of 1918, who is 99.

Also present were 150 members of the sesquicentennial class of 1995.

"God has been good to Baylor over these 15 decades, and we have lived by God's grace," Reynolds said.

A time capsule marking the occasion was buried on Burleson Quadrangle, just east of Founders' Esplanade.

Delighting in the 'pot o' gold' ostrich

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Kevin Owen first ate ostrich meat at a restaurant in the Caribbean 10 years ago. Shortly thereafter he started raising some of the African birds in Texas as a way of preoccupying his father who had just been diagnosed with lung cancer.

Now, this veterinarian does everything from market electronic identification devices for the 250- to 350-pound birds to promote a satellite auction service for exotic animals.

"They had it in one of the restaurants there, and I said sure I'd try it and it was good," Owen said. "The prime concern in the whole American nutritional revolution was for a healthier food source, and this is one."

Owen formed the American Ostrich Association and began promoting the meat's low-fat and low-cholesterol qualities. The AOA says the meat is healthier than chicken or turkey but closer in flavor and iron and protein content to red meat. The hides and feathers also are marketable.

The AOA's first meeting in 1987 attracted 100 people, and the organization now has 3,600 members. The AOA is holding its four-day Ostrich Fest '95 at this week the MGM Grand Hotel and Theme Park and expects 2,000 attendees. Owen was on hand Wednesday as one of 200 exhibitors.

Conventioners say there are several reasons for the bird's recent rise in popularity, and they're using the convention as an opportunity to educate new ranchers and encourage more mainstream consumption of the meat.

"There are several trends, one being that conventional agriculture is just simply not as profitable as it used to be," said Chuck Ball, current president of the Fort Worth, Texas-based AOA.

"Secondly, there's a lot of urban flight going on and people are looking for something to raise on a small acreage, and thirdly, overall health concerns have people looking at alternative food sources, such as the buffalo industry and catfish farming," he said.

Upscale restaurants such as the Mansion on Turtle Creek in Dallas serve ostrich meat as a delicacy, and mall order sales to private homes are growing so fast that some dealers say they can't keep up with the demand. The meat generally costs about $29 per pound.

"We have a full line of meats from hot dogs to fillets," said Gary Teixeira of Teixeira Foods, Inc. in Maricopa, Calif. "Most sales are mail order, and there's more demand for products than there is meat. As soon as we can get more, we have more."

An AOA pamphlet lists two recipes including ostrich steak and grilled ostrich with wild mushrooms in a mustard shallot sauce, and John Mann, a chef for Teixeira Foods, said the meat can be cooked with almost anything.

"It's a neutral meat," he said. "You can cook it with fruit, with wine or with gin. It will adopt the character of the sauce."

Many of the restaurants that offer ostrich are in Texas and its surrounding states or California, but Ball said ostrich farms are growing rapidly in the Midwest and the Northeast, too, despite the birds' high costs.

A pair of 18-month-old ostriches that are on display at the convention cost about $15,500, said Bud E. Alldredge Jr., a Sweetwater, Texas, veterinarian who devotes about 40 percent of his practice to caring for ostriches.

Ties, briefs - what's next?

I don't remember looking forward to the mail delivery as much as I have the last week.

Every day promises to be as exciting as Christmas morning or an Easter egg hunt.

It began when a nice widow lady in Arizona read about my wife's disgust with my old winter overcoat, a frayed, grungy garment I have worn for many years.

In the nice lady's closet was a splendid blue-black wool overcoat - virtually new - that had belonged to her late husband.

She said she wanted me to have the coat because her husband had been a fine man and she thought that I was too.

It fit perfectly, and my wife and co-workers said I had never worn a coat that made me look so successful and dignified.

They did express some mild reservations about whether wearing the coat was appropriate. As one of them put it: "Don't you think that wearing a coat that belonged to a dead stranger is kind of weird, even for you?"

Or as my wife said: "OK, if you insist on wearing it, then wear it. But do you really have to brag and tell everyone we meet - even that hat-check girl in the restaurant - where you got it?"

Besides, we are constantly told to recycle. So what is the sense in letting a perfectly good coat become moth food?

I was so grateful to the nice widow lady that I wrote a column about receiving the coat. And at the end, I wondered what happened to her husband's ties.

Unfortunately, that lady did not have any ties. But in a few days, a package arrived from Wisconsin with a note that said:

"My husband has been gone for two years. He's not dead, which wouldn't break my heart. I threw him out because he was a bum and I caught him playing around with a friend of mine."

"He left town in such a big hurry - my brother was going to break his neck - that he didn't take all of his clothes. I put them in a box in the basement, and I have been meaning to give them to the Salvation Army and take a tax write-off, but I never got around to it."

"My husband was short and fat and kind of ugly, and you don't look short and fat, so I don't think his clothes would fit. But you mentioned ties, so I am sending you a few of them."

"I think you are just the person to have them because they are awful. He always had terrible taste, and I have the feeling that you do too."

"From what I have read, you sound like just as big a bum as he was, so it is only right that the ties should go around your neck. Knot them real tight and your wife might be as happy as I am."

While her sentiment could have been a bit warmer, the ties were excellent by my standards. Which means that they did not have any stains from gravy, pasta sauce or drool. And they all had labels. It's my experience that a tie that doesn't have a label is usually not high class. However, they can be worn backward once the front becomes gloopy.

The next day, this letter arrived from a lady in Columbus, Ohio:

"Your article on the overcoat got me thinking. I'm too am a widow living alone. So don't publish my name or address."

"My husband died last October and left me well-situated financially. He was frugal but not stingy."

"Among his personal effects are about 50 jockey briefs, of which 20 are still in original plastic packages. My husband never passed up a jockey brief sale."

"Under separate cover, I'm sending the lot to you by UPS."

"I should tell you that the waist elastic in some of the used ones has stretched. But you can gather the waist in with a safety pin like he did. They are size 38."

"They are all perfectly laundered. My husband had a saying about such things: 'Rich not gaudy like a cat pawing cabbage.'"

My sentiments exactly. Show me a cat pawing cabbage and I'll show you cabbage being pawed by a cat.

So now I have an overcoat, several ties and almost a two-month supply of underwear. Is this a great country or what?

And I'll wear it all, although my wife said: "A dead man's underwear? You can't, you won't, I don't believe this." But as I always say to her: "Has anyone ever told you that you're beautiful when you cry hysterically?"

Who knows what will arrive in the next mail? (Coat size, 43; trouser waist, 37; inseam 32; shoes, 12 wide.)

Goah, I've always wondered what it would be like to have a Mercedes.

Faulty unit delays Discovery

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A critical navigation unit aboard space shuttle Discovery failed Wednesday and forced NASA to delay the Russian rendezvous mission by one day.

NASA was about a half-hour away from pumping fuel into Discovery's external tank for an early morning liftoff Thursday when shuttle managers halted the countdown. The launch was rescheduled for Friday.

The navigation unit, called an inertial measurement unit, failed when workers tried to turn it on, said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone. The other two navigation units worked fine. All three must work for launch.

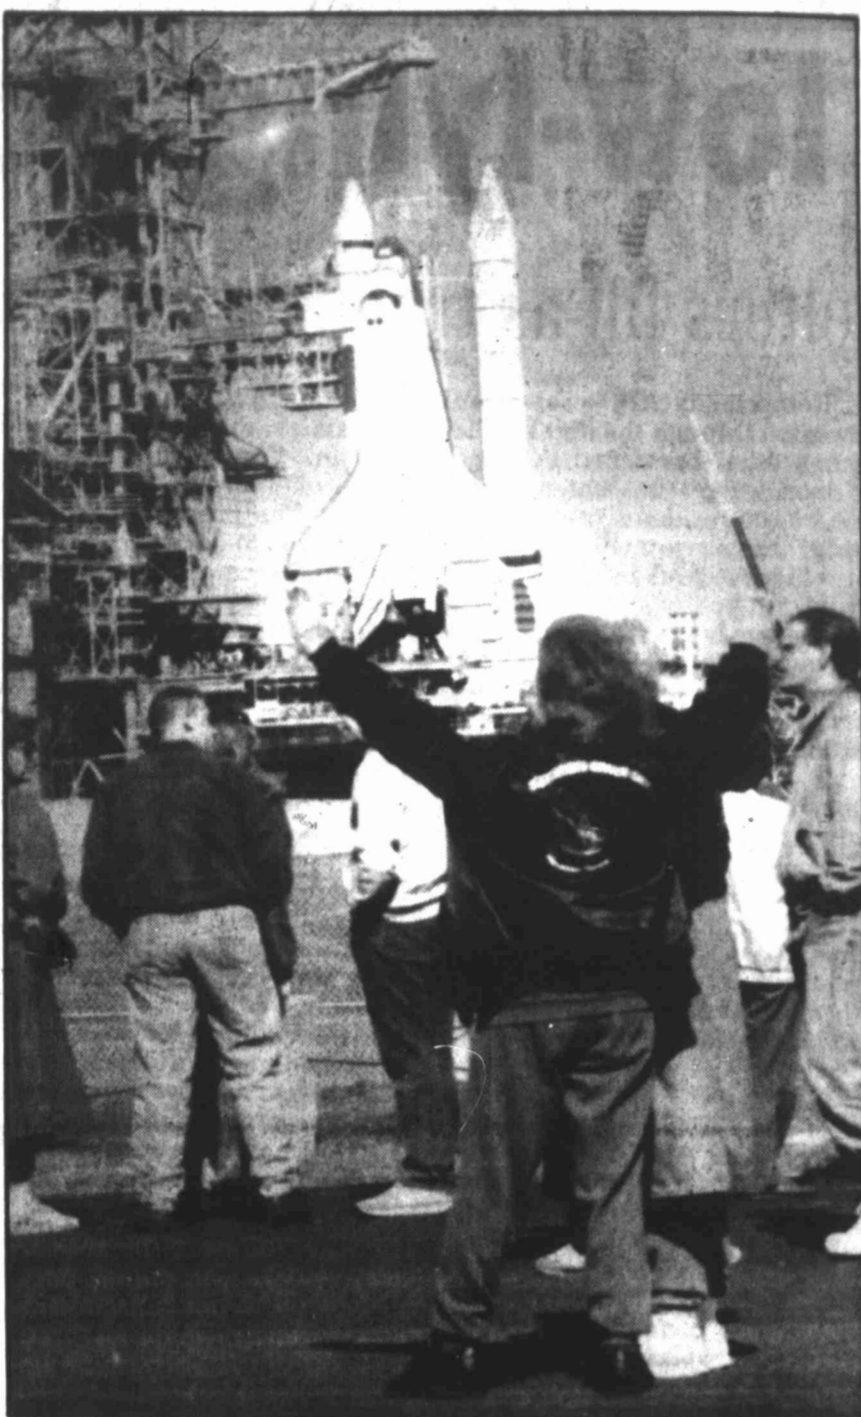

Late Wednesday, technicians replaced the failed unit with a spare; each unit is about the size of a microwave oven. NASA had never switched an inertial measurement unit so quickly, Malone said. Initial tests showed the newly installed unit worked well; more tests were planned Thursday.

A similar problem on space shuttle Columbia in 1993 resulted in a two-day delay.

Friday's liftoff time is around 12:22 a.m. EST. Good weather is forecast.

The cause of the failure was not immediately known. The units measure the shuttle's position and speed.

Discovery is supposed to rendezvous with Russia's Mir space station during the eight-day flight as practice for the first shuttle-Mir docking in June.

O.J.'s friend sticks to story

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He said he loved O.J. Simpson as a friend for 26 years. He breezed into Simpson's estate with a press of the gate buzzer. As a policeman, he even ran license plates checks for him.

But now, Ronald Shipp says, he can't believe that Simpson would lie about a conversation they had the night after Simpson's ex-wife and her friend were murdered.

"This is really sad, O.J.," Shipp said Wednesday as he withstood a blistering cross-examination, staring at his old friend across the courtroom.

Shipp testified that on the night of June 13, after Simpson had been interviewed by police, Simpson questioned him about how long it would take to conduct DNA tests on a bloody glove found outside his mansion.

Then, Shipp says, Simpson brought up the dreams.

"He jokingly said, 'To be honest, Shipp, I've had some dreams of killing her,'" he said. Simpson's lawyers said the conversation never took place. The judge barred Shipp from telling jurors that Simpson said the dreams were why he didn't want to take a lie-detector test.

The power of the testimony showed in the faces of jurors, who were rapt. Some looked down in their laps as the intensity of the cross-examination increased. The defense was to continue questioning Shipp today.

Defense attorney Carl Douglas attacked Shipp's claim that he had a close relationship with Simpson. He sought to portray Shipp as a lying hanger-on with a drinking problem, and said Shipp once brought a woman who was not his wife to Simpson's house to use the Jacuzzi.

Shipp acknowledged that he had never dined out with the ex-football star and never played tennis or golf with him.

"You're not really this man's friend are you, sir?" Douglas asked.

"I guess I was like everybody else. I was one of his servants," said Shipp, noting that he ran license-plate checks for Simpson. He didn't say why.

Shipp was obviously tense, but he stayed calm during the questioning, his voice quiet, his gaze always in Simpson's direction. Simpson occasionally glared back.

Credit card interest rates heaving up

NEW YORK (AP) — When credit card rates hovered above 19 percent three years ago, consumer groups accused banks of gouging customers.

Don't look now. Interest rates on many credit cards and other consumer loans are heading back up following the latest hike in short-term interest rates, announced Wednesday by the Federal Reserve Board.

In the seventh increase in a year, the central bank pushed up two key rates to their highest levels since early 1991.

The discount rate — the interest the Fed charges on direct loans to commercial banks — was raised from 4.75 percent to 5.25 percent. The target for the more important federal funds rate — the interest that banks charge each other — went up by a half-point, to 6 percent.

The move prompted most major banks to increase their benchmark prime lending rates from 8.5 percent to 9 percent.

The Fed wants to slow the economy to the point where inflation is not a threat. Slower consumer spending is part of the formula, and by raising rates the Fed is pushing up interest charges on credit cards, mortgages and car loans for millions of Americans.

A credit card holder with a $1,700 balance will pay another $5 this year in interest charges because of the latest increase.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Unfunded mandate bill picks up speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Picking up speed, the Republican-led House approved an unfunded mandates bill and is moving on to legislation giving the president authority to stop congressional spending excesses.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said he is looking for passage Monday of the presidential line-item veto bill the House was debating today.

The bill would give the president authority to delete specific programs from spending bills, saving lawmakers the discomfort of cutting expensive projects their colleagues want for their home districts.

Rising murder rate puts children at risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising murder rates for the youngest Americans place today's children at greater risk than any generation in decades, according to an analysis of killing in America.

Pre-schoolers, pre-teens and teen-agers "are currently experiencing record-setting homicide rates," the private Population Reference Bureau reported Wednesday.

"These extraordinarily high rates for teens and rising rates for young children must be taken as a clear warning signal that today's children are less protected and more at risk of violence than any previous generation over the past 40 years," stated the study, "Homicide in the United States: Who's at Risk?"

Stella Opata of the Children's Defense Fund in Washington suggested rising deaths among the youngest children are "probably a combination of being in the wrong place at the wrong time and ... cases of child abuse and neglect have been going up ... over the years."

Success of brakes depends on driver

WASHINGTON (AP) — The success of anti-lock brakes in preventing accidents apparently depends on drivers breaking old habits. Two studies released Wednesday concluded that many drivers might not be familiar with how to use the brakes properly. Anti-lock brakes should not be pumped. Drivers traditionally have been taught to pump.

Mescalero vote down waste site

MESCALERO, N.M. (AP) — Anti-nuclear activist Rufina Marie Laws resembled nothing so much as a conquering hero as she approached the stone church that thrusts its steeple into the blue skies of the Mescalero Apache Reservation.

She flashed an enthusiastic smile as she eagerly accepted congratulations and praise. Her fellow activists had gathered Wednesday to rejoice over the Mescaleros' rejection of a nuclear waste storage site — despite promises that it would have brought $250 million in benefits to the tribe.

"I'm ecstatic," said Laws, a tribal member who had dedicated herself to fighting the proposal. "I don't know of any other word to use. The will and the voice of the people have been heard."

Tribal leaders negotiated a contract for the waste site with a consortium of 33 utilities across the nation. The project would have created about 150 direct jobs and 300 spinoff jobs, tribal leaders said.

The Mescaleros turned out in record numbers Tuesday, voting 490-362 against the plan. There were 1,200 people eligible to vote. Results weren't released until Wednesday because paper ballots had to be hand-counted.

Project opponents argued the storage site would endanger the environment and the people living on and around the 461,000-acre reservation. They also feared it would drive away tourists that are the lifeblood of the region.

Supporters saw the project as an enormous economic boost for the tribe, providing money for schools and capital for diversifying their businesses. The tribe now operates a ski resort, sawmill and cattle ranching operation, among other projects.

Mescalero officials and project supporters spoke quietly in the tribal government's headquarters, shaking their heads and exchanging jokes.

Seniors concerned over Medicare cuts talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — When House Speaker Newt Gingrich starts talking about rethinking Medicare "from the ground up," the anxiety levels soar among the leaders of the nation's largest organization of retirees.

"The speaker's proposal left me fully depressed," Abe Asofsky, 82, of Coconut Creek, Fla., said Wednesday at the American Association of Retired Persons' national legislative council.

Gingrich didn't spell out precisely what he had in mind when he called Monday for a top-to-bottom review of the $160 billion government insurance program for America's 32 million elderly and 4 million disabled workers.

But Asofsky, a retired Social Security Administration executive, thinks he knows.

"He wants to scuttle Medicare with some weasel words — 'restructuring,'" said Asofsky.

Dutch fleeing their low-lying homes

This is an aerial view of Warcq, a village in northeastern France, where the majority of inhabitants have been evacuated due to heavy flooding. Bad weather and floods have been blamed for at least 26 deaths across northwestern Europe.

Shelters fill as troops try shoring up dams

TIEL, Netherlands (AP) — Soldiers sweated through the night to patch a dam threatened by rising flood waters in Ochten, while the 5,000 residents of the low-lying town joined the largest refugee exodus in Dutch history.

Flood shelters were filling up Wednesday as evacuees fled north in packed cars along jammed highways, pulling trailers loaded with furniture. As many as 250,000 people have abandoned their homes and belongings in Gelderland and Limburg provinces.

The Waal River subsided slightly, but major sections of earthen dike protecting the low-lying southeastern Dutch countryside were weakened by the surging flood waters draining from Germany, Belgium and France.

Most of the Netherlands lies below sea level. The flooding threatens to destroy the vast network of river and sea dikes built over the past 800 years to turn marsh and floodplain into farmland.

"The whole problem is that the dikes are soaked to the limit," said Marij Delissen, a Tiel crisis management spokeswoman. "Now we will have to see whether the dikes will keep up. The pressure on the dikes just has to decline."

The death toll from the European floods and storms rose to 29 with the death of a 62-year-old woman who fell into the flooded Waal River the day before. She was walking her dog with her 52-year-old sister, who also drowned.

Most of the deaths have been in France.

Mayor Ed D'Hondt of the Gelderland provincial capital of Nijmegen, said there was a 50 percent chance the Ochten dike would give way despite efforts to plug the gap.

Dutch television showed about 1,000 soldiers in uniform loading sandbags and working to stabilize the earth around the Ochten dike. They appeared to be having some success at preventing the collapse of the half-mile-long dam.

One Ochten resident, Wilhelmina Hoerst, was afraid she'd never see her mobile home again.

"We've taken all the expensive things like the television and video camera to friends and the dog to a kennel," she said at an evacuation center in Utrecht.

The rising river waters have spread northward, forcing the emergency construction of a second dike around Kampen, a town of 40,000 people.

But despite the threat of fines and even jail, there were some holdouts from the evacuation orders that made vast areas of the two provinces no-go zones.

Riot police went into Gorinchem to forcibly evacuate the remaining 4,000 residents if they didn't leave voluntarily.

Jeweler Kurt Vink had no plans to leave his jewelry store in Tiel.

"There's a lot of money in this business, and I don't want to get plundered," he said. "The jewels are in a safe, but I'd rather stay next to it."

Queen Beatrix splashed through the streets of flood-threatened towns to chat and commiserate with townspeople.

A public dispute is raging over who is to blame for the threat of crumbling dikes.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Chechen war leaves trail of smashed lives

SAMASHKY, Russia (AP) — Russia's battle for control of breakaway Chechnya left a trail of smashed houses and smoldering fires in this town packed with refugees, an anvil beaten fiercely by Russian forces.

The Russian artillery attack Wednesday at Samashky, where Chechen fighters returned gunfire, seemed the bloodiest yet in a week when the war has expanded beyond devastated Grozny to engulf outlying areas of the republic.

International criticism continued to mount. A U.S. State Department report Wednesday blasted Moscow for numerous human-rights violations, including using excessive force in Chechnya.

Reopened route leads to Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The first trucks trundling along the newly reopened route into the Bosnian capital carried construction materials and enough firewood to heat 2,000 apartments — for one night.

U.N. officials hailed the reopening Wednesday, a step made possible by the cease-fire signed on Dec. 31 which they hope can be the basis for a lasting peace.

The road, a target of Serb gunfire, had been closed since July. Now eight international charities working under the U.N. umbrella — which already have land access into Sarajevo — may use the route.

But Bosnian Serbs are refusing to let civilians or Bosnian charities to use it, so the additional route into the capital seemed unlikely to ease Sarajevo's isolation or significantly ease the privations of war.

China accuses U.S. of human rights meddling

BEIJING (AP) — In response to criticism from the State Department, China accused the United States today of using "the excuse of human rights" to meddle in China's internal affairs.

The Foreign Ministry made the accusation in a statement issued by the official Xinhua News Agency.

A pedestrian in downtown Kobe, Japan, passes a cloud of dust emitting from a quake-damaged building being demolished. About 100,000 structures have been destroyed or damaged in the Kobe area following the Jan. 17 quake.

Kobe's plight triggers outpouring of giving from reluctant Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — Kobe's crippling earthquake has triggered an outpouring of giving from Japanese, who in normal times can be reluctant to help people who aren't family, friends or close neighbors.

All over Japan — at temples and convenience stores, outside train stations and even in health clubs — collection boxes ask passersby for contributions for victims of the Jan. 17 quake.

With a confirmed death toll of 5,103, it was Japan's deadliest earthquake in 72 years. Nine people are still missing, and 106,817 buildings were completely or partially destroyed.

The Japan Red Cross Society announced today it has received $300 million in donations, the most it has ever gotten.

"If you consider the size of the Japanese population, the scale of the disaster, the amount seems only natural," said Masumichi Watanabe, a Japan Red Cross spokesman. Japan has more than 124 million people.

Watanabe estimated donations from Japanese accounted for more than 90 percent of the total.

Japan has much less of a tradition of aiding strangers than does much of the West, and Japanese are sometimes reluctant to accept gifts for fear of becoming obligated to the giver. But the Kobe quake has brought out charitable impulses across the nation.

Private citizens have moved to compensate for what many have criticized as insufficient government recovery efforts.

"We can't estimate how many volunteers are working in the quake-stricken areas. It might be 50,000 or 100,000," Rumiko Kadanaga of the Hyogo prefectural government said today. "They came here spontaneously to provide food."

In Kobe, examples of good will abound. Cooked sweet potato vendors have passed out what for many quake survivors is the only hot food of the day. Student volunteers' hands are swollen from making hundreds of rice balls a day.

Construction could trigger more violence

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel will trigger a new Palestinian revolt if it doesn't stop building Jewish neighborhoods in Arab east Jerusalem, a senior PLO official said today.

Faisal Hussein, a minister in Yasser Arafat's self-rule government, issued the warning a day after Jerusalem's planning council approved building plans for a Jewish neighborhood of 6,500 homes in east Jerusalem.

The Palestinians want east Jerusalem as their future capital, but Israel insists it will never allow the city to be divided.

The building approval was seen in Israel as a step to ensure its hold over east Jerusalem before negotiations on the final status of the city begin.

Hussein said construction of this and other Jewish neighborhoods would undermine support for Arafat among Palestinians and increase support for Islamic militants who oppose reconciliation with Israel.

"If the PLO loses the leadership, then the only ones who can assume this role are the fundamentalists. And if this happens ... we will witness a new uprising and no one will be able to stop it," Hussein said.

A seven-year Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation was instrumental in bringing Israel and the PLO to the negotiating table.

McGuire signs Rice's dotted line

Small-school feel made difference for Coahoma star

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

COAHOMA — Brandon McGuire played a numbers game in choosing which university he'd attend. Wednesday, McGuire signed an athletic scholarship to play both football and baseball for Rice University. Asked why he chose the Owls over the University of Kansas, his other choice, McGuire said it came down to a feeling. "Rice had a smaller school feel," McGuire said. "They have an enrollment of about 2,500, and I liked that a lot better than when I went to Kansas, which has about 36,000. There seemed like there was a lot more companionship there than at a big ger school." McGuire became the first Coahoma High School student to sign an athletic scholarship with a Division I-A university since 1975 graduate Putt Choate signed with Southern Methodist. The Coahoma senior was all-state in both baseball and football the past year. As a pitcher for the baseball team, he struck out approximately two batters per inning and had an 0.88 ERA. As the middle linebacker of the Bulldogs' football team, he collected 114 solo tackles — 25 for losses — intercepted two passes, recovered a fumble and caused five others. He said he was relieved the choice had been made and the papers were finally signed, a sentiment echoed by his father. "Yeah, everybody feels a lot better now," Jerry McGuire said. "He's known which school he'd go to for about a week now, and he's a lot happier about things ... Rice is just a nice, friendly place. They made you feel like a person, instead of having a big school atmosphere. Plus Rice is a real good educational school." McGuire said finalizing his decision probably had a lot to do with him ending his recent slump on the basketball court. McGuire plans to play both baseball and football at Rice. That workload, plus dealing with the university's high academic standards, makes him realize he's in for a busy few years. "I talked to some of the guys there, and once you get in, they take it personally to keep your grades up," he said. "As long as you're willing to do the work, they'll work with you night and day to help you with your grades."

Stockton breaks NBA's all-time assists record

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — John Stockton's record-setting assist was almost predestined: a crisp pass from near the foul line to the corner for a jump shot by Karl Malone. But Malone's 18-footer, which gave Stockton his 9,922nd career assist with 6:23 left in the first half against Denver on Wednesday night, nearly didn't happen. A minute before, when Stockton's pass to Tom Chambers tied Magic Johnson's NBA record of 9,921 assists, Malone — the recipient of so many of Stockton's passes over the past decade — was on the bench. "All the guys were looking at me and sort of saying, 'Why don't you go check in?' And I thought, 'I'm not the coach, I don't make those decisions,'" said Malone, who had 30 points in Utah's 129-88 victory over the Nuggets. Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said he had good reason for cutting short Malone's stay on the bench: the crowd of 20,000 at Delta Center. "I wasn't going to put Karl back in the game, but the people jumped on me pretty hard. This is a pretty big crowd and I couldn't fight them all off," Sloan said.

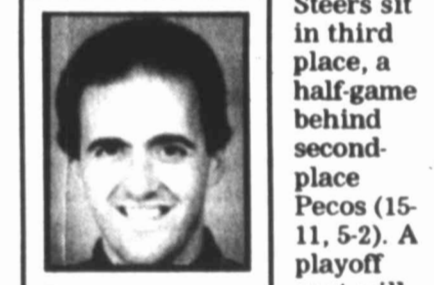

Despite pressure from Denver's Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf, Utah guard John Stockton waits for the right moment Wednesday to pass to teammate Karl Malone for his 9,922nd assist. Stockton's pass broke Magic Johnson's all-time assists mark.

Seconds later, Malone was back on the floor — and Stockton's record-breaking pass came on the next play. Stockton, who finished with 12 points, 16 assists and no turnovers, was thrilled Malone was the recipient of his record-breaker. "I didn't want to take a weird shot," said Malone, who finished with 30 points on 13-for-19 shooting and 14 rebounds. "But when the fans reacted like they did, and the coach looked at me like he did, I think I was supposed to take the shot." The timing of Stockton's milestone pass was the game's only mystery. Utah, which will try to tie the NBA's 16-game road win record tonight in Houston, raced to a 35-13 first-quarter lead. By halftime, it was 63-39. The only excitement for Denver came with 6:43 left when Utah's Tom Chambers was ejected for elbowing Dikembe Mutombo on a rebound. But the Nuggets drew little from the altercation: with 3:17 to play, Adam Keefe's dunk gave Utah its biggest lead, 123-77. In losing their third in a row, the Nuggets — who shot just 35 percent to Utah's 60 percent — got 16 points from Bryant Stith and 12 each from Reggie Williams and Dale Ellis. David Benoit added 19 points, while Jeff Hornacek and Keefe had 18 each in Utah's 14th straight victory. Officials stopped the game to announce Stockton's achievement, and as the crowd stood and roared for several minutes,

The Steers fought adversity and won

For the second straight season, the Big Spring boys' basketball team is doing more with less. The Steers started 3-15 last season and came back to win a share of the District 3-4A title. This season the district is different, but the results are nearly the same to this point. Big Spring is 9-18, 4-2 in District 3-4A.

Dave Hargrave
Sports Editor

The Steers sit in third place, a half-game behind second-place Pecos (15-11, 5-2). A playoff spot will be on the line when Pecos visits Steer Gym Feb. 10. Even if the Steers don't reach the playoffs, they've already accomplished plenty. Despite difficult circumstances, the team is in the hunt for the playoffs in February, which is really all you can ask. The Steers were short-handed to start the season, and then they lost their purest three-point shooter, Tim Rigdon. Rigdon tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee in Big Spring's Rotary tournament Dec. 8. Pity Rigdon, a senior, who missed his sophomore season when he tore the ACL in his left knee. Still, the Steers looked strong once district play began, which was predictable since Big Spring's pre-district schedule was more challenging than 4-4A play. However, the Steers lost a district game at home to Andrews — a loss that could have sunk their ship. Andrews (21-7, 7-0) used that win to grab firm control of first place; Big Spring seemed headed in the opposite direction. Three days later, Big Spring played at Pecos, but during that three-day span one of the Steers' top players, Dustin Waters, left the team. The Steers lost by two in Pecos. Since then, however, the Steers have won two games — at Lake View and Fort Stockton. Losing at Pecos, and losing Waters — didn't faze the team. "Against Pecos, we thought we could beat them," said Big Spring guard Sal Ramirez. "When we lost, it just made us angry, and we motivated ourselves." "Everybody on this team has a job, and everybody does it," said Big Spring's David Belew after the Lake View win. "We had one quit, and everybody thought we wouldn't be able to win with him gone, but we did it without him." At the start of the season, Big Spring didn't have a go-to guy like last season, when it had the top player in the area, Wes Hughes. Now it's February, and 6-foot-5 post player Daniel Franks clearly has become that go-to guy for the Steers. As expected, the Steers are receiving quality play from returners Chris Wollenzien and Aaron Bellinghausen, but after that the heroes have been players with limited varsity experience — Belew, Ramirez and Keith Monger. Cameron Thayer has contributed in limited action, and junior varsity call-ups Felix Chavarria and Lance Purcell have done the same in the midst of district pressure. When you go to Steer Gym Friday night, give the well-deserving Big Spring Lady Steers a standing ovation for their fourth straight district championship. Save some cheers, though, for the Steers. They've earned it.

Top gymnasts coming to town

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports writer

Some of the best gymnastics talent in the state will be on display this weekend at the Big Spring YMCA.

The local Y will be the site for a USA Gymnastics district qualifying meet Friday through Sunday. The meet, one of only three such events in Texas this year, qualifies gymnasts for the state USAG meet later this year.

Among those scheduled to compete at the meet include gymnasts from Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Fort Worth and Georgetown, as well as a contingent from the gym of world-famous gymnastics coach Bela Karolyi of Houston.

It will be, as local Sidewinders coach Russ McEwen says, "a big-time meet."

The meet will be split into six sessions, the first scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Friday. The event is open to gymnasts in levels 4-10. Admission is $3.

Among those scheduled to compete at the meet include ... a contingent from the gym of world-famous gymnastics coach Bela Karolyi of Houston.

McEwen, who will have a full contingent of Sidewinders competing, said most of the squad has already qualified for the state meet, but his team will use this weekend's events to sharpen their routines.

"We're continuing to go to the progression of trying to qualify them for the next level of competition," McEwen said. "We're looking for the kinds who continue to progress and clean up their routines."

For those wanting to see the highest-level gymnasts, Level 10 competition is Saturday at 2:15 p.m.

Fish skip Bass Club event

The Big Spring Bass Club fished its first points tournament of the year under unusually warm and calm conditions. However, as so often happens this time of year, the fish did not show much interest in the event.

A few of the 16 keepers that were weighed in Jan. 22 at Lake Colorado City were impressive fish weighing a total of 51.01 pounds. Only two limits of three fish were brought to the scales by the 40 anglers fishing the tournament.

Fishing as a guest, Charlie Seals used a Model A Bomber to hook and land a 8.91-poundunker that landed him a first-place finish and big bass of the event.

Jim Wilson was fishing a white jig on rocky banks when he caught a nice 5.26-pounder that was good for second place and second-place big fish. New member Keith Conner got club members' attention by bringing in a 5.23-pounder to place third in his first club tournament.

James Householder fished a shad colored Fat Rap on rocky banks to catch a three-fish limit weighing 4.51 pounds to make the fourth-place slot.

James Darling came to the scales with 1.43 pounds to take the youth angler honors for this month.

The next club meeting will be at the Elks Lodge Tuesday at 7 p.m. Next tournament will be at Lake Nasworthy in San Angelo February 18th, fishing time is 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., weigh in will be at the marina.

Charlie Seals shows off the 8.91-pound bass he caught in the Big Spring Bass Club's January points tournament, which was at Lake Colorado City. Seals walked away with first-place and big bass honors.

First 100 school days bring hundreds of rewards

By KELLIE JONES

One! Two! Three! Four! Five! Learning to count to 100 can be fun if you attend Anderson Kindergarten Center.

Students at the center celebrate the first 100 days of school by counting, collecting 100 items and eating sweet snacks in the cafeteria.

For the fifth year in a row, teachers have organized a celebration and incorporated learning to count in their lesson plans.

"The students brought 100 things to their classroom and we would group them in 10s so they could learn how to count and learn the place value of 100," explained AKC teacher Barbara Herrera.

Some students brought pens, pennies, crayons and even 100 marshmallows.

Half of the student body counts the first 100 days of school, not including holidays and then have a party on the 100th day. This year it was Jan. 30.

Herrera also read a book, "I'll Teach my Dog 100 Words," to her students. This teaches not only counting but also new words to the children.

Students also made a snack mix made up of five items such as Cheerios, pretzels, chocolate chips, marshmallows and M&M's. There were 100 pieces of each item in the mix.

From there, the children took a handful of the mix then graphed how many of each food item was in their pile.

"This gives the students a good way to learn what 100 is. We group things into twos, fives, 10s and even ones. Counting to 100 has been incorporated into the classrooms every day," Herrera added.

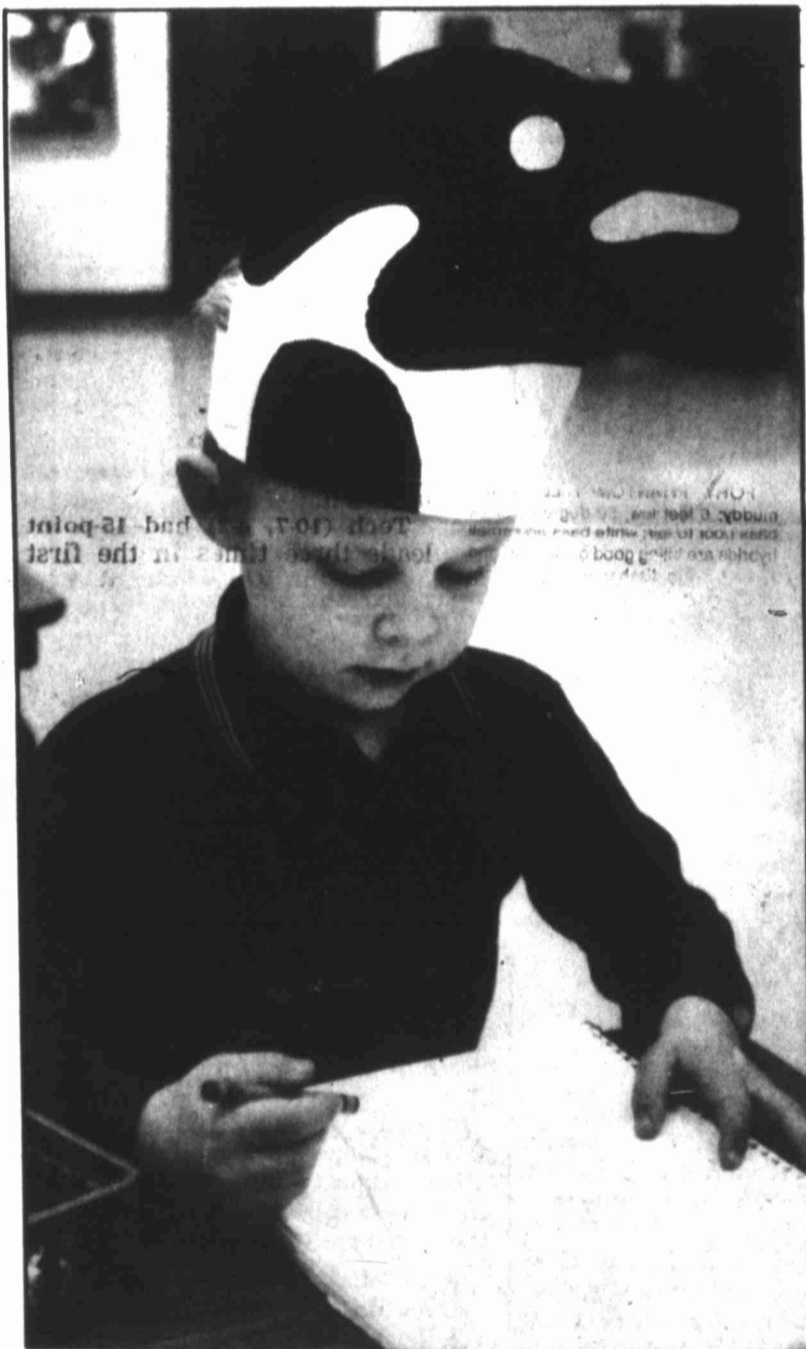

The other half of the school, 250 students, will count down the last 100 days of school and include weekends.

Those students celebrate on the last day of school.

Students at Anderson Kindergarten Center count to 100 during a celebration in the school's cafeteria Jan. 30. Half of the student body is responsible for counting down the first 100 days of school, culminating with a party complete with cake and party hats.

Link between parents, teachers critical to child's school success

By MICHAEL J. MIGA
Thomson News Service

Maintaining a link between the parent and teacher is a critical element of a child's success in school, educators say.

Sometimes, if a child is experiencing difficulties in a subject, or is failing a class, that link becomes even more important.

According to Yvonne Coleman, an elementary counselor based at Robert E. Lee Elementary in Marshall, Texas, if a child's report card indicates he or she is failing, a call to the teacher should be the first step in solving the problem.

"No. 1, I would have a conference with the teacher and find out exactly what the child is having difficulty with," Coleman said.

Coleman said parents need to realize that teachers are their friends, that schools are part of the community, and that working together will eventually help children to be successful.

"In a way, just to stay in touch with a teacher will help. When a teacher knows a parent is interested, the teacher will put out a greater effort to assist the child," she said.

Many times, Coleman said parents wait until the end of the year before they start becoming concerned about their children's grades — and then it's too late.

"To me, when school starts and we get the first progress report at the end of three weeks, if the child is having difficulty, that would be the time the parent should ask questions and get involved, and say, 'OK, how can I help?' 'What can I do to tutor my child to reinforce what he's learning at school?'"

Music students earn all-state honors

By JANET AUSBURY

Music has been very, very good to two area high school students whose talents have earned them statewide honors.

Anna Castaneda, a member of Big Spring High School's choir, will perform with the Texas All-State Choir in San Antonio, Saturday, Feb. 11, as part of the 1995 Texas Music Educators Association Convention. The TMEA, headquartered in

CASTANEDA

Convention. The TMEA, headquartered in Austin, is celebrating its 75th anniversary.

Castaneda was chosen in competitive auditions held this year across the state at district, region and area levels. She sings at school under the direction of Linda Lindell, who belongs to the 8,000-member TMEA.

This is Castaneda's first time to perform as a member of a TMEA All-State group. She also participates in school as student council officer, Key Club calendar girl, F.C.A., D.F.Y.-IT, basketball, theater and track. She is also very active in First Baptist Church.

She is the daughter of Joy Aldridge and Martin Castaneda and the granddaughter of Gene Chandler.

Big Spring High School has not cornered the market on high school musical talent, however; a neighbor to the east claims the other, all-state musical achiever.

Karen Best, a junior honor student at Coahoma High School, has been selected as the top bassoonist for 1-A to 3-A bands in Texas.

She will also make a trip to San Antonio Feb. 11 to participate in the All-State Band concert. She was one of the top two players in all-region and all-area tryouts.

After advancing to those levels, she taped tryout music that was evaluated by five judges from across the state. Best began playing the bassoon in the sixth grade band in Monahans.

She has participated in the all-region band while in junior high as well as the last two years at Coahoma High School. She has participated in the University Interscholastic League Solo and Ensemble contest, earning a ranking of "one" at state her freshman year.

She also took part in the district band concert Jan. 28 in Abilene.

Best is the daughter of Jo and Diana Best of Coahoma. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. V.E. Best of Coahoma and Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Kohanek of Shallowater, formerly of Coahoma.

Her great-grandmother is Doris Hale of Coahoma.

Artists find Gold Key to awards

Special to the Herald

Judy Tereletsky, art instructor at Big Spring High School, announced the results of the 1995 Scholastic Art Competition.

Heath Alan Anderson received two Gold Key Awards in drawing. These works will proceed on to New York City to be judged against some 13,000 other works.

Also proceeding to New York is Anderson's senior portfolio of artwork, where it will be in competition for national scholarships.

Heath received an art scholarship alternative rating for Texas Tech University, which will be decided upon later this spring.

He received a Silver Key Award in painting and also an honorable mention for another art work submitted in the competition.

Stephanie Jones, a junior at Big Spring High School, received a Silver Key Award this year to complement the Gold Key she received last year.

The following students also received honorable mentions: Mark Miller, Linda Hilario and Zolla Parra.

Receiving two honorable mentions each were Seniors Paul McKinney and Quintinn Stewart. Senior portfolios submitted by Quintinn Stewart and Linda Hilario will proceed on to other competitions joined by portfolios by Paul McKinney and Patricia Alvarez.

Exhibition of finalists in this year's scholastic arts competition will be at the Department of Art at Texas Tech University in Lubbock Jan. 23 to Feb. 3.

Anderson joins the growing list of students whose works have competed in scholastic and proceed on to New York. The list begins with Chris Rumpff in 1992, the first year Big Spring High School participated in the competition. She was followed by Amanda Tijerina in 1993 and Stephanie Jones in 1994.

The results of the New York competition will be known sometime in late May or early June.

The Scholastic Art Competition Awards are held yearly in Lubbock at Texas Tech University under the direction of Dr. Linda Kennedy and Dr. John Stenespring.

The competition includes approximately 6300 works to be judged and more than $350,000 in awards and scholarships presented to the students.

Beepers: Hottest teen accessory

By RHONDA B. SEWELL
The Toledo Blade

Lisanne Lewis, 19, who bought her beeper two months ago at the request of her mother, is one of countless teens carrying the tiny electronic devices these days, in their pockets, on their jackets, even attached to their hats.

The pager has clearly moved beyond use solely for doctors, lawyers, salespeople, and drug dealers. Recreational and family use is driving the pager market.

Lisanne explained why she got her pager, which includes voice mail and silent vibration features as well as a beeper.

"I'm never at home and my mother can't reach me, so she got frustrated and suggested that I get one."

Lisanne uses the money she

I'm never at home and my mother can't reach me, so she got frustrated and suggested that I get one.

Lisanne Lewis

earns from working at a video store to pay the $15 monthly fee for the pager.

A check of teens at a shopping mall in Toledo, Ohio, found that USA Mobile and Motorola are the pager brands of choice.

Today, parents are buying pagers for their teenagers, and young adults are buying their own, to stay connected with family and friends.

Most high schools don't allow students to carry pagers in school.

Pagers are smaller and less expensive than cellular phones. Depending on their optional features, pagers can cost anywhere from $50 to $300. Phone mail service can run another $10 to $35 a month.

The Crocodile's Advantage
Test your reading comprehension by reading the story below and answering the questions that follow.

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have identified a quirk in crocodile blood that lets the beasts hold their breath for more than an hour, and they've reproduced it in a human blood protein.

Crocodiles often use their breath-holding ability to drown their prey. They have an unusual form of hemoglobin, the stuff that carries oxygen in blood.

When they hold their breath, their tissues give off a chemical signal. It makes their hemoglobin give up more of its oxygen than usual. So the croc can use that oxygen for a while without gulping in any more air.

People's bodies make the chemical signal too, but their hemoglobin isn't set up to respond to it.

In the new study, researchers from Japan and England identified the piece of the hemoglobin molecule that receives the signal. Then they built it into human hemoglobin. They showed that this altered version acted like crocodile hemoglobin in a test tube.

So does this mean that people might someday be able to linger for an hour underwater without oxygen?

Don't hold your breath, says Harvard hemoglobin expert Dr. H. Franklin Bunn.

"My guess would be if you gave this sort of modified human hemoglobin to somebody, that they would not be able to hold their breath for an hour," he said.

That's because hemoglobin is probably not the total explanation for how the croc does its underwater act, Bunn said.

But the new research, reported in the journal Nature, is "important work and very well done," Bunn said. It may pay off someday for medicine, perhaps in designing artificial blood, he said.

Use the facts from the story to complete each of the following statements below:

1. Crocodiles are able to
  - a) communicate with humans.
  - b) hold their breath for a long time.
  - c) live without oxygen.
2. Scientists believe that these large reptiles have
  - a) unusual blood.
  - b) no need for oxygen.
  - c) the ability to poison animals.
3. In paragraph two, the word hemoglobin refers to
  - a) an oxygen-carrying material in the blood.
  - b) a section of the lung.
  - c) a type of crocodile.
4. When crocodile blood and human blood are compared, they are found to
  - a) be exactly the same.
  - b) give up the same amount of oxygen.
  - c) have different hemoglobin molecules.
5. The reptile can drown its prey because most hunted animals
  - a) are unable to swim or float.
  - b) are not as quick as the crocodile.
  - c) can't go a long time without taking in air.
6. When a croc holds its breath, the hemoglobin in its blood
  - a) will cause the crocodile to choke.
  - b) releases extra oxygen.
  - c) signals the reptile to attack.
7. Researchers from Japan and England have been able to change human blood so that it
  - a) gives up more oxygen.
  - b) understands signals from scientists.
  - c) holds onto oxygen for hours.
8. According to the article, it is unlikely that humans will
  - a) continue to explore underwater caves.
  - b) benefit from hemoglobin research.
  - c) be able to hold their breath for an hour.

An actor dressed as George Washington greets visitors to Mount Vernon on Presidents' Day, the third Monday in February. As a birthday treat, all visitors can get in free on that day.

We celebrate Presidents' Day on the third Monday in February. This day has come to honor all presidents — especially Lincoln and Washington, who were born this month.

Presidents' Day at Mount Vernon, Washington's home in Virginia near Washington, D.C., is special for families.

Mount Vernon has many events of interest to families all year-round. There are programs for school groups as well as special days when craftspeople in costume show how things were done back in Colonial times.

Visitors can go on treasure hunts and history trails to discover more about the man, George Washington, and his beloved home, Mount Vernon.

Birthday

George Washington's birthday is Feb. 22. He was born in 1732.

Q: How many years ago was that?
A: 263.

The myths

Through the years, many myths have grown up about Washington. To find out the truth about the father of our country, The Mini Page turned to experts at Mount Vernon. We thank them for help with this story.

You might want to give this quiz to your family or classmates.

Quote

"First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Q: Who said that?
A: One of Washington's fellow officers in the Revolutionary War, "Lighthorse Harry" Lee.

Height

Q: Was Washington very tall?
 Yes  No

A: Yes. We often think of him as being so. He was 6 feet 2 inches.

The cherry tree

This painting is based on the cherry tree story. It shows George Washington with his father, Augustine Washington. George Washington's father died when George was only 11. His mother, Mary Ball Washington, lived to be 82 and to know that her son was elected our first president.

"I cannot tell a lie!" These are the famous words that George Washington was supposed to have said when his father asked him if he had chopped down one of his prized cherry trees.

Q: Did this really happen?
 Yes  No

A: Probably it did not happen. It was a story made up by a man named Mason Weems, just after Washington died. The purpose of the story was to show how honest Washington was.

To this day, we still think of cherries and hatchets on George Washington's birthday.

The White House

This drawing shows Washington overseeing the building of the White House.

Q: George Washington was the first president to live in the White House.

True  False
A: False. He was the only president who never lived there. He chose the location and helped choose the architect to plan it. In 1800, John Adams, our second president, was the first to move in.

Inauguration

George Washington was inaugurated as our first president on April 30, 1789, in New York.

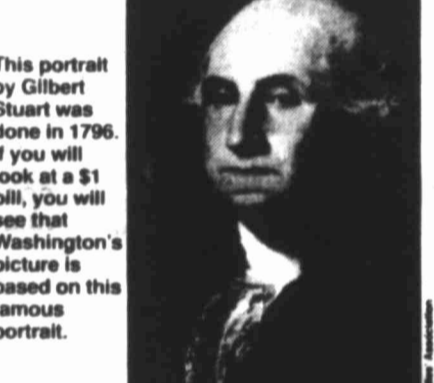

When George Washington was inaugurated as our first president, he added four words to the official oath of office. They have been repeated by every president ever since.

Q: What were these words?
A: "So help me God."

Q: What was George Washington's middle name?
A: He didn't have one.

Teeth problems

This portrait by Gilbert Stuart was done in 1796. If you will look at a $1 bill, you will see that Washington's picture is based on this famous portrait.

Study this portrait. Notice Washington's puffy mouth. Why does he have such an unpleasant look on his face?

1. He had just gotten bad news.
2. His mouth hurt.
3. He had just taken a bite of something sour.

A: The answer is 2. For most of his life, Washington had dental problems. This portrait was painted while he was wearing an especially uncomfortable set of false teeth.

He began losing his teeth in his early 20s. During the last 10 years of his life, he had at least five full sets of dentures. They had metal springs and fit poorly.

Wooden teeth?

This set of Washington's dentures was made of ivory, with cow and other animal teeth. It weighed about the same as a set would today.

Q: Did Washington have a set of wooden teeth?
 Yes  No

A: No. He had false teeth, but they were never made of wood. They were made mostly of lead fitted with human, cattle and hippopotamus teeth, as well as teeth carved from elephant and walrus tusks.

As a writer

Q: George Washington holds the record for having written more than any other U.S. president.

True  False

A: True. He wrote more letters, accounts, diaries and other records than any other president. His writings fill 100 big volumes.

Slaves at Mount Vernon

This painting shows Washington making his rounds at Mount Vernon in 1787.

Q: Did Washington own any slaves?
 Yes  No

A: Yes. He inherited 10 slaves from his father. Slavery at that time was widely accepted. By the end of his life, more than 300 slaves lived at Mount Vernon.

Q: Did Washington free his slaves?
A: Yes. He freed his slaves in his will. He also left money to pay the older ones for many years.

Washington the farmer

Q: Can you name this animal that Washington introduced to America?
A: The mule.

Running a big plantation like Mount Vernon took a lot of study. Washington read that mules (the offspring of a donkey and a horse) would be better than horses at farm work. He introduced mules in the 1780s. They soon became popular work animals.

Next week, read all about the South American llama, which is becoming popular in the United States.

WHAT IS GOING ON:
You built a model of a beam of light (the car or truck) changing speed and bending its path. Light is not a car or truck. But light does behave something like your model. As soon as the speed of light is changed by the lens, it changes its direction slightly.

big stuff

1 Light from the fly travels in straight lines in lots of directions. Some of them are aimed at the lens.
2 The speed of light is slowed a bit by the lens. That steers it in a new direction when it enters and leaves the lens.
3 The steered beams of light all meet at a place called the focal point. If you move behind the focal point, the light beams criss-cross and the image looks upside-down and backward.

WHAT YOU NEED: Toy car or truck - flat piece of cardboard (about 24" X 24") - glue - salt or sugar
WHAT TO DO:
Spread glue over one half of the cardboard and pour on the salt or sugar. Let it dry and lightly brush away the extra. Till the cardboard up about 6 inches and roll your car or truck at an angle down the ramp. What happened to the car's path? Is it a straight line? Try it with another piece of cardboard that is clean.

WHAT IS GOING ON:
You built a model of a beam of light (the car or truck) changing speed and bending its path. Light is not a car or truck. But light does behave something like your model. As soon as the speed of light is changed by the lens, it changes its direction slightly.

Vegetarian has no beef with meat eaters

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "Nevada Vegetarian," I just had to write. According to that letter, vegetarians not only do not eat the flesh of animals and fishes, neither do they prepare it for others. Well, I have been a vegetarian for the last 19 years, and I would like to know who gave this person the right to speak for all vegetarians? Not a bite of animal flesh has passed my lips since 1975, yet during this time, I have prepared hundreds of beef stews, chicken cutlets and pork roasts for other people.

I would like people to know that not all vegetarians are fanatics like "Nevada." I expect people to respect my decision to be a vegetarian and, likewise, I respect their decision to eat meat. Holidays are a time for families to enjoy getting together and sitting down to a nice meal. Everyone should be made to feel comfortable, and not have another's self-righteous opinion crammed down their throats along with the vegetarian soy-turkey breast. Sign me ... TO EACH HIS OWN, MIDDLE ISLAND, N.Y.

DEAR TO EACH: I applaud your broad-minded attitude. You sound like a prize hostess as well as a welcomed guest. DEAR ABBY: Before the holidays, you published a letter from "Heartbroken in Utah," who wrote about a ribbon on a stuffed bear that had suffocated her 7-month-old son, Adam.

Abby, I had to stop reading the article several times to wipe the tears from my eyes so I could finish. You see, I, too, have a beautiful son named Adam who will soon be 9 months old. I want to thank "Heartbroken" for her letter and let her know that she helped me to realize how a small, insignificant item such as a ribbon can kill a child. After reading that letter, I checked my son's crib for anything within his reach that might harm him. Please print this. I want Adam's mother to know that she has helped one parent become aware, and I'm sure there are many more who read her story. My prayers are with her and her son Adam. -- A MOM IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MOM: Mine, as well. Another mother of a small child wrote to say that her child -- still in his crib -- had pulled the cotton stuffing out of a small hole in his mattress and stuffed it into
