Fire department obtains pumps through program

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Howard County Volunteer Fire Department will soon have a new pump, thanks to a cost-share program with the Texas Forest Service.

At Monday's meeting of the Howard County Commissioners' Court, commissioners gave their approval for the department to enter into the cost-share program with the TFS for a new portable pump. The pump will cost approximately $7,600, but because of the cost-share plan, Howard County will be reimbursed $3,800 of the total.

Commissioners also gave the Volunteer Fire Department its approval to purchase a new Power Take Off pump for its regular fire truck at a cost of $2,800. The PTO is the main pump on the vehicle.

In talking to commissioners about the cost-share plan with TFS, Volunteer Fire Chief Tommy Sullivan told them he wanted a pump that would be much more versatile.

Sullivan said, "This new pump would be self contained and could be removed from the truck if necessary. It would also save a lot of time when we're working grass fires because we won't have to go 20 to 25 miles to get water."

Also during Monday's meeting, commissioners voted for March Howard County Librarian Lorraine Redman to attend a three-day grant writing school in Lubbock; hired attorney Robert Mott to act as consultant to the county where tax abatement issues are concerned; and appointed two commissioners to the Resource Conservation & Development board and the Jail Financing Committee.

The school Redman will attend costs $150 and will allow the county access to other

Good food sold through senior center cookbook

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

One of the Spring City Senior Citizens Center's biggest fundraisers is currently underway. The center is selling cookbooks for $10 and can be delivered free of charge.

"This is one of our biggest fund raisers. There are a lot of good recipes, at least 330 of them, from people who have been cooking for years and years. The money from the cookbook sale will pay bills to help keep the center open," said Bobbie Leonard, center director.

Cookbooks can be picked up at the center, or call 267-1628 for free delivery.

The center is also offering line dancing lessons on Wednesday afternoons at 1 p.m. Leonard says the classes are open for anyone who is 55 or older.

Some other activities at the center available for the older crowd include:

- Fashion painting - Fridays at 9:30 a.m. The teacher provides the paints and instructions while the participant brings a t-shirt.

- Bingo - Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m.

Police department receives patrolman grant

Matching grant adds one officer

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Police Department has been awarded a federal grant to add another patrol officer to its payroll.

The grant, called "Cops Fast," is part of President Bill Clinton's crime bill designed to get 100,000 more police officers on the streets of America.

Police Chief Jerry Edwards says the $63,097.75 grant will pay a large portion of the officer's salary for three years. The Big Spring City Council must pass a measure to accept the grant and match it with $7,000 a year.

Once the federal money is used, the city will be responsible for paying the officer's full salary.

Edwards adds he will present the proposal to the council at the Feb. 28 meeting.

Clinic access bill upheld

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court upheld the law against blocking access to abortion clinics on Monday, rejecting arguments that the law infringes on free-speech rights.

The three-judge panel's unanimous ruling in two cases, brought by an anti-abortion group and a protester, is the first appellate decision on the act President Clinton signed into law on May 26, 1994.

One challenge was filed by Joyce Woodall, an abortion protester who was arrested after kneeling in prayer at the door of a Falls Church clinic.

The second was filed by the American Life League, a Stafford anti-abortion group. The league's lawyer argued that protesters can say anything they want as long as they don't threaten or assault people or block entrances.

Judge M. Blane Michael, writing for the 4th U.S. Circuit

The act "strikes a balance among competing rights holders".

Judge M. Blane Michael

Court of Appeals, said the law protects people seeking or providing abortions without infringing on anyone's First Amendment rights.

The act "strikes a balance among competing rights holders" while "those opposed to abortion or to any other reproductive health service retain the freedom to express their deeply-held moral or religious views in a peaceful, non-obstructive way," Michael wrote.

Ms. Woodall's lawyer, Wendell R. Bird, said he will ask the U.S.

Supreme Court for a review.

"A protester can block a nuclear power facility entrance and that's not a federal crime. A protester can block the cutting of old trees in a forest and that's not a federal crime," he said. "But if a protester does the exact same action in front of an abortion clinic, they are on different grounds where the rules change and it is a crime."

But in its ruling, the appeals court said the protesters' agenda is irrelevant.

"The Act forbids the obstructive conduct not because of the content of any message that conduct might convey, but because of its harmful effects," Michael wrote.

The 4th Circuit delayed consideration of one issue in the case of Ms. Woodall, who argued the act is unconstitutional because it authorizes prior restraints on speech.

Chemical cupid confuses roach

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have found the chemical cupid that inspires mating in the brownbanded cockroach and the longhorn beetle and will use it to break up their love lives.

Jerrold Meinwald of Cornell University said the sex pheromones used by the two insect species have been synthesized and the chemicals will be used to lure the male cockroach to poisonous bait and to thoroughly confuse the lovelorn longhorn beetle.

The synthesized sex chemicals will enable the roaches to be battled without poison sprays and will allow less insecticide in combatting the longhorn beetle, Meinwald said. In two studies published today, Meinwald and his co-authors describe how they used amputated insect antennae to identify precisely the chemicals that act as sexual attractants for the two insects.

"These insects use their antennae to detect smells," said Meinwald. "The antenna actually generates a very small electrical charge when it detects certain smells."

By hooking the amputated antennae to electrodes, the small electrical charge can be measured, creating what Meinwald called an electroantennographic detector.

The researcher said the detec-

These insects use their antennae to detect smells. The antenna actually generates a very small electrical charge when it detects certain smells.

Jerrold Meinwald

tor was then exposed to a series of isolated chemicals given off by the bug species. When the detector beeped, it indicated which of the chemicals was the love scent.

Male brownbanded cockroaches are attracted by a sex pheromone given off by a mating-ready female. Among longhorn beetles, the male puts out a chemical that attracts the female.

The artificial sex chemicals will allow homeowners and farmers to use new, less toxic strategies to battle the pests.

For the brownbanded cockroach, Meinwald said, the synthetic sex pheromone can be used as an attractant in roach traps. Males could be lured to traps for a dinner on poisoned bait, he said.

The longhorn beetle pheromone may be sprayed over a forest to hopelessly confuse the insect, said Meinwald.

"These insects use these chemical signals to find a mate. If you spray the chemical, then it would drown out the natural signal," he said. "Anywhere the insect turns, they will get this signal. This will disrupt their mating."

The brownbanded cockroach is a major pest in homes, particularly in the South, said Meinwald. Longhorn beetle larvae are tree borers that cause extensive damage in cypress forest plantations in Japan.

Pheromones already are used in traps for other household bugs and for some bugs that attack crops.

Meinwald said for agricultural pests, farmers put out traps treated with sex chemicals and then count the number of bugs that are captured. When the number trapped per day increases sharply, then the farmer knows it is the best time to use a conventional insecticide.

"It is used to take an insect census," he said. "It enables the farmer to use fewer chemicals and to spray at the most effective time."

sources of funding to complete the new library.

The idea to allow Redman to go to a grant-writing school in Lubbock in early March was introduced by Commissioner Sonny Choate, who said he got the idea from officials in Sweetwater during a recent visit.

He said he believes Howard County can obtain more grants to finance the library project. The county currently has $664,000 in the bank for the library project, and a $200,000 state grant which depends on the county having a library construction contract signed by Oct. 1.

According to Redman, the deadline for having the library project completed to get the grant is August 1997.

Choate was also appointed by the court to serve on the Resource Conservation and Development board. He and Commissioner Jerry Kilgore were also appointed as county representatives to negotiate with the city of Big Spring regarding jail financing.

It's a Vegas wedding

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Want a Vegas wedding for your Valentine? Take a number.

Couples planning to wed Tuesday cooled their heels for up to an hour Monday waiting for marriage licenses.

"We've got a line clear down the street," said Janet Kuhn, who works in the county clerk's office.

Vegas has long been a marriage mecca with its tradition of celebrity nuptials, and no waiting period or blood test.

The marriage license bureau was open from 8 a.m. Friday until midnight Sunday, then opened again Monday morning to accommodate the rush to the altar.

A total of 1,335 couples got licenses by midnight Sunday, a few hundred shy of the 1,836 couples licensed in the same period a year ago.

Winter storms claim 9 lives

The storm that barreled from the Pacific Northwest into Texas cut electricity to a child's ventilator, coated roads with ice and was blamed for more than a dozen deaths over the weekend and Monday.

In Oregon, a 60-year-old woman was trying to crawl away from the start of an eight-car pileup on a frozen interstate on Monday when another automobile slammed into her vehicle, crushing her underneath her own car, state police said. On Sunday, a 19-year-old man died when his minivan rolled off the snowy road and crashed into a power pole.

Schools and offices were closed Monday after the storm dumped up to a foot of snow on some areas, ending a week of record warmth when Oregonians planted flowers and mowed lawns.

One power outage sent an 11-year-old girl to the hospital after her ventilator shut down and a backup power source failed, Portland Fire Bureau spokesman Neil Heesacker said.

In Texas, drizzle froze to bridges and overpasses and led to more than 60 accidents since Sunday, including one in which a 35-year-old woman was killed Monday when her car slid on an icy street and was broadsided. Ice was blamed for an accident Sunday that killed a 24-year-old man when his vehicle rolled over.

Five teen-agers were killed Sunday in the Texas panhandle when their vehicle apparently skidded on "black ice," crossed the median and collided head-on with a truck.

In Washington state, a 40-year-old man was found dead in his wheelchair about two blocks from his home Sunday, and a 51-year-old man found unconscious in a yard died later at a hospital.

Over the weekend in Ohio, a 19-month-old girl and an elderly couple apparently died of exposure when temperatures dipped below zero. Bitter cold was also blamed for the death of a pregnant woman found next to her car last week.

In the Appalachians, Gladly, W.Va., chilled to 18 below zero and Beckley, W.Va., tied its record for the date at 4 above.

At the opposite extreme, Miami warmed to 83 during the afternoon, but a windstorm with gusts up to 61 mph damaged five jetliners parked at gates at Miami International Airport. No one was injured and passengers were scheduled on other flights.

OBITUARIES

John Dunagan

Mr. John Conrad Dunagan, long a leader in regional and national business circles as well as in educational and historical philanthropy, passed away on Feb. 10, 1995, in the presence of his family at a Dallas hospital. Services were held 3 p.m. Monday, Feb. 13, 1995, at the First Baptist Church, Monahans. Interment followed at Monahans Cemetery.

Mr. Dunagan was born in Midland, Texas, on Dec. 31, 1914, the son of John Claiborne and Ada Lois (Hicks) Dunagan, early settlers of the area. After spending his early childhood years on a Gaines County ranch, he moved to Midland in 1925. He graduated from Midland High School in 1931 and later attended the University of Texas at Austin. In 1933 he married Kathryn Cosper, also a graduate of Midland High School, and moved to Monahans.

From 1933 to 1983 Mr. Dunagan worked as manager, partner and finally president of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Monahans (later Permian Coca-Cola Bottling Company). He was prominent in the bottling industry on state and national levels, serving as president of the Texas State Bottlers Association (1958); on the Executive Board of the National Soft Drink Association (1961-1973); and as a member (1960-1974) and chairman (1968-1972) of the key Standardization Committee of the Coca-Cola Bottlers Association.

In 1937 Mr. Dunagan helped organize First State Bank in Monahans. Beginning as assistant cashier, he became Chairman of the Board in 1967. He was also co-founder of Kermit State Bank in 1944. He remained active as an officer and board member of both banks until his death. Mr. Dunagan's other business interests included Midessa TV, Inc. (KMD-TV), of which he was president from 1964 to 1983; Texas Savings and Loan, which he headed from 1965 until 1982; and Southwest Canners of Portales, N.M., which he co-founded in the early 1970's.

Mr. Dunagan was well known for providing both financial support and his considerable managerial talent to many worthy causes. In 1939 he served on the Monahans City Council. He was charter member of the Monahans Rotary Club and received the Paul Harris Fellow Award from Rotary International in 1980. In 1955 Governor Allan Shivers appointed him to a six-year term on the Texas Good Neighbor Commission, an organization dedicated to improving relations with Mexico. He was instrumental in the creation of the Monahans Sandhills State Park and served as president of the park association from 1958 to 1961. His dedication to community service led to his selection in 1964 as Outstanding Citizen by the Monahans Chamber of Commerce and in 1983 to the United States Jaycees' Hall of Leadership.

Widely recognized in the region for his ardent and generous support of education, Mr. Dunagan was appointed by President Eisenhower to serve on the President's Council on Education in the 1950's. He played a key role in the opening of the Permian Basin and had served on its development board since 1976. He was later appointed to the Executive Committee of the University of Texas Systems Chancellor's Council. He and his wife endowed professorships in history and in the humanities at UTPB. In 1976, he founded the Permian Honor Scholarship Foundation, which has awarded over 1,700 scholarships to area students. In recognition of his generosity and dedication to higher education in the West Texas area, UTPB recognized him with its Distinguished Patron Award in 1991.

Mr. Dunagan was an avid historian and wrote extensively on local and business history, including a biographical study of Monahans native Eugene Holman who became President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Recently Mr. Dunagan completed a history of the soft drink industry in Texas, which will appear in the forthcoming revised edition of the "Handbook of Texas." He was a vital member of the West Texas Historical Association, the Permian Historical Society, and the Texas State Historical Association, serving as a member of the governing boards as well as president of all these organizations. He also supported the creation of the Million Barrel Museum and served on the board of the Historical Association of Ward County. His love of history was recognized in the dedication to the West Texas Historical Association's 1986 Yearbook: "Never just an honorary member," he has selflessly dedicated years of work to the organizations which seek to preserve the Texas past.

He received numerous other honors, including election to the prestigious Philosophical Society of Texas. In 1991 the Southwest Conference of Foundations presented him with its Founder Spirit Award in recognition of his long-time philanthropic activities. His latest honor was the 1994 Community Statesman Award for Philanthropy which is to be presented Feb. 16 by the Heritage of Odessa Foundation.

Conrad Dunagan is survived by his wife, Kathryn; his five children, Deanna Dunagan, Chicago, Ill.; John Charles Dunagan, Westport, Conn.; Carol Dunagan Husbands, San Marcos; Kathleen Dunagan, Austin; and William Claiborne Dunagan, St. Louis, Mo.; 10 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; his mother, Ada Dunagan, Midland; and his three sisters, Helen Reeves, Marble Falls; Lorena Jones, Midland; and Virginia Hardy, Abilene.

The family requests that memorials be sent to: Friends of Monahans Sandhills State Park, P.O. Box 640, Monahans, Texas 79756.

Chemical cupid confuses roach

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have found the chemical cupid that inspires mating in the brownbanded cockroach and the longhorn beetle and will use it to break up their love lives.

Jerrold Meinwald of Cornell University said the sex pheromones used by the two insect species have been synthesized and the chemicals will be used to lure the male cockroach to poisonous bait and to thoroughly confuse the lovelorn longhorn beetle.

The synthesized sex chemicals will enable the roaches to be battled without poison sprays and will allow less insecticide in combatting the longhorn beetle, Meinwald said.

In two studies published today, Meinwald and his co-authors describe how they used amputated insect antennae to identify precisely the chemicals that act as sexual attractants for the two insects.

"These insects use their antennae to detect smells," said Meinwald. "The antenna actually generates a very small electrical charge when it detects certain smells."

By hooking the amputated antennae to electrodes, the small electrical charge can be measured, creating what Meinwald called an electroantennographic detector.

The researcher said the detec-

These insects use their antennae to detect smells. The antenna actually generates a very small electrical charge when it detects certain smells.

Jerrold Meinwald

tor was then exposed to a series of isolated chemicals given off by the bug species. When the detector beeped, it indicated which of the chemicals was the love scent.

Male brownbanded cockroaches are attracted by a sex pheromone given off by a mating-ready female. Among longhorn beetles, the male puts out a chemical that attracts the female.

The artificial sex chemicals will allow homeowners and farmers to use new, less toxic strategies to battle the pests.

For the brownbanded cockroach, Meinwald said, the synthetic sex pheromone can be used as an attractant in roach traps. Males could be lured to traps for a dinner on poisoned bait, he said.

The longhorn beetle pheromone may be sprayed over a forest to hopelessly confuse the insect, said Meinwald.

"These insects use these chemical signals to find a mate. If you spray the chemical, then it would drown out the natural signal," he said. "Anywhere the insect turns, they will get this signal. This will disrupt their mating."

The brownbanded cockroach is a major pest in homes, particularly in the South, said Meinwald. Longhorn beetle larvae are tree borers that cause extensive damage in cypress forest plantations in Japan.

Pheromones already are used in traps for other household bugs and for some bugs that attack crops.

Meinwald said for agricultural pests, farmers put out traps treated with sex chemicals and then count the number of bugs that are captured. When the number trapped per day increases sharply, then the farmer knows it is the best time to use a conventional insecticide.

"It is used to take an insect census," he said. "It enables the farmer to use fewer chemicals and to spray at the most effective time."

sources of funding to complete the new library.

The idea to allow Redman to go to a grant-writing school in Lubbock in early March was introduced by Commissioner Sonny Choate, who said he got the idea from officials in Sweetwater during a recent visit.

He said he believes Howard County can obtain more grants to finance the library project. The county currently has $664,000 in the bank for the library project, and a $200,000 state grant which depends on the county having a library construction contract signed by Oct. 1.

According to Redman, the deadline for having the library project completed to get the grant is August 1997.

Choate was also appointed by the court to serve on the Resource Conservation and Development board. He and Commissioner Jerry Kilgore were also appointed as county representatives to negotiate with the city of Big Spring regarding jail financing.

Winter storms claim 9 lives

The storm that barreled from the Pacific Northwest into Texas cut electricity to a child's ventilator, coated roads with ice and was blamed for more than a dozen deaths over the weekend and Monday.

In Oregon, a 60-year-old woman was trying to crawl away from the start of an eight-car pileup on a frozen interstate on Monday when another automobile slammed into her vehicle, crushing her underneath her own car, state police said. On Sunday, a 19-year-old man died when his minivan rolled off the snowy road and crashed into a power pole.

Schools and offices were closed Monday after the storm dumped up to a foot of snow on some areas, ending a week of record warmth when Oregonians planted flowers and mowed lawns.

One power outage sent an 11-year-old girl to the hospital after her ventilator shut down and a backup power source failed, Portland Fire Bureau spokesman Neil Heesacker said.

In Texas, drizzle froze to bridges and overpasses and led to more than 60 accidents since Sunday, including one in which a 35-year-old woman was killed Monday when her car slid on an icy street and was broadsided. Ice was blamed for an accident Sunday that killed a 24-year-old man when his vehicle rolled over.

Five teen-agers were killed Sunday in the Texas panhandle when their vehicle apparently skidded on "black ice," crossed the median and collided head-on with a truck.

In Washington state, a 40-year-old man was found dead in his wheelchair about two blocks from his home Sunday, and a 51-year-old man found unconscious in a yard died later at a hospital.

Over the weekend in Ohio, a 19-month-old girl and an elderly couple apparently died of exposure when temperatures dipped below zero. Bitter cold was also blamed for the death of a pregnant woman found next to her car last week.

In the Appalachians, Gladys W.Va., chilled to 18 below zero and Beckley, W.Va., tied its record for the date at 4 above.

At the opposite extreme, Miami warmed to 83 during the afternoon, but a windstorm with gusts up to 61 mph damaged five jetliners parked at gates at Miami International Airport. No one was injured and passengers were scheduled on other flights.

Take a number: It's a Vegas wedding

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Want a Vegas wedding for your Valentine? Take a number.

Couples planning to wed Tuesday cooled their heels for up to an hour Monday waiting for marriage licenses.

"We've got a line clear down the street," said Janet Kuhn, who works in the county clerk's office.

Vegas has long been a marriage mecca with its tradition of celebrity nuptials, and no waiting period or blood test.

The marriage license bureau was open from 8 a.m. Friday until midnight Sunday, then opened again Monday morning to accommodate the rush to the altar.

A total of 1,335 couples got licenses by midnight Sunday, a few hundred shy of the 1,836 couples licensed in the same period a year ago.

Single issues do not a leader make

When our forefathers established the Constitution of the United States, their idea was for majority rule with minority rights under a democratic society.

Today we are getting away from that very basic idea as more and more special interest groups try to force their limited agenda on the entire populace of the United States.

The idea of majority rule with minority rights is a simple one: The majority can't trample on the rights of the minority who do not think the same on a given issue.

We have gotten to the point where we decide a candidate's fitness for office based solely on single issues such as abortion, gun control, crime or any other single issue.

That's what the GOP is worried about right now. Those planning to run for president in 1996 don't want a single issue to become a litmus test for their ability to run this country.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., a moderate considering a run for the 1996 nom ination, was quoted in an Associated Press story as saying: "I don't think litmus tests are appropriate. If we start being guided by specific groups all over the spectrum, heaven help us."

A single issue does not determine a candidate's fitness to serve - it can't. There are too many issues facing this country, all important, all needing to be solved, that a single issue can't take precedence.

Especially if it loses this country an able leader - Republican or Democrat.

We need to look beyond the narrow scope of our particular issue and learn to weigh all the issues and see if the balance is favorable.

That way we can be assured of a leader who is interested in all the problems - not just one.

Love is an evolving thing

Love is a living thing. It grows or it dies. In the beginning is romance. Boy and girl, man and woman. The breathless ecstasy of infatuation. The honeymoon. The excitement of exploration and discovery. Then, as with all growing things, one day, the bloom wilts. The seeds have fallen from the pod to propagate anew. And, in the less-than-thrilling middle years, there is a time when married folks just sort of tolerate each other.

Finally, much later than most realize, love sets in. Real, whole, complete love - love in the third degree.

Unfortunately, in that sometimes-uncomfortable in-between time - uncomfortable mostly because it is his own waning virility that a man despises, and, for a woman, her wrinkles - some fly the coop, jump the fence and seek to recycle their lives and rediscover romance.

But, by starting over, they are delaying the ultimate fulfillment, for full-grown love requires many seasons.

Thus, in human relations, love evolves.

It is somewhat the same with the love of a man for his home.

To a boy, his home town is filled with excitement and discovery. To the young man, far horizons beckon. But the old man, if he is still seeking far horizons, is a piteous person - he is unprotected, chasing every place and loving no place.

On the other hand, some of the happiest people I have ever known either returned to their home towns or tolerated their home towns through the long, dull years when restlessness might have lured them elsewhere. Finally, they developed fierce pride in their communities - a determined, protective, permanent love in the third degree.

Perhaps with nations, too, this evolution can neither be hurried nor denied. The revolution's fever and fire once spent, the nation becomes first complacent - then crotchety and self-critical.

In our United States, with the honeymoon behind us and love in the third degree yet unrealized, we are inclined to carp and criticize, condemn and blame the government, and even flirt with other kinds.

I hope we don't jump the fence, seeking greener pastures in our middle years. For this, with nations as with men, is merely to start over again.

Letters to the Editor

Pay raise appreciated

Writer wants schools, not prisons

Editor:
A few years ago a bond election was held in Big Spring to build a new Junior/High-Middle school to replace the aging Runnels Jr. High. It did not pass. For some reason the people of this city did not think its children needed better, more up-to-date, more hygienic, esthetically appealing, cool in summer, warm in winter facilities. The children are our future, and deserve the best we can give them for their learning environment.

On the other hand, jail prisoners offer us no future whatsoever except ever increasing expense while they use our jails and courts for a playground professing and exercising their "rights." They certainly do not deserve what we would not provide for our children.

Let's build some schools before we build a jail to make sure our children have environmentally sound, safe clean facilities before we spend millions of dollars building a jail. Put bars on the windows of Runnels School and put the prisoners in there. Oh, foolish me, it wouldn't meet the high standards mandated for prisoner comfort. What a dichotomy. I hope the voters consider this scenario when they go to the polls.

Sincerely,
Patricia Craddock

Vaccinations protect humans and pets

Editor:
The editorial in Tuesday's Herald about rabies vaccination states, "What you do depends on how much your pet means to you. If your pet means a lot, you will protect it. If it doesn't, you won't get it its shots."

The Herald misses the point. The purpose of the Texas rabies quarantine is to protect humans, not pets. Yes, pets will be protected, but they must be vaccinated so that they will not transmit rabies to humans. A pet which contracts rabies will be in contact with many more persons than any rabid wild animal ever will be.

It is not necessary to be bitten by an infected animal to contract rabies. Rabies can be transmitted by saliva in a cut. A lick from a family dog or cat that has developed rabies from exposure to a wild animal could be deadly.

Are you willing to take the chance? If your unvaccinated pet shows signs of sickness and disappears, are you willing to gamble that it was not rabies? Post exposure rabies shots are extremely expensive, more than $1,000 for the series. Your entire family could need to take them!

Let us remember the real reason we are vaccinating dogs and cats against rabies. It is for the protection of the humans in our community.

Your sentence could better be stated: "What you do depends on how much your family means to you. If your family means a lot, you will vaccinate your pets. If it doesn't, you won't give pets their shots."

Citizens, please immunize all dogs and cats that have not received rabies vaccinations within the last 12 months.

OUT FRONT

Doesn't like movie portrayal

■ Cullen Davis takes exception to 'Texas Justice'

FORT WORTH (AP) — It was like a scene from the ABC miniseries "Texas Justice": Cullen Davis and Priscilla Davis exchanging sharp looks and sharper words.

Davis called a news conference Monday to protest his portrayal in the docudrama, which was based largely on a murderous 1976 rampage at his $6 million Fort Worth mansion.

The show aired Sunday and Monday nights.

Priscilla Davis showed up unannounced and uninvited and watched with obvious contempt as Davis denied again that he was the "man in black" who gunned down four people that August night.

The gunman, wearing a woman's black wig, wounded Priscilla and killed her boyfriend and her 12-year-old daughter. Priscilla and Cullen Davis were estranged, but not divorced, at the time.

Another young man was critically wounded, but his date escaped unharmed.

The three survivors identified the gunman as Davis, then a 42-year-old heir to an oil fortune.

Despite their subsequent testimony, an Amarillo jury acquitted Davis in 1977 of killing Andrea Wilborn, Priscilla's child by a previous husband, Jack Wilborn.

Monday's unscheduled confrontation occurred at an office building after Davis summoned reporters to berate "Texas Justice" and one of its stars, Heather Locklear.

Ms. Locklear portrayed Priscilla; Peter Strauss, Cullen. Davis said he and his wife wanted to respond to the "defamatory and slanderous statements made concerning our lives by soap-opera actress Heather Locklear on ABC's Good Morning America last Friday."

Davis admitted that he did not see the show but was advised that Ms. Locklear "said I beat the rap, that I was guilty and that I bought my way out."

He said he also wanted to respond to the "gross distortion and intentional misrepresentation of our lives" in the miniseries, which was based on one of four books about the Davis saga.

"We have been portrayed in false light, insulted and humiliated before a watching nation," he said. "We have been damaged, our privacy invaded and our emotions distressed by this perverse invention of the network moguls."

Davis revealed that he and his wife Karen are writing a book to "once and for all set the record straight."

Maintaining he was "framed" by unnamed conspirators, he said:

"There was not and had never been a single item of material evidence that connected me to the murder. The so-called eyewitnesses were demonstrated in court to be people whose word could not be trusted and whose lives belied their testimony."

At one point, Davis was asked if he had anything to say to his ex-wife.

We have been portrayed in false light, insulted and humiliated before a watching nation.

Cullen Davis

"I have nothing to say to Priscilla," he replied. "Everything I plan to say will be in the book."

But later, while fielding questions, he suddenly turned to her and said:

"Priscilla, I ask you to forgive me in the name of Jesus ... for any grief that I've caused you in our lifetime. I say that from my heart. The Lord knows I'm honest about this."

Stunned, Priscilla whispered coldly: "It's in God's hands." Davis, who says he was converted to Christianity in 1980, made it clear that his apology in no way should be construed as an admission of guilt.

Regardless, Priscilla was unmoved.

Asked if she could forgive Davis, she snapped: "No."

"Do you hate him?" a reporter wondered.

"Yes," she answered.

Davis also acknowledged that he previously sought forgiveness from Jack Wilborn but stressed again that "it had nothing to do with a confession of killing his daughter."

Nine months after the Amarillo verdict, Davis was rearrested and charged with solicitation of capital murder, a case almost as bizarre as the mansion shootings.

An FBI informant swore that Davis ordered him to kill 15 people, including a divorce judge and the three survivors of the 1976 siege.

The FBI videotaped and tape recorded two meetings between Davis and the informant and arrested Davis after he handed over $25,000 purportedly earmarked for the slaying of his divorce judge.

That case first was tried in Houston, and ended in a mistrial in January 1979. Later that year, jurors in Fort Worth acquitted Davis of the murder-for-hire charges.

In 1987, Priscilla and Jack Wilborn consolidated their wrongful death suits stemming from the slaying of their daughter and dragged Davis back into court.

The $16.5 million civil case also ended in a deadlocked jury, which, to some extent, was moot anyway. By that time, the Davis financial dynasty was in shambles.

When he filed for bankruptcy, news reports put his debts at $865 million and his assets at $1.8 million.

"The company went bankrupt because of the crash of the oil industry, not because of my trials," Davis said Monday.

Valentine's Day takes on a more permanent note following quake

TOKYO (AP) — Humbled by recession and stunned by a catastrophic earthquake, Japanese sweethearts are replacing extravagant Valentine's Day chocolates with expressions of life's uncertainty.

In a departure from past hits like the chocolate portrait or electric underwear, one Valentine's present this year includes a life insurance policy worth up to $32,800 in case of a car wreck.

"I don't know if it's because of the recent Kobe earthquake, but this year people seem to want to protect those dear to them," said Takeshi Akatsuka, a spokesman for the Nichii department store chain. The Jan. 17 quake killed nearly 5,300 people.

Fourteen Nichii outlets are selling the policies for $50 in a CD-type case with circuitry inside that lets the buyer record a brief message that plays when the recipient opens it.

Cheaper forms of insurance are also replacing the whacky Valentine merchandise of recent years.

Conspicuous are chocolate versions of talismans said to bring luck and protection, such as the "maneki neko," or "beckoning cat," believed to call in good luck with a raised paw.

"After the earthquake, I guess people are trying to be more thoughtful this year," said Tokyo shopper Kumi Katakawa.

The Japanese version of Valentine's Day began in the 1950s, when chocolate makers imported the idea from the West to boost sales.

But like many Western institutions in Japan, it has been twisted in the translation.

Only women do the giving, and men reciprocate one month later on "White Day," the brainchild of confectioners capitalizing on the Japanese penchant for meticulously matching gift for gift.

This year, some stores and civic groups are collecting donations to make sure the roughly 220,000 people still homeless from the Kobe quake do not go without their traditional Valentine's Day chocolate.

No such thing
as a free lunch

HOUSTON (AP) — A county constable, a police chief and a friend of his walk into a restaurant and order lunch. Using the old discount-for-officers trick, all three pay half price. They keep up the joke for three weeks.

To make it even funnier, the buddy claims to be working undercover. He even gets a badge the chief calls a toy and he rounds out the ensemble with a toy gun and plastic handcuffs.

Nobody's laughing now that Kenneth Bryson and his friends Somerville police Chief James Meadows and Burleson County Constable W.W. Warren are under indictments on charges of criminal conspiracy.

They're accused of pulling a scam to help Bryson impersonate a police officer so he could get the half-price meal with free tea and coffee that law enforcement officers get at D's Diner in downtown Somerville.

Meadows has been suspended and all three face up to a year in jail and a $2,000 fine if convicted of the misdemeanor charge.

Alamo used to be police station

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Everyone knows the Alamo was the scene of an epic battle, but more information about its use as a police substation and a warehouse is coming to light.

While archaeologists try digging up a well used at the time of the battle in an attempt to recover artifacts, a second dig taking place in and near the Alamo Chapel also is turning up a treasure of new information.

Archaeologists from the University of Texas at San Antonio have nearly completed their excavation inside the perimeter of the chapel floor and outside the south wall of the shrine.

Former Richards
backers give to Bush

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush has received at least $545,755 in donations since the election from contributors who had exclusively donated to former Gov. Ann Richards, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The newspaper's findings are based on a computer-assisted analysis of campaign finance reports filed with the Texas Ethics Commission.

Tom Smith, executive director of Public Citizen, a consumer activist group, said post-election donations are an effort by some to buy influence.

Ex-Congressman
setting up shop

HOUSTON (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. Craig Washington is back in Texas.

He's relocated not to Houston, where he represented areas of the city for nearly two decades as a state representative and congressman, but to Bastrop, east of Austin.

He and his new wife have begun a life there that includes a new Austin career for Washington — not as lawmaker, but as lobbyist.

HOUSTON (AP) — A 22-year-old engineering student who lost part of his right arm, vision in his right eye and suffered serious facial burns when a pipe bomb went off is a suspect for causing the explosion, authorities say.

As soon as today, Igor Longo could face federal charges as soon as today of possessing an unregistered bomb and arson with bodily injury. He was in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Ben Taub Hospital early today.

His 23-year-old brother, Vladimiro Longo, was questioned for several hours Monday about the incident. The brother was not injured in the blast.

Police originally were told the two men were waiting for a bus at about 11 p.m. Sunday when the bomb went off in a nearby masonry-covered trash container.

"Evidence found at (the bus stop) and at Mr. (Igor) Longo's residence indicate that he is both the victim and a suspect," said the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The ATF got the case from Houston police mid-morning Monday. ATF officials said the U.S. Attorney's office early today would file the charges, which could carry a punishment of up to 40 years in federal prison with a conviction.

ATF agents said it appeared

Igor Longo, a student the University of Houston, was placing the homemade pipe bomb in the trash receptacle when it exploded.

The blast injured his mouth and badly burned his face, causing him to lose sight in his right eye, authorities said. In addition, his right arm had to be amputated below the elbow.

Young police department
suffering
big city problems

PROGRESO (AP) — The three-month-old police force of this South Texas town is already suffering big-city problems.

City officials cited financial woes Monday when they voted to cut back from nine officers to four.

Also, some residents have alleged that officers unnecessarily pulled guns on unarmed people in this 98-year-old town of 3,000 located about 18 miles east of McAllen.

"Nobody's saying we don't want the police department," said resident Benito Garcia Jr. "We do want it, we just don't want aggressive police officers."

City officials did not specify what would happen to the department's two dispatchers. Officers, who earn about $5.50 an hour, went two weeks without pay before getting checks last Friday.

Mayor Ofelia Garcia said the city is $23,000 in debt and has not paid its bills for three months.

The police department's payroll cost the city $2,000 a week.

"We need the police department for protection," said Ruben Garcia, an alderman appointed mayor pro tem on Monday. "If we dismantle the department, we're going to look like hell and the other cities are going to laugh at us."

Several residents want to keep the protection.

Cuts a push into homelessness

HOUSTON (AP) — Proposed cuts in welfare benefits would push some poor families into homelessness, critics say.

"Families relying on (welfare) are already living at the edge of homelessness," lawyer Jeff Larsen of the Gulf Coast Legal Foundation told the House Health and Human Services Committee in Austin on Monday.

A bill introduced by state Rep. Harvey Hilderbran, R-Kerrville, would limit welfare payments under the state's Aid to Families with Dependent Children to $184 a month, regardless of the number of children in the family.

That would mean a 36 percent cut in benefits for a family of six, whose payments are now capped at $288 a month.

Jury moves from deadlock in implant trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury considering a key breast implant injury case was returning for a ninth day of deliberations today after the jury foreman dispelled fears the panel could be deadlocked.

State District Judge Michael Schneider, presiding over the trial that seeks $29 million from breast implant manufacturer Dow Corning Corp. and its co-owner, Dow Chemical Co., asked jury foreman John Stansbury about the deliberations Monday.

"Speaking on behalf of the jury do you feel there is a probability or likelihood that the jury will reach a verdict?" Schneider asked.

"Yes sir," Stansbury answered.

Jurors last Thursday sent a note to the judge saying they could not answer several of the questions in their 14-question charge. The disclosure raised the possibility the critical lawsuit could wind up being declared a mistrial.

A hung jury could be considered a victory for the Dow companies. Like a finding for the defendants, they would not be liable for damages.

There was no indication what was confusing the jurors, who were advised by the judge to answer as many questions as they could "given the time and care put into this case."

The trial began Nov. 16. Deliberations began Feb. 2.

Plaintiffs Gladys Laas, a retired nurse from Bellville, Texas, and Army Dr. Jennifer Ladner of El Paso contend faulty implants made by manufacturer Dow Corning were responsible for leaking silicone, which caused them health problems.

Mrs. Laas is seeking $11 million. Dr. Ladner is seeking $18 million.

The case marks the first time Dow Chemical has made it to court as a defendant.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Air traffic control case goes to GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffed by its own party, the Clinton administration is taking its case for an independent air traffic control system to the new Republican-controlled Congress.

If the United States wants to maintain high levels of safety in the air traffic system it has to be restructured, Transportation Secretary Federico Pena said Monday.

Pena and Federal Aviation Administration chief David R. Hinson were appearing today before the House Transportation aviation subcommittee to discuss the plan to take air traffic control out of the government and set up a semi-independent corporation like the Tennessee Valley Authority or the Postal Service.

Time to move on from Vietnam horror

WASHINGTON (AP) — Out of high school, Le Van Bang joined a brigade fixing Hanoi roads being torn up by U.S. bombs. A generation later, he's Hanoi's first man in Washington and his son is near the top of his U.S. high school class.

To Bang, that represents a moving on from a past still haunting so many Americans. Armed with visas, tax breaks and a tale of reform, he's encouraging Americans to move on too.

The former U.N. ambassador and career-long Foreign Ministry officer has become Vietnam's representative in Washington under an agreement setting up liaison offices in each other's capital. Vietnam War veteran James Hall is the top U.S. diplomat in Hanoi.

Youngster charged in rape of 3-year-old

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — A 12-year-old Maryland boy is charged with raping his friend's 3-year-old sister, police say.

The incident is alleged to have occurred last Friday after the girl's brother left his friend and his sister to run an errand, said police in Prince George's County just east of Washington.

The girl was treated and released at a local hospital. The 12-year-old was charged with second-degree rape and released to his parents. Neither was identified by police.

AZT dropped from clinical trials

WASHINGTON (AP) — AZT, the most common drug used against the AIDS virus, has been dropped from a clinical trial among children after it proved to be the least effective and to cause the highest rate of side effects.

The National Institutes of Health announced Monday that the AZT part of a clinical trial testing three drug strategies for treating children with HIV has been discontinued.

Final touches put on crime bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House put final touches on the contentious centerpiece of the GOP crime package, a bill that would give $10 billion in anti-crime funds to local authorities and end the program to hire 100,000 new police.

Hanging over the bill was a veto threat by President Clinton, who warned Congress over the weekend against playing "partisan politics with police." Clinton said he would use a veto, which would be the first of his presidency, to stop "any effort to repeal or undermine the 100,000 police commitment. Period."

Attorney General Janet Reno lobbied against the bill Monday in telephone calls to Democratic and Republican members and went to Capitol Hill for the second time in less than a week.

Lawmakers were expected to vote today on the bill, which is the final and most controversial

Infant dies while mom parties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thomas Owensby was just 10 months old when he died of malnutrition while his mother partied at nightclubs and his grandmother smoked crack cocaine, prosecutors say.

Sandra Owensby, 24, and her mother, Constance Rice, 42, pleaded guilty Monday in Superior Court here for their roles in what officials called the starvation homicide of the child.

U.S. Attorney Eric Holder said the young Thomas weighed only 11 pounds, was severely underdeveloped and had a distended abdomen when he was found dead on the kitchen table in the women's home on April 2, 1993.

"It shocks the consciousness that any parent or grandparent permits a child to suffer and die under those conditions," said Kevin Ohlson, a spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office.

An autopsy showed the child's internal organs were decomposing due to a lack of nutrition. The medical examiner said the back of Thomas' head was bald because he hadn't been moved and didn't have the strength himself to roll over. And he noted that the infant had been allowed to lie in his own waste for long periods of time.

Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., and Rep. Rosa DeLauro, D-Conn., attend a news conference Monday where Democratic House members discussed a GOP bill that would give $10 billion in crime-fighting money to state and local governments and cut the program supplying new police offiof a six-part Republican package to revamp last year's $30 billion crime law. The proposal, part of the House GOP's "Contract With America," also would eliminate funds set aside in the 1994 law for after-school, mid-night basketball and other crime prevention programs.

CHECKING

Judge Lance Ito, joined by representatives from both prosecution and defense, leave the site of the murders. The jury toured the scene Monday and the trial resumes today at noon.

Adoptive parents vow to continue fight for baby

CHICAGO (AP) — Baby Richard's adoptive parents say their four-year custody battle against the boy's biological father is far from over — despite a setback by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"They're not clinging to Richard just for the sake of clinging to him. They want what is best for Richard," their attorney, Jerold Solovy, said Monday.

The adoptive parents, known in court papers only as John and Jane Doe, had hoped the nation's highest court would bar biological father Otakar Kirchner from taking immediate custody of the boy, who turns 4 next month.

On Monday, with two justices dissenting, the court refused.

The news was greeted with jubilation by Kirchner and his attorney.

"This is further vindication, further recognition of Otto's claim that we've been fighting for four years," Kirchner attorney Loren Heinemann said. "You sit here and you fight for something and you keep getting slapped down and then you get a ruling from the high court that you're actually right and that's nice. You feel good."

Kirchner said he felt great relief on hearing the court's decision.

"I cried because the whole four years came back to me in my memory," he said. Kirchner said he was anxious to take custody of his son, but had little interest in further negotiations.

GOP not backing down on welfare cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans are refusing to back down from their plan to ban cash welfare to unmarried teen-age mothers, saying illegitimacy must be stopped because it condemns children to lives of "hopelessness and desperation."

On a straight party-line vote, members of a House Ways and Means subcommittee rejected a Democratic amendment late Monday that would have allowed states to continue supporting these mothers as long as they live at home, attend school and cooperate with child support enforcement.

The GOP's blueprint for welfare reform bars states from using federal dollars to provide single mothers under the age of 18 a monthly check. It is on a fast-track and is expected to go to the full House for a vote before Easter.

The subcommittee on human resources began writing the bill Monday, and should finish its work by week's end.

Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., said the Republican plan was based on a stereotype that "we're dealing with a baby-making machine here." He argued that young women, especially those growing up in poverty in the inner cities, do not have children just to get a welfare check.

For them, he said, having a child is like "having a giant miracle," a baby who will "give you love." He said the cycle must be broken, not by slapping mothers on the head with a sanction, but with "common sense and reason."

But Rep. Jim McCrery, R-La., said the issue is the most important question Congress faces as it tries to reverse six decades of social policy and reform a system all sides agree is broken.

"We must do everything in our power to prevent illegitimacy," McCrery said, "because that problem condemns illegitimate children, the great majority of them, to lives of hopelessness and desperation."

Lawmakers also wrestled with other controversial issues during a session that began at noon and continued until nearly midnight.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hebron massacre remembered

HEBRON, West Bank (AP) — A year after a Jewish settler gunned down 29 worshippers at a Hebron mosque, Palestinians were afraid of another slaughter, and Israelis were afraid of a deadly revenge attack.

On the eve of today's anniversary, Palestinian youths were already on the streets of Hebron, clashing with Israeli soldiers and burning tires.

Mayor Mustafa Natche of Hebron ordered all businesses closed today and planned a sit-in at the Tomb of the Patriarchs, where Baruch Goldstein opened fire on praying Muslims on Feb. 25. Today is the anniversary according to the Muslim calendar.

Abdel Abu Irmalleh was seriously wounded in the attack. He says metal detectors and procedures that Israel introduced afterward to separate Muslims from Jews who also pray in the tomb offer little reassurance against another massacre.

Peru, Ecuador declare victory

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru and Ecuador have each declared victory in their border fight and say they'll stop shooting at each other.

Peru announced a unilateral cease-fire to take effect at noon today. It claimed it expelled Ecuadorean troops from the last of three outposts in the disputed jungle border area.

Ecuador, however, insisted its forces retained control of the three bases, but welcomed the cease-fire.

"Ecuadorean armed forces will not fire their arms if they are not attacked," said Carlos Larreategui, a government spokesman.

Tentative cease-fires have been announced twice before, but have failed to stop the fighting that began Jan. 26.

Russian, Chechen rebels reach a limited cease-fire

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — A limited cease-fire between Russia and Chechen rebels began today, with both sides agreeing to halt the use of heavy artillery.

Many were skeptical that the latest truce would hold, but early reports indicated the war zone was quiet. Russian helicopter gunships continued to fly over the region from their base in Beslan, 75 miles west of the Chechen capital, Grozny.

Vladimir Nikanorov, a spokesman for the Russian Defense Ministry, said the agreement was reached in five hours of talks Monday between the commander of Russian troops in Chechnya, Col. Gen. Anatoly Kullkov, and Aslan Maskhadov, the chief of separatist Chechen forces.

It was not immediately clear whether Chechen fighters, many of whom fight on their own, would honor a cease-fire agreement. Truce accords in December and January collapsed within hours.

Maskhadov, in an interview with Moscow's Ostankino television Monday night, said he hoped both sides would honor the truce.

"A complete cease-fire will require further work," he said. "But if I were to give my word that there won't be any more shooting anywhere, it would be just empty talk."

The talks were held at an airport near the village of Sleptovsk in neighboring Ingushetia, 30 miles west of the Chechen capital, Grozny. The Ingushetian vice president, Boris Agapov, also attended the meeting as an observer.

Agapov later told reporters the two sides agreed "to stop all military action and guarantee to stop using air forces, heavy artillery and grenade launchers."

The sides also agreed in principle to an exchange of bodies and prisoners of war, he said. Details were to be worked out Wednesday, when the talks resume.

No passage in Bihac where people are facing starvation

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serbs did not permit an aid convoy to reach northwest Bosnia today, and U.N. officials warn that food shortages there could lead to starvation.

"We have not obtained clearance, which is the same as saying no," said Kris Janowski, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

"The word 'starvation' is now appropriate," for Bosnians trapped in the Bihac region, he said in the Bosnian capital, Sarajevo.

Bosnian Serbs agreed Sunday to let U.N. aid convoys cross territory they hold to reach Bihac, a U.N.-declared safe area, from the east. But they failed to respond to a specific U.N. request to clear today's convoy.

In Zagreb, Croatia, where the U.N. mission has its headquarters, spokeswoman Alemka Lisinski said a nine-truck convoy loaded with 110 tons of aid was on standby.

COVERED AND READY

Farmer John Taylor of Alberta, Canada, sits with a day-old calf Monday he has fitted with a pair of "Marge's Muffs," special calf's earmuffs made by Marge Garner of Redvers, Saskatchewan, to keep the animal's ears from freezing. She sells the muffs for about $7 to $10 apiece.

Gunshot reminder of rebels

GUADALUPE TEPEYAC, Mexico (AP) — A gunshot from a lush, green hill towering over this former rebel stronghold sent government soldiers now occupying the town scurrying for cover.

"Everybody, down!" an army officer barked, as soldiers and some 35 journalists touring the town Monday dropped to their knees or hid behind troop transport trucks in what had been the de facto rebel capital.

The shot was a sobering reminder to the soldiers that the guerrillas may be closer — and less intimidated — than initially believed. The rebels disappeared into the jungle Thursday ahead of troops looking to arrest guerrilla leaders.

The rebels launched their insurgency last year to demand basic rights and services for the impoverished Indian peasants of southern Chiapas state. More than 145 people were killed in the uprising before a Jan. 12, 1994 cease-fire was declared.

The government of President Ernesto Zedillo, under pressure from the military and investors to resolve the conflict, authorized a major army push into rebel territory on Thursday.

"There were a lot of shots fired at us the day we came in, but none — at least not in this town — since," said Brig. Gen. Guillermo Martinez Nolasco.

No one saw who fired the shot, and the general said soldiers had seen seven armed people Sunday on the hill from where it was fired.

"Who knows if they were Zapatistas? Maybe they were just armed peasants," Martinez said.

Rebel leader Subcomandante Marcos also made his presence known Monday for the first time since the crackdown.

If you want to spread your love over Texas, try sending the Ladyjack Lily to former Howard College women's basketball coach Royce Chadwick in Nacogdoches. It's cheap - all it is a cardboard carton containing a year's supply of Tic Tac, those friendly little breath mints that Chadwick scattered across the court whenever he leaped from his seat at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The Stephen F. Austin Ladyjacks don't win as often as the Howard Lady Hawks do, so Chadwick could probably use some Valentine Tic Tac - fast.

(Heard a joke at Howard College recently. Someone asked how to get ahold of Chadwick, and the answer was "Follow the Tic Tac Trail.")

What to send your favorite baseball player or owner? Sorry, but professional baseball is such a mess, the Little Shop couldn't think of an original package idea, so instead it is selling the Ken Burns Bouquet. In the package are nine videotapes - the nine segments of Ken Burns' recent PBS documentary, "Baseball." If a few owners and players would lock themselves in a room and watch those tapes, this baseball season would start right on time.

With real players. Speaking of replacement baseball players (we try not to), the Little Shop has something special for them - the "Get A Life" Garden Bouquet. Yes, you can send your favorite national-pastime impostor a formal arrangement of foul-smelling seaweed complete with a tube of Ben Gay and the death threat of your choice. For an extra $10, you can add a mirror to the bouquet - a mirror that makes object appear fatter than they are. Maybe that will weed out some of the horizontally-challenged wannabes infiltrating tryout camps.

Title within ladies' grasp

Howard women close to clinching after win

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports writer

With three games remaining in the regular season, the Howard College Lady Hawks have the Western Junior College Athletic Conference by the throat.

The Lady Hawks moved closer to their fourth straight conference crown with a 78-49 pounding of Western Texas Monday night in Garrett Coliseum. That, combined with South Plains' 79-71 victory over Midland, means Howard has clinched at least a tie for the WJCAC women's basketball title with three games remaining. Another Howard victory or a Midland loss gives the Lady Hawks the league title outright. Sophomore post player Amber Lacey led a quartet of Lady Hawks in double figures with 21 points. KeeKee Black scored 17 points, Eureka Ray added 12 and Tiffany Johnson 10 for Howard (24-2 overall, 8-1 in the WJCAC). Jackie Wright led the Lady Westerners with 10 points.

As it has all season, Howard's defense was the telling factor in the game. The Lady Hawks limited Western Texas (10-18, 3-7) to a paltry 30 percent from the field on 12-of-39 shooting and forced 28 turnovers. In addition, Howard owned an impressive 39-19 edge in rebounds.

Western stayed close to Howard early, but the Lady

Big Spring teams showing double dose of playoff fever

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

"Isn't it great? It's February, and this school has two basketball teams playing games that matter."

That was Big Spring Steer basketball coach Gary Tipton Friday after his team's 74-60 win over Pecos at Steer Gym.

Thanks to that win, the Steers are playing for a playoff spot tonight, while their female counterparts are starting their playoff run more than 100 miles away.

Yes, Big Spring hoops fans have to make a choice tonight, but they likely wouldn't have it any other way. Either stay home to watch a 7:30 game between the Big Spring boys and Lake View, or travel to Pecos for a 6 p.m. bi-district game - the Big Spring Lady Steers vs. El Paso Jefferson. The Steers (11-19, 6-3 in District 4-4A) clinch a runner-up playoff spot with a win tonight, and they are certainly favored to do so since they whipped Lake View on the road Jan. 24. It wasn't a whipping until the fourth quarter, when

Big Spring outscored the Chiefs 19-8 to take a 69-56 win.

If that game is any indication, expect Big Spring's star post player, 6-foot-5 Daniel Franks, to light up the scoreboard at Steer Gym tonight. Franks dom-

Tech slamming way to top of conference

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech has used the slam dunk with flagrant flair this season to remain tied with Texas atop the Southwest Conference.

Call it intimidating. Call it brassy.

It works. "We like to try to finish strong," said coach James Dickey. "Certainly the dunk is an exciting part of the game, and we're fortunate to have some guys who can jump and finish strong."

Keepers of Tech statistics say the Red Raiders make an average 4.2 dunks per game.

"We're so used to doing it now that if we don't get one, it's unusual," said Mark Davis, a 6-foot-7 senior forward who's slammed 32 times this season.

Dunks could symbolize the finesse with which Tech revved out of a murky 5-6 start.

The Red Raiders (14-7 overall, 7-2 SWC) won eight of their last nine games, including Saturday's 122-91 drubbing of Baylor and their 79-53 victory Feb. 7 over Texas A&M. They face Houston on Wednesday.

Tech players say they finally look like the team picked as the league's pre-season favorite. Joint efforts include 89 dunks this season.

To senior guard Lance Hughes, the 6-4 son of former Texas basketball letterman Brenton Hughes, the dunk is the game's most exciting play. Hughes has scored 14 this season.

"All my life I've wanted to be able to do it," he said. "It gets a lot of nice replays, gets the adrenalin running."

Darvin Ham, a 6-7 senior center credited with 20 dunks, has been nicknamed "Ham Dunk."

"I just like scaring people," he said. "Nobody wants to get dunked on."

Ham describes slams as weapons with physical and psychological power over opponents. Besides, audiences love it.

"It's been glorified, turned into an art form," Ham said. "The crowd would rather see five dunks than five 3-pointers."

Ham said he learned to dunk by watching others and strengthening his legs.

"If you can get up there," he said, "it's as easy as ABCs — if you can hold on to the ball."

Lawmakers introduce new antitrust bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Sens. Orrin Hatch and Daniel Patrick Moynihan will introduce the latest baseball bill in Congress today: a partial repeal of the owners' antitrust exemption.

With no talks scheduled, acting commissioner Bud Selig and union head Donald Fehr will testify Wednesday before the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on antitrust, business and competition.

Moynihan, D-N.Y., Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., and Bob Graham, D-Fla., will testify on the first group of witnesses, followed by Selig, management negotiator John Harrington and James Rill, an assistant attorney general for antitrust in the Bush administration.

The final group will have Fehr, players David Cone and Eddie Murray, and former Federal Trade Commission general counsel Kevin Arquit. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairs the subcommittee and Hatch, a Utah Republican who heads the full Judiciary Committee, hopes to have a markup within a month.

More trouble for Tarpley

DALLAS (AP) — A crazy thing happened to Roy Tarpley on the way to his first practice with the Dallas Mavericks in more than three weeks.

Less than two hours before leaving home Monday, Tarpley dropped a 5-gallon water bottle on his right foot. His foot swelled immediately and now he'll have to stay on the injured list after expecting to be activated this week.

As if that wasn't bad enough, the Mavericks also practiced Monday without guard Tony Dumas. He reinjured his right knee during the All-Star slam dunk contest.

Tarpley's latest woe was particularly disturbing because he was so close to returning from tendinitis in his right knee.

Bagwell bags two ESPYs

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeff Bagwell of the Houston Astros, Mark Messier of the New York Rangers and Charlotte Smith of the North Carolina women's basketball team each won two ESPY Awards Monday night on ESPN.

The two top ESPY Awards went to San Francisco 49ers quarterback Steve Young as male athlete of the year and Olympic gold-medal winning speed skater Bonnie Blair as female athlete of the year.

Televised live from Radio City Music Hall, the ESPYs were given out for the third year. Part of the proceeds goes to The V Foundation for cancer research, established in memory of the late Jim Valvano.

Thirty-three awards were given, including 17 performer of the year awards, seven so-called cross-cutter awards, and nine video awards decided by ESPN viewers.

Bagwell was honored as baseball player of the year and breakthrough athlete of the year. He broke his hand shortly before the baseball strike began Aug. 12.

"I might be the only one who benefited by the strike," Bagwell said in accepting his award.

Messier won NHL player of the year and best performance under pressure. Smith was named women's college basketball player of the year and was awarded the play of the year as well for her buzzer-beating shot against Louisiana Tech in the women's final.

In addition to his two awards, Messier also was on the outstanding team of the year. George Seifert of the 49ers, meanwhile, was named coach of the year.

Repeat winners from 1994 were Nick Price, golfer of the year, and Pete Sampras, tennis player of the year.

Most outrageous play of the year went to the half-court shot by Corie Clouse of Cincinnati for a one-year scholarship at Midnight Madness. Comeback player of the year was Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins.

In an award announced earlier, ailing broadcaster Howard Cosell received the Arthur Ashe Award for Courage. Bill Cosby accepted the award on his behalf.

Coaches to study tiebreaker

IRVING (AP) — The tiebreaker may be coming to college football.

Last week, the NCAA football rules committee recommended that a tiebreaker system be used in bowl games beginning next season. Now major college coaches are backing a study that could lead to a tiebreaker in regular-season games starting with the 1996 season.

Grant Teaff, executive director of the American Football Coaches Association, on Monday said the group will study the regular-season tiebreaker and make a recommendation to the rules committee next January.

Changes endorsed by the rules committee must then be approved by the NCAA executive committee.

Teaff said most Division I-A coaches who attended the AFCA meeting in Irving supported the tiebreaker. One reason, he said, is that a tie doesn't help either team reach the six I-A victories that are needed to play in a bowl game.

"A tie doesn't count, so it's like a loss for both teams," Teaff said.

The tiebreaker system being considered for college games is different than the sudden-death overtime used in the NFL. The college version would give each team a chance to score after regulation.

The tiebreaker already is used in lower-division playoff games and regular-season games in the Big Sky, Ohio Valley, Yankee and Mid-Eastern Athletic conferences.

HOROSCOPE

FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 15, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The full moon may leave you readjusting and using every ounce of your creativity. Listen clearly to another's input. You need to avoid a partner's power play. You know what's good for you. Act on it. Special opportunities come your way. Tonight: Work late. ****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Prioritize. Demands push you in two directions. Think about which way to go. Stay centered, and remember your goals. Your ability to forge ahead wins the day. Expect to succeed and get what you want. Use those creative juices. Tonight: Be naughty and nice. ****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Early-morning communications could leave you shaking your head. The full moon emphasizes your willingness to change. A fun, open approach helps you go far. A family member gives you reason for celebration. Know your priorities. Tonight: Anchor in. ****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Talk about a crisis that starts early in the day! Finances could be unstable. Choose practical solutions. Trust your creativity, and know what works for you. Somebody from a distance touches base with you and brings good news. Tonight: Go to a favorite spot. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Steady does it. The full moon in your sign may affect your relationships. The worse part will be when you have to play kiss and make up. Be steady, and don't let a family member get the best of you. A financial partnership lies ahead. Tonight: Make peace. **

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You might be unnerved by the morning's events. Stay positive. Know that you possess the wherewithal to make things happen. Stay upbeat. Communications turn sour when you least expect it. A partner saves you with a loving idea. Tonight: Do your thing. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You might sour toward what you thought you wanted. Evaluate goals and friendships. A change is occurring. You need to regroup. Finances are tense. A co-worker has an excellent suggestion that can work in the long run. Tonight: Vanish while you are ahead. **** light, and don't let the day's problems get to you. If you remain steady and focus on priorities, you will get ahead. Follow what is right for you. A creative response makes you a winner. A loved one is on your side. Tonight: Watch that flirting. ****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Adjust plans early in the day. Your ability to go with the flow counts. Manage a situation positively. Touch base with your real needs as you deal with a boss. Career is emphasized, and you finally get the support you need. Tonight: Out and about. ****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Finances may be difficult. Seek perspective. Be aware of what others ask and your options. A creative endeavor is emphasized. How much do you care about a key person? You might need to reevaluate a friendship. Tonight: A loving conversation is in order. ****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Partners are volatile this morning. Maintain your sense of humor. Bosses could be out of sorts. Steadiness will lead to your happiness. A creative approach opens new options for you. Follow your intuition on a money matter. Tonight: Go for togetherness. ****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Open up to change. Know what you need. Unique opportunities come your way. Watch fatigue. Pace yourself. Know your limits. You might need to adjust plans. Be gracious about a change and you'll benefit. Tonight: Make a loving gesture. ****

IF FEB. 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: How much to give in relationships is a key issue for you. Be careful when dealing with both bosses and loved ones. Don't make conclusive decisions or get locked into rigidity. If you focus on long-term goals and desires, you'll come out fine. You are building security. You are single; you are likely to attract different kinds of people than you have, but make solid choices; you will probably go through several relationships. If attached, expect to reshape the basis and expectations of your relationship. VIRGO addresses you.

Review Ten Commandments of Love

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it! It's St. Valentine's Day — already! And what better time to revive my Ten Commandments of Love?

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

Yes, Dear Readers, I actually had the chutzpah to write my own Ten Commandments. But it wasn't as though I was stealing from strangers — one of my ancestors was privileged to have received them on Mount Sinai from the Lord Himself — at least, that's what the Good Book says.

Originally, I wrote two sets of commandments — one for men and one for women. Then, Mandy Stillman, a lawyer and early feminist from Milwaukee, wrote to demand equal rights for women, insisting that there be only one set of commandments.

She was right, of course. So how's this for a gender bender? THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF LOVE

— Put your spouse before your mother, your father, your son and your daughter — your mate is your lifelong companion.

— Do not abuse your body with excessive food, tobacco, drink, or any foreign substance that goes into your arm or up your nose.

— Remember that cleanliness is a virtue.

— Permit neither your business nor your hobby to make you a stranger to your children; the most precious gift a parent can give his or her family is time.

— Willingly share all of your worldly goods with your mate.

— Do not forget to say, "I love you." Even though your love may be constant, your spouse needs to hear those cherished words often.

— Remember that the approval of your spouse is worth far more than the adoring glances of a hundred strangers, so be true to him or her, and forsake all others.

— Keep your home in good repair, because out of it comes the joys of old age (not to mention its resale value!).

— Forgive with grace, because who among us does not need to be forgiven?

— Honor the Lord your God every day of your life, and your children will grow up and bless you.

Today, be a sweetheart. Call someone you love and say, "I love you." (Make two or three calls; who says you can't love more than one person — in different ways, of course.)

Go through your closets and give all those clothes you've been saving until you lose 10 pounds to your favorite charity. Call someone who's lonely and say, "I'm thinking of you." Or, better yet, say, "I'll be over tomorrow to take you to lunch, or to run some errands for you ... or to give you a ride."

Visit a sick friend. Say a prayer. Donate some blood. Adopt a pet. Will your eyes, your kidneys and all your usable organs to someone who can use them after you're gone. Forgive an enemy. Hug your teen-ager. Write a fan letter. Listen to a bore. Pay your doctor. Tell your parents you think they're wonderful. Spay your dog. Neuter your cat. Quit smoking. Drive carefully. If you're walking, watch where you're going.

And don't wait until next year to be a sweetheart again. — LOVE, ABBY

THE Daily Crossword by George Urquhart

Crossword puzzle grid with clues for Across and Down words.

This date in history

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 14, the 45th day of 1995. There are 320 days left in the year. This is Valentine's Day. Today's Highlight in History: One hundred years ago, on Feb. 14, 1895, Oscar Wilde's final and possibly most enduring play, "The Importance of Being Earnest" ("a trivial comedy for serious people"), opened at the St. James's Theatre in London. On this date: In 1778, the American ship Ranger carried the recently adopted Star and Stripes to a foreign port for the first time as it arrived in France. In 1848, President Polk became the first chief executive to be photographed while in office as he posed for Matthew Brady in New York. In 1859, Oregon was admitted to the Union as the 33rd state. In 1876, inventors Alexander Graham Bell and Elisha Gray applied separately for patents related to the telephone. (The U.S. Supreme Court eventually ruled Bell the rightful inventor.) In 1894, comedian Jack Benny was born Benjamin Kubelsky in Waukegan, Ill. In 1903, the Department of Commerce and Labor was established. In 1912, Arizona became the 48th state of the Union. In 1920, 75 years ago, the League of Women Voters was founded in Chicago; its first president was Maude Wood Park. In 1929, the "St. Valentine's Day Massacre" took place in a Chicago garage as seven rivals of Al Capone's gang were gunned down. In 1945, 50 years ago, Peru, Paraguay, Chile and Ecuador joined the United Nations. In 1962, First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy conducted a televised tour of the White House. In 1984, 6-year-old Stormie Jones became the world's first heart-liver transplant recipient at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh (she lived until November 1990). In 1989, Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini called on Muslims to kill Salman Rushdie, author of "The Satanic Verses," a novel condemned as blasphemous. Today's Birthdays: Sportscaster Mel Allen is 82. TV personality Hugh Downs is 74. Actress-singer Florence Henderson is 61. Journalist Carl Bernstein is 51. Actor-dancer Gregory Hines is 49. Senator Judd Gregg, R-N.H., is 48. Tennis player Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere is 28.
