Insurance won't pay off on quake damage

DALLAS (AP) — Texans holding homeowners' or commercial insurance policies, unless specifically covering earthquake coverage, may not file claims for damage or loss suffered as a result of the state's recent quake, insurers say.

Fault along the Del Nortes site - 3A

Jerry Johns, a spokesman for the Southwest Insurance Information Service, said Friday that earthquake insurance is not normally available in the state because of the unlikelihood of temblors occurring here.

"Essentially, it is an exclusion in homeowners' and commercial policies," said Johns, who represents the trade organization for the insurance industry. "It is not covered under standard policies."

Thursday's magnitude 5.6 quake hit Alpine, a city about 190 miles southeast of El Paso, at about 7:30 p.m. Its 5,700 residents incurred the most broken plates and windows, although similar minor reports of damage were reported in many surrounding towns.

Damage claim reports probably won't come in until early next week, he said, because of the holiday weekend. But only minor damage has been reported.

"If (the city) is not declared a federal emergency," Johns said, "people in Alpine will essentially have to pay for the damage themselves."

Other natural disasters usually covered in state policies include tornadoes, hail, wind-driven rain and high winds.

Officers round up more suspects

Local law enforcement agencies were busy again Friday arresting suspected drug dealers in Big Spring.

On Thursday, officers with the Permian Basin Drug Task Force, Big Spring Police Department and Howard County Sheriff's Department served arrest warrants on 20 people on charges of delivering marijuana and controlled substances.

After a nine-month long undercover investigation, a Howard County grand jury handed down the sealed indictments and arrest warrants were then issued. Not everyone who had a warrant out for their arrest were located Thursday but seven more people were found Friday and several more arrests are pending.

Those arrested Friday were: Ismael Holguin, 26 of 3620 Calvin, possession of marijuana under two ounces, $1,500 bond; Dolly Woodard, 50 of 1301 Lindbergh, possession of marijuana under two ounces, $1,500 bond; J.C. Woodard, 54 of 1301 Lindbergh, possession of marijuana under two ounces, $1,500 bond; Ruthie Nell Smith, 36 no address given, three counts of delivery of a controlled substance, $22,500 bond; and Jose I.

Hogue dedication coincides with Law Enforcement Memorial Week

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Sunday, May 14 at 8 a.m., will mark the beginning of Law Enforcement Memorial Week and the Big Spring Police Department has scheduled several events for the week, including the dedication of the police building as the Troy M. Hogue Memorial Law Enforcement Facility.

The week will begin on May 14 with an Honor Guard Flag

Ceremony at the BSPD building. The Honor Guard will then participate in a May 17 memorial ceremony at the Capitol Building in Austin, which will honor law enforcement officials killed in the line of duty in 1993 and 1994.

The dedication of the building will begin at 2 p.m. Friday, May 19, in honor of Department of Public Safety Trooper Troy M. Hogue, killed in the line of duty December 30, 1994 while attending a traffic accident.

Mayor Pro-Tem Chuck Cawthon made the request to dedicate the building before the Big Spring City Council at the council's Jan. 24 meeting.

He said, "If I get a little emotional here bear with me. I would like to propose for your consideration, a dedication in honor of a fine human being and a professional law enforcement officer who began his service in this field with the city of

Tax man cometh - Monday by 5:15

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Uncle Sam, a.k.a. Jack Carroll, waves to people passing by the Internal Revenue Service Building in downtown Phoenix. Filing deadline is Monday at 5:15 for Big Spring residents wanting to avoid a trip to Midland.

The tax deadline is fast approaching, meaning long lines at the post office on Monday.

Local Postmaster Richard Saxton is asking residents to get their forms in early to ensure they receive the April 17 postmark.

"Since Mondays are always busy around here, we expect things to get interesting around the middle of the afternoon. That's when you can count on all roads leading to the post office to be busy."

"Since we're predicting heavy tax-related traffic in the vicinity of the post office again this year, we've taken an extra step or two to alleviate some of that congestion," said Saxton.

Saxton adds postal customers can easily avoid a trip to the main post office in Midland by mailing their returns or extension requests early in the day at the Big Spring office or at any smaller surrounding area post offices.

The postmaster emphasizes, however, tax filers should double-check the pick up schedule if they elect to use a street side collection box to ensure their documents will be collected and postmarked before the deadline.

An employee with the Big Spring post office says if you want to mail your tax form locally, you must have it in either the inside box or street box located on Runnels no later than 5:15 p.m. Monday to guarantee it will be postmarked for April 17. The last truck leaves Big Spring for Midland at 5:30 p.m. thus the need to get the documents in early.

"This certainly can be a hectic time," Saxton continued, "and in the hustle and bustle of completing and signing forms, it's easy to overlook the simple things. Try to mail as early in the day as possible. Be certain to weigh your returns or exten

Outpouring over Selena rooted in dreams, culture

Borderland pinned hopes on Selena

By JOSH LEMIEUX
Associated Press Writer

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — The growing, somewhat isolated population of the Texas borderlands wanted its own star.

Hopes hinged on Selena, the striking Tejano music singer who would have celebrated her 24th birthday this Easter Sunday.

With stylish clothes and an innocent smile, Selena became for many Mexican-Americans a symbol of success and potential acceptance in mainstream America.

In the two weeks since Selena was shot at a motel, her stature has risen many times higher.

"She has at the very least become an icon, someone people will remember and revere," says Mark Glazer, a University of Texas-Pan American anthropologist who specializes in Tex-Mex folklore.

"The Tejano community very much wanted to have a person who would be very, very successful at the national level," he says. "And now they've been deprived of that success."

Like Selena's music, the reaction has spread well beyond Texas.

Consider: —People magazine says it will publish a commemorative edition entirely dedicated to Selena because of "overwhelming demand from the Latino community." Audrey Hepburn and Jacqueline Onassis are the only other celebrities whose deaths received such treatment in the magazine's 21-year history.

—Five Selena albums, all in Spanish, have surged onto Billboard magazine's top 200 chart this week. (Not the Latin music chart, the pop chart.)

—Tens of thousands of people have made a sort of pilgrimage to the Grammy-winning singer's home town of Corpus Christi. Fans continue to adorn her modest home and grave with flowers, candles and other offerings. Even the motel room where Selena was shot — allegedly by her disgruntled personal assistant — has become a makeshift shrine where fans write messages to the slain idol.

—Hispanic leaders, showing more than normal unity, have rallied a boycott against companies that advertise on the broad-casts of "shock jock" Howard Stern, who ridiculed Selena's music and her mourning fans on the day she was buried.

—Leaders are proposing to name parks, schools scholarships in Selena's memory.

As Selena prepared her first release in English, music industry watchers pegged her as the next Latin crossover superstar. She was to be for Mexican-Americans what Gloria Estefan is for Cuban-Americans.

Selena's death — and the outpouring of grief from fans — thrust her name into a worldwide spotlight. Most of Anglo

Fault along Del Nortes considered site of quake

ODESSA (AP) — Two geologists cite stress along a thrust fault along the base of the Del Norte Mountains east of Alpine as the probable cause of an earthquake that shook West Texas.

The two Sul Ross State University geologists, geology department chairman David Rohr and assistant professor Kevin Urbanczyk, plotted the quake's origin by drawing an arc on a map 20 miles east-southeast from Alpine and checking intersecting fault lines.

Geophysicists at the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., placed the quake's epicenter 20 miles east-southeast of Alpine.

Students in Urbanczyk's introductory geology class on the Alpine campus wanted to know if an earthquake would happen again.

"I told them yes, but probably not too soon," he told The Odessa American for its Saturday editions. "Judging from the way Santa Elena Canyon (in the Big Bend) seems to move, it may be 200 years. There is no way to be able to (predict) it."

According to Urbanczyk, the main quake occurred at 7:33 p.m. Thursday and lasted about 12 seconds; then was followed by a 7:34 p.m. aftershock. Other aftershocks followed at 9:19 p.m. Thursday, and at 3 a.m. and 5:02 a.m. Friday. The 9:19 p.m. aftershock was the strongest, with a magnitude of 3.3, according to the center's reports.

Only minor damage and a few minor injuries were reported.

The fault near the Del Nortes is a Laramide age fault caused by the thrust pushing the mountains upward, Urbanczyk said.

They excluded the fault line that caused the Valentine quake in 1931, because that fault line crosses a highway "and probably would have cut the highway in half," Rohr said.

"If it had done that, we would

Aftershocks number 13

ALPINE (AP) — Another aftershock, the 13th since Thursday night's earthquake in far west Texas, registered a 4.0 reading on the Richter Scale Saturday morning, according to officials at the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo.

The latest shock was centered 25 miles east-southeast of Alpine, Texas, and occurred at 9:33 a.m. CDT. The aftershock, which Survey spokeswoman Pat Jorgenson termed as "strong," caused no damage or injuries and was barely noticeable.

Jorgenson said aftershocks are natural and unpredictable.

have heard about it."

"This one was a lot, lot milder than the one in '31, and it didn't last as long," said Johnny Sotello, who was 13 during the earlier quake.

"I don't know how to describe the sensation," Sotello recalled of the Depression-era quake.

"I was knocked off my bed. I remember it was about 7 a.m. in the morning, and the dogs were barking, the roosters crowing, the chickens were clucking, the cows mooing. And after it was over, the atmosphere looked real sad, there was dust and you had trouble breathing," he told the Houston Chronicle for its Saturday editions.

Faults in the Trans-Pecos area more closely resemble quake faults in Nevada than the more famous San Andreas fault in California, Rohr said.

Earthquakes along the San Andreas fault are caused by stresses built up along the edges of two tectonic plates, but the Nevada and Del Norte faults occur between basins and ranges on the same plate, Urbanczyk said.

"The whole of western North America is being pulled and extended," he said. While the Trans-Pecos area is on the eastern edge of this extension, it's not in the most active spot, he said.

The West Texas way: Taking it in stride

ALPINE (AP) — Their walls were cracked and their tap water ran dirty, but earthquake-jolted residents felt grateful Friday the damage wasn't worse.

Texas' most violent earthquake in 64 years rippled the Big Bend and took just a few seconds Thursday night to dislodge boulders, bump up a wave of dust and spook residents of this remote West Texas town. A few minor injuries were reported.

Residents swapped stories — of tumbling bookshelves and vibrating walls — and shimmied to demonstrate how the 5.6-magnitude quake set them off balance.

"It all came back to me and I think I was in shock," said former California resident Pam Clouse, an earthquake veteran.

But most people in Alpine were newcomers to the experience.

"No one's really laughing about it," said assistant police chief Chris Croy. "It's just soaking in. They're concerned."

The U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., pinpointed the earthquake's epicenter on ranchland about 20 miles east-southeast of Alpine. Tremors were felt as far away as San Antonio, Dallas-Fort Worth and much of New Mexico, the center reported.

Thursday's shake was the biggest in Texas since Aug. 16, 1931, when a 6.0-magnitude quake struck Valentine, about 50 miles west of Alpine, said Bruce Presgrave of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Some of Alpine's 5,700 residents believed they felt aftershocks early Friday.

Several initially attributed the shaking and thunder-like rumble at 7:33 p.m. Thursday to a gas explosion, train collision or sonic boom.

"It was like a shock wave," said paramedic Mike Scudder, who watched the steel pipes holding up his station's canopy turn limp. "It seemed like an eternity to me."

People ran from their homes and cars, screaming in confusion.

"The streets were lined with people," Scudder said. "It looked like a parade."

The quake dominated coffee-shop talk Friday in the seat of Brewster County, Texas' largest county. Alpine is 190 miles southeast of El Paso and bills itself as Home of the Last Frontier.

The quake got blamed for broken windows and at least one severed gas line.

At the Arts and Crafts Mall downtown, a ceramic angel's head cracked off and heavy portraits shifted on the walls. A grandfather clock paused at 7:31 p.m.

Maps of fault lines in the nearby Davis Mountains were strewn across professor David Rohr's desk at Sul Ross State University in Alpine. Would another jolt strike soon? Rohr could only shrug.

Dr. Jim Luecke of Big Bend Regional Medical Center said he thinks few residents will suffer prolonged jitters.

"Most people in West Texas are pretty laid back and relaxed," Luecke said. "The West Texas way is to take it in stride."

Time to put the rhetoric aside

The Big Spring City Council's decision to award its ambulance contract to the fire department has stirred the emotions of the city - both bad and good.

Nearly 3,000 signatures were presented to council Tuesday in an effort to get the council to put the matter to a vote of the citizens. Since this was the awarding of a bid, the council is not required to put it to a vote of the citizens.

They are standing by their decision and by the committee that helped put the decision together.

This decision was not made haphazardly. A committee member has stated they went in with the idea that Big Spring would end up with a private ambulance carrier, but after careful review of the bids, decided in favor of the fire department.

The decision is final. In five months, the fire department will begin handling emergency calls for ambulance service.

This has worked in other cities such as San Angelo and Midland. Can it work in Big Spring? Yes. Neither San Angelo nor Midland has anything that Big Spring doesn't.

The idea has to be given a chance. The committee, the council and, most importantly, the fire department believe they can deliver quality service, in good time.

We need to give the idea a chance. And, if you still do not like the council's decision, there is always the election May 6.

Dole and Gramm duking it out

Washington Calling

WASHINGTON — In a move that could torment House leaders, more than 60 conservative GOP freshmen and sophomores are maneuvering to force votes on such hot button issues as abortion, school prayer and sex education.

Calling itself the "family caucus," the group's steering committee is headed by freshman Rep. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., an obstetrician, born-again Christian and anti-abortion activist.

Many of the social issues that the caucus intends to target play well with the GOP's right wing, but were kept out of the Contract With America because they tend to alienate moderates within the party.

The social conservatives who dominate the freshman class say they will not be held back by entreaties to put party first.

"Life cannot always be governed by the will of the weakest," said freshman Rep. Mark Souder, R-Ind. "Those Republicans who are saying we'll divide the party, that's their code word for their fear that if we get a vote on our issues, they'll pass."

QUOTABLE:
"Kids of America, There's a fiscal crunch."

Now needs your lunch."
— Rep. Major Owens, D-N.Y.

Tensions between Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas and Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, the chief rivals for the 1996 GOP presidential nomination, surface in the Senate.

Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici of New Mexico, a staunch Dole ally, is trying to draft a budget that balances tax relief with spending cuts that Dole can live with.

Meanwhile, Sen. Trent Lott of Mississippi, the No. 2 GOP leader, has given up any pretense of concealing his alliance with tax-cutter Gramm. Dole supporters fret that Lott and Gramm are cooking up a budget blueprint that will include generous tax cuts.

Not content with giving Americans that high-speed cocaine high, Colombia's drug traffickers are now offering downers as well. A sedative called Rohypnol — known on the street as "roofies" — is sold legally with a prescription in Colombia and is being smuggled into the United States, where the Swiss-manufactured drug is not available. DEA calls the drug the quaalude of the '90s.

Republican National Committee celebrates Monday midnight income tax deadline with news that the average American works two hours and 46 minutes of every day to pay federal, state and local taxes.

Supreme Court mulls whether the feds can press arson charges simply because a torched building was hooked up to utility lines that are part of interstate networks.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Virginia ruled the federal government could prosecute separate arson crimes involving a mobile home and a South Carolina beach house because both drew electricity from an interstate power grid. And the St. Louis-based 8th Circuit said an Iowa health club's hook-up to a natural gas line justified federal involvement.

Richard Arnold, chief judge of the 8th Circuit, issued a stinging dissent, saying such a tenuous constitutional connection "disturbs the balance between the state and federal governments."

Republicans and Democrats in the House are already optimistically forecasting how many seats they plan to steal away from the other party in the 1996 election.

Republicans, who won control of the first time in 40 years and now have a 13 seat edge over Democrats, are predicting they'll cement their majority status with a gain of 20 to 30 more seats. Democrats say dozens of GOP freshmen washed into the House on the Republican tidal wave are vulnerable, predict a pick up of "at least" 14 seats.

Democrats' top target: GOP Rep. Michael Flanagan, who decided to run for former Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski's Chicago seat on a bet, surprising everyone, including himself, by winning.

It's midnight, April 17, do you know where your taxes are?

Tax time, tax time, dear old golden tax time!

Government really knows how to spoil a new year right off the bat, don't they, by reminding you of the money you've sent off each pay-check to help Peter pay Paul.

This year, instead of waiting until the dawning of the 15th, I got my taxes before the deadline. I actually put the thing in the mail April 14.

First time for everything! Cutting it close, I know, but there is something about waiting until the last minute before sending it off. For me, this was like getting the return off in January - it wasn't the last minute.

It starts when you get the form in the mail in January. Then comes the form from your employer.

All's well so far. Then, I manage to lose the booklet with the prepared mailing address, the forms and the tax tables.

Now comes the scramble to find one. I manage to find one, so I sit down one night when nothing much is going on and figure it out. Alright, a refund.

That's back in January. I knew then I would get a refund from good ol' Uncle Sam, but I let it sit.

I don't know why. I have extra forms so I can complete a good one for the IRS but it all sits, mixed in with all the other piles of stuff I always intend to look at, such as my magazines, but never get around to.

All of a sudden, it's TIME! Find the stuff. There have been times when I just knew I had lost it. But, it always manages to turn up again, but not where I remember putting it.

Fix a nice one for the IRS, address an envelop and get it into the mail.

I have gone to the post office at minutes to midnight, getting there just in the nick of time for the proper postmark. I work better under deadline pressure, you must understand.

There was something to filling out your taxes in Ingleside and then having to race over to Corpus Christi to get it postmarked. I have a thing for driving over Harbor Bridge - fun at about 65 miles an hour!

Couldn't do that when I lived in Del Rio, though. San Antonio was three hours from Del Rio, not 30 minutes like Corpus Christi was from Ingleside.

It's the same here, only Midland is a little bit closer. You could get there in time to make the midnight postmarking.

I remember one time, when I was living in Rockport, my friend wasn't even going to file. She figured she didn't make enough money to file - silly! Like the IRS cares how much you make so long as they get their share of what you make.

So, on the night of April 15, we filled out her form. The idiot even got a refund. It was already after 11 p.m. Now, in Rockport that also meant a run to Corpus Christi for post-marking.

I thought I drove fast. Nay, nay! Jane drove even faster.

There was good reason for the speed - even with the short cuts, Corpus Christi was a good 45-minute drive from Rockport and neither of us knew the way to the main post office. We knew the street but not the location.

We made it with about a minute to spare and got in line with the rest of those waiting until the last minute.

Corpus Christi was doing it drive-through style. Postal workers were out there by huge boxes - about three of them. You simply drove by, handed them your refund and then got back on the way to home.

It was a midnight lark! Beside, waiting until the last second somehow makes dealing with the IRS just a little bit fun.

Hey, when it comes to taxes, you take your fun where you can get it.

Letters to the Editor

Service to city an 'aggravation'

Members of committees and boards of the City of Big Spring are appointed by the mayor with the advice and consent of the City Council. These appointments are made in the same way for all types of assignments, from ad hoc specific purpose committees to representation on boards outside the purview of the council (i.e. CRMWD and Moore Board appointments).

Service on these boards and committees is on an "at will" basis for the members. It is no small chore for members of the council to find persons willing to serve on such assignments. Service on these committees implies that a question exists which required research and study for a report to be given on the council for action. In practice, if a difficult situation did not exist, the committee would not be needed.

Given the amount and scope of operations faced by the city, the council relies on the input from such sources from planning and zoning, traffic, parks and recreation, air park-citizens advisory, electrical, to special committees for specific recommendations. Only by the use of committees and boards can the council deal with volume of information that is generated by city operations.

Service on various committees and boards is on a voluntary basis, and is a constant source of aggravation for those who see fit to help the council in its work. There is no excess of persons willing and available for the need for committee members. The council strives to find those persons who have the experience and knowledge to bring to the consideration of the city's business, and who are willing to forego their personal time and suffer the harassment from the community to assist the council. Such spirit of cooperation is greatly appreciated by the members of the council, and each council member uses considerable diligence in his/her appointment privileges.

It is far easier for a person to sit on the sidelines and make judgment calls based on rumor and speculation that it is to agree to serve on any city committee to make difficult decisions based on research and study. It is certainly more fun to throw stones than it is to be the target.

As a member of the council, I personally apologize, on behalf of a large majority of the city, for the attacks made on committee members who have had to suffer because of their diligence and volunteer service by those persons in the city who choose to attack based on rumor and speculation. Such attacks will only serve to undermine the value of volunteer citizen input. One can only hope that we, as a city, will someday be able to consider the city's business without unwarranted media criticism.

I can, however, as a citizen of the community and as a member of the council, thank each of them for their time and attention to a difficult situation. The value of your insight and input to the council's deliberation is greatly needed and appreciated.

Sincerely,
John P. Anderson
Council member

Election can change decision

I read with great interest the article in Friday, April 7, newspaper. The City Commissioners are worried about property owners getting took by out of town roofers. They are making out of town roofers put up a $10,000 bond money. About three years I hired a local joker roofer from our fine community, he not only failed to buy a city permit, he also failed to fix my roof. Personally I think all roofers should be made to put a bond.

After three years and paying nearly $4,000, my roof is still in need of repair. So much for local talent, we have crooks residing in our fine community also.

If the City Commissioners are so worried about our well being why don't they give the ambulance service back to AMT and let them do their job. Let the fire dept. fight fires.

If John Anderson-Tim Black-shear and the others think their decision is final and we have no say just wait until next election.

I think the people of Big Spring thought our elected officials would do right on this proposal, boy were we wrong. Myself, I vote for AMT and if they loose the contract, I hope I never need an ambulance.

Kenneth Carson
Big Spring

Why wait till it's too late?

I normally attend all City of Big Spring Council meetings. I have never sent a letter to the Herald before, but having attended the last two meetings, I feel compelled to share my thoughts and impressions about the AMT/Big Spring Fire Department controversy.

As the first meeting AMT expressed their views adequately with concerns that were warranted. Initially, I thought that private enterprise would be the best avenue to provide emergency services to this community.

The decision to award the contract to the Fire Department peaked my interest and I began to gather facts concerning the process that caused the council to award the contract to the Fire Department. I wanted to make sure that we were not creating another level of bureaucracy. During my investigation, I discovered that the information that was being fed to the community on behalf of AMT was not altogether as I had perceived it.

I found out that instead of 27 jobs that would be lost, only 7 full time jobs would be eliminated and the other 20 were part time and did not receive the benefits of a full time employee. Therefore, these 20 employees must seek other employment to supplement their salaries and benefits. In addition, I discovered that AMT was invited to discuss their position on the committee formed by the council.

Evidently, AMT management's failure to participate with the committee to assure proper representation left an impression with me that they were not that concerned about getting the contract or the loss of their employee's jobs. Also, when rethinking the subsidy provided by the city to AMT, I realize that they are not totally a private enterprise. We as taxpayers are assisting in paying for these jobs.

The process that the council used is a normal process to make sure that a fair and equitable selection was reached. The committee or council should not be accused of being biased concerning their decision, because I believe it is not true. In my mind, they did what they could with the facts presented. Counter to AMT's accusations of a biased committee, I believe, initially, the majority of the council and committee wanted to award the contract to AMT but once presented with the facts the committee chose the Fire Department. Those who work for AMT should look to their management for answers to the lack of aggressiveness in keeping the contract.

Though these meetings were controversial, it was good to see people attending and expressing their views. But why wait until it is too late or when it concerns only you.

Sincerely,
Max Coffee

Iraq rejects U.N. offer to sell oil

Anti-American campaign started

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq on Saturday rejected a U.N. offer to sell $2 billion worth of oil to buy food and medicine, opting instead to launch a huge anti-American propaganda campaign.

Thousands of people, mostly government employees, staged two noisy demonstrations Saturday in the Iraqi capital, rallies reminiscent of those in the days before the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

"I think the voices of the masses have expressed the Iraqi stand," parliament speaker Sadi Mahdi Saleh told Associated Press Television at one protest. "What you have heard from the people is rejection to this decision."

The leaders of President Saddam Hussein's ruling Baath party, meanwhile, unleashed a diatribe against the Clinton administration.

"We need to fight the holy war against Satan America until our victory," said Abdul Gani Abdul Ghafoor, chief of the Baghdad chapter.

Both demonstrations appeared organized by the government.

The U.N. Security Council voted Friday to allow Iraq to sell up to $2 billion worth of oil over 180 days to get money. Part of the proceeds would be used for humanitarian needs. Iraqis are suffering deep privations under the U.N. trade sanctions imposed after Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

A State Department spokeswoman in Washington, Julie Resdie, said Iraq had yet to deliver an official reply. "We hope the Iraqi government, in the interest of its own citizens, will accept the resolution and its provisions," she said.

Iraq, however, wants the sanctions lifted completely — something unlikely to happen soon. Washington maintains Saddam has yet to fully comply with terms set after the Gulf war.

U.N. weapons inspectors this month reported that Baghdad may be working on germ warfare agents in defiance of U.N. resolutions that ban it from stockpiling, developing or using weapons of mass destruction.

Thousands of Iraqis demonstrate in Baghdad Saturday to show their anger and rejection of the U.N. offer to allow the country to sell oil worth $2 billion. Iraq sees the offer as infringing on its sovereignty.

Campaign against rebels intensified in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Fidel Ramos ordered police Saturday to intensify their campaign to crush Muslim extremists blamed for raiding a town and plotting to kill the pope and blow up U.S. airliners.

The order was issued against the shadowy Abu Sayyaf group, accused of the April 4 raid on the mostly Christian town of Ipil in which 53 people were killed. The military said Abu Sayyaf renegades were still holding 13 hostages.

Police believe Abu Sayyaf has close ties to Ramzi Yousef, accused of the 1993 World Trade Center bombing in New York, a plot last January to kill Pope John Paul II and a plot to blow up United Airlines jets over the Pacific.

Ramos said Abu Sayyaf has "strong connections with foreign terrorist groups" and police must crush them by "cutting their contacts" with those groups.

"The only way the international terrorists can be prevented from implementing their plan is for all nations to unite and cooperate through exchanges of information," Ramos said.

Yousef was charged Thursday in New York with the plot against U.S. airlines. Also charged was Abdul Hakim Murad, who was arrested in Manila on Jan. 7 and handed over to the U.S. Wednesday.

Yousef eluded arrest during a police raid on his Manila apartment last January in which investigators found bomb-making materials, airline schedules and routes to be used by the pope when he visited Manila that month. Yousef was seized later in Pakistan and handed over to the U.S.

In Zamboanga City, Maj. Gen. Edgardo Batenga, chief of the Southern Command, said pursuit operations against the Ipil raiders would continue until they were wiped out.

Since the pursuit began, government troops have killed 40 of the raiders and captured four others. Six civilians, three soldiers and three government militiamen also have died in the clashes, Batenga added.

Peace march turned back at checkpoint

SERNOVODSK, Russia (AP) — Buddhist monks, Chechen women and the mothers of Russian soldiers held a peace march Saturday to the Chechen village of Samashsky, the site of a massacre by Russian soldiers last weekend.

But the 200 demonstrators only got as far as a checkpoint one mile west of the village before a Russian Interior Ministry colonel turned them back, claiming the area was mined and dangerous.

Still, his troops allowed through a truck filled with refugees returning to their burned-out homes in the village. Residents of Samashsky say about 300 villagers died in the Russian assault last weekend, which one Russian legislator called a massacre.

Russian officials deny heavy civilian casualties.

Marla Kirbasoba, head of the Russian Soldiers' Mothers Committee, said the marchers hoped to promote peace talks between Chechen leader Dzhokhar Dudayev and Russian President Boris Yeltsin.

Chechens, along with a group of mothers of Russian soldiers, are stopped by Russian troops during a peace march to the village of Samashky, west of Grozny. The village is the scene of an alleged massacre by Russian soldiers. The marchers were turned back.

"It's the only way to end the war," she said.

Bus-train wreck in Egypt claims 42 lives

QUWESNA, Egypt (AP) — An express train plowed into a crowded bus Saturday in the Nile Delta north of Cairo, killing 42 people and wounding 45 others.

The bus carried about 90 workers heading to a textile factory when it was struck about 7 a.m. at a rural rail crossing near Quwesna, 36 miles north of Cairo.

There were conflicting reports on whether the bus driver was mistakenly waved through the crossing by a guard or ignored alarm bells. Wreckage from the bus was strewn for 200 yards along the path next to the tracks.

Most of the victims were believed to have been bus passengers, but witnesses said some people riding atop the train — a common but illegal practice — were thrown off and hurt.

Six of the injured were treated and released, while 39 others were taken to nearby hospitals.

Prophecy unfulfilled for Tokyo residents

TOKYO (AP) — Security was tight and people were nervous Saturday, anticipating a disaster that didn't occur.

The anxious reaction by officials and residents alike to a prophecy of doom from the cult suspected in last month's subway gas attack shows how much Japan has been shaken by the poisonings.

Thousands of police were deployed Saturday, some businesses and schools were closed and people stuck close to home.

Even at the Japan Open tennis tournament, where Andre Agassi, Michael Chang and other top players were on the court, stairwells were blocked off and private guards were visible everywhere.

The fears were prompted by a book published last month by the leader of the Aum Shinri Kyo (Supreme Truth) cult, which predicted that a calamity could hit Tokyo on Saturday. Cult members warned friends that a "horrible" event might happen in Shinjuku, one of Tokyo's most popular entertainment districts.

and black America wondered why this largely unknown singer had created such a stir. The borderlands reaction displayed how this region blends two cultures. A South Texas conversation might begin in Spanish and end in English. Most people would rather dance to the Mexican polka-rooted Tejano beat than rock 'n' roll. Yet they go nuts over the Dallas Cowboys and ignore soccer, Mexico's top sport.

Fans say Selena's strong family identity and wholesome girl-next-door image made her a role model in a place that needs more role models.

Glazer says the alleged betrayal by her personal assistant, Yolanda Saldivar, appears to be making Selena into a martyr for those values, at least in the minds of many of her fans.

Selena's family describes Ms. Saldivar, a 34-year-old nurse, as an obsessed fan who became part of the singer's inner circle. Selena went alone to the Days Inn where Ms. Saldivar was staying to fire her over allegations that she had been embezzling money, police said.

"I don't even claim to have a strategy right now," said Ms. Saldivar's court-appointed attorney, Doug Tinker. His client's murder trial is scheduled for Oct. 9.

Glazer says the impact of Selena's slaying has been so strong that she could be remembered for years as type of folk saint, a kindly figure to whom some fans show devotion and even pray for success.

"It's difficult to predict how well it's going to become embedded in the folk religion of the area. Right now it's tremendously powerful," he says.

Devotion to uncanonized folk saints is common in Mexico and parts of the Southwest, as are occasional sightings of the Virgin Mary.

Shrines to folk healers Don Pedrito Jaramillo of Falfurrias or El Nino Fidencio of Espinazo, Mexico, continue to draw fervent pilgrimages several decades after they died. Many people believe. Many don't.

In the political realm, Hispanic leaders have turned Stern's on-air comments into a rallying cry for respect. Among other things, Stern said "Spanish people have the worst taste in music," and he played a Selena song with mock gunfire in the background.

Stern later apologized in stumbling Spanish. His spokesman failed to return telephone messages from The Associated Press.

"For this man Howard Stern to insult, trash and ridicule not only Selena but all Spanish-speaking people, it was too much," said Arnold Gonzales, a member of the League of United Latin American Citizens, which has organized the boycott of companies that advertise on Stern's nationally syndicated broadcasts.

Miller Brewing Co. is among a handful of major companies that have pulled their ads.

Hispanics are one of the nation's fastest-growing markets. Demographers predict that Texas, now 25 percent Hispanic, will be 38 percent Hispanic by the year 2025.

Barely audible in the debate is the view that the boycott is helping Stern, not Hispanics.

"Do you really want to hurt Howard Stern?" asks Leo Robles of Harlingen. "Ignore him. Don't give him all this free publicity."

Hogue was an officer with the BSPD for 12 years before joining the DPS.

Michael Diego Williams, 23 of 201 Airbase Road #1, surrendered himself to the sheriff's department on a charge of delivery of marijuana. He was later released after posting a $1,500 bond.

During the Jan. 24 meeting City Councilman John Paul Anderson said, "All Big Spring officers killed in the line of duty will be recognized in the renamed building. This is the start of a tradition, but hopefully we won't have any more officers killed."

Big Spring law enforcement officials to be honored in the police building include Patrolman Henry Franklin Howie, fatally wounded in the line of duty on Aug. 10, 1931, while responding to a family disturbance call; Patrolman Elijah Cass, who died of a heart attack on Nov. 6, 1940, while chasing shoplifting suspects; Assistant Police Chief William J. O'Leary, who died on Nov. 28, 1939; and DPS Trooper Jimmy Parks, who died Aug. 10, 1975, when he was struck by a vehicle traveling on the wrong side of the road as he was attending to a speeding van he had pulled over.

Anderson added that a bronze bust of Trooper Hogue, for which donations are still being accepted, will be placed in the building as well. Donations for the bust, according to Anderson, are being accepted at Coahoma State Bank and T&P Federal Credit Union: c/o Troy Hogue Memorial Fund.

In addition to the bust, bas-reliefs of slain BSPD officers will also be placed on display along with several photographic displays relating to the BSPD and its personnel.

The ceremony will be followed by a barbecue at the PD, sponsored by the PD and the Police Association.

'Harder' inmates filling prisons

More prison beds requested

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Texas Department of Criminal Justice has reported that a "harder, more violent inmate" is filling the state's prisons.

The report, released Friday, recommends that the Legislature add 7,000 to 9,000 new high-security beds to deal with the problem.

The report came in the wake of a March 6 riot at the Briscoe Unit in Dilley that injured seven prisoners and resulted in $65,000 in damage. Chairman Allen Polunsky told San Antonio radio station WOAI on Friday that the state prisons are housing a "more violent, more dangerous inmate today, one who has committed a more heinous crime than in the past."

He warned that if the state does not build facilities to deal with these prisoners, there could be a repeat of disturbances like the one in the prison, 66 miles southwest of San Antonio.

The 15-page report cites several factors for the Dilley riot, including poor communication between the Dilley prison and department officials in Huntsville. It also said attempts to use riot-control chemicals in a large outdoor area proved to be ineffective.

The report also blames a "competition mentality" between younger black and Hispanic inmates, which led to such problems as line cutting in the dining room and "one racial group dominating the television in the cell block."

The report said the fact that the guard staff is mostly Hispanic instills suspicion among black inmates that Hispanics are conspiring against them. It recommended cultural-diversity training for the staff.

At-large judicial elections investigation can't be expanded

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court says the Justice Department cannot expand its own Texas case and investigate whether at-large judicial elections as a rule, are discriminatory.

Citing similar cases in New York and Georgia, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia ruled Thursday that Justice officials must narrow their case as to whether seven new courts in Texas were created for discriminatory purposes.

"It is a major, major problem for the Department of Justice at this point," an unidentified source told the Houston Chronicle in Saturday editions.

Justice Department officials could not be reached for comment Friday.

In June, the U.S. Department of Justice refused to approve elections in new courts that had been created to relieve crowded dockets in Harris, Fort Bend, Tarrant and Midland counties.

Taxes weigh heavy on the mind as legislators call for tax limitations

WASHINGTON (AP) — With taxes weighing on the minds of many Americans over the weekend, Republican House members are renewing their call to make it far more difficult for Congress to reach into taxpayers' pockets for new funds.

The GOP lawmakers are making their pitch for a constitutional amendment that would require a three-fifths majority in Congress to raise taxes. Currently, taxes can be raised with a simple majority.

The tax-limitation measure drafted by Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, will be introduced when the House returns from its recess on May 1st. House Speaker Newt Gingrich has promised Barton a vote on the amendment near April 15, 1996 — Tax Day.

Even though the action is nearly a year away, Barton and supporters will hold news conferences Monday in Washington and some 40 other cities touting the amendment.

Not so coincidentally, the out-of-town news conferences will be held at post offices — to catch last-minute filers as they scurry to get their tax returns postmarked before midnight.

"I've been working on my taxes," Barton said in an interview this week. "I can tell you I'm ready to make some changes."

Barton expressed bitter disappointment in January when the House rejected his constitutional balanced-budget amendment that included a tax-limitation provision. Most Democrats choked on Barton's balanced-budget amendment, which was a cornerstone of the Republican "Contract With America."

After the measure fell 31 votes shy of the two-thirds needed, the House approved an alternative that requires a three-fifths majority to raise taxes.

Democrats argued that a super-majority to raise taxes would hamstring Congress in times of economic turmoil or war. They also contended that a three-fifths majority requirement runs counter to democratic principle and throws too much power to a small core of lawmakers.

Barton contends his tax-limitation amendment, suspended in times of war, would rein in government spending.

Group thinks Exxon writing own punishment

HOUSTON (AP) — An anti-pollution group contends the state is allowing Exxon Co. USA to write its own punishment for $400,000 worth of toxic waste violations and is urging a public hearing on the matter.

Last month, Exxon was fined a record $847,460 for unpermitted storage and disposal of hazardous waste at the company's Baytown refinery.

In a settlement worked out with the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, Irving, Texas-based Exxon was told to earmark $400,000 of that to supplemental environmental programs.

But Texas United Education Fund, a local environmental watchdog group, said Friday that Exxon is merely funding programs they had already planned to fund or have funded in the past. Therefore, the activists say, the company is not really being punished.

"They're just basically letting them continue to do things they were already going to do," said Rick Abram, the group's director.

Exxon claims it's just following the TNRCC order and doesn't really understand why the activists are upset at the programs they intend to fund.

Houston sets new record for citizenship requests

HOUSTON (AP) — More immigrants applied for citizenship in Houston last month than ever before, INS officials report.

Exactly 4,000 people filed naturalization applications in March, topping February's total of 1,674 by 139 percent and smashing the record high of 2,734 set in September.

"It's an unprecedented, incredible surge," said Lisa Jacobs, spokeswoman for the Houston Division of the INS.

More than 21,000 local immigrants applied for citizenship in Houston between February 1994 and February 1995, the INS reported.

Jacobs says the rise is in part a result of large numbers of residents who became eligible for naturalization in the past year as one more step in their participation in the 1986 amnesty program.

Special meaning found in Passover ceremony

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Passover, a Jewish celebration of freedom, holds a special meaning for Richard Santos, an educator and historical researcher in South Texas.

Santos is an Hispanic Jew whose ancestors were persecuted during the Inquisition almost 400 years ago. He recently attended his first seder, the feast that commemorates the deliverance of Jews from Egyptian slavery.

"It was a very personal, spiritual experience to participate in a seder," Santos said in an interview.

Parental supervision required at O.J. trial

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Welcome to Judge Lance Ito's wine cellar.

"Stop acting like a child," Johnnie Cochran Jr. tells Chris Darden.

"You are a child, Mr. Cochran," Darden responds. "Don't spit at me, Mr. Cochran," Ito says at another point.

All this occurred in a single sidebar last week in the O.J. Simpson trial, and served as an example of why critics are saying Ito's courtroom is starting to look more like a kindergarten class with a substitute teacher.

Despite Ito's efforts to bring some order to the court, attorneys continue to snipe at each other, continue to accuse each other of misconduct, continue to call for sanctions.

Defense attorney Barry Tarrow said many people in the legal community are outraged at the trial, and the idea that the public thinks this is the way trials are handled.

Newspaper just saying no to O.J.

CARROLLTON, Ga. (AP) — A newspaper is just saying no — "No More O.J."

That was the headline, and next to it on the front page there was a photo of Simpson with an "X" through his face.

The publisher of the 11,600-circulation Times-Georgian has declared his paper free of stories about the Simpson trial until it's over.

Publisher Pat Cavanaugh says the decision was provoked by a reader who complained: "I wish you would do something and not run this anymore and give it credibility."

Cavanaugh's response, in Wednesday's edition: "Never in my career have I witnessed such a farce and such buffoonery in any news media as is the trial and coverage coming from California."

"In this case, with everybody playing to the cameras, it has made a mockery of our criminal justice system," he said. "And I feel there will be serious and undesirable impacts on the future because of what the public thinks goes on in the courts because of Simpson."

Southwestern University law professor Robert Pugsley said it falls to Ito to take control of the situation.

"It has to come back to him to enforce on a more consistent and stern basis the rules of etiquette in the courtroom."

Ito has tried to do just that. Last month, prosecutor Marcia Clark and defense attorney F. Lee Bailey insulted each other on national television during a hearing pertaining to Detective Mark Fuhrman's testimony.

After the lawyers apologized, Ito issued a seven-point list of "rules of professional conduct" punishable by contempt.

The rules include not interrupting each other, addressing comments to the judge, rather than opposing lawyers and refraining from "gratuitous, personal attacks."

But problems have continued. A crowning moment was a sidebar Thursday ostensibly about the breadth of cross-examination of police criminalist Dennis Fung but quickly degenerated into a playground spat between Cochran and Darden.

After Ito suggested the jury was becoming bored silly with the lengthy cross-examination of Fung — saying, "they've stopped paying attention" — Darden offered that the jury "had enough of smooth defense tactics for the day."

"I resent that. I resent that remark — 'Smooth defense tactics,'" Cochran shot back.

"Don't spit at me, Mr. Cochran," the judge said.

"We're being killed in these ridiculous ..." Cochran started to say.

Turbulent hurricane season predicted

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — This year's hurricane season will be the worst in five years, with six hurricanes expected, a storm expert predicts.

Two of the storms could be killers, with winds exceeding 100 mph, William Gray, professor of atmospheric science at Colorado State University, told the 17th annual National Hurricane Conference.

But he's not guaranteeing anything for the 1995 season, which goes from June to November.

"I just make the best prediction I can and let the chips fall where they may," he said Friday at the end of the four-day conference that drew 1,200 meteorologists, disaster experts, insurers and emergency management officials.

Gray predicted one hurricane could hit the New Jersey shore, a vulnerable area of heavily developed barrier islands that includes this casino resort.

South Florida is still recovering from 1992's Hurricane Andrew, which did $40 billion worth of damage, killed 55 people and left thousands homeless. Storm trackers say chances are remote a storm of that magnitude could hit the Northeast. The last to directly hit the New Jersey shore was in 1903.

But the professor has a good track record.

He predicted 57 hurricanes in the last 11 years. There were 54. He correctly predicted the exact number of hurricanes in three seasons.

Belated admission angers veterans

By ROBERT DVORCHAK
AP National Writer

Robert McNamara's belated admission that U.S. persistence in Vietnam was "terribly wrong" has opened old wounds among those who battled in the jungles, rice paddies and tall grass of America's longest war.

"A lot of people were wrong about Vietnam. But he knew the truth and concealed it," said retired Col. Harry Summers, editor of Vietnam magazine and a former battalion operations officer in the Army's First Infantry Division.

"He betrayed the men and women serving under him," Summers said. "He betrayed the American people."

McNamara, the secretary of defense under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, was the architect of America's buildup in Vietnam from a small force to a peak of half a million. To many, the 11-year conflict was "McNamara's War."

In his new book "In Retrospect: The Tragedy and Lessons of Vietnam," and in a tearful prime time TV appearance last week, McNamara said the policy he helped formulate was "terribly wrong."

McNamara said he concluded the war was unwinnable in the mid-'60s, yet he did not speak out and continued to dispatch troops into combat, in part because he feared that the appearance of weakness by the United States could have emboldened the Soviet Union and created the risk of war.

The vast majority of the 58,196 names etched in somber black granite on the Vietnam Memorial are those of people who died after 1965.

For many who lost friends, lost limbs, lost their eyesight or lost their innocence while America was being torn apart, McNamara's mea culpa rings hollow and late.

"You're damn right I'm angry," said John Sales, 54, a former Marine who was blinded in 1967 and founded the Blinded American Veterans Foundation. "It's a slap in the face to everyone who has worn the uniform. It was McNamara and his ilk that had us fight the war the wrong way. He's a disgrace," Sales said.

McNamara has declined an invitation to speak on Memorial Day at the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., saying he will be out of the country, so a second invitation has been extended for Veterans Day. He has not yet responded.

"No one deserves an explanation for what went on more than actual veterans and family members of those who fought," said Jan Scruggs, a former infantryman and president of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund. "A lot of my friends were killed there. A lot of them were wounded, and many of them are still in wheelchairs. If it was really unnecessary, and if we could and should have gotten out of there," Scruggs said, pausing to find the right words, "it's just kind of tough finding out about it now."

Peter Adesso, a Marine paralyzed for life in the Tet offensive in Hue, senses that something is still "bugging the hell out of this guy."

"Every time I hear one of these politicians say they're sorry, I see the faces of a lot of friends I left there. The politicians can't see their faces. If they did, they'd share a lot more," said Adesso, 47, a member of the Eastern Paralyzed Veterans Association in New York City.

It rankles some that McNamara stands to profit from royalties on the book.

No one was available Friday to comment for McNamara or his publisher, the Times Books division of Random House, on disposition of the profits.

Brazee said McNamara's book "shows once again the public needs to differentiate between the war and warrior. We served our country. We're proud of that service. And we certainly are aware our government hasn't been forthcoming with us."

Priorities set on key legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton asked Congress on Saturday to protect a short list of key legislation from the welter of ideas being generated by the Republican majority on Capitol Hill.

Clinton said he assigns the highest priority to welfare reform, targeted tax cuts, and a crime bill that preserves the assault weapons ban.

"They're my 'must list,'" he said in his weekly radio address.

Clinton said he wants to preserve these programs from the legislative scramble sure to occur when Congress reconvenes after the Easter recess and Republicans press their own agenda. The Senate is scheduled to return April 24; the House a week later.

Clinton was spending the weekend at Camp David, the presidential retreat in northern Maryland. He taped the radio address before leaving the White House on Friday.

First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton got a special treat before leaving: a close look at the new pink-and-white Hillary Clinton tulips surrounding the Jacqueline Kennedy Garden.

The Clintons were to return to the White House on Sunday to be on hand for Monday's annual Easter egg roll.

In his address, the president said that many of the proposals advocated by the GOP go too far, asserting that they make extreme cuts in education, undermine environmental protection, sidetrack his efforts to put 100,000 new police on the streets and repeal the assault weapons ban.

"I'm concerned that important issues will be lost in all the welter of detailed legislative proposals Congress has to consider," Clinton said. "So I want to tell Congress and the American people what my priorities are."

First, Clinton said, he wants a welfare reform plan that avoids "proposals that punish children for their parents' mistakes."

He said such a bill must "demand work and responsibility by setting definite term limits for welfare recipients and enforcing strict work requirements."

Tax reductions must be targeted to the middle class, be fully paid for by spending cuts and include a deduction for the cost of college or other post-secondary education.

The president noted that he has proposed $80 billion in spending cuts on top of the cuts needed to pay for his proposed tax reductions.

Hawks take 3 of 4 from New Mexico

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Howard College better make sure the windows in the athletes' dormitory near Jack Barber Field are unbreakable.

The Howard baseball team pulverized fourth-ranked New Mexico Junior College Saturday, and Tyson Lindekugel's mammoth three-run homer started the slaughter while giving Howard fans something to talk about for the next few years. Howard beat New Mexico 13-3 and 12-2 to win three of the four games in the series, keeping the Hawks in contention for the playoffs.

"That first ball Tyson hit off the facade of the dorms," said Howard coach Brian Roper.

"If it hadn't have had so much topspin on it, it might have gone over the dorms."

Lindekugel, a switch-hitting first baseman, smashed three homers on the day while going 6-for-7 with nine RBIs. As good as Lindekugel was, he was just one of the Hawks that wore out NMJC pitching. NMJC (36-7, 22-6 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference) surrendered 18 first-inning runs in the series.

In the first game Saturday, Scott Mackenzie (4-3) pitched a five-inning complete game while fanning five. Howard trailed 1-0, but the Hawks' Ryan Merritt led off the first inning with a single, Brian Ogle walked, Kent Holland hit an RBI single and Lindekugel denied the dorms. In a blink Howard had a 4-1 lead, and NMJC starter Dusty Johnston left the game without retiring a batter.

Holland went 9 for 15 in the series, raising his team-leading average to .476. Holland has sized most of the season, and Howard (25-13, 14-10) followed his lead Saturday.

"If we played like this at the beginning of the season, we'd be the best in the conference," said Merritt, who was 7-for-12 in the series with four walks. "In a way, it's kind of frustrating, because our chances of going to state are pretty slim. I don't really know what our chances are. I'm happy because the hits

Quarter-milers keyed Lady Steers' comeback

The Big Spring High School girls' track team may be young, but it has already displayed a flair for the dramatic.

Dramatic is just the word to describe how two sophomores and a freshman came to the Lady Steers' rescue just when they needed it at Thursday's District 4-4A track and field championships in Monahans.

Heading into the 400-meter run, Big Spring was trailing San Angelo Lake View by 26 points. The event marked the midpoint of the track finals, and if the Lady Steers were going to make a move on Lake View it had to be now.

Lining up for Big Spring in the 400 were freshman Marisol Carnero and sophomores Kandi Cline and Latisha Hall. The pressure to cut into Lake View's lead must have been immense, but the youngsters didn't show it.

After all, they'd been in the situation before.

"We always like to stay close together during a race," Hall said. "We were hoping we could sweep the 400."

"We really weren't thinking about sweeping the 400," Cline said, "but when we're that far behind, and it gets to the middle of the meet, (coach Jay Kennedy) expects a lot from us."

The trio definitely delivered for Kennedy and the Lady Steers, sweeping the top three spots in the 400 and delivering 24 points to Big Spring's camp. Carnero was first in a time of 1 minute, 1.7 seconds, followed by Cline (1:02.6) and Hall (1:03.3).

Steers doubled their pleasure at district meet

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

The Big Spring boys' track team wasn't seeing double at Thursday's District 4-4A track and field championships.

Winning double, perhaps, but not seeing double.

If anyone is looking for a key to the Steers' resounding victory at the meet, perhaps it's in the fact Big Spring had so many double gold-medal performers at Lobo Stadium in Monahans.

Drexell Owusu (triple jump and high jump), Joe Franklin (800- and 1,600-meter runs), Roger Eddington (110 and 300 hurdles) and Randy Farr (200 dash and 1,600 relay) all picked up a pair of first-place finishes for Big Spring Thursday. In addition, Jason Roberts (discus and shot put) and Dustin Waters (100 and 200 dash) had dual second-place finishes.

Those results accounted for the lion's share of Big Spring's 210 points, which were more than enough to give the Steers first place over runner-up San Angelo Lake View (141 points).

No one was surprised by the Steers' dominance.

"This year, we're a lot more competitive," Waters said. "We had our ups and downs this season, but we proved we could compete with anybody."

Coach Randy Britton said he believed the Steers could have won all seven meets they entered this year. Maybe that's why some of his team members sounded almost disappointed in their results.

"I'd say I'm pleased, but where I'm at, I can't ever say

BSHS golfers heading to regionals after second-place district finish

McCullough loses playoff for medalist honors

MONAHANS - The Big Spring High School boys' golf team qualified for regionals by finishing second in Friday's final round of the District 4-4A golf tournament.

The Steers finished with a three-round total of 959, seven strokes back of district champion Monahans. Andrews finished third, five strokes behind Big Spring, while Fort Stockton was a distant fourth at 1,008.

BSHS coach Gary Simmons was more than pleased with the results.

"It came down to the wire," Simmons said. "But they gutted it out and did what they had to do. It was a fun tournament to watch."

Big Spring's Jake McCullough tied for district medalist honors with Lake View's Chris Webster - both golfers shot 74 Friday and 230 in the three rounds of the tournament - but Webster won the title by paring the first playoff hole while McCullough made bogey.

"Jake just caught an unlucky break on his first shot (of the playoff)," Simmons said. "But he's just a junior, and he'll be just as good next year, or even better."

Pat Carter and Ryan Williams finished in the top 10 as well. Carter finished fifth with a 78 Friday for a total of 236; Williams finished 84-245 for 10th.

Other Big Spring varsity scores were: Charlie Marmolejo, 84-252; and Justin Cole, 81-261.

The Steers and Monahans advance to the Region 1-4A golf tournament April 24-25 at San Angelo.

Big Spring's junior varsity finished the tournament in eighth place with a three-round total of 1,071. JV scores were: Matt Flaharty, 89-254; Weldon Gibbs, 91-260; Josh Palmer, 86-258; and Nick DeWaters, 99-299.

Are we heading for another strike?

NEW YORK (AP) - Owners are running away from the bargaining table again. If they don't come back soon, there's a good chance of another work stoppage in 1996.

About the only major decision made during a two-day executive council meeting in Milwaukee last week was to boot Chuck O'Connor as the team's chief labor lawyer.

According to council members, speaking on the condition they not be identified, no decision was made on who will succeed O'Connor. Hard-line owners want Robert Ballow to be the upfront negotiator.

Others prefer that Ballow, closely aligned with Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf, remain in the background even if he is the primary lawyer the owners will be using.

As Ballow became more of a factor last month in management's deliberations, union head Donald Fehr called him "the Tribune unionbuster," a reference to his headline stances during labor talks at the Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News.

Several people on the players' side would regard a formal appointment of Ballow as a new declaration of war on the union, one that would cause players to immediately start preparing for another work stoppage next year.

If owners go back to a salary cap proposal and appear to be preparing another attempt to declare impasse and impose a cap, the 1996 season clearly would be threatened.

This time, U.S. District Judge Sonia Sotomayor would have to approve any declaration of impasse. If the owners are allowed to impose a cap, three scenarios are likely to develop:

- The union could play the entire season and then not play the postseason.

- Owners could lock out the players at the start of spring training.

- The union could start another signing freeze and strike at the start of spring training.

Any of those scenarios would lead to baseball's third straight disrupted season and foil attempts for the sport to rebuild its revenue and fan base. Owners are expected to unveil a new advertising campaign this week.

To avoid another work stoppage, many large-market clubs are in favor of making a deal in the next few months. That would ensure long-term peace and cause Fox to consider bidding for baseball.

Talkin Man wins Wood

NEW YORK (AP) - Talkin Man cruised to an easy victory in the $500,000 Wood Memorial on Saturday at Aqueduct, and now the talk turns to Kentucky.

With the upset victory earlier in the day by Wild Syn in the Blue Grass, Talkin Man might well go to Churchill Downs as the favorite for the Kentucky Derby on May 6.

Canada's 2-year-old champion a year ago, Talkin Man took the lead for good in the 1/4-mile Wood with a mile left, loped along easily on the lead down the backstretch and around the final turn, then stretched the margin of victory out to 7 1/2 lengths.

"It does look pretty good for me in the Derby," trainer Roger Attfield said. "Just awesome - he dominated from the start."

Lindekugel figuring out pitchers

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Long after spectators and players deserted Jack Barber Field Saturday, Howard College first baseman Tyson Lindekugel inspected the men's dormitory.

"Look at Tyson," said Howard coach Brian Roper, laughing as he saw Lindekugel survey the second-floor balcony of the building beyond the right-field wall. Above his head,

LINDEKUGEL

Lindekugel could see where one of his three home runs made its mark - on the facade. Had it risen a few inches higher, the blast would have landed on the roof and perhaps bounced across 11th Place.

Lindekugel enjoyed every minute of a glorious day - 6-for-7, three homers, nine RBIs and two wins over New Mexico Junior College. The switch-hitting freshman from Pierre, S.D., leads the Hawks in homers (9) and RBI (53). He's batting .374 and averaging 1.39 RBIs per game.

"I finally proved to myself I could hit the curve ball," Lindekugel said. "I had trouble with the curve ball last week, but today five of my six hits were off curve balls. I finally got some confidence in my hitting, and I hit the ball hard."

"Tyson's finally figured out how strong and quick he is," Roper said. "He'd been jumping out on breaking balls and having trouble, but he's learned that he can sit back and wait on a breaking ball and still hit it out of the park. And he's still quick enough to handle the fast ball."

Lindekugel is just one of the talented players Howard has recruited from South Dakota - a pipeline supervised by Howard assistant and South Dakota native Steve Ramharter. Roper said Ramharter recruited

Lindekugel and Kent Holland - another Rapid City star who leads the Hawks with a .476 average - set the tone for the NMJC series. Howard won three of four games.

"Kent's really been on fire. He kind of came out of nowhere and is hitting everything," said Howard left fielder Wes Davis Saturday. "Tyson's been consistent all year. He's had some good games and bad games, but he's been consistent. Today he caught on fire, too."

Two of Lindekugel's three homers Saturday came on the first pitch. Perhaps that's part of the aggressiveness he's been practicing.

"When you get confidence up there, you're not afraid of anything and you start swinging aggressively. I've had games as good as this before, but I've never really had two games in a row where I swung the bat this well."

Hawks

are falling in, people are playing well - Kent Holland is just playing great - but it's kind of disappointing it didn't come sooner."

Despite the three wins over NMJC, Howard must sweep second-place Odessa (32-9, 17-6) this weekend to have a realistic shot at a state-tournament berth. Howard trails Odessa 3 1/2 games with eight to play, but after the Hawk-Wrangler series Odessa finishes with New Mexico Military - a team that is winless in conference play.

Howard finished its first-game victory Saturday when Lindekugel blasted his second homer over the right-field wall to put the 10-run rule in effect.

The second game opened just like the first. After NMJC scored in the first, Merritt led off with a walk for the Hawks. Ogle singled, Holland hit an RBI single and Lindekugel cranked his third home run of the day off former Sweetwater hurler Terry Clemmer.

Howard scored seven runs in the first and chased Clemmer, and once again the Hawks ended the game with a bang. Freshman left fielder Wes Davis hit a no-doubt homer over the left-field wall to give Howard the 12-2 win in the sixth. The Davis blast made a winner of left-hander Caleb Brown (6-0), who pitched a six-hitter.

Howard's sweep Saturday came after a near sweep Friday. Howard won Friday's opener 7-3 behind a complete-game seven-hitter from Brian Thompson (5-3). In the second game, Howard's Ben Phillips (4-2) pitched into extra innings but couldn't hold a 3-0 lead. Howard was two outs away from a win, but NMJC's Heath McBeth - an Andrews product - homered to tie the game. NMJC won 4-3 in eight innings on Frank Antanez's RBI single.

Roper said: "The thing I'm most happy with is our pitching. New Mexico came in hitting something like .400 ... and our pitching pretty much shut them down every game. I can't say enough about our pitching - Friday Brian Thompson was back to his '94 form, and today Mackenzie was just brilliant."

"We have to sweep in Odessa unless we want to depend on some other people, but we're playing good ball right now and we've always played well at Odessa."

Trio

The event proved to be a momentum-changer as the Lady Steers took the lead for good in the next event, the 300 hurdles, and went on to take the district team title.

As if to pop the cork on the Lady Steers' title, the trio teamed again - this time with sophomore Charlotte Bumbulis - to win the final event of the meet, the 1,600 relay. Their winning time of 4:13.4 was four seconds better than runner-up Lake View.

The big-time performance was somewhat surprising, considering the group's youth and relative inexperience. Compounding things was that Cline had missed a week of school with bronchitis, and Carnero was in Kennedy's doghouse after a sub-par performance the previous week at the AMBUCS Relays in Big Spring.

"Last week, I just don't know what happened," Carnero said. "Coach Kennedy really pushed me to do better this week."

Kennedy, who celebrated his third district title as BSHS girls' track coach, wasn't surprised that Carnero rebounded so quickly.

"With young kids, it's a learning process," Kennedy said. "We're still teaching them to do simple things, like the proper way to warm up and saying focused during a meet ... This has been one of my more unusual teams. In the past, I didn't have to sweat it so much."

Good Lord, I've got leg cramps from pacing around so much."

Bumbulis was a freshman on last year's team that finished in the middle of the pack at the district meet, so she particularly enjoyed Thursday's championship.

"Last year, we weren't as good as we expected to be," she said. "We got a taste of what it's like to be beaten. This year, we've got a lot of talented freshman, and we just tried to stress to them to give their all and not let anybody get them down."

Everybody on the team took a cue from its lone senior, sprinter-jumper Kathy Smith.

"Kathy showed me how to dedicate myself, and she pushed me to do better," Carnero said. "This meet was dedicated to Kathy Smith."

Steers

I'm satisfied with my performance," Franklin said. "I can always do better."

Owusu qualified for the regional track meet in four events (he was second in the long jump and the 400 relay), but even he sounded less than thrilled with his afternoon's work.

"I had a decent meet," he said. "We won and qualified for regionals - that's the major thing. My jumps weren't what I wanted, but I'll take them."

In short, it was a meet the Steers expected to win. Now that they've accomplished that, it's on to the Region 1-4A meet in San Angelo April 28.

"I'm going to approach it differently - I just haven't figured out how yet," Franklin said. "New races call for new strategies."

Floyd leading Seniors

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Ray Floyd birdied the last hole and opened a two-shot lead while Jack Nicklaus continued a comeback in the third round of the PGA Seniors Championship.

Floyd shot a 5-under-par 67 on the Champion course at the PGA Resort and completed 54 holes in 207, 9 under par.

It mirrored his standing in this tournament a year ago — which he has forgotten. But that's understandable.

"I don't remember," Floyd said when asked how he stood at this stage a year ago. "I think I was leading, but I don't know by how many."

There was a perceptible pause before he added:

"Obviously, not enough," said Floyd who blew a four-shot lead on the final nine holes and finished second to Lee Trevino.

This time, Jim Colbert and Jack Nicklaus are his closest pursuers going into Sunday's final round.

"I've played with Colbert for three rounds and he's playing very well," Floyd said.

"And Jack is on a great comeback. It should make for great television."

Television, however, missed a miss that could have put Colbert within a single shot of the lead.

He was standing over an 8-10 foot birdie putt on the 18th when, he said, "someone dropped a cup of ice" in the temporary stands, "and there was a lot of stirring around."

"I got distracted and just flat whiffed the putt," he said after finishing with a 71 and a 209 total.

Nicklaus, who started with a struggling 76 and followed with a wildly erratic 66, had a more conventional 69 that put him three shots back at 210.

"That's why he's the greatest player there's ever been," Floyd said.

"To do what he's doing with what he's going through — Jack really isn't playing that well right now — is just amazing," Floyd said.

Nicklaus, however, played much more solidly this time, missing only two greens and running off a string of nine consecutive pars that was broken by his finishing birdie.

"If Jack keeps hitting the ball the way he is, and keeps on putting, lo and behold, we're all in trouble," Floyd said.

Trevino chipped in for a 17th hole birdie and was tied at 211, only four back, with Jim Albus. Each had third-round 69s.

Floyd said he received a tremendous mental lift from a birdies on the first three holes he played.

"It put me in a good frame of mind," he said. "Three nice putts. I've been playing so well and getting nothing out of it, that was a nice way to start."

That burst enabled him to draw even with Colbert and he went in front when Colbert drove into a fairway bunker, came out short and bogeyed the 14th hole.

The advantage went to two with a 12-15 foot birdie putt on the final hole, completing a birdie sweep of the par-5 holes in the round.

Teams can make the grade and still win

Just what did Southern Methodist University men's basketball coach John Shumate hope to accomplish?

Shumate resigned his position Thursday, saying academic standards made it nearly impossible for him to field a winning team at SMU.

He said: "I am particularly proud of the fact that 100 percent of our student-athletes graduated during my tenure and that we won the Southwest Conference championship in 1993."

"It has been a challenge to meet the high expectations of the university, in light of the various limitations that have been imposed on the program".

Poor guy. Maybe his players were too smart for him. What does he want? Lower academic standards at SMU? He said it was a challenge. What does he want instead, an easy, push-over job?

The day schools start sacrificing academics for athletics is the day sports should be tossed out the window.

Shumate should know better. This is a guy that played at Notre Dame, an academic giant among universities. He played for Digger Phelps, a coach that, love him or hate him, produced a parade of winning teams despite putting academic All-Americans all over the court.

If Shumate can't stand the heat of six losing seasons in seven years, fine. He should go. But to use academics as an excuse is A) idiotic and B) thinly-veiled attempt to hide the true facts.

Shumate's days had been numbered for some time. He resigned to spare himself the humiliation of being fired — a good idea if you do it quietly.

Where does Shumate want to coach next? Nevada-Las Vegas would be a good place for him — too bad the job already is taken. Shumate could have been the next Jerry Tarkanian. Tark the Shark — now there's the poster child for academic excellence. If a boy can play, Tark can take care of that little inconvenience of academics.

Who would want Shumate as a coach after his comments? If a school hires him as a head coach, what does that say about the school's academics?

Mike Krzyzewski of Duke University has to deal with some pretty stiff academic standards, and you don't see him whining. Of course, the guy's taken Duke to the Final Four seven of the last 10 years. Love or hate Bobby Knight, the man has made sure all of his Indiana University players graduate and has won three NCAA championships in the process.

Shumate likely wants to help those underprivileged athletes in high school, the ones whose only chance at college is a sports scholarship. That's well and good, but lowering academic requirements isn't the answer.

Players don't have to graduate from college to reach the NBA. Jim Jackson, Jamal Mashburn, Michael Jordan — all of them left school before graduating, and those are just a few.

SMU Athletic Director Jim Copeland said: "The admission standards are not a hindrance — or should not be a hindrance. There are a lot of schools that win that have very similar standards, that graduate their student athletes."

Enough said.

Trio tied for third-round Classic lead

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Mark McCumber, David Edwards and David Frost led a startling assault on Harbour Town Golf Links on Saturday and shared the lead after three rounds of the MCI Classic.

McCumber had a 64 and Edwards and Frost posted 66s and all were at 8-under 205 along with first-round co-leader Gene Sauers, who had a 69.

"Everything that felt so crummy on Thursday felt just great today," said McCumber, who made birdies on four of five holes on the back nine. "This is the kind of golf course that if you really get it going good, you can shoot 64."

Or 62 as Gil Morgan did, falling a stroke short of the course record and moving into a group at 7-under 206 that included Tom Watson, Payne Stewart and Scott Hoch.

All prospered in the windless, perfect conditions of the seaside course.

"This course is not known for giving up low rounds all the time, so you feel in weather like this you're going to lose ground if you don't go 2- or 3- under," said Edwards, who won this tournament in 1993 when it was called the Heritage Classic.

The low scores started right from the jump. Morgan was the second to tee off and playing partner Brad Faxon shot 66. U.S. Open champion Ernie Els, 11 shots back when the round began, moved to two shots behind with a 64. Steve Lowery, John Morse and Jim McGovern all checked in with 66s.

"When you tee off early, you don't have a lot of pressure," said Morgan, who bounced a 6-iron 160 yards for an ace on the 7th hole. "It was a real nice, exciting day."

Just under half the field (31 of 78) bettered 70.

"You can be playing well here and be over par," said Frost, second to Edwards here in 1993 and fourth to winner Hale Irwin last year. "That means that guys who barely made the cut can go out and shoot themselves in it."

Tom Lehman, the second-round leader, may have shot himself out of it. He started with a four-stroke lead but took bogeys on Nos. 1 and 9 to fall into a four-way tie at 8-under. Then he took a double bogey on No. 12 and a bogey on No. 13 to fall back, finally landing at 6-under with a 75.

McCumber's round was the first to dent the scoreboard. His precise irons led to four back-nine birdies. McCumber would've held the lead outright, but missed the green on No. 17 and two-putted for par.

"This was an easy 64, if there is such a thing. I missed three greens all round by a total of 5 feet," said McCumber, who has had four rounds over par out of 27 this year.

Edwards boosted himself with four birdies in his last five holes. Again, he used dead-eye iron play to make his move, rolling in birdie putts of 4, 6 and 8 feet down the stretch.

Frost made birdies on four out of six holes during one span to move up, while Sauers birdied No. 18 to join the lead group.

Watson's 68 included dumping a ball in the water on No. 4 for double bogey. Hoch shot a 69 and Stewart a 70.

At 6-under with Els and Lehman were Lowery, Jones, two-time Tour winner Peter Jacobson, John Daly and Loren Roberts.

Williams, Cowboys take wait-and-see attitude on charges

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys officials say they expect Erik Williams to continue rehabilitating a damaged knee, despite facing allegations that he sexually assaulted a 17-year-old girl.

The All-Pro offensive tackle has yet to make a public statement on the allegations, other than to insist he is innocent.

Meanwhile, Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said he told Williams he can't allow the latest problems to influence the intense rehabilitation program the player has undergone since the wreck.

"It's part of life and we'll have to deal with it," said Switzer, the first team official to comment on the situation. "He has to come here and do what's expected of him. We have a goal to approach and an objective to reach and he'll have to work hard every day."

Williams, arrested Thursday on allegations he and a companion sexually assaulted a 17-year-old girl at his North Dallas home, has been serving two years probation for an Oct. 24 drunken driving accident.

An All-Pro offensive tackle for the Dallas Cowboys in 1993, he missed most of last season when he severely damaged his knee in the wreck, a head-on collision with a concrete barrier after a celebration following the Cowboys' victory over the Arizona Cardinals.

The vehicle was demolished and Williams was severely hurt. He has since had two reconstructive knee operations and plastic surgery on his face. Williams pleaded no contest to misdemeanor drunken driving and received probation.

Under state law, Thursday's incident represents a probation violation, but an official said the county will wait until his current problems are resolved. "We'll wait until the felony case is taken care of," said

Dallas County probation officer Rose Harris.

If Williams is convicted of the sexual assault charge, which is expected to be formally filed Monday, Ms. Harris said the Dallas County District Attorney's office would pursue revocation of the probation. That would mean he would serve out his drunken driving sentence at the county jail before beginning any further penalty.

The Collin County District Attorney's office will handle the sexual assault allegations. It was closed for the Good Friday holiday.

Sexual assault is a second-degree felony that is punishable upon conviction by two to 20 years in prison.

Williams' latest problem began around 2 a.m. Thursday when police received a 911 call from his house.

The alleged victim, a night club dancer who said she's known Williams for four months, asked police to go to Williams' north Dallas home and ask for her by her first name, police said.

When they arrived, Williams, 26, said she was not there and that there was no disturbance.

As officers returned to their patrol car, they said they heard a sound and saw the girl looking out a window.

Officers went back and arrested Williams and Roderick Carson of Madison, Wis. Carson, 26, was a teammate of Williams at Central State of Ohio. Both were released from custody after posting $2,500 bond at separate hearings.

Williams posted another $1,000 bond after authorities issued a probation violation warrant Thursday.

According to what the girl told police, the men picked her up at her apartment late Wednesday, then took her to Williams' house.

The Worm returns

Spurs, fans, glad to have Rodman back from injury

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Whether he was sitting on the floor near the San Antonio bench with a towel casually plopped on his head or getting another rebound, Spurs fans delighted in the return of Dennis Rodman.

They stood and applauded him when he entered Friday night's game, they cheered like crazy for his fourth-quarter dunk and they quietly watched in worry as he cringed on the floor enduring muscle spasms.

Dennis — the controversial man of many hair colors — was back.

His Spurs teammates and coaches were happy about his return, too. San Antonio defeated the Sacramento Kings 98-88 Friday as Rodman grabbed 15 rebounds in 22 minutes of play.

"I was surprised Dennis went as much as he did. He did a good job," said Spurs coach Bob Hill.

Rodman had missed 14 games since separating his right shoulder March 19 in a motorcycle accident in the Texas Hill Country. During his absence, the Spurs posted a 12-2 record. The team's 15-game winning streak ended this week with back-to-back losses to Portland and Phoenix.

David Robinson, who led the Spurs over Sacramento with 32 points and 16 rebounds, said it was good to have Rodman back even though he still has some work to do to recover from the injury.

"(His rebounding) pushed the ball up the floor and created some opportunities for us," Robinson said. "He's not going to be 100 percent for a couple of games, but he did what we asked him to do."

Rodman gave the Alamodome crowd a scare when he ran from San Antonio's Dennis Rodman is shown in action Friday night during the Spurs' game with Sacramento. It was Rodman's first game back after a shoulder injury.

the court late in the second quarter holding his shoulder. He fell to the floor on his knees near the Spurs' bench and put his face to the floor, then he ran from the court covering his face.

In the second half, Rodman returned, having recovered from muscle spasms in his right shoulder blade.

"I thought I could play a little bit more, but under the circumstances, I think that (22-minute performance) was OK," Rodman said.

Rodman has averaged 7.3 points and a league-leading 17.4 rebounds this season.

"Dennis is an exceptional rebounder, to say the least," said the Kings' Olden Polynice, who had 13 rebounds for

I like it, no question. I think all of us like the energy. ... He brings a great level of excitement to the game for the fans, and that makes it (exciting) for us.

David Robinson

Sacramento Friday night. "Coming off an injury is very emotional. Dennis certainly did his job."

Point guard Avery Johnson, who scored 16 points for the Spurs Friday night, said Rodman's presence added "punch."

Like the fans, Robinson said the Spurs players appreciate Rodman's enthusiasm on the court.

"I like it, no question. I think all of us like the energy. ... He brings a great level of excitement to the game for the fans, and that makes it for us," Robinson said.

After the Sacramento game, Rodman already was looking ahead.

The Spurs play the Denver Nuggets Sunday afternoon. Then the playoffs are just a week away.

Using a golf analogy, Rodman said he wants more than the "par" performance the Spurs exhibited in Friday night's victory.

"We've got to play better. We've got to play under par to do well in the playoffs," he said. "Now it's more workouts. And more. And more."

UT holds spring scrimmage

AUSTIN (AP) — Linebackers Kyle Richardson and Tremaine Brown teamed for 14 tackles as the Orange team beat the Whites 17-3 Saturday in the University of Texas intersquad game which ended Spring football drills.

Richardson, a sophomore, had eight stops, four of which were unassisted. Brown, a junior, had six tackles, including three solos.

The Longhorns allowed more than 363 yards and nearly 24 points a game last season and apparently have benefited from Head Coach John Mackovic's renewed emphasis on defense.

The Orange defense, made up of first-team players, held the Whites to 124 total yards and a 2.6-yard average on 48 plays.

The Orange team allowed just one touchdown during four intersquad games this spring.

The biggest play surrendered by the Orange team was a 34-yard pass from freshman quarterback Richard Walton to tight end Pat Fitzgerald. The play set up the White team's only score, a 42-yard field goal by Donnie Mellow.

The Orange's two touchdowns came on runs by sophomore Darrell Wilson and junior college transfer Jeffrey Clayton. Sophomore kicker Phil Dawson booted a 25-yard field goal.

Mavs' Kidd making push for top NBA rookie honor

DALLAS (AP) — Jason Kidd has phenomenal basketball instincts, so it's no surprise he knew what to do when Jim Jackson and his 25.7 points per game left the lineup more than six weeks ago.

What has been surprising is how well he responded by suddenly finding the shooting touch that was supposed to be his biggest weakness. That discovery could be what makes him the NBA's Rookie of the Year.

Kidd was the third person in a three-man race when Jackson went down Feb. 24. He didn't have the early season hype of Detroit's Grant Hill or the gaudy offensive numbers of Milwaukee's Glenn Robinson.

Kidd also was well into the period where rookies, especially those who only played two years of college, hit "the wall." Instead, he became Rookie of the Month in March and is off to an even better April.

Any lingering doubts should've been answered

Tuesday against the Houston Rockets when Kidd posted his third triple-double within five games and scored a career-high 38 points in a 156-147 double-overtime victory.

It wasn't just what he did as much as how he did it.

With the Mavericks down by five and less than 30 seconds to play in the first overtime, Kidd exploded in front of Clyde Drexler to steal a pass in the backcourt, barely got set then drilled a 3-pointer.

Then, with 2.5 seconds to play, he charged to the top of the key and hit a leaping, wind-up, one-handed 3-pointer that forced the second overtime.

But scoring is only part of Kidd's game.

Sure, the 30-point games are aberrations for Kidd and somewhat expected from Hill and Robinson. Yet they can't be counted on to do everything else the Mavericks expect from the No. 2 pick in last year's draft.

Kidd's impact is everywhere.

ROUNDUP OF TALENT

Story by Janet Ausbury

Elementary school may seem a little soon for students to tackle problems that baffle adults.

However, the gifted/talented students in the Big Spring Independent School District's SIGNAL program are no ordinary youngsters, and for the second year in a row, they used their talents and problem-solving skills as part of the G/T (gifted/talented) Roundup.

The fourth and fifth graders in SIGNAL, as well as third graders in the G/T program, spent most of April 1 in the SIGNAL room at Bauer Elementary School, listening to presentations by parents and members of the community and working with facilitators on projects.

Session topics included newspaper writing, presented by Barbara Morrison and facilitated by Ann Honea; newspaper advertising, presented by Edwin Vela and facilitated by Donna Lee; fighting microorganisms, presented by Dr. Alice Haynes and facilitated by Sandra Roffers; analyzing tobacco advertising, presented by Frank Davis and facilitated by Gwen Ray; characteristics of Chinese character writing, presented by Evelyn Yee and facilitated by Patti Adams; and analyzing the life and work of cowboys, presented by Dusty Choate and facilitated by Robin Strain.

The point of the sessions was to encourage the students to use their creative thinking and troubleshooting abilities in real-life situations. Please see ROUNDUP, page 3B

You can't just count your money; you have to count on the institution that keeps it for you, as students Kristin Choate and Crystal Wingert show in their ad created during the G/T Roundup session on newspaper advertising.

Kelly Gartman prepares to demonstrate what she's learned from Evelyn Yee in the session about Chinese character writing.

...And now, a few words from your children

The following column is a cumulative result of several SIGNAL (gifted and talented) students from the Big Spring Independent School District who attended the G/T Roundup April 1.

Barbara Morrison

Beverly Jeffcoat's fourth and fifth grade classes and the sentiments expressed in this article are the opinions of these very talented students (and obviously NOT this writer). This effort was the end result of a seminar I gave during the Roundup.

Parents. They're crazy. They think if they don't tell you what to do, then you won't do it. They just don't see it from our side. They look at their view and don't understand what our view is.

They ask you what you want to do but when you tell 'em, they always change their minds and say that's not a good idea anyway.

Parents love the color green. They make you eat asparagus. It makes us want to puke. They think if you eat asparagus and other green things, it will make you healthy, but the taste could kill you.

We doubt if they really know that green vegetables are good for you. They probably just say it because everybody else says it. We have no choice with green foods. And there's no choice about bedtime, either.

They wait until you're having fun and then, they kind of sneak up on you and...they make you go to bed. It seems like if we're having too much fun, then it's like they say, "Oh oh, they're having too much fun, let's send them to bed."

They put you to bed so they can watch movies. They let you play a game and the prize at the end is bed. Just ask them why THEY aren't going to bed and they make up a different excuse every night.

"We're the grownups and you're not." "You're too little to stay up because it will damage your brain." "You're still young and growing." Yeah, right.

They say they are just about to go to bed but when you look under the crack of the door, THEIR light is still on. And, parents think we are the ones who don't understand.

Well, one thing we sure don't understand is where their eyesight comes from, even if they have to wear glasses. They can see microscopic specks of dust and then say, "That's filthy, clean it up."

Oh, and they have eyes in the back of their heads so they can see you when you sneak a cookie or try and visit your friends when you haven't finished your homework.

They act mad when they are really scared. Like if you break your arm or something, they stand and yell at you and ask you a dumb question like "Why did you do that?"

They act like they were perfect when they were young, and they always act like they never did anything wrong.

For example, they expect children to do better than they did when they were children. They expect higher grades than they received and they make up

"when I was a kid" stories in order to motivate us to do better. The end result is frustration.

While their eyesight is extraordinary, their hearing is not so good. In fact, it is horrible. They don't listen to us. Even if we have a good argument, they don't want to hear.

We can tell when an argument is good because they ignore you rather than admitting they were wrong.

Adults appear to have lost the creativity they had when they were our age. The parent response to everything seems to be "Go clean your room" - as if there is pure satisfaction out of seeing us perform manual labor.

Parents play favorites, though, and most of the manual labor is assigned to the older child. It is obvious to us the youngest child NEVER has to do chores because they aren't old enough.

Another parent answer to everything is "no." It must have been their very first word.

"Can I have another cookie?"

No.

"Can I have some money?"

No.

"Can I go to play with my friends?"

No.

"Can I do my homework after supper?"

No.

It's a broken record. Maybe they should wear a pin that says something like "Ask me, I'll just say no."

So, when we grow up and become parents, we will be exactly like we are now only more mature.

But, then, if we become more mature, we'll become more like our parents. And that's an eerie thought.

Looking for art on the road

By LISA MCKINNON

CAMARILLO, Calif. — On this morning, the Four Grumps are neither.

They are three men of a certain age, gathered at Eggs-N-Things in Camarillo, Calif. When the waitress comes by with hot black coffee, they smile and say "please" and "thank you."

Outside, gray clouds form in the morning sky. Rain would cancel their plans to drive to Oxnard's Heritage Square for a day of sketching and photographing the restored homes and Disneyland-pristine grounds. The men don't want to think about that possibility.

"Al and I like to find mailboxes and trash cans — things we can focus on," Dick Duran of Moorpark, Calif., is saying. "Plus, I'm good at backs. Never turn your back on me, 'cause I'll sketch it. Unless I can find a trash can I like better."

"It's a pure joy for me to see my chosen scenes emerge from the paper in color," says Al Vessa of Westlake Village who, like Max McDonald of Northridge, hopes to unpack his watercolors after breakfast.

And the fourth grump, Roger Crossman of Eagle Rock? "He does 3-D photography," says McDonald. "He'll tell you all about it, don't worry."

The men met while working at Southern California Gas Company headquarters in Los Angeles, but it wasn't until two years ago — after two had retired — that they decided to call themselves the Four Grumps.

They have sketched and photographed the vintage planes at Santa Paula Airport and the rough-hewn sets of "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" in Agoura, Calif.

Want a well-designed kitchen? It's in the book

By REBECCA TAYLOR
Scripps Howard News Service

Eight years ago, Deborah Krasner designed her first kitchen.

Her family was converting a hay barn in southern Vermont into a house. Krasner, a food journalist and cookbook author, felt sure she had the savvy to create an efficient and stylish kitchen.

It was only after the kitchen was complete that she began realizing her mistakes: The refrigerator and dishwasher could not be opened at the same time. The right side of the stove sat against the wall, affording little elbow room to the cook, and all the pot handles had to be turned inward.

"And this kitchen, which had been OK, suddenly became less than OK," says Krasner.

Her design errors prompted her to write her third book. Having authored "Celtic," a survey of home interiors from Ireland, Scotland and Wales, and a cookbook, "From Celtic Hearths," Krasner combined her interests in food and homes to research and write "Kitchens for Cooks" (Viking Studio Books, $24.95).

She says while she had seen and read many kitchen books, none explained why kitchens are designed the way they are. "I wanted to write a book that would help people to think about design, not just style," says Krasner.

At the heart of "Kitchens for Cooks" is an emphasis on zone-based cooking. In professional kitchens, Krasner says, preparation areas are divided into these zones to facilitate cooking and to accommodate more than one cook.

She divides her home kitchen into four zones: wet, dry, hot and cold. A wet zone, for exam-other such utensils.

In her own home, organizing the wet zone included things as simple as moving the coffee maker from the other side of the room to the sink area. Until zoning her kitchen she had never realized the time wasted just by walking across the room to fill the coffee pot with water.

The dry zone includes dry food storage (pantry and cabinets) and food preparation areas. The hot zone includes the range and oven, as well as the microwave, toaster or any appliance that uses heat. This is where pots, pans, trivets, hand tools and the like should be stored.

The refrigerator and freezer are the center of the cold zone.

When she divided her own kitchen into these zones, Krasner says, it made food preparation and cooking much easier despite the kitchen's odd design flaws that had been initially built-in.

In the first part of "Kitchens for Cooks," Krasner explains the four zones, what belongs in each and how the zones may be placed in conjunction with one another so that food can go easily from cold to wet to dry to hot, etc.

She also discusses kitchen appliances, space planning and the pros and cons of different materials for cabinets, flooring and counters.

I wanted to write a book that would help people to think about design, not just style.

ple would be your sink area, where you wash and peel vegetables and wash dishes. Obviously, that's why dishwashers are always located right next to the sink.

Yet, under so many kitchen sinks, Krasner says, people store their cleaning supplies for the entire house. The only cleaners that need to be there are ones that pertain specifically to the kitchen, such as dishwashing liquid. Put the mops and buckets in a broom closet, she says, because the under-the-sink space can be better used for wet-zone utensils — colanders, a salad spinner and

Time: a precious resource

There are just not enough hours in a day! If only I had more time, I might could have done a better job! I didn't have time to study for my history test, babysit my little sister, and finish all my household chores the same weekend of my grandparents anniversary party. How many times have we heard or even used excuses like these? Are they legitimate reasons or irresponsible alibis? Time management is a skill that few people can effectively master. Not one agenda or schedule of events is ever planned with a crisis, but all seem to include one. The popular saying of "We don't plan to fail, we simply fail to plan" is true in every sense of the word. Seminars and workshops of all kinds can be attended to learn the basics of effective time management. Experts have spent many years studying the fundamental and complexities of learning to manage our time.

But why all the hustle and bustle? What's the big deal about time management? Most employees with high stress careers will rate time management as one of the most important skills in their job. Being able to get the job done and still have time for family and personal development is a tricky and often impossible task.

Recently, I saw an article that addressed this problem in our society. Taken from Stephen Covey's book entitled "First Things First," the article suggests that the answer to an effective balance lies not with the clock but with the compass.

Covey states: "Traditional time management suggest that by doing things more efficiently you'll eventually gain control of your life, and that increased control will bring the peace and fulfillment you're looking for."

He disagrees with this concept: "Basing our happiness on our ability to control everything is futile. While we do control our choice of action, we cannot control the consequences of our choices. Universal laws and principles do. Thus, we are not in control of our lives; principles are."

Whether you agree or disagree with the above statement is your opinion. However, it is easily proven that workers who first do the things more important to themselves are fare more happy in the work place than those who are constantly doing things more important to others. Employees are still responsible to their supervisors for the work they are assigned to do. However, how they are allowed to complete the work is the key.

tions, according to SIGNAL teacher Beverly Jeffcoat. "The Roundup shows students how they can apply their problem-solving skills or come up with alternatives to situations," she explained.

Students seemed to enjoy all the sessions equally, Jeffcoat noted. Adult participation this year and last year consisted mostly of students' parents; for future Roundups, Jeffcoat hopes to increase participation by people in the community.

Are we seeing the earliest stirrings of Big Spring's, and the country's, future movers and shakers? Take a look at the students' sample advertisements and column writing on the front page of the Life! section, and judge for yourself!

Legendary Newburg dirt healed aches and pains

Pat Cowan was born at the family home at Newburg, near Comanche. Her parents and grandparents gave the doctor who delivered her 25 bales of hay for his services. "When I was born, I wasn't breathing," says Pat. "I was black. So my grandmother built a fire in the wood cook stove, got a dishpan, placed a quilt in it, laid me on it and put me in the oven. How I've come this far, I don't know." "We didn't have any lights, we milked our cows by hand, and kept our milk and butter cool by putting it in a tin pan with water in it." Pat says the world changed when the family got electricity. "It was about three or four miles to my school. And I wouldn't go clear around to Indian Gap and all the other places on the bus, 'cause that would take an extra hour. "So I started running. I ran all the way home so I could pull the chain and see the light come on. And my grandfather told me I shouldn't do that so much 'cause I'd wear out the electricity." In the mid-50's her dad had pains in his legs. The pains quit when he walked in a pasture where he kept cows. Sometimes when the pain was bad he sat on the ground and the pain disappeared. One day a plane carrying a man with a Geiger counter flew over the pasture and the Geiger counter registered a high amount of uranium. The pilot landed the plane in Comanche, the man asked who owned the land, and he flew over and talked with Pat's dad. It was the start of one of the most fascinating enterprises in Texas business history. When the word got out, people from everywhere came to Newburg to sit in the dirt. It cured arthritis and all sorts of things. People who arrived on crutches left walking straight and unassisted. It cost $2 to sit in the dirt and Pat's dad made lots of money. "He was Santa Claus the year round," says Pat. "People would come up to him and tell him their child needed some shoes. He'd pull out a wad of bills and give them money. He bought one lady a car because he saw her always walking to church." He became a national celebrity and appeared on "What's My Line" television show in New York. The producers put him up in a hotel. Now for a man from Newburg who had never even been to Fort Worth, that was a big event. When he returned home he said, "Kids, I nearly starved to death in that hotel. I didn't know how to use that telephone and didn't know how to do anything." Pat found the receipt from his stay at the hotel. "It was $2.28 for two or three days. No food on there at all. And he said he didn't know how to turn on the shower so he didn't even take a bath." After Pat's dad passed away, she and her husband were in the old home place and decided to build a fire in the stove. When they lit it, it blazed up real high. "We looked in there and saw all this money dad had put in there." People around Comanche still talk about Pat's dad. They say there was never a man like him. The dirt business lasted about five years.

Museum to showcase artists, cooks

Special to the Herald

With years of training and encouragement from his family, D. D. Parramore might have become a great Western artist.

He might have one day painted the romantic scenes of cowboys and landscapes that existed only in art.

Instead, the West Texas sketched his life, the everyday life of a rancher near the turn of the century, using a "nickel pencil" on an unlined tablet.

His drawings, on display through May 30 at the Heritage Museum of Big Spring, depict such common images of the time as plowing, coon hunting, the cattle drive and hog killing.

But Parramore did not sketch for art shows. With hand-lettered comments underneath the pictures, Parramore hoped to teach his grandchildren about ranch life and preserve the history of a vanishing vocation.

Among his work there is his family story - the artist, his brothers and cousins all attempting to ride "half-broke" horses; the antics of his mother's six children on their first train ride.

And there is the story of the cowboy - the trail herd, the stampede, prohibition and the meaning of being a "neighbor."

Parramore's work pieces together a history of West Texas ranch life, which makes the collection so important for this area, said curator Angie Way.

"His drawings express a cultural idea," Way said. "They are a form of storytelling about the history of this area. That's why we wanted to display them."

Despite a talent he displayed in early art lessons, Parramore was not encouraged to draw as a child. His father, Col. J.H. Parramore, had arranged for each of his children to own a ranch.

Parramore ranched on several sections in West Texas and worked as a banker during that Heritage Museum's "Around the World in Eighty Bites." They have joined other locals in creating dishes from countries all over the planet to be tasted by museum visitors.

At this year's event, April 29, Mays will be cooking sausage with sauerkraut, a combination she discovered in a trip to Germany.

Two years ago, she created "Sea Snake Soup" - actually made with pork - after traveling in China. Last year, she time as well. Once he retired from active ranching, he returned to drawing for the entertainment and education of his grandchildren.

What is normal for one family may be exotic to another," he said. "It may be something as ordinary as a soup or salad. What's fun is that people don't know what it is and have to taste it."

Flynn Long

On his small tablet, Parramore captured images of early West Texas life through his own eyes - sketching what he knew to preserve it for another generation.

Polly Mays and Flynn Long are not gourmet chefs.

But the Big Spring residents have played the part at the made borscht, the Russian soup using beets.

But Mays admits she doesn't go to great lengths to get these exotic recipes. Her first year, she found the Chinese soup recipe in Good Housekeeping cookbook and gave it an interesting name.

"It's very easy to cook something (for the food festival)," Mays said. "If you've traveled, you might have found unusual foods you want to share. That's what I've tried to do. But you can find these recipes very easily." Flynn Long created a truly exotic dish for last year's event - oatmeal.

"I was in Scotland, and got up for breakfast," he explained. "They asked me, 'Would you like some porridge?' Well, I had heard about porridge all my life, so of course I wanted to try it."

Porridge, he discovered, is oatmeal.

Long served tiny bowls of the familiar hot cereal with a choice of cream, honey, raw sugar and butter. He put out signs with the Gaelic name for oatmeal and surprised more than a few tasters.

"It was a lot of fun," Long said. "A lot of people who've traveled have learned to eat things that in those places were not really strange, but seemed strange to other people."

Long suggested to other cooks that they might look at their own family food traditions for inspiration.

"What is normal for one family may be exotic to another," he said. "It may be something as ordinary as a soup or salad. What's fun is that people don't know what it is and have to taste it."

Chefs for this year's festival need to register by April 22. Tickets go on sale April 23.

For more information, contact the Heritage Museum, 510 Scurry, 267-8255. Hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Yale doctors bring updated medical techniques to Russia

By THOMAS R. VIOLANTE
Thomson News Service

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Two Yale heart doctors who recently returned from a trip to St. Petersburg, Russia, said their visit was an eye-opener.

Dr. Michael Cleman, director of the cardiac catheterization lab at Yale-New Haven Hospital and professor of medicine at Yale University School of Medicine, said the trip was sponsored by AmeriCares to tie in medical education with the delivery of that group's emergency supplies.

Cleman, along with Dr. Gary Kopf, chief of pediatric cardiac surgery and professor of cardiothoracic surgery at Yale, spent March 3 through 13 at the Cardiology and Cardiac Surgical Institute of St. Petersburg working alongside their Russian counterparts on cardiac patients.

Cleman, who noted the climate in St. Petersburg was equivalent to that of New Haven's, said the medical system in Russia is rudimentary, a remnant of the former Soviet system.

"Their system is the extreme of socialized medicine," said Cleman. "They have no hard currency, no dollars. While we were there, the Russian ruble devalued 10 percent in 10 days. So it's very difficult, if not impossible, to buy equipment like catheters, X-ray equipment, or surgical instruments." Kopf, who showed doctors new techniques in heart surgery, said their system is at least 20 years behind the U.S.

Russian doctors can't afford to attend medical meetings and exchange ideas with other European doctors. "They can hardly afford to have medical journals, that's how tight the money is there," Kopf added.

"I demonstrated modern techniques in terms of coronary bypass surgery and for congenital heart disease," said Kopf, who noted the Russians were just starting such procedures. He said bypass surgery is not routine as it is in the U.S. Instead, patients are treated with medication.

Cuddle up to a reptile

By DAVE DORR
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

On a Sunday that dawned so soft and quiet you could hear a reptile blink, Dave Edington arose at 6:30 and swung into action.

Scurrying from room to room in his home, he turned on the lights in terrariums, took a head count of his 67 iguanas and bearded dragons — a lizard from the deserts of Australia — and began preparing their breakfast of crickets, kale and mustard greens.

Edington, 57, discovered lizards when he retired in 1992 from Chrysler Motors, largely for health reasons. Now, lizards have become the primary focus of his life, his soulmates.

He's charmed by them. They've gone straight to his heart. In return, he gives them his unbridled passion. Some days, he'll spend as much as 10 hours with them. If one becomes ill, he paces the floor until it is healed.

Says Edington, who never married, "They're like my little kids. It's easy to love them because they give back so much love. I'll set up a video camera in front of one of their cages and let it run all day. It's amazing the things they can do. I've fallen asleep on the couch with a few of them on my chest. When I've awakened two hours later, they're still there."

"They love body heat. They love to be handled. They pay attention to what's going on around them. I've got one I put on my shoulder and keep him up there for hours because he likes to see what's happening."

Reptiles are cold-blooded, but in Edington's eyes they are not cold-hearted. Although he has too many lizards to name, a special few have been singled out.

One of these he spotted at the St. Louis Lizard Co. with an imperfection resembling clubfoot. "I bought her out of pity," he says. "I felt sorry for her."

Nobody would buy her. I call her 'Clubfoot.' I've got another I call 'Trouble' because she's the first one at the food dish, always jumps in and throws the greens out."

The death of one of Edington's bearded dragons prompted Dr. Dan Wentz, Edington's veterinarian, to send Edington a sympathy card.

Wentz's practice at Ferguson Animal Hospital has evolved into a place where a third of his time is devoted to the care of reptiles. He's become known as the St. Louis area's "doctor to the lizards."

Edington is a changed man since immersing himself in his pets and developing a degree of trust in them.

"I used to be deathly afraid of them," he said. "I wouldn't touch a snake. Reptiles get a bum rap. I guess it's because the fear people have of them."

It wasn't so long ago that enthusiasts of reptiles and amphibians were seen as eccentrics. That's not as true anymore.

For many, reptiles provoke a powerfully positive response, which is apparent in the hobby's growing popularity.

"Among my clients are bankers, lawyers, physicians and girls and boys of all ages," says Wentz, the lizard doctor. "When I started treating reptiles four years ago, there was one store in the area that sold reptiles in volume. Now I take care of 10 pet stores and a wholesaler."

Edington will add 20 hatchlings of bearded dragons to his brood this month. He puts his total investment of lizards and equipment at $8,000. His weekly food expenses: $90 for 6,000 crickets and $14 for 15 pounds of greens.

The one complaint he has of his hobby is the chirping of crickets in his house, at times sounding like a hot August evening in the back yard.

"They're loud," he says.

I-35 corridor from Mexico receives boost

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Recently La Entrada al Pacifico received a major boost as officials of the Interstate 35 Corridor Coalition endorsed the proposal to link the Pacific coast of Mexico with the Metroplex.

The proposed route would run from Topolobampo on the west coast of Mexico through Chihuahua City, Ojinaga, presidio, Fort Stockton, Midland/Odessa, Big Spring, Abilene, Fort Worth, and Dallas. Part of the proposed route would feed traffic north from Midland/Odessa into Interstate 27, while the eastern end would connect with I-35.

Midland/Odessa Transportation Alliance (Motran) Chairman Charles Perry said, "The connection with I-35 is critical because I.H. 35 is a centrally-located U.S. Interstate linking the three NAFTA partners - Canada, the U.S., and Mexico. I-35 is already a major carrier of international trade from eastern Mexico.

"The linkage to Western Mexico via La Entrada al Pacifico opens another multi-billion dollar trade channel through important cities in Texas on up through the heart of the mid-west of the U.S."

In late March, Denton County Judge and I.H. 35 Corridor Coalition chairman Jeff Moseley and Webb County Judge and vice chairman Mercurio Martinez, signed a resolution endorsing Motran's proposal.

The I.H. 35 Corridor Coalition is working with the U.S. Congress to secure a "NAFTA Superhighway" designation under federal legislation, with a stretch from Laredo to Kansas City serving as the trunk of an international corridor system.

I.H. 35 Corridor Coalition consultant David A. Dean said, "About $6 billion in annual trade already flows into and out of Chihuahua and other western Mexican states, and this is expected to grow $20 billion by the year 2000.

"Much of that trade currently bypasses the I.H. 35 corridor because of inadequate surface transportation linkages between western Mexican states and the primary centers of commerce along I.H. 35. We feel the economic vitality of the I.H. 35 corridor would be served by this innovative new western linkage - La Entrada al Pacifico."

Unemployment fell in February

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The unemployment rate for the Odessa/Midland Metropolitan Statistical Area, which includes the Big Spring area, fell 0.6 percent from January to February going from 6.6 percent to 6.0 percent, despite the civilian labor force remaining unchanged over the month.

According to the Texas Employment Commission, total employment (which consists of resident wage and salary workers, self-employed persons, unpaid family workers, domestics in private households, and agricultural workers) rose by 700 people, while total unemployment fell by the same number. The decreased mirrors a fall in statewide numbers as well.

Local TEC representative Vicki Dittmore said most of the decrease in unemployment came as employment appears to be in better shape to absorb what is usually another seasonal month, when the unemployment rate usually increased.

The Odessa/Midland MSA continues to exhibit strength in both the trade and service sectors, which does not seem to be slowing, though most of the over-the-month gain in employment was in the government sector, a result of increased employment in public education.

Dittmore added there has also been a reduction in the number of claims being filed in local offices, which is having an impact on the unemployment rate in the area.

Locally, the civilian labor force in Howard County increased by 10 going from 13,737 to 13,747 and total employment increased by 52 people for the month of February to 13,122.

The county's unemployment rate for the month was 4.5 percent, a decrease of 0.3 from January's 4.8 percent unemployment rate.

The city of Big Spring and Martin County also saw decreases in their unemployment rates for the month of February.

Big Spring's civilian labor force increased from 9,454 to 9,458 and total employment increased by 29 people to 8,978. The city's unemployment rate was at 5.1 percent, a decrease from January's 5.3 percent.

Martin County's civilian labor force for February stood at 1,968 and its total employment was 1,894. The county's unemployment rate was 3.8 percent, down from January's 4.0 percent unemployment rate.

Oklahoma author and historian Michael Wallis points inside Weber's Superior Root Beer Stand in Tulsa, Okla., Thursday to make his point that the first hamburger served on a bun was in Tulsa 104 years ago. Harold Bilby, owner, stands next to Wallis. Previous claims to the first hamburger have come from Athens, Texas, Seymour, Wis., and Hamburg, N.Y.

Forget the beef!

The real question: Who was first with the bun?

By DOUG FERGUSON
Associated Press Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Small towns in New York, Wisconsin and Texas claim they had the beef, but Grandma Fanny had the bun. Does that make Tulsa home of the first hamburger served in the United States?

Gov. Frank Keating said as much in a proclamation Thursday calling Tulsa the "real" birthplace of the hamburger.

Author and historian Michael Wallis, who discovered the startling revelation doing research on Oklahoma hamburger joints, says a bun is as important to the burger as the tortilla is to the taco.

Those who claim the first hamburger was made 110 years ago in their small towns say it's much a-moo about nothing.

"If you're frying that hamburger on a grill and all you have left is a loaf of bread, you don't hesitate to put that fatty piece of meat between the bread," said Pat Krulow, the "burgermeister" of Seymour, Wis. "And you still call it a hamburger."

The ongoing debate took on a new look when Wallis, author of "Route 66: The Mother Road," learned that hamburgers first cooked in Seymour, Hamburg, N.Y., and Athens, Texas, were slipped between white bread.

"They probably turned out a very good burger, but it isn't the hamburger we know," Wallis said. "Where's the bun?"

He contends the credit for the first hamburger should go to Oscar Weber Bilby, who served burgers at a Fourth of July cookout in 1891 at the family farm just west of Tulsa. His wife, Fanny, made sourdough buns.

Harold Bilby said "Grandma Fanny" had a special recipe for sourdough buns on which the burgers were served. The recipe was never written down, and the family used conventional buns when it opened the hamburger stand in 1933.

Glimmers of theme park in tilled plot of farmland

CLARENDON, Texas (AP) — An odd patchwork of partners looks at a tilled plot of farmland north of this town and envisions a multimillion-dollar theme park.

They call it Thunder Junction.

The proposed Western-heritage entertainment complex would cover 67 acres with water slides, rides by train and canoe, musical shows and a hotel built from rail cars.

Nothing about Thunder Junction looks typical.

Its backing and ownership come from a private British investment group. Its beneficiaries include a non-profit senior citizens' organization.

Del Real Joins ERA Reeder Realtors

ERA Reeder Realtors welcomes a new associate, Rebecca Bird Del Real. Del Real, a resident of Colorado City, will consecrate her activities in the Colorado City area as well as the Big Spring area.

Del Real was reared in Westbrook and graduated from Westbrook High School. She attended Howard College and Midwestern University in Wichita Falls where she was active in real estate for three years. When she returned to Colorado City, she received her Cosmetology license and worked in that field for 14 years.

She and her husband, John, have seven children and three grandchildren. The Del Real's are avid gardeners and enjoy traveling.

"I've always been active, whether it has been related to church or family, but the one thing I have wanted to do for many years is to sell real estate again," she said. "After I made the decision to return to real estate I interviewed with several companies and selected ERA Reeder Realtors because of the excellent training program, the national and international affiliations. I like the close knit feeling being at ERA; everyone is so supportive; it's like having a second family."

H-E-B adds gas service at some stores

WACO, Texas (AP) — The H-E-B grocery chain is trying its hand at a new product: gasoline.

Waco is one of eight cities where shoppers now can fill up their tank and shopping cart with one stop.

Since February, an H-E-B near here has been home to an eight-pump gasoline island that sells three grades of unleaded.

"Like buying groceries, you have to fill up your car every couple of weeks. It's just another convenience we can offer our customers," H-E-B spokeswoman Kristy Ozmun told the Waco Tribune-Herald in Wednesday's editions. "We've really had an enthusiastic response."

RIG COUNT

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide grew by seven this week to 676, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday.

A year ago, the number of rigs running was 720.

Of the rigs running this week, 340 were exploring for natural gas, 325 for oil and 11 were listed as miscellaneous.

The rig count represents the number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas. Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas accounted for the bulk of the increase with four. New Mexico gained two and North Dakota added one.

like it or not," said Bar H Dude Ranch owner Frank Hommel, a member of the Westwood GMW Ltd. board. "Get ready for the tourists or get out of the way."
Westwood held a groundbreaking ceremony last month to kick off the project stalled for years by lack of financing. Organizers hope to open the $24.3 million park's first phase by Memorial Day.
"It's a tight deadline," conceded Stan McClendon of Wellington, a vice president of Thunder Junction Inc., the for-profit group formed to develop funding.
The three parties involved — Westwood, Thunder Junction Inc. and Yesterday's Children — won't reveal their intended division of profits.
But Westwood head David Williams has said Yesterday's Children will receive at least $25,000 a year.
"You just don't come up with a concept and then immediately go up with it unless you're somebody with a zillion dollars in your pocket," said Pat Kaiser, president of the Amarillo group that conceived Thunder Junction in 1988 as a way to help senior citizens. "I mean, we were doing this with volunteers."

By Ms. Kaiser's estimate, Yesterday's Children already has spent $150,000 — including state and federal grants — to get the project going.
She said her group would award its share of profits to activities like Meals on Wheels and elderly day-care across the Texas Panhandle.
The city of Clarendon in 1992 spent $17,000 on a feasibility study that concluded the park could open by 1994 and attract 195,000 people annually. Backers counted on crowds from nearby Greenbelt Lake, along with traffic off U.S. 287.
Discussion of Thunder Junction surfaced again during a town hall meeting this week.
"People that I visit with are very optimistic, hoping that it does go over and go over well," said Johnny Floyd of Floyd's Automotive Supply & Muffler Shop. "We're backing it 100 percent ... (but) there are people who are skeptical."
Ms. Kaiser said she worries that the park is getting a late start for the 1995 summer season.

Investors hoped to open in the next month or two with water slides, a go-cart track and miniature golf course. Admission: about $6.
They aim to capitalize on the region's historic "thunder" of buffalo, cavalry, steam engines and old derricks. Plans call for a rodeo arena and old-timey village for crafts.
Besides, investors said, family entertainment options are limited for people in Amarillo, Pampa and Childress.
"Right now there are busloads leaving the Panhandle and going to Oklahoma City or Dallas just to go to a water park. Busloads," Ms. Kaiser said. "If we can get them to go to Clarendon, that's money that stays in the Panhandle."
Hommel said he thinks tourists will come to see the wide-open prairies they imagine as Texas.
"The Panhandle is a great place," the Clarendon native said. "People who live here don't realize what we have."

CEO of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, said, "The endorsement of the I.H. 35 Corridor Coalition has strengthened our position. On March 30 Motran presented La Entrada al Pacifico to Texas Department of Transportation commissioners. The I.H. 35 Corridor Coalition endorsement was part of the presentation. We feel we received favorable comments and the commissioners instructed TxDOT staff to prepare, for the next monthly meeting, a resolution endorsing the La Entrada concept for consideration by the commissioners.

Wynn added among other important proposals brought by Motran to TxDOT was a request to include two West Texas roadways on the National Highway System - State Highway 349 north of Midland and U.S. 385 south of Odessa.
He said, "This designation will be crucial in obtaining funding for further improvements, such as four-lane construction."

Also according to Wynn a bill has been introduced in the U.S. Congress to designate the NHS nationwide.
"Now is the window of opportunity to obtain this designation," Wynn said.
He added while completion of any future construction on either side of the Pacific trade corridor or state highway improvements are years and decades down the road, getting the planning started now is of the utmost importance.

Validation comes to all livestock

The annual Spring meeting of the Howard County Junior Livestock Show Association met last Monday evening in the District Courtroom of the Courthouse here in Big Spring to plan the 1996 Junior Livestock Show. It was a very productive meeting with several changes made that will go into effect for the 1996 show.
Perhaps the biggest change will be the fact that all livestock will be validated in 1995 for eligibility to be shown at the 1996 show.

Don Richardson
County Agent

toed with special numbers in their ears that are recorded on the registration certificates.
Validation procedures for steers consists of ear-tagging each animal with a special state issued ear tag, photographing the steer showing the ear tag in place and nose printed. The nose print, photograph and ear tag number, as well as the owner's name and other information is recorded and/or attached to a special state-issued validation form, which is then sent to the district or state supervisor of each extension or FFA District.
These forms are then sent by county or chapter group to a state office in College Station (in the case of 4H entries) or Austin (for FFA entries) where they are filed alphabetically by county or chapter and by name of exhibitor.
These files are then all sent to each major livestock show in Texas prior to the date of the show and the top two placing steers in each class are nose-printed by show officials and validations forms with accompanying photographs are examined to determine if that animal is the same animal so recorded and validated. The county validation date for steers this year will be Monday, June 26, 8 a.m., at the Big Spring Livestock Auction.

schedule for the show will be as follows: Wednesday, January 17, 3 p.m. arrival of swine at the show, followed by the weighing and classifying of swine at 6 p.m. Thursday, January 18, arrival of lambs and steers; weighing and classifying of lambs and steers 3 to 6 p.m.; Friday, January 19, arrival of and weighing and sifting of Capons. 10 a.m., judging of Capons. Noon, judging of lambs; Saturday, January 20, 7 a.m. judging of cattle, beginning with heifers; Noon Buyers' Bar-B-Que followed by the Awards Program and Premium Auction.
Judges from the 1995 show will be invited to return for the 1996 event. Chris Koontz from Lubbock will be judging Capons, Jeff Howard from Sweetwater will judge lambs, and Jamie Osbourne of Llano will judge swine and Dirk Aaron from San Antonio will judge cattle.
Some other minor changes will be implemented in the 1996 show, but due to space limitations in this column, more information on the 1996 show will follow at later dates.

Validation has been a state imposed program for all steer projects since the mid-seventies, so it is really nothing new. Many counties, including Howard County, has had a local lamb validation in effect for at least the past 10-12 years.
This year, lambs will be required to participate in the state imposed validation program. Swine projects will no doubt be participating in a state validation program by 1996, but in the meantime, we were made aware of the fact by Ms. Chandra Scott, agricultural science teacher from Sands High School in Ackerly, that Howard County would be among most of the counties in the South Plains region of Texas selected for a pilot program for swine validation this year.

Lambs will be validated with special state issued ear tags and nose printed on Monday, Oct. 30, 1995, beginning at 3 p.m. at the county fairgrounds. All lambs that are even being CONSIDERED for showing at ANY show in Texas in 1996 must be validated on that date in Howard County. The forms and nose prints will be handled similarly as described above in the discussion on steer validation.
All swine will be validated at the county fairgrounds on Nov. 30, 1995, beginning at 3 p.m. Barrows will have the official Texas validation ear tag placed in their ears and ear notches and distinguishing markings will be recorded on state issued forms.
Because gilts are not eligible to be show at major shows in Texas, but are so in the Howard County show, they will have special local tags placed in their ears. Similar forms as described for barrows will be completed for gilts. All swine MUST be validated on this date to be eligible to be shown in 1996.
Some changes in the schedule of the 1996 show was made at this meeting. The adopted new

Refusal to consider 'phantom taxes' defeats bill; considered a blow to utility companies

DALLAS (AP) — A Senate committee has narrowly rejected legislation that could save utilities in Texas billions of dollars, a move considered a defeat for big power companies. The surprise 6-5 vote by the Senate State Affairs Committee was celebrated as a victory by consumer groups, the Houston Chronicle and The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday. The committee refused language that would have let electric companies keep certain big-tax savings, or so-called "phantom taxes," instead of passing the savings on to customers. The electric companies, led by Dallas-based Texas Utilities Co. and Houston Lighting & Power Co., said they will continue to fight to include the provision in an electric-utility bill pending before the Legislature. In total, lobbyists said, the savings would likely be worth at least several billion dollars over time to the electric companies — or as much as $200 million a year. "We're very pleased," said public utility counsel Walter Washington, who represents utility customers in rate cases. "This is obviously a key issue for ratepayers."

"We'll stand by our claim that 'Hamburger Charlie' developed the hamburger first," said Krulow, who helps organize the festival.

Webster's dictionary defines a hamburger as "ground beef," and secondly as "a fried, broiled or baked patty of such meat, often eaten as a sandwich in a round bun."

The American Culinary Federation, an organization of chefs and cooks in St. Augustine, Fla., has produced a handbook on hamburgers, but it talks about preparation and cooking — nothing about a bun.

"My assumption is a hamburger is basically ground meat," said Tim Murray, director of apprenticeship. "But if I ordered one in a restaurant, I would expect it to be on a bun."

And what if it were served on white bread instead of a bun? "In cafeteria-style restaurants, that would be called a ground sirloin patty," Murray said.

"It's a matter of interpretation," said Larry Beeman, president of the Athens Chamber of Commerce. "We're not going to

Husband's Russian is all Greek to wife

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Yuri," came here from Russia six years ago. We have been married for five years. Yuri speaks excellent English. He has mentioned several times that it would be a good idea for me to learn Russian, but with two small children under 4, learning Russian has not been a high priority for me.

Abigail Van Buren Columnist

The problem is that Yuri has many Russian friends, mostly professional people who speak English very well. But when they come to visit, they speak in Russian, and I am left out.

Last Sunday, "Natasha" came over. I served cookies and coffee and tried to be a good hostess. She directed all her conversation to Yuri. When I asked her about her children and her job, she gave me brief answers in English, then turned to Yuri and continued speaking to him in Russian.

I realize she's Yuri's friend. I'm not jealous of her, nor do I suspect they are having an affair. I just think it's very rude of her to ignore me when she's here.

Abby, it's not only Natasha. It has gotten to the point that when his Russian friends come over, I go to our bedroom and watch TV by myself.

It's the same when we go to Natasha's house — or Sergei's or Ilona's. Their husbands and wives all speak Russian, and I'm left to play with the children. When I tell Yuri how I feel, he says it is much easier for them to express themselves in Russian than in English.

I have decided to learn more Russian, but what do I do in the meantime? Should I insist they speak in English so I can understand them — or what? — FED UP IN CANADA

DEAR FED UP: Ask Yuri to compromise; suggest that he ask his friends to speak English part of the time they spend with you, while you learn their language.

A crash course in Russian would be a good beginning in overcoming the language barrier. Also, ask Yuri to teach you a few phrases every day. You'll be amazed at how quickly you can join in their conversations.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you wrote that the only man who beat Jack Dempsey was Gene Tunney.

Sorry. Jack Dempsey was beaten by Jim Flynn and Willy Meehan.

The late Paul Gallico, a long-time sportswriter, wrote a piece for Esquire magazine titled "The Gentle Warriors." In it, he contended that the gentlest athletes were boxers — and the least gentle were golfers and tennis players. —WOODY WILLITS, CAMAS, WASH.

DEAR WOODY: I don't know how Paul Gallico defined "gentle," but when two prizefighters get into a ring and try to knock each other senseless, I cannot imagine anything less gentle.

DEAR ABBY: This is a message to all the charities to which I contribute — make that "used to contribute." I must stretch a limited budget to include the many causes I sincerely want to help, so please stop sending me personalized labels to last me the rest of my life if I live to be 150.

Please don't send me any pens, pencils, key rings or greeting cards for Christmas, Easter, Mother's Day, Father's Day, congratulations on your graduation, or sorry-about-the-death-of-your-canary, etc. (I think you get the idea.)

Also, after you've received my contribution, please do not follow it up a month later with a plea for another $10 or $20.

Abby, if you need a signature, my name is ... LEGION

DEAR LEGION: Hear, hear! Charities would be amazed by the number of contributions they don't get because of their irritating methods of raising funds.

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. BUSINESS BRIEFS

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government today approved a plan to combat the crippling effects of the plunging U.S. dollar on its economy, including efforts to stimulate spending and reduce the country's huge trade surplus.

In tandem with the plan, Japan's central bank lowered its official discount rate by 0.75 percentage point to a record low of 1 percent to help companies hurt by the weak dollar and make the yen less attractive to investors.

The plan is the boldest attempt yet by the Japanese government to combat the economic malaise caused by the plummeting dollar, which has lost about 20 percent of its value against the yen this year.

DETROIT (AP) — Stock investors backed away from their initial enthusiasm for a bold buyout of Chrysler Corp. by billionaire Kirk Kerkorian and former chairman Lee Iacocca.

Meanwhile Chrysler reported first-quarter earnings of $592 million, down 37 percent from a year earlier.

The company blamed the weakness on slow sales, heavy spending on its new minivans, the impact of Mexico's financial disaster and the costs of replacing liftgate latches on up to 4.5 million minivans.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A modest rebound in retail sales last month following the sharpest drop in more than a year points to slower economic growth, analysts said.

The Commerce Department said Thursday that retail sales rose just 0.2 percent in March after declining a full 1 percent in February. The February figure previously had been reported as a 0.4 percent decrease.

Analysts said they expect the trend toward reduced growth to continue.

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines scrapped its floundering no-frills "Lite" division Thursday and its accompanying "Peanuts" fares.

Market research showed that the promotion of Continental Lite service caused consumers to think wrongly they were going to get nothing more than a bag of nuts on even long-haul flights, officials said.

The airline made the announcements in reporting a $23.4 million loss in the fourth quarter, far higher than preliminarily reported. In January, the airline said it expected a $41.9 million loss.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The IRS' crackdown on fraud, resulting in about 7 million delayed refunds this year, is putting a crimp in the electronic filing program the agency sees as crucial to its future.

firms totaled 10.2 million through April 7, down 19 percent from the same period a year ago, the Internal Revenue Service said Thursday. The IRS had expected a rise of 15 percent.

Tax return preparers blame the sharp drop on the IRS' new effort to prevent bogus refunds from going out the door.

REDMOND, Wash. (AP) — Microsoft Corp. said profit for its third fiscal quarter was $396 million, an 18 percent jump from the comparable figure a year ago.

The performance showed the software maker remains one of the most profitable companies in high technology. Its sales growth, which had slowed, was stronger, the company said Thursday.

A year earlier, Microsoft earned $256 million, when it had $120 million in expenses for a legal settlement with Stac Electronics Inc.

TOKYO (AP) — Matsushita decided to sell most of MCA Inc. because it didn't have the capital or expertise to keep the Hollywood studio operator a leader, the president said.

Yoichi Morishita, president of Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., said Thursday it will use the money from the sale mainly for additional factory investments in North America, including Mexico.

Matsushita, which makes the Panasonic, Technics and Quasar brands, will return to its core business of consumer electronics, Morishita told reporters in Tokyo.

NEW YORK (AP) — The seven regional Bell operating companies said they will sell their stake in Bellcore, the research lab they have jointly owned since the breakup of AT&T in 1984.

The decision had been expected since last week and occurred with a vote late Wednesday. But the companies have not decided precisely how or when divestiture will occur.

While there is a chance that another company could buy the facility, only a few very large companies could likely afford it. More probable is a purchase by a group of companies or the sale of stock that would make Bellcore an independent company.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Post columnist Hobart Rowen, who wrote about business and the nation's economic policies for five decades, has died of prostate cancer. He was 76.

"Bart taught a generation of business journalists here and around the country how to cover economic policy in a more sophisticated way," David Ignatius, the Post's assistant managing editor for business, said Thursday.

In a recent speech, Rowen recalled the days when business reporting was "a true backwater of the news," and said, "Today, things have changed for the better."
