Gary M. Fuqua named city manager

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Gary M. Fuqua has been named to replace former City Manager Lanny Lambert.

Big Spring Mayor Tim Blackshear made the announcement at City Hall Saturday night. Fuqua is the director of Streets, Sanitation, and Parks for the city.

It took almost five months to find a replacement for Lambert, who left in December to become Abilene's CM.

But after narrowing a list of 62 candidates from around the country down to seven finalists, the city of Big Spring now has a city manager.

City officials conducted their final interview of the seven finalists for the position Friday night and according to Personnel Director Emma Bogard the process was basically the same as when officials hired Lambert in 1992.

Bogard said, "We used the same style in selecting a city manager as we did with our former city manager. This time we did invite the spouses to come with the candidates."

"We got to spend a full day with each applicant and I think we had some excellent choices."

Blackshear said Fuqua, who will assume his new position Monday morning, brings with him experience from within the city's own system.

"We feel like he will move into the position very easy," Blackshear said, "and our City Council will be 100 percent behind him."

Fuqua has been with the city of Big Spring for almost 20 years, starting in the city's garage and working his way up including positions as supervisor of the city's Service Center, Solid Waste Systems manager, supervisor of Municipal Services, and his current position since October 1994.

Fuqua is 38-years-old and a graduate of Big Spring High School and Howard College. He attended the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa and received his MBA while working for the city of Big Spring.

Blackshear said, "We have a unique situation in that Gary came up through the ranks of our system and this is the second major position the city has filled from within."

Blackshear was referring to Police Chief Jerry Edwards, who was also promoted from within the department.

Health Fair takes community's pulse May 13

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Approximately 44 businesses will participate in Big Spring's 10th annual Health Fair May 13 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The fair actually begins May 11 with a 5 p.m. ribbon cutting ceremony and reception for the corporate sponsors of the fair.

Beth Boone, director of Social Services for Stanton Care Center is serving as fair coordinator for the third straight year.

Boone said, "I have an outstanding committee (about 15 people) that has been working on the fair since last fall."

In the past the fair has been at Big Spring Mall where it was very successful, but Boone said the move to the coliseum was just a matter of the fair continuing to grow and needing more space.

Several topics will be discussed during several speeches at the fair, including rabies in human and who benefits from rehabilitation.

Demonstrations at the fair include step aerobics, jazzercise, line dancing.

Boone added, "We've had a lot of requests for different types of screenings such as diabetes, cholesterol and blood pressure."

She said the exhibitors at the fair generally decide what screenings they will do and several people are still calling her who want to have an exhibit in the fair.

"One of the greatest effects of the fair," Boone said, "is that it allows us to look at our personal health, which is not always an opportunity we take advantage of."

A truck navigates through the heavy runoff water at Parkway and Alamesa Friday afternoon after over four inches of rain fell in the Big Spring area. Hail and heavy rains struck in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, killing at least 15 people and injuring 102.

15 killed as storm pelts Dallas

FORT WORTH (AP) — One day after a storm packing 70 mph winds fired softball-sized hail at Mayfest celebrators, then swept motorists away in flash floods in Dallas, the death toll rose to at least 15 Saturday.

Rescuers were searching for at least three people known missing after a storm pummeled North Texas on Friday night, injuring about 100.

By Saturday, 102 people were treated for mostly minor injuries ranging from cuts caused by broken glass to bruises from hailstones after the storm hit the outdoor Mayfest, Harris Methodist Fort Worth hospital nursing supervisor Marie Chilton said.

"I got hit so hard I thought I was going to pass out, and I'm not a fainting type-person," said Kay Carlson, one of about 2,500 people at the festival when the hail grew from pea-size to softball-size. "We saw car windows being smashed everywhere."

Within an hour, the storm that buried some roads in up to two feet of hailstones was racing on to Dallas, 30 miles away.

At Baylor University Medical Center, patients were rushed to another floor when flood water poured into the emergency room, ruining electrical circuits and contaminating emergency equipment, spokeswoman Jennifer Coleman said.

At the Haggard Pants Service

Center warehouse, at least two workers were killed and 12 were injured when the roof collapsed, Dallas Deputy Fire Chief Steve Bass said.

Company officials identified the dead workers as Bessie Espinoza of Dallas and Lynnic W. Henry of Garland. Their ages and job titles were not immediately available.

"I thought the devil himself had just broke through," janitor Jimmy Harris said.

Eleven people drowned in the storms, some apparently trying to escape flooded vehicles, and another two apparently killed in lightning strikes, one in Dallas

Campbell defeats Beil; turnout extremely low

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

In a close race, and a race both candidates said was run very clean, challenger Jimmy Campbell defeated incumbent Charles Beil to become the new City Councilman for Big Spring's District 5.

Only 574 of 10,813 eligible voters cast ballots in Saturday's election, 5.31 percent, as voters were voting for Mayor Tim Blackshear, who was re-elected running unopposed and the race between Beil and Campbell for the District 5 City Council seat.

Early voting results showed Blackshear with 169 votes and in the race for the District 5 council seat, early voting totals showed challenger Jimmy Campbell leading incumbent Charles Beil by a count of 54 votes to 52 votes.

The final tally was almost as close as Campbell was victorious by a count of 166 votes to 147 votes.

Councilman Beil was quick to offer congratulations to Campbell.

Beil said, "Mr. Campbell ran an effective campaign, but I'm disappointed that I won't get to help continue the progress the council has made in the last

Uncontested BSISD board incumbents re-elected

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

All four incumbents for the Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees were re-elected Saturday. Glynna Mouton, Al Valdes and Dan Wise received the most votes beating out Gregg McAteer and Linda Perez for the at-large positions. Irene Bustamante ran unopposed and received a total of 45 votes.

Wise received 538 votes, Mouton, 519; Valdes, 404; McAteer, 274 and Perez, 244.

Valdes commented, "The voters have tremendous confidence three years. "This is a very critical time for city government with new leadership and with budgetary matters."

As for the low voter turnout, Beil said it's unfortunate that there is so much apathy in the city.

He added, "I was in a win-win situation. Had I won, I would have been able to continue my contribution to the city, but now I can carry on with my personal life."

Campbell, who was also celebrating his 35th birthday Saturday, said, "This is icing on the cake and I'm glad it's over, but I think the big news of the day was Gary Fuqua being named City Manager."

He added he thinks the city can be fiscally responsible and still be able to provide services to the city.

"I want the citizens of Big Spring to be proud of the decisions made by the city council."

As for the campaign, Campbell said, "We spent a lot of hours walking the street and making phone calls asking people what they wanted. I was pleased with the turnout because the people who had something to say went to the polls. I respect Mr. Beil and all in us. We really appreciate it. We try to do the best we can for the boys and girls.

"I sure do appreciate the voters. They are satisfied with me after being on the board for 19 years and I appreciate it. I think Big Spring has a great administration and tremendous teaching staff as well."

None of the other candidates were available for comment Saturday night.

Mouton has served on the board since June 1991. Wise has given 12 years of service, Valdes has been a trustee for 19 years while Bustamante since September 1994.

Public hearing on I-27 project cancelled

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Due to a lack of participation from HDR Engineering and state officials, Big Spring's Interstate 27 Task Force has decided to cancel a public meeting scheduled for May 24 at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

At Friday's meeting of the task force, members discussed areas that needed to be addressed in order to keep Big Spring in the running as the state continues to decide if there will be an I-27 or alternate routes through West Texas.

Big Spring officials are concerned that HDR Engineering and other state officials have paid far more attention to the Midland/Odessa group "Motran" than they have other groups in the local area interested in the I-27 Project.

The task force believes the proposed route being presented by Midland/Odessa is a fantasy because the route would basically include running a highway through a major canyon, which by some estimates is larger than the Grand Canyon in Arizona.

Despite a difficult road where

Manager

Blackshear agreed with Bogard and said the city had several qualified applicants for the position, and added that Fuqua being local and familiar with the city and its operations should make for a very smooth transition.

Fuqua will receive a salary of $57,500, which will be reviewed after an adjustment period of about six months.

Other finalists for the city's manager's position included West University Place, Texas City Manager Mike Tanner; Paul Nutting, League City, Texas; Borger, Texas private businessman Jim Murry; El Reno, Oklahoma City Manager Lawrence Palmer; Schurtz, Texas City Manager Kerry Sweatt; and Littlefield, Texas City Manager Marty Mangum.

One of the first priorities of the city is and will continue to be the Comprehensive Master Plan for Big Spring, according to Blackshear who added Fuqua has been very active in helping promote the plan.

Cancelled

The project is concerned, local officials still believe that the "Gateway to Reality" runs through San Angelo and Big Spring and would better serve Texas.

Big Spring supports the San Angelo plan because it would utilize U.S. 87 as an alternate route, and because both San Angelo and Big Spring officials believe the Motran plan just isn't feasible.

According to Transportation Committee Chairman Jim Bill Little, traffic will continue to flow from Topolobampo, Mexico through El Paso because there is immediate access to three interstates and northern traffic (heading through the plains states) will have access to I-25.

Moore Development For Big Spring Inc., Executive Director Carole Taylor believes the San Angelo/Big Spring group must neutralize the Motran plan and keep elected officials out of the process, including the governor's office.

One idea presented at Friday's meeting is to hire a person to concentrate on issues like the I-27 project and other areas that would benefit the city.

Task force member Jim Weaver, quoting Walt Disney, said, "Facts are negotiable, perceptions are not." He added, "We have to decide how we want to go. I don't think we'll see I-27 come about for a long time, but the designation is critical for the businesses that would locate near the highway."

In order to make its voice heard, the Big Spring task force is in favor of utilizing State Rep. David Counts, Sen. John Montford, and other officials to see that the smaller towns and cities are given equal opportunities for projects like I-27.

Taylor said, "We really are at a crossroads because of U.S. 87 and economically, we have not been going after things that would be tremendous assets to our community."

Howard College President Dr. Cheri Sparks added, "We need to be driven and get the community to see the importance of the I-27 Project."

The boldest idea to come out of Friday's meeting, with the support of the entire task force, was presented by Taylor. That idea, which would have to be approved by the board of directors of Moore Development, calls for Moore Development to shut down many of its current projects and concentrate on the I-27 project for a couple of months.

The purpose is to give Big Spring a voice and an opportunity to share the benefits of having a route run through Big Spring.

AREA SCHOOL ELECTIONS Metcalf wins spot on Coahoma board

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

There will be two new members on the Coahoma Independent School District Board of Trustees Monday evening.

Incumbent Jimmy Sterling lost a chance to serve again when John Wayne Metcalf and Hubert Rowden received the majority of the votes for the two open positions on the board.

Metcalf received the most with 204 votes, Rowden received 179 and Sterling had 165. Other candidates included Larry Cordes, 34 votes; Tim Greenfield, 78 votes; Rodney Paige, 83 votes and Troy Kerby received 21 votes.

"I appreciate everyone who voted for me and for their confidence in me. I plan on keeping an open mind and I know I can't change things over night. I do plan on taking the bull by the horns."

"I'm not saying I am going right in and make a lot of changes but I do plan on researching things and doing the best I can," commented Metcalf Saturday evening.

Rowden said, "I'm happy the voters think enough of me to put me on the board. I'll do my best to make the best decisions for the Coahoma school district."

On Monday at 7 p.m., there will be a special meeting for CISD to canvas the votes, swear in the new members and reorganize the board.

Incumbents Cynthia Breyman and Debbie Burt were re-elected to the Forsan Independent School District Board of Trustees. Breyman received 63 votes, Burt received 57 and first time candidate Mike Eggleston received 46 votes.

Both incumbents and one newcomer were elected to the Glasscock Independent School District Board of Trustees. Incumbents Glenda Blalock and Ernie Schwartz along with Jimmy Eggemeyer will serve on the board. Blalock received 81 votes, Schwartz had 88 and Eggemeyer 76. The fourth candidate, Douglas Plagens, received 74.

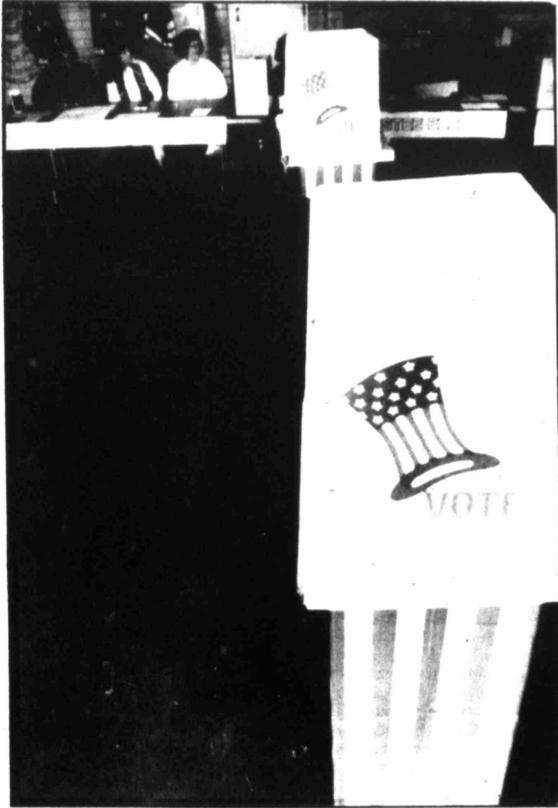

In Lenorah, incumbent Victory Hewtty, who was unopposed, was re-elected with seven votes for district one in the Grady Independent School District.

Jimmy Mitchell is the new district two board member with 17 votes and his opponent, Bryan Cox, received 11. Roy Madison, unopposed, received 10 votes to represent district seven.

Voter turnout was low in Stanton with only four people voting in the district five race for school board. All the votes were absentee to elect Terry Shanks. In district one, Johnny Gonzales beat Louis Gonzales by a vote of 18 to two.

In Colorado City, the two candidates for school board were incumbents and unopposed. Diana Garza received 17 votes to represent place three and Roxie Strain received 19 to be re-elected to place seven on the board.

Results were not available from Sands and Borden County school districts at presstime.

Election officials at the Northside Fire Station chat with each other as the voting booths were empty during Saturday's election. After eight hours, only 13 people had voted at the precinct. Turnout was 5.31 percent.

that he's done for the city and now I'm looking forward to working with the council."

Blackshear who was re-elected with 485 votes said one possible solution to low voter turnout in the city would be to look at combining several polling places, which would make it easier for people to get out and cast their ballots.

According to Blackshear, during his second term, he would like to see the Master Plan continue to progress as well as several of the projects the city currently has underway. He also added when he filed for re-election that he would like to see a great cooperation between city and county governments.

and one in Irving, authorities said.

Five of the drowning victims were from one family. The latest victim found was 2-year-old Jade Frazier. Searchers Saturday night found her body 500 yards downstream from where her family's car was swept from a road.

"People have been driving through high water. A lot try to get out and they got swept away from their cars," Dallas Fire Department spokeswoman Carolyn Garcia said.

On Saturday afternoon, workers were still searching for three people feared swept away, Dallas Emergency Management spokesman Mark Flake said.

Insurance industry spokesman Jerry Johns said the damage, coupled with that from a smaller storm in the Dallas area last weekend, could exceed $500 million. Preliminary estimates for Friday night's damage alone is already between $350 million to $400 million, he said.

Last week's insured storm losses are estimated at $250 million, Johns said.

"Dallas and Fort Worth have become the hail capital of Texas if not the hail capital of the nation," he said. "In the past, we've called them natural disasters and we have begun to call them un-natural disasters because they are happening so frequently and with such intensity."

About 16,800 customers lost power, including an American Airlines terminal at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Forty flights were diverted, most to San Antonio, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, and Houston, spokeswoman Marion Deesisto said.

In Arlington, Six Flags Over Texas was closed for mopping up, and the power was out anyway. The park was expected to reopen Sunday, spokesman Bruce Neal said.

About 600 people attending a Tommy Tune musical and Brooks & Dunn concert at a Dallas park were evacuated Friday night. No injuries were reported, but vehicles in the parking lot were tumbled about by rushing flood water.

In Fort Worth, community workers spent the day getting the Mayfest outdoor festival back in business after the storm.

Festivalgoers suffered injuries ranging from cuts caused by broken glass to bruises from hailstones up to 3 inches in diameter, said fire Lt. Kent Worley.

Encouraged by half-price tickets, an estimated 50,000 people returned Saturday night to the Trinity Park festival site, west of downtown, said spokeswoman Kathy Johnson.

"Every vendor who could possibly get up is up. We are more than 80 percent at capacity," she said.

Mayfest chairwoman Denise Schrader said the decision to continue with the event was supported by numerous calls from volunteers and supporters who offered to help.

Sand sculptor Steve Spencer came to the park to see if his 7-foot castle survived. He'd put in 61 hours building it.

"I'm amazed it's still here," he said. "My tent didn't give way. It suffered a lot of damage, but the hail didn't come through."

AREA COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Voter turnout low for area uncontested races

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Voter turnout was very low in several area cities and towns, but Mayors and City Council members were elected in Big Spring, Coahoma, Forsan, Ackery, Stanton and Colorado City.

In Coahoma, Mayor Bill Read, who was running unopposed, was re-elected with 134 votes and incumbent City Councilman Bruce Allen was re-elected with 124 votes. Allen is joined on the council by Warren Wallace, who was elected with 83 votes.

Randy Overton, Frank Davis, Scott Hayes, and George Herrera.

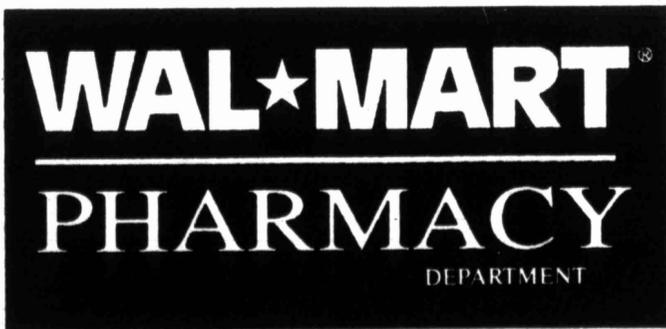

In Forsan three incumbent council members were re-elected running unopposed with Fred Hogan received 30 votes; Mary Gressett, 30 votes; and Clarence Williams, 29 votes.

Colorado City council members were also running unopposed with Mayor Jim Baum being re-elected with 117 votes. Sammy Contreras received 13 votes; Walt Staats 13 votes, and Bob Rely 35 votes, all winning re-election.

At press time results were unavailable from races in Ackery and Stanton.

Olympics take care of seniors

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

Giving seniors a reason to stay fit, pride in competing and winning, and having lots of fun are the reasons behind the Snyder Chamber of Commerce's sponsorship of the First Annual Senior Olympics Athletic Tournament, to be held at Snyder's Towle Park on May 12-13.

Competition for men and women 60 years of age and above begins May 12 with a golf tournament beginning at 4 p.m. at the Western Texas College golf course. Tournament cost, including a golf cart, is $10, plus a $7 greens fee. Events in the golf tourney include individual scores, a closest to the pin competition, and a longest drive contest.

The evening will be highlighted by a get acquainted dance at the National Guard Armory with a popular local band playing older ballads and easy swing music. Competitors will be admitted to the dance free, and the public is invited for $3.

May 13 events include a 100-yard dash, 1/2 mile and one mile runs, and 5K and one mile walks; a tennis tournament; swimming events at the indoor pool at Western Texas College; a softball throwing contest, casting and fishing contests at the Towle Park pond, and horseshoe and croquet tournaments.

Saturday evening will be highlighted by a mixed team exhibition softball game to begin at 6:30 p.m. One of the teams entered consists entirely of players who played together in high school -- all team members are 74 years old, according to Donna Fowler, chamber executive director.

Competitors must be 60 or older, and there will be divisions for 70 and older and 80 and older. Contestants may enter as many events as they wish. Each contestant will receive a commemorative t-shirt and medallions will be awarded to first, second, and third place winners in all events.

For more information, or to enter, write the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 840, Snyder, TX 79549, or call (915)573-3558.

Working moms find attending school made easier with grant

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The average age of the students attending Howard College is 26 and 61 percent of them are female. A number of these women are raising a family and trying to obtain a degree from the college.

The Carl Perkins Discretionary Federal Grant is available for those who are both parents and students in obtaining assistance in paying for child care.

Recently, a group of students going into the medical field graduated from college and took advantage of the grant money. Not only does it pay for child care ($200 a month) during the day when a student is in class, but the grant allows for a program called Kids Night Out.

It provides a place for parents to drop off their children in the evening if they have class, a lab or need to study in the library. The program was started because most centers in the area are not open during the evening hours.

Those graduating with help from this grant include Stacy Norman, Gia Willis, Renae Alvarez, Rebekah Jackson and Alicia Trujillo. Norman, Willis and Alvarez are now licensed vocational nurses, Jackson graduated with an associate's degree in nursing and Trujillo has a degree in dental hygiene.

If you would like more information about the grant, contact the special services department at the college.

Prisoners throw fit about lack of television

VICTORIA (AP) — With no television to entertain them, about 48 federal prisoners staged a food-throwing protest at the Victoria County Jail Friday, Sheriff Mike Ratcliff said. Most of the inmates, who were housed in two 24-bed dormitory cells, arrived at the jail Thursday, he said. After spending the night TV-free, the inmates refused to line up for a 7:30 a.m. head count Friday, Ratcliff said. He also said prisoners refused to leave their dormitories to allow a search for weapons or contraband, standard practice when inmates become disobedient. Any time that a disturbance occurs, one of the main objectives is to secure the facility and conduct a shake-down. They refused to cooperate," Ratcliff said. By 9:45 a.m., he said, the disturbance had been "neutralized" without violence. Some of the involved prisoners have been moved into single-person cells. Ratcliff said "a lack of television" was the principal factor in the uprising. Unlike federal penitentiaries, where prisoners have round-the-clock television privileges, Victoria County Jail inmates have TV access only as a reward for good behavior.

Handling of rape results in lawsuits

ITALY (AP) — A former law officer and the mother of an alleged rape victim have filed multimillion-dollar lawsuits against the city and police administrators stemming from their handling of the case. City Administrator Lyall Kirton, who's named in the lawsuit, said Friday the cases seeking a total of $19.5 million were filed last month in the U.S. District Court in Dallas. Also named are the city of Italy, its police department, former Police Chief O.D. "Butch" Smith, Mayor John Goodman and Police Commissioner Walter McKay.

Selena's family channels grief into crusade

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The family of slain Tejano star Selena is channeling grief into action with the launching of an anti-crime campaign against the illegal use of handguns. Selena's father, Abraham Quintanilla Jr. said he wants to turn the shock and hurt that followed his daughter's death into a mission to help rid society of violence. "People are in a state of wonder, asking 'What do we do next? What can we do next?' People were waiting for this message and this is our message the violence in America. No more guns," Quintanilla said. The family unveiled their campaign Friday which will be featured in announcements in newspapers, radio and television stations and on billboards. Quintanilla said that the campaign's main theme will be to stop the illegal use of guns. On March 31, Selena Quintanilla-Perez, 23, was shot to death outside a local hotel. Her former fan club president, Yolanda Saldivar, a woman the singer once described as her best friend, has been charged in her slaying. Selena's father stressed, however, he has not approached the Legislature, which is debating a concealed handgun bill that is supported by Gov. George W. Bush. The measure has passed in the Senate and the House. Differences in the two versions of the bill are being worked out in a conference committee. "I don't want to get involved in politics. This is an emotional issue, not a political issue," Quintanilla said. "I have never been involved in politics and I am not about to start. I think a lot of radio and television people knew Selena and we can get their support. I don't need a politician to help me do this." Adolfo Aguilar Jr., president of the advertising agency backing the campaign says the ads will be bilingual. More than 175 public service tapes have been sent to television and radio stations around

Prayer provision added to school bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House has added a school-prayer amendment to the state education overhaul bill. Supporters of the amendment, tacked onto the bill late Friday, hope to assure students a right to pray aloud in public schools, even in groups, as long as the prayer does not disrupt school activities. In another late-night action, the House also endorsed a proposal to require school districts to provide for a period of silence at the beginning of the first class of each school day during which a student may reflect or meditate. The period could not exceed one minute. The action came during debate on the overhaul bill, sponsored by Rep. Paul Sadler, D-Henderson. As brought to the House, the bill would have specified students have a constitutional right to "individually, voluntarily and silently" pray or meditate.

Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan, amended the bill, with Sadler's support, to delete the words "individually, voluntarily and silently." The bill also originally said a person may not "require, encourage or coerce" a student to engage in, or refrain from, such prayer or meditation during any school activity. Ogden's amendment removed the word "encourage." Ogden said he wanted to make sure students who want to pray together out loud are afforded that right. "It's not an effort to impose any kind of mandatory or coerced school prayer," he said.

Support claimed to remove provision to take gun bill to voters

AUSTIN (AP) — The author of a bill to allow Texans to carry concealed handguns says he has enough support to remove a provision that would give voters a say in the matter. Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, said Friday he expects he will have no problem removing the referendum when a conference committee meets to work out differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill. "We have the votes to take it out, and that's the right thing to do," Patterson said. The bill, which would allow Texans to obtain licenses to carry concealed guns, was overwhelmingly approved by the Senate in March. But the House, in passing the measure Monday, made several changes, including adding the nonbinding referendum. The statewide referendum would not affect the bill's implementation and would be held on Nov. 7, even though the bill is scheduled to take effect on Sept. 1 if approved by the Legislature.

However, some have suggested that lawmakers would have no choice but to overturn the law if voters were to reject the gun bill in such a referendum. Patterson said just two legislators on the 10-member conference committee favor the referendum, and another is neutral. The committee is scheduled to meet Sunday night.

GOP lawmakers at odds on budget savings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top House Republicans predict passage of a plan to balance the budget by 2002, but GOP lawmakers remain at odds over precisely what savings their package will contain.

Republican House members ended a three-day strategy retreat in nearby Leesburg, Va., on Friday, where leaders presented a blueprint for eliminating the deficit in seven years. It included savings from Medicare and Medicaid, elimination of three Cabinet departments and the closing of numerous tax loopholes.

Afterward, Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and other leaders said the GOP-run House would approve the measure in two weeks. The House Budget Committee debates the bill next Wednesday.

"The support for passing a balanced budget the week after next is overwhelming," Gingrich told reporters.

But participants in the retreat, several speaking on condition of anonymity, said there were disputes over precisely which programs should be cut, and by how much. Some of the toughest sticking points included Medicare, agriculture and civil servants, they said.

"Some real fierce battles between Republicans and Republicans have already erupted," said Rep. Wayne Gilchrest, R-Md.

Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, and others said details of the GOP plan could change before it is presented publicly, perhaps on Tuesday. The leaders refused to discuss details, but some lawmakers said the plan would freeze defense spending at current levels and phase out funds for public broadcasting and aid to the arts and humanities — all favorite targets of conservatives.

Publisher not talking about conversation with bomber

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Penthouse publisher Bob Guccione won't talk to the FBI about a phone call his magazine received from someone who may be the Unabomber.

"I'm not personally interested in cooperating with the FBI," Guccione said Friday in an interview from his New York office.

In a letter last month to The New York Times, the person claiming to be the bomber promised to stop his 17-year reign of terror if a major media outlet published his lengthy manifesto. The letter specifically mentioned the Times, and Time and Newsweek magazines.

All three publications were non-committal. But on Monday, Guccione, chairman of General Media International which publishes Penthouse and Omni magazines, urged the mail-bomb terrorist in an open letter to "contact me at your earliest convenience."

"I am making one or several of my magazines available to publicize your message," he said in the letter, adding that he was "making this offer to save lives."

GOP strip down proposal overhauling civil legal system

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans proposed a stripped-down compromise Friday after their failure to get a final vote on far-reaching legislation to overhaul the civil legal system.

The GOP failed in two successive votes Thursday to cut off debate on the legislation, which would limit punitive damage awards in all civil lawsuits and establish a nationwide system of liability laws. They wound up 13 votes short of the 60 they needed.

The compromise was proposed by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, whose amendment to limit punitive damages in all civil litigation greatly broadened the original product-liability bill, and by Sen. Paul Coverdell, R-Ga. A vote was planned Monday or Tuesday.

President Clinton threatened Thursday to veto the expanded legislation.

"The reality is that we cannot bring this debate to a close without bipartisan support," Dole said on the Senate floor. "Reform won't happen unless the Democrats put the interests of the American people ahead of the interests of the trial lawyers."

Spokesmen for Sens. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., and Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., authors of the original product-liability bill, didn't immediately return telephone calls seeking comment. Some senators, supported by business, have been pushing proposals to revamp faulty-product laws for 13 years, contending they are needed to stem a tide of frivolous litigation.

Consumers and trial lawyers have opposed the proposals, saying they would deprive consumers of their legal redress against corporations.

Decline in new jobs sparks fear of recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp rise in unemployment in April and the first decline in new jobs in more than two years are sparking fears of recession.

The Clinton administration and private analysts said the deteriorating labor picture was cause for concern, although few predicted the economy was headed for a tailspin.

The Labor Department reported Friday that the nation's jobless rate jumped from 5.5 percent in March to 5.8 percent last month, pushing unemployment back to where it was in September.

The number of payroll jobs fell by 9,000, the first decline since a 52,000 decrease in March 1993.

"The Federal Reserve should immediately reduce interest rates by at least one-half percent to counter the growing rise of stagnation, or worse, another recession," said Lawrence Chimerine of the Economic Strategy Institute, a think tank here.

"The report shows the economy is slowing. It's premature to talk about a recession," said Carl Palash.

Howard County Tax Office is Close for Equipment Installation

The Howard County Tax Office will be closed from May 8 thru May 10 1995 as we take steps to improve the way we do business. Our employees are about to undergo training on the new Registration and Title System, or RTS.

This $40 million dollar automated system is a project of the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT). Its development began in 1987 to replace a manual system that was becoming obsolete because of the state's growing vehicle population.

As statutory agents of TxDot, this tax office processed registration and title transactions in addition collecting the appropriate fees. We will be using RTS to continue that work. The system brings enhancements in the level of efficiency and customer service. Registrations will be updated in the system within 48 hours, instead of the usual six to eight weeks. This will be of considerable benefit to all law enforcement agencies and the general public. Howard County residents will get their vehicle titles within two weeks, not in ten weeks.

RTS is also expected to reduce the amount of time it takes for our customers to wait in line. That's because tax office employees will no longer rely on paper forms to process each transaction. Instead, the data will be entered on a series of computer screens. This method of capturing information at the point-of-sale also provides a more accurate way of collecting and reporting registration and title fees to TxDOT.

We have worked closely with state government to make RTS a reality. The system is now being implemented across Texas.

This tax office will open its doors again on May 11, 1995. At that time, we will begin using the new system to perform registration and title transactions/As with any new system, some startup problems are possible.

Serbs evacuate civilians along Croatian front line

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — Rebel Serbs have evacuated thousands of civilians from villages along a tense front line close to Croatia's border with archenemy Serbia, U.N. officials reported Saturday.

Croatian Serbs denied the reports, but U.N. officials in the region spoke of a serious situation. Eastern Croatia was the most bitterly contested territory in the Serb-Croat war of 1991, which killed more than 10,000 people and left one-third of Croatia in rebel Serb hands.

A few days ago, Croatian army troops infiltrated a U.N. buffer zone in the east. Rebel Serbs who hold a swath of territory along the Danube River border with Serbia massed troops and weapons in response.

In southern Croatia, the Croatian army and rebel Serb troops faced a similar standoff, fanning fears of new fighting even as Croatian authorities sought to reassure Serbs of their safety in an area of central Croatia recaptured by the Croatian army.

U.N. spokeswoman Kirsten Haupt, reached in the Serb-held region known as U.N. Sector East, said rebel Serb authorities began evacuating women and children from villages close to the buffer zone on Friday.

U.N. civilian police reported 2,000 to 3,000 refugees massed in Dalj, one of the easternmost Serb-held towns on the Danube.

Thousands more were thought to have gone to other areas, and U.N. officials saw some cars moving into Serbia, she said.

"It is very serious," she said. Peacekeepers have hunkered down in posts in the buffer zone with orders to stay put, she said.

A Croatian Serb spokesman, Maj. Branko Opacic, said rebel Serb troops had been put on a state of alert, but insisted the region was calm and civilians had not been evacuated, the Bosnian Serb news agency SRNA reported.

He also denied reports that Yugoslav army tanks were massing across the border in Serbia — the dominant state in what remains of Yugoslavia.

U.N. personnel were unable to check the reports because of the difficulty of moving about in the tense area.

The Yugoslav army has a permanent tank base just a few hundred yards from the Batina bridge, and has in the past moved tanks closer when tension rose in Croatia.

The Serb-dominated Yugoslav army backed the Serb rebellion that erupted after Croatia seceded from Yugoslavia in 1991.

On Saturday, an Associated Press reporter in Serbia saw an artillery regiment of 16 trucks, packed with soldiers and pulling 155-mm field guns, heading toward the Croatian border on the Zagreb-Belgrade highway.

But Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, whose nationalist stands fueled the rebellion in Croatia and Bosnia, has increasingly distanced himself from his former proxies, and the troop movements seemed to be more of a show of force rather than a sign of imminent military action.

The Serbs had hoped in vain for support from Serbia in the wake of the Croatian offensive.

Feeling the pinch of isolation, Serbs in Croatia and Bosnia have pledged to support each other.

Croatian authorities sought to allay fears among Serbs in western Slavonia, particularly around the formerly Serbian town of Pakrac, distributing food, clothes.

A police officer carries a wrapped object they found at an underground men's room at Shinjuku Station in Tokyo Friday shortly after two flaming bags of chemicals - sodium cyanide and diluted sulfuric acid - were found there. Police said workers managed to douse the bags before the fumes could combine to make the deadly hydrocyanic gas.

Gas attack averted in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — As police began looking for clues in yet another suspected terrorist attack, experts said today two flaming bags of chemicals found at one of Japan's busiest train stations in the heart of Tokyo could have killed thousands of people.

Two burning bags — one containing sodium cyanide and the other diluted sulfuric acid — were doused in a men's room at one of Tokyo's busiest stations Friday before the fumes could combine to make the deadly hydrocyanic gas.

An official at Shinjuku station said four station employees were hospitalized briefly for sore throats and other minor respiratory ailments. A bomb squad was dispatched to remove the bags, and service on one subway line halted for a short time.

The incident — the fourth in just over a month since the deadly nerve gas sarin was released on Tokyo's subways — might easily have swelled into a catastrophe, experts said.

Japanese media reported that the ingredients found in the restroom, if properly combined, could have produced enough hydrocyanic gas to kill as many as 14,000 people.

Kyodo News Service also said that because the ingredients cannot be purchased easily, the incident was probably more than simply a copycat crime. "This gas isn't as poisonous as sarin, but it is still extremely deadly," said Kanagawa University professor Keiichi Tsuneshi, an expert on poison gases.

When inhaled, hydrocyanic gas can kill within seconds.

Japan has been on edge since the March 20 subway gassing, which killed 12 people and sickened another 5,500, and a subsequent wave of violence.

Japan's top police official, who was responsible for the investigation into that attack, was shot and nearly killed 10 days later. Hundreds of people have been sent to hospitals after succumbing to gases in at least three incidents since.

The incident Friday, which occurred as an extra 60,000 police officers were on duty nationwide to protect against further attacks, hit at the heart of Japan's capital.

Shinjuku is a popular shopping and entertainment district and the site of Tokyo's City Hall. More than 1 million people pass through its train station each day. The crowds were a bit lighter Friday because of the "Golden Week" holidays, when many people leave town for vacation.

Tensions were high in Shinjuku last month because of rumors that the guru of the Aum Shinri Kyo doomsday cult had predicted a disaster would hit there April 15. The day passed without incident.

Police have yet to name any suspects in any of the gas attacks, and today began a search for witnesses, including the person who first reported the restroom fire.

Since the subway killings, police have focused their investigation on Aum Shinri Kyo, or Supreme Truth, because they believe it had the capability to produce sarin and other chemical and possibly even biological weapons.

Tons of chemicals and equipment that could have been used to make sarin have been confiscated from the cult's main commune at the foot of Mount Fuji in a series of daily raids that began two days after the subway killings.

The kinds of chemicals found in Shinjuku station have also been seized from cult compounds, according to several reports — indicating a possible link to Friday's incident as well.

Tunbridge Wells is truly disgusted with Conservatives

LONDON (AP) — "Disgusted of Tunbridge Wells" is a British archetype: the sort of conservative, home-owning English subject who writes letters to newspapers denouncing unwelcome new trends.

Now the town of Tunbridge Wells is disgusted with the governing Conservative Party, an alarming turn in the fortunes of John Major's deeply unpopular government.

As the last votes were counted Friday from local elections in England and Wales, Royal Tunbridge Wells, 35 miles southeast of London, was among 59 towns and districts that turned Conservatives out of power.

It was a horrendous night for the party that has governed Britain for 16 years. The Conservatives won control of just eight of the 346 councils, while losing 59 they held previously.

The Labor Party, in its best performance in 30 years, took control of 155 councils, up from 93.

The Conservatives, or Tories, pulled 25 percent of the vote overall, just ahead of the centrist Liberal Democrats.

San Antonio trained many of WWII's vets

By JAMES COBURN
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio's military bases provided more than 370,000 soldiers and airmen who played a major role in liberating Europe from Nazi Germany.

About 250,000 soldiers in more than 240 units went through Fort Sam Houston, which assembled the headquarters of five of the nine field armies which served overseas, said John Manguso, director of the Fort Sam Houston Museum.

San Antonio-trained soldiers from Fort Sam Houston "the largest and one of the most important posts in the country" at the time made quite an impact in World War II, said Manguso.

Manguso wrote in "Fort Sam in the Big War 1940-45" that of nine Army headquarters which served overseas, the 3rd, 6th, 9th, 10th and 15th were produced in San Antonio.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was the 3rd Army's chief of staff at Fort Sam in 1941, commanded Allied forces for the D-Day invasion at Normandy in June 1944.

Fort Sam's 3rd Army, under the command of Gen. George Patton, "led the breakout from St. Lo and the pursuit across France," according to Manguso. The 3rd was soon joined by the 9th Army, organized at Fort Sam under Gen. William H. Simpson, and the 15th Army, also from Fort Sam, commanded by Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, he wrote in his history. The 2nd and 95th Infantry Divisions, which trained at Fort Sam, and

A large percentage of your pilots went through Brooks, Kelly and Randolph. We had the most ideal flying climate. That's what made the San Antonio air bases more successful.

Fernando Cortez

the 90th Infantry Division from Texas also fought in those campaigns, he noted.

Historians at San Antonio's Air Force bases reported a combined total of more than 120,000 airmen and ground crew members were trained during the war.

Fernando Cortez, curator of the Hangar 9 museum, said more than 3,800 pilots and 1,100 non-pilot observers were trained at Brooks. In 1943, the base had 5,500 officers and enlisted personnel.

"San Antonio's role was quite important for the war effort, because the most successful program we had here was advanced flying school for pilots," Cortez said. "A great number of them contributed to the great air battles of World War II."

"A large percentage of your pilots went through Brooks, Kelly and Randolph," he said. "We had the most ideal flying climate. That's what made the San Antonio air bases more successful."

The bombing of Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, lit a fire under already accelerated training at local installations and prompted thousands of men and women to volunteer for service, remembered San Antonians who worked at the bases during World War II.

Vice President Al Gore wipes his brow as he addresses a memorial service in the sweltering heat marking the end of World War II at the American Military Cemetery near Cambridge, England, Saturday. With the Oklahoma City bombing fresh in his mind, Gore stood Saturday among the graves of American's World War II dead and urged a new generation to fight against evil.

"Listen, all the guys I knew here could hardly wait to get into the service," said Mary Ashley Maccabe, who left St. Mary's College to work at Kelly Field shortly after the Japanese bombed the U.S. Navy's port on Oahu, Hawaii.

"They wanted to go over there and get those Japs," she added. "They were really mad about (the bombing). One of the fellows I was going with and four of his friends went down the next day and enlisted."

That was the day Brooks Field went on alert just before dawn when a gate guard saw a plane banking over the field with a logo on its side that "looked like the rising sun" on planes that bombed Pearl the morning before, recalled retired Randolph Air Force Base Master Sgt. Noble C. Wyninegar.

"The siren went off and scared the daylight out of everybody. We thought we were being invaded," said Wyninegar, 74, then a Brooks staff sergeant cutting transfer orders for officers and airmen graduating from flying and observation training.

"It turned out to be a Sun Oil Co. airplane," he said. "One of their little planes took off from Stinson Field, our muni (municipal) airport at the time. The guard saw it and thought it was Japanese."

"All sorts of alarms went off," Wyninegar said, and cars backed up from the closed gate. "It was about 10 o'clock before we found out what happened, who he (the plane) was."

Wyninegar said the build-up was starting at Brooks when he arrived from Kelly Field in September 1940 and initially lived in a tent until barracks were constructed.

"Flying was a 24 hour-a-day deal when the war started, training cadets," he said. "A lot of guys were coming in. In fact, we didn't have enough room to take care of people. Hangar 9 (the nation's only remaining World War I hangar that serves as a museum) was made a temporary barracks. We put cots in there to house guys."

Wyninegar, who retired in 1962 with 23 years of service, transferred to Randolph Field in 1944 and was a warrant officer in charge of personnel for the navigator-bombardier assignment section when Germany's surrender was announced May 8, 1945.

"There was quite a celebration around here V-E Day," he said. "Newspaper headlines and the horns blowing."

Lackland Air Force Base was spawned by World War II, although it did not get its current name until the Air Force became a separate service in 1947.

About 90,000 aviation cadets were prepared for flying training at the Army Air Forces Pre-Flight School (Pilot) on what now is Lackland, Lackland historian Edgar Sneed said.

The first class of 1,906 cadets began Nov. 12, 1941, Sneed said, "so the pre-flight school was up and running 3 weeks before Pearl. They were in the middle of training when they found out why they were there. That stirred up their blood a little."

The school then was located on Kelly Field. The War Department separated the area west of Leon Creek from Kelly on June 26, 1942, and made it a separate installation called the San Antonio Aviation Cadet Center. SAACC was renamed Lackland.

Editor's Note: The story of San Antonio's contribution to World War II will continue in Monday's edition of the Herald.

Veterans return to start of V-E campaign to remember

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of veterans of World War II joined in commemorations Saturday of the 50th anniversary of V-E Day, each bringing particular memories of triumph, liberation and sorrow.

"I think of so many of my friends who died. So many of them died in horrible, horrible ways," said Suzanne Cherise, a veteran of the French Resistance — and one face in the crowd at Britain's official celebrations in Hyde Park.

Vice President Al Gore told veterans gathered at the American Cemetery in Cambridge that the war against evil did not end on May 8, 1945.

"From their deaths, we have learned enduring lessons," he said. "If we don't heed them now, the 21st century ... could bring us a greater barbarism than the world has ever known."

London was the starting point for a border-hopping pilgrimage by leaders of the World War II combatants, going on to Paris, Berlin and Moscow.

Presidents, prime ministers, kings and other officials of 54 nations were in London for a formal dinner Saturday night, a service of reconciliation at St. Paul's Cathedral Sunday morning and another banquet at Buckingham Palace.

Queen Mother Elizabeth, at 94 a living symbol of the British generation that stood alone against Nazi Germany in 1940-41, formally opened the celebration in Hyde Park.

"I do hope that all ... will remember with pride and gratitude those men and women, armed and unarmed, whose courage really helped to bring us to victory," she said. "God bless them all."

Derek Waghorn, 76, wearing a chest-full of medals on his crisp navy blazer, served with the British army from the retreat at Dunkirk in 1940 through the D-Day invasion in 1944 and to V-E Day.

"They say miracles don't happen. But it must have been a miracle for those who came through it all," he said with a smile. John Linzer, 71, checked a database at the veterans' center in Hyde Park for old shipmates from HMS Nadder. He recognized one name, but was informed that his shipmate had just come home from the hospital and was too weak to talk.

"We're survivors, not heroes," said Linzer, who paused as old emotions welled up. "The heroes are still out there — some of them, like my buddies, at the bottom of the Indian Ocean."

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl provoked some protests in Britain with a statement remembering not only the victims of Nazi aggression and concentration camps, but also his own country's civilians and war dead.

Bombed building becomes tomb for two victims

By PAUL QUEARY
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Shattered and ugly, the bombed-out federal building will stand for a while as a monument to the two women whose bodies could not be removed from the rubble.

Christi Rosas and Virginia Thompson were the newest employees of a credit union on the third floor of the Alfred P. Murrah building. Of the 29 people working in the office the day of the bombing, 18 — all of them women — did not survive.

"They found all of my girls but two," said Florence Rogers, their boss at the Federal Employees Credit Union.

Rogers herself barely survived the April 19 blast. When she regained consciousness, she found herself on an 18-inch ledge, all that remained of her office. The seven employees who had gathered for a meeting were gone. All were later found dead.

The final death toll from the worst terrorist act on U.S. soil is almost certain to be 167, including a nurse killed in the rescue. Nineteen children are among the dead.

Meanwhile, the FBI pressed on with its frustrating hunt for the suspect known as John Doe 2. Federal officials told The Dallas Morning News in today's editions that Terry Nichols, an Army buddy of bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh, would soon be charged with complicity in the case. Nichols is being held without bond in Kansas as a material witness in the case.

Investigators are questioning Nichols' story that McVeigh called him and asked to be picked up in Oklahoma City on April 16.

Federal sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said investigators believe Nichols and McVeigh drove separate vehicles to Oklahoma City the weekend before the bombing, then returned to Kansas together in Nichols' vehicle. They believe that would have enabled McVeigh to leave the getaway car behind.

At the bomb site Friday, emergency workers abandoned the search for bodies after 16 days of grim, backbreaking work. The last living person was pulled from the building the night of the explosion.

The workers gathered before the building Friday afternoon to pray and remember. Families of the victims planned to visit the building today in a procession of private memorials that could last five hours.

Rosas and Thompson are buried under a pile of huge concrete chunks at the base of the unstable building. Officials feared that digging them out could bring more of the rubble tumbling down.

The 22-year-old Rosas, married and with a 4-year-old son, was working only her eighth day as a receptionist in the credit union's loan office. "She was really a cute girl, she just bubbled," Rogers said.

Thompson, 56, had three grown children and liked to work in her yard. "She got up every morning and watched the sun come up," said Rogers, who had known her for 20 years.

One hope remains for recovering the women's bodies. The FBI will mark the rubble they are buried under with fluorescent paint, which they hope will lead searchers to the remains after the building is demolished and the threat of collapse is gone.

In the credit union's temporary, donated office space across town late Friday, Rogers was ordering funeral wreaths and rebuilding a business that was shattered along with the building.

"I'm not sure if it's really hit me yet," she said.

The FBI, which has been at the site combing debris for evidence, was expected to finish the task today and hand over the building to the General Services Administration, FBI spokesman Dan Vogel said.

The GSA has not decided whether to rebuild at the site and how it will go about demolishing the building. Bringing down the building all at once with explosives would be quicker than using a wrecking ball, but some fear another blast would traumatize people.

Many in Oklahoma City want to replace the building with a memorial, and federal officials say they will consider the community's wishes.

The FBI will send all evidence to a crime lab in Washington for use in the case against McVeigh.

Rescue workers uncovered no remains believed to belong to John Doe 2, said Ray Blakeney, a spokesman for the state medical examiner. There had been speculation that the man seen with McVeigh when he allegedly rented the Ryder truck used in the bombing died in the blast.

By late Friday, all but four bodies recovered from the federal building had been identified, Blakeney said. Three of the unidentified victims were children and identification was difficult because of the lack of dental records, he said. DNA testing may be used, Blakeney said.

Attempts at linking Waco to Oklahoma City called 'despicable'

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Attempts to link the Oklahoma City bombing with the FBI raid on the Branch Davidian compound two years ago are "despicable and have no basis in truth," U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno said Friday.

"How could some people imply a moral equivalency between the government's efforts to save lives at Waco and the cruel and indifferent taking of lives in Oklahoma City?" Reno asked in her speech to federal law enforcement officials.

Reno maintained that the federal government was not responsible for the deaths of more than 85 Branch Davidian cult members. After an extensive probe of the raid, the Justice Department said it found that the deadly fire that swept through the compound had been set by sect members.

"Such reckless comparisons are despicable and have no basis in the truth," she said to loud applause at the annual conference of the Federal Law Enforcement Officers Association.

Timothy McVeigh, the only person charged so far in the Oklahoma City bombing, was said by acquaintances to be deeply upset with the federal government's role at Waco.

The April 19 bombing in Oklahoma, which killed more than 160 people, took place on the second anniversary of the Waco raid.

The standoff began Feb. 28 after four agents from the bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms and six cult members were killed in a shootout that started when ATF agents stormed the compound trying to serve weapons warrants.

Thunder hits Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Thunder Gulch, the least heralded of trainer D. Wayne Lukas' three starters, became the most heralded horse in America on Saturday when he won the Kentucky Derby in bright sunshine at Churchill Downs.

Ridden by Gary Stevens, Thunder Gulch took the lead about three-sixteenths of a mile from the wire and thundered home in 2:01 1/5.

"He's the stepchild," Lukas had said of Thunder Gulch, who barely got a glance during Derby Week while the attention was showered on Lukas' other two starters, the filly Serena's Song and Timber Country, the champion 2-year-old colt of 1994.

Serena's Song set the pace much of the race but on this day the filly just couldn't hold back the boys as she did in the Jim Beam at Turfway Park.

Thunder Gulch finished less than three lengths ahead of stretch-running Tejano Run, who was a head in front of Timber Country, who was three-quarters of a length better than Jumron in the field of 19 3-year-olds.

Thunder Gulch, Lukas' second Derby winner but his first winning colt, paid a whopping $51, $24.20 and $12.20. Tejano Run returned $10.20 and $6.80 while the entry of Timber Country and Serena's Song was $3.80 to show.

The entry went off as the 3-1 favorite and became the 16th consecutive consecutive losing Derby favorite. Serena's Song faded to finish 16th.

Completing the order of finish after Jumron were Mecke, England-based Eltish, Knockadoon, Afternoon Deelites, England-based Citadeed, In Character, Suave Prospect, Talkin Man, Dazzling Falls, Japan-based Ski Captain, Jambalaya Jazz, Serena's Song, Pyramid Peak, Lake George and Blue Grass winner Wild Syn.

"She never had a chance to get a breather," jockey Corey Nakatani said of Serena's Song, who was trying to become the fourth filly to win the Derby and the first since Lukas won with Winning Colors in 1988.

The 32-year-old Stevens' second Derby victory came in his 10th appearance. Besides winning with Winning Colors, Stevens also had two seconds.

Thunder Gulch is owned by Michael Taber, a native of England who resides in Monaco and is a major stockholder in a group of betting shops throughout the United Kingdom.

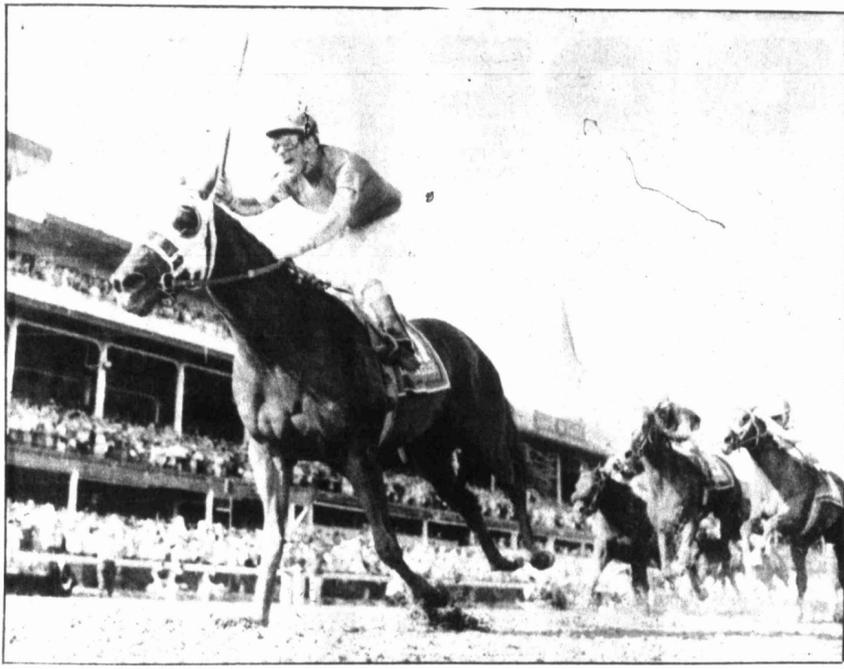

It wasn't known what Thunder Gulch paid in Taber's betting shops.

Thunder Gulch ran as a separate betting interest while Serena's Song and Timber Country were an entry because of common ownership.

"This is such a difficult race to win, I felt we needed three," said Lukas, who also had three-horse entries in two previous Derbies. "I felt good about him all week. He earned the right to walk with his head high.

The next race in the Triple Crown is the Preakness on May 20 at Pimlico.

Thunder Gulch was bought for an undisclosed sum by Taber after he finished fourth in the Nashua last Nov. 11.

BSHS star runs for grandfather

Franklin boasts best 800-meter regional time in state Class 4A

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Joe Franklin still is running for his late grandfather.

Franklin, a Big Spring High School senior, is making his fourth appearance at a state finals event, and this is the second he's dedicated to his grandfather, George Cole. Cole died in October.

"Every day. Every day I think about him," Franklin said. "It's like I said in cross country: When he died, I dedicated the rest of the year to my grandfather."

Cole had lived with Franklin since the BSHS star was 6, and certainly what Franklin has accomplished has made his grandfather - and the rest of his family - mighty proud. Franklin, who made the state track meet his freshman year as an alternate to a relay team, has reached the state cross country finals the past two years - winning the district title both times.

Now he's ending his high school career perfectly - he'll be competing in the 800-meter run at the state track meet Friday in Austin.

Better yet, Franklin has the time to beat - his regional time of 1 minute and 54.84 seconds was the state's best among Class 4A runners.

Of course, it was only four-hundreds of a second better than Brandon Smith of Fort Worth Boswell, and a host of other runners also are close.

"Right now, I'm trying to think of a new strategy to win the race," Franklin said Wednesday at practice. "I think I just need to work on my first quarter, and then if I have a good 600-meter time I can make it in the top finishers. It's going to take some work."

Franklin felt he should have ran faster at the regionals in San Angelo, which may be a good sign for Steer track fans.

"I want to finish my senior year with a bang," he said. "I knew I could go to state in cross country, because that was all I had worked for. As far as going two years in a row, and now this, no, I didn't think about that."

Now he's thinking about Austin - "I'm just waiting and thinking," he said. He seems to have it all going for him in his quest for a gold medal - experience, the fastest regional time and a confident attitude:

Plus a grandfather for inspiration.

Rockets vs. Jazz - Game 5

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Houston Rockets are right where they want to be: in a clutch playoff finale with their NBA title defense at stake.

It doesn't bother coach Rudy Tomjanovich that the Rockets, who escaped first-round elimination with a 123-106 victory over the Jazz Friday night at Houston, must play today's decisive Game 5 in Utah's Delta Center.

"This team has been in this situation before, 'do or die,'" said Tomjanovich, whose Rockets rallied from a 2-0 deficit in last season's second round to beat Phoenix.

"We're good when we're backed into a corner. Both teams have things at stake. ... Pressure is on both sides."

Today's winner advances to the Western Conference semifinals against the Phoenix Suns.

A second Houston win this series on Utah's court — the Rockets won Game 2 140-126 with a record-setting 19 3-pointers — would set up a Rockets-Suns semifinal rematch.

Hakeem Olajuwon, who had 40 points in Game 4 to go with Clyde Drexler's 41, likes the Rockets' chances.

"We have the experience, we have the confidence," Olajuwon said. "Nothing is guaranteed but we are in a good position. They cannot stop us if we do what we're supposed to do."

What the Rockets did Friday was shoot 70.4 percent in the first half, finishing at 57 percent. Houston also converted its first 11 free throws, and finished 38-for-47 from the line.

"They came out the same way as in Game 2," Utah coach

Jerry Sloan said. "We absolutely have to play better interior defense. They're still the world champions with Drexler added to the mix."

John Stockton said the combination of Olajuwon and Drexler proved impossible to counter — even with Karl Malone's 31 points and his 26.

"First Hakeem, then Drexler," Stockton said. "We've got to learn to help our teammates on defense."

"We've got to stop people if we expect to win. We have to regroup and now play our best game — or our last game."

Malone said the Jazz would be up for the challenge of making Houston the first defending champion since the 1984 Philadelphia 76ers to be eliminated in the opening round of the playoffs.

Some people call it "sport." Those who know it call it "art." And for a few, it is called a "hobby."

In spite of any title it is given, the game of billiards is making a name for itself. And, in the case of Big Spring on Thursday and Friday, that name most definitely includes women.

Five world class ladies' billiards champions are arriving at John Wesley's Pick Pocket Billiards located at 102 E. Third St.

Owusu leaps toward second state title

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Different year, same situation - Drexell Owusu is the man to beat.

Owusu, Big Spring High School's senior triple jumper, will go after his second gold medal in the event Friday at the state track meet in Austin.

Actually, the situation is a bit different from last year. For starters, Owusu isn't bothered by the hip injury that kept him from practicing before last year's state meet.

OWUSU

Another difference is, instead of competing in just the triple jump, he'll be seeking a medal in the long jump.

At last weekend's Region I-4A meet, he and Robert Reed of Sweetwater triple jumped 50 feet, 7 inches. For statistics nuts, that's the third-longest distance ever registered among U.S. high school athletes. The national record of 52-10 1/2 was set by Californian Charles Mayfield in 1980.

Owusu has said he enjoys - and welcomes - pressure situations, and he proved that at the regional meet. Reed bested his personal best by almost three feet when he jumped 50-7. With the regional title on the line, Owusu tied that distance on his next jump and was awarded first place for having the second-best jump of the day.

"I do well under pressure," Owusu said. "I'm not saying I'm better under pressure, but I do live up to my expectations."

His long jump accomplishment was only slightly less dramatic. Needing to jump 23 feet, 7 inches to qualify for the state meet, he did exactly that - on his final jump.

Combine his ability to perform in tense situations with a familiarity with the state meet, and it would seem if there's any pressure, it's on the other guys.

"Drexell's going to be more relaxed, because he's been there before," BSHS assistant coach Ricky Long said.

Owusu stands a good chance of earning a medal in the long jump - his 23-7 ranks third among the eight state qualifiers. But the triple jump appears to be a two-man affair - Owusu and Reed.

If that's the case, Reed better plan on setting another personal best.

"We think he (Owusu) can go close to 51 feet," Long said. "We know what he's capable of, and that's what we're working for... That's what we're gearing everything around."

Austin will be the big hurdle

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Rodger Eddington's major task at Friday's state track meet may not be running his race - it may just be trying not to be overwhelmed.

More than a few first-time state meet participants have been swallowed by the event. When you're from a town of 25,000 people, and there's more than that in the stands in Austin's Memorial Stadium, it's easy to be intimidated.

While Eddington is working on his times, coaches are working on his head.

"We've told him all week: The track is going to look a lot bigger down in Austin." BSHS assistant track coach Ricky Long said. "But that's just because the stadium's bigger - the track's the same length as here in remember I was in last, but then I just picked it up."

If state qualifying times are any indication, Eddington has an uphill battle ahead of him. His regional time is seventh among the eight qualifiers - more than a second behind leader Martin Dosssett of Gregory-Portland, who was clocked at 13.69.

"In a hurdles race, you never know," Long said. "You can hit a hurdle, and a 13.9 time can balloon to 14.9 in a hurry."

Although Eddington is a senior, this is only his second full year on the varsity. One factor that helped him improve was having regional qualifier Chris Ochoa as a teammate.

Long said, "It really helped both of them all year, having someone push them."

Ochoa didn't qualify for state, but a large contingent of BSHS athletes at the meet should mean there will be plenty of moral support in Austin.

Long said, "It's good to have your friends with you, knowing you're not the only one down there... There's confidence in numbers."

EDDINGTON

Big Spring."

Eddington qualified for the state meet with his second-place finish in the 110-meter hurdles at last weekend's Region I-4A meet in San Angelo. Despite hitting a hurdle in the finals, Eddington finished the race in 14.71 seconds, two-tenths of a second behind winner Derrius Thompson of Cedar Hill.

"In prelims, I got down in my stance and went forward some. They let it go, but they said next time I would be DQ'd (disqualified)," Eddington said after the regional meet. "Tonight (the finals) when they shot the gun, I was messed up totally. I

Sprinter isn't sharing the spotlight this season

Maybe you can't leave your shadow behind, but Randy Farr sure lost his brother's.

Farr, a Big Spring High School junior, always had been paired with his older brother, Lehebron. Not this year. Lehebron has graduated, and Randy - no offense, Lehebron - is loving every minute of it.

"It's been kind of easier for me this year," said Farr, who'll run in two events at the state meet - the 400-meter run and the 1,600 relay.

"Before it was a s... Lehebron's little brother t h i s... Lehebron's little brother that."

FARR

Farr, at the Region I-4A meet in San Angelo, finished second in the 400 at 47.72 seconds, just one-tenth of a second behind Pecos' Willie Mata. Mata had the fastest regional time in Texas, and Farr is right behind him.

Farr said his preparation for Austin involves Drexell Owusu, the defending Class 4A state champion in the triple jump.

"Drex has kind of helped me a little bit, though he's not really given me any advice. It's just that he and Coach (Randy Britton) talk about state a lot, and I've listened to them. I know you get down there, and all those eyes everywhere are looking at you."

Is Farr nervous? "Kind of," he said. "I'm a little bit nervous about it, but I think I'm more excited than nervous."

Farr isn't setting the goal of first place or a medal finish in Austin. He said he can't control the other runners, so he'll concentrate on himself.

"I'm at least going to try and get it under 47 seconds. That's my goal. I'm going to go out there, try my best, and that's really all you can do."

Stars start playoffs tonight at Detroit

DETROIT (AP) - It's only coincidence that Shawn Burr was born in 1966, the last time the Red Wings have made it as far as the Stanley Cup finals.

But it has been 40 years since Detroit has actually won the cup. Forty long years for Red Wing sufferers.

As the young Burr grew up in Sarnia, Ontario, cheering for the Red Wings, his heroes kept breaking his heart. Then the Red Wings made Burr their first-round draft choice in 1984. Now he is one of the heart breakers, something he'll get a chance to change when the Red Wings open the NHL playoffs by hosting the Dallas Stars tonight.

The Wings had the best record in the NHL during the regular season. They finished 33-11-4 in the abbreviated season after the lockout and were 5-0 against Dallas. But the Red Wings were the Western Conference's best team during the regular season last year, too and went 3-1 against the San Jose Sharks.

The Sharks eliminated them in seven games in the first round, a loss that embarrassed the organization.

There are other reasons for feeling a bit squeamish about playing Dallas. Three of the Wings' five wins over Dallas were by one goal.

Less-talented teams can find ways to slow down the Wings in a seven-game series as the Sharks did last year, knocking Wings down at the blue line almost every time up the ice.

"Every team brings different things to the table," Detroit coach Scotty Bowman said. "Dallas is a pretty experienced team, a good checking team. Their goals-against was pretty respectable."

The Stars are coached by Bob

Gainey, who won five Stanley Cups as a player with Montreal. Bowman coached four of those teams.

Dallas finished eighth in the Conference with a 17-23-8 record. But four years ago, the Stars also were seeded eighth in the Western Conference playoffs and reached the Stanley Cup finals.

Dallas' best scorer, center Mike Modano, is out for the season with an ankle injury. Defenseman Derian Hatcher is out for three weeks with a knee injury.

Andy Moog has been the only solid goaltender, and he's coming off a hamstring injury. Darcy Wakaluk emerged in the playoffs last year, but he seems to have lost confidence.

Dallas backed into the playoffs, losing its last four games.

There are two positive notes for Dallas, a team needing all the help it can get.

Moog's hamstring eased enough for him to see action Monday, so he won't be too rusty. Defenseman Grant Ledyard was told his broken right ankle has recovered enough for him to begin skating.

Da Brats pounded out 18 hits en route to a 20-10 victory in UGSA Division III play. Amy Lang led the way with two doubles, a single and six RBIs.

Honey Belew added two doubles and an RBI. Jodi Lelek had two doubles and four stolen bases.

A's 10 Yankees 5

Zac Hall was the winning pitcher and Kyle King earned the save as the A's defeated the Yankees in National Little League action. Jon McKinnon had a double for the A's, while Ty Murrill, George Garcia and Lupe Canales had doubles for the Yankees.

Rangers win again as Rogers subdues A's

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - Kenny Rogers won for the first time since pitching a perfect game last season and Benji Gil homered for the second straight game, leading the Texas Rangers over the Oakland Athletics 4-2 Saturday. Rogers (1-2) allowed seven hits, including Mark McGwire's third home run, in seven innings. Matt Whiteside pitched a scoreless eighth and Jeff Russell earned his second save.

The Derby - Who needs it?

Did you wish you were in Louisville for the running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday?

I didn't. I lived near Louisville, Ky., from birth until age 15, then again from July 1991 to July 1993. How many Derbys did I hit?

Zero. With all the hype surrounding the "fastest two minutes in sports" up there, taking the trip to Churchill Downs was out of the question. By the time Derby Day arrived, you already were burned out on it.

The Derby hype in Louisville is just as bad as the nation's fever for the Super Bowl. That's understandable, but understanding didn't make it bearable. At least you can plan your day - a party, perhaps - around the Super Bowl. How do you plan anything around a two-minute race?

You turn the TV on, you watch the race, then you turn it off. If you leave the TV on any longer than that, you get bombarded with fluffy stories about the winning owner's lucky hat, or you get 20 different angles of Kato Kaelin sipping a mint julep as a guest in Millionaire's Row.

What is a mint julep? Oh, I've been to the Downs, and it's a magical place - the Wrigley Field or Fenway Park of horse racing. It's a slice of heaven with perfect grass, perfect dirt, rich ladies wearing fancy dresses and pearls and bright chances to win money. And no parking. Crowds and I don't along, so I purposely went to the Downs on days when about 10,000 people or less would be there. Even so, I'd have to park in a lot so far from the Downs you needed binoculars to find your way.

Saturday about 100,000 people pried themselves into the Downs.

Shudder at the thought. My sister was my guinea pig. Back in the early '80s, Sheryl and some of her high-school friends invaded the infield, where patrons are allowed to sit only on Derby Day.

When she came home, she told hundreds of stories - couples making love on the grass, streakers flaunting their wares, restroom lines stretching to Montana and drunken race fans regurgitating pepperoni pizza instead of post positions. Sheryl never saw a horse.

She never saw another Derby, either. She said if she wanted to do that again, she'd organize another Woodstock.

I've never missed Louisville, and during Derby Week I miss it even less. The events surrounding the madness are insane - The Great Steamboat Race, a battle between the Belle of Louisville and Cincinnati's signature river cruiser, the Delta Queen, is a even-more-boring hybrid of the America's Cup that interrupts a more worthy diversion, soap operas. Balloon races, parades - it just goes on and on. Dan Fogelberg made it worse years ago with his song "Run For the Roses," singing about wobbly knees in Western Kentucky when most every racing horse comes from the eastern half of the state.

Maybe I'll make it to a Derby yet, if I ever happen to be in Louisville again.

On Derby Day. And someone gives me a free ticket. In Millionaire's Row.

In front of those crazy hats all the female celebrities wear. Next to Kato.

Boston Celtics president Red Auerbach waves as he walks across the leprechaun on the parquet floor at center court at the Boston Garden Friday. Following Auerbach is Celtic legend Larry Bird.

Goodbye Garden

Celtics play last game at old arena

BOSTON (AP) — Fans lingering after the last Celtics game in Boston Garden swarmed onto its famous parquet floor Friday night, popping champagne to commemorate another finale in the historic building.

The Celtics were eliminated from the playoffs with a 95-92 loss to the Orlando Magic in Game 4 of an Eastern Conference series. The Boston fans weren't so easily eliminated. Several hundred milled around after the game, working their way through the dingy yellow seats to floor level. After chanting "Hell no, we won't go," they rushed past a dozen or so security guards and took possession of the court.

Some posed for pictures. Others tried to kiss the leprechaun painted on the floor of the court.

"I just wanted to say good-bye," said Jane Brunet, a beer vendor for 13 years who said her farewell in an orderly fashion. "It's just so sad."

Former Celtics coach Red Auerbach, who watched the game from a loge seat near that of former star Larry Bird, was less nostalgic.

"(Expletive) the building," Auerbach said. "We lost a ball game."

Worlds collide as Michael meets Shaq

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Get ready for Nike vs. Reebok, Gatorade vs. Pepsi, McDonald's vs. Diesel.

Sure, Michael Jordan and Shaquille O'Neal in the Eastern Conference semifinals is the dream matchup of the market whizzes at the NBA. But the Chicago Orlando series begins today is still the most compelling playoff matchup since Jordan took on Magic Johnson and the Los Angeles Lakers in the 1991 Finals and won the first of three straight titles.

Jordan came back to the NBA for the last 17 games of the regular season and re-energized the Eastern Conference. His post season already made the Bulls' opening series with Charlotte the most watched first round playoff series in NBA history.

Conveniently, Sunday also will mark the debut of Jordan's first Nike ad since he shucked minor-league baseball and came out of retirement. In it, he pokes fun at his short-lived baseball career, calling himself "a weak hitting Double-A outfielder with a below average arm."

Jordan and O'Neal were listed by Forbes magazine last year as the two highest-paid athletes, with Jordan getting an estimated $30 million from endorsements and O'Neal an estimated $12.5 million. But this series is first and foremost about basketball, and Jordan and O'Neal wouldn't be pulling in millions if they didn't possess skills capable of dominating a game.

Orlando finished the regular season with the best record in the Eastern Conference, winning 57 games. But the tide of Michaelmania that washed over the league has left them playing the role of underdogs.

Ladies

ladies to come up here after the Houston show. We jumped at the chance.

Martin said it was Bearden's first appearance at his billiard room that sold her on Big Spring. "Belinda loved it here the first time," Martin said. "She played here before and we had crowds of over 200 people each night."

She said this billiard room is one of the nicest she's been in and she loved the people here. I think it's great she liked it enough to want to come back, bring her friends and do a show.

The show Martin refers to offers an astounding mixture of talent and the unique. The ladies often dress in evening gowns, Martin said. Martin promises several door prizes and even plans to give away a pool cue each night.

Visions of tough "macho" women in a man's world don't coincide with Martin's description of the ladies. Biographical information on the feminine figure shows Lee to be a petite 23-year-old woman who almost always competes in black, which earned her the nickname of "The Black Widow."

Lee has 1993 and 1994 World Champion Runner-Up finishes. She was ranked No. 1 by Billiards Digest and Pool & Billiard Magazine.

Bearden, 42, began playing pool in 1971 and has more than a dozen national titles and another 50 regional and state titles. Bearden was the 1985 World Champion and was ranked No. 7 in 1994.

Arnold, 31, earned her touring professional status in 1994. She began playing as a teenager, took time off to build a business and then returned to pool as a serious contender in 1992. In 1993, she was the Wisconsin State Champion.

Arnold is affectionately referred to by her colleagues with friends as "Barney."

Sweden's Thornfeldt is the 1994 Euro Tour champion and is a seven-time gold medalist and seven-time Swedish champion.

Alexander, 25, rounds out the female sharpshooter squad. She is the newest touring professional whose hobbies include reading, poetry and travel. Alexander earned the amateur nationals title in 1994.

It is the love of the game that Martin hopes to instill in others when they see the ladies perform. He challenges anyone who thinks there is no sport involved to "stand in line and play one of these ladies, then see what is said."

What will be said afterward? It might be called a game, a sport or an art. Or, it just might be the way these women define it - the game of billiards is all three.

New Zealand rips America's Cuppers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The best crew and the best boat that America could offer in the America's Cup were no match for little New Zealand.

Team New Zealand's Black Magic 1, getting some inadvertent help from the spectator fleet, led at every turning mark to rout Dennis Conner's mermaid boat Young America by 2 minutes, 45 seconds in the opening race of the best-of-9 series on Saturday.

On an overcast day with plenty of sea spray, New Zealand got its historic first America's Cup finals victory. New Zealand, population 3.5 million, is the smallest country ever to challenge for the America's Cup, and it's short history in the regatta is littered with failure at the hands of Conner and his cohelmsman, Paul Cayard.

Black Magic 1 proved to be a rocket ship on the three upwind legs of the 18.55-mile Pacific Ocean course. It got some help at the fourth mark from the spectator fleet, which forced Young America to tack into air that had been disturbed by Black Magic 1.

The Kiwi lead doubled from 1:22 at the fourth mark to 2:44 at the end of the windward fifth leg. Race two is scheduled for Monday.

Conner, a four-time America's Cup winner, is making his sixth appearance in the finals in 21 years. His top-notch crew won the defender series aboard Stars & Stripes. But because Stars & Stripes was considered the slowest of the three U.S. boats, Conner made a deal to use defeated rival PACT 95's Young America.

Spurs slam Lakers

2nd round starts in NBA playoffs

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — David Robinson had 33 points and 11 rebounds as the San Antonio Spurs took a 1-0 edge in their Western Conference semifinals series with a 110-94 victory Saturday over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Lakers, who upset Seattle to make it this far, trailed 58-48 at the half but remained close until late. They were behind 80-73 at the start of the fourth quarter and stayed within 10 points for much of the period.

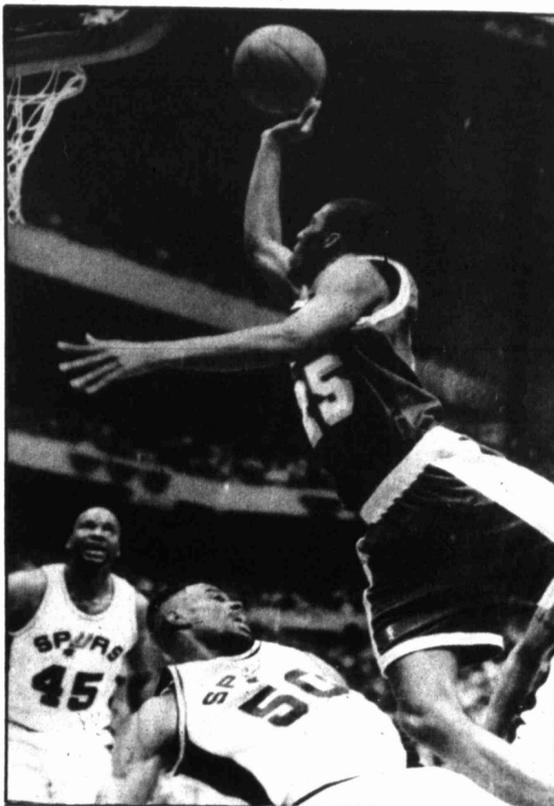

Two free throws with 2:05 left by Avery Johnson, who had 19 points and 12 assists, put San Antonio ahead 102-90 and the game out of reach for Los Angeles.

The best-of-7 series continues Monday in San Antonio.

Robinson took a beating for his work in a roughly played game.

Elden Campbell was called for a flagrant foul with 4:43 remaining for tangling up with Robinson under the Spurs' basket, sending Robinson to the floor on his back, where he lay for several seconds holding his elbow. He returned the game immediately and later said his elbow was sore but all right.

Less than a minute earlier, Dennis Rodman, who had 12 rebounds for the Spurs, got a technical foul for wrapping his arms tightly around the Lakers' Vlade Divac when Divac tried to argue with an official over a traveling violation.

San Antonio Spur center David Robinson (50) takes the charge as Los Angeles Laker Eddie Jones (25) soars to the basket Saturday in Game 1 of the NBA's Western Conference semifinals. San Antonio won 110-94.

The Lakers' George Lynch left the game early in the third quarter and didn't return after getting knocked down when Robinson hit him in the chin with his wrist as Robinson quickly turned around under the basket.

Campbell scored a playoff career-high 29 points and had 10 rebounds, while Divac scored 25 points and had 11 rebounds and Nick Van Exel had 16 points and 12 assists for the Lakers.

The teams were tied 30-30 at the end of the first period after an 11-4 Spurs run to end the period. The Spurs went ahead

Golf Roundup

Davies clings to lead at Sara Lee Classic

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Laura Davies knew she couldn't keep up the pace she had set in the first round of the $25,000 Sara Lee Classic.

She shot a 3-under-par 69 Saturday for a two-day total of 11-under 133 that kept her one stroke ahead of record-setting Michelle McGann, who was at 134 after a 65. That came a day after Davies' 64 that was a stroke off the course record.

"The putts just didn't go in today, but when you hole as many as I did yesterday, you can't expect too much. So to be honest, I'm really happy with a 69," Davies said.

She opened Saturday with a three-stroke lead. She birdied Nos. 6, 7 and 8 but missed four birdie chances on the back nine. One was on the par-5, 480-yard 11th when the ball made a 180-degree turn around the lip and came out.

Davies hasn't had a bogey in 36 holes, a trend she wants to continue Sunday. She is trying to become the tournament's first repeat champion.

Georgia club pro leads BellSouth

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Stephen Keppler, a local club pro, shot a 5-under-par 67 Saturday and gained a share of the lead with Jim Gallagher Jr. after the third round of the BellSouth Classic.

Keppler, 34, a British citizen who played college golf at Florida State and elected to be a club pro when his one year on the European PGA Tour wasn't fruitful, had four birdies in a row on the back side and capped his round with a 35-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

Gallagher, who had shared the first-round lead, posted a 68, leaving the leaders with a 13-under-par 203 for three trips around the hilly 7,018-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Meagan Stanley, a 15-year-old freshman at Forsan High School, discovered nine months ago she had Ewing's sarcoma, a form of cancer. She has received support from such diverse sources as President Clinton and Rush Limbaugh.

STEP ON CANCER

For cancer patients like Meagan Stanley, each small step in the Relay for Life could be a giant leap toward recovery

Story by Barbara Morrison

In a day when turmoil and disaster seems steeped all around us, a light shines forth in Howard County. That light is attached to the body of a very positive, creative 15-year-old girl who attends Forsan High School.

The motto the girl uses is! simple. "Yard by yard, life is hard. Inch by inch life's a cinch."

While these words may not have great meaning to everyone, FHS freshman Meagan Stanley, daughter of Cinda and Dickey Stanley, has come to appreciate the statement in every aspect of her life. Nine months ago, Meagan was diagnosed with Ewing's sarcoma, an adolescent cancer.

"I don't want people to look at me and just see the disease," Meagan said. "I've made it my goal to be as positive as possible through it all. There have been some rough times, but there have been a lot of good times, too."

The rough times include week-long stays in Dallas for chemotherapy treatments which have taken their toll. "I get pretty sick with them, and I have to stay out of a lot of activities if my blood count is low because of the risk of infection," Meagan said. "But the good news is that I only have four more treatments to go!"

Looking at the "good" side is something Meagan seems to do well. "I've had so much support through all of this, I can't name everyone involved," Meagan explained. "I have a special friend named Rusty who stayed with me through everything all of last summer and is still there when I need him. He always has a smile and a joke for me."

Meagan and her mother agree support is the key to surviving cancer. "When this first happened, I was in shock," Cinda said. "We went in to the doctor after months of trying to find out why Meagan was having such back pain. We go in expecting a disk problem and suddenly the doctor says she has cancer."

The outpouring of support from the community has overwhelmed the Stanley family. "We can't thank everyone enough for their prayers and kind words. So many people have done so much," Cinda said.

"At first I was really upset and scared, but I was kind of relieved to finally know just what was wrong," Meagan added. "Then, I just decided I needed a really positive attitude and I wasn't going to let this stop me."

And, it hasn't. So far this year, Meagan was a cheerleader, participated in the band, performed in the one-act play and was a duchess in the Homecoming Court at her high school. "I tried out for the flag team this year because I couldn't make the cheerleader tryouts because I was sick," Meagan added without a hint of remorse. "And I made it!" she added, looking forward to another adventure.

Additionally, Meagan's determination was applied to her academics. "I'm a straight A student," she said quietly. Her 13-year-old brother, Logan, added, "So's her little brother." The two grinned at each other.

When asked if he resented all the attention his sister's illness brings, Logan answered, "It's not bad." Cinda added, "He really kind of likes it because he gets to stay with his friends a lot." And, again, the family smiled.

The Stanley family extends itself to pets, including one dog named Macey and a 4-month-old Oakley, a cockatiel bird purchased to cheer Meagan's spirits. "The whole family loves him (Oakley)," Meagan said. "He's great and he's my friend."

It is not only the support of family and friends which keeps Meagan focused. "I decided right away I didn't want to miss school any more than I had to and I definitely want to stay in with my friends."

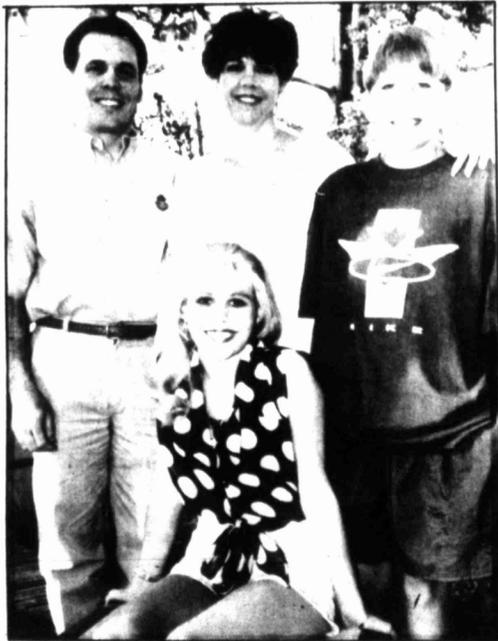

Meagan applauds her home school teacher, who she said is a role model and another source of immense support.

"I've learned I just have to take one day at a time," Meagan calmly explained. "No matter how you act, you're still gonna have the disease, so why get depressed? Just get through it happy and it'll get better." Cinda added, "We've learned that as with anything, attitude is 90 percent. At first I wondered why this happened to one of my kids and not to me, but there is a reason for everything. Maybe it's because Meagan's attitude is so great. Some good will come."

Meagan's goal is to finish school and continue college. Her plans are to become a physician - perhaps a radiologist. "Everyone has been so good to me. I'd like to try and give back a little," she said.

It is that same spirit of "giving back" which the family will take to the American Cancer Society's Relay For Life, scheduled for May 19 at Big Spring High School's Blankenship Field. The family plans to walk in Meagan's honor and to honor others facing life's troubles.

So, what advice would she offer others facing difficulty? "Face it with faith, trust and a daily smile," Meagan said. After all, "Inch by inch, life's a cinch."

Meagan's father Dickey, mother Cinda and brother Logan have stood behind her and been a source of strength during her battle with cancer.

Meagan relaxes in her room with a book and a visit from Macey, her pet cockatiel.

How to put a size nine foot into a size 10 mouth

Fools. Through the years I've notice people who belong in that category are not exactly a rare delicacy. Fools come in all sizes, all shapes, all ages, all nationalities. Just about anyone at anytime qualifies to be a fool.

Webster's Dictionary defines the term as "a silly person."

Over time, I rather think the term has gained some undefined dimension.

For example, when I am driving, I see lots of fools. The person who drives really slow in a 45-mph speed zone and then makes a right turn from the left hand lane just as I am about to pass him on the right qualifies as a fool (to say the least).

Barbara Morrison
Columnist

Or, my hubby sees fools who change the shape or color of their vehicle to something rather more exotic.

You see, he is a certified master technician and can see no place for people who add hydraulics to their cars in order to see the car jump up and down at stop lights.

I tried explaining to him that it was a matter of taste, but he won't listen. But, I guess the way he sees it is that he can restore a very old car and that means he is working on a classic, but if someone bounces their vehicle and plasters it with some really neat paint job, that is foolish.

Yeah buddy, I think I've got it now... Spending money to restore a classic truck rather than buy whole milk isn't foolish.

Even children qualify as fools.

This past week, I saw some little boys who tore my gut in two. They all used to be friends - spending the night together, working on school projects, and even helping each other with homework.

They all hated girls together and spent most of their time laughing and enjoying each other.

But then, baseball began. The little group of boys were separated and each one was placed on a different team.

Suddenly, the friendship ended and the fighting and over-zealous competition set in. They weren't friends anymore.

I see it as a tragedy. The turmoil got so bad that a father of one of the boys made a comment during a game which he thought was meant to "coach" the kids.

He simply said "See what happens when you hold on to the ball..." but the child was so angry with the father's son that he became vindictive.

So, the boy claimed the father was a "drunk" and destroyed the other little boy's friendship forever.

Why? Fools, perhaps. But the price of foolishness can last a lifetime.

One of the worst cases of foolishness I have come across lately involved a self-righteous, big-mouthed, reactionary woman - me.

I'm almost embarrassed to tell you what I did, but maybe if I blab to the world, I'll hesitate next time before I insert a size nine piece of leather footwear into a size 10 mouth.

Anyway, I had been wronged. Believe it or not, when you write for the newspaper, people tend to judge what you write as being an extension of you.

So, one time after I wrote a story, a small group of people got very irate and called the newspaper about what a disservice they thought I did.

I was distressed. Then, one of the men involved continued to talk about what a "bad person" I was. Well, I was enraged...and I set out to straighten him out.

One night at a baseball game, I asked a friend who this guy was, since I had never met him. She pointed out a man standing against the fence. Okay, I was ready.

When the game ended, I marched up to him, barely able to breathe, popping blood vessels in my face and spouting off.

"I'd like to introduce myself to you since you seem to have taken such a dislike to me," I wheezed. "I'm Barbara Morrison." The man looked blank and said nothing.

"You know," I said, trying to explain. "The lady you seem to continually bad mouth, I'm finally glad to face you, Mr. ..."

"I added.

"Who?" the man asked calmly. Gulp.

Guess what...I had the wrong guy, and I ate an instant piece of humble pie. And you know what else? I can't even remember why I was so angry in the first place.

Oh, foolish me.

THE MARSHALLS, THEN AND NOW

L.L. (Buddy) and JoAnna Marshall will celebrate their 50th Saturday, May 13, 1995, with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Community Center, hosted by their children. All friends and family are invited to attend.
Linoel Litter (Buddy) Marshall was born in Roswell, N.M., in 1928, and she was born as JoAnna Dunnam in Graham in 1930. The two were introduced by a mutual friend at a theater in Winters two days after she moved there.

They were married May 12, 1945, in Abilene in the home of Rev. W.C. Ashford. The early years of their marriage were spent in Winters, Abilene and Pampa before moving to Big Spring in 1953. They have three children, Ann Brumley of Seymour, Terry Marshall of Big Spring and Randy Marshall of San Angelo. They also have seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mr. Marshall worked for Cabot Carbon Black Corp. for 32 years, retiring in 1980. He enjoys repairing and rebuilding wrecked cars. Mrs. Marshall had been a homemaker caring for her family.

The Marshalls are charter members of the local Western Drifters Travel Club. They enjoy traveling in their motor home visiting family and friends, as well as spending time in their home in Cloudcroft, N.M. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are affiliated with the Church of Christ.

When asked to share their philosophy of marriage, they replied, "Never go to bed angry, always communicate, and accept each other for what they are."

WEDDINGS

Ward

Donna G. Ward and Lt. Mark V. Ward, both of Ft. Bliss, El Paso, renewed their wedding vows May 6, 1995, at Calvary Baptist Church, with Rev. Herbert McPherson, pastor, officiating.

She is the daughter of Kathy and Ben Daughtery, Big Spring.
He is the son of Lois Ward and the late Thayer Ward, Ridgefield, Wa.

The couple stood before an altar of spring pastel flowers, bows and ribbons. Doug Ashby, brother of the bride, was the vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a pastel pink Victoria-style, tea-length dress with a handkerchief hem, beaded and sequined with a leg of mutton sleeves. She carried a bouquet of mixed pastel spring flowers.

Matron of honor was Sandi Dean, sister of the bride, Big Spring, and bridesmaid was Candi Patterson-Ward, daughter of the couple.

Flower girl was Dalynn Edmonson, niece of the bride.
Best man was Bob Dean, brother-in-law of the bride, and Jeremy Ward, son of the couple, served as groomsmen.

The usher was Toby Rodriguez, cousin of the bride.
Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall.

The wedding cake was three-tiered with pastel flowers and a satin bell topper used on their wedding cake 10 years ago. The groom's cake featured U.S.

MR. AND MRS. MARK WARD

Army colors and was decorated with gold caduceus.

The bride is an honor graduate of Coronado High School, Lubbock; McMurray University; Mary Meek School of Nursing at Hendrick Medical Center, Abilene, where she was valedictorian; University of Maryland and University of Texas. She is a registered nurse, certified social worker associate and a certified medical case manager.

The groom is a graduate of Ridgefield High School, Ridgefield, Wash., and University of Oklahoma. He is a military medical officer in the U.S. Army.

Following a wedding trip to Washington, the couple will make their home in Vilseck, Germany.

Doing it yourself? These tips may save time, money

The home of architect-builder Glenn Pollock and his wife, Judy, is a very personal expression of a couple of artistic people with a definite sense of what they want in their own residence.

In the course of building, they have incorporated a number of custom details, outlined some shortcuts and developed some design maxims to help other would-be remodelers.

Some of Glenn's architectural projects have been featured in a number of Sunset Books and West Coast newspapers. Here are some of their tips:

Put your money where you can see it:

•Smooth-finish Sheetrock, when trimmed out with wood, has the look and feel of plaster walls.

•Use of modular cabinets permitted the "cloud-lift" arrangement (staggered heights) of wall cabinets.

Be creative:

•Use 12-inch deep wall cabinets as base cabinets for a built-in dining room buffet. Go custom with doors, if you wish.

•Simple tile work is easy to master and has a more expensive look than plastic laminate at similar cost.

•For uneven sized tiles, like Mexican pavers, consider a running bond pattern — it breaks up the lines of grout so that tile alignment is not so critical.

•For advanced tile work, get samples and cut out a bunch of the shapes from colored cardboard or paper and play with the combinations.

•White plastic fluorescent light fixture grills can be used for supply and return heating outlet covers. Frame with wood trim.

•Lacquered common copper pipe can be glued with epoxy to form shower rods, bath towel bars — even parts of light fixtures.

•Elevating the refrigerator 9 inches off the floor makes for easier access to lower shelves. ("If I'd thought of it early on, I would have put a drawer under there for more storage," Glenn says.)

Be practical:

•If you are doing your own wiring, maximize outlets and lighting. You can always turn off lights if they're there, but you can't turn them on if they're not there.

•One outlet in each room at switch height eases the chore of vacuuming.

•Beams, girders and headers can be built-up from 2-by-lumber. It's much easier handling 2-bys than solid 6-by-8s or 6-by-12s.

•Butt joints, which are easier than mitered joints, simplify the application of wood trim.

•Use standard-dimension lumber for trim. The Pollocks used 1-by-4s for horizontal trim and ripped 1-by-6s in half (about 2 5/8 inches) for vertical trim.

•Don't fill finish nail holes with matching putty immediately. The wood will lighten or darken with age but the putty won't. The Pollocks stopped filling the nail holes: "After a while you never notice them."

And finally, estimate your costs and time — then double them.

Slipcovers give couches casual chic

By LISA MCKINNON
Scripts Howard News Service

With spring winds blowing in warmer weather, it's time to slip into something casual yet chic.

Not you. Your couch. Generations ago, slipcovers were nondescript lengths of fabric that people threw over their formal velvet sofas to protect them from harsh sunlight as the seasons changed and the days grew longer.

Today, slipcovers are seen as a fashionable and relatively inexpensive alternative to reupholstering according to seasonal whims. They're also pretty good at hiding those mysterious stains on the old couch your significant other has had since college and refuses to give up.

Ready-to-slip slipcovers, some with elasticized skirts designed for use by even the most but-terfingered of do-it-yourselfers, can be found in prints, solids and stripes at discount stores.

To help spread the redecorating-by-slipcover gospel, Sure Fit has produced a 12-page guide with measuring instructions and tips, as well as a six-minute video illustrating the proper use of tucks, folds and spiral fasteners.

The guide is $2. The video is $4.50. Both are available by sending a check or money order to Sure Fit, East Broad and Wood Street, Bethlehem, Pa. 18016.

Slipcovers are also available through mail-order catalogs such as Domestications (1-800-782-7722) and Tapestry (1-800-833-9333).

Spiegel's catalog for spring and summer, for example, features inspiring pictures of sunny rooms with love seats covered in awning stripes and romantic florals, or draped in fashionably rumpled pieces of woven damask held in place with tassel pins. Prices range from about $70 (for a chair-size cover) to $150 (large sofa). Call 1-800-345-4500 for catalog information.

love seat that had seen better days.

The houndstooth design of the upholstery had faded from black to tan in places, and the material had absorbed an array of colorful but undesirable stains. Plus, the decorative wooden slats on top of the arms were marked with the water rings of beer cans long since recycled.

Next, we borrowed 3-1/2 yards (at $22.90 per yard) of nubby, pre-washed 100-percent cotton material. The wider width of our selected fabric (10 feet before pre-washing) means that seamless lengths can be used to cover even the largest of sofas. The all-cotton fabric can go into the washing machine and accepts dye well.

We removed the seat cushions and padded the arms with batting. The slipcover material was then laid over the seat and tucked into crevices.

Official Memorandum State of Texas Office of the Governor

The State of Texas is committed to excellence in education. Since the days of the Texas Republic, some parents in this state have chosen to teach their own children, taking full responsibility for their education.

Home schooling, a tutorial method of education, continues to be proven effective by numerous studies. Individual attention and family participation contribute to this success within the framework of family beliefs.

In June 1994, the Texas Supreme Court upheld, by unanimous decision, the freedom of parents to choose this method of education for their children.

It is appropriate to recognize the continued growth and the importance of the home school sector of education in Texas.

Therefore, I, George W. Bush, Governor of Texas, do hereby proclaim May 7-13, 1995 as:

TEXAS HOME EDUCATION WEEK

In Texas and urge appropriate recognition thereof.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 27th day of April, 1995.

Mothers need nurturing, too

I got a call that my mother was not doing well in Fort Worth, so we drove there one icy early morning, picked her up and brought her west. She weighed only 73 pounds and was disoriented. We found she had not been eating properly.

Tumbleweed Smith
Columnist

My mother is 84 and has lived alone since my father died in 1975. She took care of her yard until two years ago. She even mowed the grass. She has worked in the Beginner's Sunday School department of Connell Baptist Church for about 30 years and is an active member of the North Fort Worth Women's Club. Fiercely independent? I'm not so sure. I think she was tired of taking care of the house.

We took her to the emergency room of the hospital after she began to have a spell of irrational behavior. She was afraid someone had stolen everything she had: her money, purse, car, everything. They hadn't. The hospital has a special unit that cares for older people with problems like my mother was having. She volunteered to be admitted and stayed there two weeks.

During that time, we considered what was going to happen after she got out of the hospital. She was not ready for a nursing home and because she had led such an active life, we didn't want to cramp her style by inviting her to live with us. But we wanted to be able to keep a good watch over her.

We chose a retirement center just a few blocks from our house that serves three meals a day to its residents and has a nursing service on premises. We went to Fort Worth to get some of Mother's furniture so she could feel at home in her new place. While loading up, we noticed the house was in a mess. We decided to clean it up.

During 50 years in one place, you accumulate things. Like Christmas cards from 1951. Or bank statements and canceled checks from 1960. And costume jewelry. And clothes. And purses. And shoes. And hats. And Christmas decorations. And plastic flowers.

And all kinds of doo-dads. Like a snuff bottle with decouped birds on it. Or a brick wrapped up in green felt material that had a holiday greeting printed on it.

We found deeds to properties my parents owned, marriage licenses, birth certificates, funeral notices, certificates of recognition from various groups and hundreds of photographs of family members from past generations. I was plowing through the family history. We tried to be as judicious as possible with the items we found. "Is this important?" "Should we keep this?"

We threw away many Christmas decorations made from the plastic found on six-packs. And we discarded a bunch of junk. What we didn't keep or throw away, we took to the North Fort Worth Women's Club for the annual rummage sale. We'll probably have a garage sale of our own.

My parents made a super team. Everybody liked them. I never heard them argue. They were sweethearts until the day my dad died. The cards and letters I ran across all had some sweet message of appreciation to them for being who they were.

It was a great experience reading the expressions of love. It was a month ago that we made that early morning trip to pick up my mother. She is loving her new apartment with the familiar furniture. It is very straight and organized. She has made an amazing recovery and has no signs of confusion.

Crafts and Plants will be on sale noon-6 p.m. May 8 in the Activity Building multi-purpose room. The sale is open to the public and signs will direct guests to the building. There will be unique gifts and plants available for Mother's Day. Refreshments will be served.

The Women's Group, a peer support group, will be hosting a Mother's Day Tea 2-3 p.m. May 14. Patients are making corsages in art classes for the occasion. The patient council recently sponsored a talent show and a car wash to raise funds for special projects.

The Texas Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation approved a re-engineering of the agency's central headquarters. The agency's efforts will be refocused to respond to the changing managed care environment while providing increased accountability to Texas taxpayers. The reorganization proposed by Commissioner Don Gilbert and approved by the board on April 7 is expected to take effect over the next 120 days.

Robert von Rosenberg, has been appointed to the transition planning for Central Office reorganization.

"It is my intent to use existing staff wherever possible. Some leadership positions will go away, but we'll remain. We'll advertise positions within central office and give options to make transitions wherever possible," Gilbert stated.

Fresh breath can be yours

By JENNY STRASBURG
San Angelo Standard-Times

SAN ANGELO — Some may hear the painful news from a friend or a spouse, and they may never again leave home without an armory of chewing gum and breath mints.

Bad breath is a problem for millions of people, but it doesn't have to be that way for most, according to a San Angelo dentist.

Dr. Donald Shaw's dental practice has a new arm: The Fresh Breath Center. It's an additional service he has taken on which required learning to use a small piece of equipment called a Halimeter (pronounced hal-IHM-uh-ter), as well as looking at bad breath in a new way.

Shaw said the Halimeter (a brand name) is still new to dentistry; only about a dozen dental offices nationwide currently use the equipment, as far as he knows.

The purpose of the Halimeter and The Fresh Breath Center is to diagnose and treat the true — and often overlooked — causes of chronic, offensive breath.

The first step is to pinpoint, as best possible, the cause and severity of a patient's halitosis.

Lots of people think, "OK, it's going to be me and the Certs for life," Shaw said.

"The back of the tongue is often the main offender," he said. "It's like a thick shag carpet, and it's hard to get to."

San Angelo dentist Dr. Don Shaw demonstrates the Dentacam on dental hygienist Terri Mann. Shaw uses the instrument to locate sources of bad breath in his Fresh Breath Clinic.

pet, and it's hard to get to."

The carpet is made of tiny, fingerlike tendrils. Trying to reach them trips the gag reflex.

Furthermore, mouthwash, breath mints and gum can help temporarily, but usually they just mask the odor or kill only the most accessible bacteria.

To take the guesswork out of bad breath, Shaw attaches a small, flexible drinking straw to his Halimeter.

The straw is placed in three spots: at the front of the tongue, as close to the rear of the tongue as possible and (with a new straw) up the nostril a few centimeters.

During the process, the patient neither inhales nor exhales; the Halimeter provides its own slight suction.

Then Shaw has the patient breathe into a plastic bag; he then analyzes the expired air trapped inside the bag. But only in rare cases is the air in the bag the key to bad breath, Shaw said.

The Halimeter measures the occurrence, in parts per billion, of volatile sulfur compounds, Shaw said, working much like the "breathalizers" which measure blood-alcohol content.

They result naturally as bacteria called anaerobes break protein from food and sloughed tissue. The dying bacteria release the offensive-smelling gases which, if plentiful enough, present themselves as bad breath.

Often, said Shaw, "It's a real emotional issue."

The Halimeter can be valuable, Shaw said, but it shouldn't stand alone.

A complete dental examination is required to explore other possible causes of halitosis such as tooth or gum disease. Furthermore, halitosis originating from the sinuses, lungs or stomach — places other than the mouth — can be signs of more serious medical problems.

But the majority of halitosis cases do originate in the mouth and are manageable through daily routine, Shaw said.

Pecan tree spray date set for May 21

Special to the Herald

The 1995 spray date for the pecan nut casebearer has been set by Dr. Charles Allen, extension entomologist from Fort Stockton, as May 21.

A "give-or-take" period of four or five days is recommended by Allen, because of variance of bud breaks. He recommends pecan growers closely check egg-laying of moths in their trees and base exact spraying on findings.

A sampling plan has been developed to determine if infestations are large enough to destroy 5 percent or more of the nuts expected to be harvested.

1) Begin searching for eggs at least a week before the predicted date of first nut entry. Tag egg-infested clusters to monitor egg hatch.

2) Begin intensive sampling when the first casebearer eggs hatch. Examine 10 nut clusters per tree. A cluster is considered infested if it has a casebearer egg or nut entry.

3) If fewer than two clusters per tree are infested, sample again in three to five days or one to two days before the first significant nut entry as predicted by the computer model.

4) Treat if two infested clusters are found (two out of 10 examined clusters) and sample a third time two days later. A third sample is especially important if cold, rainy nights have delayed egg laying.

5) Pecan nuts should also be examined for second-generation casebearer eggs about six weeks after first-generation eggs were found. Treatment should be considered if 2 percent of the pecans are infested with eggs.

6) A third treatment is sometimes warranted if a third generation of this pest occurs. This should be done about six weeks following the second treatment.

Lorsban is the chemical treatment of choice for commercial growers. Backyard tree owners should consider one of the several "BT" products available now on the market. Examples of these are Dipell, Agree and Javilin.

Don't forget to incorporate NZN in your spray programs to help correct any zinc deficiencies in young pecan trees, especially. NZN can be mixed with insecticide to save extra spraying of your trees.

The Texas Pecan Growers Association's 74th Annual Conference and Trade Show will be in Odessa at the Holiday Inn Centre this year on July 9-12. Registration forms and schedules are available at the County Extension Office and must be sent to College Station for advance registration.

Please call 264-2236 for a copy of this form if you need one.

Are your plants sick? Give them good old-fashioned aspirin

By STEPHEN STRAUSS
Toronto Globe and Mail

Jocelyn Malamy has some words of wisdom for gardeners suddenly confronted with mysterious blights and diseases: "Whenever I find that my house plants are starting to develop something I don't recognize, I give aspirin to them."

What does aspirin — or, in generic terms, aspirin's core ingredient salicylic acid — do for plants? The answer seems to be that salicylic acid is a major component in activating the immune system of most plants.

John Ryals, vice-president of research at the Ciba-Geigy Corp. agricultural biotechnology research unit in North Carolina, predicts that within two years his company will sell chemicals to grain farmers to mimic the immunological kick of salicylic acid, induce higher resistance to disease and so reduce pesticide use.

Ciba-Geigy is also studying whether it can breed or bio-engineer plants with high levels of salicylic acid in their leaves. Studies show that this should make them naturally more resistant to bacteria, fungus and viruses.

The modern unraveling of the substance's role in the plant immune system occurred almost by accident. In the 1970s, British plant virologist Ray White was trying to explain to his mother his search for a substance that would protect plants from viruses. She told him that she already knew the answer: It had to be the aspirin she added to cut roses to keep them fresh.

In 1979 White published a paper showing that aspirin was indeed able to induce resistance to a virus on tobacco leaves.

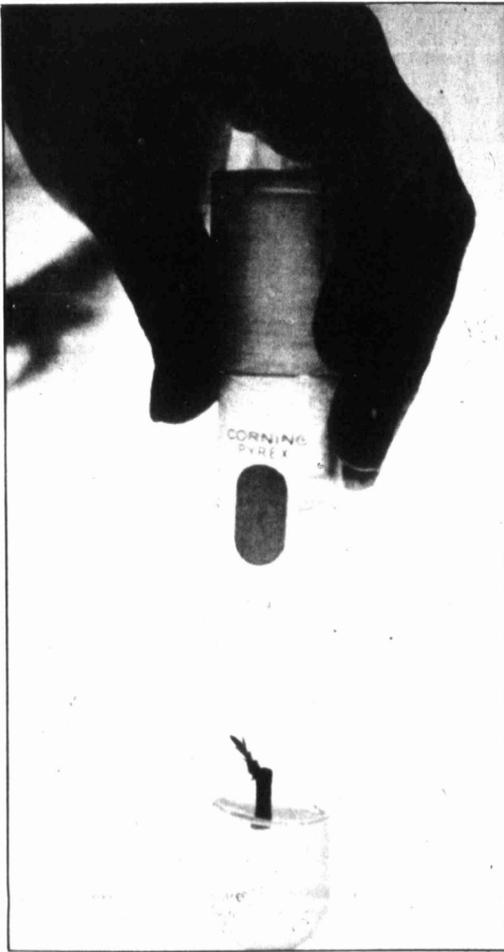

Dr. White's paper caught the attention of other researchers, most notably at Ciba-Geigy and Rutgers University in New Jersey. What they were trying to discover is how plants were able to confer increased resistance on leaves or bark far from the site of an attack by animals or insects.

Unlike animals, plants do not produce antibodies that rapidly immunize their entire systems. Studies of tobacco, cucumbers, tomatoes and other plants have shown that salicylic acid is crucial in beginning the process of what is called systemic acquired resistance.

Stinky situation signals skunks

Spring has always been a time of pleasant and enjoyable events. Beautiful flowers, singing birds, fresh air and other creations seem to fill our minds when we think of spring. However, when you add dust storms, pollen and skunks into the picture, things seem to get a little on the nosy side. We have had an abundance of calls this past week concerning skunks.

Michael Kelsey
Extension Agent

Skunks, like every other animal, become very active in the spring and summer when food is more readily available. They are not hibernating animals like bears, but they do tend to slow down their eating habits during fall and winter months.

Now most sane human beings have no desire to ever cross paths with a skunk.

I have even heard of people totaling their vehicles to avoid hitting a skunk ambling across the road. Doesn't it seem weird, though, that the things we try to avoid, don't try to avoid us.

Skunks have an easy time retrieving food from trash cans, camping sites, lawns, dog dishes and other accessible grocery outlets.

Skunks are a nocturnal creature and usually take every precaution to avoid being caught.

Many skunk problems are related to another landscape pest. It seems that the common grub worm is not only juicy and tasty, but easy to dig up, thereby destroying the turf. When most folks control their grub worms, they also eliminate their skunk problem.

Easy enough, right? It also seems that skunks love to burrow under houses and barns and anything else they can get their little selves under to make a den. This can become a real problem not only to the nose but in terms of rabies as well.

Many of the old-timers will tell you to use moth balls to keep the skunks out. This works for a time, but the repellent must be updated on a continual basis and serves only as a temporary relief of the problem.

The best measure to prevent skunks from denning up with you is to ensure no open doors, cracks or crevices can be found.

Skunks are a unique critter to say the least. No other creature in this part of the world is so cuddly and cute, yet feared and respected. I must admit running across a skunk family and wanting to keep one of the kits for a pet.

The baby skunk's parent was quick to remind me what her children would grow up to be. It's no wonder Pepe LePew never had a date!

For more information concerning the control of skunks or any other critter causing you some heartache, call the Extension Office at 264-2236 or come by the first floor of the courthouse.

Music of money plays from solid crystal flute

By NATASHA NARAYAN
London Observer Service

LONDON — It's a billionaire's whim, a conceit straight out of "The Arabian Nights": The Sultan of Brunei, the world's richest man, asked craftsman Nick Crabb to make a flute from solid rock crystal.

Now Crabb is looking forward to carving other instruments for the first rock crystal orchestra.

The sultan's flute was made from a piece of rock crystal specially shipped from South America, cut and fashioned into a tube. Crabb's partner, goldsmith Graham Forward, finished the fittings with translucent blue enamel and 18-carat gold, inset with diamonds.

The final cost ran into tens of thousands of dollars.

"Its sound quality is that of a baroque flute," Crabb says. "But it is an incredibly beautiful piece. Its main purpose is as a collector's item."

This is one of Crabb's first forays into the realm of private commissions, from clients able to pay astronomical sums. The clients are some of the world's wealthiest individuals.

Their caprices — mirrors weighted down with 10 tons of gold, Faberge eggs with four-foot carriages inside — are often frankly bizarre. But often, ostentation is seldom the motivation.

Crabb and Forward work in a modern-day artisans' village in Farringdon, central London, which is said to have an income higher than many blue-chip companies. Traditional and obscure skills are kept alive here.

The center's inhabitants range from the theatrical costumiers who made outfits for the "Batman" and "Alien" films to the only musical box restorer in Britain.

"So many things are made purely for expediency these days," he says. "But people still desire things that are made with passion and skill."

TEC hosting farm labor training seminar

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Texas Employment Commission will host West Texas' first Farm Labor Training May 17 and 18 at the Ollie Liner Agriculture Center in Plainview, and expect capacity crowds for the two-day event.

Texas employers and endorsed by the United Farm Workers' Union and the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Association.

It will also bring together representatives from the Texas Department of Agriculture, the Internal Revenue Service, Texas Workers' Compensation Commission, Texas Department of Human Services, Texas Department of Health, the Department of Labor's Employment and Training and Wage and Hour Divisions, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

According to James J. Kaster, TEC's Commissioner Representing Employers, this type of training benefits everyone.

"There are a lot of laws covering employers in the agricultural sector. If the laws are to serve their purpose, which is to ensure a prosperous and safe industry, then voluntary compliance that results from educating employers about these laws will mean a stronger and healthier economy for all Texans," Kaster said.

One of the biggest draws of the training is the special "Train the Trainer" course for contractors who must teach workers about pesticide handling and field re-entry laws. The Environmental Protection Agency's new Worker Protection Standards Law requires certification in this area.

Contractors from Texas and other states will be able to obtain certification at this event.

The seminar will begin at 8 a.m. May 17, at which time TEC representatives will welcome participants and explain the training format. Seminars will continue until 5 p.m. and reconvene May 18 from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The training is open to employers, workers, and the public for a $5 registration fee.

Going for broke

◆ $5,000 in Lotto tickets but no winners for the system - yet

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

Top Lotto ticket seller - a foregone conclusion?

That's what clerks at Northside Laundromat thought when two men purchased $5,000 in lottery tickets.

Tuesday, the laundromat sold $6,000 worth of tickets between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. This included the $5,000 to two individuals.

The Northside store, 700 N. Lancaster, is in a running competition with a sister store - Classic Laundry, 1107 11th Place - as to which can sell the most lottery tickets.

Sandra Fryar, store owner, said the thing that really slowed the process down was waiting for the machine to print the tickets. It printed 1,360 tickets in one hour.

Why so many tickets at one time?

The two men, from Sweetwater and Big Spring who asked not to be identified, have been developing a wheel of combinations from the 50 Lotto numbers.

With the help of their wives, writing play slips, they waited for the jackpot to swell to a large enough point to justify their effort.

Donna Click, with GTECH, representing the Texas Lottery, emphasizes the men are mature, well off and able to afford the tickets.

Click says the two chose the laundromat because they knew a clerk at a convenience store wouldn't be able to handle the volume of the sale along with other duties, and knew the laundromat had Lotto and would be a good place to get tickets.

Fryar says clerks at Classic Northside and Classic Laundry at 1107 11th Place write comments on their time sheets like, "we're still number one in Lottery sales," having fun with the friendly rivalry.

She says the 11th place location is a new Lottery retailer and is expecting a "beginners' luck winner."

Please see LOTTO, page 10B

Sue Mize and Lila Zamora, clerks at Classic Northside Laundromat, run nearly 1,000 play slips through the Texas Lottery computer Tuesday afternoon. It took the anonymous group nearly three months to fill out the play slips, four hours to run the slips through, which produced over 400 feet of tickets.

Significant changes made to CRP production program

The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), under which producers retired production from over 36.4 million acres of cropland under 10- to 15-year contracts, has three significant changes in it this year," said Rick Liles, county executive director of the Consolidated Farm Service Agency.

Producers with CRP contracts expiring Sept. 30, 1995, can extend the maturity dates for one year for part of all of the land. No new land can be added. Rental rates remain unchanged and crop insurance requirements will not apply to 10-year extensions.

CRP participants have a one-time chance to withdraw part or all of their land from the program.

Not all CRP acreage is eligible for removal. CRP acreage with cover such as filterstrips, waterways, strips along riparian areas, windbreaks, shelter belts, shallow water wildlife areas, certain timber establishments or wetlands and acreage subject to wildlife easements will be required to remain in CRP.

*Sign-up for 1-year extensions and early release from contracts will be announced later," said Mr. Liles.

Concerning the third change Mr. Liles said there will be modified program requirements covering CRP land preparation for fall seeding for producers whose contracts expire this year and requirements.

CRP cover may be destroyed without penalty during the last 90 days of the contract, but not earlier than July 1, to prepare a seed bed for fall-planted crops only. In summer fallow and certain other arid areas, producers may apply for an earlier date than July 1 to conserve moisture.

The only reason a producer may apply for the earlier date is for preparation of seedbed for a fall planting. In some areas, maintaining crop cover till July could effectively prevent the planting of a fall crop.

Producers wishing to begin land preparation before July must obtain approval from the county committee and the CRP rental payment will be reduced, said Liles.

Competition on the rise for rural utilities

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

ROBY, Texas (AP) — Midwest Electric Cooperative runs 2,794 miles of power lines across its rugged terrain of oil derricks and cattle ranches.

Midwest spans parts of nine counties — a long and lonely stretch from Post to Gall to Hamlin — reaching an average 2.03 customers per mile of line.

This electric co-op and 71 others in Texas sprang up after a May 11, 1935, executive order created the federal agency that helped finance the utilities that now serve some 25 million rural Americans.

The Rural Electrification Administration's 60th anniversary comes at a time when the utility industry seems poised to plunge into a more deregulated and competitive arena.

Rural co-ops see themselves as frontier democracies and models of local control. As non-profit entities owned by their customers, the co-ops take the stance of grassroots underdogs holding their own against utilities owned by investors or municipalities.

"The rural people deserve electric power and energy," said Midwest general manager Vesta Orr in Roby, about 20 miles north of Sweetwater. "No one else is willing to provide it."

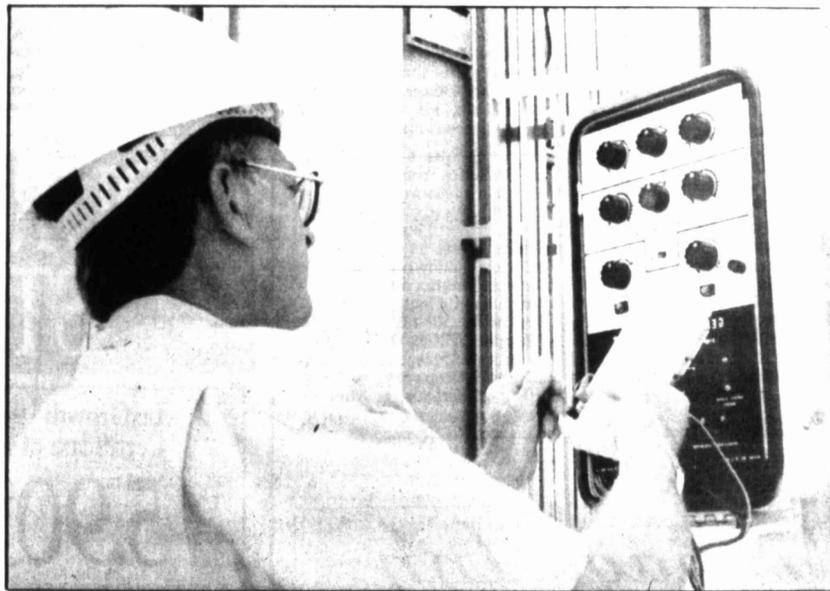

Only 10.9 percent of the nation's farms had central station electric service when President Franklin Roosevelt created the REA, according to the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

The cities, meanwhile, had been lighting up for decades.

But the high costs of reaching people few-and-far-between was making 1930s rural America unattractive to private power companies.

"The idea was, 'Let them use candles.' That was the attitude that forced the creation of co-ops," said Dick Crill, economic development director for Midwest. "If we don't do it, no one else will."

Roby-area residents chartered their co-op in 1938 with a $137,000 loan from REA. That loan was paid off in 1963 as Midwest grew into an entity with $18.7 million in total assets in 1994, according to its annual Jimmy Kiker, operations manager for Midwest Electric Cooperative in Roby checks a substation. Midwest is one of 72-co-ops that serve rural areas of Texas.

Co-op Facts

Facts from the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association

—Rural electric cooperative service territory spans nearly three-fourths of the land area in the United States.

—Co-ops distribute about 7.4 percent of the nation's electricity and serve about 10.8 percent of the population.

—Co-ops own more than 2 million miles of line at an average density of 5.5 consumers per mile. Texas co-ops own 263,000 miles of line to serve 1.1 million meters.

The Associated Press

report. Midwest's capital margins of $640,121 last year went to a refund system for its customers. Every customer gets one vote in the election of local boards of directors.

"There are no Lee Iacoccas in the co-op," Orr said. "You will see the farmer who drives the John Deere tractor."

FAST TRACK BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

TWA may scrap policy on travel agent commissions

TWA, one of the airline industry's weakest carriers, may break ranks with rivals and scrap a three-month-old policy of limiting travel agent commissions, people familiar with its position said.

Such a move could benefit TWA by making travel agents funnel clients to TWA flights. That could severely undermine the airline industry's broad move to reduce costs by limiting the amount of money paid to travel agents, who sell the bulk of airline tickets in this country.

Consumers keep a wary eye on the economy

Consumers kept their eye on the slowing economy during April, shopping hesitantly and leaving the nation's big retailers with disappointing results for the Easter holiday.

Sales figures released by the big storeowners Thursday fell below expectations. The numbers, along with lackluster auto sales figures announced earlier this week, supported the theory that the economy is slowing.

Shopping networks combining

NEW YORK (AP) — Home Shopping Network Inc., one of the two largest televised shop-from-home retailers, said it will combine its two biggest shopping channels into a single service in June.

The home shopping pioneer from St. Petersburg, Fla., said Thursday it hopes the consolidation will eliminate inefficiency and duplication and help it focus on improving sales, which have fallen behind those of its main rival QVC Inc.

Home Shopping's sales rose 7.6 percent to $1.13 billion in 1994 but that trailed QVC's total of $1.39 billion.

BOMB DAMAGE

NEW YORK (AP) — Damage from the bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building will cost insurers between $150 million to $300 million in claims, experts say.

However, estimates vary because some don't include damage to the federal building itself, which is not privately insured.

Also the damage to buildings near the site of the blast is unclear because those within a three-block radius of the federal building are off-limits to all but law enforcement and rescue workers.

Fireworks - to be or not to be this year

Many times we forget how and why something started and what actually takes place to ensure that it will continue. This is where I think the majority are on the Fourth of July fireworks display.

Linda Roger-Walker
Chamber

This event started with Webb Air Force Base as a community service. When the base closed, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce decided that the citizens wanted this to continue, so they took on the responsibility of raising funds and contracting for the performance. The base closed in 1976, so you can see that time seems to go by quickly and people seem to forget.

After a recent meeting and considerable discussion, the Fourth of July Task Force, decided that the citizens of Howard County should be asked if they want the fireworks display and if so, are they willing to pay the cost of $10,000 for it. Local media are running a campaign of asking everyone to call them or the chamber to let them know and to mail donations into the chamber office.

Each year a group of volunteers have taken the task on of asking for donations to pay for this event. At no time, has the chamber financed this event with membership funds.

It seems that the same businesses have ensured that this event continues. Is this fair? Do we continue to go back to our business owners and managers and ask them to give large sums of money for a 30 minute performance? We have tried collecting funds during the display; we have asked for donations from individuals and we continue to run out of time and go back to our businesses.

These questions were asked by the six member task force who are Ray Kennedy, Raymond Martinez, Charlie Marmolejo, Max Moore and Robert Buckner and David Wrinkle. This group decided that the questions needed to be answered by you, citizens of Howard County.

It has been one week since we have begun letting you know that we are asking for help. As yet, the chamber has received less than $200 donations. We have had one financial institute commit $1,000, in needed. The few individuals who have taken time to call state that they definitely think we should have this event.

Any donations that are received will be put in a separate checking account. If we do not receive sufficient funds this year, the task force decided that we should hold these funds and try for the entire amount next year.

The final decision must be made by May 30, so that we can contract with the company that handles this performance.

Folks, the fireworks display is for you and your family. Now you know the cost involved and the efforts that have been made by volunteers of your chamber. The decision is in your hands.

Send your donations to: Fourth of July Celebration, P.O. Box 1391, Big Spring, Texas 79721-1391.

Make your checks payable to Fourth of July Celebration.

Plant mapping results available

The 1994 Handbook of Result Demonstrations have just been completed and are now ready for distribution.

We have had several earlier calls requesting them but due to choosing to wait until the new Extension Computer Program on Plant Mapping was ready for use we are running a little later than usual.

Don Richardson
County Agent

Plant mapping is a new tool that has been developed for cotton producers to help them evaluate their crops. Dryland cotton production is the primary agricultural enterprise in Howard County.

Weather, especially rainfall, is the most important factor limiting yields and profits. Of the factors under the control of farmers, when and what to plant are the most important. Variety tests provide yield information to help growers determine what variety to plant. Plant mapping can be used to get more information from a variety of tests.

Information such as how fast a variety of fruits, how tall it gets, how rapidly it matures a crop and how strongly it holds its fruit can be determined. With this information, Howard County cotton producers can do a better job matching their planting date and other specific needs to a variety, thus optimizing production.

In 1994, Larry Shaw of the Knott community, cooperated with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in a 17 variety cotton evaluation demonstration. Mr. Shaw has been working with us for many years on such a demonstration as this, but in 1994 this demonstration was expanded to include Plant Mapping.

A sample set from each variety was taken (10 plants) on Aug. 4 and Oct. 6, and each plant measured for height and total nodes counted. Each fruiting node was evaluated at each position of possible fruit site with the present fruit (or lack of) recorded using a predetermined system. Dr. Charles Allen, extension entomologist, Fort Stockton, coordinated the demonstration work and was assisted by Stephen Zoeller, Martin County Extension Agent, Doug Paxton, Martin-Midland County Extension Entomologist, Michael Kelsey and Don Richardson, Howard County Extension Agents.

Once each variety was mapped, all information from each plant was used to calculate averages for that variety in determining the maturity and fruit set. Dr. Allen completed data computations and interpretations and Mr. Kelsey wrote up the demonstration for the handbook.

The objective of this demonstration was conducted to demonstrate the effectiveness of the cotton mapping procedure along with providing other valuable information concerning each variety evaluated.

In the hot, dry conditions of 1994, none of the varieties were especially tall at peak bloom. Internode length is a measure of plant stature and sometimes plant stress or vigor. Internode lengths at peak bloom above 1.2 inches indicate growthiness. Internode lengths ranging from 1.1 to 1.2 are optimum.

When internodes length averages .90 to 1.0, stress, lower vigor or a structurally small variety is indicated. Internode lengths below .8 indicate intensified stress, low vigor and/or structurally small variety. In this demonstration, five varieties had internode lengths in the optimum range at peak bloom.

Internode lengths of 1.2 inches were recorded for VR-135, HS-200 and HBX-93-172. Varieties with internode lengths of 1.1 inches were HS-26 and HS-186. Moderate stress, lower vigor or a structurally smaller variety was indicated by peak bloom internode lengths of .90 to 1.0 in nine varieties in this test. Internode lengths of 1.0 were seen in GPX-78587, DP Acala 90, HX-337-B and CB-830. Internode lengths .90 were observed in Holland 850, HX-614-A, HX-821-D and 2679.

The number of nodes above white bloom is an indicator of determinancy (length of season) of a crop. If nodes above white bloom at peak bloom is six or seven, one should expect continued fruiting. If it drops to five, cutout is imminent. If it drops to four, 98 percent of the fruit that will be set is set. At three, the plants are in cutout. On August 4, only HS-200 had a good outlook for continued fruiting with a node above white bloom count of six.

Total fruit was highest on VR-135, but also high on HX-614-A and HS-186. Total fruit counts were moderately strong on GPX-78-587, Tamcot CABCS, CB-830, Holland 1919, HS-200, DP-5409, HBX-93-172, Holland 850, Tamcot CABCS. Moderate high retained fruit was on HX-337-B, DP-90 and VR-135. Highest percent fruit maturity was HS-200 with 91.5 percent of the crop mature on October 6. Except for DP-5409 and CB-830, all varieties had over 80 percent mature bolls.

Regrowth was a problem on some varieties from the August to October measurements. Most varieties showed eight inches or more of growth, but HS-200 and HS-26 grew less than six inches. Varieties showing greater internode lengths may be somewhat more difficult to harvest. These were VR-135, HX-821-D, HS-26 and HBX-93-172. In cases like this producers might consider applications of growth regulating chemicals to shorten

Companies find treasures in other businesses' garbage - and savings

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Roy Carey saves money for his company by going through other people's garbage. He finds foam packing peanuts, bubble wrap, cardboard — lots of useful things otherwise destined for the landfill.

Carey doesn't dive into a single Dumpster. The "garbage" is listed for him in the Business Materials Exchange newsletter, which operates on the premise that one company's trash might be another's treasure.

The newsletter — which celebrates its second anniversary this month — lists both the garbage available from one company and the goods sought by another, from computer disks and gravel to magazines, golf-club shafts, baby food jars and three-ring binders.

"If you want to call it the world's largest continuous garage sale, you probably could — except it's all free," said Carey, vice president of a company called Carousel Mail Group.

Carey estimates the newsletter has saved his business hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars.

More than 150 businesses, schools and not-for-profit organizations have used the service, said coordinator Gretchen Monti. McLean County pays for the $10,000 program, and the Chamber of Commerce distributes the newsletter to about 2,000 businesses.

The program is the brainchild of Ed Harrison, who is always looking for ways to cut costs at his photo-processing business, Darkroom Express.

Harrison uses mailing tubes discarded by a friend, wraps photos in the plastic bags that protect his newspaper on rainy days, gives empty boxes to other businesses, and lets children use leftover cardboard cylinders as pencil holders.

"That's the way my mind works," Harrison said. "There's not a whole lot that I throw away."

There is more than one way to present a resume

By L.M. SIXEL
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON — This fight won't show up soon on Crossfire, but experts offer sharply different opinions on how to organize a resume.

On one hand there're the rugged traditionalists who prefer to highlight work history in chronological order, starting with the most current job and working backwards.

On the other hand, there are the new age resume writers who say it's more important to focus on what you did rather than where and when you did it.

Kathy Watkins didn't hesitate for a moment when I asked the question.

"Chronological, without a doubt," says Watkins, co-owner of the personnel agency Donovan & Watkins. The traditional chronological resume — which lists job title, employer name, dates of employment, job description and accomplishments — is easy to read.

Watkins argues it's too hard to read through functional resumes, which list a series of accomplishments without regard to specific jobs.

You find yourself searching through the list, wondering, "when did she do this, when did she do that, and then piece it together," Watkins says.

Resumes should be easy to read because they open the door to an interview, she says. If a resume is hard to read, an employer has no idea if the applicant may be qualified and may not want to bother to investigate further.

When Watkins sees one of the newfangled functional resumes, she tells a job applicant to redo it.

"We won't send a functional resume to a client," she says.

Robert Gatewood says job seekers should be sending functional resumes.

"Anyone who's looking for an employee shouldn't be looking for years (on the job) but should be looking for an applicant's skills and knowledge," says Gatewood, chairman of the management department at the University of Georgia and author of Human Resource Selection.

That's displayed better on a functional resume, where each on-the-job success is covered in one or two sentences, Gatewood says. That way, an employer can quickly see what an applicant can do.

There's no correlation between job titles and skills, he says.

Functional resumes work well for someone who is switching industries or works for a company that isn't well known, says Joe Collard, senior director of the headhunting firm Spencer Stuart in Houston.

That way, an applicant can show how his skills and experience can transfer to another line of work, he says.

Functional resumes can help those who have frequently switched jobs or have gaps in their resumes, such as for time taking care of their children, that they may want to gloss over, Collard says. A resume emphasizing accomplishments makes it harder to tell where the applicant has been.

Before rushing out to write a functional resume, Collard offers a word of warning — don't make it too general.

Too often, job seekers who send out functional resumes leave out descriptions of the companies where they've worked or where they stood in the organization, Collard says.

HBX-93-172 also fruited well.

Percent fruit retention showed all varieties had lost 50 percent or more of their fruit by October 6, mostly because of hot, dry weather. HS-26 and HBX-93-172 showed the highest percent fruit retention at 49 percent. Only these and CB-830, VR-135, DP 5409, DP 90 and GPX-7857 retained more than 40 percent of their fruit. Percent maturity at October 6 again showed the effects of regrowth. A few varieties, CB-850, Holland 850, HX-337-B and HS-200 maintained fruit maturities above 80 percent.

The 72 co-ops in Texas vary in size from Gate City Electric Cooperative in Childress (1,800 meters) to Pedernales Electric Cooperative in Johnson City (105,000 meters).

An April rate survey compiled by the Public Utility Commission shows generally higher bills for co-op customers, compared to bills for customers served by other utilities.

Co-op officials say they incur higher costs in the process of serving remote populations.

"It's expensive, hard on the equipment, and after you build it you have to maintain it," Orr said. "It takes lots of bulldozers to clear right of way."

Jim Morriss, president and chief executive officer of the Association of Texas Electric Cooperatives Inc. in Austin, said the load for many co-ops is growing as the suburbs encroach on former cow pastures. Virtually all of the state now has electricity, Morriss said.

About 50 percent of the co-ops' capital comes from reserves generated through rates, he said. The rest is borrowed from sources like the U.S. Department of Agriculture's REA, recently renamed the Rural Utilities Service.

Morriss and others point out the role co-ops play in anchoring a community.

Midwest, for instance, helped recruit a prison to its service territory near Snyder. And every year Midwest sponsors an essay contest that sends the teen-age winner on a trip to Washington, D.C.

Co-ops around the country also play catalyst to improve the economy, health care, water systems and cable TV service for their region.

"We always considered ourselves in the quality of life business, along with providing electricity," Morriss said.

The inflationary 1980s caught the co-ops vulnerable due to bankruptcies on the farm and at lending institutions, according to the "Rural Electric Sourcebook."

Glenn English, executive vice president of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association in Washington, predicted that deregulation in the '90s would allow more attacks and opportunities.

English expects increased competition with investor-owned utilities.

"They're the big guys. What they rely on is money," English said. "They've got deep pockets. That's what the struggle for the future is all about: whether money will hold out over grassroots."

Sources said the only proposed merger that looks likely anytime soon in Texas is one joining Midwest with Dickens Electric Cooperative in Spur.

Leslie Kjellstrand, director of public information for the Public Utility Commission, foresees rapid change in the industry. Bills pending in the Texas Legislature would give utilities more choices in buying power wholesale.

The future includes co-ops, she said.

"Co-ops are going to be around for a long time," Ms. Kjellstrand said. "As long as there is a market from rural Texas, they will continue to do so, and they do a good job."

East Texas loggers take advantage of a lack of spotted owls

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — With no spotted owls in sight, East Texas loggers are going after more trees to satisfy demand.

Timber prices in the region have reached new highs and mills are expanding, said Bruce Miles, the Texas Forest Service director.

"We're harvesting at about 110 percent of our annual growth," Miles told the Longview News-Journal. "We're only planting about one-third of what we need to meet the demand."

He said mills in other states are jockeying for positions here.

"We have several other mills that have confidentially approached us about relocating in Texas, and we've frankly told them of our concerns," he said.

Forestry officials said the federal Endangered Species Act, which protects the spotted owl, ended tree harvests in national forests of the Northwest and created great demand for Texas trees.

But the red-cockaded woodpecker, an endangered species, is found in East Texas. The protected bird, which prefers a native ecosystem of longleaf pines, has been the subject of previous battles between environmental groups and the federal government.

Miles noted new or planned timber-processing plants in Carthage, Jefferson, Jasper and Troup, along with a methanol plant in Shreveport with its own wood chip plant.

In other Southern states such as Alabama and Louisiana, harvests have reached as much as 130 percent of annual growth.

In West Coast states, between 50 and 80 percent of the forests are government-owned and thus subject to rules protecting the owl and other endangered species.

Just 7 percent of Texas forests are government-owned, while 32 percent are owned by corporations and another 61 percent are owned by families, individuals and partnerships.

Oregon and Washington once supplied much of the foreign demand for timber. But those trade routes are moving to ports in Houston and Beaumont while many West Coast plants are closing and heading east.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are personality-plus. Follow your instincts. You tackle an obstacle because of your high energy and creativity. Go for a day's journey with friends or experiment with trying things differently. Be aware of what life offers. Tonight: Be happy-go-lucky.****
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cut back and be aware of what a partnership offers you. One-to-one relating is highlighted. You settle a money matter because of a loving gesture. Someone appreciates your way of handling matters. Being vulnerable in a discussion will help you. Tonight: Ooh-la-la!***
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Zero in on what's important; do nothing halfway. A loving attitude opens up a friendship. Go in a new direction. Focus on success and managing matters in a positive way. Trust what's coming up. Bring friends together for a social event. Tonight: Enjoy a night out.****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stay on top of a difficult situation; know what you want. You untangle a perplexing matter. Friends enjoy getting together with you. Invite a couple of co-workers home. Take the lead with an older relative who appreciates your attention. Tonight: Have a spontaneous party.****
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stay on top of a different situation. Zero in on what you know is right. Remain optimistic. Be more playful about a personal matter. Touch base with a friend, and evaluate your desires. Tonight: Reach out to another.****
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): See past the immediate sit-

Resume

And they're often chock-full of bland descriptions that don't say anything.
Don't use platitudes like "strong leadership skills," "excellent communicator" or "works well with people," Colard says.
Instead, be specific. For instance, say your efforts increased revenues by 42 percent or increased market share from 8 to 12 percent, Colard says.
Of course, a list of accomplishments also strengthens a chronological resume, he says.
Chronological resumes work best if a job seeker has had a stable career — a few jobs with a handful of well-known employers.
The clear organization immediately shows where the applicants stand in their career and how they've fared in past jobs.

Lols Crowley likes to play it down the middle.
Crowley, director of the jobs program at Northwest Assistance Ministries, suggests to her clients to send a chronological resume if they're dealing with a headhunting firm or a company's human resources office.
Send a functional resume if you're talking directly to the person who will make the hiring decision, Crowley recommends.
Tailor each resume to the readers. That task shouldn't be too difficult in this age of computers, she says. If you're sending a functional resume, make a master list of accomplishments and pull out the ones that would appeal to each perspective employer.

A young lady Monday afternoon bought a one-dollar ticket and won $50, with which she paid for her GED test, Fryar commented.

What happens after Wednesday night's drawing for the two men since it didn't work the first time?
They plan to do it all over again.

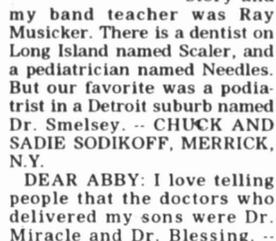

THE QUIGMANS by Buddy Hickerson

What's in a name? Take a look

DEAR READERS: Some time ago, I asked readers to send me names of people whose occupations (or professions) suited their names. Did I get a bushel and a peck! Read on:
DEAR ABBY: In high school, our librarian was named Miss Story and my band teacher was Ray Musicker. There is a dentist on Long Island named Scaler, and a pediatrician named Needles. But our favorite was a podiatrist in a Detroit suburb named Dr. Smelsey. -- CHUCK AND SADIE SODIKOFF, MERRICK, N.Y.
DEAR ABBY: I love telling people that the doctors who delivered my sons were Dr. Miracle and Dr. Blessing. -- LOUISE SKYLER, PORTLAND, ORE.
DEAR ABBY: I am a Realtor and my name is Sandi Lott. I know another Realtor in Palos Verdes, Calif., named Dusty Rhodes. Also, I used a dentist named Dr. Socket, and my obgyn was Dr. Peeke. -- S.L., KIMBALL, NEB.
DEAR ABBY: Re people's names fitting their occupations: Three members of my church are named Angel, Harp and Saint. -- NORMA WINDSOR, DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.
DEAR ABBY: Sir Russell Brain and Sir Henry Head were two prominent neurologists in Great Britain in the 1930s. -- DR. EUGENE KAPLAN, COLUMBIA, S.C.
DEAR ABBY: My dentist in San Francisco is named Les Plack. -- BETH KUPER, OAKLAND, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: In Valdosta, Ga., 12 years ago, I bought a car from someone named Swindle and insured it with the Bill Crook Insurance Agency. (Like "Smuckers," I figured with names like those, they HAD to be good!) -- VIRGINIA T. LOVE, WINONA, MINN.
DEAR ABBY: When my father was a patient in the hospital in Palm Springs, Calif., his dietitian was Miss Hunger. I give you my word. -- JUDGE HENRY LOBIE, SAN FRANCISCO
DEAR ABBY: Add these to your collection: Joe Yawn, manager of a sleep disorder clinic in Jonesboro, Ark.; a Texas psychiatrist named Paul Looney; a fire inspector in Everett, Wash., named Warren Burns; Ralph Watts, a power official in Des Moines, Iowa; L.R. Speedy, of the State Highway Patrol, Canfield, Ohio; and Joe Pigeon, a Key West, Fla., bird dealer. There is also a chiropractor named Bonebreak, a minister named Lord, a dentist named Brush and an undertaker named Dye. -- ED MESERVE, STOUGHTON, MASS.
DEAR ABBY: There is a reputable banker in my hometown named Don Crook, and Paul Kradel is a popular obstetrician. P.S. I own a travel agency! -- SUZANNE B. TRIPP, FORT SMITH, ARK.
Readers: More tomorrow!
To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. Postage is included.)

HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD

Start your ad with the item for sale, service you are offering, or job title of the person you're looking for. Be descriptive. The detail information is what sells the item to the reader. Always include the price of the item. Avoid abbreviations they only confuse the reader. Run your ad for an ample length of time. Remember, always check your ad for correct phone numbers, addresses, etc. on the first day of publication.
