Settles project funding tackled

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Settles Hotel project is online and about to tackle its first major financial hurdle.

Sally Loveland of the National Development Council prepares to meet one of many application deadlines, the first of which is Friday, for partial funding of the project.

She told officials the State of Texas has what are called Housing Trust Funds for rural non-metropolitan communities whereby projects like the Settles Hotel, being renovated into an elderly housing complex, may receive partial funding of up to $300,000.

Loveland was in Big Spring Tuesday and attended the joint meeting with various city/county officials and community leaders.

"As an outsider looking in, I can't tell you how important it is to work together as a community - a public/private partnership - on a project like this," Loveland said.

The NDC, a non-profit firm specializing in economic development and affordable housing, has as been working with Big Spring.

If a plan proposed by city officials comes to life, then the lobby, along with the rest of the Hotel Settles, will become a 60-unit residence hall for the low-income elderly.

'Shots Across Texas' reaches 30 children

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Local health officials are calling Saturday's Shots Across Texas immunization clinic a success.

Thirty children were given 71 shots, immunizing them against such diseases as diphtheria, polio, measles, mumps, rubella and hepatitis B.

In conjunction with the Texas Department of Health's "Shots Across Texas" program, The Rotary Club of Big Spring and

The Greater Big Spring Rotary Club sponsored the immunization clinic at the West Texas Health and Human Services Center at College Park Shopping Center.

The Rotary Clubs joined TDH to help immunize the children of Howard County against the preventable diseases as a feature of their PolioPlus campaign.

The Rotary Clubs had aimed to have 1,000 children vaccinated at Saturday's clinic.

Prior to the clinic John Yater, president of The Rotary Club of Big Spring, said, "Rotary has always been involved in polio vaccination around the world and we wanted to take that worldwide involvement and utilize it locally."

Luanne McCartney of the TDH credited sponsors of the program for its success.

"With their support and donations (more than $600) we were able to purchase a 'spaghetti legs table' for our waiting area, boot-shaped pencils, and bandages for our clinic," McCartney said.

"Also, enough funds were left over and used to supply a necessary medical treatment for a client with limited funds."

She added, "We will probably have another clinic in August when it's closer to time for school to start again. We usually have a clinic in the first or second week in August."

She said the expected numbers of participants at clinics like the one on Saturday are hard to reach because immunization are being done every day of the week and because Big Spring is near the end of a school year.

"When the immunization program was city/county, we only did immunizations half a day on Tuesdays, now that it's a state program I am doing immunizations everyday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., which knocks our numbers down when we have clinics like Saturday. But, kids are still being immunized just the same," McCartney said.

She added many questions have been asked about the chicken pox vaccine.

According to McCartney, the Food and Drug Administration recently approved a new chicken pox vaccine, which should reach Big Spring within six to eight months.

NRA redefines itself in face of controversy

PHOENIX (AP) — For years, the National Rifle Association has defined itself in advertisements that showed ordinary people in nonthreatening poses, cradling guns and proclaiming: "I am the NRA."

With 3.5 million members, the organization proudly says that it represents one out of every 70 Americans.

"It's the preacher up at church, it's the lady at the checkout line, it's the guy who sells hotdogs at the ballpark," NRA spokesman Bill Powers says.

It was a somewhat different image that Wayne LaPierre, the group's top executive officer, evoked Saturday when he asked and answered a question first posed by President Clinton: "Who do these people think they are?"

"I'll tell you who we are," LaPierre thundered to cheering members, in a rhetorical response to Clinton. "We are the people who helped clean out Congress in 1994, and we are going to help clean your clock in 1996."

This is the NRA of the '90s: political, activist and increasingly militant.

That doesn't sit well with all its members. Former President Bush, in one highly publicized example, quit his life membership last week over a controversial fund-raising letter, and on Sunday former House Speaker Tom Foley said he would do the same.

But most of those at the NRA's annual meeting seemed to have accepted the shift as a necessary response to the threat of gun control, which the group has battled relentlessly for most of the last 30 years.

Don Jones is a Phoenix plumber who has been a member of the NRA for about 12 years. He wandered through the vast exhibit hall at the Phoenix Convention Center on Sunday, admiring finely crafted hunting rifles and filling a plastic NRA shopping bag with literature from manufacturers.

The 57-year-old has shot guns since he was 6. He still loves to hunt. But he joined the NRA not for its sporting programs but because he believed it would protect what he sees as his Second Amendment right to own a gun.

"I'm not political-minded, as far as that goes, but the Second Amendment worries me," Jones said. He was asked if he could support any form of gun control.

"I would like to see some control over the so-called assault rifles," he said. "However, I'm afraid if it keeps going, it'll get to me and my 30.06 and my shotgun and my handgun. So I think the place to stop it is at the head."

Jones considers himself politically conservative, and it would be fair to say that most NRA members probably share those views. It was no accident that the keynote speaker at the group's meeting was Sen. Phil Gramm, the conservative Texas Republican running for the party's presidential nomination.

Gramm wowed the crowd with anecdotes about hunting and brought down the house with the observation that his "82-year-old mama has a .38 special and she knows how to use it."

But while Gramm's speech stuck closely to the issues of crime and guns, LaPierre's address strayed into conservative themes entirely unrelated to firearms — unfunded federal mandates, the Endangered Species Act, halfway houses being placed in residential neighborhoods.

"In the end," he said, "it's about all these creeping cancers ... feeding on all the freedoms we once took for granted."

It is this growing conservatism, and sense that the government is an enemy, that worries many people outside the NRA, and a few within it.

Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., appearing Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation," spoke about the weeklong firestorm begun when Bush resigned from the NRA over a letter in which LaPierre referred to federal agents as "jack-booted government thugs."

Settles

Spring officials since last fall on the Settles project.

According to Loveland, projects like the Settles have many type of benefits, including the opportunity to provide low-cost housing for seniors, a chance for the revitalization of areas like Big Spring's downtown area, and they provide jobs.

In determining how much it would cost to renovate a building like the Settles, whether or not a community needs a senior housing complex, if people want the project and will live in the structure, and how much people are willing to pay to live there, Loveland will meet with engineers and architects (as she has done with Big Spring) and develop a floor plan and study the community to get a feel for its wants and needs.

Loveland, who has been in Big Spring several times since last August, said, "People in Big Spring do want the Settles Hotel redeveloped."

In September 1994, she was in town with construction engineers, environmental engineers, and an architect and after consulting with them determined the Settles is a structurally sound building.

She added during that visit the only problems were asbestos removal and the dozens of broken windows in the building, but based on information she had gathered recommended the city proceed with the project.

Loveland told community leaders Tuesday she is excited about working on the Settles because it is similar to the Windsor Hotel in Abilene, which the NDC helped renovate.

"A lot of things go into a project like this, but it takes people working together," Loveland said. "The proof in the pudding is the Windsor in Abilene."

Financing for the project is time consuming because there are several deadlines to be met when submitting applications. Loveland added the next six months or so (May through September) will be spent putting together funding proposals for entities such as the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, as well as various lenders and investors.

Loveland said once financing was secured for the Windsor in Abilene, the project began to move right along.

The Abilene project began in March 1993 and was completed by Dec. 1, 1994.

She added the Settles project will cost approximately $5.2 to $5.3 million and will feature 60 apartment units ranging from $275 per month to $300 per month, a refurbished ballroom, lobby, and penthouse.

Convicted robber dreams of escape

DALLAS (AP) — For Dennis Wayne Hope, each day behind bars is another day to dream of escape.

The convicted robber has succeeded twice, once from Dallas County deputies and again last November from a maximum-security state prison.

Three times a day, guards shake him down, looking for any small implement that he might craft into a key.

Whenever he leaves his cell, at least two officers and a supervisor stand guard. A video camera records his every move. And on the day he goes to trial, he will wear a $675 "stun" belt, capable of shocking him with 50,000 volts should he try to flee.

Residents want haunted timber road left alone

HOUSTON (AP) — The east Texas town of Saratoga is once again up in arms over salesmen who want to cut and sell timber from haunted Ghost Road.

But residents want nothing to spoil the spirit world they claim haunts the eight-mile sandy path that seems more like a tunnel with its thick canopy of trees and other foliage.

For the fifth time in the last 30 years, Hardin County commissioners have moved to sell timber, which could add between $60,000 and $100,000 to county coffers. And for the fifth time residents have objected to removing any of the roadside thicket that provides the spooky ambience.

Hardin County Judge Tom Mayfield has named a committee to hold open hearings and decide on a compromise involving the road.

Man admits $1.5 million airline ticket scam

MISSOURI CITY, Texas (AP) — Shanta Murthy did little to attract attention in this Houston area suburb.

But Fort Bend County sheriff's detectives say the 55-year-old travel agent and father of six took American Express and Airline Reporting Corp., a travel agent commissions clearing-house, for about $1.5 million over the past three years.

"I was amazed," said Detective Tom Honeycutt. "He had no record. He's a family man."

In a statement after his April arrest, Murthy acknowledged stealing about $400,000, but noted that he did not use a gun or hurt anyone and said he would like to repay everyone who lost money, investigators said.

What caught Murthy, who is now free on $50,000 bond, was greed, authorities say.

No Lotto winner; $27 million Wednesday

AUSTIN (AP) — No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth about $18 million dollars.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 4, 7, 13, 32, 33 and 37.

There were 180 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,645. There were 11,356 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $94.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $27 million.

DALLAS (AP) — Prisons: Squalid cells, black-and-white uniforms, tasteless gruel. Cable television, pool tables and New York steak.

Politicians are peddling a new image of justice in America, and an outraged public is eating it up. With it, they are demanding a return to the get-tough policies of the past. And increasingly, they are getting it.

In recent years prisoners have been denied cigarettes in California, coffee in Texas and the right to wear their hair long in South Carolina.

Elsewhere, movements are afoot to deny convicts conjugal visits, TV and weightlifting.

"I don't see why prisoners should eat better than our military troops and enjoy in-cell TV, cable TV and gourmet foods," said Rep. Dick Zimmer, R-N.J., a leader of the attack on prisoners' rights.

"In many ways, the function of prisons has been lost."

In February, the congressman offered an amendment to the crime bill that would limit amenities to the minimums required by law. The House approved the measure without Zimmer's "No Frills Prison Act," but he vows to continue his campaign.

The United States has 81 federal prisons, 1,424 state prisons and in 1993 county and city jails numbered 3,304. Together, they hold about 1.5 million people.

Until the early 1990s, prisons had few amenities. Cells had only a small, narrow opening for light and air. Buckets used for human waste were not emptied for weeks. Many prisoners went hungry and illness went untreated.

Conditions began improving during the early 1990s, when many states introduced education, job-training and recreation programs. Reforms increased in the 1960s after prisoners in New York's Attica prison rioted over race and inhumane treatment.

Now prisoners' advocates are fighting to keep what they won.

"People say, 'Let's take away the privileges,' but aren't putting anything in their place," said Charlie Sullivan,

In April, prisoners in Columbia, S.C. stabbed five guards and held two more hostage for 11 hours to protest a new short-hair and uniform policy.

In Huntsville in March, a racial brawl left one man in a local hospital and caused $65,000 in damage. Six days earlier, prison officials had banned smoking.

Sullivan heads Citizens United for the Rehabilitation of Errants, a national organization of 10,000 people that he grew out of a small San Antonio group fighting the death penalty in 1972.

Now, a lawmaker from the same city is proposing legislation that would ban weightlifting in Texas prisons. The bill is pending in the state Senate.

"A lot of us wish that we had executive director of a prisoners' rights group in Washington, D.C. "You're going to have even more idleness, which I think will plant seeds for more disturbances."

Two recent uprisings, one in South Carolina and one in Texas, give strength to Sullivan's warnings.

the time to work out," said State Sen. Jeff Wentworth.

Some prisoners say the deprivations are the tip of the iceberg as politicians realize that an easy way to maintain political power in the '90s is to propose pro-prison and anti-prisoner measures.

So inmates are fighting the latest proposals, even ones they don't see as personally important.

Take smoking. Inmates are furious after lockups across the country have forced their wards to kick the habit.

Prison officials cite cleanup costs, but there are also health and legal reasons.

Last year, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that exposure to harmful amounts of secondhand smoke can violate an inmate's Constitutional rights.

Inmates, even those who don't smoke, say cigarette bans create unstable prisoners, as well as a thriving black market.

Debbie ditches Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Debbie isn't doing Dallas this year.

When the Video Software Dealers Association opened its annual convention Sunday, the usual contingent of adult entertainment distributors didn't make the trip.

Dallas prosecutors scared off that segment of the video business, convention officials said.

That means "Debbie Does Dallas" and other adult titles won't appear at this year's gathering, which continues through Wednesday.

The 14-year-old convention has taken place in Las Vegas for the last 10 years, but organizers returned it to the site of the first gathering this year.

The VSDA is the trade association for the home video entertainment industry, which organizers say grossed $16 billion last year.

The organization claims more than 3,700 members throughout North America and maintains ties to similar groups around the world.

Prosecutors said they told convention officials that any violation of Texas obscenity laws would be prosecuted.

"We had a very short conversation. We told their representatives in the presence of their lawyer that we'd enforce the laws of this state," District Attorney John Vance said.

"(Adult entertainment producers) were afraid we'd take some kind of action," Lt. John Dagan of the Dallas Police Department said.

"Our position is not to go down there and do surveillance unless an actual complaint from some citizen is made."

Dallas police spokesman Ed Spencer said a convention must follow the same guidelines as any other retailer in terms of obscenity laws.

At least one of the exhibits at the convention featured 16 local elementary students, ages 4 to 9.

Emergency crews remove the body of one of two people killed when an AT-6 naval plane crashed at the Jefferson County Airport near Beaumont Sunday morning, prior to performing in an airshow late that afternoon at the airport.

Two die in air show crash

NEDERLAND (AP) — Two men were killed Sunday when their World War II trainer crashed while rehearsing for an air show at the Jefferson County Airport.

Godfrey Cunningham, a 41-year-old airport employee from Beaumont, and Henry Ketchum Jr., 71, a Dallas pilot, died when their aircraft stalled in midair and dove to the ground about 100 feet from a runway.

No fire or explosion resulted from the 9 a.m. accident involving the AT6 trainer, a two-seat, single-engine plane.

Jim McCoy of Nederland

said he was watching the rehearsals when the accident happened. "There was no way anyone could've survived when it hit," McCoy said.

The wreckage was located less than 250 feet from a nearby housing development.

The National Transportation Safety Board will conduct an investigation to determine what caused the accident. Department of Public Safety spokesman Richard Vasser said.

Jefferson County Airport Administrator Byron Broussard said the pilot was rehearsing with nine other planes for second-day performances at the Jefferson County Air Show. Cunningham had volunteered to fly with the group during the rehearsal.

As the planes began to break formation, someone began calling, "Mayday! Mayday!" over the radio, he said.

"I saw (Cunningham's plane) veer off to the left and then I heard the call," Broussard said.

Despite the tragedy, the pilots decided to continue the air show, which started three hours late at 1 p.m.

Seniors pray openly at graduation ceremony

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) — A judge's reversal of an earlier ruling and an appeals court ruling has allowed about 230 Santa Fe High School seniors, their parents and friends to pray openly during the school's baccalaureate exercise.

In addition to praying openly without fear of arrests, the court actions also allowed those attending Sunday's service to hear a minister speak about the wisdom of reliance on God.

The legal battle began April 4 when two parents, a student and the American Civil Liberties Union filed suit against the Santa Fe Independent School District in federal court.

The lawsuit claimed the school district had violated student's First Amendment rights since 1993.

On May 5, U.S. District Judge Sam Kent issued an opinion that students could pray, but he threatened to jail any student who named a specific deity.

Five days later, Kent reversed his decision, saying a student-led prayer could mention a specific deity, but could not pro-note a specific religion.

The 5th Circuit ruling Friday allowed ministers to recognize school officials during the ceremony.

The school district is still expected to develop a policy on with school prayer, Bible distribution and use other religious materials on campus by Aug. 4.

Excellent education in safe buildings a priority

Runnels Junior High and College Heights, according to the Carter & Burgess, are nearly beyond repair. College Heights has no room for expansion and Runnels is in such a state of disrepair that the school district can't keep up with repairs much less find insurance to cover the building.

The Comprehensive Planning Committee has targeted education as one of its six priorities. This includes programs, funding and infrastructure.

A good school system is vital to economic development. When businesses look at locating in a community, the school system is considered. They check to make sure the schools provide adequately for the children, because often time they will be bringing in some of their own people. Also, they check to see if the schools can provide an adequate workforce.

Big Spring Independent School District and Howard College are working together to implement two programs which would provide for a good workforce - Work-To-School and Tech Prep.

But, as usual, it takes funds to provide these programs and the equipment necessary for training and teaching. The college has reached the limit of its taxing ability and the school district is nearing its limits. Funding is going to become harder and harder to find as schools across the state compete for the few state and federal dollars available for programs and building.

We have to decide how important a good education is to us and to our children. We have to decide if we are willing to spend money making the buildings in our schools conducive to learning.

Voters recently said no to bonds for a new jail but yes to bonds for refurbishing the courthouse, which was also in dire straits.

The school district is considering putting a bond issue before the voters, asking them for funds for repairs. A previous bond issue failed.

During the county's bond election, many people asked why bonds for a jail and not for schools and the children of this community. Aside from the fact the county and school district are separate entities, we were in need of both. As voters, both were rejected.

It's our choice, and our money, as always. But we will have to decide what our priorities are and an excellent education in good, safe buildings should be our top priority.

Pope asks forgiveness for crimes against non-Catholics

OLOMOUC, Czech Republic (AP) — Visiting a land bloodied for centuries by religious wars, Pope John Paul II asked forgiveness Sunday for crimes committed by Catholics against other Christians.

In speeches stressing the need to overcome historic divisions, the pope also pledged to forgive those who caused Catholics to suffer.

The statements came on a day the pope canonized a Catholic priest martyred in 1620 during the Counter-Reformation and who symbolizes the still bitter Catholic-Protestant rivalry in Moravia in the eastern part of the country.

"Today I, the pope of the Church of Rome, in the name of all Catholics, ask forgiveness for the wrongs inflicted on non-Catholics during the turbulent history of these peoples," John Paul said in a solemn declaration.

"At the same time, I pledge the Catholic Church's forgiveness for whatever harm her sons and daughters suffered," the pope declared, speaking from under a white awning during a rainstorm.

The canonization of Jan Sarkander was the highlight of the pope's two-day visit to the Czech Republic. Organizers estimated that at least 150,000 people turned out for the Mass, standing in mud on a grassy airport field.

Sarkander was accused by the Protestant rulers of Moravia of aiding invading Polish Catholic armies. Charged with high treason, he was tortured and died in prison in this city near the present-day border with Poland.

For many Protestants, Sarkander symbolizes efforts by Catholic monarchs to forcefully reimpose Catholicism after the Reformation.

Pavel Smetana, leader of the Evangelical Church, the largest Protestant denomination in the Czech Republic, protested the canonization in a letter to the Vatican and boycotted a meeting with the pope Saturday afternoon.

However, 15 other Protestant representatives showed up for the meeting.

In his sermon, the pope rejected any suggestion that the canonization was meant to reopen "painful wounds," insisting the move was meant to help bring Christians closer together.

Later, at a meeting with young people at the nearby Svaty Kopecek (Holy Hill) sanctuary, the pope said the forgiveness of historical wrongs was essential for nations as well as individuals.

He cited the war still raging in the former Yugoslavia and recalled the reconciliation of Poland and Germany.

John Paul crosses the border to his native Poland for a nine-hour visit home Monday before flying back to Rome.

Ebola may have begun in December

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — The latest outbreak of the devastating Ebola virus may have struck this central African nation as long ago as December, three months earlier than previously believed, medical workers said.

As the death toll hit 101 Sunday, health workers in Kikwit, the city 250 miles east of Kinshasa where the epidemic was thought to have started in March, found hospital records linking the virus to a household of 12 people. Seven family members died in December.

At least one of the victims did have Ebola, and researchers were trying to determine whether the others did as well, the World Health Organization said Sunday.

Doctors said if the victims had little contact with other people and died quickly, the family might not be linked to the current outbreak.

If they had contact, however, the outbreak would be three months older than previously thought.

Four more deaths in the Kikwit area brought the death toll to 101. At least 36 others were infected.

The rising number of deaths prompted officials to speed up the relief effort, flying medical supplies in a day ahead of schedule to help health workers prevent the spread of the virus, said Larry Shreshley, a relief coordinator.

The plane carried face masks, gloves and other protective clothing.

In the past week, relief shipments have supplied 40 bicycles, eight motorcycles and several cars to help investigators search house-to-house for more Ebola cases.

DANGEROUS PROTEST

A truck is engulfed in a flame in downtown Karachi, Pakistan, early today after it was set ablaze by a mob that showed its resentment against killings and arrests of civilians by police. At least six people were shot dead by police today, raising the death toll to at least 30 people since Thursday in a fresh wave of violence.

Biting the hand that feeds

There are members of the new Congress who are willing to curtail government handouts to Americans — while continuing to vote for further handouts to other nations.

These other nations include ungrateful ingrates who accept our money then vote against the United States in the United Nations.

Our State Department's annual report on voting practices in the United Nations is a cumbersome compendium read by almost nobody, but the Heritage Foundation's policy analyst, Bryan Johnson, has waded through it and reduced the essence of it to shirt-sleeve English:

"Most recipients of most United States foreign aid vote against us most of the time."
India will receive 155 million of your dollars in foreign aid this year. India votes against us 84 percent of the time.

Not even Cuba has been more diplomatically hostile!

Russia is no longer the Soviet Union. The Russians are now the good guys, who accept our foreign aid and are presently demanding more. Russia last year voted against us 33 percent of the time.

Our government is sending your money to 113 other countries. The 10 benefiting most from your generosity are Israel, Egypt, India, Peru, Bolivia, Bangladesh, Ethiopia, Haiti, South Africa and the Philippines.

Only Israel voted with us 95 percent of the time. All of the other nine bit the hand that feeds them. Egypt voted against us 64 percent of the time, yet Egypt will be rewarded with another $2 billion in U.S. foreign aid in fiscal-year 1995.

Peru has voted against us most of the time yet expects to get another 150 million of your dollars this year.

This is not to suggest that our foreign aid is, or should be, expected to buy votes. But this does suggest that we are contributing a form of aid and comfort to potential enemies.

It's axiomatic: The beggar never likes the almsgiver.

Some of the nations I have named actually undermine United States policies abroad.

Of the 113 nations receiving foreign aid from us, most of them have names few Americans can spell: Mauritius, Mauritania, Krygzstan, Rwanda, Swaziland, Comoros, Djibouti, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan.

Yet, in the General Assembly of the United Nations, each of these has a vote as big as yours.

Little wonder we get voted into such uncomfortable overseas commitments!

Jordan supported Iraq against us in the Gulf War. The United Nations has rewarded Jordan with $982,500, claimed by the families of Jordanians killed or wounded in that war.

President Clinton continues to insist that a robust foreign-aid program is essential to our nation's national interests as "an expression of responsible American leadership."

Whom are we fooling? Ourselves.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Connie Chung leaves
'The CBS Evening News'

NEW YORK (AP) — Connie Chung says she was surprised to find out that, starting tonight, Dan Rather will anchor "The CBS Evening News" without her.

"I thought that it was business as usual," Chung said Sunday. "That we were carrying on with the dual anchoring, and everything was fine."

Chung's removal from the network's flagship newscast ends an uneasy two-year partnership that saw viewership plunge.

Meanwhile, her weekly news magazine, the 2-year-old "Eye to Eye with Connie Chung," has been struggling in the ratings and wasn't expected on the CBS fall schedule, to be announced this week.

Chung, who was lured from NBC News in 1989, is now negotiating a release from her CBS contract, which has less than a year to go.

Jesse Jackson leads GOP protest march

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Jesse Jackson and about 300 supporters began a 30-mile march Sunday to protest House Speaker Newt Gingrich and the GOP "Contract With America."

"Rebuild America," Jackson sang to the crowd, bouncing to keep time. "Keep hope alive" and "Boot Newt," the crowd yelled back.

Gingrich, who was in nearby Powder Springs to dedicate a Habitat for Humanity house, had called Jackson's three-day march "PR baloney."

"I think if he spent three days building a home for Habitat for Humanity, he'd be a lot more productive," the Republican said Sunday. "There are all sorts of places the Reverend Jackson and his demonstrators can be helpful if they would focus their energy on action and helping people."

The march, dubbed "From Newt's Nightmare to Dr. King's Dream," is due to arrive at the tomb of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in Atlanta on Tuesday.

Limo driver charged with drunken driving

EVANS, N.Y. (AP) — It's a parent's nightmare: Hire a limo to get the kids to and from the prom in one piece, and the driver shows up drunk.

Police said Paul Dombrowski had a blood-alcohol level of .34, more than three times the legal limit. Dombrowski, 36, was charged with drunken driving and endangering the students.

"The kids were hysterical," Officer Dennis Feldmann said. "They were begging him to drop them off."

They ordered him to stop after he narrowly avoided crashing the limo several times early Saturday, after the prom in this town about 20 miles from Buffalo.

Police said they found an empty one-liter vodka bottle, along with a half-empty bottle, in the limousine.

Human rights groups
criticize Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Human rights groups are criticizing the Pentagon for developing laser weapons with the potential to blind enemy soldiers, arguing that they could open a new, more inhumane kind of arms race.

A decision may come as early as next month on whether to approve full-scale production of an Army weapon, called the Laser Countermeasure System, which fires a beam powerful enough to blind a person 1,000 yards away.

The Army acknowledges the hazard but insists the weapon — and two others it also is working on — are not intended to be used against an enemy's eyes.

Floodwaters recede after rivers crest

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — High flood waters of the Missouri River were receding here today after cresting several feet below the disastrous Flood of '93 levels. Downstream residents were cautiously optimistic, while keeping a wary eye on straining levees and piles of available sandbags.

"Our levees are holding, and they should hold if the weather stays clear," Ste. Genevieve patrolman Alan Davidson said early today. "Everything depends on the weather."

Skies were sunny Sunday, but a chance of more rain was forecast today.

The Missouri crested late Sunday in St. Charles at 36 1/2 feet, 11 1/2 feet above flood stage but almost 4 feet lower the record flood of 1993.

"We won't know what the exact crest is for awhile, but it's cresting now so it shouldn't go up anymore," said meteorologist Anita Silverman of the National Weather Service in St.

Louis. Earlier Sunday, House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt promised swift federal aid during a tour of flood-ravaged areas along the Mississippi.

Gephardt, D-Mo., said it was too soon to know how much disaster relief would be needed or available, but he pledged to push for help from the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

"We will be right on top of people in FEMA. ... We will make funding available," Gephardt said.

Two deaths have been attributed to the Missouri flooding. Gov. Mel Carnahan declared a state of emergency for all of Missouri last Wednesday.

Officials worried that the already-high Mississippi would not be able to absorb the swollen Missouri River, which is running at up to 10 times the normal flows, said Ed Gray, spokesman for the State Emergency Management Agency.

"This will mean a slow fall in the Missouri for now at St. Charles, although we're already seeing some decline upstream," Gray said.

The Mississippi crested at St. Louis on Sunday at an estimated 41 1/2 feet, 11 1/2 feet above flood stage, but eight feet below the 1993 crest.

Authorities in the town of Ste. Genevieve eased Sunday's appeal for volunteers as the threat of immediate flooding passed. "It's just a matter now of monitoring everything," Davidson said.

The French-settled town became a symbol of flood defiance two summers ago by stacking 1.1 million sandbags to hold back the Mississippi. In 1993, Ste. Genevieve raised a levee that held back a 49.5-foot Mississippi River crest.

The town had weeks of warning in 1993 because of heavy rains in upstream states.

An unidentified woman looks at the floodwaters through the window of the Prairie Peddler antiques store in Alton, Ill., Sunday. Sandbags along the front of the building offer some protection from the rising floodwaters of the Mississippi River.

Massive stroke kills Aspin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Les Aspin, who drew political fire that contributed to his departure from the Pentagon, died after suffering a massive stroke. He was 56.

Aspin, an 11-term congressman who looked more like the rumpled professor that he was than like the military leader that he became, was praised by his president and his successor as a strategic intellectual.

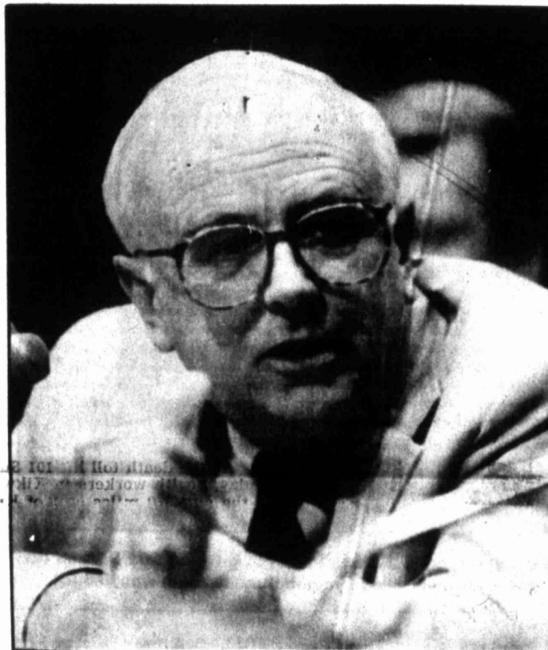

"Les Aspin was unique. He brought the light of his joy in living, and the heat of his intellect, to every occasion. He never met a person who didn't like him. And we will all miss him," President Clinton said in a statement issued by the White House.

Aspin was Clinton's first defense secretary. After he resigned in December 1993, he was replaced by his deputy, William Perry.

Perry called Aspin's death "a loss to the nation, a loss to the men and women of the U.S. military and a loss to me personally. ... The nation has lost a strong strategic thinker and I have lost a valued friend."

Navy Secretary John Dalton said Aspin "was unsurpassed in his passion for an efficient and effective armed force."

At the time of his death, he was the head of President Clinton's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

Former Defense Secretary Les Aspin is shown in this 1993 file photo. Aspin, who was appointed to steer the Pentagon into the uncharted waters of the post-Cold War era but resigned under pressure after a series of missteps, died Sunday night after suffering a massive stroke Saturday at a hospital in Washington.

Michael Tebo, a spokesman for Georgetown University Medical Center, said Aspin died at 7:55 p.m. Sunday at the hospital.

He was "awake and lucid and speaking" when he was admitted, but his doctors "saw early that it was going to be difficult," his cardiologist, Dr. David Pearle, said in a telephone interview.

"This was a very sudden thing," said Pearle. He said Aspin had been "doing very well" with an "underlying heart disease that's been treated for a few years."

He said doctors suspected that the stroke was related to Aspin's heart condition, and an autopsy was planned.

Pearle said Aspin's ex-wife,

Maureen, brother, Jim, and close companion of many years, Sharon Sarton of Lake Geneva, Wis., were with him when he died. Aspin and his wife were divorced in 1979 and had no children.

The doctor said Aspin was paralyzed on his left side when he arrived at the hospital Saturday morning, and tests showed it was a large stroke.

"We had to use a breathing tube Saturday night and medication to try to reduce the swelling of the brain, but by this morning it was pretty clear that his chances of survival were small, and if he was going to survive it would be in a limited capacity," Pearle said.

Final plans made for implosion of federal building

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Thousands of people took one last look at the bomb-shattered federal building as final plans were made to implode the shaky ruins.

"We just wanted to see it before the demolition. It's so much worse than it shows on TV," said Tana Mashaney, who traveled 60 miles with her husband and two sons.

Her 11-year-old son, Jared, slipped through the crowd to get a better angle for his snapshots.

Controlled Demolition Inc. began loading explosives into the building Sunday for Tuesday morning's planned implosion after lawyers for bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh gave the OK, said Jim Santoro, the company's project manager.

Demolition crews plan to use less than 100 pounds of strategically placed dynamite to implode the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building. The nine-story structure should come down in eight seconds.

The bodies of two of the 167 people killed by the explosion remain buried in the wreckage. Search crews sifted through the rubble for survivors and bodies for two weeks after the April 19 bombing, until the structure became so weak it jeopardized the workers' safety.

McVeigh's lawyers, joined by an explosives expert and a camera crew, toured parts of the building Saturday. Authorities already had removed much of the evidence, said Stephen Jones, McVeigh's lead attorney. McVeigh and Terry Nichols have been charged with the bombing under a federal anti-terrorism statute.

If convicted, they could face the death penalty. Both men are being held at a federal prison in El Reno pending grand jury indictments.

Community leaders oppose putting up a new federal building at the site, but support erecting a memorial to the bombing victims.

The General Services Administration has said it will abide by the community's wishes, but no final plans have been made.

In other developments: Newsweek reported that the FBI expected to arrest "a group of major players" in the bombing within the next several weeks.

The magazine's May 29 issue, out today, quotes an unidentified source close to the case as saying, "This thing involves husbands and wives as well as children as young as 12." FBI agents already have questioned Nichols' 12-year-old son, Josh.

Jones, who has been considering asking for a change of venue for a trial, told Southfield, Mich., television station WXYZ on Saturday that "the northern woods of Michigan" topped a list of several locations.

"Any place that is far away and remote from the saturation of television coverage," Jones said.

Automakers to recall seat belts

DETROIT (AP) — Eight automakers have agreed to recall more than 8 million cars in the United States to replace Japanese-made seat belts that might unlatch in crashes, The Detroit News reported Sunday.

Three more automakers were expected to agree to the recall this week. The seat belts were installed in some 1986-1991 model vehicles of Honda, Nissan, Daihatsu, Isuzu, Mazda, Mitsubishi, Subaru, Suzuki, General Motors, Chrysler and Ford, the News reported, citing unidentified sources.

The three car companies that had not yet agreed to the recall were not identified.

Transportation Secretary Federico Pena and National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Administrator Ricardo Martinez planned to announce the agreement Tuesday, the newspaper reported.

The seat belts made by Takata

Inc. could increase safety risks because pieces of the release buttons break off and jam the buckling mechanism, sources told the News.

Regulators are especially concerned the flaw may cause belts to unlatch in crashes. The NHTSA has reports of at least 539 consumer complaints and 47 injuries, but no deaths.

Takata believes the release buttons' propensity to crack is due to faults in the plastic.

Steers, Yellowjackets old acquaintances

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

The Big Spring Steers have a familiar face blocking their path in the state baseball playoffs.

For the second straight year, the Steers will face Fort Worth Arlington Heights (21-7) in a Class 4A regional semifinal at Hunter Field on the campus of Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. The game will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

As Big Spring (18-11-1) prepares to face the Yellowjackets for the second straight year, the Steers know they'll have to go a long way to beat the fireworks and dramatics produced by last year's series.

Following is a game-by-game review of last season's Big Spring-Arlington Heights play-off series:

Game 1 Arlington Heights 12 Big Spring 4

The day after Big Spring High School graduation, the Steers looked like they had celebrated far too long as they were pummeled by the Yellowjackets.

Staff ace Frankie Martinez, battling a sore shoulder, couldn't get any movement on his fastball and the Yellowjackets feasted on his fat offerings.

The Steers jumped to an early 2-0 lead on a two-run single by Trey Terrazas in the top of the first, but Arlington Heights came right back in their half of the inning to score four runs and take the lead for good.

Martinez lasted only 2 1/3 innings - not that the Steers' four subsequent pitchers were any more successful in stopping the Yellowjackets, who collected 13 base hits.

"The main thing about the first game is that we graduated (the night before)," BSHS coach Bobby Doe said. "We were tired. After the game, we went right back to the motel, and I don't think anybody got up until 10 o'clock the next morning."

Game 2 Big Spring 4 Arlington Heights 2

As in the previous game, the Steers got off to a fast start, but this time pitcher Luis Bustamante was able to make it stand up as Big Spring evened the series at a game apiece.

Bustamante, who hadn't started a game in more than a month, limited Arlington Heights to four hits while striking out five and walking five.

His teammates, meanwhile, staked him to an early lead by scoring three runs in the bottom of the first. After

Oliva's second double of the game, in the third inning, brought home Parrish for the Steers' final run of the game.

Game 3 Big Spring 5 Arlington Heights 4

After Arlington Heights controlled Game One, and the Steers did likewise in Game

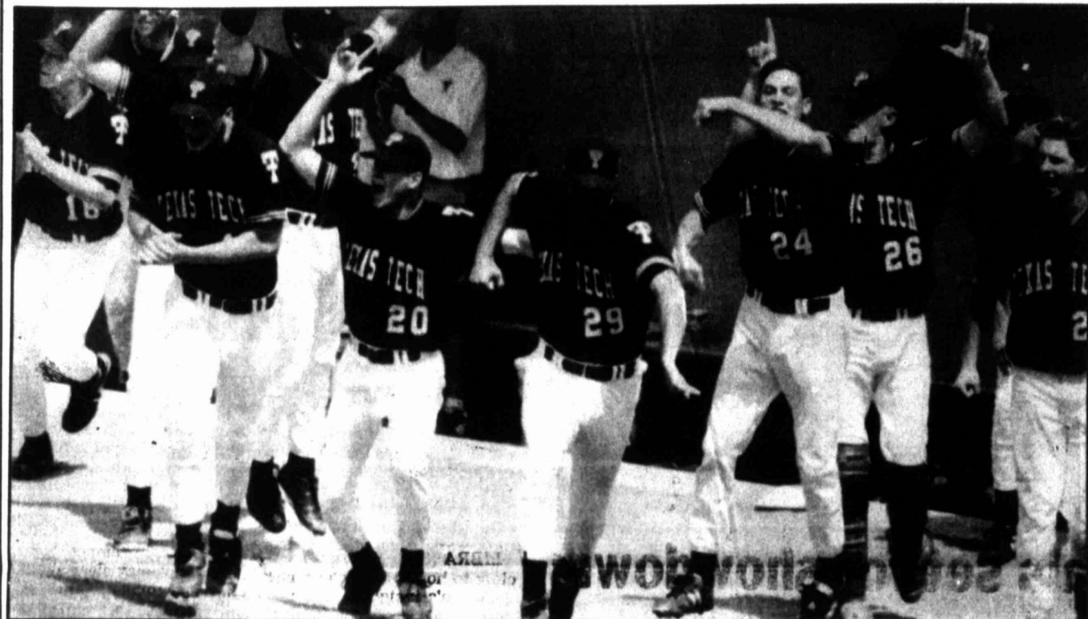

Two, perhaps it was only fitting that neither team ever gained the upper hand in the series finale until the final at-bat.

The Yellowjackets scored first in the second inning on an RBI single by Chris Flores, but the Steers tied the game in their half of the third when first baseman Brandon Rodgers smacked a fastball over the right-center field fence for a home run.

Big Spring helped Arlington Heights regain the lead, committing two errors in the Yellowjackets three-run fourth. Arlington Heights then bobbled the ball twice in the Steers'

Coahoma faces Cinderella team

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Call it the Battle of the Bulldogs.

Call it the fight between two fledgling baseball programs.

Call it uncharted territory.

The Coahoma Bulldogs (18-5-1) will face the Stamford Bulldogs (17-4) 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at Snyder's Moffatt Field in a Class 2A area baseball playoff. It's typical - winner moves on, loser goes home - but in this case the winner will be making school history.

Neither team has ever advanced beyond this point. Coahoma, which is in the fifth year of its baseball program, has made the playoffs all five seasons but never won a playoff game until last season, when Brandon McGuire no-hit the Marfa Shorthorns in a bi-district game.

That put the Bulldogs - Coahoma's Bulldogs - in their first area playoff game. The 'Dogs took a 3-0 lead, but Lockney fought back against McGuire and beat Coahoma 4-3.

Now Coahoma is back where they left off last season, and they have an experience edge over Stamford. The Stamford Bulldogs are in only their third season, and this year they earned their first playoff appearance. Stamford made the most of it, beating Ranger 7-4 Friday to earn a bi-district title.

The ways Coahoma and Stamford reached Tuesday's area playoff are eerily similar.

Coahoma beat Ozona 10-6 Thursday in San Angelo. McGuire, a senior right-hander, upped his record to 11-1 on the mound and tagged the go-ahead three-run homer in the third inning.

In Stamford's win over Ranger, which was in Abilene, right-handed pitcher Eric Strand upped his record to 10-2 and smacked a go-ahead three-run homer. Strand's homer broke a 4-4 tie in the bottom of the sixth.

Strand, a junior, has an ERA of 4.28 - huge compared to McGuire's regular-season ERA of 0.57. However, Stamford has another hot junior in leading hitter Ricky Ramos. Stamford coach Lanny Templeton said Ramos, the Bulldogs' designat-

Unser, Fittipaldi shut out from Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — You don't run a billion-dollar business without blowing a deal once in a while.

Roger Penske, deeply disappointed and trying hard to put on a good public face, admitted calmly on Sunday that he had most certainly messed up, and this was a big mistake.

Through an incredible turn of events, next Sunday's Indianapolis 500 will be run without defending champion Al Unser Jr. and teammate Emerson Fittipaldi, two of the biggest stars in racing and the drivers for the winningest team in the sport.

After two weeks of struggling to find speed at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Fittipaldi made it into the field and was then bumped, while Unser tried and failed to make it as the last of four days of qualifications ended.

"It's a shame these two drivers didn't make the race, and it's my responsibility to give them the proper equipment to make the race," Penske said. "I'd say at this point, we just didn't have the proper aerody-amic package."

It all came down to timing and judgment.

The elite Team Penske came to Indianapolis with 1995 Penske-Mercedes race cars that appeared to be strong entries after victories by Unser and Fittipaldi in the last two races.

a better balance and had a better car," Penske explained. "We tried pieces. We went into wind tunnel last week to see if there was anything major. We made modifications. We just were late with information."

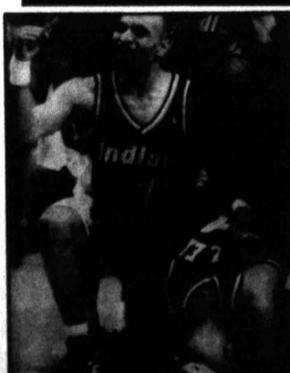

Former winner Bobby Rahal made the field and finished third a year ago by borrowing a year-old Penske-Ilmor from Team Penske. This year, with the shoe on the other foot, Rahal and partner Carl Hogan loaned a pair of Lola-Mercedes to Penske for the final weekend of time trials.

It wasn't enough. "I guess I deal with adversity in a lot of different things in business," said Penske, the most successful car owner in Indianapolis history. "This is a business for us, for Al and for Emerson and the team. This is one we let get away from us."

Penske, who has 11 poles, 10 victories and entries in each of the past 26 Indy races, started the day confident he would find a way to get Unser and Fittipaldi into the lineup.

Put Pete in the Hall of Fame

It's very difficult to turn on a television and not hear an update of the O.J. Simpson trial. I'm sick of it, but I'm bothered at the same time by the precedent this case may set.

What bothers me, more than anything else, is that before the crime scene was roped off, Los Angeles District Attorney Gil Garcetti said he would not seek the death penalty against Simpson. The speculation is that

Carlton Johnson
Staff Writer

Simpson will walk. Fine - our system can't possibly get more screwed up than it already is.

Oops! Forgive me, I almost forgot - people in Texas may soon get to carry concealed weapons.

I know I shouldn't ramble so much, but here's my point: What happened to all of the concern and compassion for Pete Rose? Remember the Cincinnati Reds and "Charlie Hustle"?

Rose served his sentence, and I don't ever remember any slick defense attorneys trying to prove that Rose was set up.

Simpson is in the Pro Football Hall of Fame for what he did on the football field. When he retired he was No. 2 on the NFL's all-time rushing list, and he is probably best remembered for being the first NFL running back to rush for 2,000 yards in a single season.

The trouble he's in now will not have an effect on his status in the Hall of Fame.

Rose also ran into trouble with the law after his playing days were finished. Sure, he was managing the Cincinnati Reds when his demise began, and Simpson was in the broadcast booth at NBC.

Rose may not make it into the Baseball Hall of Fame because of the personal opinions and biases of the baseball writers of America, many of whom I would venture to say never played an inning of baseball in their lives.

If Rose's career dictates he be in the Hall of Fame, then he should be in the Hall of Shame. I will remember the single that propelled Rose past Ty Cobb as Major League Baseball's all-time hits leader a lot more than I will O.J.'s rush that took him over the 2,000-yard mark.

Rose's record stands at 4,256 hits and it could take as long for someone to break it as it took Hank Aaron to break Babe Ruth's home run record.

If Rose can be kept out of the all-time history of baseball because of troubles in his personal life, after his playing days were done, then Simpson by the same token should not be in the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Neither gambling or tax evasion will ever carry the same merits as a double homicide (I know Simpson has not been found guilty, but you get the point).

It would be desirable for all of our professional athletes to have squeaky-clean, spit-polished images like Joe Montana or Nolan Ryan, but the world we live in has a different agenda.

What's good for Pete is good for O.J.
Just as it wasn't O.J.'s legs that got him in trouble, Rose's bat is what he should be judged by.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Between them, Evander Holyfield and Ray Mercer own one of the four titles floating around boxing's heavyweight division, and neither has a top 10 ranking.

■ NBA Playoffs

The Spurs, who had the NBA's best regular-season record, 62-20, reached the conference finals for the first time in 12 years by defeating the Los Angeles Lakers on Thursday in Game 6.

This marks the first time two Texas professional sports teams been in such a high-level contest. Houston and San Antonio last met in the playoffs in 1981 when the Rockets beat the Spurs in the first round.

"I didn't play for the state championship in high school, so this will be fun," Spurs guard Doc Rivers said. "They need to get some kind of trophy for the winner, a state trophy."

The Robison-Olajuwon duel could be their biggest yet. It also could get bogged down in fouls, something Spurs coach Bob Hill doesn't want to see.

HOROSCOPE

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 23, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tempers flare unexpectedly. A child or a loved one could be difficult. Keep your sense of humor and don't let a power play trigger you. Resolving a problem empowers you, and you call the shots. A smile works wonders. Tonight: As you like it. ***
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make what you want to have happen, happen in the daytime hours. Be careful when dealing with a family member and partner, because tempers are short. Stay focused on long-term goals, and you'll do well. Take some time away from others to get centered. Tonight: Pull back. ***
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Work is demanding, but you handle problems well. Confirm what others are requesting from you, and give more than your share. Communications are active, but you might be overwhelmed and tired. Declare when you have reached your limits. Tonight: Hang out with friends. ***
CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are in the limelight. You've done your research well, and you unravel predicaments. Listen carefully to a financial offer because it might be too risky. Use your power, but be diplomatic. Know when you have had enough. Assume responsibility. Tonight: Be out and about. ***
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Visualize what you want. If you were born in the last few days of LEO, be careful that someone doesn't misinterpret your actions. Tempers could flare at home. You inadvertently might have pushed someone away. Recognize your limits. Tonight: Try a new restaurant. ***
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): One-to-one relating is important. You need to deal with a problem. Communications are excellent if you let someone know where you are coming from. Don't throw a temper tantrum, and make clear choices. Understanding pays off for you. Tonight: Spend time with a loved one. ***
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stay close to home, and take a risk. Someone's insights are important as you deal with a situation. Discuss a problem in a direct way. Someone acknowledges your opinions. Communications with a friend could be difficult if they involve money. Tonight: Be diplomatic. ***

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You gain a sense of accomplishment because of what is going on. Dynamic opportunities are preparing you for change. However, when a boss makes a demand, you could lose your temper. Keep your sense of humor. Tonight: Work late. ***
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Watch out, because you could lose your cool when you least expect it. A conversation with someone who is far away could anger you unexpectedly. Stay centered and focused, and know your priorities. Your creative juices flow in the afternoon. Tonight: Let fun happen. ***
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Settle down, and be sure of yourself. One-to-one relating is highlighted if you settle a financial problem. A situation with a partner may prevent you from immediately reaching a goal, but don't worry about it. The unanticipated occurs with a family member. Tonight: Entertain at home. ***
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial matters need attention; you can no longer avoid these things. Be sensitive to what's happening, and be aware of your choices in the situation. Options permit you to sort out a dilemma. Take a fun-loving approach. Tune in to what you want. Tonight: Chat up a storm. ***
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are empowered today; you view situations creatively. However, be careful with a work-related matter; fatigue is an issue, and a misunderstanding is possible. Recognize your limits. Watch your spending. Tonight: Treat yourself to something new. ***

IF MAY 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: This is an unusually dynamic year when you will be concerned with career matters. Be ready to prosper. Check out an option - there is more to it than what you think. If you are single, after August you will have much more of what you want in a relationship, and an unexpected opportunity will occur involving a trip or a foreigner. If attached: You will work through problems if your temper doesn't get in the way; stay clear about long-term priorities, and don't be intimidated. ARIES brings out the best in you and helps you get what you want.

THE ASTERISKS (*) SHOW THE KIND OF DAY YOU'LL HAVE: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Mother prefers career to custody

DEAR ABBY: I am currently separated from my husband. We have a 2-year-old daughter - I'll call her "Sherry." We agreed that Sherry should stay a week at his house, and then a week at mine. (I live with my mom.) This is working OK for now, but I can't see it working until Sherry is 18.

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

Here is my dilemma: If I continue to share custody of Sherry, I will always struggle. I have an average job with no college degree, and I really want to pursue schooling and have a career. Also, I have a difficult time emotionally when I have Sherry because she's spoiled rotten and acts like a brat. It stresses me out to be with her. Her father wants full custody, and I'm ashamed to admit that I do not.

People tell me I will regret giving her up, but they don't know how hard it is to go to college and care for a child.

Abby, I am very confused about what to do. I feel like a bad mother for not fighting tooth and nail for full custody like most mothers would.

My husband says it would be no problem for him to have Sherry full time. He can afford to hire a nanny. Should I let him have her? Please respond as soon as possible. —FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING GUILTY: Don't feel guilty. I admire your honesty. Feeling as you do, you would be doing all of you a favor to give your husband full custody of Sherry.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I'm weird for asking this question, but where do jet planes flush their commodes?

With so many daily flights and thousands of passengers, this must be a big problem for the airlines.

If the commodes are flushed in flight, which states do they dump on?

No, I am not from Flushing, N.Y. I am ... LA NOY (TAD) GUNN, BALMORHEA, TEXAS

DEAR TAD: I asked Jon Austin, director of media relations with Northwest Airlines.

After he stopped laughing, he explained: "There is a holding tank in the bottom of the plane for human waste. When the plane lands, a hose is attached to the tank to drain the contents into a truck with a septic tank. The truck then disposes of the waste, as regular municipal waste, in accordance with the city's regulations."

DEAR ABBY: Your column is a joy - and educational as well. However, when you explained democracy in your "isms" column, you should have said:

In a democracy, everyone has two cows. A vote is taken, the losers cry "discrimination," the lawyers sue (on a contingency basis), and then the government takes at least 39 percent.

Please God, help us work together and find a way to keep the "crazies" from blowing up what's left.

Thanks for your inspiration, Abby. — JACK STEVENSON, LAKE DALLAS, TEXAS

DEAR JACK: I, as well as the overwhelming majority of the citizens of this democracy, join you in that prayer.

For an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person, order "How to Be Popular." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447.
