Final exam exemptions given ninth, 10th graders

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees handled some routine matters in preparation for the new school year during their regular meeting Thursday.

Trustees approved allowing ninth and 10th graders to be exempt for up to three final exams if they meet certain criteria.

Glynn Mouton was the only one voting against and has expressed in the past she feels exempting a student from an exam does not prepare them for college.

Two faculty members have tendered their resignations to the board while trustees accepted the employments of 10 others.

Goliad Middle School Band Director Brian Weatherman and Shella Stockwell, a fifth grade teacher at Washington Elementary, resigned last month and sited they were leaving to make career moves.

Jimmy Bradley will teach business at Big Spring High School and has 15 years experience. Esther Edgar has been hired as a fourth grade teacher at Bauer Magnet Elementary School with four years experience.

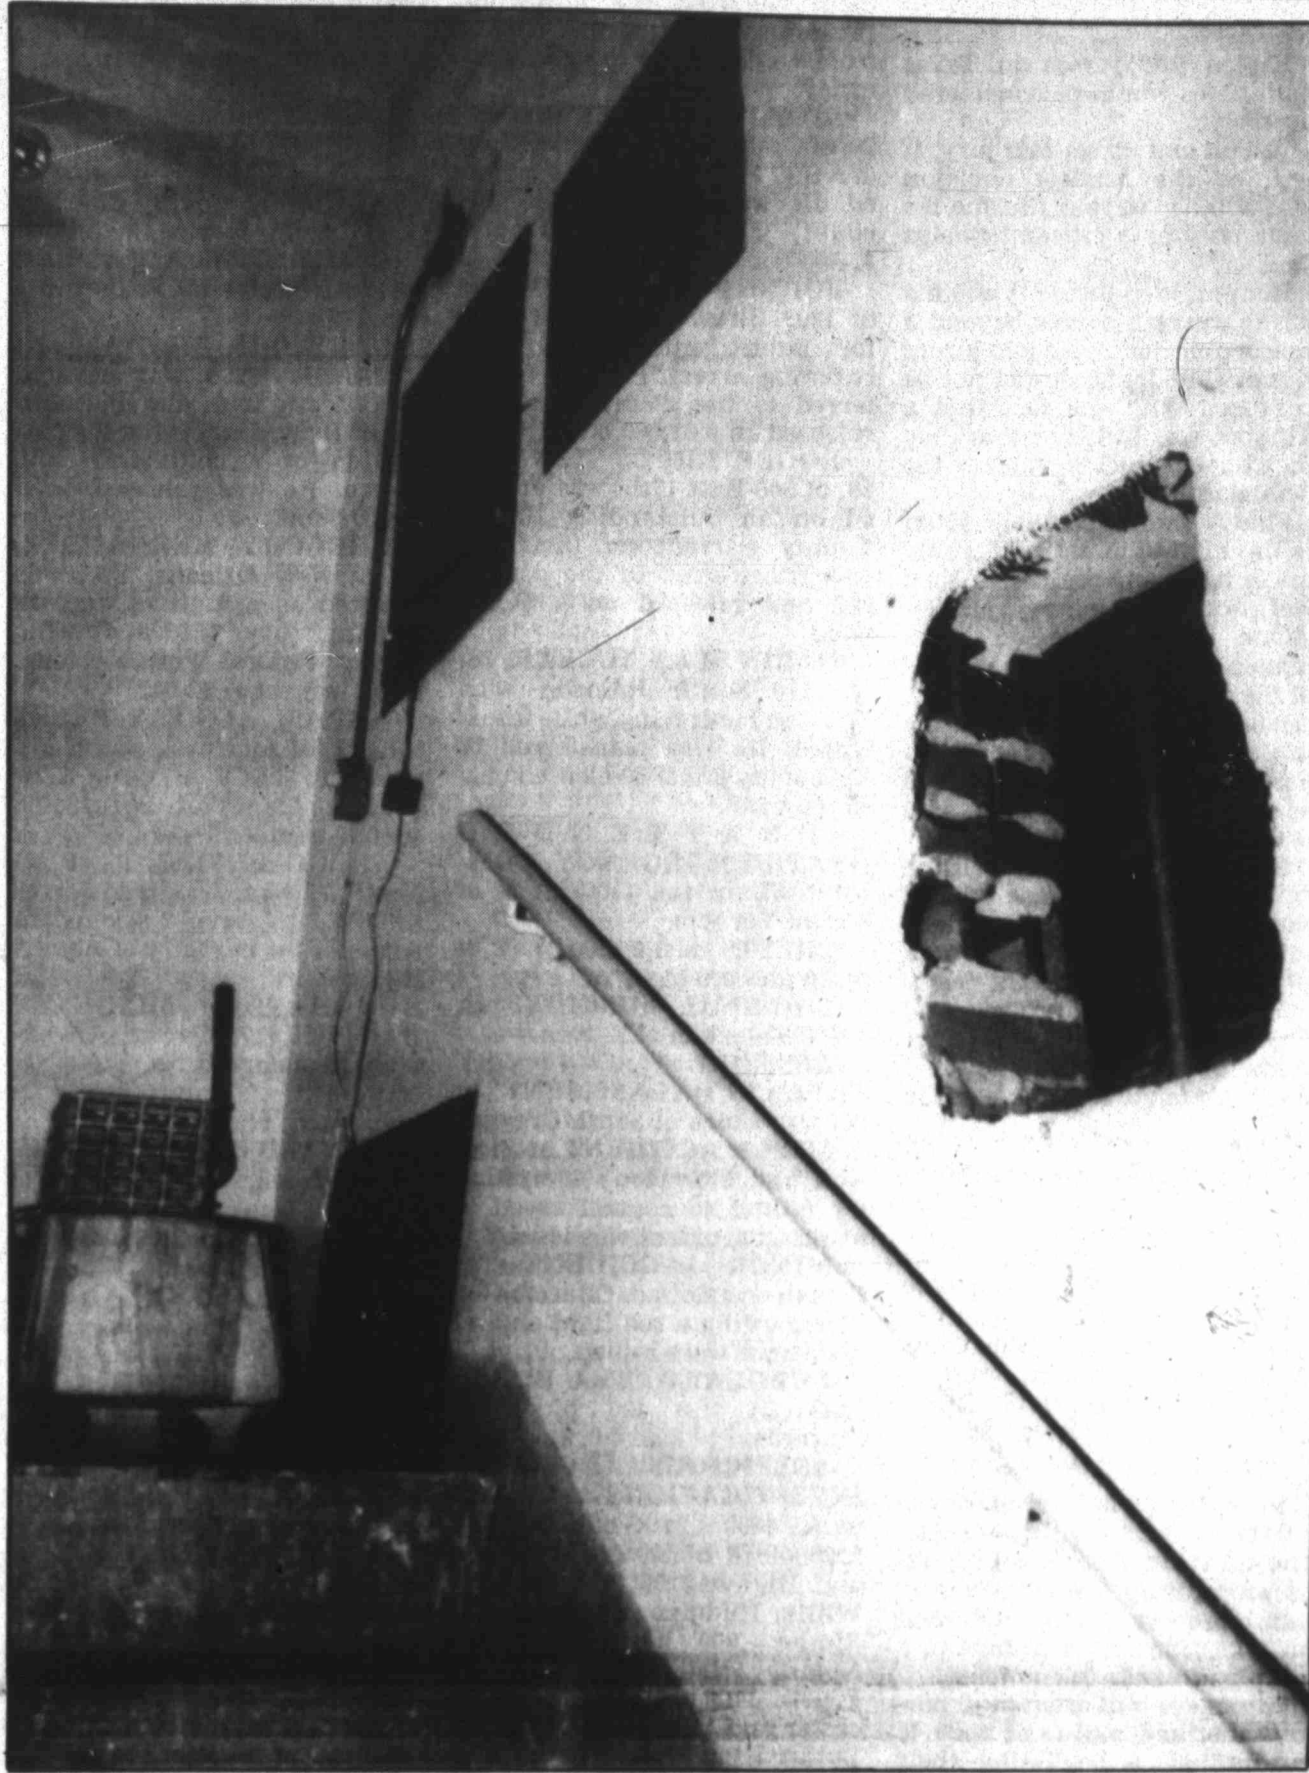

Kathy Frey, Tiffany Hneleski, Tiffany Meeks, Stanley Phillips and Denise Ross are beginning their teaching careers at BSISD. Frey is a second grade teacher at Washington Elementary and Hneleski will teach fifth grade at Washington Elementary. Meeks has been hired as a health and physical education teacher as well as a coach. Phillips will teach fifth grade at Moss Elementary and Ross was hired as a special education resource instructor at College Heights Elementary.

Joe Dawes has been given the title of District Wide Technician. He will be in charge of all computer operations for the district. He has 34 years experience teaching and working with computers.

Traci Pierce has been named as head volleyball coach at Big Spring High School and has nine years coaching and teaching experience.

Board members also approved four early dismissal days for the 1995-96 school year. The State Board of Education allows up to six early dismissal days for a district.

Courthouse renovation plans moving right along

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

Plans for renovating the Howard County Courthouse are well under way.

Jack Roberts of Fanning, Fanning and Associates reported to Howard County Commissioners' Court Monday on the progress of remodeling designs. Some of the renovations will increase the building's efficiency and comfort, and some will help bring it up to current building codes and into compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

The current boiler system will be replaced by a modular boiler system consisting of a series of small boilers hooked together. One or more of them can be operated depending on demand, allowing more efficiency.

This will allow the current hot-water system to carry the load during the summer when there is no need for heat in the building, and the boilers to carry most of the load during the heating season. This will ensure a constant supply of hot water and provide reliability, ease of service, and no interruption of service - if one of the Jury selection: A process of elimination

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

During last week's instructions to potential jurors in the capital murder trial against Levy Lee Edmondson Jr., 118th District Judge Robert Moore III instructed jurors on several points of law.

One of those points was an indictment is not evidence against a defendant. Moore told jurors they must be able to put aside personal feelings and render a true verdict.

He added in criminal cases what is at risk is liberty and in some cases the defendant's life.

Attorneys for both the prosecution and defense were given about an hour and a half last Wednesday to talk to the pool of potential jurors about their feelings and concerns about the case before them.

Prosecuting attorney Shane Phelps addressed the jurors saying the prosecution and the defense needs 12 people and two alternates for a jury.

He said, "This is not a process of selection, but a process of elimination. Judge Moore has done as good a job of instructing you as a jury as I've ever seen."

Phelps added, "This is a civil obligation we all have and the one and only chance we (attorneys) have to talk to you to get your opinions and biases."

Jurors were told they should respect the process and wait until they have heard or seen the evidence (not hearsay) presented in the case.

"Would you want to be tried based on something someone heard at Wal-Mart, in the beauty parlor, or in the street?" Phelps asked. "This whole process is about being fair."

The state is seeking the death penalty against Edmondson, accused of capital murder in the Dec. 30, 1994 shooting of Department of Public Safety Trooper Troy Hogue.

Phelps told jurors there is a range of punishments because there are several ways to commit crimes and each circumstance deserves separate consideration.

As an example he gave jurors two scenarios and asked which was more serious and should there be special consideration given to one crime versus the other.

The first scenario was a gang. Please see JURY, page 2A

Gramm staffer seeking community's input July 26

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is urging area businesses and residents to welcome a member of U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm's office to Big Spring on July 26.

Gramm staff member Special Assistant Michael Gerber will be at the Dora Roberts Community Center at 2:30 p.m. to brief local residents and businesses on legislative developments in Washington, D.C., especially those that relate to Texas, and to get input from the local area.

With a new Congress, there are many issues for Gerber to talk about and discuss.

Gerber will also ask for input from the chamber on legislative priorities and issues of concern to area businesses and residents.

Because several major national and regional issues will be debated and acted upon in the next few months, Gerber would like to gain a greater understanding of the issues important to Big Spring to report back to Sen. Gramm.

On Gramm's staff, Gerber is responsible for Senate activities in Washington which relate to Texas, including state projects and legislation that directly impacts the state.

Gerber also serves as Gramm's liaison with mayors, county judges, and other local leaders and works with them on a wide range of issues, particularly economic development and regulatory affairs.

Of computer glitches, 12 false arrests and complete breakdown

AUSTIN (AP) — When Charlotte Brown was pulled over for speeding on July 1, she knew she deserved the ticket she was about to receive. What she didn't expect was to be arrested for old tickets she'd already paid.

It wasn't until Ms. Brown was handcuffed and on her way downtown that the police officer discovered he had made a mistake. The Municipal Court's computer system had incorrectly showed that Ms. Brown had not paid off her tickets.

It was later discovered that Municipal Court records had not been updated to show resolutions. The computer glitch has resulted in 11 other false arrests since March 22, officials said.

"The police officer said I had 10 warrants out on me from 1993," Ms. Brown said. "I told the officers that it was a mistake. He didn't believe me, and he put the handcuffs on me and put me in the car. "I'm mad at the whole system."

It was real embarrassing, but the officer was nice and took me back to my car. The policeman was just doing his job, but the people at Municipal Court didn't apologize."

The problems didn't stop with those 12 people. On July 7, the computer system failed completely, causing records of fines paid by cash that day to be lost.

Police Senior Sgt. John Jones said officers have lost confidence in the record system.

"We don't arrest anybody on what the computer says," Jones said. "We depend on them at Municipal Court to have to warrants in their hot little hands before we arrest anyone."

Ron Zimmerman, who oversees the computer system, said a new disk drive will be installed within the next few weeks. In the meantime, court clerks are working to restore most of the files lost on July 7.

related drive-by shooting in which an innocent 7-year old girl is killed. The second scenario was of a 75-year old man who along with his wife had vowed years earlier not to allow each other to suffer due to illness. In the hospital, he pulled the plug on his terminally ill wife.

Phelps told jurors in Texas both cases would be considered murder.

"If you end up on this jury, it will be the hardest decision you've made in your life, but it's your duty as a citizen," Phelps said.

He reminded jurors it was his job to prove his case beyond a reasonable doubt. He told jurors reasonable doubt should not be confused with the fact that a Trooper was killed or that they may have to decide whether the defendant lives or dies.

Phelps said reasonable doubt is the kind of doubt that would make a person hesitate if they were acting in their own affairs.

One question raised by a female juror concerned the age of the defendant.

Phelps told jurors in Texas the law says when you turn 17, you are considered an adult and are accountable for your own actions.

He presented jurors with a critical question asking them if they could eliminate from their minds the fact the defendant is 17 and render a verdict of death.

Six potential jurors told Phelps they would have reservations about handing down a death sentence to a 17-year-old.

Two of those six said age would probably influence their decision, with one woman saying, "I don't think I could do it."

Jurors were also asked if they thought a person should be treated differently because they committed a crime under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Phelps said, "Voluntary intoxication is no defense for the commission of a crime."

Both Phelps and lead defense attorney Paul Williams began the individual process of questioning jurors Thursday morning, a process which is expected to take from several days to a couple of weeks to complete.

Attorneys will attempt to narrow the jury pool to at least 46 jurors before beginning their preemptory strikes. Those selected as final jurors and alternates will be notified.

The boiler in the basement of the Howard County Courthouse will be one of the systems replaced as part of a renovation project. The large boiler will be replaced by a modular boiler system consisting of a series of small boilers hooked together.

Need

boilers is down, the others in the system will still provide heat and water.

The efficiency of this system will also be increased over the old boiler because instead of the vents which can allow heat to escape, it will be equipped with dampers to prevent heat loss.

The current chiller, located on the roof, will be replaced by a system which consists of six compressors operating in a block.

Like the modular boiler system, this will allow more efficiency and better cooling power at both high- and low-load periods. These units have both heating and cooling capability, allowing, for example, the sunny side of the building to be cooled and the shady side to be warmed.

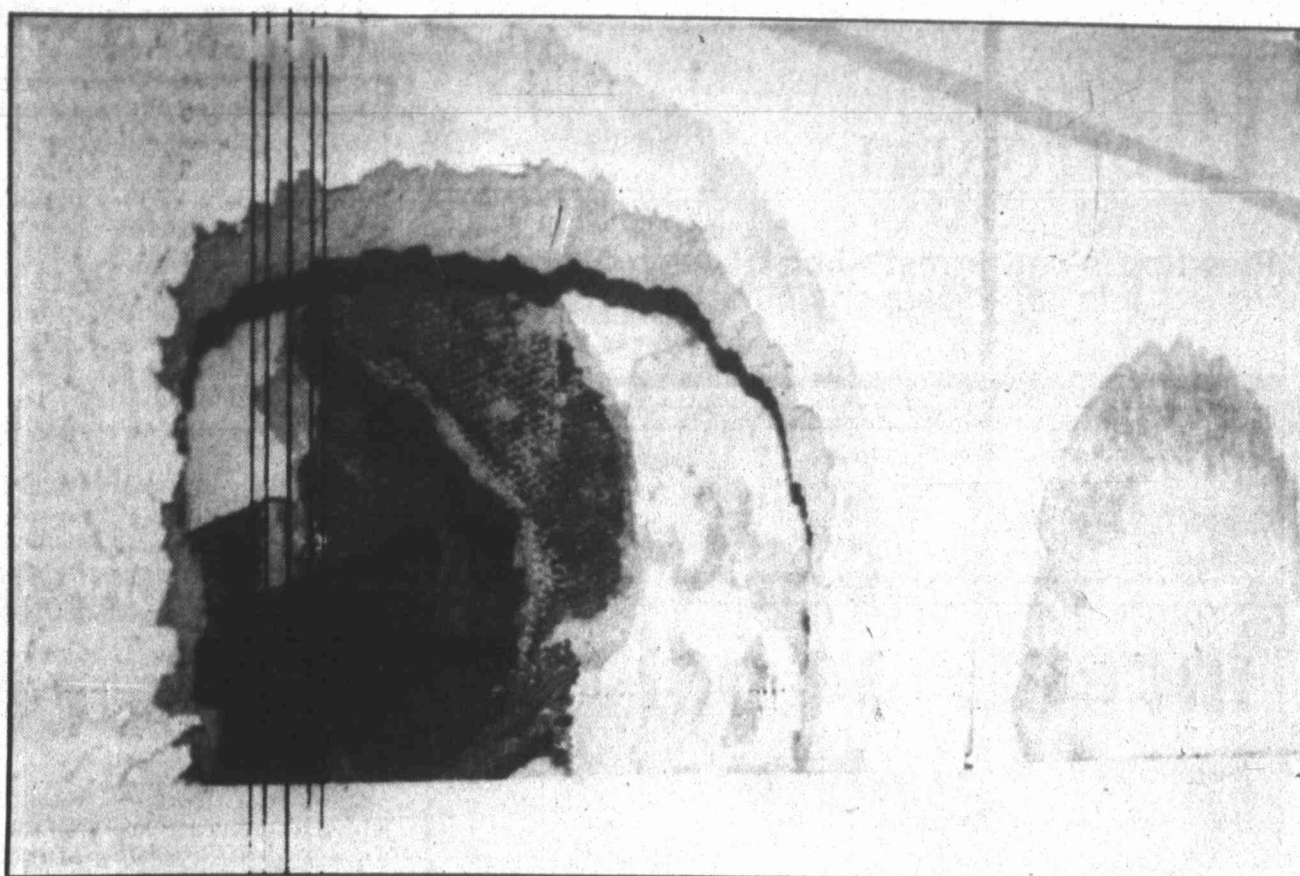

A gas-fired chiller was considered, but the architect's recommendation is that it would not be efficient enough in the circumstances to justify the cost.

Given the pattern of use of the Howard County Courthouse and Big Spring's climate, the building would require 1,700 to 2,000 full-load hours per year, but the gas-fired unit is designed to provide the best return at 3,500 or more full load hours, described as heavy-duty industrial use, for example a hospital or factory.

The payback figure on the gas-fired equipment, 2.6 years, is based on 3,500 full-load hours; at the building's actual demand figure of 1,700 - 2,000 hours, the payback goes up to 5.2 years, which would mean the equipment would be in need of repair or replacement before the payback was complete.

Roberts also pointed out heating and cooling equipment now is made to operate most efficiently at 60 to 70 percent of capacity rather than 100 percent. Maintenance costs will also be lower because it will be required less frequently.

The compressors will be located outside the courthouse on a separate pad screened by a chain link fence. Noise will be minimal - it will be away from the building, the unit is hermetically sealed, and can be surrounded by sound absorbers if necessary. Roberts commented if the chain link fence is considered too unattractive, a screening arrangement can be installed.

Most of the building's plumbing fixtures are in good shape, and will not be replaced.

Piping throughout the building, however, will be completely replaced - hot and cold potable water lines will be copper, and waste and vent lines will be cast iron. The jail system will be separated from the building system.

The new system will include an automatic sewage grinder, which will grind up waste items that go into the system such as pop cans, t-shirts, and towels.

New electric service will be installed throughout the building, including a new switchboard and new panel boards on all floors. There will be substantially more circuits, and new outlets and new light fixtures throughout the building.

Smoke detectors and fire alarms will be installed throughout the building. A new emergency generator will be installed to operate the smoke detectors, fire alarms, emergency lights, and a fan system to pressurize the interior stairwell, preventing it from filling with smoke in case of a fire.

Incentives help in obtaining peak performance

Incentive. It is something given to someone in an attempt to obtain performance. It's also know as the carrot and the stick and is something everyone needs at some point in time.

The Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees recently approved allowing ninth and 10th graders to be exempt from taking final exams if they meet certain criteria in English, math and science.

The criteria is: an academic average of 90 or above with five or less days absence; academic average of 80 or above with four or less days absence; academic average of 75-79 with three days or less absence; academic average of 70 to 74 with perfect attendance.

The purpose for the carrot is to promote attendance in students. And, if not having to take a test is a reason to keep grades up, then it is an incentive to do well in school.

As an offshoot, the students do end up learning what is presented to them.

In a perfect world, we would not have to offer incentives to anyone to get peak performance. But, as we all know, we don't live in a perfect world, far from it.

Therefore, incentives are a necessary part of life and help to offer a sense of reward for achieving and learning.

Ready to head home and party

It was happy birthday for my brother Saturday. Whether he really thought it was a happy day or not, though, is another question.

After all, when you've hit 30 plateau, all you want is to let the day slip quietly by so you don't have to remember how old you are.

When you are the oldest, however, the younger sibs' birthdays are a reminder of your age whether you want to remember or not.

Anyway, he had his birthday and I had mine but we truly won't be celebrating until later this year. It's just one of those things the Turners seem to do.

After all, all of us usually forget to buy something and get it into the mail on time.

When you live nearby, and you forget to buy something until the last minute, then it isn't so bad because it doesn't look like you forgot. But, when you live parsecs away from the family unit, you're mindlessness is shown in all it's sordid glory.

However, I am not alone in this. It's a family tradition except for Mom. That's a "you don't dare forget."

I mean, one year my brother nearly had a heart attack because his birthday present made it to him on time instead of a year later like the previous year! That's what I get for thinking ahead, nearly stupefying the brother unit.

I always felt sorry for my Dad. His birthday is in January and no one seems to remember it until it is right upon them! I used to have a lot of sympathy for December babies but I think January babies have it worse.

I mean who wants to think about celebrating a birthday right after Christmas.

I always thought my parents were smart about when my brother and I were born - exactly 30 days apart with three years in between. See, they have exactly a month to recover from one birthday before next. Although, they probably would have preferred a much longer time period. I don't think they realized the tastes my brother and I would have - expensive.

Anyway, so far this year there has been Dad's birthday, Mother's Day, Father's Day, mine and brother's birthdays. No one yet has gotten a present because we all decided to wait until I made it home and then have one major cover-all-bases party.

That was my brother's idea. Smart kid. It fits with Mom's agenda. Dad still hasn't grasped the idea yet, but he will come around to it.

Everyone will have a present, we'll probably forego cakes but, in reality, it will be the togetherness that will be important.

So, some time in October it will be party time at the old homestead. I can't wait to see what I, uh, see my family that is.

THADEUS & WEEZ

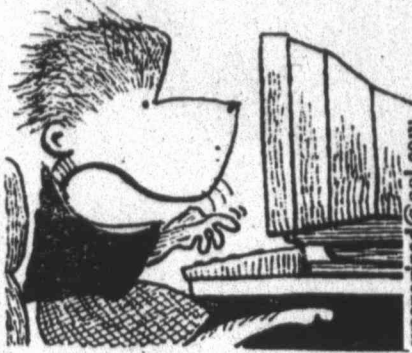

Dear Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer:

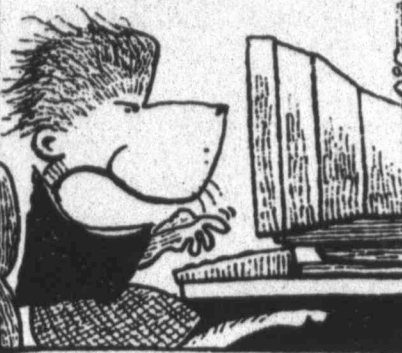

Insurance companies wanted tort reform and got it. But now they don't want to lower their rates.

In search of their own Harry and Louise

WASHINGTON CALLING

WASHINGTON — Congressional Democrats are shopping for a Harry and Louise of their own, to use in the looming debate over Medicare.

Republicans used the preachy TV couple to accuse the Clinton administration of trying to take away choice during last year's debate over health care.

The shoe is on the other foot now that Republicans need to cut Medicare by $270 billion over the next seven years to make their tax and spending blueprint work out.

To Democrats, that means forcing the elderly to choose among a managed care plan that limits choice of doctors and hospitals, or paying more for what they have now, or using a voucher to purchase private insurance with the extent of coverage much in question.

Democrats don't believe those choices will be popular and they want a senior-vintage Harry and Louise to sell the point.

The 1996 election could produce a new roster of Republican powerbrokers in the Senate. That's because there are six committee chairmen up for reelection, and five have question marks next to their names. They are:

Appropriations Committee Chairman Mark Hatfield, whose vote against a balanced budget constitutional amendment infuriated Oregon Republicans; Commerce Committee Chairman Larry Pressler of South Dakota, a seat Democrats think they can win; Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jesse Helms of North Carolina, always a question mark (but always a winner so far); Armed Services Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who will be 93 next year; and Labor and Human Resources Committee Chairman Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas, who had to be talked into running for re-election in 1990.

Only Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici of New Mexico looks like a sure bet to be back on the job.

President Clinton may have won the battle by recognizing Vietnam. But the shouting isn't over as GOP hard-liners led by presidential hopeful Bob Dornan sketch out plans to harass Clinton with noisy fights over funds for a new embassy there and confirmation of an ambassador.

Expect a lot of speeches and much verbal condemnation, but little action. It will die as a major issue in 1996.

At the top of the hit-list of government regulations issued by reg-buster Sen. Orrin Hatch: Federal regulations requiring Braille instructions on all drive-through automatic teller machines.

The game of political chicken over Medicare continues this week as House Ways and Means Committee holds two days of hearings on possible changes.

Health subcommittee chairman Bill Thomas, R-Calif., makes a point of publicly inviting HHS Secretary Donna Shalala to discuss Clinton administration ideas for cuts.

She'll show, but she'll be anything but forthcoming as Democrats maneuver to force Republicans to spill their plans for Medicare now rather than at last minute in September.

Unanswered questions. When the Supreme Court quit for the summer, the justices left in limbo a bid by Washington State to uphold the murder conviction of Dwayne Bartholomew, which the high court discussed nine times at its super-secret weekly conferences.

The 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ordered Bartholomew retried or released because prosecutors failed to disclose that the key witness against him flunked his lie detector test. Washington State argues it isn't required to disclose facts (such as polygraph results) that aren't admissible in court.

More court notes: 959 appeals were pending when the high court quit June 29. Another 3,000 are expected to be filed before the justices reconvene in private Sept. 23.

National Association of Colleges and Employers reports starting salaries for computer science graduates averaged $33,813 this year, up 6.4 percent from 1994. Demand for engineering graduates is increasing, with average starting salaries ranging from a low of $30,707 for civil engineers to $40,268 for chemical engineers.

Also in demand are health graduates, such as physical therapists, at average starting salaries of $32,309, and nurses at $32,227, up 12.7 percent from 1994.

While the Senate mulls whether to allow public into sexual harassment hearings against Sen. Bob Packwood, House ethics committee faces a similar dilemma on complaints against House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

Chairwoman Nancy Johnson of Connecticut schedules closed testimony on the speaker's book deal and other issues by end of month, but leaves open the possibility of open sessions if the case is formally argued.

QUOTABLE: From a press briefing by the White House National Security Adviser following President Clinton's decision to open diplomatic relations with Vietnam: "Here I am, your unidentified senior administration official. This is on background." (Whispered exchange with White House press secretary Mike McCurry.)

SR. ADMIN. OFFICIAL: "I'm on the record?"

STAFF: "Yes."

MR. LAKE: "OK. Hi. I am a senior administration official on the record. I'm Tony Lake."

NEWSMAKER: New Hampshire Republican Bill Zeff will control the gavel at the potentially acrimonious Waco and Randall Weaver hearings in the House.

BACKGROUND: A 58-year-old businessman and innkeeper, Zeff is part of the wave of pro-business, anti-regulation conservatives focused on shrinking government. A lifetime New Englander with an educational background in business, he has operated the Christmas Farm Inn in Jackson, N.H., since 1976. He's also chairman of Bob Dole's New Hampshire presidential organization, but welcomes all GOP presidential candidates to the Granite State.

OUTLOOK: Conservative and a deficit hawk, Zeff is wary of big government but has no special axe to grind in ATF-FBI inquiries. He's also digging into the drug issue, from the position that the Clinton administration's policies have failed. He recently hosted Nancy Reagan before a House subcommittee.

PERSONAL: Met wife Sydna at the University of Connecticut, where he has a degree in business administration ... elected to Congress in 1990 ... three sons.

Letters to the Editor

Cost-effectiveness key to awarding bids

Editor:

Congress is currently deciding how to award the New Attack Submarine, Seawolf, contract. Naval plans call for the contract to be awarded to a Connecticut shipbuilding company for $60 billion without the benefit of competitive bidding. Meanwhile, a second major shipbuilding company in Virginia has protested the "no bid" contract saying it can build the ships for at least $2 billion less.

In these times of deficit reduction and downsizing, the government should be seeking the most cost-effective ways to run all of its contracts. Competition makes the most sense and is the surest means of getting the best product and the lowest price. Congress should require that the Naval contract be awarded based on full and open competition.

If you believe as I do, I suggest that you write or call Congressman Charles Stenholm.

Sincerely,
Johannie Lou Avery

Clearing up misconceptions

Editor:
I believe it is time to set the record straight regarding the proposed Athletic Complex in Big Spring High School. There have been several allegations and misinterpretations about this proposal and about BSISD.

First, this building proposal was not conceived or put into motion by the school board or by school administrators. Members of our community researched this project and presented it as a proposal to school officials in 1994.

A committee of dedicated individuals of the community, school administrators and two school board members was formed to begin working on the project. This occurred in January 1995. Finances were secured, plans drawn up, sites selected and rejected, until the best site was finally selected by the committee: that being the 10th and State Street location.

The committee followed the exact process outlined by the Traffic Commission and by the city council. At no time was any attempt made to "slip" something by this community.

All school board meetings are open to the public; KBST and the Big Spring Herald attended all meetings. The proposal to build this facility has been discussed for several months in open meetings. The site selected was covered by the media prior to the city council meeting, where it was discussed by council members.

Again, I must emphasize that at no time has any of this proceeding been done without public knowledge.

I would also like to respond to misconceptions about BSISD athletics and academics. BSISD meets and/or exceeds state and national academic standards; BSISD has one of the highest percentages of school districts in our area graduating students (95 percent); BSISD has a high percentage of graduates that go to college (55 percent) and that graduate from college; BSISD has one of the lowest drop-out rates in the state; BSISD has one of the leading technology programs and computer/fiber optic programs in this area; BSISD has made a commitment to support this technology program and to expand it in years to come (approximately $1.5 million to date); BSISD has 44 percent of the students from grade 7-12 involved in athletics (girls and boys); during the past 10 years, of the 20 valedictorians and salutatorians at BSISD several of these 20 have been involved in athletics.

Other school involvements include band, choir, drama, FFA, FHA, cheerleading, Junior leadership, National Honor Society, student council, journalism, foreign language club, technology trades, computers, metal trades, auto mechanics, small engine repair, electrical trades and other organized activities.

So as you can see, BSISD has a good mixture of all programs, and one group does not receive priority over another. According to a radio editorial on July 10, 1995, the gentleman spoke with some sarcasm about our "precious athletes." He was right in one aspect, the athletes are precious. All of the students at BSISD are precious!

And, sir, I have one that is very precious, my daughter. She is an athlete and is also in the top 5 percent academically in her class. I think it is very important for people in this community to realize that these students are our most precious commodity and that we need to do what we can to help them prepare for adulthood.

Change is frightening to some, and sometimes inconvenient, but we need to look to the future. I don't believe that there is anywhere in Big Spring that cannot be reached by driving, the five and seven minutes, regardless of which route you take.

So, if the proposed site at 10th and State is approved or not, at least an effort has been made for progress. The facility will be built somewhere and enjoyed by students for years to come. The hope is that the community can understand and accept the fact, that change and growth is good for Big Spring.

Thanks,
Dan Wise

Bosnian forces seize U.N. weapons

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Desperate to stave off Serb assaults on unprotected civilians, government troops seized U.N. peacekeepers' weapons and demanded their vehicles in two Muslim enclaves Saturday.

The Bosnian troops surrounded Ukrainian peacekeepers at two posts in Zepa, a U.N. "safe area" of 16,000 subjected to Serbs shelling for the second day Saturday. The Ukrainians refused to give up their weapons and fired warning shots, said U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko.

In another U.N. "safe area," Gorazde, government troops seized peacekeepers' vehicles and weapons and fired on other Ukrainian troops.

Bosnia's Muslim-led government is angry the world has failed to stop the Serb attacks. France has been unable to win international support for a forceful retaking of Srebrenica and defense of other "safe areas". Britain instead proposed more talks.

Serbs did release 54 Dutch peacekeepers they seized when they overran Srebrenica this week. The peacekeepers were bused out of Bosnia and taken to a hotel in the Serbian town of Novi Sad, witnesses said.

Serbs shelled Zepa again Saturday and traded small arms fire with government troops, but there was no U.N. confirmation of Bosnian radio reports that Serbs had launched infantry attacks.

NATO jets flew over Zepa enclave on Friday as Serbs shelled positions manned by Ukrainian peacekeepers and Zepa village. The enclave is surrounded by Serb-held land.

The Serbs were not targeting the U.N. troops Saturday, and there were no reports of the peacekeepers firing back, said a U.N. spokesman, Rida Ettarashany.

Government troops targeted the Ukrainian camp with machine gun and grenade fire, said U.N. spokesman Lt. Col. Gary Coward. Fire broke out in a barracks that was hit.

Government troops prevented British peacekeepers from leaving their camp to assist the Ukrainians, Coward said.

Peace accord expected soon between Russia, Chechnya

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — A peace accord in Russia's seven-month war with secessionist Chechnya could be signed soon, the head of the Chechen negotiating team said Saturday.

Usman Imaev spoke with reporters after meetings with field commanders and Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev. He said there were just a few "technicalities" to work out.

His optimism contrasted with speculation in the Russian media about divisions within rebel ranks and reports that influential field commanders like Shamil Basayev were unhappy with the talks.

Basayev led the daring hostage raid on a southern Russian town last month that brought Moscow to the negotiating table. He has been quoted as saying he'll settle for nothing less than independence for Chechnya and a total Russian pullout.

Russian negotiator Vyacheslav Mikhailov suggested Saturday the two sides had agreed that Chechnya would remain in the Russian Federation, but with some degree of autonomy.

Tens of thousands of Russian troops poured into Chechnya in December to end the region's 3-year-old independence campaign.

Woman surprised by survival

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Only after her rescue Saturday from the rubble of a shopping mall did the young sales clerk learn she had been buried for 16 days.

Of all those astonished by her survival, no one was more amazed than Park Sung-Hyun herself who believed she had been trapped only five days.

Doctors still don't know how the 19-year-old survived, but the darkness that caused her to lose track of time may have helped by keeping her hopes alive.

Park was weak but stable Saturday after being pulled from a tiny pocket in the jumble of concrete slabs, a scratch on the leg her only visible injury.

"She said that she was thirsty, and she asked what today's date was," said Lee Yoo-mee, the nurse who initially treated Park. "When I told her the date, she replied that too many days had passed."

Park was the third survivor to be pulled this week from the remains of the five-story building, which collapsed June 29. Their survival against the odds has amazed rescuers and revived hope among those waiting for news of their loved ones.

"I thought I would be lucky to have her remains returned to me. But what I have here is a miracle," said her father, tears running down his wrinkled face.

Doctors have said that with enough water, those who escape initial injury could live up to 20 days. But Park told doctors she had nothing to drink.

One doctor speculated her body functions had slowed to the point that she was able to survive without water. Others said Park may have been semi-conscious and could have drunk rainwater but forgotten.

Her father said he did not allow himself to believe the person rescued was really his daughter until he got to the hospital. "Once I saw her, and checked for myself, then I could relax," he said.

"This is heaven answering my prayers," said her mother, Ko Soon-young. She had clasped her daughter's photograph to her heart every morning for the past two weeks, praying for her only daughter.

Doctors said Park should be able to eat thin gruel in a day. She's requesting ice cream, grape juice and shaved ice, her mother said.

Weapons, cultists seized in raid

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese police on Saturday raided facilities belonging to the cult accused of gassing Tokyo's subways, seized thousands of weapons parts and arrested 21 cult members.

Two AK-47 rifles were found as well as some 10,000 parts, enough to make about 1,000 more guns, news reports said. It was the largest case of illegal weapons production ever in Japan, the Kyodo News Service said.

Most of the cult's leaders and dozens of members have been arrested in the subway gassing and other crimes. The March 20 attack killed 12 people and sickened thousands.

A police official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said five cult leaders still sought in the subway gassing do not appear to have been among those taken into custody Saturday.

The weapons were seized at the Aum Shinri Kyo (Supreme Truth) cult's main compound near Mount Fuji, one of 18 facilities raided Saturday.

In months of raids since the subway gassing, police have turned up tons of potentially deadly chemicals, military plans, drug factories, hidden rooms and furnaces where bodies may have been burned.

Cult leader Shoko Asahara, who is in custody and will reportedly soon be charged in another fatal gassing in central Japan last year, predicted an all-out war in which only cult members would survive.

The guns were to be used in that war, the NHK public television network said.

Search still on for activists in nuke test site

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — French officials denied antinuclear protesters were hiding at Mururoa Atoll, but planes and boats were searching the nuclear test site where a Greenpeace boat was turned back last week.

"This is hype," Gen. Michel Boileau said as the Greenpeace ship Rainbow Warrior II arrived Friday in Tahiti, 650 miles from Mururoa, to a greeting by thousands of Tahitian supporters.

President Jacques Chirac announced last month that France will set off eight nuclear test blasts at Mururoa beginning in September. Chirac reiterated that plan Friday, saying it was "irrevocable."

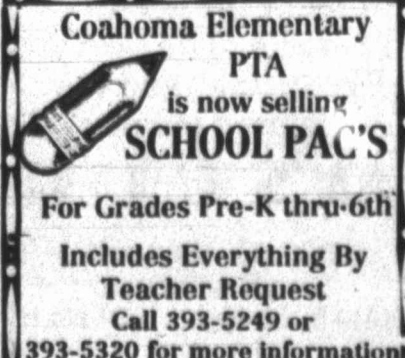

On Saturday, about 500 German and other scientists published an appeal to Chirac to stop the tests. They said they were "horrified and dejected" by the plans, which "mirror the behavior of the Cold War period."

Signers of the letter included Carl Friedrich von Weizsaecker, who worked on the fledgling Nazi atomic bomb project and has become a leading critic of nuclear weapons. The letter echoed a 1957 vow by German scientists never to work on an atomic bomb.

Greenpeace claims one of its founding members, David McTaggart, and two others reached Mururoa aboard a rubber raft July 9, while French soldiers were storming aboard the Rainbow Warrior II.

The French troops teargassed the crew, held them for a half-day and expelled them from French territorial waters around Mururoa. The ship returned to Tahiti to repair damage suffered when a French warship rammed it.

Economic gauge going private

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main economic forecasting gauge, often maligned but closely watched on Wall Street, is about to go private.

The Commerce Department is looking for a private company to take over its Index of Leading Economic Indicators and two companion barometers and publish the results each month.

The Clinton administration says this latest foray into privatization will save money and free some federal numbers-crunchers to pursue the more important task of refining other statistics.

Even private economists who applaud the idea warn there is a danger in having a profit-making company dispense a set of numbers with potential to move financial markets.

Pace and tone of trial changing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that the curtain has risen on Act II of the O.J. Simpson trial, key players are still on stage. But the pace and tone has changed, a huge supporting cast has been introduced and some characters seem to have undergone personality changes.

Simpson's once-feuding lawyers seemed to be focused and have their egos in control as they opened the defense case. There were some highs and lows, but the new pace — 22 witnesses in one week — has been dizzying.

"This is a pretty organized, fresh beginning from the defense," said Loyola University law professor Laurie Levenson. "They're not holding back. They're coming on with a full case. But it's hard to tell yet whether it's a compelling case."

After so many upheavals, the jurors appear more cheerful and alert than they have in weeks.

"The defense case is more entertaining and the jurors now know what to look for," Levenson said. "They know how to frame the issues and they know the questions they want answered."

Chantal strengthens instead of dissipating

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Chantal strengthened Saturday in the Caribbean as forecasters said it might spin out to sea and dissipate there.

Radar showed Chantal moving northwest and possibly peeling away from the U.S. coast and into the Atlantic, forecasters said.

Chantal had been on a more westerly route when it formed Thursday as a meandering and disorganized system east of Puerto Rico.

"There is plenty of warm water out there and I think it has a good chance to become a hurricane," said Jerry Jarrell, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center. "Hopefully, the track will be faking it back out to sea."

At 5 p.m., the storm was near 23.3 north latitude and 68.3 west longitude, about 380 miles north-northwest of San Juan, Puerto Rico and less than 1,000 miles southeast of Miami. Chantal was moving west-northwest at about 8 mph with maximum sustained winds of 50 mph. Storms become hurricanes at 74 mph.

Husband charged in Raleigh mail bombing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The husband of a woman who lost several fingers when a mail bomb exploded in her office was arrested Saturday and charged with the crime.

"A number of things, both statements and physical evidence, pointed to (Stephan) Bullis as the source of the bomb," said Assistant U.S. Attorney John Bennett.

Police refused to speculate on a motive or describe the relationship between Bullis and his wife, Tracy. They have been married for five years and have one child.

Monday's explosion forced the evacuation of about 300 employees from the headquarters of BTI, the long-distance telephone company where Mrs. Bullis works.

In addition to her hand injury, Mrs. Bullis, 35, suffered severe burns on both arms and superficial shrapnel wounds. A colleague with her when she opened the package was treated for hearing loss.

Mrs. Bullis was discharged from the hospital about an hour before her husband's arrest. Authorities said she had been told of it.

"She is doing as well as can be expected," said U.S. Postal Inspector Nick Kaylor.

Bullis, 30, was charged with arson resulting in personal injury and sending a mail bomb with the intent to kill or injure another. If convicted, he faces a combined 60 years in prison and $500,000 in fines.

He was held pending a hearing before a federal magistrate on Monday.

His lawyer did not immediately return calls Saturday.

Hearing on 'friendly fire' incident called

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force captain who was cleared of wrongdoing in a "friendly fire" incident that killed 26 people over Iraq said Friday he hoped upcoming congressional hearings would help prevent similar tragedies.

"The public has the desire to know why this tragedy happened and I feel that I have the obligation to work with Congress to see ... the truth gets out," said Capt. Jim Wang.

Wang was senior director on an Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) plane when two F-15 jet pilots mistook two U.S. Black Hawk helicopters for Iraqi helicopters in a no-fly zone established over northern Iraq after the Persian Gulf War.

He was acquitted by a court-martial June 21 of dereliction of duty charges.

Heat, tedium wilts horde as Smith's trial continues

UNION, S.C. (AP) — A media horde that rushed this mill town for the trial of confessed child-killer Susan Smith has left even faster, wilted by 100-degree heat and tedious jury selection.

More than 80 news organizations that surrounded the courthouse at the beginning had by week's end dwindled to but three television cameras and about 20 reporters, hardly a media spectacle.

"This is definitely no O.J.," one cameraman muttered.

Ms. Smith, 23, faces two death-penalty murder charges in the drownings of her sons, 3-year-old Michael and 14-month-old Alex.

No longer silent and sullen in court, Ms. Smith whispered with her lawyers and kept notes as potential jurors explained their feelings on the death penalty. At week's end, she was shaking hands and smiling.

But even Ms. Smith's increased activity couldn't keep some in court interested. By the fourth day of jury selection, the bailiff was asleep and Ms. Smith's ex-husband David was nodding off as lawyers sought to find a 12-member jury and six alternates.

In six days, 12 jurors were selected: five white men, four black men, two white women and a black woman. The final two panelists got picked on Saturday. After the alternates are chosen, the trial could begin sometime next week.

In this town of 10,000, it proved hard finding many who had no links to the defendant. Circuit Judge William Howard was forced to dismiss 16 panelists who said they could not sentence her to death.

Stealth bomber: When it rains, it is poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $42 billion B-2 stealth bomber loses its stealthiness in the rain, and its radars are unable to distinguish a thundercloud from a mountain, according to a draft report by the General Accounting Office.

Rain distorts the skin of the ground-hugging aircraft, causing it to lose much of its ability to evade enemy radar, according to The New York Times. The newspaper obtained a copy of the draft report prepared by Congress' investigative agency.

A Capitol Hill defense analyst who also saw the document said the GAO determined that testing of the B-2 by its manufacturer, Northrup-Grumman, is many months behind schedule.

But Larry Hamilton, a Northrup-Grumman spokesman, said the document is only a draft.

The Capitol Hill defense analyst said the center of the problem appears to be the "Terrain Following Terrain Avoidance," or TFTA, radar, which gives the aircraft its ability to fly near the ground to avoid detection by hostile radar systems.

Heat wave blamed for 29 deaths nationwide

Air shimmering in desertlike sunshine turned the East into a convection oven Saturday in the heat wave already blamed for train wrecks, at least 29 deaths and millions of dollars in farm losses.

People sought relief however they could.

"We're playing Christmas songs, like 'Winter Wonderland,' to help beat the heat," said trumpeter David Gordon of the Bruce Edwards Quartet, playing jazz in the midday sun in New York City's midtown Duffy Square.

"It's sonic air conditioning," said guitarist Mark Hagan.

A breath of slightly cooler air floated across the upper Midwest and into the Northeast, but touched off lines of severe thunderstorms from the Plains through New England. Thousands lost power in Massachusetts and Connecticut. A falling tree killed a camper in upstate New York and lightning may have killed a Massachusetts woman.

A midday thunderstorm dropped the temperature at Milwaukee from 89, with humidity making it feel like 109, down to 78, but the humidity stayed above 60 percent. Farther west, the relief was more distinct with Saturday's readings in the 70s in western Nebraska.

Ahead of the easing temperatures, however, heat records started falling before noon. Newark, N.J., hit 99 at 11:50 a.m., erasing the 1983 record of 98, then kept going up to 101. Mansfield, Ohio, hit a record 96.

Switching FM title considered 'un-Texan'

HOUSTON (AP) — Some Texas traditions die hard.

Take last month's decision by state transportation officials to tamper with the somewhat homespun road designation known as "Farm-To-Market."

The Department of Transportation wanted to rename the big-city FM roads "Urban Roads" or UR.

There was a method to what some deemed an un-Texan madness.

All 41,000 miles of FM roads are eligible this year for money from a $25 million repair fund.

There's a catch though. The 1,582 miles considered urban cannot dip into a separate $15 million expansion fund.

A task force of transportation officials thought it would be nice to differentiate them through the UR name change, even though it wasn't necessary.

So on June 27, the Texas Transportation Commission had approved the UR name change, which would have affected 30 "farm to market" roads in the Houston area alone, such as FM 1960. The busy road in north Harris County would have become UR 1960.

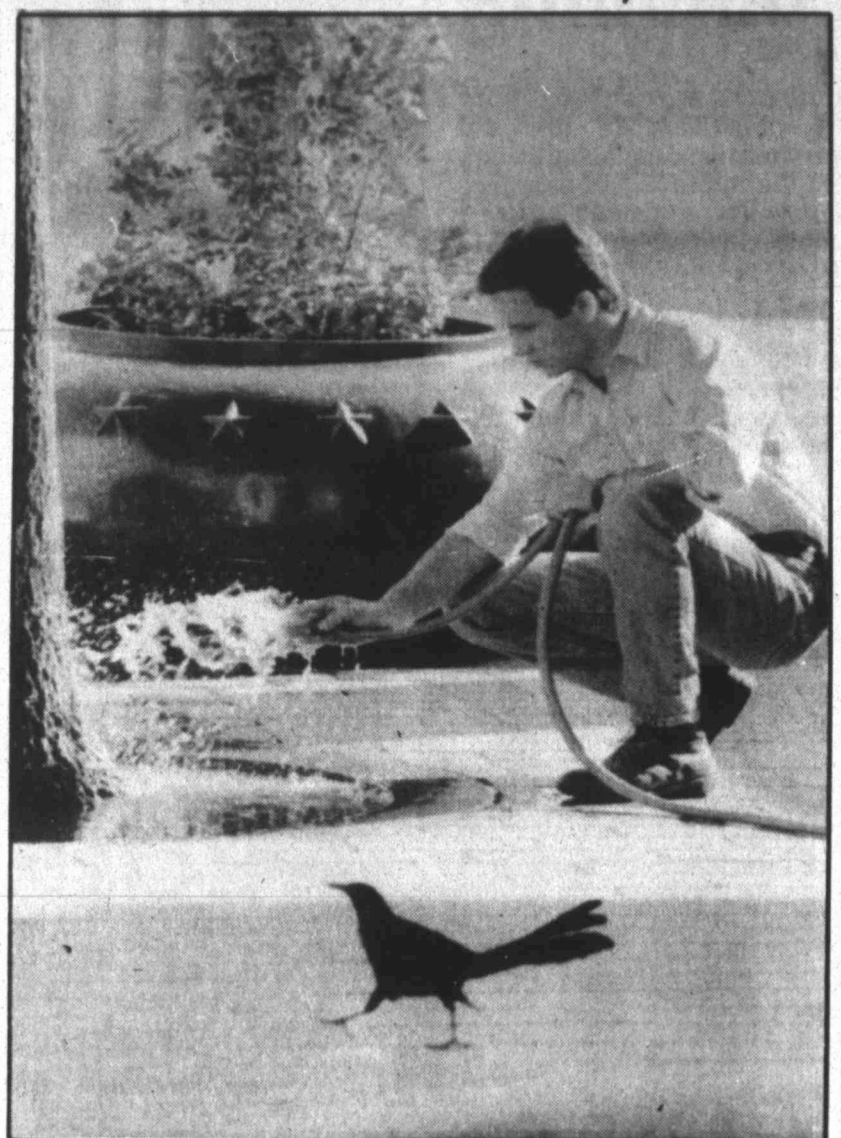

Alerted by news stories, hundreds of Texas residents called and wrote state transportation officials, highway field offices, state representatives and the governor's office.

They took issue with the cost of changing the signs, the inconvenience to residents and businesses and the "un-Texan" switch from "farm" to "urban."

So the DOT initially froze its name-change plans July 7 until at least August after this storm of public protest.

But just this past week, a decision was reached not to change the names after Texas Transportation Commission Chairman David M. Laney spoke to officials in the governor's office.

Ranger indicted on assault charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas Ranger was indicted Friday by a Harris County grand jury on a charge of aggravated assault for allegedly pulling his gun on a state trooper.

Marcus Hilton is accused of threatening Department of Public Safety Officer Michael Coleman during an argument June 27 at a DPS office in Houston, authorities said.

Assistant District Attorney Chuck Noll said conviction of the second-degree felony carries a prison term ranging from two to 20 years.

Hilton was not in custody Friday. Noll said it was likely a bond of $10,000 would be set sometime this weekend.

"I've already heard from his attorney and he will make his bond," Noll said.

Hilton couldn't immediately be reached for comment. The only Marcus Hilton listed in the Houston area telephone directory has an unpublished number. Hilton's attorney, Wayne Hill, did not immediately return a telephone call to his Houston office.

The DPS, which oversees the 170-year-old Rangers, said Friday that Hilton had been suspended and an internal investigation was being conducted.

"The Ranger is on suspension with pay pending the outcome of the DPS' administrative investigation into the situation," said spokeswoman Sherri Green at DPS headquarters.

Ms. Green said Hilton had been a DPS officer since January 1985 and a Ranger since August 1993.

Tip-off leads to slain girl

HOUSTON (AP) — An anonymous caller to a Houston television station led authorities to the body of a naked girl in a north Harris County field, the third such find this month.

Harris County Sheriff's Department personnel used the information provided in the call to KPRC-TV to find the corpse Friday afternoon in an undeveloped area north of Houston.

The Harris County medical examiner's office has tentatively identified the girl as Dana Sanchez, 16, who was last reported seen earlier this month in the Heights area of Houston, near downtown.

Sanchez's mother recognized a ring found on the girl's body, Lt. Albert Diaz of the sheriff's homicide division said.

There were no obvious wounds on the body, and authorities are awaiting the results of an autopsy to establish how the girl died, Diaz said. "The body is somewhat decomposed," he said.

KPRC news director Nancy Shafran told the Houston Chronicle that a man phoning the station's news tip line said a serial killer was on the loose. The caller gave a first name for girl whose body was found, but Ms. Shafran declined to tell the Chronicle what the name he gave was.

Diaz said the name given was not Dana Sanchez, for whom the Houston Police Department has been looking since July 6. He said investigators have not yet accepted that the slaying was the work of a serial killer.

Sanchez had been staying with a friend near the Heights area when she left to see her boyfriend, her friend told police. Her boyfriend said she never arrived.

Houston Police homicide investigators are continuing to investigate the death of Yinora Villa, 13, whose corpse was discovered Thursday in east Houston. She apparently sneaked away from home to go out with some boys she knew.

Her body was found in a clearing near her house. Police said she appeared to have been strangled.

Police said Miss Villa's death resembled that of Sandra Marie Hernandez, 15, whose body was found July 3 in Country Club Bayou, less than three miles from where Miss Villa's body was found.

Marco Ramos, 17, has been charged with killing Hernandez. She had been visiting Ramos, who allegedly told police he strangled her when she refused to have sex with him. Police say he admitted to stuffing her down a storm drain.

DPS ready to begin gun safety courses

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Public Safety is gearing up to begin its first course for would-be firearms instructors under the new concealed-guns law.

The class starts Monday at the DPS Training Academy in Austin with about 160 applicants scheduled to attend, DPS spokeswoman Lauren Chernow said.

"We take this very seriously because, ultimately, our law enforcement officers will be out on the streets with people who may very well be carrying a gun," Ms. Chernow said.

The trainees, who represent every region of the state, will be divided into two groups: those who already are certified to teach other types of handgun courses and those who are not.

VALEDICTORY VENOM

Lawsuit challenging choice of top student thrown out

LUBBOCK (AP) — Officials of the Snyder Independent School District are rejoicing over a federal judge's decision to throw out a lawsuit challenging the high school's choice of valedictorian.

"We are ecstatic," said Leonard Schwartz of Austin, the district's attorney. "This is what we expected."

But the attorney for the girl, who thinks she should be honored as Snyder High School's top student said their fight will continue.

"It is still not over," said lawyer Robert Nebb. "We still have the right to appeal."

Nebb said he still has not dismissed U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings' decision with his client, Holly Jones.

The school selected Miss Jones, 18, and Veana Clay, 17, as Snyder High's co-valedictorians in May because of their high grade-point averages. However, Miss Clay's name was submitted to the Texas Education Agency as official valedictorian because her average was 0.0123 point higher.

The difference means a state-sponsored college scholarship for Miss Clay.

Jones' suit contended that because Miss Clay graduated in three years and not four, she should not be eligible.

Suspects in slaying of honor student to be tried in Mexico

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — The suspects in the 1993 slaying of a Rancho Viejo, Texas, honor student will be tried by Mexican authorities, Cameron County District Attorney Luis Saenz said Friday.

"They have agreed to take our case," said Saenz of the slaying of 18-year-old Joey Fischer in Rancho Viejo, near Brownsville. The St. Joseph Academy student was gunned down outside of his home in March of 1993.

Saenz and other Texas authorities handed over evidence and translated documents in the case to the Mexican attorney general when they traveled Thursday to Mexico City.

The information will be used against Heriberto Puentes Pizana and Israel Olivares, who has also gone by the name Rafael Mata Sosa.

Puentes and Olivares will be prosecuted under an obscure provision of the Mexican Constitution that allows the trial of Mexican citizens in Mexico even when the alleged crime occurs in the United States.

"A prosecution is very different in Mexico," said Saenz, who predicted the trial could take four months. "The trial will be basically a judge reviewing our case, our documents, and based on that make a determination on guilt or innocence."

"The days of escaping into Mexico after committing a crime in the United States are over," attorney general's spokeswoman Pat Guillermo said.

There have been four cases under Mexico's Article 4 that have been presented by Texas Attorney General Dan Morales.

Russian fuming over no-show

San Angelo team backs out of event

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A Russian soccer official has told a San Angelo youth team that he's "very much upset and disappointed" that the under-19 squad has scrapped a year's worth of effort in getting the West Texans to play an international tournament there.

Mikhail N. Fetisov told the team that its withdrawal from the Golden Cupulas Cup, a soccer festival honoring the 900th anniversary of Ryazan, Russia, has hurt the event.

The letter, obtained by the San Angelo Standard Times, said the move has robbed the event of some of its international flair. Teams from England, Holland and Spain will still join the Russians.

"Honestly speaking, we feel very much upset and disappointed," Fetisov wrote. "Even financial losses, which our firm and the Sports Committee have suffered during the whole year of preparatory stage, can't be compared with the moral shock because it will certainly be the central event in the life of the city."

Fetisov said the tournament had even moved the celebration up a month to August to accommodate the Texans.

Debbie Phillips, speaking for the San Angelo Soccer Association, said the team has sent a letter to Russia explaining why it pulled out. Parental concerns over the country's handling of the ongoing turmoil in Chechnya, about 1,000 miles south of Ryazan, played the biggest part.

The team will still traverse the Atlantic for a trip. The players leave Friday for a Swedish tournament. They would have been in Russia August 4-10.

Fetisov said the safety concerns aren't valid.

"To speak frankly, we can't realize true reasons of your refusal," Fetisov wrote. "Even if changes in the political situation of our country do take place, they do not have any serious impact upon the people's life in the central part of Russia."

He added that things were much more tenuous in 1992, the last time the San Angelo contingent traveled to Ryazan.

The San Angelo businessman who played a key role in developing a relationship with Ryazan said the decision to cancel the trip was a bad one.

"I told the parents how disappointed I was in them, and making the commitment not to go," he said Tuesday. "I think they got a little fear instilled in them. But like (Franklin D.) Roosevelt said, there's nothing to fear but fear itself."

"I reassured them that the information I've received from my cohort (in Ryazan), that there was no problem at all. I wouldn't stick my neck out on something that would bring harm or endanger them."

Jean Bartholomew reacts after saving par on the third hole Friday at the U.S. Women's Open.

Mallon shoots 66, takes Open lead

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Meg Mallon had four birdies in a bogey-free round, bolting out of the pack to claim a two-stroke lead after 54 holes in the 50th U.S. Women's Open.

Her nearly flawless 66 gave Mallon a 54-hole total of 5-under-par 205, bettering the Open record of 206 set by Patty Sheehan last year.

Mallon, who began the day just one shot out of the lead at one under, birdied Nos. 4 and 9 and suddenly found herself with a two-stroke lead.

The 1991 Women's Open champion made a 12-foot birdie putt at No. 13 to get to four under, forging a momentary three-shot lead.

Kelly Robbins, playing ahead of Mallon, then birdied the par-5 17th to cut Mallon's lead to two shots.

Mallon, 32, gained another shot on par at 17, pitching to three feet and making that birdie putt as well.

Julie Larsen, who posted her first LPGA win five weeks ago, birdied three of her last six holes for a 68 and a 207 total, two shots off the pace.

Rosie Jones was at 209. Robbins, who double-bogeyed 18, was at 210, along with Pat Bradley and Annika Sorenstam. Kris Tschetter, Dale Egging and Tania Aibitol were at 211, while Dottie Mochrie and first-round leader Jill Briles-Hinton were in a group at 212.

"That's the way you're supposed to play a U.S. Open — hit fairways, hit greens and put the ball in the right position on the greens," Mallon said.

Weather delays on Friday meant 27 players had to finish their second rounds Saturday morning. Third-round tee times were delayed and players were sent off both the first and 10th tees for the first time in Women's Open history.

The third round began with eight players tied for the lead at two under — Bradley, Briles-Hinton, Sorenstam, Egging, Tammie Green, Dawn Co-Jones, rookie Leta Lindley and Jean Bartholomew. Twenty players were within three shots of the lead.

Bartholomew had been the overnight leader, getting to three under through 13 holes of the weather-delayed second round when darkness halted play Friday night. She lost a stroke to par over her final five holes Saturday morning, creating the eight-way logjam.

The field then was cut and repaired. Among those missing the cut were LPGA Hall of Famer JoAnne Carner, Beth Daniel, 1993 Open champion Lauri Merten and Nabisco Dinah Shore winner Nanci Bowen.

Bartholomew, a veteran of the European and Japanese tours, quickly dropped off the leaderboard in the third round.

Laura Davies made a brief charge, birdieing four straight holes to get to three over. She finished at 214 with a 69.

SIX-MAN SHOWCASE

Sands star wins game at the line

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Kim Durrett of Whitharral hit three 3-pointers down the stretch and Mandy Hodnett of Sands made a free throw with 9 seconds left, giving the West a 79-78 victory over the East on Saturday in the Six-Man Coaches Association girls all-star basketball game.

Durrett, who was named the game's Most Valuable Player, led the West with 13 points. Ashley Hart of Moran led the East with 15 points and 10 rebounds.

The East led by as many as 10 points in the first half and held a 40-35 advantage at the half.

With under two minutes to play, the West led, 75-73, but Bynum's Jackie Williams converted a three-point play at 1:48 to put the East back in front, 76-75.

Durrett hit another 3-pointer for a 78-76 West advantage, but Williams tied the score again, at 78-all, with 36 seconds to play.

Hodnett was fouled with nine seconds remaining and hit the first free throw, giving the West a 79-78 lead. She missed the second, but Durrett got the rebound.

The East came up with a steal, but couldn't get off a shot in time.

The victory is the West's second straight in the series. Jenny Burkett of Guthrie added 10 points and nine rebounds for the West, while Lisa Borland of Ropes had 10 points, five assists and three steals.

For the East, Williams added 12 points and 17 rebounds and Jennifer Guhl of Newcastle had 8 points.

Hodnett has signed with Howard College.

West outguns East in boys showdown

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Brett Miller of Highland scored 15 points and pulled down 10 rebounds, leading the West to a 126-102 victory over the East in the Texas Six-Man Coaches Association boys all-star basketball game Friday night.

The girls' all-star game is scheduled for Saturday afternoon, followed by the all-star football game Saturday night.

Miller, who hadn't practiced for two days because of an injured foot, was voted Most Valuable Player as the West won for the fourth year in a row.

The West opened up a big halftime lead with red-hot shooting from 3-point range, hitting 6-of-7 shots. For the game, the West was 62 percent from the field and 62 percent from the 3-point line.

The West led by as many as 31 points in the second half, before Derrick Williams of Bynum helped the East cut the lead to 17, 117-100, with 2:30 left. Williams led all scorers with 23 points.

Shane Pettiet of Guthrie led the West in scoring with 17 points, while Justin Wesbrooks of Fort Elliot had 14. Chris Bishop of Amherst had 13 points, Matt Elliot of Lazbuddie had 11 and J.W. Ray of Kelton had 10.

East conquers West in football classic

Borden Co. star scores West TD

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Chris Ashby of Jonesboro returned an interception 25 yards for a touchdown, leading the East to a 14-6 victory over the West in the Texas Six-Man Coaches Association all-star football game Saturday night.

Ashby's interception of a throw-back pass came with 1:27 remaining in the game, which appeared heading for a 6-6 tie. The East has now won two straight games.

Ashby's fourth-quarter heroics earned him the defensive Most Valuable Player award, while Adam Castillo of the West was the offensive MVP.

The West had the early lead as quarterback Kurt Hess of Borden County took a pitch from Castillo as he was about to be tackled, and raced 40 yards for the touchdown.

But the East defense came through in the first quarter as well when Mike Reed of Gordon recovered a fumbled pitch in the end zone for the score.

Cody Blair of Paint Creek had 62 yards rushing, while teammate Chris Cumpston of Lueders-Avoca had 57 yards. Castillo had 33 yards rushing and Hess had 32.

Junior rodeo returns to Big Spring

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

If you're missing the pro rodeo that blew through Big Spring last month, maybe the junior rodeo can cure your withdrawal symptoms.

The annual Big Spring American Junior Rodeo Association rodeo starts Thursday at the Rodeo Bowl.

It's best to call this a junior rodeo, instead of a 'youth rodeo.' You see, the AJRA consists of members who can rodeo up to their 20th birthday. The AJRA is patterned after the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, even referring to its rule book.

The AJRA was founded by Brownfield's Alvin G. Davis in 1952. Davis formed the association in Levelland, but today the T.J. Good of Elida, N.M. ropes a calf at last year's junior rodeo.

AJRA headquarters are in Rankin. Approximately 16 to 20 AJRA-approved rodeos entertain fans each year, and they are coordinated to avoid conflict with the school year.

Big Spring's AJRA rodeo is hosted and sponsored by the Howard County 4-H Club. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for children. Each of the three performances start at 7:30 p.m.

'Boys sign draft picks

IRVING (AP) — As training camp looms, the Dallas Cowboys began collecting contract signatures from their 10 draft choices by agreeing to deals with their second- and seventh-round picks.

The team signed second-round pick Kendall Watkins and seventh-round pick Oscar Sturgis to three-year contracts Friday. The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported in Saturday's editions.

The newspaper said negotiations with the team's No. 1 pick, running back Sherman Williams, are not progressing smoothly.

Cowboys linebacker Darrin Smith also is not close to signing, according to his agent, Brian Ransom.

The inking of tight end Watkins of Mississippi and Sturgis, a former North Carolina defensive end, is just the beginning of a weekend full of Cowboys transactions. The team was expected to sign more picks Saturday and Monday.

Nomo's rise gives viewers quite a rerun

When you think of the similarities, it's nearly as bizarre as the links between the Kennedy and Lincoln assassinations.

You've heard those:
- The names Lincoln and Kennedy both have seven letters.

- Lincoln's assassin fired his shots in a theater and ran to a warehouse; Kennedy's killer did the deed from a warehouse and hid in a theater.

- A lady named Kennedy warned Lincoln not to go to the theater; a woman named Lincoln told Kennedy he shouldn't ride in the Dallas motorcade.

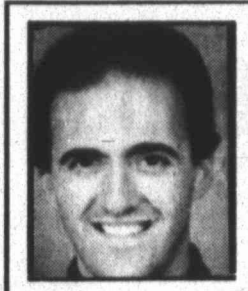

Well, without meaning to trivialize those events, you seem to find the same type of connections between two pitchers who rocked baseball 14 years apart.

Fernando Valenzuela and Hideo Nomo. If you're a baseball fan, the connections are obvious.

In 1981, Valenzuela pitched his rookie season for the Los Angeles Dodgers. Valenzuela, a portly left-hander from Mexico, turned his back to the hitter while looking to the heavens as he threw.

Fourteen years later, a fire-balling right-handed rookie from Japan named Nomo pitches for the Dodgers. When pitching from the windup, Nomo raises his arms above his head and stretches, almost like a cat waking from a nap. He then swivels his body and turns his back to the hitter just before launching the ball plateward.

Dave Hargrave
Sports Editor

OK, you've got the point, right? Well, not entirely. The media hounding Nomo have compared Japan's newest hero to Valenzuela, but only in the sense that both have become heroes in their homeland while drawing fabulous crowds. The similarities go way beyond that. Do you realize Valenzuela and Nomo hit baseball during strike-ravaged seasons?

The 1981 season was interrupted by a 50-day strike. Valenzuela transcended such pettiness, however, and his stardom helped keep baseball afloat. Valenzuela's extraordinary success - in 1981 he became the only person to win the Cy Young Award and Rookie of the Year in the same season - kept fans interested in the game, and he helped lead the Dodgers to the World Series championship.

In 1995, the situation is worse because the strike of '94-95 was much more severe. A World Series was canceled, and American baseball players suddenly were less popular than polio. Who better to rekindle curiosity about the national pastime than Nomo, a man who seems immune to the labor strife in American sports? Baseball has lost a ton of fans in the past year, but Nomo is bringing new fans, mostly Asian-American. He's leading the National League in strikeouts and he's a lock for the Rookie of the Year.

Guess who led the NL in strikeouts in 1981? Does the name Valenzuela ring a bell?

Take away Greg Maddux and his drive for a fourth-consecutive Cy Young, and Nomo, like Valenzuela, would be the favorite to win the award in his rookie season.

Finally, That must be the end of the Valenzuela-Nomo links, right?

Nope. We've covered the main links - Dodgers, foreigners becoming heroes in both the U.S. and their native land, post-strike saviors - but we can't let the trivia slip by.

First, Valenzuela and Nomo both started for the National League in the All-Star Game in their rookie season. In '81, Valenzuela did not allow a run, and the NL won 5-4 as it scored all of its runs on homers. Tuesday, Nomo pitched two scoreless innings in Arlington, and the NL won 3-2 - with all of the rups resulting from homers.

Hmmm...

Oh yeah! Valenzuela's first postseason game of '81 came in what was known as the divisional playoff series - a sort of "mini-playoffs" deemed necessary because of the strike that year. That was the only season in baseball history that eight teams reached postseason play... until this year, when the new playoff system takes effect. Nomo's Dodgers, just like Valenzuela's, would have to win two playoff series to reach the World Series.

OK, that's enough. If you haven't gotten the idea by now, you won't. If you want to look smart in October, pick the Dodgers to win the World Series, and pick Nomo to win the Cy Young Award.

After all, that's what Valenzuela did 14 years ago.

For seniors, tough part is the weather

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Oppressive 100-degree temperatures didn't diminish during the rain-delayed third round of the Senior Players Championship on Saturday, but Jim Colbert's commanding lead certainly did.

Colbert, who opened the day with a four-shot advantage after his tournament and TPC of Michigan course-record 63 Friday, found himself one stroke behind J.C. Snead when play was suspended for a second and final time at 7:10 p.m.

An electrical storm caused the initial four-hour delay and, after play resumed for 20 minutes - during which Snead finished the par-5 13th with an eagle to vault in the lead at 13 under par - the second suspension was called.

The 24 golfers who did not finish their third round are scheduled to resume play at 9:15 a.m. today and, following completion of the round, the field will be repaired for the start of the fourth round.

While Snead and Lee Trevino were the only players within four shots of Colbert at the start of play Saturday, eight golfers were at least that close to the lead when play was called.

Defending champion Dave Stockton is alone in third place, two strokes behind Snead and one behind Colbert, at 11 under par after 13 holes.

Three players are at 10 under, including course architect Jack Nicklaus, who also eagled the 506-yard 13th during the brief resumption of play, and Robert Gaona, whose birdie on 16 following the re-start was his eighth of the day. Journeyman Ben Smith also stands 10 under after completing 14 holes.

Carter stays in 60s, keeps Busch lead

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Jim Carter shot a 3-under-par 68 Saturday, his third straight round in the 60s, and held a one-stroke lead over Jim Gallagher Jr., Blaine McCallister and Ted Tryba after three rounds of the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

Carter had a 54-hole total of 283, 10 under par for three trips over the sweltering Kingsmill Golf Club's River Course. The temperature on the course was at least 98 degrees, and the heat index made it feel like 118.

Carter, who lives in Scottsdale, Ariz., seemed the least affected by the heat on the 6,797-yard layout, finishing with seven straight pars.

After cancelling a birdie on No. 3 with a bogey on the next hole, Carter made short birdie putts at 6 and 7 and reached the turn at nine under. He got it to 10 under when he made a downhill 10-footer on No. 11.

On Friday, Carter twice got to 10 under. The first time he immediately made two straight bogeys, and the second time he made three in a row.

Tour de France keeps rolling

MENDE, France (AP) — Russian Sergei Outschakov beat Texan Lance Armstrong in the final sprint to capture today's 13th stage of the Tour de France, and Miguel Indurain held onto the overall lead.

As the Tour entered its third week, Indurain finished with the pack more than 19 minutes behind, with the top two no threat in the overall standings.

Outschakov and Armstrong, who lives in Austin, broke away from two others with about five miles left in the 152-mile stage from Mende to Revel.

Entering the final stretch, Armstrong was right behind the Russian and appeared ready to overtake him. However Outschakov managed to stay ahead in the final sprint and take the win.

Coast Guard rescues fishermen

GALVESTON (AP) — A Coast Guard helicopter rescued three Louisiana men from an unmanned oil platform in the Gulf of Mexico after their fishing boat sank Friday afternoon about 60 miles south of Sabine, Texas.

Authorities received a radio distress call shortly after 1 p.m. from the fishing boat Tiger Shark, which reported it was taking on water. Eight minutes later, the crew reported they were abandoning the vessel.

A Coast Guard helicopter was dispatched from Houston to assist. The 82-foot Coast Guard Point Baker based in Sabine diverted from another mission while a jet from Corpus Christi provided communications backup for the mission.

The men were located at 2:25 p.m. on a platform near the site of the shipwreck.

Only one crew member, Roland Billiot of Montegut, La., suffered minor abrasions the head, the Coast Guard said. Dudley Faussell of Houma, La., and Lanny Dardar of Montegut were uninjured.

The men reported that they hit an unknown object earlier in the day, but didn't notice any damage at the time. They said that they began to head for a platform when the boat began taking on water, but they couldn't get the distressed vessel out of gear and struck the oil rig.

DALLAS (AP) — Academically-deficient basketball players are finding their way into Division I schools by using degrees from questionable programs at two-year schools, The Dallas Morning News reports in its Sunday editions.

The NCAA and National Junior College Athletic Association have looked into the issue and two four-year schools — Murray State and Auburn — have been investigated, according to the newspaper's sources.

NCAA coaches are prohibited from actively helping potential junior college players in getting the credits they need. But some apparently play active roles in sending future standouts through intensive summer classes at some two-year schools.

The Morning News reported potential NCAA violations related to eight junior college athletes who landed at four NCAA schools: Arkansas, Kansas State, Murray State and Louisiana State.

Documents obtained through open-record laws and other interviews indicate five of those athletes say they were "set up" at new junior colleges by representatives from four-year schools.

The News found travel records that indicated Murray State assistant coach Nikita Johnson lived near a Kansas junior college for a month to monitor the attendance and coursework of three recruits. The newspaper said Johnson and another coach involved refused comment despite numerous calls and faxes.

A player from Pensacola (Fla.) Junior College intending to move on to LSU received a full credit toward his associate's degree at Independence (Kan.) Junior College for acting in a play. All Glover Jackson had to do, the News said, was hold a

"If the presidents of these four-year schools had any guts at all, they would reject these kinds of kids," said George Killian, who said his organization is cooperating with an NCAA investigation.

NCAA officials probed Independence and Allen County (Kan.) Community College, and officials at both schools say they're cracking down on summer degrees awarded to transferring athletes.

Players warehoused in junior colleges to go on to four-year schools are usually those that can't meet the NCAA's minimum high school exit standards, outlined under the association's Proposition 48. A score of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and a 2.0 grade point average in high school are the bare minimums required to play at four-year schools. In Texas and Florida, exit exams are required for junior college students to move on. That's where third-party summer programs come in to save players who fell behind after taking a load of mostly catch-up courses.

Still, even a former junior college coach admits some players and coaches across the country are taking advantage of the two-year programs. "Some of these guys couldn't get 28 hours in a full academic year," said Jerry Mullens, who operates a scouting service. "Now, some of them are getting 20 hours (in a summer)."

Quite frankly, the two-year colleges that are doing this are giving the rest of the two-year colleges a bad name.

spear and say the line, "Hark! Who goes there?"

Jackson played one season for the Tigers, averaging 2.2 points per game. He signed with the Harlem Globetrotters last month. Craig Carse, the coach at the time from LSU that was involved, also failed to respond to calls and faxes.

"Quite frankly, the two-year colleges that are doing this are giving the rest of the two-year colleges a bad name," said Stephen Mallonee, an NCAA legislative services director.

The executive director of the NJCAA said some of the blame lies with the four-year schools that encourage the use of questionable courses.

British Open measures its field

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — What better place than at the oldest golf course prior to the oldest tournament to consider who is the best golfer around.

The simple answer may simply be: No one.

When the 124th British Open starts on the Old Course at St. Andrews on Thursday, golf will have come full circle from the first Open in 1860. That tournament was an attempt to identify the best golfer.

The answer then was Willie Park, the first British Open champion.

This year's British Open may provide no answers at the 450-year-old course.

"The competition around the world is just so much stronger that it was 20 years ago, 10 years ago even," U.S. Open champion Corey Pavin said before leaving for St. Andrews.

Consider this. Since the 1990 British Open, when Nick Faldo won his second major championship of the year and third in two years, there have been 19 major championships. They have been won by 17 different golfers. The only repeat winner was Nick Price, with two PGAs and a British Open. The only perennial favorite is Greg Norman.

"I guess the only constant there is is that he's the only constant," Jay Haas said about Norman. But no one has dominated for a 10-year run since the Tom Watson Era ended with his win in the 1983 British Open.

Credentials for greatness for the Big Three — Price, Faldo and Norman — would be helped enormously by a victory this week at St. Andrews. Beyond the Big Three, picking possible winners at St. Andrews amounts to rounding up the usual suspects. Pavin had his breakthrough victory in a major and Davis Love's second place in the Masters finally gave him a top-10 major finish.

Ernie Els has shown flashes of the form that won the U.S. Open last year, while Fred Couples and Paul Azinger continue to tease that they are back from injury and illness.

It seems like only a matter of time until Scotsman Collin Montgomerie wins a major championship.

Staying on top is made difficult today because of "the media, the pressure of everybody making a big deal out of who's No. 1 and everything," Haas said.

Price, who missed the cut at the Masters and the Houston Open in April after being virtually unbeatable last year, said, "Compared to this time last year my life is more complicated. Last year it was easy to just go out and play golf."

Now, he has to play golf, handle interviews, give autographs and juggle business deals.

The most exceptional run of all was Jack Nicklaus, who won an astounding 20 major championships from 1959 through 1986.

Bobby Jones won 13 in a brilliant eight-year run from 1923-30 that he cut short with his voluntary retirement at age 28. And Walter Hagen captured 11 in the 16 years starting in 1914.

Ben Hogan had nine in eight years and Gary Player took nine over a two-decade span. Arnold Palmer took eight in 11 years and Watson the same number in nine years.

Gene Sarazen and Sam Snead each won seven majors, Sarazen in 14 years and Snead in 13. And Lee Trevino captured six over a 17-year run. All of the above had this in common: They won at least three different major championships — Sarazen, Player, Hogan, Palmer and Jones won four and Nicklaus five.

SUMMER of SUCCESS

Summer of Success Camp - better known as SOS - is more than a fun diversion for these at-risk youngsters. It's a way to rebuild their sense of pride and responsibility

Story by Janet Ausbury

During break time, youths that were brave enough to withstand the heat and sun played volleyball on the outdoor court.

It's 104 degrees on a Tuesday afternoon, but still a group of kids ranging in age from about 11 to 17 find the energy to play volleyball outside Howard College's student union building.

A few, daunted by the heat, lounge inside the student union doors. Tish Long, coordinator of children's services for the Howard County Mental Health Center, watches them. "Inside or outside," she warns one boy. He closes the door he has been holding open and steps inside.

Long is the resident authority figure here at the Summer of Success (SOS) camp, which she has organized for at-risk children. Sign language is one of the classes these youngsters have been taking, and when the kids gave Long a name in sign language, they chose the sign that means "sergeant."

It's all in good fun, however. Long is not a strict, domineering authority figure; she sets basic guidelines and allows the children the freedom to follow them with few reminders.

"We have one rule here," she points out. "Respect yourself and others." Even though many of these children have had discipline or behavior problems in school or at home, they have little trouble following this rule at SOS.

The participants themselves devised a method of discipline for peers who break the respect rule: At the beginning of the afternoon session, every participant sits on the left side of the Howard College auditorium. Those who act in disrespect to others are banished, with the point of a finger, to the right side of the room. There they stay until allowed back to the left side by the person whom they offended.

Rarely does Long or one of her teachers or group leaders need to step in where a conflict is concerned. At first, having one rule to follow without constant reminders is difficult for some of the children. "They're not used to not having someone crack down on them all the time," she said.

However, they quickly adjust and learn to like being responsible for their own behavior. "I tell them there's that one rule about respect, but I'd be glad to add others if they like," she said. So far, she hasn't had to add more rules.

SOS is a six-week session designed to give troubled youngsters - whether they are abused, have difficulties learning, or are emotionally troubled - a supportive, educational and fun environment.

"We try to break up the class part with fun activities to keep their attention going," said Long. The first SOS camp last year included computer, mathematics and Spanish-culture classes, along with a variety of field trips and other activities.

This year's format is similar. Carol Green has returned to teach computer classes, which Long said the children love, and Green's daughter Tabitha also has returned to teach mathematics.

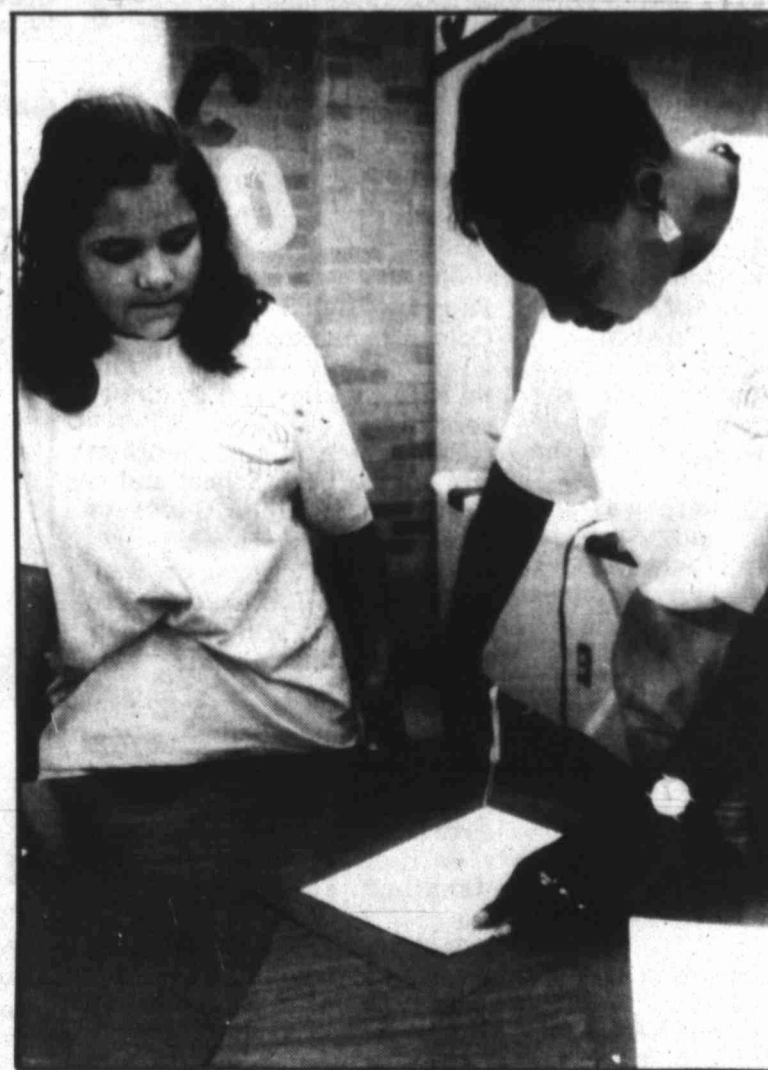

Other classes include a language arts class, taught by Leatrice Brown, in which each participant is writing his or her own book; Shannon Creswell's sign-language class; an art class taught by Sheree Moates; and exercises in decision-making and anger control taught by Shannon Nabors and Cheryl Gaines.

Books on a table serve as an example of how such publications are created. The youths are creating their own books.

Don't let one bad apple spoil the barrel at Howard College

What exactly is the price of an education? I've found myself pondering that question this week in light of the recent publicity revolving around Howard College.

Barbara Morrison
Columnist

close to home. You're right. This is not going to be one of my "funny" columns. And yes, I'm probably preaching again...but here goes. (My family can tell you when I set my mind to nagging, I'm absolutely unbeatable.)

Anyway, there's been a lot of negative publicity about Howard College and a student who received a grade for a class he never attended.

So what. That's right, that's the attitude I'm taking.

I've taken plenty of classes at various institutions of higher learning, including HC. And, I can tell you I personally know of at least one student in each and every class I've taken who indulged in the art of "cheating" in order to gain a grade. My question is this...is the college responsible for this sort of action?

People seem to be going crazy blaming "Howard College for this and Howard College for that," but let's get real here for a minute. Do you really think the college approved of or otherwise endorsed the action of giving a kid an unearned grade?

I'm sorry, I just don't buy it. HC has worked hard to earn a reputation of respect. Do you think they would take a chance on losing what they have worked so diligently to achieve because of ONE kid and ONE grade? I don't think so.

And, I think we've missed the boat here. By blaming the college itself, we're missing the mark when aiming the arrow of responsibility.

The kid cheated, plain and simple. Yet, who, just once, has said anything like "Gee, that kid knew he didn't deserve the grade...shouldn't HE be punished?" No sir, instead we send a message that says "it's okay to cheat as long as you told the truth later and are making big bucks off of your story."

And what about the instructor? Where does his responsibility fall? Will he pass the blame on to some higher authority that told him to give the grade? If so, does that make his integrity any more viable? Not to me.

So, where does all this get us? The media will have a field day because everyone is always claiming there is too much emphasis placed on athletics and not enough given to true academics. And, personally, that's a viewpoint I agree with, but that's getting away from the real issue - the kid cheated.

The classes I attended at Howard College were of a wide variety. I worked hard for the grades I received and I was mad as heck when someone got a grade they cheated to receive. Yet, I never said anything. I didn't want to make waves.

I attended some of the easiest classes of my college career at HC, and I also took the most difficult course of my life there, thanks to Mr. Simpson of microbiology fame.

No matter the difficulty of the course (and remember that different topics have different levels of difficulty to different individuals) I always found the teachers, instructors and mentors to be exactly that. They taught, they instructed and they encouraged. They valued their role in my education and I valued theirs.

People who work that hard to teach others shouldn't be the victims of a slam match. A school that works that hard to employ those kinds of individuals should also not become a victim.

Instead of focusing on a single bad incident of which the school probably knew nothing about, let's focus on the multitude of good examples who have graduated from Howard College. The price of an education is too expensive and too important to let one bad apple spoil the lot.

WEDDINGS

Henkell-Kligora

Teressa Janeane Henkell and Andy James Kligora, both of Big Spring, united in marriage July 1, 1995, in the home of the groom's mother, with Bro. Douglas Shelly, pastor of East Sixth Baptist Church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Clarence and Dee Henkell, Big Spring.

The groom is the son of Diane Kligora, Big Spring.

The couple stood before arrangements of purple and white flowers on tiers and a gold archway decorated with purple and white bouquets.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown with a sweetheart neckline, flowing train, sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of lilies, carnations and daisies.

Maid of honor was Debbie Rawls, cousin of the bride.

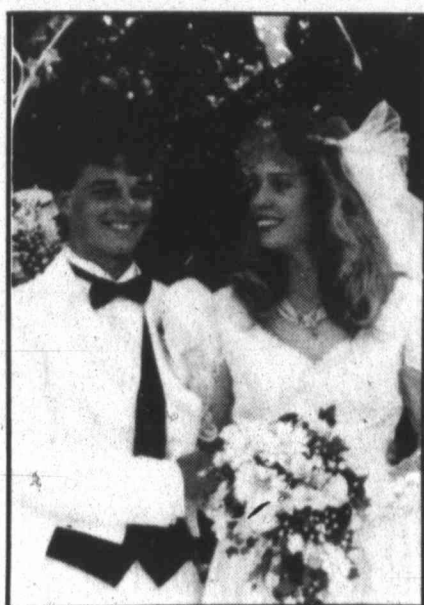

Bridesmaids were Cherrie McSwain, Carla Schoenewolf and Tiffany Matherly.

Flower girl was Melissa Hale, and ringbearer was Clifton Green.

Best man was Bryan Kligora, brother of the groom.

Roger Kligora, brother of the groom, Kelsey Ingram and Seth Newell served as groomsmen. Kelsey Ingram also served as usher.

Diane Kligora and Dee Henkell were the candle-

MR. AND MRS. ANDY KLIGORA

lighters.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at KC Steakhouse.

The cake was a three-tiered white cake with purple rose borders and a purple water fountain underneath.

The bride is a 1995 graduate of Big Spring High School.

The groom is a 1992 graduate of Treasure Lake High School, Indianola, Okla. He is employed by M.D. Young Construction.

Following a wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Staggs-Gravett

Shelly Staggs, Lubbock, and Kevin Gravett, Shallowater, were united in marriage July 1, 1995, at Trinity Church in Lubbock with Cliff Hoeve and Mickey Eckles of Trinity Church, Lubbock, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Sondra Staggs, Lubbock, and Tindall Staggs, Albany, Ga., and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Staggs, Big Spring.

The groom is the son of Kathy and Duane Gray, Spade.

The couple stood before two cathedral floor candelabras and a center arch candelabra which held clear votive cups and were decorated with foliage. Four mixed white floral arrangements atop white Roman columns completed the altar decorations.

Linda Holcomb was the pianist, and Jenny Davidson Zachary and Tom Long were the vocalists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and alencon lace. The bodice, beaded with sequins and pearls, featured a sweetheart neckline, Renaissance sleeves and a Basque waist. The full ballgown skirt was highlighted with beaded lace appliques and a cathedral-length train. She wore a floral wreath headpiece adorned with a double pouf and three tiers of silk illusion veiling.

She carried a bouquet of silk cascading white roses, gardenias, jasmine and bouvardia with white organza ribbon.

Maid of honor was Alissa Davidson, Lubbock.

Bridesmaids were Courtney Green, Becky Holton and Jennier Baker, all of Lubbock.

Flower girls were Katie Abbott, San Angelo, and Sydney Gravett, Hubert, N.C. Ringbearers were Lance Fannon, Fritch, and Tyler Fannon, Grapevine.

Best man was Paul Aylesworth, Lubbock.

Kenny Mann and Earl Haralson, both of Lubbock, and Tom Long, Fort Worth, served as groomsmen.

Jason Staggs, Lubbock; Tim Gravett, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Wes Hamilton, Fort Worth;

MRS. KEVIN GRAVETT

John Elliott, Lubbock; and Brian Legan, Denver City, served as ushers.

Junior attendants were Kristina Fannon, Grapevine; Laura Hager, Snyder; and Megan Staggs, San Antonio.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall.

The bride's table was covered with a white taffeta cloth and featured the bride's cake of five separate cakes on acrylic stands of graduated height, frosted in a basketweave design. Each cake was decorated with fresh white gardenias, roses, larkspur and stephanotis. Floral arrangements of the same and votive candles completed the table.

The groom's table was covered in a forest-green cloth and featured the groom's cake of milk chocolate frosted in a basketweave design and decorated with chocolate shavings and slivered almonds.

The bride is a graduate of Monterey High School, Lubbock. She attended South Plains College in Levelland.

The groom is a graduate of Shallowater High School, Shallowater, and Texas Tech University. He is employed by Western Geophysical in Houston.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will make their home in Houston.

ANNIVERSARIES

Moore

THE MOORES, THEN AND NOW

J.W. and Fabris Moore celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary July 15, 1995, at K.C. Steakhouse with their family.

He was born in Eastland, and she was born in Union Parish, La. They met at Barnett School House in Nolan County.

They were married by J.A. Bradbury, a Church of Christ minister, at his barber shop in Sweetwater on July 13, 1935.

The Moores have four children: Alfred of Austin, Myrtle Jo Lee of Sand Springs, Wenona Hamilton of Fort Worth, and Danny of San Antonio. They also have 10 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The couple has lived in Loraine, Crane and other places in Texas before coming to Big Spring in 1951.

Mr. Moore was a carpenter and businessman before retiring in 1978. They both enjoy being with their children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. They are also members of Cedar Ridge Church of Christ.

Conroy-Green

Texas handbook has all the facts

The best and most consulted reference book on Texas is the "Handbook of Texas." It's published by the Texas State Historical Association, a statewide organization of more than 3,000 people dedicated to preserving and sharing the history of Texas.

The first handbook came out in 1952 with Walter Prescott Webb as its editor in chief. It was in two volumes with nearly a thousand pages in each. A 1,200 page supplement was published in 1976 with updates, changes and new information.

The new "Handbook of Texas," due for publication in 1996, is a whopper: 6,000 pages in six volumes with 23,000 articles plus maps, illustrations and photos. The association says it will be the definitive encyclopedia of Texas history.

Some 60 foundation have contributed to the project, along with hundreds of individuals and corporations. The handbook is co-sponsored by 27 colleges and universities, research institutions and learned societies.

Nearly $5 million and thousands of hours of work have gone into the new handbook so far. The handbook revision is the largest scholarly effort of its kind ever undertaken in Texas. The revision includes more than 40 interpretive essays on the arts, agriculture, business, environment, health care and immigration.

Entries include 7,200 biographies, 7,500 community histories and 9,200 articles on other topics, such as institutions, events and geographical features. A comprehensive index will greatly increase the handbook's value as a research tool.

After publication of the handbook, the TSHA will produce an electronic version that will be continually updated and expanded. Future editions may also be produced in electronic form.

The handbook significantly expands the coverage of topics given less attention in previous editions, especially histories of the various racial, cultural and ethnic groups that make Texas the most ethnically diverse state in the country. This includes a 300 percent increase in topics about African-American history, a 450 percent increase in Mexican-American history topics and a 250 percent increase in women's history topics.

Ron Tyler, director of the Texas State Historical Association and a professor of history at the University of Texas in Austin is editor-in-chief of the new handbook. Douglas E. Barnett is managing editor. He's a Ph.D. candidate in geography at UT.

The list price for the set is $395, but the pre-publication price is $295 plus tax, shipping and handling. A campaign to provide the handbook to schools and libraries throughout Texas is now underway.

The new handbook (how could anything with six volumes and 6,000 pages be called a handbook?) has been under revision since 1982.

It will contain articles on several well-known characters including Ma Ferguson, Audie Murphy and Bigfoot Wallace.

The Association's address is 2306 Richardson Hall, University Station in Austin 78712. Phone (512) 471-1525 or fax (512) 471-1551.

Galveston officer shot, left for dead returns to patrol

By CHRIS WILLIAMS
The Galveston County Daily News

GALVESTON — Last Aug. 2, very few people thought Charlie Millo would ever work as a police officer again.

A 21-year-old Galveston man had shot him repeatedly with a shotgun at close range.

"Honest to God, I thought he was dead," said Police Chief Dale Rogers, Millo's former partner and one of the first officers on the scene.

"When I saw the blood running out of his head and into the gutter, then down the gutter, I thought, 'There is no way he will ever be able to come back as a police officer,'" Rogers said.

Millo, a 23-year veteran of the Galveston Police Department, quietly returned to patrol duty at the end of June.

"He has overcome every hurdle a weaker person could not have overcome," Rogers said.

The brutality of the shooting and the handling of the court case of the gunman caught the public's attention. Thousands of people turned out for a fundraising barbecue and auction for Millo in late August. Hundreds joined him in protesting what they described as a lenient sentence for the gunman.

Millo downplays the attention his story has gotten. "I am not the first policeman to get shot and I will not be the last," he said.

Millo said he was surprised by the public support after the shooting.

"The mental is a big part (of recovery)," Millo said. "The physical I can do myself. But without the mental, you would not get back at all."

convicted Andre Fletcher of attempted capital murder. Engelke defended the 25-year prison term as well within accepted guidelines.

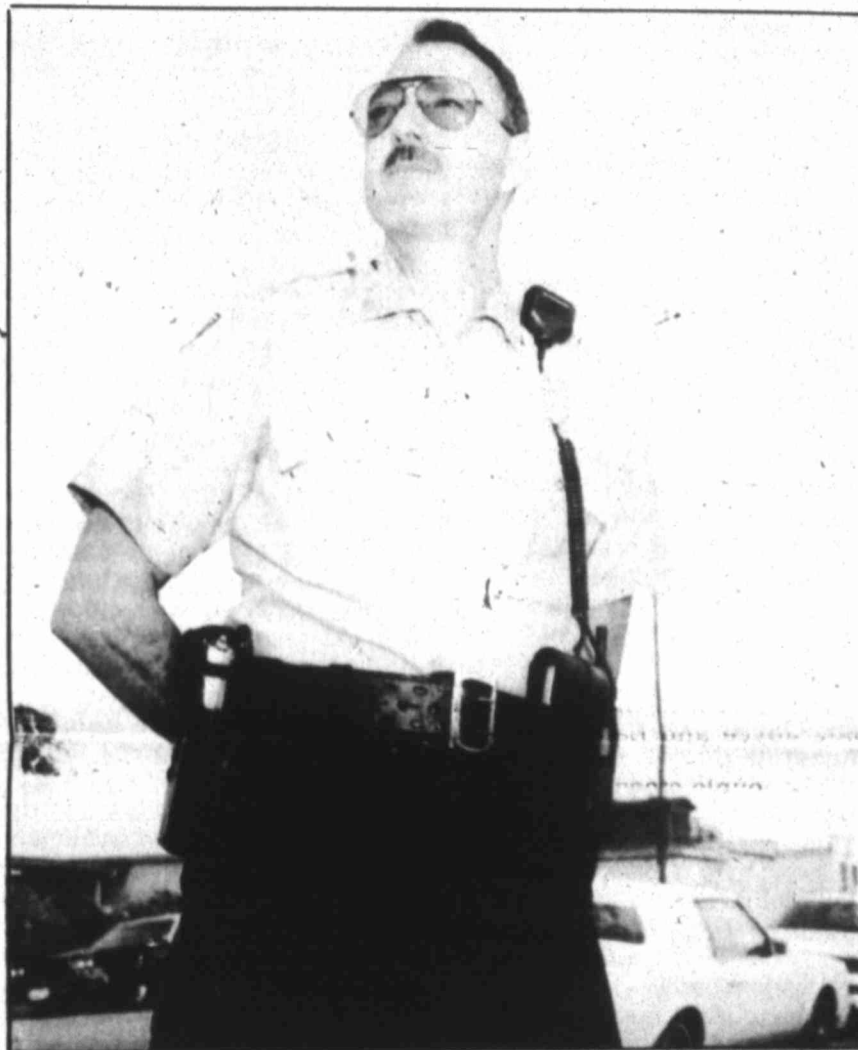

District Attorney Mike Guarino sought a life sentence. Instead, Fletcher will be eligible for parole in 12-1/2 years. "I didn't get justice," Millo said, "But a lot of people don't get justice."

Millo, a former Marine, has undergone therapy during the past year to repair a badly damaged eye and leg and to erase many of the facial scars left by the shotgun blast.

The wounds still hurt, Millo's vision is not perfect and he still carries some scars.

The city and state paid his medical bills. "I will never be the same, but it is not something that is going to hold me back," he said.

"The fear, believe it or not, does not bother me," he said.

Galveston Police Department officer Charlie Millo works as a security officer at a restaurant parking lot in Galveston. Millo was shot in the same parking lot Aug. 2, 1994, and returned to work last month.

Hot weather sends sun worshipers inside to tan

By BOB JOHNSON
Scripps Howard News Service

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Trivia quiz: Name the businesses most likely to benefit during a heat wave?

Ice cream parlors. OK. Air conditioning repair shops. That's right, too. Movie theaters. Yes, but you're leaving something out.

You have to add tanning salons to the list, too.

No joke. Blazing temperatures on the outside send people scurrying inside, out of the sun, to get a suntan.

"Oh yeah. Actually it's cooler in here than out there," said Melissa Carroll, a clerk at Savage Tanning Salon in suburban Pelham, Ala.

Carroll and clerk Clara Belue said business is better on days when there is plenty of sun and heat on the outside.

"When it's pretty outside, they flock in here to get a tan. It takes just 20 minutes in here and you don't get nearly as hot. And there are no bugs in here," Belue said.

"And you don't have to get out in a bathing suit in front of everybody," Ms. Carroll said.

"Rather than lie out in the sun, they can come in here and get what takes four hours to get on the outside," said Mickey McCreless, a receptionist at The Beach tanning salon in suburban Homewood, Ala.

"And it's cool in here. Most of us who work in here don't lie out in the real sun. Nobody wants to lie in the sun in this kind of heat."

Animals become more than pets to many of us

By WILLIAM ALLEN
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Dr. Allen Schoen remembers a macho man who broke down and cried when his hunting dog died.

Deborah Stahl remembers a woman who slid into a deep depression when she couldn't afford kidney surgery for her dog.

And Dr. C.B. Chastain remembers men and women who became violent or suicidal when told their pets had terminal illnesses.

These dramatic reactions are testament to the power of an age-old phenomenon: the human-animal bond. When the loss of a pet breaks the bond, the trauma can be similar to the loss of a child, spouse or other close family member, says Stahl, a psychologist, and Schoen and Chastain, both veterinarians. All three have felt the bond — and the loss.

"When you lose a loved one, it doesn't matter if it has two legs, four legs or wings," said Schoen, author of the recently published book "Love, Miracles and Animal Healing." "If you have that open heart connection, you're losing a part of yourself."

The natural warmth and companionship between humans and their animals is a unifying, vital force. Scientific evidence is mounting that the human-animal bond is an essential ingredient in human health and psychological well-being.

More and more people are seeking the human-animal bond. Pet ownership in the United States remains strong at about 55 million households, with a significant increase in the number of cats as pets over the past decade.

Nine out of 10 families with a pet consider it part of the family. People generally are more willing to express sadness when their pet dies.

One result of these trends: More people are struggling through a major grieving process when their beloved dog, cat, bird or other pet succumbs to old age, disease or accident.

This spring, the American Veterinary Medicine Association issued new guidelines for veterinarians to identify and help clients in the midst of grieving.

The human-animal bond has been a major theme of world history and culture. Prehistoric humans and dogs hunted together, lived together in dens and were buried together.

Cats were sacred symbols in ancient Egypt; dogs were the same in ancient China.

Fort Sam Houston quite a feat

By CHRISTOPHER ANDERSON
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio has not always had five military bases. And it was quite a feat to get the first one.

A sign above the original entrance to its most historic military site — excluding the Alamo — alludes to Fort Sam Houston's lengthy past. The country's ninth oldest active post, the "San Antonio Depot" is rich with history.

Established atop Government Hill on 92 acres of city-donated land in 1876, its name was formally changed 14 years later.

Built to secure the border with Mexico, Fort Sam Houston played a major role in training the men who helped win two world wars and was home to some of America's most fabled soldiers.

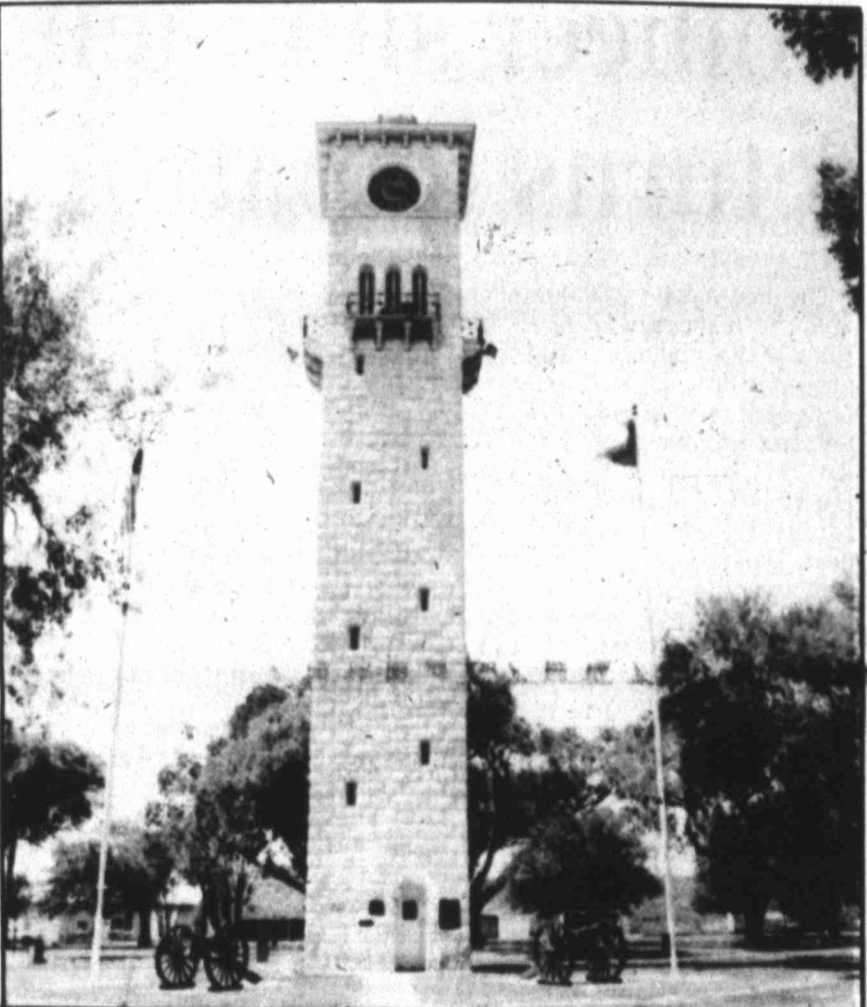

But before a likable young lieutenant could meet his bride-to-be or a legendary Indian chief could be imprisoned inside the post's Quadrangle, San Antonio had to battle to ensure that the first federal military presence in the state would remain.

Austin and New Braunfels were considered. And the secretary of war's opposition to the $100,000 post effectively kept the Army renting downtown buildings, which it had been doing since its arrival in 1845.

President Grant intervened to little avail. What finally broke the stalemate was a petition by nearly 500 residents and a letter to the secretary's colleagues detailing the military's unfulfilled promises.

The landmark tower would have been a simple metal-framed structure instead of an impressive 90-foot stone monument had Quartermaster General Montgomery Meigs not been previously assigned to Europe.

Meigs designed the watchtower, which doubled as a water cistern, after seeing a similar architectural "work-of-art," and successfully imposed his vision over budget-conscious detractors.

The tower in the Quadrangle at Fort Sam Houston was San Antonio's tallest building, at 90 feet, when it was built in the 1870s.

Geronimo — who was imprisoned inside the Quadrangle in 1886 along with some of his Apache tribe members — feared he would be thrown from the tower before he was transported to a Florida reservation.

Among the best and brightest to serve at Fort Sam Houston were Dwight D. Eisenhower, who met his future wife Mamie on post, and Gen. John J. "Black Jack" Pershing, who prepared here for battle against Pancho Villa.

Eisenhower's bachelor officers quarters of 1916 recently have been restored.

The court-martial trial of 69 black soldiers believed to have taken part in a deadly Houston race riot in 1917 was held in the Gift Chapel.

It was the largest single trial in military history and led to the right to appeal after 19 of the men were executed immediately after the verdict, as was the practice.

In 1942 the post received the first company of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, which was disbanded one year later when the regular Army accepted members into the Women's Army Corps.

self-help skills, moral judgment and reasoning, including an exercise in which students imagine they are stranded on the moon.

All the group leaders are participants from last year's camp. Long selected those who had demonstrated maturity and responsibility. Among the group leaders is 17-year-old Sierra Ramos. "It's a lot more responsibility to watch over the kids," she said.

Her main duty is to help Brown in her language arts class. "I would love to be back next year. I love working with the kids, and Tish is neat to work with."

Ramos was impressed by the organization of last year's program. "It was the first time, and if there were any problems, you couldn't tell. I really didn't know what to expect; a friend wanted me to come, and it was a blast."

She adds that being on the other side, as a group leader rather than a camp participant, gives her a chance to learn more about kids and know what to expect from different age groups. "The older kids were a little more trouble," she said. "They think they're too old for this. They've changed from day one to now. They're more open, they approach me, they're more cooperative."

Of the approximately 100 young people registered, about 35 to 40 attend each afternoon Monday through Friday. Some of the older attendees are court-ordered, which initially made Long nervous. "I didn't know how well it would work to have kids who hadn't volunteered," she said.

Her experience nearly parallels Ramos' — many of the court-ordered teens were initially sullen, quiet, heads down. Now most of them participate.

About one-third of the camp's participants are returnees. Even those who are attending for the first time have changed since the first day of camp, Long said. "It's something constructive for them. You can definitely see the progression. They have respect for others.

They're not so angry."

The younger children enjoy SOS much more than school, they say. Mario Carnero, 12, is attending for the first time. "You get to do fun stuff," he said. Tonya Dykes, 11, a first-time attendee, and SOS veteran Angelica Hinojos, also 11, agreed. Their favorite activity so far has been the trip to the city swimming pool.

Mario, Tonya and Angelica all agreed that school is "boring" and SOS is more fun. "I don't have to stay home," Mario added. "It's something to do," Angelica chimed in. "You meet a lot of new friends. That's how I met Tonya."

Angelica added that SOS has given her more confidence in herself. She and the others would like to attend again; the one thing they would like to do differently is "take more field trips."

Whether SOS will exist next year depends on the amount of money Long can raise to fund the program. "I never know until about a month ahead of time whether it's going to happen," she said. Esther Lopez, head of continuing education at Howard College, has been instrumental in providing facilities and administration for the program, she added.

This year's program ends with graduation at 4 p.m. July 27. Long hopes to see a duplication of last year's graduation, which stunned her. "Last year, I gave everyone their SOS T-shirts and told them I hoped they would wear them to graduation, but it was totally up to them," she said.

"When I walked in to graduation last year, every single one of those kids had their T-shirts on. I had tears in my eyes. It just gave me chills."

This is why Long wants to keep SOS alive — to help kids teetering on the edge of trouble to regain their sense of pride and responsibility.

"They've been knocked down, told they're losers. This gives them the chance to say, 'So what? So what if you think that? I can still be something,'" Long said.

Howard County approved for conservation program

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Howard County has been approved for Emergency Haying and Grazing of Conservation Reserve Program acres.

Rick Liles, county executive director of the Howard County Consolidated Farm Service Agency, said the CRP was designed in 1986 to take highly erodible crop land out of production.

To accomplish this the U. S. Department of Agriculture offered qualified land owners and operators cost share assistance and limited annual rental payments to establish a permanent vegetative cover on the highly erodible acres.

An off-shoot of the program is naturally developing wildlife habitat.

Liles said there are about 260 signed contracts (about 45,000 acres of land) for the program in Howard County.

"Most contracts are for about 10 years with each maturing at different times," Liles said. Due to high temperatures, marginal rainfall, and persistent wind in 1994 pastures in Howard County were severely damaged. Many livestock producers were required to purchase feed far in excess of normal and some had to liquidate all or part of their foundation herd.

According to Liles, 1995 has brought more promising pasture conditions, but they are very fragile due to previous year deterioration and are only a dry spell away from being in poor condition again.

Consequently, the Howard County CFSA requested and approved Emergency Haying and Grazing of CRP acres.

Emergency Haying and Grazing of CRP acres will allow eligible producers to either hay or graze CRP lands on a limited basis. CRP participants in this program will forfeit 25 percent of their annual rental payment in return for the haying or grazing benefits received.

One stipulation on the haying and grazing program is 25 percent of the designated acres must be left undisturbed for wildlife habitat.

Liles said experts have indicated haying or grazing of CRP acres, is actually beneficial to the permanent vegetative cover (grass) because "thatch" is removed allowing the grass to reseed and establish an even better cover.

"Producers are eventually able to get cattle feed out of the grass. It's a win-win situation for producers," Liles said.

Haying and grazing CRP acres eliminates potential fire hazard and it helps eliminate potential bollweevil over wintering habitat.

Liles said signup for the program begins immediately and qualifying producers may hay or graze CRP acres until Sept. 30, 1995.

He added producers wishing to utilize the program should contact the Howard County CFSA for authorization at 267-2557. Any unauthorized haying or grazing of CRP acres will result in penalty and/or expulsion from the program.

DPS sets two recruit schools

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Texas Department of Public Safety is currently taking applications for those interested in law enforcement. Two recruit training schools are scheduled for October and February 1996.

Sgt. Larry Meadors says because of the North American Free Trade Agreement, DPS is increasing its license and weights service.

"In order to be in the license and weight division, you have to have field experience first so people who are in the highway patrol division now will transfer to license and weight. This will provide openings in the highway patrol division," Meadors explained.

Meadors adds he will have at least two openings in his area including Stanton and Big Lake but there could be more if any troopers decide they want to make the move to the license and weight division.

The law enforcement agency will exceed a budget of more than half a billion dollars this coming fiscal year that starts in September. Not only because of NAFTA but DPS will be responsible for issuing handgun permits, databases for juvenile arrests and DNA testing for sex offenders.

Applicants for DPS must be at least 20 years old, have a minimum of 60 semester hours of college, be a United States citizen, pass a written examination, meet certain physical fitness standards and be willing to accept assignment anywhere in Texas. For some educational requirements, prior law enforcement or military service can be substituted.

According to the DPS Public Information Office, each academy is a 26-week course where trainees will learn arrest, search and seizure policies, physical education, strategies of self-defense, patrol procedures, Kay Kennemur and Terry Hale, along with their spouses, own a year-round craft show that recently opened in downtown Big Spring. CraftSmart gives people a chance to display and sell their handmade crafts as well as a place for residents to purchase these items all year long.

CRAFTS GALORE

Store offers site for local artisans to display work

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Do you enjoy making crafts but do not have a place to sell them to the public? A year-round hometown craft show might be the answer.

CraftSmart is now open in downtown Big Spring for people to display and sell their handiwork.

Terry and Nancy Hale, along with Danny and Kay Kennemur, own the store which opened Saturday at 215 Main.

Terry Hale says they will rent space and charge $35 and up depending on the size of area you need. He adds they will not take any percentage of the sales but plan to make their money from the rental fees only.

A two-by-four space rents for $35 a month and a four-by-four space will cost $50 a month. Hale adds they are planning to build larger spaces that will measure four-by-12, four-by-eight and eight-by-eight.

"We decided to open this store because, until now, people could only sell their items twice a year when the craft show was here, if you could get in. There is always a waiting list and it can be too expensive for some," explained Kay Kennemur.

She adds this also gives residents a chance to purchase crafts year-round instead of waiting for a craft show or driving out of town to spend their money at other stores or shows.

The four owners will be in charge of a central cash register to handle all sales. A renter does not have to be at the store if they do not want to. They can just come in, set up their display and let the owners handle the rest.

The Hales and Kennemurs picked a downtown location because of the high traffic area. Several booths were set up before the store officially opened with such items as dream catchers, wood clocks, jewelry, painted shirts and even clocks made out of hubcaps.

They expect to have other items such as decorated photo albums and a variety of wood carvings.

There are two large display windows at the front of the store for people to put a couple of items in to attract people inside to see what else is available.

They hope to offer arts and crafts classes in the near future as well as sell craft supplies. There is an upstairs area that could be turned into a small coffee shop if they do not rent the space.

Kennemur adds they will not accept garage sale junk nor items with vulgar signs or words on them. "This is a family business and we want people to feel comfortable bringing their children in here. We reserve the right to turn down anyone if we do not want to display their items here."

CraftSmart is open Monday-Saturday 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and closed on Sundays. For more information, call 264-1606.

John Currie elected president of CRMWD

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

It was business as usual for the Colorado River Municipal Water District at Thursday's meeting of its board of directors, with the exception of a few new faces.

One of those new faces was that of newly elected board president John Currie, a 21-year member of the CRMWD's board of directors.

CURRIE

During his tenure on the board, Currie has served on several CRMWD standing committees including the Long Range Planning Committee, Personnel Committee, Finance Committee, and the Employees Pension Trust Committee.

Currie is also CEO of Big Spring's State National Bank.

His experience in the areas of bond sales and long range planning has been especially helpful, particularly with projects like the Ivie Reservoir and the recently completed supply line and pump stations.

Currie, who is replacing the recently retired John Taylor, a 31-year member of the CRMWD board serving the last 12 as president, said he considers it a high honor and privilege to serve as president.

Both Taylor and board member Clyde McMahon Sr., who also retired from the board a few weeks ago, were presented plaques at Thursday's meeting for their service to the CRMWD.

Taylor first joined the CRMWD board in August 1964. He was only the fourth president in the board's 46-year history.

According to Taylor, when he joined the CRMWD the district consisted of Lake J.B. Thomas, the Martin County Well Field, and a little more than 200 miles of pipeline.

Today the CRMWD has three water supply reservoirs, six well fields, five water quality impoundments, 21 pump stations, and approximately 600 miles of pipeline.

McMahon, who joined the CRMWD board in 1973, said the CRMWD existed because of the vision of a number of West Tex-

Outlet mall developer still hoping for spring 1996 start

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

The summer doldrums have slowed things down, but Big Spring residents still look forward to having a factory outlet mall.

Planet USA Factory Outlet Mall developer David Goldner is still hoping for a spring 1996 start, but has announced no definite merchant commitments yet.

Plans for the mall, to be located at the intersection of U.S. 87 and I-20, were announced in April. The initial phase of the project will be 100,000 to 150,000 square feet, with room for expansion to 300,000 square feet in the future.

According to Goldner, speaking at the announcement of the mall in April, the mall should draw customers from a 100 to 120 mile radius to Big Spring.

The boll weevil battle begins

AUSTIN (AP) — Call it the root of all weevil. Texas Attorney General Dan Morales announced Thursday that Texas is suing Louisiana in the U.S. Supreme Court over policies Louisiana has put in place to control a weevil outbreak plaguing sweet potatoes.

The lawsuit filed by Morales said Louisiana had instituted a program that "imposes unnecessary and expensive procedures that out-of-state suppliers of sweet potatoes must follow in order to sell and ship the potatoes to purchasers in Louisiana."

About 35 percent of Texas' sweet potato crop is sent to Louisiana for processing, and the two states compete in the production of sweet potatoes, Morales said.

"It appears that the root of all weevil problems is limited to Louisiana," Morales said. "Therefore, we are asking the court to deliver us from weevil control restrictions imposed by our good neighbor."

"This is a serious problem that affects the livelihood of our farmers, and Louisiana's actions raise important constitutional questions," Morales said.

BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

Medicare form scrapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that hospitals are not "dens of thieves" and physicians are not crooks, Vice President Al Gore said the Clinton administration is scrapping a form doctors had to sign before Medicare would pay patients' hospital bills.

The move will save physicians 200,000 hours of time each year, eliminate 11 million forms, save hospitals $137 million and help them collect up to 30 days faster from Medicare, Gore said Tuesday.

Computer chips not appealing to TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Relying on computer chips to filter violent TV programs for children may appeal to President Clinton and some senators, but not to the nation's TV manufacturers and broadcasters.

The costs, technical difficulties and editorial decisions required are too great and in the end won't substitute for the judgment of a parent, executives at several companies and industry groups said Tuesday.

Wholesale prices decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices declined in June for the first time in eight months, helped by a big drop in energy prices and the largest fall in fruit prices in 15 years.

The Labor Department said Thursday that last month's 0.1 percent decrease in the Producer Price Index followed no change in May and left wholesale prices rising at an annual rate of 2.1 percent so far this year.

There is plenty to do with Junior Rodeo set to kick off

Whoever is always saying there is nothing to do around Big Spring is sure out of touch is about all I can comment to that remark!

Don Richardson
County Agent

I can't seem to get around to everything that is happening around here! This week, in addition to the annual District 4H Trap and Skeet Contest in Midland, kicks off the annual Junior Rodeo sponsored by the Howard County 4H Adult Leaders and Parents Association as the principal fund raising activity for the county 4H program.

This year's event is the 50th one here in Big Spring and is dedicated to the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion. This group of dedicated rodeo enthusiasts and supporters have played an active role in seeing that this junior rodeo has been able to be conducted all these years. They donate the use of the rodeo bowl each year at the junior show, being parents and supporters of the program, as well. Many of the directors and former directors of this organization have lent support to this junior rodeo, without which it could not have been possible to conduct.

ans who understood the importance of water to the survival of the region.

Long-time board members Clyde Yarbrough, Odessa, and Russell Yorgensen, Snyder, were elected vice presidents Thursday.

One of Currie's first acts as board president was the recognition of new board members Wade Choate and Jim Weaver, who were appointed to the board by the Big Spring City Council a few weeks ago when Taylor and McMahon asked not to be reappointed.

Also during Thursday's meeting the board instructed its manager to prepare necessary resolutions and contractual Middleton, Jimmy Taylor, Jack Buchanan, Dr. Hank Thompson, R.G. Click, the late Charlie Creighton and many others. In more recent years other directors have played tremendous roles in insuring the junior show's success. These include Skipper Driver, John Middleton and Dr. Dusty Johnston. Not only have these men been instrumental in the rodeo, itself, but have been active and supportive parents in the 4H program.

The rodeo each year is planned and implemented by a special committee set up by the adult leaders and parents association. This year, it is chaired by Mrs. Chris Gaskins, with other committee members which include Skipper Driver, John and Cindy Middleton, Dr. Dusty and Judy Johnston, Steve Bibb, Jim and Vickie Purcell, Stanley Knight, Terry and Emma Jenkins, Mike Yeator, Mike Moates and Debbie Shepherd.

Other volunteers helping with assignments include Richard Sanders, Gary Tabor, Becky Knight, Billy Reed, Dillard White, Donna Bibb, Kent Robinson, Justin Jenkins, Steve Fryar, Eddie Course and Wendall Walker plus a host of other parents and leaders doing everything from selling concessions and tickets to helping with roping and bucking events in the arena.

The rodeo begins Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. and continues each evening through Saturday. Events include barrel racing and pole bending, calf roping, bronc and bull riding steer wrestling and team roping. Most events are broken down into various age groups for both boys and girls under the age of 19. See you out there!

amendments with member cities and other cities served by the CRMWD regarding the changing of the CRMWD's fiscal year from a calendar year to a year beginning October 1 and ending September 30.

According to Currie, the change will put the CRMWD's fiscal year in line with member cities and other areas served by the CRMWD, eliminating confusion and enabling cities and the CRMWD to have a compatible year thus enhancing budgetary and financial reporting procedures.

Thursday's meeting was also attended by general manager-designee John Grant who will take over that position when General Manager O.H. Ivie retires in October.

law, tell the seller everything he has been able to find out about you. A transaction broker is no one's agent and will only handle the paperwork. He can't give you advice or direction of any kind that might favor your position over the seller's.

- THE RIGHT TO EQUAL REPRESENTATION
Purchasing a property without your own real estate agent is like being in a tennis match with you on one side and three people on the other! Your money provides the funds for the closing transaction. You deserve to have an agent on your side of the court.
- THE RIGHT TO FULL DISCLOSURE
If your agent is not a buyer broker, that agent is working for him or herself as a transaction broker for the seller as a seller's agent, not for you. You are that agent's customer, not his client. "Let the buyer beware" should no longer have a place in real estate today.
- THE RIGHT TO FREEDOM OF CHOICE
You have the right to choose. If the agent is not working for you as a buyer's agent, he cannot help you determine that a property is overpriced or give you advice about offering less than the asking price. He cannot reveal the seller's motives. A seller's agent must treat you fairly and can't misrepresent any aspects of a property, but he must try to get the most money and best terms for the seller. He must, by law, tell the seller everything he has been able to find out about you.
- THE RIGHT TO PREMIUM SERVICE
- Exclusive representation. We only work for buyers.
 - Confidentiality concerning your money and motivations.
 - Complete loyalty without conflicts of interest.
 - Unbiased showing of all available homes whether listed or offered by owners.
 - Information and advice on weaknesses and strengths of a property.
 - Analysis of sales data to determine the true property value.
 - Disclosure of everything we as agents know or can discover.
 - Tough negotiating to get you the best price and terms.
 - Hassle-free relocation.
 - A fair buyer agency agreement.
 - We get the job done right with no surprises.

WE HAVE NO OTHER LOYALTIES
Even if an agent says he'll be your buyer's agent, there will be conflicts if that agent or his office also lists property for sellers. Those conflicts may prevent your purchase of the right property at the right price and terms. Attorneys in the same law firm will not represent both parties in a transaction. Agents in the same real estate office shouldn't either.

All Buyer's Resource agents have chosen to work only for buyers - no conflicts, no reason to steer buyers to properties because of other loyalties. We represent buyers exclusively.

HOROSCOPE

FOR SUNDAY,
JULY 16, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are in the mood to share today. Work through a problem; be fun-loving and open. Instinctively you know what to do. Make the most of someone's wild idea. Hook up with friends, and make this a day to remember. Tonight: Disappear with your favorite person. ****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Find your friends, and make the party happen. Reach out to others who are at a distance. Catch up on news, and be willing to take off. Fun and happiness come if you let go of rigid requirements. Try something new. Accept an invitation. Tonight: Party as late as you dare. ****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Recognize when your input and responsibility are needed. Put in that extra effort to make what you want happen. Visit an older relative or friend in need. Your attention is appreciated today. Make time for your significant other. Quality time counts. Tonight: Snuggle in. ****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be willing to experiment and follow someone's idea of fun. You will be delighted with the results. Your imagination soars, and you are amazed by your ideas. Gather others together. A relationship deepens as you reveal feelings. Tonight: Share a favorite piece of music. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): One-to-one relating dominates the next few days. What starts out as a problem can be handled easily. Listen carefully, and be willing to take a risk. Sharing opens you to a new dimension of caring. Be fun-loving. Visit a friend who has a case of the blues. Tonight: Be a duo. ****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't let a partner's solemn attitude get to you. You can be a catalyst, lightening up this person's mood and being understanding. Be in touch with your feelings, and you'll make the most of the day. You have many invitations. Be where the music is. Enjoy. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be good to yourself, and don't push as hard. Your awareness of your choices is very important. Recognize there is nothing wrong with being a couch potato. Rest and snooze your day away, if you need to. Share the quiet with a loved one. Tonight: Order in. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Follow your animal instincts, and you'll create fun for yourself and anyone lucky enough to be with you. A child may weigh down your spirits. Demanding more from someone may work. Put on your dancing shoes. Pursue what you enjoy. Tonight: Fun! ****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A family member shares a problem with you, or vice versa. Don't make this more serious than it is. You need to mellow out before you can see the solution to a problem. You are building a stronger foundation in a key relationship. Be loving. Tonight: Go for togetherness. ****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Run with an inspired idea. Others enjoy your spontaneity and want to be part of the fun. If a family member rejects an idea, don't worry. Once you start letting go, others join in. Make the rounds, catch up on news and share a favorite hobby. Tonight: Go to a favorite spot. ****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are critical of yourself and others. Don't let someone rain on your parade. Pull back, and daydream about your desires and direction. Honesty and openness mark conversation. Be nurturing with those who make a difference in your life. Tonight: Make it an early night. ****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): No one is harder on you than you are, so stop it. A friend is thrilled by your good humor. Go to the movies, or visit a favorite spot. Talking and togetherness mix. If you are single, new acquaintances could become important people in your life. Tonight: Be naughty and nice. ****

IF JULY 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your imagination could run wild this year. Many doors open to you if you use your ingenuity and break free of prior restrictions. You are capable of accomplishing incredible things. Focus on a special goal. With hard work, inspiration and openness, this is a banner period. Work will be highlighted positively too. If you are single, romance may come in many ways, maybe in the form of a foreigner. Greet this person without preconceived ideas. If attached, plan a special vacation, and you'll reap the rewards long after you get home. PISCES urges you take a risk.

THE ASTERISKS (*) SHOW THE KIND OF DAY YOU'LL HAVE: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Couple in suburbia can't lure city friends for visits

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, we moved to the suburbs — a two-hour drive from the city. Wanting to maintain our friendship with city friends, we often make the drive to see them. We always take a bottle of wine, and gifts for the children. Now for the problem:

For all of our efforts, they have come to visit us only twice. Lately, they don't even acknowledge our birthday cards or gifts with so much as a thank-you. We have dropped hints and come right out and expressed our disappointment and hurt — to no avail.

We still talk on the phone occasionally (when we call them), but we've finally come to the end of our rope.

Abby, how do we make it clear, without issuing an ultimatum, that our friendship will be limited to telephone conversations unless they visit us in our home? — FED UP WITH OLD FRIENDS

DEAR FED UP: Some friendships fade with time. Distance and inconvenience can also play a large part in their demise. Perhaps you should let this old friendship die a natural death and concentrate on making friends in your new community so you will not be entirely dependent on those from your former neighborhood.

For an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person, order "How to Be Popular." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)
