Have a hot cooling bill?

Here's how to read your electric meter - and put your usage on ice

This meter reads 76482. Remember, if the dial is between two numbers, the lesser number is used.

Heat's cooking up electric bills

Tips help to lower the bill

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

As the dog days of summer continue to heat up, consumers may be unaware of several things they can do to lower their electric bill.

According to Cap Rock Electric, rates are higher in summer because the wholesale price some utilities must pay for electricity is higher.

This combined with air conditioner use and other electrical gadgets can drive some household bills as high as a car payment.

A consumer's first thought is there must be a mistake if a bill is unusually high.

One thing consumers can do is learn how to read their own electric meters.

•Step One - Check the meter to be sure its working properly.

Simply pull the main breaker, wait 10 minutes and check the meter. All the hands should be stopped.

•Step Two - Working from left to right, write down the number the hand on the dial is pointing to. If a dial is between two numbers, the lesser number is always used. Dials turn both clockwise and counter-clockwise.

•Step Three - Make a note of the resulting five digit number. Subtract this number from the number you get from your next reading. This will be the number of kilowatts used in the time period between the two readings.

According to Cap Rock Electric Customer Service Representative Steve Hodges, if you keep a daily diary of meter readings for a month, you should begin to see what types of home activities are affected your electric bill.

"What meter reading does is help the consumer identify and establish use trends and to identify problem spots," Hodges said.

Edmondson trial under way

Courthouse security tightened

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

After one postponement and two weeks of jury selection, opening arguments in the capital murder trial of 17-year-old Levy Lee Edmondson Jr. began this morning.

Edmondson is accused in the Dec. 30, 1994 shooting death of Department of Public Safety Trooper Troy Hogue.

A jury of eight men and six women has been selected to hear the capital murder case against Edmondson.

The 14 jurors will be seated for the trial and won't know which two among them have been designated as alternates until deliberations begin.

The state has sent out more than 90 subpoenas to potential witnesses.

Security for the trial will be tight as well with additional law enforcement officials handling security checkpoints on the first floor and third floor of the Howard County Courthouse.

Anyone having business in the Howard County Courthouse this morning will have to pass through the checkpoints, which will include x-ray machines, along with the Garrett Mag-nascanner metal detector. The x-ray machines are noting being used this morning.

Moore instructed jurors, during jury selection not to discuss proceedings with anyone, including spouses.

He added the instructions to jurors not to discuss the case, read newspaper accounts, listen to radio broadcasts, or watch television reports, is an ongoing instruction.

Unless there is some indication of juror misconduct, Moore has also stated he will not sequester the jury until it is time to render a verdict in the case.

At the time of the shooting, Howard County Deputy Clifford McCartney was called to the scene of an accident at mile marker 187 near the Interstate 20 and Salem Exit near Sand Springs.

Hogue and his partner, Trooper Darryle Sparks, also responded to the accident to provide assistance.

Edmondson was reportedly driving a vehicle that veered off the interstate and onto the service road. Reports say when the troopers arrived, the suspect was sitting in the passenger seat of the deputy's car and was asked if he had been drinking.

Edmondson was asked to step out of the car so the questioning could continue with Hogue standing between the vehicle and the guard rail. Edmondson allegedly stood up, pulled a gun and shot Hogue once in the head.

Capital murder is punishable by either death by lethal injection or life in prison. The district attorney's office is seeking the death penalty.

Edmondson has pleaded not guilty to the charge against him. He has remained in the Howard County Jail.

Bond was later set for Edmondson at $500,000. A change of venue request by his attorney was denied by State District Judge Robert Moore III in April.

Waco hearings include drama, props but few answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a two-word code, dozens of federal agents rushed into action near Waco, Texas, on a February morning two years ago: "Show time."

Now, as two congressional subcommittees try to determine why the raid on the Branch Davidian religious compound failed, a reasonable person might suggest the term could be applied to the hearings themselves.

The hearings, scheduled to resume today, have offered plenty of drama, but none more compelling than 14-year-old Kiri Jewell telling how cult leader David Koresh had sex with her when she was 10, and how she was taught the best way to commit suicide.

President Clinton said Sunday on C-SPAN he hadn't been watching the hearings, but arranged to see a tape of Kiri's testimony "because I was so moved when I heard about it."

The hearings have featured plenty of props, including hand grenade casings, powerful rifles and blacked-out documents.

And there has been plenty of politics, with members of both parties professing to search for the truth but setting off in different directions to get there.

Democrats have lined up to blame Koresh, to suggest the opposition has an unholy alliance with the National Rifle Association, and even to question the need for the hearings. "We have the awful Oklahoma City bombing and out of that comes a hearing on Waco," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., shaking his head in wonderment.

"All of these hearings give new meaning to summer reruns," White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation." "The bottom line is that I don't think there will be any new news."

Republicans, meanwhile, try to place the blame on the Clinton administration.

"Shouldn't we have been more careful?" asked Rep. Bill Zeff, a New Hampshire Republican who is co-chairing the hearings.

Much of what went wrong at Waco — where four federal agents and six Davidians were killed in a failed raid, and Koresh and 80 of his followers died 51 days later after a fire swept the compound — has already been disclosed in lengthy studies by the Justice and Treasury departments.

But members of both parties agree there is a potential benefit to collecting all the pieces of the puzzle in one place and having the central characters answer to what Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., termed "a roomful of Monday-morning quarterbacks."

"There is important information coming out of these hearings," said Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga., a former U.S. attorney who said lessons learned at Waco

Stenholm puts out new health care reform package

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Health Care legislation that couldn't keep its head above water before last year's Congressional elections may be on its way back.

Seventeenth District Congressman Charles Stenholm and Congressman Pete Peterson, Fla., introduced the Health Care Improvement Act of 1995 Wednesday.

According to Stenholm's Washington, D.C. office the act incorporates many of the consensus provisions included in the Bipartisan Health Care Reform Act of 1994.

Stenholm was an active member of the 1994 legislation and decided to take a role in seeing similar legislation introduced in 1995.

The Peterson bill includes basic insurance reform provisions to improve access to health care for many Americans. It addresses cost containment through medical malpractice reforms and Medicaid reforms.

In addition, the Health Care Improvement Act phases in an increase in the tax deductibility for the self-employed to 100 percent.

Stenholm said, "As a member of the House Rural Health Care Coalition, I believe it is very important that we not forget the special needs of rural America in health care reform.

"The Peterson bill addresses rural health issues by incorporating a majority of the Rural Health Care Coalition's omnibus rural health bill from the 103rd Congress. The Rural Health Delivery System Development Act of 1994 received strong bipartisan support in both the House and the Senate."

Stenholm added, "I believe there are areas of health reform that many of us can agree on, and Pete has taken the lead in bringing these issues to the forefront of this debate. I strongly support this effort to provide Americans with access to affordable health care."

Stenholm and 151 other bipartisan House Members formed the Rural Health Care Coalition last summer in order to create a list of healthcare proposals of their own for the benefit of rural areas like Big Spring.

According to Stenholm, Medicaid is the highest single budget item in Texas. "We need welfare reform and healthcare reform that works."

Stenholm said communities like Big Spring should have the necessary tools to be able to decide how to best handle it's own healthcare needs.

Where the costs of healthcare and restrictions on its providers are concerned, Stenholm said government must play the role of referee in the healthcare battle.

Consumers can also evaluate how efficient certain high-use appliances, such as air conditioners, are functioning.

To measure the kilowatt use of a window air conditioner, first establish a base by checking the meter with the unit turned off. Then turn the unit on and check the meter after an hour has passed. Compare the kilowatt use-per-hour with a chart showing normal use for that type of unit.

Hodges said a unit drawing much more power than the average may need to be cleaned or replaced.

Some unusually high electric bills are simply a result of consumers using more power than they intended.

Cap Rock Customer Relations Spokesperson Peggy Luxton said one of the reasons is electricity is one of the few purchases paid for after it is used.

"We pay for groceries before we eat them, for gasoline before we use it, clothes before we wear them, but we pay for electricity after we use it. And, once it is used, it is used. It can't be returned," she said.

To help hold down electricity costs, Cap Rock Electric suggests:

•Adjusting the thermostat a few degrees higher and dress cooler.

•If there are no respiratory problems in the family, open windows at night and use fans instead of air conditioning.

•Close heating and cooling units in rooms that are not being used.

•Turn off lights when not in use, and use lower watt bulbs.

•Turn down the temperature of the water heater.

•Perform remedial electric appliance cleaning and maintenance.

might help prevent similar tragedies in the future.

From a government oversight standpoint, several issues seem ripe for further study by the committee. They include:

— How could a raid ostensibly hinging on the element of surprise go forward even after an undercover agent warned that Koresh had been tipped? Republicans say they aren't satisfied with the explanation of raid commander Phillip Chojnacki, who said he didn't know Koresh had real knowledge of the raid because the cult leader frequently said the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was coming to get him.

More details should become available this week when undercover agent Robert Rodriguez testifies.

— Was the military's help in training ATF agents and lending equipment justified? Records and testimony show the

— Did the FBI's use of a kind of super tear gas precipitate the fire that ended the siege?

Most testimony on this issue is yet to come, but some Republicans said last week that the FBI impatiently rushed to end the standoff and may have pushed Koresh to implement a mass suicide pact.

Attorney General Janet Reno, who approved using the gas, is scheduled to be the final witness when the hearings conclude July 31.

UP, UP AND AWAY

At right, an exact replica of an early Iris rocket makes a successful launch Sunday from a field near Valley Mills. Below, volunteers help assemble a home-made Iris rocket made out of cardboard, plywood and fiberglass before its maiden launch. The 19-foot rocket, containing seven engines, was hand-built over one year by Randy Ussery of Flower Mound in his garage. The original Iris rockets were used to study the atmosphere in the 1950s. They claim the rocket is the biggest home-made rocket ever launched in Texas.

Media frenzy annoying to first woman to be executed in Texas

GATESVILLE (AP) — Pam Perillo gets a date and triggers a media frenzy.

The mall comes in bunches. The tabloids want to see the 5-foot-2 strawberry blonde.

"I get letters from people I don't know," the exasperated woman says. "They drive me crazy."

Her date is with death. Perillo, 39, is in line to become the first woman to be executed in Texas in more than a century and just the second in the nation since the U.S. Supreme Court allowed capital punishment to resume.

"Everybody wants exclusive rights to my life story. I'm beginning to feel like my name is 'Money' instead of Pam. It's getting pretty frustrating.

"I'm not talking about money for me. They're the ones making money on this. I feel like a lot of people would love to see this go through and have the rights to the story."

Facing a Sept. 12 lethal injection, Perillo's attorneys this month managed to win at least a temporary reprieve from the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"Everybody wants the story," she says, talking to The Associated Press recently in her first interview about her case. "I don't feel like I'm anything special because I'm sitting on death row. But I do want to feel like

I'm a human being and not just a number in TDC (Texas Department of Corrections) or for somebody to make money off of."

Perillo's story is the tale of a pre-teen who grew up too quickly on drug-infested streets in Los Angeles and turned to burglary and robbery to support a heroin habit.

The wild ride climaxed in a Houston house on Feb. 24, 1980, in the midst of a cross-country hitchhiking tour with a couple of California friends. While on a drug-induced high and eager to flee with $800 stolen from the place, Perillo wound up yanking the end of a rope wrapped around the necks of two men until they were dead.

When the buzz from the speed she had injected into her body and the pills she swallowed wore off, Perillo was in Denver. She surrendered to police, waived extradition to Houston and was tried and convicted of capital murder for killing Bob Skeens, 26, a mechanic from Houma, La. Skeens had been visiting a Houston friend, Michael Briddle, also is on death row. Briddle's ex-wife, Linda, received five years probation.

"Mostly, the main thing is I don't think it's fair to the victims' families to rehash, rehash, rehash," she says.

"I don't think it's fair to my family. I don't want to make people relive it and I don't like reliving it over and over and over. And I don't want to hurt the victims any more than I already have."

Nationally, she's among 49 women on death row. One woman, Velma Barfield, was executed in North Carolina in November 1984.

Texas, California and Florida each have six women on death row.

"I know it's big news that a female will be executed," Perillo said. "But I don't ever want to be a star. I have no control over that, but I don't want cameras flashing off in my face when I'm

Mayors express concerns about effects of deficit reduction on cities

AUSTIN (AP) — Vice President Al Gore has heard the fears of several U.S. mayors that deficit-reduction efforts in Congress would devastate their cities and says an alliance is needed.

"We want to enter into a partnership to help them get done what they need to get done," Gore said after meeting with 17 mayors behind closed doors Sunday during the second day of the U.S. Conference of Mayors meeting.

The vice president agreed with the mayors, criticizing Republican-authored budget bills targeted to reach a balanced budget in seven years.

"I wish I could assure them that it won't be devastating, but these mayors are dead right," Gore said.

"The budget resolution now being considered in the Congress would, in fact, be devastating to the cities of America, and it doesn't matter whether the mayor is a Democrat or a Republican."

A bill approved by the Senate on Friday would chop $16.3 billion from housing, jobs and other programs.

Despite Gore's criticism, President Clinton, who had negotiated an easing of some of the cuts with congressional leaders, was ready to sign the measure. Clinton's approval would come despite slashes contained in the bill to spending on national service, education reform and some of his other domestic priorities.

Cuts in the measure include a $1 billion program that helps the poor pay utility bills, a $1.2 billion reduction in education aid for disadvantaged students and a $137 million slice from Head Start.

Gore announced a program that would encourage cities to set "performance benchmarks" to help the administration and Congress understand the differing needs of cities and better target federal funding for local programs.

The program would help cities target problems such as teen pregnancy, literacy and gang violence, he said.

"The mayors are the ones who deal with the real-life problems every day, and they are really tired of having to fill out forms and paperwork that are not relevant to what they are trying to get done for their people," he said.

A resolution drawn up by the mayors after their meeting said they would work aggressively to influence debate on the 1996 federal budget.

"Appropriations bills currently moving through the House and Senate would have a devastating impact upon our communities and millions of our citizens," the resolution says.

"We recognize the need for deficit reduction, but we must demand that the burden of deficit reduction be spread fairly across the entire budget — not targeted at cities, children and the poor."

Twins need to be separated by September

AUSTIN (AP) — Twin infants with connected blood vessels will be sedated sometime in the next six weeks as doctors at St. David's Hospital prepare to separate them.

When Michelle and Nichelle Tejada are asleep, two neurosurgeons will begin cutting into the thin bone connecting the twins' heads and into their brains to separate them.

The operation has been performed only five times worldwide since 1991.

Experts estimate that as many as 70 separations have been done on twins joined at the head. Two-thirds of the time, one or both children have died.

It's the unforeseen that concerns Dr. Gordon White, the Austin pediatric neurosurgeon who will separate the premature infants with Dr. Lee Berlad, his partner in private practice.

White said the operation probably will have to be done by early September — with the twins, born 13 weeks premature, not yet four months old.

The Tejada twins have been critically ill since they were born at St. David's on May 15.

White and Berlad have consulted on treatment of the girls since ultrasound images before their birth showed them to be connected at the head.

Doctors do not expect Nichelle to survive separation because a herpes virus inherited in the womb has destroyed part or all of her intestines, stomach, bladder, kidneys, liver and brain. Only her connection to Michelle is keeping Nichelle alive.

Michelle, who has suffered from an intestinal infection, last week was beginning to tolerate nutrition through her intestines. She has so far shown no sign of the herpes virus, which spreads through the nervous system. But White said a turn for the worse in either twin could force an emergency separation.

Drug house marches upsetting

ALICE (AP) — A group of police-backed residents that marches to suspected drug houses and shouts disapproval is riling some law-abiding citizens.

Neighboring residents say the "Turn Around Alice" program is an ineffective annoyance.

Because of the complaints, the group is seeking a city permit for its marches, which are conducted every Friday night with members shouting such chants as "up with hope and down with dope."

Among the annoyed residents is Linda Lopez, 26, who confronted the group when its members yelled in front of her house about two months ago.

The Heritage Housing Authority resident said she was furious when she saw her children crying.

The enraged Lopez then picked up a water hose, sprayed the group and gestured at police.

DEA agent shot at his bachelor party

HOUSTON (AP) — Three weeks from the wedding altar, a federal drug agent was hospitalized in critical but stable condition early today after a shootout outside a topless club.

But the Sunday morning gunfire that put Pete J. Sinclair, 28, in Ben Taub Hospital's intensive care unit had nothing to do with his job as a criminal investigator for the Drug Enforcement Administration.

He got into a scuffle with a topless club owner during his own bachelor party and now questions are being raised concerning the DEA's policy for agents who carry guns while off-duty, particularly when an agent is drinking.

Sinclair, by all accounts was drinking Saturday night when his "limo-bus" full of revelers landed at their third or fourth stop, the Ritz Plaza, a topless nightclub on the city's southeast side.

After being told a $5-a-head cover charge had to be paid for admission, most of the party loaded back into the bus. But Sinclair lingered at the entrance and began arguing with Ritz owner Stavros "Steve" Fotinopoulos, 38, and club manager Lynn Clayton Turner, 39.

Typhoon lashes S. Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Typhoon Faye lashed South Korea Sunday, sinking ships and sweeping a bus into the sea. At least 14 people were killed and 21 others were missing.

Disaster officials in Seoul said the casualty figures would rise as communications with remote areas were restored. TV networks reported more than 50 people were either dead or missing. Property damage was tentatively estimated at $35 million.

Ripping winds of nearly 100 mph and thundering swells also overturned cars, uprooted trees and street lamps, shook high-rise buildings, submerged houses and ripped away about 350 yards of rail.

Nine people died and three were missing after crests as high as 20 feet carried a bus away in the southern city of Yeosu.

A half dozen others remained missing after two ships collided 200 yards offshore in the high waves rocking Pusan Harbor, near the southern tip of the country. Another person died when a small fishing boat capsized near Pusan. A second person was missing.

In addition, an electrician was electrocuted while working. Officials did not say where the accident occurred.

Earlier Sunday, a 3,806-ton cargo ship sank in the East China Sea, killing two Chinese crewmen and leaving three others missing, Japan's coast guard said. Boats and helicopters rescued the other 21 Chinese crewmen of the Far East Beauty cargo ship, Maritime Safety

The Cyprus-registered Sea Prince sinks off South Korea's coast Monday after being pounded by Typhoon Faye and catching fire in this image taken from television. The worst typhoon to hit the country in 37 years left at least 14 people dead and 21 missing.

Agency officials said.

Among the 13 other missing people were two Indian and three Chinese seamen whose vessel slammed into a breakwater. Maritime police said they were unable to launch rescues because of raging waves as high as 33 feet and winds at 94 mph.

Eight people were seriously injured in the typhoon, including three in a cave-in at a construction site.

Typhoon Faye was expected to dump up to 14 inches of rain overnight in some regions before veering east toward the Sea of Japan.

Some 150 flights around South Korea were grounded and dozens of ferry routes halted operations.

Suicide bomber kills six

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A suspected suicide bomber blew up a crowded commuter bus today during morning rush hour, killing six people and tearing a hole in the fraying Israeli-Palestinian peace process.

At least 33 people were wounded in the attack near the busy diamond exchange in the Tel Aviv suburb of Ramat Gan.

Police said the fragments of a body found at the center of the blast amid charred metal and shards of glass may have belonged to a suicide bomber.

An anonymous caller to The Associated Press, speaking in Arabic, claimed the attack was carried out by the military wing of the Islamic group Hamas "because of Israel's violation of accords and procrastination in implementing the accords with Palestinians."

The attack came a day before Israel and the PLO's target date for an agreement on expanding autonomy in the West Bank. It occurred at about 8:45 a.m. in the heart of the Ramat Gan business district in front of the 40-story diamond market, part of a cluster of gleaming skyscrapers.

Witnesses said mangled bodies and body parts were strewn on the floor of the bus. The bomb tore a hole in the side of the bus and blew out all the windows.

"The bus stopped at the intersection, and I heard an explosion," said Shlomi Uziel, a 23-year-old university student who was sitting in the rear seat. He was slightly injured by flying glass.

"People screamed. I didn't know what was happening," Uziel said. "I jumped out the window at the back of the bus. I couldn't see anything because there was blood all over my face."

Orthodox Jews dressed in black, members of Israel's burial society, collected flesh and blood from the scene for burial.

Yeltsin released from hospital

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin was released from a hospital early today, nearly two weeks after entering with heart pain, his press secretary said.

"Russian President Boris Yeltsin has concluded today his course of treatment in the Central Clinical Hospital and has been released," said Sergei Medvedev, Yeltsin's top spokesman.

Yeltsin plans to spend an unspecified amount of time in a Moscow-area sanitarium called Barvikha, Medvedev said.

Yeltsin, 64, was admitted to the hospital for what was described as acute pain related to his heart disease. Aides initially said he would be hospitalized only one week, but then announced July 14 that he would stay an additional week.

Orders given to destroy Serb guns firing at peacekeepers

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Armed with heavy artillery, the first combat troops from the newly activated U.N. Rapid Reaction Force took position today with orders to destroy any Serb guns that fire at peacekeepers.

Meanwhile, a newspaper said a French plane had bombed the Bosnian Serb stronghold of Pale, east of Sarajevo, on Sunday — a report France denied.

Some 300 British and French forces deployed on Mount Igman, southwest of Sarajevo, where Serbs have been shooting at U.N. personnel and civilians using the only road into the capital, U.N. military spokesman Lt. Col. Chris Vernon said.

Vernon said two artillery batteries and an infantry company were in position. He said the troops traveled from central Bosnia without incident, accompanied by 1,200 soldiers to secure the safe passage.

Another convoy remained in the central Bosnian town of Vitez, 35 miles northwest of Sarajevo.

After rebel Serbs blasted away at Sarajevo, Zepa and Bihac — all U.N.-declared "safe areas" — for another day, the White House said late Sunday that the United States, Britain and France had formally warned the Bosnian Serb military chief to stop the assaults.

Sunday's order to deploy the U.N. combat troops came hours after Bosnian Serb shells killed two French peacekeepers — Capt. Gilles Carreau and Medical Capt. Eric Dorleans — and wounded four others.

The troops' departure began slowly as commanders of the Muslim-led government army raised last-minute objections. The Bosnian army has also been using the Igman area for an offensive against the Serbs, and it apparently fears the influx of U.N. troops may be an obstacle.

France, Britain and the Netherlands created the 12,000-man Rapid Reaction Force last month to bring in soldiers with heavier firepower than peacekeepers have — 120-mm mortars, light tanks mounted with 105-mm guns and other heavy arms.

Officials said the force would try to take out Serb weapons that target peacekeepers and aim at convoys using the Mount Igman road.

There were no immediate plans to use the U.N. force to protect an estimated 280,000 Sarajevans, who endure daily random Serb shelling, shooting and occasional rocket attacks.

may carry out their threat in London last week to use stronger NATO air power if the Bosnian Serbs push for further conquests.

Late Sunday, the White House said the allies delivered a formal warning to the Serbs that attacks on the U.N. "safe area" of Gorazde would draw airstrikes and that aggression against other safe areas "cannot be tolerated."

Representatives of the United States, Britain and France visited Bosnian Serb commander Gen. Ratko Mladic in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, on Sunday and warned that "if necessary, these actions will be at unprecedented levels," the Washington announcement said.

But a U.S. administration official said there was no immediate plan to apply the new NATO threat of to safe areas other than Gorazde — a Muslim enclave seen as the next rebel Serb target.

The French newspaper Liberation, citing unidentified Paris sources, said today that a Mirage 2000D bomber, flying from the Mont-de-Marsan air base in southwest France, dropped a laser-guided bomb from 9,000 feet on a residence near that of Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic.

Always cleaning up after someone in Big Spring

The third Comanche Warrior Triathlon will be Sunday at 7:30 a.m. at Comanche Lake.

This event draws triathletes from across the state to compete in what has been described as a "challenging course" by the participants.

But, as with everything this city has to do, the lake or something has to be cleaned of objects that shouldn't be there.

It is the same when Cranefest rolls around. One-Mile Lake has to be divested of mattresses, tires and other trash that citizens can't be bothered to haul to the landfill.

Out of the lake came cinder blocks and other trash that, to simply put it, are hazards whether swimming for fun or swimming for competition.

It could be wondered why is it clean-ups only happen when something is going on in Big Spring?

Clean-ups such as this will happen with any event, but keeping up with the litter is a full-time job that there simply isn't the money to pay for.

Littering costs all of us. It costs us in the marring of our landscape and in paying for constant cleaning. There simply aren't enough volunteers to keep pace with the amount of trash being put into the wrong places.

It's up to us to find the right receptacle for trash. The lake isn't the place, the roadsides are not the place.

We have to realize that every piece of trash in the lake or along the roads hurts all of us and makes our town look like a trash dump.

Trash cans, dumpsters or the landfill is where trash belongs.

We've got to care enough that when something is going on, a minor clean up is needed, not a major effort.

Making of a captain

Mark Twain said it: "A steam-powered riverboat is a wedding cake without the complications."

In his day -- when our nation's first super-highways were our waterways -- cargo, livestock and people moved long distances mostly on paddle-wheel steamboats.

In his day, there were 6,000 of them.

He captained one. The captain of a riverboat needs no formal education -- none. But before he is licensed, he is apprenticed. And before he can take command, he must be able to draw, freehand, the entire river. Every twist and turn must be committed indelibly to his memory -- and every channel buoy and shore marker.

He must know every shoal and sandbar.

Boat master and river pilot are not courtesy titles. They never were.

Captain Greene earned a pilot's license in 1896 and a captain's license one year later.

When the side-wheeler Greenland traveled down the Ohio and up the Mississippi to St. Louis to be there for the World's Fair of 1904, it was less the ship than the captain who was the subject of celebrating.

Nobody who ever measured up to a riverboat pilot house had the personal charisma of Captain Greene.

Nobody made passengers feel more pampered and visitors feel more like guests.

Of all the mud-blooded riverboat pilots of 100 years ago, none was more respected than Captain Greene.

Mike Fink was the terror of the river in 1822 -- a legendary Indian fighter, keelboat man and trapper, he was known for his unmatched marksmanship, braggadocio, stubborn pride and crude pranks.

Yet, upriver or down, he'd yield his keelboat to any vessel with Captain Greene in the pilot house.

Once, Captain Greene steered one of the big box-like boats into and through a cyclone -- safely.

Once, when a cargo of nitroglycerine aboard exploded, Captain Greene's burning boat weathered that -- and with all hands safe.

Once, Captain Greene's craft was locked in gorged ice -- it couldn't move, and a baby aboard and about to be born couldn't wait.

I said, the "baby born aboard couldn't wait."

It was the captain's baby. For this has been the story of Captain MARY Greene -- the one-of-a-kind Captain Mary Greene who, for all her dominance in what had been a man's job, was never less than a lady. A dainty lady. Whose cabin aboard abounded with knick-knacks and feminine pillows and art objects.

Captain Mary Greene, when nobody was watching, loved to crochet.

And the baby born while her boat was locked in a pack of ice was HER baby.

And the baby grew up to become a riverboat captain, as was her father and her husband.

But none was more respected than she.

Letters to the Editor

Procedures for funding changed

Editor:

Due to the loss of funding for 38,571 school students as reported by Chief Appraisers of 10 West Texas counties; because of the decline of mineral production and abatements allowed by our legislators; this has caused a change in funding procedures and appraisal values by Chief Appraisers for each school district. The new school handbook, SB-1, mandates the appraisal district appraisers under Sec. 41.002:

"(b) Except as provided by Subsection (c), for purposes of this chapter, the commissioner shall adjust, by the amount of the decline, the taxable values of a school district that experiences a decline from the preceding year in the tax base used in calculating taxable values that is beyond the control of the board of trustees of the district.

(c) The amount of money necessary to replace funds made unavailable to the Foundation School Program by operation of Subsection (b) may be paid only from funds specifically appropriated for that purpose. If a sufficient amount of money is not appropriated to fully replace funds made unavailable to the Foundation School Program by operation of Subsection (b), the adjustment to the taxable values of property in each district to which Subsection (b) applies shall be modified proportionally to the extent necessary so that the amount of funds made unavailable is equal to the amount appropriated to replace these funds." This directive allows the state to re-evaluate your property as necessary to meet their funding needs, and then increase the tax rate as well.

Since congress will not meet until 1997, and due to the fact it will take considerable time to remedy this situation once they do meet, it could be the turn of the century before relief, should they be so inclined, can be realized. Meantime, mineral values are predicted to decline at the rate of 25 percent per year for the next 10 years.

Citizens for Tax Reform wish to work with legislators to remedy this situation. We have a proposal which will be submitted for consideration, as we feel that it would not be to anyone's benefit to criticize without offering an alternate solution. While we may not have the perfect solution, we feel it is equitable and fair to the entire population of Texas. For more information concerning Citizens for Tax Reform, call 267-3013.

Thank you for your time.

GUILTY OF MURDER

Analysts say jury very likely to hand down death penalty to Susan Smith

UNION, S.C. (AP) — Jurors who took less than three hours to find Susan Smith guilty of murder will not be easily dissuaded from handing her the death penalty, analysts say.

The jury of nine men and three women needed only 2 1/2 hours Saturday to find Ms. Smith guilty of murder, rejecting a lesser verdict of involuntary manslaughter. She confessed to rolling her car into a lake last Oct. 25 with her sons Michael, 3, and Alex, 14 months, strapped in car seats.

Ms. Smith was due back in court today for the trial's second phase, when jurors will decide whether to give her life in prison or death in the electric chair.

Dick Harpootlian, a former prosecutor, said the expressions on the jurors' faces as they read the verdict left him convinced they were likely to vote for the death penalty.

"Every one of them was very forceful ... not hesitant in any way, almost proud of the verdict," he said. "If I were a defense attorney in this case, it'd scare the hell out of me."

Jack Swerling, a defense lawyer closely following the case, called the jurors "cold-looking" when they returned their verdict. He said they may have felt manipulated by defense attorney David Bruck when he introduced the possibility of a lesser verdict of involuntary manslaughter.

When jurors were polled about the verdict, each affirmed it in a strong voice, and the 23-year-old defendant trembled as she had done at other tense moments in the proceeding.

"She expected it. I expected it," said Bruck, who for months had offered a plea bargain if the prosecution didn't seek the death penalty.

Bruck depicted Ms. Smith as a tragic figure and called her act a failed suicide attempt; prosecutors portrayed her as evil, saying she selfishly drowned the boys because they interfered with an extramarital affair.

If I were a defense attorney in this case, it'd scare the hell out of me.

Dick Harpootlian

Ms. Smith could be called to the witness stand and more psychiatric testimony is expected in Bruck's bid to counter prosecution evidence, which could include a videotaped re-enactment of the car sinking slowly in the lake.

Prosecutor Tommy Pope called a re-enactment "extremely pertinent," but said he expected it to be challenged by the defense. He said the penalty phase of the trial could last up to a week.

Neither Bruck nor Pope would spell out the case he plans to present during the penalty phase.

Pope will probably emphasize the heinous nature of the crime, possibly trying to reintroduce grisly photographs of the boys' bodies, something the judge disallowed as inflammatory in the guilt phase, Harpootlian said.

The impact on the victims, including the boys' father,

David, could be another element of the prosecutors' case, he said.

"What does this mean to David Smith?" he said. "What does this mean to Grandma, who will never see her grandchildren again?"

However, the drawbacks of calling David Smith — who has received a $20,000 advance for a book on the case and was accused of adultery — may outweigh the benefits for prosecutors, Harpootlian said, adding, "You might want to call Grandma."

Both Harpootlian and Swerling believe Ms. Smith may be called to the stand to express her remorse.

Jurors have asked to review television interviews in which Ms. Smith tearfully lied that her children had been abducted by a carjacker.

They will be instructed to consider aggravating circumstances, such as the children's young ages, as well as mitigating factors, like Ms. Smith's lack of a criminal history. But it is their own judgment that will be the deciding factor, Harpootlian said, noting that jurors could reject execution "just as an act of mercy."

Many Sunday visitors at a lakeside memorial to Michael and Alex Smith said Ms. Smith should be executed.

But not Angeline Eanes, who cried as she held the hand of her 6-year-old daughter Britany.

"I don't think she should be able to end it that quick," Ms. Eanes said. "That's what she wants."

Randy Carpenter holds his son Cody, 3, as they walk through a memorial for Michael and Alex Smith at John D. Long Lake in Union, S.C., one day after the jury found Susan Smith guilty of the boys' murder. Smith faces the death penalty in the sentencing phase which begins today.

Boy watches father decapitate brother

ESTANCIA, N.M. (AP) — As trucks whizzed past on Interstate 40, 13-year-old Larry Smith watched his father cut off his older brother's head, terrified he would be next.

Before the attack turned deadly, the older boy warned Larry to "get away, get out of here," the surviving boy told investigators.

Larry ran. When authorities found him later, he asked, "Did you get my Dad? He's not going to get me, is he?"

"No, you're safe now," Torrance County Sheriff Don Lyles told him.

Eric Starr Smith pulled over and attacked his 14-year-old son, Eric Jr., on Saturday after telling the boys in the van that the family was possessed by the devil, Larry told officials. Police called by passing motorists arrived and Smith fled in the van, taking the boy's head.

Smith flung the head out the window a mile down the road, then led police on a 40-mile chase reaching more than 100 mph before he blew a tire and crashed, Lyles said.

Smith, 34, of Parker, Ariz., was jailed pending his arraignment today on charges of murder, evidence tampering, child abuse, driving while intoxicated and resisting or obstructing an officer.

At least three truckers who were driving on the interstate just east of Moriarty, in central New Mexico, saw the stabbing and reported it.

"We have witnesses who saw him hacking at the boy's head at the side of the road," Lyles said.

The body of Eric Smith Jr. was found sprawled across the shoulder and into the road, clad only in shorts and socks.

"There were 29 stab wounds that I counted in his back, but the ones in front I didn't count," said the sheriff. "I hope he was dead before he was beheaded. I'm assuming he was."

Police spent Sunday battling windy conditions while looking for evidence on the stretch where vast patches of sagebrush and dirt are broken up only by junkyards and an occasional mobile home.

They found a 4-inch buck knife and a pocketknife, both opened in locked position and covered with blood, but no sturdier knife.

"We know this wasn't something done with a machete where he just cut it (the head) off," Lyles said. "It was repeated stabblings. It looked like it was hacked off."

Investigators also found a rolled-up yellow sweatshirt soaked with blood.

Federal contracts with California are under review

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Republicans prepare to bring their attack on affirmative action to the national level, the Clinton administration says it is reviewing federal contracts with the University of California over its decision to end programs based on race or gender.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., seizing on what looks to be a big issue for next year's presidential campaign, says he will introduce legislation this week "to get the federal government out of giving group preferences."

And Dole's rival for the Republican presidential nomination, California Gov. Pete Wilson, on Sunday said

Clinton vows to reject lifting of arms embargo on Bosnia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton will reject any attempt by Congress to unilaterally lift the arms embargo on Bosnia, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta says.

"It's called a veto," Panetta told CBS' "Face the Nation" Sunday.

While working to maintain the arms embargo at home, the administration sought to project a tough stance to the Bosnian Serbs as well.

Defense Secretary William Perry told reporters that "airplanes are ready to go on a moment's notice for certain missions" to counter Bosnian Serb aggression.

Senior military officials of the United States, Britain and France delivered a formal ultimatum Sunday night to Bosnian Serb commander Gen. Ratko Mladic in Belgrade to underscore NATO's toughened stance.

The allies warned that under an agreement approved Friday in London, attacks on Gorazde would draw punishing air strikes and military action against other U.N.-protected areas in Bosnia "cannot be tolerated," said White House press secretary Mike McCurry.

"If necessary, these actions will be at unprecedented levels," McCurry said in statement.

Perry said the allied delegation explained to the Serb commander how the London statement "applies to all the safe areas in Bosnia" but declined to elaborate on exactly what that explanation was.

NOW thanks Gingrich for membership increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The growing national influence of conservative Republicans has been a shot in the arm for the National Organization for Women, NOW President Patricia Ireland says.

"Newt Gingrich is our best recruiter since (President) Ronald Reagan took office," she said. "I want Newt Gingrich to keep talking."

Gingrich's office did not immediately return a telephone call seeking comment.

Last year, NOW attracted 17,941 new members on the national level. Total membership is now 250,000.

NOW's annual convention, which ended here Sunday, attracted about 1,000 people.

Among topics discussed at the convention were sexual rights, sexual harassment, social security and welfare. But Ireland capitalized on the opportunity to make political attacks.

Her most frequent target: California Gov. Pete Wilson, a Republican presidential candidate. Last week, the University of California agreed to eliminate race and gender as a factor in admissions and hiring, supporting a key theme of Wilson's 1996 campaign.

"As we see those doors that had been opened being slammed closed in our face, we know how urgent this weekend is," Ireland said Friday.

NOW members are making plans for a "Wilson Watch," in which opponents will picket wherever Wilson campaigns.

Paul Kranhold, a spokesman for Wilson, defended the university's actions.

"The governor believes that it is demeaning to hard-working women, who are high achievers, capable of becoming supreme court justices and CEOs, to imply that they could not achieve these positions without some type of preference for races or gender," Kranhold said.

Ireland portrayed the affirmative action debate and the 1996 election as rallying points for women.

Constantino Rocca, left, and John Daly walk off the 18th green Sunday after Daly won the British Open in a four-hole playoff. Daly won the playoff by four strokes over Rocca.

Daly wins one for good ol' U.S.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — John Daly has overcome alcoholism, a divorce, fistfights and disputes with the PGA to become perhaps the next dominating force in golf.

Bewilderingly, the long-knocking Daly has won as many majors (two) as superstar Greg Norman. Daly's British Open victory on Sunday in a playoff with Italy's Costantino Rocca proved Daly can handle the heat just like Americans Ben Crenshaw and Corey Pavin, who won the Masters and the U.S. Open, respectively, this year in nerve-fraying finishes.

Daly's victory was the first for an American in the British Open since Mark Calcavecchia won a playoff with Norman and Wayne Grady in 1989 at Troon. Americans are 3-0 in the majors after being blanked last year.

Rocca made one of the most incredible 72nd-hole shots in British Open history, sinking a 65-foot birdie putt to tie Daly and send the tournament into a four-hole playoff. But he couldn't keep pace with Daly.

Constantino Rocca celebrates after sinking a 65-foot putt to force a playoff with John Daly.

Rocca had gone from hitting one of the worst shots to the very best in the history of the Old Course in a span of seconds.

He chunked a sand wedge second shot that dribbled into the infamous Valley of Sin fronting the 18th green. The gallery groaned over Rocca's amateur mistake, then roared as his 65-foot putt found the hole.

Rocca three-putted the first playoff hole while Daly parred. Daly's 40-footer for birdie gave him a two-shot lead after two holes. On the third extra hole, the infamous No. 17 Road Hole, Rocca knocked his second shot in the evil Road Bunker. He took three shots to extricate himself and made a triple-bogey. Ironically, Rocca birdied the fourth playoff hole, No. 18, but that only made the margin four strokes.

Daly shot a final-round, 1-under-par 71 in difficult conditions that included wind gusting over 40 mph. He had a 6-under-par 282 total. Rocca shot 73 for 282. Texan Mark Brooks, England's Steven Bottomley and New Zealand's Michael Campbell were at 5-under 283. Bottomley had the best round with a 3-under-par 69.

Marlin takes DieHard 500; Villeneuve wins again

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Sterling Marlin, who earned the nickname "Second Place Sterling" by going without a victory in the first 278 races of his career, won his third race of the season on Sunday at the DieHard 500. The Chevrolet Monte Carlo driver never got a serious challenge in the final laps as drivers appeared reluctant to veer out of the powerful draft and risk losing a top-10 finish.

"I did a lot of mirror driving there at the end," Marlin said. "You've got to do that here at Talladega. ... It was one of them deals where they get to racing each other there at the end and let the leader get away from them."

Dale Jarrett, who scooted into the lead draft with about 40 laps to go, finished second in a Ford Thunderbird. He overtook Dale Earnhardt with a daring inside move with five laps remaining.

AUTO RACING

Earnhardt, whose seven career victories are the most of any driver at Talladega, finished third in a Chevy.

Marlin walked away with a big payday after being denied one of the last time around the Talladega Superspeedway. Engine trouble during the spring Winston Select 500 in the spring cost Marlin a chance to run for $200,000 in bonus money. The DieHard victory, Marlin's first at the track, was worth $219,425, including $121,600 in bonus money for winning from the pole.

Villeneuve laps field in Cleveland Grand Prix

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jacques Villeneuve realized he had no business winning this race.

Not the way his car was running. Not after he dropped more than 40 seconds behind the leader with just 20 laps to go.

He won anyway, slipping past two other cars with less than two laps to go Sunday, winning the Cleveland Grand Prix by 1.16 seconds over Bryan Herta.

It was his fourth Indy-car victory of the year, and it increased his lead in the PPG Cup standings to 138-106 over Bobby Rahal.

Big Spring wins three state titles

Once again, Big Spring has proved its superiority in the United Girls Softball Association.

Big Spring sent four all-star teams to Abilene during the weekend for the UGSA state tournament, and three came home state champions. Big Spring has specialized in multiple state titles in recent years, and Sunday was no different.

The team with the youngest players, the Division I All-Stars, marched through the tournament undefeated, winning nine consecutive games. Big Spring blasted Fort Stockton 14-0 in the championship game.

Big Spring's Erica Stewart was named Most Valuable Player in the Division I tournament. Also making the all-tournament team from Big Spring were Gracie Acosta and Samantha Newton.

Division IV ripped through their tournament with a 7-2 mark, and it beat Andrews 1-0 in the championship. Heather

SOFTBALL

James of Big Spring was the MVP, and teammates Jackie Martinez and Mandi Morrow made the all-tournament team.

Division III compiled a 10-1 mark on its way to the title. Big Spring beat Andrews 10-7 to win the first Division III title for the Big Spring UGSA.

Melisa Martinez of Big Spring was the Division III MVP. Jessica Cobos, Sherry Burdette and Juanita Valdez joined her on the all-tournament team.

Division II was the only Big Spring group that didn't win a state title, but the girls were able to fashion a 4-4 record while placing two players - Ashley Lang and Amber Alvarez - on the all-tournament team.

Big Spring's titles came in Class 2A. In Class 1A, Coahoma won state championships last week in Divisions II and III.

Indurain wins Tour de France

PARIS (AP) — From the start, this was Tour de France was different. But it ended up the same, at least the same as the previous four years, with Miguel Indurain on the top step of the victory stand in the winner's yellow jersey.

Indurain's fifth consecutive Tour de France victory was a record. Belgian Eddy Merckx and Frenchmen Jacques Anquetil and Bernard Hinault also won five Tours but Indurain is the first to do so in consecutive years.

The Spaniard rode into Paris, and onto the Champs Elysees on a bright sunny Sunday, adding an even brighter shine to the yellow leader's jersey that he had worn since July 9, when he won the eight stage individual time trial.

He won by 4 minutes, 35 seconds over Alex Zülle of Switzerland, with Bjarne Riis of Denmark another two minutes behind. Zülle was the fifth different runner-up to Indurain since 1991.

Lance Armstrong of Austin captured the 18th stage on Friday.

Uruguay shocks Brazil, wins America Cup

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay, long in the shadow of neighbors Brazil and Argentina, has reclaimed a piece of its soccer reputation.

Uruguay beat World Cup champion Brazil 5-3 on penalty kicks Sunday to win the America Cup, after regulation ended 1-1. It was a record-tying 14th South American title for Uruguay but its first since 1987.

Uruguay was once South America's premier soccer nation, winning World Cups in 1930 and 1950. But Brazil, Argentina and Colombia now wield the power, and Uruguay failed to even qualify for the 1994 World Cup.

In beating Brazil, Uruguay rode the strength of a roaring home crowd to defeat a country that hadn't lost in 25 straight games, dating to 1993. Brazil, a four-time champion in the World Cup and America Cup, has never won the latter when played away from home.

The United States, invited along with Mexico into the 12-nation tournament, lost 4-1 to Colombia on Saturday in the third-place game.

Oakland A's say goodbye to Dave Stewart

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The decision to retire broke Dave Stewart's heart, but there was no denying that the hurler with the menacing stare and generous nature had reached the end of the line.

Dabbing his eyes with a green handkerchief and at times pausing to regain his composure, Stewart, 38, said goodbye Sunday after 16 years in baseball.

A 20-game winner for four consecutive years, Stewart struggled with a disappointing 3-7 record and a 6.89 ERA this season.

Stewart, with a career mark of 168-129, was named the AL playoff MVP in 1990 and 1993. He was 8-0 with a 2.03 ERA in AL playoff games with the A's and Toronto. He also was named MVP in the 1989 World Series when the A's swept the San Francisco Giants.

Kerdyk wins first title in her seven-year career

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Tracy Kerdyk started quickly Sunday, survived an hour's rain delay, then held firm down the stretch to shoot a 67 and take the $105,000 first prize in the Big Apple Classic. Her 11-under-par 273 was four strokes better than four others and tied the tournament record.

It came after a poor U.S. Open, where she shot 78 and 77 and missed the cut.

Don't be fooled! Football is king

There are just five days and counting until the first pro football game of the season.

Who cares that it's only pre-season and just the AFC/NFC Hall of Fame game featuring the Jacksonville Jaguars and the Carolina Panthers?

A few days ago I had the mindboggling privilege to talk with a rather weird friend (let's call him that for now) who thinks hockey is the greatest sport ever invented.

I had to remind him that he lives in Texas, where everything is big, including the love of football.

In Texas, from August through January, there are only four things to remember: Friday night, Saturday afternoon, Sunday night and Monday night.

Who needs hockey when there's the NFL, not to mention high school and college football?

Hey! I'm told there's more action in six-man football than in a hockey game, and you can be darn sure in six-man football there will be some scoring.

I can't grasp the concept of chugging for a bunch of snaggle-toothed men who run around an ice rink on skates looking like Jason Voorhees (Friday the 13th) clubbing each other with L-shaped sticks.

Granted, Wayne Gretzky is a different story, but how can you get used to a sport where you're not considered an official member until you lose a tooth?

Makes you think about becoming a dentist and moving to a hockey town without one. I'll defend football against anyone, even if I did have to witness two football strikes in the 1980's.

The bottom line is it's the greatest game ever invented. My friend will come around to my way of thinking, or he'll be alone counting the days until the next NHL season begins.

Of course he's still on my case for picking San Diego in last January's Super Bowl. I told him I did it just for a kick, but he has me over a barrel.

I'll just have to pick nothing but winners this season, which is fine by me.

My first pre-season prediction is the NFC Champion. Take your pick of either Dallas or San Francisco. Beware of Green Bay, Chicago and Philadelphia. In the AFC the choices seem to be Pittsburgh, Cleveland, San Diego, and Miami. It will be interesting to see how the Kansas City Chiefs do without Joe Montana.

My wish for Super Bowl XXX is to see the Dallas Cowboys battle the Pittsburgh Steelers, but there are at least 19 weeks of playing to be done before that can happen.

Another team to watch out for, despite a 7-9 finish last season, is the Buffalo Bills.

The Bills are rebuilding their defensive unit around line-backer Cornelius Bennett, who will now lead the team's new defense under former Denver coach Wade Phillips, who replaced Walt Corey this season as Bills' defensive coordinator.

Hockey! Who needs it when there's football!

Granted, Wayne Gretzky is a different story, but how can you get used to a sport where Texas' Otis Nixon, right, is chased by New York's Tony Fernandez in a rundown Sunday. New York beat Texas 11-4. The Rangers are six games out in the AL West.

Rangers lose seventh in a row

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack McDowell, the pitcher who waved his middle finger at boating fans, had to face those same fans just five days later.

From the sound of it, they forgive him.

McDowell encountered only a smattering of boos when his name was announced before the game, then heard nothing else negative from the crowd as he helped the New York Yankees to an 11-4 victory Sunday over the slumping Texas Rangers.

Any bad vibes that were expected to come McDowell's way were turned into cheers for Don Mattingly. Mattingly's two-run homer in the sixth inning, only his third of the year, gave the Yankees a 7-4 lead.

Texas lost its season-high seventh in a row, its longest slide since dropping eight straight in 1991.

McDowell (8-6) left after six innings. He allowed seven hits and two earned runs.

In the last six days, the Rangers have fallen from one game back to a season-high six games behind California in the AL West.

Father of topless swimmer gets bum steer for advice

DEAR ABBY: I am in strong disagreement with your answer to "Disappointed Dad," who had planned to give his daughter a new car for her 18th birthday, but after finding her topless in the swimming pool with her girlfriends and boyfriends, he was reconsidering the birthday surprise.

Cindy's mother thought the punishment was too harsh and you agreed with her!

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

Abby, Cindy's father is rightly concerned about the knowledge that irreversible mistakes will be on the horizon for his daughter whom he loves.

Your answer was wrong, Abby. I just hope Dad doesn't back down. — ANN DIBB

DEAR ANN: Sorry, I still vote with Cindy's mother, who surely loves her daughter as much as her father does. I still think the punishment was too harsh. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the man who found his 17-year-old daughter Cindy topless in the backyard pool with some friends (which included some boys), I agree that the punishment of denying her a car is too harsh. But only because it may cause smoldering resentment in both Dad and Cindy. Dad would be punishing himself as much as Cindy.

However, his delaying the gift for at least six months is a good alternative, providing Cindy's attitude and maturity merit the gift after that time.

Hooray for a dad who cares enough about his daughter to expect her to live up to his moral standards and who hasn't caved in to the pressures of "everybody's doing it." This father deserves all the support we can give him! — STANDING WITH DAD, LACEY, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Disappointed Dad," whose daughter and her friends were topless in the family pool (with several boys): Hasn't he heard about the new law in New York? A judge recently ruled that allowing men to remove their shirts in public while penalizing women for indecent exposure was discrimination.

I'm glad that America has begun to follow the European code of dress for beaches, and to show a more enlightened view of the female breast.

There is nothing inherently shameful or erotic about the female breast, although our constant attempts to cover them up makes it seem that way. It's about time someone recognized that we have been forced to hide our bodies unnecessarily because men view the female breast as a sex object.

I know many men who find a well-turned ankle or a shapely leg far sexier than a naked breast, and yet it is no longer considered indecent to expose our legs and feet in public. It should be no more shameful to expose female breasts than to expose faces or elbows. — J.G. IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR J.G.: Perhaps it shouldn't be — but it is.

What teens need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with peers and parents is in "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. THIS DATE IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, July 24, the 205th day of 1995. There are 160 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History: On July 24, 1959, during a visit to the Soviet Union, Vice President Richard M. Nixon engaged in his "Kitchen Debate" with Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev at a U.S. exhibition. On this date: In 1783, Latin American revolutionary Simon Bolivar was born in Caracas, Venezuela. In 1847, Mormon leader Brigham Young and his followers arrived at Great Salt Lake City in Utah. In 1862, the eighth president of the United States, Martin Van Buren, died in Kinderhook, N.Y.

In 1866, Tennessee became the first state to be readmitted to the Union after the Civil War. In 1923, the Treaty of Lausanne, which settled the boundaries of modern Turkey, was concluded in Switzerland. In 1929, President Hoover proclaimed the Kellogg-Briand Pact, which renounced war as an instrument of foreign policy. In 1937, the state of Alabama dropped charges against five black men accused of raping two white women in the "Scottsboro Case." In 1946, the United States detonated an atomic bomb at Bikini Atoll in the Pacific in the first underwater test of the device. In 1969, the Apollo 11 astronauts -- two of whom had been the first men to set foot on the moon -- splashed down safely in the Pacific. In 1974, the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously ruled that President Nixon had to turn over subpoenaed White House tape recordings to the Watergate special prosecutor. In 1975, an Apollo spacecraft splashed down in the Pacific, completing a mission which included the first-ever docking with a Soyuz capsule from the Soviet Union. Ten years ago: About 100 Lebanese released from an Israeli military prison crossed the border into Lebanon; it was the second group of prisoners to be freed by the Israelis since a TWA jetliner was hijacked by Shiite Muslim extremists. Five years ago: Iraq, accusing Kuwait of conspiring to harm its economy through oil over-production, massed tens of thousands of troops and hundreds of tanks along the Iraqi-Kuwaiti border. One year ago: Rwandan refugees began trickling home after Zaire reopened the border between the two countries; meanwhile, the first wave of a U.S. airlift arrived. Miguel Indurain won his fourth consecutive Tour de France victory. Today's Birthdays: Broadway producer Alexander H. Cohen is 75. Former U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug is 75.
