Conjoined twins bring new issues, attorneys

By PAMELA WARD

Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN - A few days after the rare birth of conjoined twins in Austin, a trio of attornevs assembled at the Travis County Courthouse. One spoke for the state's child protection agency, a second for the babies, a third for their mother. As they began discussions, a realization hit.

"We said, 'Wait a minute," lawyer Larry Schaubhut Jr. recalled. "We had one lawyer for two babies. We needed a lawyer for each baby."

None of the lawyers had encountered a situation like this. The premature twin sisters shared a connection at the head and a single bassinet, but they almost certainly would develop competing interests. What was best for one might not be best for the other.

The May 15 births set into motion events that would present unique challenges, events that would test or disrupt the lives of a number of Austinites. St. David's Hospital officials, who initially confirmed only that "twins were born here," eventually found themselves and their doctors pushed into the national spotlight, caught between protecting patients'

rights to privacy and quenching

But the spotlight and the people involved in the twins' lives will continue to follow the fate of baby Michelle and her moth-public interest.

Young lawyers who had never had a reporter interested in any of their cases suddenly were hounded by coast-to-coast media. The mother of the twins, Alicia Tejeda, was adamant that the births remain secret.

But the crescendo came last week when a 14-person medical er. The events of the past three months have been stressful, and at times emotional, for all. "I didn't think this case was going to attract the scope of attention that it has," said Schaubhut, 35.

At the courthouse, people criticized him for daring to represent the twins' mother, an alleged crack cocaine addict whose six older children were taken away from her because of neglect. He got hate mail. Angry callers told him "they couldn't understand why a woman like this should be allowed to live. And I thought, 'Oh boy, am I going to be man enough to handle this? Is my staff big enough to handle the calls?""

Lawyer John Howard drew the role of representing baby Nichelle. The young bearded lawyer jumped in the ring ready for a fight.

"My first response was, 'Gosh, she ought to be tried with a criminal offense for what she did to those babies."

He learned, however, that drug use is not believed responsible for the abnormal birth.

Howard's legal role was diminished when Nichelle became terminally ill. Howard began to arrange a funeral for his tiny client.

"It's a sad situation all around," said Leigh DuBose, a Please see TWINS, page 2

Show your art skills at the fair

By KELLIE JONES

The 1995 Howard County Fair offers people a chance to enter their art, food, animals or crafts to be judged to see who has the best in each category.

One area that attracts much local talent is the art exhibit. This portion of the fair is broken down in several divisions including media, professional and by age. Painting in oil, acrylic, watercolor, graphics, pastels or mixed media fall under the media division. The professional division is for art teachers, college art majors and those who have won recognition in state or national exhibitions. Those entries will be divided into different media for award purposes. The adult age divisions are broken into professional and non-professional. School art is judged according to grade with each age group receiving prizes. A best of show will be awarded to the one overall best exhibit that was entered.

Some of the rules include: ·A limit of two paintings per

 All paintings must be framed and ready for hanging and must not use saw-tooth hangers.

 Paintings must not have received an award in a showing at the Howard County Fair in the past.

 There is no entry fee. Entries cannot be picked up until the fair closes, which is after 10 p.m. Sept. 9.

 School art that is not framed must have a loop of string or thread on the back. Teachers are asked to have the work ready to hang before it is brought to the fair. •Ribbons and trophies will be awarded to the winners.

 The fair is not responsible for loss or damage of the exhibits. Entries will be accepted 1-5 p.m. Saturday and 1-4 p.m. on three-year family law attorney who was appointed to represent baby Michelle. "But it's easier for me to deal with a client that has hopes of living. I sure hope she does because I'd like to meet her someday. I hope she can grow up and look back on this and not be embarrassed by anything that happened. And I just hope that she has a much better life than how it started out."

From the beginning, the case of Michelle and Nichelle was a rarity. Twins connected at the head occur once in only 2.5 million births. Their prospects were dimmed by an unstable home. They were born 13 weeks prematurely after their 31-yearold mother arrived at St. David's in labor and reportedly high on crack cocaine. At birth the babies weighed just 2 pounds, 1 ounce each.

Tejeda initially was uncooperative with hospital personnel, according to state child protection workers who then asked the court to intervene on behalf of the babies.

No father has been located.

The state moved quickly to seek legal responsibility for the twins. When Tejeda appeared for a court hearing to ask for custody, she learned of a warrant for her arrest on a drug conviction parole violation. She ran down four flights of stairs, yelling, according to witnesses, "I ain't going to jail!" and insisting that she needed to be free "to go see my babies." Sheriff's deputies chased her down. She spent a month in jail.

An east Austin woman who has at times opened her home to Tejeda and often fed her children said the loss of her children are Tejeda's great regret. The July afternoon when Tejeda was released from jail, she went to see her friend.

Juana, who didn't want her last name used, said, "I gave her a letter from her oldest daughter. She seemed pretty happy."

Tejeda, who has declined repeated requests for interviews, has stayed with friends in an east Austin neighborhood since her release from jail. Her attorney said "she has a good attitude" about wanting to beat her drug problem. He said, "I do not know if she's using now. She's not told me.'

The drug use is central to whether Tejeda has a chance of gaining custody of baby Michelle. District Judge Jeanne Meurer has ordered Tejeda to enter inpatient drug rehabilitation.

The state has filed a petition to terminate Tejeda's parental rights, but progress on Tejeda's part could lead to a modified recommendation by her next court date in November.

An order by State District Judge Samuel C. Kiser does not prohibit Laureano from speaking Spanish at home. Instead. Kiser on Aug. 16 ordered the mother to speak English in conjunction with Spanish.

Language became an issue in the child-custody case when the girl's father claimed that the only English she was learning was what he taught her.

Timothy Garcia was seeking rights for unsupervised visits with his 5-year-old daughter. Kiser granted the father's request.

At a hearing this summer, Kiser equated lack of English proficiency with ignorance and

Woman dies after being set on fire by husband

DALLAS (AP) — A 21-year-old woman died seven hours after police say her husband doused her with a flammable liquid and set her afire.

The man was swept up accidentally in the flames, police said. He remained in fair condition Monday night at Parkland Memorial Hospital, Sgt. Gary Kirkpatrick said.

Police said the incident occurred about 1:30 p.m. Monday in a North Dallas apartment.

"He apparently came home and she was confronted by her husband," Sgt. Larry Lewis said. "He poured some type of flammable liquid on her - we think it was gasoline - and set

Man found guilty of capital murder for gay man's death

TYLER (AP) — A second man accused of abducting and killing a 23-year-old medical clerk because he was homosexual has been found guilty of capital murder.

A Smith County jury deliberated about four hours Monday before finding Henry Dunn Jr., 21, of Tyler guilty.

The bullet-ridden body of 23year-old Nicholas West was found in a gravel pit south of Tyler in November 1993. Prosecutors said West was killed because he was gay.

Donald Aldrich was convicted of capital murder last year and is on death row. A third defendant, David McMillan, has yet to be tried.

West was abducted from a Tyler park, stripped, put on his knees and shot "as many as 12 times, no less than nine," Smith County District Attorney Jack Skeen Jr. said at Aldrich's trial.

During closing arguments Monday, Skeen told jurors Dunn was a "principal actor" in a crime of hate. "This is a coldblooded execution born out of hate, born out of prejudice" and the need for property - the truck West was driving, he said.

Aldrich had told investigators he and two friends intended to steal West's cash and take his truck. He said he panicked and fired two shots after Dunn opened fire on West.

Defense attorney Melvin Thompson told jurors "not to worry" about Aldrich's confession, but to concentrate on who fired the shot that ultimately killed West.

A Tyler pathologist testified that although West suffered nearly a dozen wounds to his torso and arms, he could have survived had it not been for the final shot to the back of his GALVESTON (AP) - It's going to be rougher than usual for those who chose to "rough it" at Galveston Island State Park over Labor Day weekend.

There will be no water for drinking, showering or flushing toilets at the park following the discovery last weekend that the park's water tested positive for the coliform bacteria, which is found in fecal matter.

The presence of coliform bacteria is a sign of the presence of E. coli, although that dangerous bacteria has yet to be found. The water has been turned off since Saturday as a precaution.

The bacteria can cause many diseases, including typhoid, hepatitis and dysentery. It can infect people through drinking or washing in contaminated

Although the water is off, the park will remain open for the holiday weekend. Park workers and signs in three languages have warned people not to drink the park's water.

The park will have chemical toilets and a 350-gallon emergency supply of drinking water, said Rob McCorkle, spokesman for the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife.

he long arm of the law is once again reaching where it has no business, this time into the household of a woman who has been ordered to speak English as well as Spanish to her child.

On Aug. 16, State District Judge Samuel C. Kiser of Amarillo decided Mexican native Marta Laureano's use of Spanish at home with her 5-year-old daughter constituted abuse. The order was part of a child-custody case brought by the girl's father, Timothy Garcia, who claimed the only English the girl was learning was what he taught her.

So what's the problem? The girl is learning English from her father and Spanish from her mother. As Laureano pointed out, this would give the girl an advantage not everyone has. In addition, the girl will continue to learn English as she progresses through the school system and makes friends who speak English.

There are those out there who know immigrant families in which the parents spoke their native language to their children, who in turn would respond in English. This not only polished the children's language skills but helped the parents learn English as

It is not only an affront to other cultures to imply their language just isn't good enough, even in the home. It's also an affront to their personal rights. Would we or our children like a court order telling us to force our teen-agers to speak proper English and use no slang?

How about the many people at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf who are fluent in sign language - what if a court order had forced them to learn to speak instead?

It is commendable that both the girl's father and the judge are concerned about the child, but this legal intrusion into the privacy of the home is not the way to demonstrate such concern. The action is too severe for the situation and the precedent it sets too dangerous.

U.N. claims Bosnian Serbs fired shell into marketplace

WORLD

By LIAM McDOWALL

Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegov ina (AP) — The United Nations blamed Bosnian Serbs today for firing the shell that killed 36 people outside a Sarajevo market, and weighed whether to punish them with NATO airstrikes at the risk of aborting peace talks.

The shelling Monday was the worst attack on Sarajevo's civilians in the 40-month-old Bosnian war since Feb. 5, 1994, when another mortar shell struck the same marketplace and killed 68 people. Serbs denied firing both shells.

U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko said U.N. investigators "concluded, beyond any reasonable doubt, that the attack Monday came from Bosnian Serb positions."

Another U.N. spokesman, Lt. Col. Chris Vernon, said radar, crater analysis and acoustic tracing had been used to assign culpability to the Serbs.

Because the U.N. findings implicate the Serbs, the United Nations, which has pledged to protect Sarajevo and other remaining U.N. "safe zones," is under intense pressure to ask NATO for punitive airstrikes.

"All options are now being considered," Ivanko said. That, however, would destroy any chance of success for the latest peace initiative, set to resume this afternoon in Paris. Initial meetings were held Monday night. The stage seemed set for NATO reprisals.

To keep Serbs from repeating their tactic of taking U.N. hostages as human shields against NATO airstrikes, the United Nations secretly pulled out the remaining 80 or so peacekeepers overnight from the U.N.-designated "safe area" of Gorazde, the last government enclave in eastern Bosnia.

People wounded in the shelling of downtown Sarajevo are evacuated to Kosevo Hospital. At least 35 people were killed and 80 injured in the blast just before noon Monday. The attack occurred near the site of the marketplace shelling in February 1994 that killed 68.

The British, Norwegian and Sarajevo neighborhood, were Ukrainian soldiers, arrived in the Serbian capital, Belgrade, today, leaving only two unarmed military observers in Gorazde, another spokesman said.

The United Nations ordered peacekeepers today to stay out of Serb territory.

China to allow protests 30 miles from conference

BEIJING (AP) - China announced today it will allow demonstrations during the U.N. women's conference, but only at a spot 30 miles from the conference and then only if protesters don't criticize China. Though China is allowing only a token site for protests, the concession was noteworthy coming from a government that has not allowed demonstrations since it crushed the pro-democracy movement in Beijing in

Tian Qiyu, vice-minister for public security, told a news conference today protests would be allowed at a school in Huairou, the town 30 miles from Beijing where the NGO Forum is to be held from Wednesday to Sept. 8. NGO stands for non-governmental organizations, in this case those with an interest in the Sept. 4-15 U.N. conference. The groups wanted their meeting closer to the conference in Beijing, but the government wouldn't allow it.

"These activities should not infringe upon the sovereignty of the host country and should not attack or slander the state leaders of the host country, nor shall such activities be allowed in which violence is taking place against other persons,' Tian said.

If conference participants want to demonstrate or march elsewhere, Tian said, they must submit requests to local police authorities. Such requests likely would be denied.

Chinese officials said today that 26,000 applicants have been accepted to the forum. Forum organizers said 36,000 people applied to attend.

Dengue fever breaks out on Mexican border

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Department of Health is prepared to spend at least $250,000 to fight a dengue fever threat to residents along the border with Mexico, state Health Commissioner David R. Smith says. Monday's action follows an outbreak of dengue fever in Reynosa, Mexico, across the border from McAllen, that was reported late last week. Dengue fever is an acute viral illness with severe, flu-like symptoms often accompanied by a rash. It is spread by mosquitoes. Smith said that the funds will pay for disease tracking, labora-

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli soldiers accused of killing Egyptian prisoners-of-war cannot be criminally prosecuted because the alleged crimes occurred too long ago, Israel's attorney general said today.

But Ben-Yair said Israeli law does not allow a person to be tried more than 20 years after committing the alleged crime. After decades of censorship, reports of wartime atrocities surfaced this month, when a retired Israeli general admitted that in 1956 he shot and killed 49 Egyptian soldiers because he didn't have enough men to guard them.

Clinton defends federal child support law

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Clinton administration is defending the federal "deadbeat parent" law from a constitutional challenge and trying to get Congress to toughen its provisions.

Declaring that "parental responsibility does not end at the state line," President Clinton sent the Justice Department to court Monday in Phoenix to try to save the Child Support Recovery Act of 1992. The law makes it a federal crime for a parent to withhold support from a child living in another state.

The act was declared unconstitutional July 26 by U.S. District Judge Paul G. Rosenblatt in Phoenix. So far, his ruling applies only in Arizona; the act remains in effect elsewhere.

It was used by FBI agents earlier this month in Vermont to arrest the nation's worst deadbeat dad, Jeffrey Nichols, who owes $582,000 in overdue child support payments.

Wilson formally enters presidential race

NEW YORK (AP) - With the Statue of Liberty as a backdrop, California Gov. Pete Wilson formally entered the GOP presidential race Monday with a dark portrait of a federal government "out of step, out of touch and out of control.

Wilson pledged to restore fairness to a nation that he said has slipped into decline since his immigrant grandparents came from Ireland at the turn of the century.

The famous statue has long been a beacon to immigrants. but Wilson used it as a symbol of his fight against illegal immigration.

Wilson sought to portray himself as an activist governor who gets things done while Republican rivals merely debate the issues. He criticized affirmative action programs and expansion of welfare — central themes, along with crime, of his effort to tap into voter anger and fear.

Wilson on Monday noted he has come from behind before in his long political career. Last year he overcame a 23-point deficit to beat Democrat Kathleen Brown for governor.

Bomb threat delays air traffic across the country

NEW YORK (AP) — A bomb threat at the air traffic control center for the city's three major airports delayed flights for tens of thousands of travelers across the country.

Arrivals and departures of 210 planes were suspended from 5:45 p.m. to just before 7 p.m. Monday at Kennedy International and LaGuardia airports in New York and Newark International Airport in New Jersey, said Port Authority spokesman Peter Yerkes.

Flights bound for New York were put in holding patterns, diverted to other cities or not allowed to take off.

The air traffic control center in the Long Island town of Westbury handles about 6,000 flights each day.

An unidentified man called an unpublished number at the center at 4:30 p.m. and said a bomb would go off at 6 p.m., said Nassau County police spokesman James Fullam.

After most of the center's 80 workers were evacuated, police searched the building with bomb-sniffing dogs, but found nothing, Fullam said.

answered Monday accuses the governor of conspiracy, wire fraud, bank fraud, mail and misapplying funds.

Magistrate Jerry Cavaneau set a tentative trial date of Oct. 10.

"It may require every dime of resources I have, plus what I can borrow, but these people are going to have to come prove in court their allegations and not simply beat this person down with all their weight of authority," he said, denying broadcast reports that he was negotiating a plea bargain.

The Cincinnati-based consumer products company filed the federal lawsuit in Salt Lake City against Randy Haugen of Ogden, Utah, seeking more than $50,000 from the highranking Amway distributor. Amway is a competitor of P&G.

The lawsuit claims Haugen used Amway's voice mail system to spread the rumors to other Amway distributors.

Seles triumphant in return to Open giggle tennis is back in prime

Monica Seles made a triumphant return to the U.S. Open with a display of hard-hitting tennis, needing only 56 minutes to trample Ruxandra Dragomir of Romania 6-3, 6-1 in her first-round match Monday.

Then came another winning performance in her giggle-filled news conference.

"I was nervous." Seles said of her first match at the National Tennis Center since she captured the women's singles title in 1992. "I was just real nervous that I was going to play the Open.'

Sidelined since being stabbed during a tournament in April 1993, Seles returned to the sport two weeks ago in Toronto, winning the Canadian Open. She hasn't lost a match at the U.S. Open since falling in the third round in 1990.

"She is unbelievable," the Dragomir said. "I couldn't even imagine that she is that good."

Seles is seeded second behind the co-favorite, Steffi Graf, who was scheduled to play her opening round match today against

NEW YORK (AP) — Hit and Amanda Coetzer in an intriguing rematch.

The unseeded South African upset Graf in the second round of the Canadian Open two weeks ago. It was Graf's first loss of the year in 33 matches.

Coetzer, currently ranked 21st in the world, pulled off two more upsets in Toronto, ousting Jana Novotna and Mary Pierce before losing to Seles in the final.

Seles appeared to be in a hurry to get into the next round when she finally got on Stadium Court. She took no time between serves, and was always waiting for Dragomir to settle down for the next point to begin. She said it was

"Today is very different obviously because it is the first time you are going out there to play at the Open," Seles said. "I mean, there is so much excitement, so much nervousness.

"I went out there just trying to focus on the ball, and I wasn't focusing on the ball. I was hitting them as they were coming. I was missing them as they were coming. I had no plans."

Stern: Rockets may forego trip

NEW YORK (AP) - The Houston Rockets won't be going to London on Oct. 19 if NBA players vote to dissolve their union.

NBA commissioner David Stern said Monday that the McDonald's Open, featuring NBA champion Rockets and five foreign championship teams will be canceled immediately if players vote for decertification and against a proposed labor deal. Results of the election will be announced Sept. 12.

"We'd have to cancel it on the 12th," Stern said. "It wouldn't be fair to the sponsors."

A league-wide lockout has been in force since July 1, and the NBA has said it will continue if players reject the labor

The three-day tournament, staged jointly by the NBA and FIBA, basketball's international governing body, is to be the first tournament pitting club champions from the world's top leagues against one another.

Along with the Rockets, the field includes Sheffield of England; Real Madrid, the European champ; Buckler Bologna of Italy; Maccabi Tel Aviv of Israel; and the undecided Australian champion.

McDonald's and other European sponsors have already paid the NBA fees for the event, and that money would have to be refunded if it's canceled, Stern said. Some money for promotions will have to be rebated regardless.

"It (cancellation) would be a serious blow to our credibility in the international marketplace," Stern said.

A sharply divided body of NBA players will decide the fate of their union and of the proposed collective bargaining agreement in votes on Wednesday and Sept. 7.

Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal became the NBA's biggest star to come out in support of the proposed labor deal. While Michael Jordan has been leading the players advocating decertification, O'Neal said players should vote against disbanding their union.

Bagwell back in action

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - Jeff Bagwell, the injured first baseman for the Houston Astros, went 0-for-2 with two walks during his first game on a rehabilitation assignment for Double-A Jackson.

In the Texas League game against Tulsa, Bagwell lined out to center field, grounded out to shortstop and walked in his final two at-bats.

The 1994 National League MVP hadn't played since breaking his left hand July 30, when was hit by pitch. It was the third straight season he suffered that injury. "It's not back to normal right now. It is a little sore

Habitat conditions should make for excellent dove-hunting season

Texas Parks and Wildlife officials say habitat conditions couldn't be better.

"It looks really good," said game warden Mark Collins. who works in Hale and Floyd counties northeast of Lubbock. 'There's a lot of birds right now. We just have to hope that there aren't any early cold fronts."

OUTDOORS

State rules include these: -Hunters must have a Texas hunting license, which costs

-The daily bag limit for doves is 15. The possession limit is 30.

-Hunting from public roads is not allowed.

-Shooting hours are from a half hour before sunrise to sun-Hunters who break the rules can wind up with their licenses revoked or suspended. Fines vary from $25 to $500 for each bird killed illegally.

"We'll be out rooting around in the woods, looking for those violators," said game warden Ed Russell, who is based in Wichita County. "It'll probably be a pretty busy weekend."

Meanwhile, some landowners and hunting outfitters are pushing the state game commission to reinstate half-day dove hunting.

Several ranchers Throckmorton County have agreed to limit the length and frequency of bird hunts, in hopes of not driving away the Corky Redden, county agricultural extension agent, said about one-third of people leasing dove fields around Throckmorton are limiting hunts to half-day.

Game warden R.C. Brooks predicted that half-day hunting would cut down on double dipping - the illegal practice of shooting the limit in the morning, putting the birds in storage and then hunting again in the evening.
