SENSE OF FREEDOM

■ Freedom or adventure reasons for transients

By KELLIE JONES

He chose to live the life of a transient and enjoyed moving from town to town.

That is according to friends of Thomas Walter Dunlap, 50, who was found dead in a wooded field between Bud's and the city park recently.

Most of the homeless people spotted in Big Spring like the freedom and adventure of being able to pick up and move whenever the mood strikes them.

Where do they sleep and how do they get by?

At one time, the area where Dunlap was found was wellknown as a transient camp that stretched from just south of Bud's Warehouse to Whipkey Drive in Comanche Trail Park. A tent city was once located in what appears to be an old river bed north of Whipkey Drive. Remnants of the camp can still be seen such as old milk crates, empty bottles and areas cleared out to build fires.

Retired resident Garner Thixton spends part of his day checking on transients to make sure they are doing well and if they need anything.

Thixton said, "I try to help who I can when I can. They seem to stay in that area when Winn-Dixie was in business because the store would throw out a lot of food. Now that it is closed and there is work going on at the building, the camps have been abandoned for a while."

Other areas transients have

Closing of 10th Street topic of Sept. 26 hearing

Inconvenience or feasible solution?

The question of whether 10th Street will be closed may be answered at the Big Spring City Council's Sept. 26 meeting following a long awaited public hearing on the subject.

Mayor Tim Blackshear said he hopes to get a council vote on the issue and have the matter resolved after the hearing.

Blackshear was the lone council member to accept the ad hoc athletic committee's recommendation back in June to close a portion of 10th Street to make room for a new multi-purpose athletic facility to be funded by a $300,000 grant from the Dora Roberts Foundation.

To help alleviate some of the confusion surrounding the issue the Big Spring Independent School District took the recommendation of the ad hoc committee and presented an official request letter to the council.

In the letter, the school district's Board of Trustees President Dan Wise wrote, "The Board of Trustees requests the city of Big Spring close 10th Street between State and Owens for the purpose of building a multi-purpose athletic facility for Big Spring."

The letter went on to say after careful review of other sites, the 10th Street location is in the best interest of the boys and girls of the school district and board members and other officials would be happy to discuss the merits of closing 10th Street at a public hearing.

Originally, overwhelming concern about an anticipated

Compromise sought to build athletic center

The original request from the Traffic Commission to close the portion of 10th Street between State and Owens is still on the table, but a compromise could yield something different.

Big Spring City Engineer Ralph Truzskowski said between now and the public hearing set for Sept. 26, city officials and the Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees will be meeting to try to iron out some sort of compromise in the 10th Street battle.

The closing of 10th Street for the proposed multi-purpose athletic facility is the center of controversy between some concerned citizens, six of seven City Council members and the BSISD.

The site was selected from among several other because it would allow all athletic facilities, including Blankenship Field and Steer Park to be in the same general location.

Regardless of the site selected, the proposed 33,000 square foot facility (190 feet by 180 feet) would be a year-round facility serving students in grades six through 12.

In June, BSISD officials said it was aware of a 20-inch three to four fold increase in foot traffic along 10th Street near Big Spring High School when the new multi-purpose athletic facility is built was why Traffic Commission approved the recommendation to close a portion of 10th Street.

The facility will be housed in a metal building and will provide work-out space for both boys and girls and serve as an indoor training facility during

The facility is not the problem the closing of 10th Street is and still has a few residents in the area concerned.

The recommended closing will still have to be included in an ordinance to be considered by the council. The ordinance will recommend 10th Street be closed from State to Owens, Eighth Street between Owens and State be designated one-way to the east, and Owens from Sixth to 10th be designated oneway to the south.

Big Spring resident M.H. Barnes, who lives near the corner of Sycamore Street, said, 10th Street is the only street in town that goes from one side of the city to the other. It's going to make it extremely inconvenient for everyone here.

He added he's lived in Big Spring since 1930 and have done a little bit of everything, and 10th Street is not just convenient but essential

According to Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Bill McQueary, the proposed closing is not just about inconvenience, but rather a safety precaution for when 600 to 700 students are crossing the street to get to the facility.

McQueary said there would be some inconvenience by closing a portion of 10th Street and the same argument was made by several residents when Gregg Street was widened.

He said, "Some people thought Gregg Street would dry up and blow away when it was widened, but it's the best thing to ever happen to Big Spring.* According to McQueary, the concern is for the safety of students and athletes going to and from the facility. In a letter to the council, Barnes wrote, Other than Third and Fourth streets, the only direct route from Birdwell Lane to West FM 700 is through Sycamore, 10th Street, and Martin Luther King Boulevard."

Blackshear said there will be rules and limits, but anyone wanting to address the 10th Street issue will have an opportunity to do so at the public hearing.

Morales accused of asking for funds in exchange for defense

DALLAS (AP) — State House Speaker Pete Laney and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock have accused Attorney General Dan Morales of demanding funds from other state agencies in exchange for defending them in pending law-

"This kind of intimidation is totally inappropriate and unprofessional under any circumstances," Laney, D-Hale Center, said in a "personal and confidential" letter to Morales dated

The Dallas Morning News, which obtained the letter under the Texas Open Records Act, reported in today's editions that Laney wrote that he may appoint an interim committee to study the possibility of allowing agencies to hire their own lawyers.

He wrote that the special panel might "explore the possibility of privatizing certain other legal functions of your office," the newspaper reported. Bullock also signed the letter. adding a handwritten "I agree!" Bullock and Morales, like Laney, are Democrats.

In a written reply, Morales called the allegations "ludicrous." He said that before the Legislature approved the new state budget in May, he advised agencies that his office no longer could afford to pay for the extra legal staff hired specifically to serve them.

Morales said he had no choice but to raise his office's price to state agencies because the Legislature cut his office's budget.

"At no time did we ever advise any client agency that our office would not provide the legal representation needed," he wrote. "And certainly, no one in this office ever suggested that the state of Texas would not be represented in court."

Family killed in murder-suicide

ANAHUAC (AP) - Chambers County authorities say a member of a prominent ricefarming family apparently killed his wife and young son before committing suicide.

The bodies of Jody Wade Fancher, 24; his wife, Tracie, 24; and their son, Curry, 2, were found in in the living room of their residence in Anahuac.

The Harris County Medical Examiner's Office will conduct autopsies, but Justice of the Peace H. J. "Red" Guillory said Thursday that the evidence indicates a double murder and suicide.

The bodies were discovered Wednesday night by his father. G.B. Fancher, who said he became concerned when phone calls to the residence went unanswered for more than a day.

Authorities said Tracie, a nightclub waitress, had been shot in the throat. Her body was found on the floor near the front door. The body of the child, who had been shot in the back of the head, was in a chair.

Overhaul of farm bill being challenged posal from the House Agriculture Committee chairman to radically overhaul farm programs faces a challenge from ance the budget. Republicans on the committee, and stepped-up criticism from the Clinton administration.

Reps. Larry Combest, R-Texas, and Bill Emerson, R-Mo., introduced an alternative bill Thursday that would save $13.4 billion over seven years without eliminating subsidies based on crop prices. Most of the savings would come through a doubling, to 30 percent, of the acreage on which subsidies could not be paid.

The message:

'Stay away' Editor:

Several months ago two local men began making plans to expand their business to an area of our city that is in need of an economic boost.

As I listened to their proposal and viewed the photographs of the existing property, I became excited at the prospect of this development. Later that evening I was surprised to learn and somewhat taken aback that anyone would oppose a simple project such as a self-maintained car wash. How docile is that. This proper ty is on a major four lane roadway with commercial potential. This is something right in line with what the comprehensive master plan is outlining for our community. I was excited. After all, these men were responsible owners of several businesses in town. They had always kept their properties clean and turned an unsightly vision into a pleasant one (Downtown Car Wash).

Unfortunately, one man from Lubbock was able to organize such an emotional and fact stretching plea to our city council members that these representatives of Big Spring refused to make a business decision. Remember we are talking about Wasson Road, Southwest Big Spring, econom-

Perhaps everyone involved could stand back and see what kind of message has been sent to anyone considering opening a business in our community so that we can enhance our taxbase and boost our economy one step at a time - or not.

May I suggest that the owner, staff and residents of the Park Village Apartments organize an equally effective program to keep this area clean themselves since they so oppose any change to the status of this corner. After all, the main concern expressed by this group was the environment in which their children live.

What kind of help is available to homeless

The Department of Veterans Affairs and the Big Spring VA Medical Center offer assistance to those in need. According to Public Affairs Officer Pat Atkins, the VA has used $70 million in the last year to help fund its homeless assistance programs.

Some of the money is used for grants and payments to public and nonprofit groups who provide assistance to homeless vets.

There are two domiciliaries located in Temple and Bonham designed for those who need more help than an acute 28-day program can provide. Nationwide, the domiciliaries help 15,000 vets each year with medical and psychiatric treatment, counseling and residential rehabilitation programs, according to Atkins.

Homeless veterans can also go through the Transitional Living Program in Dallas. This helps them learn skills and receive counseling on ways to get back into society after being on the streets for so long.

A recent report entitled "Health Care for Homeless Veterans" stated once a vet leaves the residential care component of VA's Homeless Chronically Mentally Ill Veterans Program, more than 33 percent of the vets found employment.

At least one-third moved into their own homes, almost 60 percent showed improvement in their psychiatric condition and two-thirds significantly reduced their sub-

One man staying under one of the viaducts has tried to make it his home. There is a mattress, food in old milk cartons and even two dogs to keep him company. He did not wan to be interviewed.

A couple was recently removed from their 'home' under one of the viaducts because they were living on private property. They were staying in a tin building and the property owners had asked the couple to leave several times but they refused.

Thixton said one day the property owner came along with a dump truck and hauled away the couple's possessions. Thixton added he is not sure what has happened to the man and woman or where they are stay-

The center offers an acute 28day alcohol and drug treatment program for veterans.

Webb said, "Some of them are not happy and are depressed about something. They need an anchor to assist them so they can reflect on their lives and see where they want to go.

"We also provide psychiatric help if they need it. Most of the men are between the ages of 35 and 50. But most of them are also happy with their lifestyle. The freedom and adventure is an attraction.

Webb added the hospital provides bathing facilities, a change of clothes and one or two hot meals for homeless vet-

Salvation Army Emergency Shelter Manager Roy Davis said there are about 350 people who come through the shelter every month seeking some sort of assistance. He added about 80 percent are men with a majority of them being military veter-

Major Roy Tolcher said anyone who comes to the shelter can stay for three days then their situation is reevaluated.

Transient camps can also be found in developed areas, such as at the base of the Hotel Settles, once a popular place when access to the building was less secure. Other transient camps can also be found under several of the viaducts that cross over the railroad tracks.

"Most of them do not like to be controlled as the shelter life demands. When we reevaluate to see if they can stay longer, we want to make sure they are actively seeking employment. They must show proof of this if they want an extended stay. We want them to help themselves."

The shelter does on occasion take in boarders who pay a small room and board fee if they have a job. This allows a person to save some money to move into their own place. If a transient cannot find a job, they are required to do volunteer work at the shelter or main office.

The Salvation Army also provides breakfast at 6 a.m. and dinner at 5 p.m. for anyone who needs a meal. Davis said this is when some of the transients who like to move around come in for a meal but they do not spend the night at the shelter unless the weather is very cold or rainy.

Davis added, "The truckers and police officers are very good about bringing transients to us who need refuge. These people need pastoral help and our prayers. We are trained to respond to people who have fallen out of society or just need someone to talk to.

*Some of them may have some sort of physical or mental disability that caused them to loose the motivation and drive to continue. Others seem to like the freedom and know this is a family and they are welcome to stay when they come through the area if they need to."

Working tax credit for the working poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — House tax-writers will consider legislation next week trimming $30 billion over seven years from corporate tax preferences and carving the earned-income tax credit for the working poor by $20 billion.

The tax increases would be used to reduce the budget deficit and extend a parcel of expiring tax credits encouraging corporations to conduct research, hire the hard-toemploy and reimburse employees' tuition.

If approved by the Ways and Means Committee next week, the bill would be folded into the massive deficit-reduction package expected to reach the House floor later in the fall.

The tax measure, proposed by Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is separate from the House-passed $350 billion "Contract With America" tax cut, which includes a $500per-child tax credit and a 50 percent cut in capital-gains taxes.

Earlier this year, Archer had resisted calls by Democrats and even some Republicans, including Rep. John Kasich of Ohio, the House Budget Committee chairman, to prune so-called "corporate welfare."

Archer objected to loophole closing, considering it a backdoor tax increase, but agreed to review existing preferences to see if any had become outdated. He said he had come up with a list of 29 revisions that would raise about $30 billion through

"I want to change business as usual by focusing on what I believe are good public policies," Archer said.

Democrats cautiously welcomed Archer's shift but said his proposal for loophole closing was dwarfed by the new corporate tax breaks on the GOP agenda. And they pointed out the absence of proposals reducing benefits to Archer's homestate oil industry.

"If he's going to overlook his special interest, then Democrats would have problems. You have to be fair," said Rep Harold Ford, D-Tenn.

According to a preliminary estimate by the liberal Citizens for Tax Justice, the House already has passed tax benefits for business six times as large as Archer's proposed reforms.

Some of the loophole-narrowing provisions have been much debated already, such as a GOP version of a Clinton administration proposal to tax wealthy people who renounce their citizenship to avoid federal taxes.

Others had been announced previously but little noticed, such as a bipartisan proposal to limit corporations' tax-favored stock swaps.

Some have received little public debate but have been hotly contested behind the scenes by lobbyists.

Among these, according to a committee statement, is repealing the Section 936 credit encouraging manufacturers to operate in U.S. territories. Existing beneficiaries, most of whom are pharmaceutical companies operating in Puerto Rico, would continue to receive the credit for 10 years.

Also targeted are tax advantages for Indian tribes' gambling operations, builders of low-income housing, ethanol who need the help most."

producers, large family-owned corporate farms and producers of films and other entertainment.

Meanwhile, Republicans plan also to reduce the earnedincome credit by about $20 billion over seven years. The GOP plan would tighten anti-fraud enforcement, deny the credit to childless persons and eliminate it for those now at the top of the eligibility range.

The proposed reduction is nearly double the cut in the GOP budget blueprint passed in June, Democrats said. They said it was essential to maintain the tax credit at a time of increased emphasis on encouraging work and discouraging

Bombing trial moved to Lawton

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) -Lawyers for the two Oklahoma bombing suspects lost their bid to move the trial out of state and replace the assigned judge.

U.S. District Judge Wayne Alley on Thursday ordered the trial moved to Lawton, about 90 miles from Oklahoma City, near the Texas state line. Former Army buddies Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols will go on trial May 17, the judge McVeigh's lawyer, Stephen Jones, said he was "deeply disturbed" by the judge's decision and may appeal. Nichols' lawyer, Michael Tigar, said he would appeal the ruling.

"No forum in Oklahoma appears to us to guarantee the kind of trial that the Constitution requires and the American people demand," Tigar said. U.S. Attorney Patrick Ryan was out of the office and could not be reached for comment. Prosecutors wanted to keep the case in Oklahoma but were not against moving it out of Oklahoma City.

Alley said he chose to move the trial partly because the federal courthouse in Oklahoma City was across the street from the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

Lawton, he said, "is close enough to be convenient for local witnesses and for affected persons who want to be spectators. It is far enough to provide a trial setting appropriate for detached and dispassionate deliberation."

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Rebel Serbs agreed to let U.N. aid flights land in Sarajevo today for the first time in five months and to open a land route into the besieged city under a pact wrested by NATO airstrikes.

Thursday's accord, which requires the Serbs to pull back heavy guns menacing Sarajevo, won the rebels a three-day reprieve from NATO bombing and gave new impetus to a U.S. plan to end 40 months of war.

The chief U.N. envoy to the region, Yasushi Akashi, said the pullback was to begin today. Other U.N. sources said most of the guns were to be outside the Sarajevo area within three days and that all were to be gone within six days.

The skies over Sarajevo were overcast and quiet this morning, with no sign of NATO planes.

The accord was reached after two weeks of NATO airstrikes and U.N. artillery attacks punishing the Serbs for a mortar attack on a Sarajevo marketplace that killed 38 people.

Rebel sources speaking in Pale, the Bosnian Serb stronghold southeast of Sarajevo, said the commitment to reopen the airport was made by Gen. Dragomir Milosevic, commander of Bosnian Serb forces around the city. The rebels and U.N. officials in Sarajevo said the first U.N. relief plane was scheduled to land around 3 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT).

Rwandan brutality denounced

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) - U.N. human rights monitors say the Rwandan army carried out "systematic and brutal" killings of civilians during a search operation that left 110 villagers dead. The statement Thursday night was the strongest in a year by the United Nations on the subject of Tutsi retribution against the Hutus, the ethnic group blamed for last year's genocide of an estimated half million Tutsis and some moderate Hutus. The army continues to maintain that many of the victims of the Monday night and Tuesday morning massacre were killed by Hutu extremists from refugee camps in neighboring Zaire.

"Their purpose is to discredit the government and create instability or the impression of instability in the region," Army spokesman Wilson Rutayisire said this morning.

The United Nations took a much softer stand earlier this year when hundreds were killed by Tutsi soldiers.

Debris litters the exterior of a destroyed building in the Bosnian Serb army complex which was destroyed by NATO bombings Wednesday in the Bosnian Serb-held Sarajevo suburb of Lukavica, southeast of Sarajevo, Friday. After two weeks of NATO air raids on their positions, Serb forces have agreed to pull back all heavy weapons from the exclusion zone around Sarajevo.

by threats and attacks on U.N. planes.

Milosevic also agreed to permit "unimpeded access" on a route leading from the airport through the Serb-held suburb of Ilidza and on to Kiseljak, controlled by Bosnian Croats allied with the Muslim-led Bosnian government.

The Serbs have not permitted the United Nations regular access in and out of Sarajevo for months, forcing them to use the risky road over Mount Igman at the risk of Serb attack.

Under the agreement, two roads are to be reopened to the United Nations and humanitarian agencies, easing the Serb stranglehold on the city.

The accord was brokered by U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke, who met the agreement.

The airport was shut in April with President Alija Izetbegovic in the western city of Mostar today before leaving for Geneva for meetings with European diplomats.

The talks come at a critical juncture in the international community's efforts to end 40 months of war in Bosnia. The NATO raids helped to produce an accord last week among Bosnia's warring parties over a possible future political arrangement.

Even a temporary agreement on Sarajevo could be a big boost to the peace process, giving officials a chance to work out a more permanent arrangement for the disputed Bosnian capital as part of an overall peace plan. Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and military commander Gen. Ratko Mladic signed

Women's conference ends with pledges for change

BEIJING (AP) — Declaring sure to have sex. that "women are waking up, conferees today were ending the world's biggest women's gathering with pledges to push for change in mud-hut villages and corporate boardrooms alike.

"There isn't a single country in the world — not one — where men and women enjoy equal opportunities," Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland told delegates to the Fourth World Conference on Women in a rousing closing speech. "We now need a tidal change.'

Before moving to adjourn, the 5,000 delegates from 189 countries adopted by consensus their conference platform, which was hotly debated into the predawn hours.

Some countries lodged formal objections to various parts of the platform, which is non-binding but meant to serve as a guide to governments.

The 150-page platform contains hard-hitting sections advocating sexual freedom and denouncing violence against women. Negotiators said they hoped those provisions could be used to fight abuses like trafficking in women, genital mutilation of girls, and even pres-

Lesbian rights — championed by the United States and some European countries, denounced by the Vatican and many Islamic nations — were dropped from the final draft. But lesbian activists said they were happy the question had been debated for the first time at the U.N. level.

"We feel at this point actually quite exhilarated," said Nicola McIntyre of San Francisco. "We feel the lesbian movement has gotten a shot in the arm."

Amid the closing-day pomp, some organizers spoke of fears of a conservative backlash over the conference's outcome.

"Many of these issues reproductive health, sexuality were so heated and so controversial, there is a sign of conservative reaction — worrying about liberating women too much," said Patricia Licuanan of the Philippines, the head of the conference's main committee and of the U.N. Commission on the Status of Women.

"Some people are getting scared about too much change too fast," she said.

The platform describes the family as the basic unit of society and urges that it be strengthened, protected and supported. But conservatives criticized inclusion of the phrase, "various forms of the family exist," calling it an implied blessing of homosexual unions, single parents, people living together and out-of-wedlock children. "The document ... seeks to destroy the family, totally ignores marriage, minimizes the importance of motherhood," said Christine Vollmer of the World Organization for the Family, based in Washington, D.C.

Despite the divisions, Licuanan hailed the conference as a show of determination and unity on the overriding goal of improving the lives of women everywhere.

"It shows women are waking up and are concerned about issues they used to take for granted," she said.

Now, delegates were told, concrete steps are needed to make the conference goals a reality.

In a closing speech, World Bank President James Wolfensohn pledged about $900 million a year for girls' education, saying that will ultimately strengthen the role of women in world leadership.

Wide receiver Marc Baker, one of Crenshaw's favorite targets, is even more direct.

"He's been a quarterback for a long time," Baker said. "He knows how to read coverages and he's not scared to run with the ball either. I guess he just knows what he's doing back there.

For his part, Crenshaw is polite when answering questions about his height. After all, he's heard them before.

"Everybody always said I'd never be big enough to play quarterback," Crenshaw said.

"But as long as you work at it, the coaches let you kind of do the things you need to do ... My linemen believed in me, and I believed in them. according to Don King, who said the decision to put Mike Tyson's next fight on free television was divine intervention. King and Tyson were aboard a Concorde flight, considering Tyson's Nov. 4 pay-per-view bout with the overmatched Buster Mathis Jr., when the promoter was suddenly moved to call media mogul Rupert Murdoch and get the fight on the Fox network.

"We were flying up there at 35,000 feet, no telephones ringing, and the spirit just came upon us," King said Thursday, too late for folks who paid $49.95 for the 89-second Peter McNeeley fiasco, but perfectly timed to deplete the pay-perview audience for the Riddick Bowe-Evander Holyfield fight that same night.

The fight card for Nov. 4 now includes three bouts: Tyson vs. Mathis on Fox, Bowe vs. Holyfield on cable, and the night's real grudge match -Showtime vs. Time Warner

Time Warner is airing the Bowe-Holyfield rubber match at $39.95. Showtime, which has exclusive rights to Tyson's fights, abandoned pay-per-view plans for the Mathis fight and

The switch comes one fight - the move to Fox was not aimed but an investment" in Tyson's at hurting Time Warner, his long-time nemesis. "I have no desire to get into a spitting match," the spiky-haired spin doctor said. Fox officials would not comment on how much they paid for the bout, but said they expected to break even.

Seth Abraham, president and CEO of Time Warner Sports, was also closed-mouthed. "We will respond at the appropriate time." he said in a cryptic statement.

Tyson made $25 million for the McNeeley fight, and will probably make less against Mathis without a contribution from the rich pay-per-view pool. King said the decision But promoter King insisted was "not a (financial) sacrifice, future popularity

The promoter repeatedly said this was Tyson's attempt to give something back to the public, although he emphatically denied the McNeeley fight was a ripoff.

"No," he replied in disbelief at the mere suggestion.

The stunning announcement was the latest blow in a feud that started when Tyson finished serving his three-year rape sentence on March 25. Tyson chose King and Showtime over Time Warner after leaving prison, and the bad feelings escalated until both sides announced plans for competing cards on Nov 4

Coahoma concerts continue Saturday

COAHOMA - "If you like Peter, Paul and Mary, you'll love Rex Foster," Walter Lee says.

Foster, from Comfort, performs Saturday night in the Coahoma Community Concert broke up. As a single artist, Foster was part of the famous Medicine Ball caravan, ending up at the Isle of Wight concert with the likes of Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, Richie Havens, and the Moody

From there he went to France, and released his first album, "Roads of Tomorrow," which was a success in Europe but never released in the U.S.

Foster returned to the U.S. and became part of a group of people that practiced their music in Luckenbach. Somehow, over the years, he began listening more and play-

During these years, Foster developed his skill at making jewelry from natural objects like bone, claws and teeth to a high degree.

His finely made pieces are very visible on artists like Johnny Cash, Roseanne Cash, Emmy Lou Harris, Jerry Jeff Walker, and Gary P. Nunn.

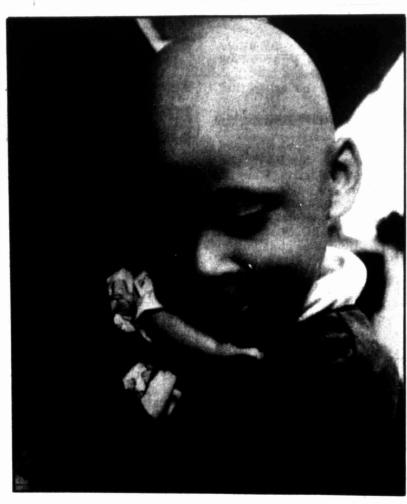

He plans to have some of the jewelry with him Saturday evening.

In 1991, Foster finally released a new album, "Artist," and did it again in 1994 with "Believin'." That work, and getting back on the road again, have brought him new popularity and new listeners.

He will perform Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church social hall at 209 N. First in

The suggested donation is $6 per person or $15 per family, and all proceeds go directly to the artist. For more information, please call 394-4450.

Youth director loves hectic schedule

By JANET AUSBURY

Features Editor

Pam Morgan's new job requires her to take work home and spend her weekends on office tasks. And she wouldn't have it any other way.

Morgan is the new youth director at First Presbyterian Church, replacing Betsy Hankins. She took the job at the beginning of September and has hardly had time to catch her breath since. The fast pace suits her fine, however. "It's a fulfilling, fun, rewarding position," she said. "I worked closely last year with Betsy, so I knew what she was doing, what she was working

Morgan wants to build on programs started by Hankins; for instance, she would like to emphasize the mission aspect of youth social fellowships at the church.

The church youth, who get to select most of their projects, are also considering working with Christmas in April and joining with the Presbyterian churches in Dallas-Fort Worth to work in soup kitchens. If possible, the youth would like to open a soup kitchen at First Presbyterian Church.

Another project Morgan wants to start is a children's choir. She'd like to have a choir in place by Oct. 1 so they will have time to work on a Christmas program.

Pam Morgan has a full calendar as the new youth director for First Presbyterian Church. Her planned projects include a children's choir.

She's even planning to imple ment a new adult Sunday school class, for young adults and the middle-aged. A little closer on the calendar, this Sunday will have the first official school program for the 1995-96 Sunday school year, which runs through June 1.

Sunday school is something

Morgan knows quite a bit about. She has been active in the church for eight years and has taught Sunday school and vacation Bible school, as well as belonging to the Christian education committee.

"I grew up in a church with a good Christian education program," she said. She would like to provide a similar education for the children who attend First Presbyterian Church.

Morgan is aided by five volunteer youth counselors who work closely with the youth groups themselves. Other church members also make themselves available whenever they are needed.

"I have a lot of great volunteers," she said. "All I have to do is ask and someone's here to help."

Morgan has a few long-term projects in mind. She would like to see the youth groups become involved with missions to foreign countries, and would like to put together a more structured program of Christian activities for nursery school-aged children.

For now, her calendar's full with the other projects she has planned. Even if her calendar's full, there's always more room at the church. "We're a small but very active and dedicated church. We'd love for people to come," she said.

Seniors season crew of restored 19th-century Lake Erie warship

By MICHAEL HADDIGAN

Associated Press Writer

ERIE, Pa. (AP) - The brig Niagara was a soggy, rotting hulk when crews raised Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry's flagship from the Lake Erie mud in 1913.

Louis Hannah of Girard, then 4 years old, watched the salvage work with his mother from the shore of Misery Bay.

"It was just a pile of junk," he said of the ship.

Now Hannah is 86. And restorations have made the old ship young again. The ship that saw battle in the War of 1812 is a "living" museum of 19th century on the lake.

Hannah is part of the ship's company each time the ship sails into history.

A crew member aboard the 200-foot restored wooden sailing ship since 1991, Hannah is one of a handful of old salts who

season the crew of 40, said volunteer coordinator Patrick

'It adds some leaven to the mix," said Claxton, 67. "We need the young animals to get up and wrestle with the sails and do the grunt work. But the older people bring their knowledge aboard.'

The twin-masted ship's crew, with 16 professional sailors and 24 volunteers, includes several At dockside in Erie and during calls in Great Lakes ports. crew members carry out maintenance to keep the ship in Hannah said he and the other volunteers spend four hours sanding, varnishing and painting for every hour they sail. "They won't let me climb the rigging," he said. "It's not that I'm afraid, they just won't let me up there.'

Please see SALTS, page 3B

Peggy Stow, 82, works aboard the brig Niagara in Erie, Pa. Stow is one of the oldest volunteer members of the crew who work on and around the restored ship during the sailing season.

Medicine, faith may ease woman's depression

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I should be happy because I have a fine husband and two children I love very much, but instead I am getting more and more depressed. Some days I can't even get out of bed.

Have you talked frankly with your doctor about your depression? I would suggest you make this your first step.

The reason is because depression can be caused by many different things -- including physical problems of chemical imbalances in the brain that Claxton said the older crew members contribute just as much below as they would aloft. They often act as guides, telling the Niagara's tale.

"I'd like to think the older people are a little better at that since they know more, and they have a little more patience with people," he said.

The original Niagara was part of a fleet of six vessels built for the U.S. Navy.

On Sept. 10, 1813, Perry engaged British ships near Put In Bay Ohio, in the Battle of Erie. Perry transferred to the Niagara to continue fighting after the flagship Lawrence was disabled.

Perry forced a British surrender, reporting to his superiors from the Niagara, "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

The Navy purposely sank the ship in 1820. By the time salvage work began almost a century later, there wasn't much Erie residents restored the ship for the 1913 anniversary of the battle. And the state began a major, restoration in 1931.

By the 1980s, the Niagara was again deteriorating. Using some of the original 1813 timbers, restorers went to work again. The third incarnation of the Niagara was commissioned

"It's an exact copy of the original," said Peggy Stow, 80.

Born in Manchester, England, Mrs. Stow met her late husband during World War II. She settled with him near Erie in 1947, and the two sailed the lake for decades in their 35foot boat

"I was green when I started sailing. I've since learned all the tricks of the trade," she

Like the rest of the crew, Mrs. Stow takes her turn in the galley, stands watch as a lookout, keeps the log, swabs decks and participates in man-overboard and lifeboat drills.

"She's quite a girl," Claxton said of Mrs. Stow. "She's willing to do everything she's able to do. About the only thing she can't do is chimb the figging."

Navigating the five miles of tricky ropes aloft isn't the only dangerous duty. Hard weather on the lake makes it hazardous for everyone aboard.

"Lake Erie is shallow and it gets rough real fast," said Hannah.

Mrs. Stow recalls a difficult night on watch/when a violent storm rocked the ship and brought lightning flashes dangerously close to the ship's 100foot masts.

"I thought one of the masts would be struck at any time," she said.

The senior swab said she's undaunted and not about to give up on her life afloat.

"It's going to come to a halt someday, but until it does, I'm going to really live it," Mrs. Stow said.

The venture's objective is to provide more convenient accessible parking for both the VA Medical Center and the GEFCU. The joint public/private venture between the VA Medical Center and GEFCU includes the construction of a parking lot on VA property by GEFCU for the use of GEFCU in exchange for existing parking presently owned by GEFCU that is readily accessible to the VA. for GEFCU members.

College Park Church of God

Welcome to Homecoming, 10 a.m. Sept. 16-17.

During 1929, George and Claude Asher, by the direction of a tent revival, sparked the interest to begin what is now known as the College Park Church of God, located at 603 Tulane. In 1930, under the supervision of the Reverend Campbell, the body of believers met in the George Ealy home at Fourth and Johnson.

In 1931 property was purchased at 12th and Young streets by Paul Abbot, a member of the church. Under the ministry of Reverend B. A. Ratchford, the body of believers grew. Property was purchased at the corner of Fourth and Galveston in 1935.

The current pastor, Reverend O.D. Robertson, came to this pastoriate July 4, 1969. Under his leadership during the next four years, the church grew so much that another change of location was necessary

The current location was then purchased in May 1972 The church is developing plans for further enlargement of its accommodations.

SMUGGLERS OF THE WORD!

ONE WOULD THINK THE BIBLE WOULD BE WELCOME IN ANY PLACE ON EARTH-BUT THIS WAS NOT THE CASE! NOR COULD ONE OPENLY BUY A BIBLE IN MANY COUNTRIES! IN RUBSIA-WAS ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE, IN EAST GERMANY, CHANCES WERE SLIM! BULGARIA? NO! HUNGARY, CZECHOSLOVAKIA, VERY DIFFICULT -AND IN ALBANIA IT WAS AN OUT-AND-OUT CRIME!

NO WONDER THEN THAT FORTY ORGANIZATIONS CONSTANTLY SAUGGLED BIBLES INTO IRON-CURTAIN COUNTRIES, TRAINED TO HANDLE THIS EXTRAORDINARY VENTURE, PROFESSIONALS AND SKILLED AMATEURS CROSSED BORDERS IN VEHICLES SUCH AS THE VOLKSWAG ON "BUG" WITH BUILT IN SECRET COMPARTMENTS SOMETIMES HOLDING AS MANY AS 500 POCKET SIZE BIBLES. IF CAUGHT. THE BIBLES WERE CONFISCATED AND THE PER-SON REFUSED ENTRY INTO THE COUNTRY - BUT SOME WERE NOT SO WCKY-THE LONGEST PRISON TERM WAS - 3% YEARS IN CZECHO SLOVAKIA!

BUT DESPITE ALL THIS, THE WORK WENT ON SO THAT ...
