Council votes to close 10th Street

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

A crowd of about 350, including students, watched as the Big Spring City Council voted 5-2 to close 10th Street.

The vote reversed a July decision against closing a portion of the street in order to build a multi-purpose athletic facility.

Passionate arguments and feelings concerning the closing of a portion of 10th Street dominated Tuesday's council meeting.

Councilmen Chuck Cawthon and Tom Guess were opposed to the closing.

Cawthon said, "I'm 120 percent behind the sports complex, but I feel like we can put the facility somewhere else."

Big Spring Independent School District Dan Wise was one of 13 people to address the council in support of closing the one-block section of 10th Street in question.

"I'm here to make a formal request to close a one block section of south 10th Street between Owens and State," Wise said.

Wise added 600 signatures had been submitted to the council in support of the street closing.

"I'd like to ask the council to be futuristic and consider what will benefit the greatest number of people," he added.

The question was raised about an alternate location for the athletic complex, such as the old Furr's building on 11th Place.

Russ McEwen, chairman of the ad hoc athletic committee, said the building was considered, but the 10th Street location was found to be the most logical choice.

"Eleventh Place has more traffic flow than 10th Street," he added. "And building on 10th Street would be the least disruptive to the Big Spring High School campus, the security of the kids had to be considered, and it would add continuity to the campus."

One of the five speakers opposed to the closing of the street was Frances Ferguson, who said she had a real concern about students crossing the street to use the facility.

More than 350 people were on hand at the Municipal Auditorium Tuesday for the Big Spring City Council meeting. The main issue of the meeting was the proposed closing of 10th Street which the council voted to close.

Get a trim and help support breast cancer research

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Snip, snip, clip, clip. That is the sound of scissors cutting hair and clipping away at finding the cure for breast cancer.

The fifth annual "Clip for the Cure" is scheduled for Oct. 7 at Regis Hairstylists in the Big Spring Mall.

Stylists will offer shoppers $10 haircuts and the proceeds will benefit the Regis Foundation for Breast Cancer Research.

In the last four years, salons all over the country have raised more than $1 million with the local shop raising $650 last year. Hairstylist Janet Carr said the Big Spring shop raised the most money of any salon in this area.

Manager Sandra Johnson said, "The purpose of 'Clip for the Cure' is to increase breast cancer awareness and raise money for research programs. Our stylists are truly committed to this event because breast cancer affects so many women and the majority of our clients and co-workers are women."

Carr added there will be two or three chairs set up in the court area in front of the salon from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. with all six stylists helping on two-hour shifts.

"We aren't taking appointments for this, but if you want a certain stylist, then call up and see when they will be out on the court so you can have them cut your hair."

"Between Oct. 1 and Oct. 14, we will also donate 10 percent of all Regis product sales to breast cancer research," Carr said.

A church group will be at the mall that day to sing along with face painting and balloons for the children. Several mall and area merchants have donated items to be given away as door prizes including dinner for two, perfume, picture frames and a silver pin.

The Regis Foundation for Breast Cancer Research was established in 1993 and money can now be distributed on an international basis.

The money has gone to such places as the Susan G. Komen

Crooker to join board

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The mayoral veto of a Moore Board nomination was overridden Tuesday night.

The same vote which put Joyce Crooker on the board also overrode the veto 4-3.

City Council members stuck to their original votes from two weeks ago with Stephanie Horton, Pat DeAnda, Chuck Cawthon and Tom Guess in favor of Crooker's nomination.

Councilman Jimmy Campbell made the motion to uphold Blackshear's veto when council members returned from an hour-long executive session on the matter. He was seconded by John Paul Anderson, but the motion received only one other vote from Blackshear.

DeAnda made a second motion asking the council to override the veto and received the votes needed to seat Crooker as a Moore Board director.

Horton stuck to her previous praise of Crooker and said she believes Crooker is qualified to sit on the board and can do the job.

"Joyce is for change in how we spend our money," Horton said. "We need to have a different approach in how we do things. I feel strongly that in the near future we will see the positive effects that Joyce's appointment will have on the overall community."

Fill a bag with stuff and help the Humane Society feed the animals

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Grab a bag and go shopping this weekend at the Big Spring Humane Society's rummage sale.

The building at West Fourth and Galveston streets has been sold and shelter officials must get rid of all the items soon. Shelter volunteer Margaret Lloyd said they will offer "all you can carry" bags at low prices such as $1 or $5.

The sale is scheduled for Saturday 10 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sunday 1-5 p.m. Lloyd added it will run again the following weekend as well.

There are clothes, dishes, furniture, household items as well as "stuff ranging from junk to nice things."

"The money we raise helps to buy dog and cat food and medicine," Lloyd said.

She added the shelter is currently running a special price on pet adoptions. Any dog can be bought for $22.50 and cats are $17.50. This is half price and Lloyd said they are offering this because the shelter is too crowded for the animals to live in a healthy environment.

"It is not humane to take in any more animals at this point because the dogs that are there right now are fighting and not letting each other eat," Lloyd added.

The cost includes worming, vaccinations, rabies shot and either spaying or neutering. A person can also take home an animal for free on a trial basis to see if they want to adopt it.

There are currently 265 dogs and at least 70 cats at the shelter in need of a good home. The shelter is open Monday through Friday 4-6 p.m. and on Sundays

Enterprise zone could create more jobs in the city, county

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

A new enterprise zone project could create more jobs for Big Spring and Howard County by luring business and industry to the area.

A public hearing during Monday's Howard County Commissioners meeting and at Tuesday's City Council meeting concerned the adoption of three resolutions to nominate three areas of the county as state-designated enterprise zones and to designate reinvestment zones.

Business Development Center Director Danette Toone said the idea is to enhance businesses in the proposed zones, but the project would not cost the county or city any money.

State law allows four projects within a zone, which is one of the goals for the three proposed zones, she added.

County commissioners unanimously approved the proposals. Further investigation into the zones will be needed to see how the county will benefit and if incentives can be offered.

The council considered the proposals on an emergency reading and voted 5-2 in favor of the enterprise zones, but Council members Stephanie Horton and Pat DeAnda were opposed and to pass on emergency reading a council vote must be unanimous.

Horton and DeAnda expressed an interest in sitting down with Toone to further study the project.

The issue will appear as a second reading at the council's next meeting.

As an incentive for an enterprise zone project, the city gives projects a 5 percent reduction in its development fee.

Restrictions on companies trying to qualify as an enterprise zone project will depend on the business itself.

Incentives to be offered within the proposed zones can include sales tax rebates and utility discounts.

TU Electric customers that qualify as enterprise zone projects receive a 5 percent discount from TU Electric.

Sales tax rebates may be up to $2,000 per employee hired in the enterprise zone.

Toone said, "To receive the sales tax rebate, at least 25 percent of the employees hired must live in the proposed zone."

She added the Texas Department of Commerce actually determines the enterprise zones after looking at what's been approved.

Toone said TDC will look at its next group of projects on Dec. 1.

Enterprise zone projects are valid for five years and to become a project a company or business must have at least $100,000 to invest in either expansion, new equipment or facilities and hire at least five new employees.

Each zone may be up to 20 square miles and at least 20 percent of the area must be at poverty level.

Howard County is 900 square miles and is 20 percent of the county is at poverty level.

Toone said, "Technically, the entire county could be an enterprise zone."

She told the council the enterprise zones would enhance the entire community and broaden the doors for economic development.

10th

"Eleventh Place is so congested," Ferguson said. "You can still drive down 10th Street and not worry about kids running out in front of you."

She added, "Being a nurse, I'm also concerned about ambulance response times if the street is closed. I live on Stadium and there are a lot of older people who live around us, if we have to, let's build a crosswalk."

Athletic committee member Steve Fraser responded to Ferguson's idea of building a crosswalk saying because of Americans with Disabilities Act requirements, it would cost approximately $200,000 to build a crosswalk.

W.S. Morrison also opposed the closing of 10th street, saying it is a very necessary way for a lot of people in the area to get where they need to go in a hurry.

The point made by Jim Clements was the issue is about cars and not wheelchairs.

He said, "For this to be a convenience issue I don't have much sympathy. We're driving cars. Many people don't stop at crosswalks now."

Clements said the facility should be built in close proximity to the high school.

Kenneth Wilson, new to Big Spring, voiced his support in favor of closing the street, receiving an ovation for his comments.

Wilson said, "If we don't look out for our kids now, we may have to look out for them some other way. This city will belong to these kids one day."

The council heard everyone who had an opinion on the 10th Street issue and then Mayor Tim Blackshear asked for a show of hands of those in favor of the closing and then those who opposed it.

The show of hands in favor of the closing was approximately 15 to 1.

Councilwoman Pat DeAnda addressed the audience, comparing the issue to Gregg Street being widened a few years ago.

"As an educator I would like to have seen money go towards education, but this money was a gift for the purpose of an athletic facility," DeAnda said.

"I think this will be something the city will be very proud of and it will also enhance our athletic program."

Blackshear said he was pleased with the turnout for the public hearing because many times the council is criticized for going into a public hearing and not getting answers to important questions.

He added, "I think all of the questions about this issue have been addressed here tonight."

Blackshear said, after the vote was taken, "I have received more calls about this issue than anything else. I think people know how strongly I felt about this."

After learning of the council's decision, Crooker said, "I'm going to try to be an excellent board member."

As for the controversy surrounding her nomination, she said, "If I'm going to be a good representative on the Moore Board, I'm going to have to forgive and forget."

Crooker said her principal interest in serving is it is tax money being spent which belongs to the citizens and should be spent in the most economical way.

The Moore Board operates on an annual budget of about $900,000.

Crooker's first function as a member of the board will be the board's annual meeting on Oct. 4.

Millions of fish wash onto Laguna Madre

PORT ISABEL (AP) — Sixteen million fish have washed ashore the lower Laguna Madre, possibly due to last weekend's cold front that set record lows in the Rio Grande Valley, a state wildlife official says.

The fish — all the Gulf Menhaden species — were spotted by residents beginning Saturday along the shoreline north of Port Isabel, said Randy Blankinship, of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Coastal Fisheries Division.

Dead fish still were drifting ashore on Tuesday, Blankinship said.

Marine scientists are testing water samples to try to determine the cause of the kill. One possibility is last week's cold weather, which on Friday dipped temperatures to a record-low 55 degrees.

"Menhaden are very susceptible to change in temperature," Blankinship said. "If it were caused by toxins, you would see other species that would have been affected."

But Tony Reisinger, marine extension agent for Cameron County, said it's more likely that red tide is to blame. Red tide organisms kill fish by depleting their oxygen and producing deadly toxins.

Red tide usually is found off the coast of Florida, but a small amount has been discovered in the Laguna Madre, said Don Hockaday, director of the University of Texas-Pan American coastal studies laboratory.

"We have found red tide organisms at a low concentration. It may be related to the recent rains; it may be very transient," Hockaday said.

The discovery has prompted the state Health Department to issue a warning on eating oysters, clams and mussels harvested from Port Mansfield south to the Rio Grande, Blankinship said. Commercial shellfish harvesting in that area has been halted for testing.

Oldest WWI veteran dies at age 107

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A.I. Stevens, the oldest World War I soldier in Texas and possibly the nation, is dead at 107.

Stevens, honored in April at Randolph AFB when he was 106 as the oldest World War I veteran living in the San Antonio area, was having trouble swallowing when he entered Metropolitan Hospital on Wednesday of last week.

He died peacefully Thursday, said his son, retired Marine Staff Sgt. Charles Stevens of San Antonio.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday at East St. Paul United Methodist Church.

Stevens was a rural schoolteacher taking summer classes when he was drafted June 18, 1918, his son said.

One of 140,000 blacks who served in segregated units in WWI, Stevens recalled mustard gas drifting over his supply unit in the 805th Pioneer Infantry and being "bombed a couple times," his son said.

But he said the worst thing he recalled going through went through was the train ride in a packed boxcar from Brest, France, to near the Argonne Forest.

DESTINATION: CHILE

Ag department campaigning for more trade and investment

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Texas Agriculture Department in January launched a campaign to initiate more trade and investment abroad. Nine months later: Destination, Chile.

Agriculture Secretary Rick Perry and about one dozen business leaders visited Chile from Sept. 5-9 in an effort to reach more Latin American customers.

"We have to," said Pat Helton, director of the International Trade Center at Texas Tech University. "Our markets are not stagnant, but they're not growing as fast as some of the international markets."

Helton joined a delegation that included a rancher, university researchers and representatives from the Texas Farm Bureau, a sorghum company and the Port of Corpus Christi.

Texans set up a booth at an "Expo Agro" trade show and made contacts with buyers and officials in Chile.

Doug Perkins, vice president for exports with the Texas Beef Council, said Chile currently does not import the state's beef because of grading differences.

But last week the meat manager for a Chilean grocery chain toured an Amarillo packing plant and feed yard. And two Chilean government officials went to College Station, Plainview and Dallas to learn more about U.S. food safety inspections, Perkins said.

Some see that as a payoff already from the Texans' trip. "We're optimistic in the long term," said Amarillo rancher C. Coney Burgess. "We knew going down there on the first trip there would not be any quick benefits that beef would probably receive."

Jorge Garces, coordinator of Latin American marketing for the state agriculture department in Austin, said Chile's stable economy makes it a candidate for partnership with the United States, Mexico and Canada in the North American Free Trade Agreement.

If Texas businesses can gain a foothold in Chile, he said, they could reach Argentina and Brazil next.

"They're very excited about having people from Texas coming over to talk about business," Garces said.

Exports from Texas to Chile last year amounted to $300 million, mostly in chemicals, industrial machinery and agriculture, Garces said.

Others see room in the Chilean markets for irrigation equipment or crops harvested during North America's opposite growing season.

Luis Winter, counsel general of Chile in Houston, said the trade mission helped acquaint two potential economic partners. It also corrected some stereotypes about the Lone Star State, he said.

"There is a vision or perception of Texas as the movies," Winter said. "People really think Texas is a very important state with oil, and that is all."

Relatives approved to watch executions

AUSTIN (AP) — Relatives will be able to witness the execution of a loved one's killer beginning no later than February now that the attorney general has cleared the way for the practice, according to a prison agency spokesman.

Prison officials will adopt a formal rule and work with victims' groups on "how this would physically be done" in the wake of the decision announced Tuesday by state Attorney General Dan Morales, said Texas Department of Criminal Justice spokesman Glen Castlebury.

Earlier this month, after hearing from victims' family members, the Board of Criminal Justice unanimously endorsed allowing relatives to view the executions of their loved ones' murderers.

The policy, which was adopted contingent on Morales' OK, allows up to five members of a murder victim's family to witness an execution. The witnesses must be at least 18 years old.

Currently, witnesses allowed in the death chamber's observation room include up to five people chosen by the person condemned to lethal injection, such as family members or a lawyer; five media representatives; and an unspecified number of state witnesses.

The new policy reverses a 1985 board prohibition on families of victims viewing executions, which had stemmed from concern about potential confrontations between the murderer's and victim's families.

To curb that possibility, prison officials have said they plan to expand the death chamber viewing room and build a partition to separate the killer's witnesses from the victim's family.

Parolee held in multiple murder

FLORESVILLE (AP) — A parolee who has been charged with four counts of capital murder, including the slaying of his mother, remained jailed today without bond, Wilson County Sheriff Joe D. Tackitt Jr. said.

Dennis Bagwell, 32, who was on parole from Hidalgo County for attempted capital murder, was being held in the neighboring Atascosa County Jail. He was put in the larger, more secure facility for his own protection, officials said.

Bagwell's mother, Leona McBee, 47, and three other people were found dead Sept. 20 in a mobile home near Stockdale in Wilson County. Also killed were Ms. McBee's niece, Libby Best, 24; Ms. Best's daughter, Reba, 4; and Tassy Boone, 14.

District Attorney Lynn Ellison said Ms. Best was shot twice in the head and the 4-year-old was fatally beaten with a heavy bar and spring from an exercise machine, while the other two victims "had their throats crushed" when they were strangled.

Meanwhile, Seguin police Chief Gary Hopper was in Floresville on Tuesday to question Bagwell about the Sept. 5 robbery-slaying of a 63-year-old janitor in Seguin.

The case also was being investigated as a capital murder, Hopper said.

The bodies of the four were discovered by Ronald Boone, a security officer who was returning from his overnight shift at a sausage plant in Waelder. Ms. McBee was Boone's common-law wife, and Tassy Boone was the elder Boone's granddaughter.

Money is believed to be the motive for the killings, Tackitt said.

Authorities have a statement from Bagwell's girlfriend that says he needed money and got upset because his mother didn't have any, Tackitt said.

Issues are settled with your participation

Tuesday night's Big Spring City Council meeting settled two issues: Joyce Crooker will join Moore Board and 10th Street will be closed.

Whether you believe Crooker is qualified to sit on the board is moot now.

What has to happen now is for us to give her a chance to prove her detractors wrong and show she truly belongs on Moore Board.

The goal of Moore Board is to bring more industry into Big Spring. This goal is important to the health and well-being of our community. It can mean more jobs, more people, more money being put to use in the community.

Controversy ebbs and flows. The controversy over Crooker's appointment is at an ebb now. It needs to stay there and give her and the board a chance to work.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

Also last night, about 350 of you decided to attend the council meeting. Many expressed their views on the closing of 10th Street for a new athletic complex for the school district.

After listening to your comments, the council decided by a 5-2 vote to close 10th Street.

We participated in our government, we spoke out - without fear of reprisal for having a different point of view - and a vote was taken. We may not like the outcome because it wasn't what we wanted, but the majority ruled.

That's what our country is all about.

It pays to take part in government. It keeps them on their toes when they know we are truly paying attention.

Perot says will pull plug on third party if reforms passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as he dispatches top lieutenants to California to launch his new political party, Ross Perot says he will pull the plug on the effort if Congress quickly adopts several campaign, lobbying and budget reforms.

"They could do it in a day," Perot said Tuesday of his wish list, which includes a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, a law banning gifts, free trips and meals for lawmakers, and tough new campaign finance rules that require candidates to raise their money in their home districts. "Nothing would please me more than to go back to the private sector."

But Perot, in an interview, said he saw little evidence Washington was moving ahead on that agenda, which he first outlined during the August meeting of his United We Stand America political group.

Given that, Perot said he would press ahead with plans to certify his new political party in California, Maine and Ohio, all of which have 1995 deadlines. And if Congress hasn't adopted his agenda by the end of the year, "then we will finish the job in the other states."

"If this comes into being, it will be the first party, not a third party," Perot said. "It will be the largest party in the country."

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, the early Republican presidential front-runner, sounded a bit exasperated at Perot's checklist threat.

"I just can't figure this guy out because we're doing all the things he wanted done," Dole, R-Kan., said.

Begging to differ, and to gain political advantage, Dole presidential rival Pat Buchanan said of Perot's plans: "To say you are going to start a third party suggests a vote of no confidence in Bob Dole, either in his belief in the United We Stand agenda or in his ability to carry it out."

The Dole-Buchanan tangling was just one of the countless subplots as the political establishment tried to come to grips with Perot's announcement that he would form the Independence Party, or the Reform Party in some states because of name conflicts, and nominate a presidential candidate in 1996.

Some disgruntled Perot backers seized on his leaving open the possibility of abandoning the effort as evidence Perot was more interested in grabbing some of the media spotlight than building a new party.

"He knew that United We Stand was falling apart and decided to create a new sham organization," said Ed Stanek, a former Perot loyalist involved in a power struggle for control of the Ohio chapter.

Others suggested Perot waited too long.

"What they are doing now is what they should have done three years ago, when there was still an enthusiastic organization, before it fragmented," said Bill Storm of Sacramento, a retired firefighter who was

Northern California coordinator for Perot's 1992 campaign.

Just as Democrats and Republicans tried to assess whether Perot's announcement made it more or less likely he would seek the presidency again, they also found themselves grappling with the prospect of some sort of alliance between Perot and retired Gen. Colin Powell.

Powell disclosed he had spoken to Perot about the new party effort and left open the possibility he might seek its first presidential nomination.

"Obviously it is something I would consider and he knows I would consider it," Powell said.

And on NBC's "Tonight Show" Tuesday, Powell told host Jay Leno that he had "an interesting conversation" with Perot but that Perot did not ask him to be a third-party candidate. "We'll watch all this and see how it develops. It's an interesting development in American politics," he said.

Previously, Powell had said that if he ran, he would be inclined to do so as a Republican — even though he is an awkward fit on social issues — in part because of the giant hurdles to getting on the ballot as an independent. But if Perot kept his pledge to build a new party — and didn't emerge as its nominee — many of those hurdles would be removed.

"Powell is the perfect candidate for this," said GOP pollster Frank Luntz, who advised Perot during his 1992 independent run.

Will Perot's ego get in the way?

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON TODAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ross Perot's announcement that he is forming a new political party that will field a presidential candidate in 1996 may be the ultimate ego trip. And it's one he may be flying solo.

Despite the Texas billionaire's protestations of non-candidacy, those who have worked with him and those who have followed his career see the proposed political organization as tailor-made for a second Perot presidential run.

His sizable ego may make it difficult for him to resist the urge to be at the top of the ticket.

"He wants to be anointed," said GOP pollster Frank Luntz, who was Perot's pollster in 1992. But Luntz believes Perot can't ever win the presidency. "He'll be a kingmaker or a kingbreaker, but never the king."

The candidate Perot set for the candidate of his new party, basically fealty to a Perot agenda, seem designed to scare off any other political figure of stature. At least this early in the game.

"No one like Colin Powell or Lowell Weicker or Bill Bradley is going to buy into that," said Bruce Buchanan, a University of Texas political scientist and longtime Perot watcher.

Only if Perot puts his ego in check and separates "his own quirkiness" from the new party platform can it have any chance of outliving Perot, Buchanan said.

Perot used a familiar forum — CNN's "Larry King Live" — for his Monday night announcement. Perot, who received 19 percent of the presidential vote as an independent in 1992, said he had no plans to run as the new party's candidate, but neither did he rule it out. "We want world-class people," he said. "Some weirdo is not going to get 10 percent of our votes."

It was pure Perot, and to many observers, just the latest example of his ego at work.

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., branded it a publicity stunt to draw the spotlight away from retired Army Gen. Colin Powell.

"When you see a giant like Colin Powell come on the scene, you find Perot in the shadows, not selling any books," Rangel said. "He had to do something fast and he did it. He's an actor."

Stuart Rothenberg, a Republican who publishes a political newsletter, agrees in part. "I think he was tired of seeing Colin Powell getting all the ink and all the hot stories. This is nothing new. He needed his fix of media attention and celebrity. And he also really wants to be a player."

Whatever Perot's true intentions, his announcement shook both Democrats and Republicans and sent them scurrying to figure out what a Perot candidacy — or the candidacy of a Perot-backed candidate — would do to the political landscape.

Although polls suggested that Perot in 1992 took votes away from both Republican President George Bush and Democrat Bill Clinton, they also showed that most Perot supporters in 1994 voted Republican.

"Clinton's got to be in the White House with his feet up saying, 'Perfect, this is just what I needed,'" said GOP pollster Luntz, suggesting Perot would hurt the GOP candidate the most in a three-way race.

But at the White House, the development was greeted warily. Clinton essentially brushed off questions, noting that he himself was committed to many of Perot's goals, such as a balanced budget.

Ann Lewis, deputy campaign director for Clinton-Gore '96, said, "It was inevitable we were going to see more parties and additional candidates."

As to the hypothetical impact of a Perot candidacy, or any other combination, on Clinton's re-election chances, she said: "Be careful what you wish for, you might get it. I don't engage in that kind of too-clever prophecy. I know who my candidate is."

Of course, a potential nightmare for both Democrats and Republicans would be if Perot turned his party over to Powell.

With Powell's enormous popularity and Perot's nationwide organization, such a candidacy could be a big winner. Powell taps many of the same feelings and emotions that Perot did, but without the baggage.

Powell, traveling the country promoting his book, even fueled such speculation Tuesday, telling KTLA Morning News in Los Angeles that he and Perot "talk from time to time."

"We talked over the weekend and he indicated he would be making this announcement," he said.

Right now, few political analysts expect Perot to be interested in turning his organization over to Powell, or for Powell to want to be too closely identified with the eccentric Texan.

Still, as Powell said, "I'll watch and wait and see how this initiative develops and keep my options open."

3-5 p.m. Why is the shelter so crowded?

One reason is because it is a humane shelter so the animals are not euthanized.

Another reason is because so many people get tired of an animal and bring it to the shelter.

Lloyd said a lot of people are also moving to a new place that does not allow animals so they bring the pet out to the shelter.

"Some people get a cute, fluffy puppy and when it gets into its adolescent stage, they don't want it anymore. During this stage before they mature, the dog may still be chewing on things so people just give them away."

The National Council on Pet Population Study and Policy is currently conducting a study to see what causes the breakdown in the human-animal bond.

Dr. Mo Salman of the Colorado State University Veterinary School is coordinating the study. He hears stories about people who work all day then come home to a dog wanting attention but the person is too tired to play with it so they get rid of the pet.

Other reasons have included the student who gets an animal at the beginning of the school year but gets rid of it at Christmas break or the puppy gets too big for the apartment or yard.

The study is funded by 10 groups including the American Animal Hospital Association, American Humane Association, American Kennel Club, American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The study is expected to cost $200,000 and be completed in March 1996 with results available by July.

It is designed to collect infor-

Long awaited cable bridge finally open for business

BAYTOWN (AP) — Mayor Pete Alfaro called today's ribbon-cutting ceremony for the long-awaited Fred Hartman Bridge a "once-in-a-lifetime event."

"It will finally open up our part of the county to the rest of the world," Alfaro said. "We've been fairly isolated."

Gov. George W. Bush and other dignitaries were expected for the unveiling of the largest cable-span bridge in the United States. The two miles of concrete and steel offer eight lanes of relief to frustrated motorists.

Until now, ferry boats and a congested, leaky, two-lane tunnel were all that linked Baytown with La Porte and the rest of greater Houston.

Although the bridge opens Saturday, workers will be putting finishing touches on it for the next two months. Also remaining is construction on an overpass linking Texas 225 to the bridge. That project could take two more years.

The bridge, towering 40 stories over the Houston Ship Channel, is named after Fred Hartman, the late Baytown Sun publisher who promoted construction of the tunnel four decades ago and began a campaign for the bridge in the late 1970s.

Hartman died in 1991 at 83.

The bridge's $95 million price tag ranks it among the most expensive state-sponsored projects ever undertaken in Texas, second only to the $105 million expansion of Central Expressway in Dallas.

It became one of the state's most controversial projects as construction delays mounted.

Steps toward reform taken on Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate Republican proposal to cut $13.4 billion from crop subsidies and other farm spending would keep the special program for cotton and rice farmers basically intact, but make payments on fewer acres.

Less drastic an overhaul than one being considered in the House Agriculture Committee, the measure nonetheless takes a step toward reform by giving corn and wheat growers more freedom to plant what they like. It also eliminates mandatory acreage idling, which critics say has hindered production at a time of expanding overseas markets.

"This is the type of compromise that comes about after a great deal of agonizing by both senators and staff," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, after Republicans met behind closed doors.

The Senate committee, like its House counterpart, faced a regional split, with Southern lawmakers wanting to protect cotton, rice and peanut growers.

Both committees must come up with $13.4 billion in cuts over seven years, a 17 percent reduction in projected spending for crop and export subsidies, crop insurance and conservation programs that take wetlands and erodible land out of production.

The Senate panel was planning to meet today to consider the proposal as part of a Republican effort to balance the budget by 2002.

Even with the agreement, the votes of all 10 Republicans on the Senate side were not assured. All eight Democrats are opposed.

Freshman Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., says he may vote against the measure, especially if the sugar and peanut programs aren't changed.

Both programs limit production and imports to support the prices of those commodities.

Under the Republican proposal, corn and wheat growers would be able to switch to other crops without losing the chance to keep receiving government deficiency payments based on past production of one of their crops.

Cotton and rice growers would continue to have their lucrative programs, including special crop loans that subsidize the prices of cotton and rice sold overseas. Cotton and rice growers would lose their deficiency payments if they switched to other crops.

However, acreage excluded from subsidies would be raised from 15 percent to 30 percent for all crops. Spending on deficiency payments would be capped at the amount projected now by the Congressional Budget Office. Those payments are expected to decline.

In the House side, Agriculture Committee Chairman Pat Roberts, R-Kan., was still trying to win over two of the four cotton-state Republicans who last week kept his "Freedom to Farm" bill from being approved. Republican members planned to meet today.

The Roberts proposal, endorsed by House Republican leaders, would cut the link between government payments and crop prices or production. Farmers would get a fixed but declining payment to ease their transition away from both government support and regulation of agriculture.

Taunts between rival schools turns deadly

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — The taunts and insults two high schools exchanged over their rival football teams were not unusual, "the kind of thing that's been going on forever," as one prosecutor said.

A student with a gun changed all that, police said.

Alfred Williams, a 17-year-old senior at Shawnee Mission North high school, was charged with two counts of murder Tuesday in the shooting deaths of a sophomore at rival Olathe North High School and another man during a Sunday night dispute over a football game.

"The tragic thing about this is that you had somebody bring a gun who wasn't afraid to use it, and that results in tremendous carnage," said Johnson County Prosecutor Paul Morrison.

The problems began Friday night, when students from the opposing schools in suburban Kansas City, Mo., exchanged taunts and got in a fistfight during a football game attended by hundreds. Olathe North, the state's top-rated football team, ended up routing Shawnee Mission 31-6.

Two teen-agers involved in the fight were arrested for drunken and disorderly conduct.

On Sunday night, the feud erupted anew when youths in a parking lot at Olathe were confronted by a rival group from Shawnee. Shots from a semiautomatic gun killed 15-year-old Olathe North sophomore Wilson Montenegro and 19-year-old Jerrel Frazier of Olathe.

Four other men were wounded. It was unclear how many of the roughly 40 youths involved in the Sunday fight were students or had participated in Friday night's dispute.

Williams, also charged with four counts of aggravated battery and one count of unlawful possession of a firearm, was being held on $500,000 bail pending an Oct. 5 court appearance.

The schools have always been rivals but there had never been bad blood, some students said. Olathe North sophomore Winston Walker said he's heard threats of retaliation in the hallways at school, but doesn't expect any more violence.

"I think people at Shawnee Mission North are just as scared of us going over there as we are of them coming over here," Walker said Tuesday.

Walker said his friends think the brawl was "stupid," involving students who like to fight, but who weren't expecting a shooting.

"People are talking about Shawnee Mission North being the worst school," Walker said. "People should be talking about the few screwballs who did it."

Police also portrayed the shooting as an isolated incident and said they believe only Williams fired a gun.

Prosecutor's death termed an assassination

BOSTON (AP) — A state prosecutor on an anti-gang task force was shot to death by a hooded teen-ager outside a train station in what police said may have been an assassination.

"It sounds more like Colombia than Massachusetts. We've crossed over the line," said Capt. Al Sweeney.

Paul R. McLaughlin, 42, was killed Monday evening in the city's West Roxbury neighborhood. A teen-ager in a hooded shirt put a gun to McLaughlin's face and shot him as he was about to get into his car to drive home, police said.

Witnesses said the killer, described by police as 14 or 15 years old, ran down the tracks and escaped.

Police fanned out across Boston on Tuesday in a hunt for the killer. More than 75 police recruits combed the commuter railroad tracks near where McLaughlin was slain, and an evidence team placed several items in bags.

McLaughlin's office said he was the first state, local or federal prosecutor ever shot, let alone killed, in eastern Massachusetts.

"Paul was a major prosecutor and prosecuted some of the toughest customers in the city of Boston," Attorney General Scott Harshbarger said. "He was the leading prosecutor on our safe neighborhood initiative."

Harshbarger added: "We are clearly looking at the possibility that any of the individuals here involved had to do with cases that Paul prosecuted."

A bachelor who lived in West Roxbury — a stable, middle-class community — McLaughlin came from a well-known Massachusetts political family and was himself a one-time candidate for state representative.

His father, Edward F. McLaughlin Jr., was a lieutenant governor and friend of John F. Kennedy, with whom he served in the Navy in World War II. His grandfather Edward was a Boston fire commissioner and a state legislator.

McLaughlin was an assistant Massachusetts attorney general and had been assigned to work with the Suffolk County district attorney's office for the past three years. He worked on an anti-gang unit for the past two years.

Officials initially had trouble identifying him because they couldn't find a wallet. A police source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the wallet was later found with cash and credit cards intact.

Gov. William F. Weld ordered flags lowered to half-staff and offered a $10,000 reward for information.

"This homicide has so outraged the department," Sweeney said. "As police, we accept as part of our job that there's a risk of death. If we get to the courts, now the whole judicial system is at risk."

Prosecutors were also unnerved. "It's a TV crime," said Edward Cafasso, spokesman for the AG.

'Steal those pants' campaign pulled; wrong message sent

NEW YORK (AP) — Levi Strauss got a real steal on some publicity — until the city barged in and declared: Pull down those pants!

The company began putting pairs of its new $50 khaki pants in bus shelter ads in New York City and San Francisco this week, fully expecting that the crowbar-and-brick crowd would steal them.

New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani was not amused, condemning the ads as "a terrible mistake ... exactly the wrong message to be teaching to people."

So the pants — ads and all — will be down by tonight. San Francisco officials did not pull the ads.

The city Department of Transportation, which regulates bus shelters, and Gannett Outdoor Advertising, which sells the ad space, made the decision Tuesday.

The controversy surrounding the ad campaign was just what Levi's wanted: free publicity.

Anticipating possible breaking and entering, Levi Strauss designed the ads for pre-theft and post-theft presentation.

With the khakis on display, the ad copy reads "Nice Pants." Once the pants disappear, an outline of the khakis remains with the words, "Apparently they were very nice pants."

"The thought did cross our mind that some pairs might be stolen," Brad Williams, senior marketing specialist with the San Francisco-based company, said Tuesday, before the ads were pulled in New York. "But we think that adds to the talk value of the ads."

Williams did not return a call seeking comment after the decision to remove the ads.

Bosnia's factions agree to share but no ceasefire signed yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Bosnia's factions have agreed on a formula for sharing power once the war ends, but major hurdles remain — there's still no ceasefire and they disagree on the role of the central government.

The accord by the foreign ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and Serb-dominated Yugoslavia builds on a breakthrough achieved in Geneva on Sept. 8. That agreement kept Bosnia's external borders intact while dividing the state internally between the Muslim-Croat federation and the Bosnian Serb republic. Bosnian Serb nationalists, who rebelled in April 1992 with hopes of uniting their holdings with neighboring Serbia, oppose a strong central authority. Muslims, who insist on keeping Bosnia united, want to make the government as powerful as possible.

Tuesday's agreement obliges the two entities to create a joint government consisting of a presidency, parliament and constitutional court. Those institutions would be established after general elections to be held once conditions improve sufficiently to guarantee a fair ballot.

Left undecided was how many people would make up the collective presidency. As in the case of the parliament, two-thirds would be elected from the Croat-Muslim federation and the remainder from Serb territory.

The power-sharing formula is enormously complex. Presidential decisions would be taken by majority vote, but if one-third of the group disagrees and declares it to be "destructive of a vital interest" it would be referred to that entity's parliament. If two-thirds of the members of that entity's parliament voted against the action, it would not take effect.

Beverly Worde, a secretary at the Cabinet Office, shows Humphrey, the Cabinet Office cat, to photographers at 10 Downing Street in London. Humphrey had been reported missing, presumed dead.

Humphrey returns

LONDON (AP) — For days he had been the subject of more meetings of the British cabinet than any other cat and it could be struck out of the prime minister's Downing Street residence and the cabinet around.

Ministers and staff at Downing Street and the Cabinet Office are delighted to have Humphrey back and he seems very pleased to be home, too. "There was even a plaque in the street, made from Humphrey himself sitting on his back and looking forward at the new millennium, was made."

Volcano's steam blotting out the sun in New Zealand

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Mount Ruapehu spewed ash and vented steam 7 1/2 miles into the air this morning, sending black mud and rock showering from the rim and blotting out sunlight.

The volcano was erupting every 15 to 45 minutes after the movement of molten rock beneath its Crater Lake increased sharply, said Bruce Houghton, a government volcanologist.

Mount Ruapehu spews ash and steam into the air during a period of fresh activity.

Sands looks to balance things out vs. Leopards

By DARRELL ERICSON
Sportswriter

ACKERLY - The Sands Mustangs look to continue their unbeaten season at New Home Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The No. 4 ranked Mustangs are coming off a 57-12 victory against Ropes.

"DeLynn Reed had a great game," Barnett said. "He threw six completions out of 11 passes for five touchdowns. Defensively we were aggressive."

Barnett said the Mustangs are looking to balance the passing and running games. "We are going to have to mix it up and do the things that need to be done for district."

Grady (2-1) at Loraine (1-2)

LENORAH - Two key starters returned last week to help Grady improve to a 2-1 record. Cody Peugh and Raymond Torres both came off the injury list and are looking to play against Loraine.

"Having two starters back made a world of difference. They both are key players and team leaders. They did an exceptional job," Grady's head coach Roger Smith said.

The Wildcats are concentrating on containing Cory Waldell, Loraine's star running back. "He is a good running back who runs behind a good team. If we can contain him then we'll do pretty decent," Smith said.

If the Wildcats personnel does not sustain injury, Smith said, "We will be ready to go wide open from week to week."

The Wildcats travel to Loraine Friday at 7:30.

Klondike (3-0) vs. Westbrook (1-2)

PATRICIA - Coming off a impressive 62-20 win against Lazbuddie, Klondike is working out the pre-district kinks.

"If we are able to get by Westbrook and Ropes undefeated then we will have a lot of momentum for district. We will be right where we need to be," Klondike's head coach Jim Kinnear said.

"The offensive line is going to have to be ready. I expect a lot of defensive fronts. We are going to have to come off the ball and execute."

The defense will have to put pressure on the quarterback and cover the receivers."

Kinnear said the Cougars cannot afford a letdown. "Westbrook will be ready to play and beat us."

Westbrook's head coach Jim Hill said, "Klondike has a good senior ball club. They have the players who can perform."

Hill is worried about personnel matchups.

"Our biggest problem will be speed. Tanner Etheredge is a great back. Our defense lacks the speed to contain the offense. It's not that we aren't where we supposed to be or don't have the ability, our lack

Jones hopes that settlement near on owners' lawsuit

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones hopes a meeting with other owners and commissioner Paul Tagliabue will settle the NFL's $300 million lawsuit against Jones' lucrative deals with Pepsi Cola and Nike.

"I'd like to see this thing resolved and out of the public eye," Jones said Tuesday before leaving for today's meeting in Washington.

"Hopefully, we as an ownership group can sit down and avoid literally millions that we're going to spend plus all the black eyes we're going to give each other with our fans and with the public."

Wearing a $400 gold Nike "swoosh" pin on the lapel of his jacket, the Cowboys owner said it was possible "a meeting of the minds could come quickly."

Tagliabue has suggested that the contracts negotiated by Jones outside the purview of NFL Properties Inc., the league's marketing arm, threatened the future stability of the game and the league's heritage.

"The National Football League has very clear-cut ways of doing business, which has distinguished it from all other leagues and made it as great as it is," he has said.

"It's a philosophy and a commitment to do business in a certain way that's been very successful. That's what it's about. When you have a successful philosophy which has worked for 76 years, you hold it pretty sacred."

Jones' deals have openly challenged NFL Properties. He's also suggested a move away from sharing revenue on licensing. The sponsorship deals are with Texas Stadium rather than with the Cowboys.

"The points are really relatively simple. No. 1, we should be working to help stadiums have all of the tools they can have to create marketing relationships. No. 2, I'm going to say that the clubs need the (trademarks) and logos," Jones said.

Under the current agreement, NFL Properties has control over each team's trademarks and logos through the year 2003. Jones would like to see the logos returned to team control before then.

Jones averted a hearing in a New York courtroom last week after agreeing not to seek a countersuit outside New York without first informing NFL Properties of his intent to do so.

Jones reiterated that the "league did a very dumb thing in making this issue litigious. It was the kind of thing that should be worked out with dialogue."

"The Dallas Cowboys are going to win. They are going to win for the game and win for the NFL. Old rules don't work anymore."

IS ANYBODY OUT THERE?

Despite the Houston Astros' presence in a wild-card playoff race with Los Angeles and Colorado, home crowds continue to be slim, as evidenced by Tuesday's sparse attendance.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Lady Steers fall to Andrews

ANDREWS - The Big Spring Lady Steers were unable to halt their losing skid Tuesday, dropping a 15-11, 15-7 volleyball decision to Andrews.

BSHS coach Traci Pierce said her team played well on offense and defense, but were undone by serving problems.

Toshia Wilbert continued her recent resurgence with an eight-kill performance for Big Spring (3-12, 0-3).

Big Spring's junior varsity was more fortunate, taking a 15-13, 15-13 victory over Andrews to improve to 2-1 in district games. Coach Cheryl Tannehill refused to single out any particular player, saying the entire team played outstanding volleyball.

The Lady Steer freshmen also won, defeating Andrews 15-11, 15-12. Playing well for Big Spring were Juanita Valdez, Leslie McLellan and Lisa Rocha.

Big Spring returns to action Saturday at Steer Gym against Pecos. Freshman action begins at 1 p.m.

Coahoma boosters schedule meetings

COAHOMA - The Coahoma Athletic Booster Club will meet each Tuesday at 7 p.m. during football season in the elementary cafeteria.

No more 'Mad Max'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Mad Max" is no more. Just call him Vernon Maxwell now.

"In Philly, I don't want to be Mad Max," Maxwell said after signing a free-agent contract with the Philadelphia 76ers on Tuesday. "That name got me in a lot of stuff on the court and off the court."

Stuff, in this case, means trouble, which never seemed to be far from Maxwell in the past year.

First was his well-publicized punchout of a taunting fan in Portland. That led to a 10-game suspension and a $20,000 fine.

Most recently, he was pulled over in late August by police in Houston for a traffic violation, and officers then allegedly found a bag of marijuana in his car. Later in the week, a woman filed a paternity suit against him.

NATION/WORLD

Perez back with Expos

MIAMI (AP) — Montreal pitcher Carlos Perez rejoined the Expos one day after posting bond and being released from an Atlanta jail. He was arrested Saturday on charges of rape and aggravated sodomy against a 20-year-old woman.

The woman said the crime occurred in Perez's hotel room hours after he took the loss in a game Friday night against the Atlanta Braves.

Courier advances

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — Fifth-seeded Jim Courier beat Karol Kucera of Slovakia 6-4, 6-2 in the first round of the Swiss Open.

Martin Damm of the Czech Republic, David Prinosil of Germany and Jan Siemerink of the Netherlands also advanced.

Borden County (2-1) vs. Loop (1-2)

GAIL — After a tough 21-0 loss to Southland last Friday, the Borden County Coyotes want to get physical.

"I want to see a more aggressive team, one that dominates on both sides of the line," Borden County's head coach Bobby Avery said.

The Coyotes' main concern has been getting the offense back on track.

"Our offense was way off last week, and our blocking was poor. Defensively we performed good. The plays on which they did score on were break-aways," Avery said.

The loss against Southland proved we still have a lot of work to do. We have got to regroup and get our offense back on-line."

Coahoma concert series shows power of music

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

COAHOMA - When he came to Coahoma as pastor of First Presbyterian Church five years ago, Walter Lee noticed something he'd seen in other parts of the country - kids weren't taking music lessons any longer.

Himself a long-time singer-songwriter, Lee had always enjoyed making music, and the camaraderie of other musicians.

He found it sad that music wasn't as vital a part of life for the youngsters he was working with as it had always been for him.

It was really brought home in 1992 when the church instrumentalist moved and no replacement could be found.

"People don't learn to play piano" any more, Lee said, and most band instruments don't lend themselves to lifelong pursuit.

Back in the '60s, almost every kid had a guitar they could plunk a little, or had been taught to play a few chords and a couple of tunes on the piano.

Lee decided, he said, he had to expose the kids in the community to what "one person can do with their voice and one instrument."

Lee began talking with friends and fellow musicians he'd met at the Kerrville Folk Festival and other musical events.

Thus was born the Coahoma Community Concert Series.

A chance for community members to get together in a warm, friendly atmosphere and share the joy of music, the concert series is also a way of giving people on the way up or people who just prefer to do their own thing the chance to be heard.

Over the years since its inception, the community has seen - and heard - artists like Rex Foster, Adam and Kris, and Olin Murrell in Coahoma.

Many are friends, glad of the chance to stop and visit in the midst of a busy tour. Others, who have come from as far away as Poland, have found Coahoma a welcome stop.

Most stay with the Lees, visit a few days, and share their talent and their view of the world. Lee said the only thing lacking is a large audience.

Lee schedules about 10 concerts a year - they try to avoid the holiday season because everyone is so busy. The concerts are smoke and alcohol free, casual, and definitely family-oriented.

Lee doesn't perform in Coahoma himself, although he's well-known as a performer in Kerrville. "I know my Bible," he said, referring to the verse about a prophet having no honor in his own country.

The next artist expected is Ken Gaines from Houston. He plans to perform the first week in November.

The suggested donation is $6 for individuals and $15 for immediate family, and Lee emphasizes "suggested." If you don't have that much, he said, don't let it keep you away.

If you have a little extra, he said, just remember, the basket's there, and everything that comes in goes to the artist.

Money stresses happen at any age

Money in the family is a little different from money in a business because it involves emotional assets.

Families involved in a study about the money stressors they manage indicated their most stressful areas, in order of priority:

- Retirement funds
- Keeping up with inflation
- Devising a budget
- Agreeing on scaling down expenses
- Keeping to a budget
- Need

for savings

- Credit cards
- College spending

For single mothers, the greatest stress is insufficient money to meet daily needs.

Second jobs create concern about less time with children.

Emergencies usually force them to take loans, while fearing inability to meet loan commitments on survival income.

However, while there's less money to spend, single parents have fewer hassles over how to spend it and feel freer to make money decisions.

According to Delores Curran's research on stress management by healthy families, healthy families talk about money.

They do not link self-esteem to earning power. They develop money management skills and teach their children about money.

Here are some of the stress managers that work for some families:

- Coping with economic change by scaling down rather than adding extra jobs.
- Having a joint checking account, with both spouses balancing the account, but not necessarily together.
- Having no set pattern on children's monies, but a variety of patterns for different ages and circumstances.

• Expecting children to help somewhat with college monies usually for personal expenses and books.

• Viewing money as a temporary rather than an ongoing stress.

• Being satisfied with the family's present lifestyle.

• Enjoying family life and each other in spite of normal financial stresses.

• Acceptance of financial limitations and hope they will be temporary.

• Not deferring present happiness in family life until money pressures disappear.

Air Force Training Instructor Sgt. John Wilk works with Air Force recruits before the morning run at Lackland Air Force Base. Recruits are now going through a revamped Air Force physical training program to improve their overall physical strength.

New program boosts Air Force trainees' physical conditioning

By DON DRIVER
San Antonio Express-News

SAÑ ANTONIO — Candi Dotson's gray jogging shorts and T-shirt were soaked with sweat like those of the other 400 basic trainees on the Physical Conditioning Pad at Lackland AFB as the recruits went through the paces of their morning workout.

"Hey, airman, quit hitting the ground!" a training instructor barked at another recruit, who was flopping on the turf during a push-up drill. "Any day now, get down there, any day."

Dotson, an 18-year-old recruit from Ninety-Six, S.C., was in the final stretch of the six-week basic course featuring a new physical conditioning regimen that some recruits actually like.

"When I got here I had hardly any upper body strength," Dotson said. "But I think I've accomplished more under the new PT (physical training) system than I would have under the old. I feel a lot more in shape."

That's military music to the ears of Air Force brass who are into the eighth month of a revamped physical conditioning program for recruits.

The Air Force wants the recruits to be not only more physically fit when they leave basic training but armed with the skills and desire to carry their conditioning program throughout their military career and on into civilian life.

Staff Writer

Food, games, music and fun are in store at this weekend's Immaculate Heart of Mary Church Festival.

The festival is scheduled for Friday and Saturday from 5 p.m. to midnight, with a volleyball tournament on Saturday starting at 8:30 a.m.

Organizers said booth space is still available for anyone wanting to sell food or crafts. The booths rent for $50 for both nights.

Festival Chairman Frances

McKiski said the money raised will be used for anything the church might need such as helping out families or renovations to the buildings.

McKiski added there will be a football throw, cotton candy, cake walks, darts, fishing pond, treasure hunt, face painting, a train ride, spin the wheel, moon walk and cascarones for the young at art. Cascarones are eggshells filled with confetti.

There will also be arts and crafts, a country store, bingo, soda wagon and food booths offering chili, burritos, fajitas and tripas. Two other booths will offer sports cards and concrete lawn decorations.

"There will be a turkey dinner complete with mashed potatoes, green beans, dessert and tea on Friday starting at 5 p.m. On Saturday, the main meal will be an Oriental dinner with such as things as chicken, fried rice and eggrolls," McKiski said.

La Favorita will broadcast from the festival on Friday from 5-6 p.m. and again from 10-11 p.m. A disc jockey from Stanton will provide music for

The Cowboy

I use to be a cowboy
And ride the range all day.
I roped and branded cattle,
For very little pay.

I'd get back home 'bout dusky dark,
And put my horse away.
I'd peel off my old rawhide boots,
And call it another day.

I cooked my food on an old wood stove,
And bathed in a big wash tub.
Read my book by a coal oil lamp,
Didn't have no lectrit bub.

Now I don't ride the range no more,
My spurs hand on the wall.
My horse is out to pasture,
And my boots lay in the hall.

My once brown hair has turned to gray,
My once good teeth are bought.
But I wouldn't trade for anything,
The sights my eyes have caught.

Dee Dum

My Daddy's name was Dee Dum
And a Dee Dee Dum was he
He found me in the junk yard
He said "Come home with me"

I live on the corner
It's a pretty good place to be
It won't be long, til I might be gone
But you can stay with me."

He said I had such big blue eyes
The bluest he'd ever seen
I've always had these blue eyes
But Dee Dum's eyes are green.

He found me in the old junk yard
And that's where I come from
But I wouldn't have no place to stay
If it hadn't been for Dee Dum.

I think I am his youngest son
But he never did tell me
I know I love old Dee Dum
And I think that he loves me

They used to call me Kitty
But now they call me Dee
But I'd like to be called Dee Dum
'Cause I'm his son you see.

Dee dee dum and a dee dee dum
He was just an old ruff tom
But he sure looked good to me

Angry Children

Left alone, mentally or physically,
There are many forms of abuse.
Being beaten or just ignored.
Little children frightened and confused.

Passed from generation to generation.
Not being able to cope.
Even with one's own feelings,
Knowing not which way to grope.

Youth, middle age, elderly,
all God's children,
Each searching for eternal peace.
Our inner self always struggling, crying,
Misplaced, lost or deceased.

Illnesses, inherited or acquired,
Son blaming Dad, Dad blaming grandpaw.
Out of heaven the Devil was barred.
Reach out angry children to God's law.

Wretched soul thrashing to and fro,
Knowing not which way to go.
Take hold of God's loving hand,
And enter into His safe land.

"We're not just focusing on physical fitness per se, we're trying to create lifestyle changes," said Col. Wolf Gesch, commander of the 737th Training Group at Lackland Air Force Base, which oversees training for all Air Force recruits.

"We're seeing up to 50 percent improvement in some of our folks in physical conditioning," he said. "If you experience that kind of change (as a recruit) you'll be motivated."

Gesch recalls that in the early 1970s, the Air Force fashioned its physical training program after that used in the Canadian armed forces.

"How ironic that now, in 1995, the Canadian Air Force recently came to visit us and took back with them lessons learned on how the U.S. Air Force now does physical conditioning," he said.

The changes are part of an overhaul of the Air Force basic training regimen begun in 1992. Lackland, the only basic training site for the service, annually graduates 35,000 airmen. Training takes 30 days and has an attrition rate of 8 percent.

A survey revealed that many units reported recent basic training graduates were in poor physical condition. The Air Force began the new physical conditioning program in January to address that issue.

Recruits have been prohibited from smoking during their basic course for years. But now they also receive instruction on health, nutrition and diet; the former 1 1/2 mile run has been increased to 2 miles; and the "daily dozen" calisthenics have been replaced by a 20 station exercise routine geared to total-body training.

The PC Pad, as it is called, is a poured urethane surface which recruits find more flexible than the hard South Texas ground.

The pad can accommodate hundreds of trainees, who go through each exercise station in small groups for 30 seconds of exercise before a whistle blows, and they rush off to the next step on the circuit.

"U.S. Air Force," they yell as they go through the exercises, about half of which involve the use of sandbags. The sandbags, weighing from 5 to 40 pounds, are cheaper and easier to maintain than weights.

And, based on advice from fitness experts, the morning physical fitness routine has been rescheduled until after breakfast, since trainees are stronger — and have fewer physical problems — after they have eaten.

"We didn't design the PC program with cruddy old colonels sitting around a conference table," Gesch said, adding it was developed from recommendations by experts in the various fields.

In the last quarter, male recruits showed a 25 percent improvement in their conditioning, while women showed a 49 percent improvement, officials said.

Justin Needle used to play basketball in college and said the physical conditioning "has got me back to where I used to be" during his athletic days.

He is scheduled to go to language school after basic, and the training instructors are doing their best to help by giving him a whole new appreciation for words.

"When they're yelling at us, it's when we're doing something wrong," said the 21-year-old native of Utica, N.Y. "When we're doing something wrong, they have to correct us."

Recruits such as Heather Leet, 18, of Millinocket, Maine, have even grown to like the physical conditioning.

"It makes you feel good," she said. "You just feel revved up for the day — it's an excellent stress reliever."

An initial physical fitness assessment greets each recruit. Instead of running with their training flights during training, they are placed into one of five fitness-ability groups for their morning runs based on their fitness scores from that first test.

Under the former physical conditioning program, a recruit would run about 20 total miles during the six-week course. Now, they run between 60 and 80 miles during their training. The results: Run-time improvements are three to five times greater than under the former program, officials said.

A pilot program featuring "all healthy" foods recently ended at one training squadron's dining hall. Officials are awaiting a report on the findings.

Many of the training instructors — the Air Force doesn't use the term drill sergeants — have been to the Army's master fitness instructor course.

And while they still keep trainees on their toes, they spend much of their time during physical conditioning training leading by example and acting as coaches, said Tech. Sgt. Fred Driver, 31, the master fitness trainer for the 320th Training Squadron.

"I enjoy it — it makes it a lot more flexible," he said.

It's all part of the training instructor's job of taking kids — who show up with blue jeans, Air Jordans and the occasional Walkman around the neck — and turning them into disciplined airmen in six weeks.

"They're the heroes in this system," Gesch said of the training instructors. "They build our Air Force and its foundation every day. They're the best of the best."

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to wit:
Suit for foreclosure and breach of contract, as is more fully shown by Plaintiff's Petition on file in this suit.
The officer executing this writ shall promptly serve the same according to requirements of law, and the mandatory return relative to a parking lot to be constructed by the Government Employees Federal Credit Union. The venture's objective is to provide more convenient accessible parking for both the VA Medical Center and the GECU. The joint public-private venture between the VA Medical Center and GECU includes the construction of a parking lot on VA property by GECU for the use of GECU in exchange for existing parking presently owned by GECU that is readily accessible to the VA. This venture will enhance the VA property and reduce costs associated with maintaining this excess and while providing more appropriate safe parking and access of GECU members.
DATE AND TIME OF HEARING: October 5, 1995 10:00 a.m.
PLACE OF HEARING: Big Spring VA Medical Center, Building #1, Room 212, TX Veterans Blvd, Big Spring, Texas.
DEED OF CONVEYANCE TO BE ISSUED: The proposed 14 acre, more or less, to be located on the Southeast quadrant of the campus between the Gregg St. Entrance and the Government Employees Federal Credit Union.
DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY TO BE LEASED: The VA Medical Center has approximately 31 acres of property of which the majority of this and a buffer space for its main patient building, Building #1, under the General Use concept, the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) will lease this site to the GECU for a period of up to 30 years at no monetary cost in consideration for the lease the developer will build and maintain a parking lot and allow the VA sole use of its parking area directly behind the Credit Union Building. This parking lot will be built in accordance with VA specifications and criteria and at the end of the lease term, title to all improvements on the leased property will revert to the VA.
DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPOSED LEASE: The GECU proposes to lease approximately 14 acre to the GECU for a parking lot to be built on the site. The lease term will consist of time of construction plus a period no greater than 30 years from the date of award of no cost. The improvement of VA property will reduce operating costs associated with maintaining this property over the life of the agreement.
In exchange for the land lease, the GECU will construct, operate, and maintain the new parking lot at his/her expense, in lieu of paying fair market value for VA for the lease of the site, the developer will exchange existing GECU parking for the sole use of VA employees.
