Farm bill expectations up in the air

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

The 1995 Farm Bill, whichever version gets through Congress, is going to hurt somebody, any way you look at it.

The view in Washington is that farm subsidy programs are little more than welfare for farmers, said Texas A&M Extension Economist Ed Smith. All presented proposals, he said, have cuts in the production agriculture sector.

Speaking to a meeting of area cotton growers Thursday night, Smith explained the Food and Agriculture Policy Research Institute's analysis of legislation currently before Congress.

Cautioning any information about farm legislation is "obsolete in approximately six hours," Smith described the Freedom to Farm Bill and the Senate reconciliation package as "tunnel vision budgeting."

Washington legislators, he said, are treating farm programs as affecting only farm income, letting the legislation be driven by budget constrictions, and essentially ignoring

The question is not if there will be a farm bill, but when and will it be vetoed.

About 30 local cotton producers met at the Dora Roberts Community Center Thursday evening to hear Extension Economists Dr. Ed Smith with Texas A & M Extension office and Dr. Jackie Smith from the Lubbock office present their evaluations of the different farm bill proposals being debated in Washington, D.C.

"As the farm program is presented now, it appears to be unfriendly to the small farm family. Until we see a bill, we can only speculate," said State Rep. David Counts. "Right now it's just a proposal and in

The beating of a Native American drum resounded through Big Spring this weekend during the first Inter-Tribal Gathering.

More than 75 dancers and 500 Indians from numerous tribes came to Big Spring to participate in the town's first Pow Wow.

Pow Wow Committee Chairman Juan Jojola said the event is to bring awareness to non-Indians about the culture and to erase stereotypes.

"I think this has been a tremendous success for being a first time event. This is also the first time our group has been on the Pow Wow circuit. Indians from Lubbock, Amarillo, Mescalero, Plainview and Big Spring have created a circuit and we will travel to other pow wows," said Jojola.

Indians from the following tribes signed up to compete in the dances: Comanche, Ogala Sioux, Cherokee, Chickasaw, Seneca, Aztec, Apache, Navajo, Ponca, Blood, Cree, Laguna Pueblo, Lakota Sioux, Assimi

Snip, snip and $564 raised for cancer research

A local beauty salon has once again raised more money for breast cancer research than their counterparts.

On Saturday, Regis Hairstylists from around the country participated in the fifth annual Clip for the Cure and the Big Spring salon raised more money than the Odessa and Midland salons.

Local salon manager Sandra Johnson said the seven hairstylists gave haircuts to 46 people for $10 a piece. Along with the $460 from the cuts, the salon raised an additional $104.88 by selling burritos, balloons and face paintings for a total of $564.88.

"By 3 p.m., we had raised $340 with the haircuts. The pace has been slower than last year but still good. We've had a great response. We had 'Dimples' the clown out here entertaining the kids and making balloon animals. We also appreciate the generous support of the local merchants for their help and donations of door prizes," Johnson said.

The Midland store raised $120 and the Odessa store $350.

The annual event raises money for breast cancer research as part Breast Cancer Awareness Month, which is October.

Regis Corporation President Paul Finkelstein stated in a press release, "We're extremely proud of our stylists and their voluntary commitment to the 'Clip for the Cure.' They reached the million dollar mark and are more enthusiastic and determined than ever to push ahead to new heights.

"Breast cancer is the number one health issue affecting our female stylists and customers as well as all women today. Our fund raiser generates money for research programs and helps increase awareness about breast cancer and the importance of early detection."

If you did not take advantage of the event Saturday, when you purchase Regis products through Oct. 14, 10 percent of the sale goes to breast cancer research as well.

Selena trial set to start Monday

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The trial of the woman accused of killing Tejano music superstar Selena is set to begin Monday in Houston.

The death of Selena was like losing a child to many Hispanic families and all eyes will be on Houston to see if what will become of accused killer 35-year-old Yolanda Saldivar, who managed Selena's boutique in San Antonio and was billed as one of Selena's biggest fans.

The Lake Jackson native was two weeks away from her 24th birthday when she was gunned down. The impact of her death was felt all across the county, including Big Spring.

Some local residents say Saldivar should receive the death penalty for the crime she's accused of committing.

One woman said, "Moving the trial won't make any difference because she shot Selena in cold blood."

Another response was, "Hopefully, there will be justice in this trial because Selena was just getting started."

"I think she (Saldivar) should get the death penalty because

MILLWEE

Williford Jay Millwee, 75, of Big Spring, died Friday, Oct. 6, 1995, in a local hospital. Services will be 10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 9, 1995, at Nalley-Pickle and Welch Rosewood Chapel with Rodney Tedford, minister of Birdwell Lane Church of Christ, officiating. Military graveside rites will follow at Trinity Memorial Park.

He was born July 26, 1920, in Sipe Springs, Texas, and married Winifred Ball March 10, 1942, in Alexandria, La.

Williford's life was punctuated by distinguished service to his country. During World War II, he served from 1942 to 1945 flying numerous combat missions with the 12th Bomb Group, the "Earthquakers." This group flew the B-25 "Mitchell" bomber and operated from North Africa, Sicily, Italy and India.

Following the war, Williford was honorably discharged from the Army Air Corps and he and his wife, Winifred, returned to Texas. While pursuing his civilian life with the petroleum industry, Williford was recalled to active military service during the Korean War. From that time until his retirement in 1967, he served in numerous flying assignments throughout the world with the United States Air Force. His participation in the Belgian Congo Crisis coupled with two tours of duty during the Vietnam War resulted in him being awarded the Air Medal nine times for meritorious achievement in aerial flight. During most of that period, Williford served as a flight engineer on board the C-130 "Hercules" transport aircraft.

Williford's distinguished career culminated with his retirement in 1967 following 21 years of honorable service with the United States Air Force. At that juncture, Williford, Winifred and family settled in Big Spring where he pursued a second career in civil service at the Webb Air Force Base. He retired from that career in 1977.

He was a member of Birdwell Lane Church of Christ.

Throughout dad's life, he exhibited the qualities of honesty, integrity and commitment. His word was his bond. He was a generous and caring person who let his actions speak louder than his words. He leaves behind a family that reflects those qualities and ideals. We shall truly miss the man who was the husband to our mother and our beloved father and grandfather. We shall we carry with us his loving memories in our hearts and minds.

Bill

its present form is detrimental to family farms.

Even after the update, Dr. Ed Smith said the farm bill is still up in the air.

"This bill is unique because of budget reconciliation activity and nothing is sacred," Smith added.

The current environment surrounding the farm bill is driven by proposed spending cuts.

Each proposal has multiple objectives and contains some type of cut in production agriculture.

"The perception in Washington is that only about 15 percent of all farms produce the output in America," Smith said.

"Rhetoric in Washington is family farm income is comparable to regular family income and there's no need for farm programs, unless you look at the multiple characteristics involved," he added.

Smith is an economist and does not endorse either proposal being debated, but added the House Freedom to Farm Bill would put more money in the hands of producers the first few years it is in effect.

"It's a bird in the hand versus two in the bush type situation," he said.

Oct. 18 is the earliest the House and Senate will address their reconciliation packages, Smith said, and that could also be moved back a week.

"I doubt if we see any action prior to Oct. 18, but the government has until mid-November to make a decision or it will run out of its ability to spend," Smith said.

A presidential veto of the Republican version of the farm bill, which has been threatened, would carry a lot of weight and give Democrats some balance in Congress they don't have in numbers.

Smith added, "If there's not at least a continuance by Dec. 19, the country reverts back to 1949 farm legislation."

other objectives originally built into the programs.

The failure of the House Agriculture Committee to reach an agreement on farm legislation leads to other questions, Smith said. Since the committee failed to report a bill out and the proposals went to the budget committee for reconciliation, the role of the agriculture committee in the future is now questionable.

Describing how complex budget reconciliation has made the process, Smith said FAPRI has analyzed 19 proposals so far. During 1990 farm bill debates, the institute analyzed eight.

Smith also said viewing the farm bill as only affecting one sector or one part of the country is a mistake.

Comparing the community affected by farm legislation to a community losing a military base, Smith described the farmer as like the soldier in that situation.

The farmer is affected first, but the effect spreads to seed and chemical suppliers, the equipment manufacturer and supplier, the processor, buyers in future markets, wholesalers - the ripple moves all the way to the end user - the grocery shopper.

Oh, Great Pumpkin - Where are you?

Shortage of pumpkins puts damper on holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) - This may be the Halloween of the Not-So-Great Pumpkin.

Heat, drought and early frost have put a damper on the supply and size of potential Jack-O'-Lanterns nationwide, especially in the Midwest. Supplies in some areas could run out well before Oct. 31, and pumpkins will cost more because of the short supply and the higher cost of growing them.

George Perry knows. The 76-year-old grower from Manteca, Calif., has his finger on the pumpkin pulse of the country. He's been getting calls from as far away as New York and Florida asking if he can share some of his bounty.

"A lot of pumpkins are ruined back there," said Perry, whose family operation shipped more than 15,000 tons last year, and has committed almost all this year's crop to supermarket chains inside the state.

Irrigation protected his crop and that of five farms that supply his company. Not everyone was spared in California, though. The seasonal pumpkin stands seem to be having the most problems.

"We're getting a lot of calls even here in California for pumpkins from people who never did buy from us," said Perry. "It's the pumpkin lots. Evidently, where they were getting them, they can't get them this year. They're short."

The heavy demand means Perry is able to charge eight or nine cents a pound rather than the six cents he received last year.

Illinois and other Midwestern states were hit especially hard.

Darin Eastburn, plant pathologist at the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service in Urbana, reports that the crop will only be 20 percent of normal in areas of the state. He found one eight-acre field with only two salvageable pumpkins. Pumpkins just don't like it hot.

Workers sort through trailers of pumpkins in Floydada recently and load the produce onto a truck bound for Mississippi. The Texas Panhandle, home to about 3,000 acres of pumpkins has caught the attention of buyers across the country due to weather-inflicted crop problems in the Midwest.

Rather than spread pumpkin pollen, bees took a long break from the heat, and heat-stressed flowers didn't want to open, Eastburn explained. The result was fewer pumpkins, or small ones that were easily devoured by fungi.

A killing frost Sept. 23 did in a lot of the late-setting fruit, he added.

There's one bit of comfort, he noted. The canning pumpkins used for Thanksgiving pies are a different species and weren't hit as hard.

In other big pumpkin states such as Pennsylvania and New York, the large growers who invested in irrigation made it through the summer, averting an out-and-out shortage. Still, pumpkins are generally smaller and more expensive, because of the lower yields and higher production costs.

"I know from some of the things I've seen on the national level that they are evidently in short supply across the country," said Bill Troxell, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association. "We certainly aren't going to have any extras to make up the difference."

For pumpkin shoppers, the best advice may be to buy early. "We've gotten about all the pumpkins we think we're going to get," said Barry Scher, chief spokesman for Giant Food Inc.,

"The reason we need authority to issue more bonds is simple. We're running out of money. The program is so popular that the last two years have been the best two years in the history of the program," Mauro stated in a press release.

"Once people realize that Proposition Five will help veterans, stimulate the economy and strengthen Texas communities, all at no cost to the taxpayer, they will support it," he said.

The bill passed unanimously in both houses and was sponsored by Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, and Sen. Buster Brown, R-Lake Jackson.

Mauro said the bonds used to fund the program are repaid by monthly mortgage payments and the program's administrative costs are financed through a small fee charged on each loan.

This program is just one of three designed to help Texas veterans purchase homes, land and to make home improvements.

In 1994, the TVLB lent $354 million in loans, a 130 percent increase from 1993. Economists have said for each dollar loaned to a veteran, it stimulates six dollars in the state economy. Since the TVLB started making loans in 1949, the programs have generated $14.4 billion into the economy.

"I am from Donna, Texas, and have been traveling to pow wows for six years from the West Coast to the East Coast. I decided to get involved because of my Indian heritage. This is my livelihood, my bread and butter," he said.

Campbell added he wants people to know that Indians are not all the same because each tribe has their own customs and beliefs. "We all use the same dance steps but we vary the way we do them."

"This pow wow is smaller than others I've been to and there isn't the same amount of dancers. But I feel that's because not everyone knew about it since it was new. It is a good pow wow. The people here are friendly and we have a great emcee, Sammy Tone-Kei White."

The singers, who also beat the drum, are from the Santo Domingo Pueblo in New Mexico and also from Oklahoma.

If audience or family members like a dancer who is in the arena, they place money on the ground to honor them and show they like the dancing. The dancers, in turn, give the money to the singers as a noble gesture.

Ponca tribe member Terry White has been involved in pow wows since 1989 when he discovered his family's heritage.

"I was adopted into a Caucasian home and when I was 27, I found my people and it's been great ever since. I think this pow wow is real good considering it's the first year. I get a good feeling from the residents here," he said.

The Indians will gather at the spring at Comanche Trail Park to put a Medicine Wheel together at 7:30 this morning.

Jojoia asked the participants to bring rocks from their land to make the wheel. White said the medicine wheel represents the four directions and four stages of life for an Indian.

In the middle of the wheel is two lines that intersect in the center to represent north, south, east and west. Each section then represents the four stages of life: birth/childhood, adolescence, manhood and old age/death.

The wheel will be blessed and it will give the spirit of the spring back to Mother Earth.

Jojoia said people from all around the area will recognize the Medicine Wheel as something special and it will serve as physical evidence Native Americans were in Big Spring.

Pow Wow could become major event for area

This morning ended the first Inter-Tribal Gathering of Big Spring.

The event was a celebration of Native American culture and a celebration of the Native American history of our town.

But more than a celebration, the gathering was a chance for many of us to learn about a different culture.

Knowledge often leads to understanding and tolerance. The more we know, the better able we are to make decisions for ourselves. Understanding another's cultural beliefs also helps us as we grow together in this racially and culturally diverse country of ours.

This gathering, can also be used to promote our community. If done correctly, it could become a draw across the nation.

Just as Stanton's Old Sorehead Trade Days draws people from across the state, the Inter-Tribal Gathering can also draw people to our community to experience Native American culture.

What could be better for Big Spring than an event from which we can profit both intellectually and financially? The Inter-Tribal Gathering has that potential. Let's develop it into the major event it should be.

Doing our duty will get us the best of communities, justice

The O.J. Simpson trial is over. Well, almost. As someone pointed out, there has been as much coverage of the verdict as there was before.

DD Turner
Managing Editor

Whether we think the jury came up with the right verdict is simply our opinion. Yes, we heard the testimony along with them, watching the trial on television.

But, there is a difference. We were not on the jury. Rightly or wrongly, who are we to condemn their verdict?

That's what our system of justice is supposed to be about - 12 men and women listening, hearing and then deciding what your fate will be.

So who are we, who would do almost anything to get out of sitting on a jury, to judge? We can have an opinion but we shouldn't be judging whether they did right or wrong.

Los Angeles County District Attorney Gil Garcetti put it best when he said on a recent show that until everyone is willing to give up their time to sit on a jury, this is the type of justice we will get.

He has a point. Here in Texas, Waco had only about 50 percent of the people sent jury summons respond at all. That doesn't leave much of a pool from which to choose a jury.

There isn't much the judges can do, except levying penalties for not responding to a summons.

It's not easy. You have to give up some time, employers don't always pay you for doing your civic duty and you have to sit in a hot courtroom listening to something you may know nothing about in order to render a verdict.

Civic duty - there's the rub. We have all but forgotten what it is.

What is civic duty? It is your responsibility to the city, state and country you live in. It is what you owe for living in a country of freedoms.

It is why soldiers go off to war - because they are doing their civic duty to the country which gave them freedom.

It means voting, it means jury duty, it means serving on a committee, commission or panel which is working to better your community. It means being an active part of your community - someone who takes what the community has to offer and gives something back.

Workers should not be penalized for having to serve on a jury. There should be no question as to whether they get paid, because jury duty should be an important aspect of living in this country.

We want justice. We have to be part of the system providing justice.

We can talk all we want about how our courts are overloaded, crime is on the rise and there is no place to put the criminals.

This kind of talk can only take us maybe as far as identifying the problem. It has to be taken further, to find solutions.

But, if you have noticed, the best solutions come when people join together to protect what is their's and their neighbors.

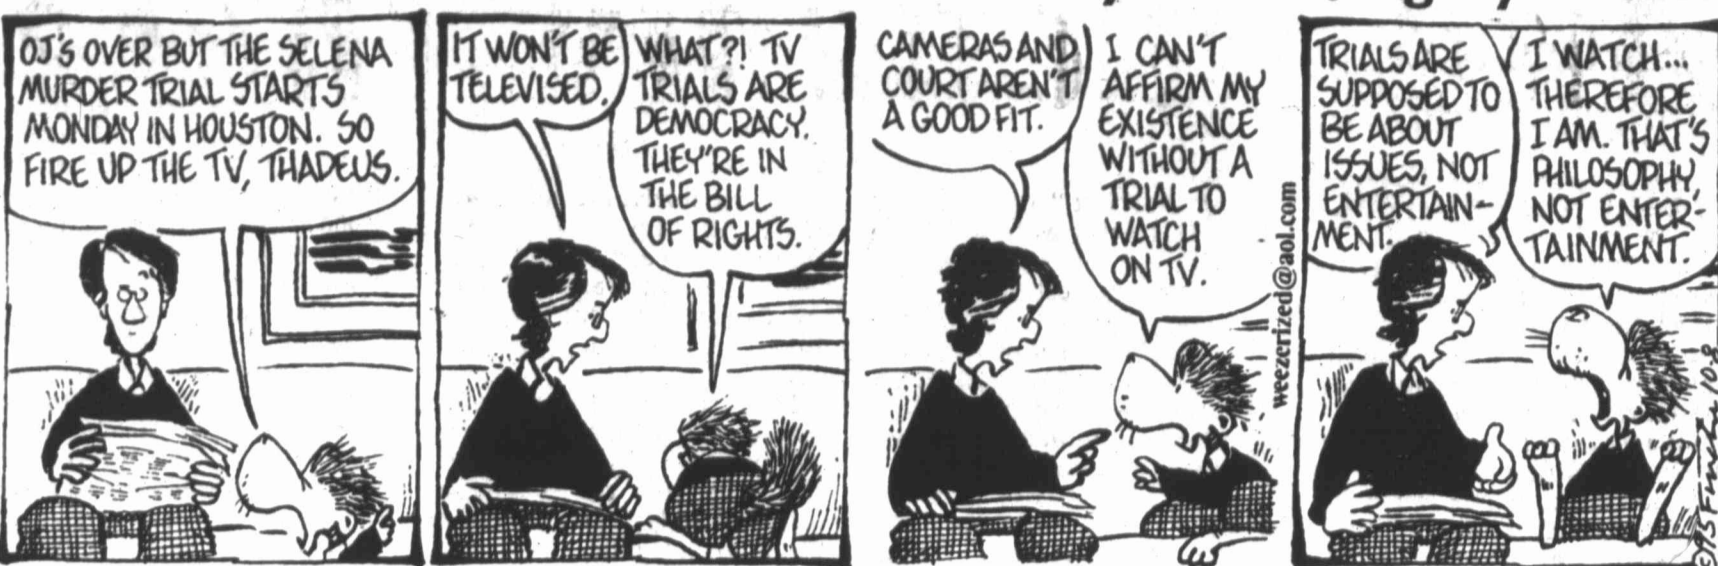

Neighborhood watches, for example. Residents working together, out on patrol, working as a member of a community to solve a problem.

Talk and action have to go hand-in-hand. We can talk all we want but until we are willing to take the necessary action to make sure it works, then all we have is more talk while the problem grows.

We simply can't be too quick to judge the decisions made. We have to ask questions, otherwise bad policy can and has been made. And questions, if used right, have a way of changing things for the better.

Civic duty. It's not easy. If we are not willing to do our part, we shouldn't deride those who are.

NEVER ENDING DEBATE

Congressional Medicaid-Medicare wrangle continues on and on and on

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

AP NEWS ANALYSIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The case has run a lot longer than the O.J. Simpson trial did — and with no judge to try keeping arguments over Medicare and Medicaid cuts in line with the evidence.

It is all a matter of dispute, rival numbers and estimates, accusation and countercharge over motives. The rhetoric never has been restrained, and it is ratcheting up as Congress approaches the point of decision, or delay.

The latter, talk without action, has been standard procedure on the risky political business of changing benefits or costs in programs for the elderly. The new Republican majority is determined to act this time, but a veto could stall things again.

Medicare trustees warned earlier this year that the health care program would go broke by 2002 unless it is overhauled, but that was not the first alarm. Prior reports from that panel had suggested the same thing, even sooner. A commission on entitlement reform agreed in 1994 on the danger signs but couldn't fashion a consensus on what to do about them.

In varying forms, this dispute has been going on since shortly after President Clinton took office with his vow to overhaul the American health care system to control soaring costs, especially in the federal programs for the elderly and the impoverished.

Those have been rising at unsustainable rates of about 10 percent a year, too much for the budget to bear. It was most of a year before Clinton had a health care bill, and it went nowhere in a Democratic Congress.

Clinton and his allies argued that only comprehensive change, with universal coverage, could resolve the health care problem, and that it couldn't be done piecemeal.

Now Republicans are pressing for a full overhaul of Medicare and Medicaid, while Democrats want a limited first step. Sen. Tom Daschle, the Democratic leader, outlined a plan Monday to curb projected Medicare costs increases by $89 billion over the next seven years, and thus keep the hospitalization insurance system solvent until 2006. That's supposed to buy time for a long-term solution.

Republicans seek $20 billion less spending than currently projected, on the troubled hospitalization insurance system, and with higher premiums and increased deductibles on the Medicare Part B program that covers doctor's bills.

Daschle called that "Medicare meltdown," and said it is really a ruse to cover the Republicans' plan for a $245 billion tax cut over the same seven years in which they promise to balance the budget.

While there was talk at the White House of a moderating mood in Congress on Medicare, budget issues and other items, it wasn't evident in the rhetoric or the theatrics. And there certainly was no such tone when Clinton said Saturday that the Senate Republican plan for Medicaid changes could send elderly wives to the poorhouse if their husbands had to enter nursing homes.

Nor did it sound that way in the televised talk show arguments on Sunday, the arena for Medicare-Medicaid disputes almost every week. Republican Sen. Bill Frist of Tennessee was on NBC calling Democratic tactics "demagoguery, Medigogery, Medicare ..." Sen. Bob Dole, the majority leader, said on CBS that Clinton's veto threat was part of a "fear campaign to scare seniors."

At a House hearing where Republican experts were supposed to explain the 421-page Medicare bill finally introduced on Friday, GOP displays and a Democratic walkout came first. Republicans set up a countdown to bankruptcy clock at the House Commerce Committee, ticking off the seconds until 2002. Democrats led by Rep. John Dingell walked out of the session; the Michigan congressman called it a charade that would "rob seniors of their health care."

While the differences are real, the arguments also involve political positioning. Seniors are organized, active and powerful in any election campaign, and there's a big one coming up. So each side wants the role of Medicare defender, while both have agreed to curb growth in the system.

Clinton recommended a $124 billion reduction. Both the Republican and Democratic plans include increased premiums for the phase of Medicare that covers doctor's bills, and the differences are not as drastic as the rhetoric. The rate now is $46.10 monthly. The White House version would put it at about $82 in 2002, the Republican at $92.

U.N. chief's days are numbered

WASHINGTON — Behind-the-scenes skirmish erupts at the United Nations over who is going to replace Boutros Boutros-Ghali as secretary general when his second term expires this fall.

Shaky handling of crisis in Bosnia and Somalia and doing nothing approach to bloated UN budget mean the 74-year-old Boutros-Ghali's days are numbered.

Among the leading candidates for the post are Ireland's President Mary Robinson, who would be the first woman secretary general, and Australia's foreign minister, Gareth Evans.

A possible surprise pick is Sadako Ogata, Japan's UN delegate, who is a woman and would satisfy Japan's yen for a big seat at the UN.

And, yes, Jimmy Carter is rested and ready.

Sen. Bob Dole's days as Republican leader may be numbered as well.

GOP pollster Frank Luntz, a key member of House Speaker Newt Gingrich's brain trust, says Dole is out of step with younger, more ideological Republicans, and there will be more of them after next year's November elections.

"I think (Dole will be replaced as Senate leader) about a year or so from now ... whether he gets the (presidential) nomination or not," Luntz says.

With the United Nations and its peacekeeping Protection Force about to bail out of Bosnia, NATO and its 50,000-strong Peace Implementation Force is about to barrel in.

Look for the U.S. to contribute at least 20,000 soldiers, perhaps beginning as early as Halloween. Some in the White House wanted to offer no more than 7,000 or 8,000 troops to NATO, but the Pentagon argued for a disproportionately large force or none at all.

Note: That notion, by the way, is a legacy of Colin Powell's reign as joint chiefs chairman.

The list of major items on the

WASHINGTON CALLING

GOP legislative agenda being shelved until next year is growing and growing... Among them: Constitutional amendments to bring prayer to schools and limit terms for members of Congress, gutting the Endangered Species Act, and rewriting the crime bill, which will prompt an attempt to repeal the assault weapons ban.

NEWSMAKER: Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke spearheads U.S. efforts to broker a lasting cease-fire in Bosnia.

BACKGROUND: A quintessential Washington power player, Holbrooke joined the foreign service in 1962. He worked in Saigon with current National Security Adviser Tony Lake and assisted in the Paris Peace talks, then switched to the Peace Corps before being named assistant secretary of state for Asian affairs by President Carter. Left State for Wall Street after Carter was defeated.

Holbrooke surprised many in Washington when he accepted Clinton's offer to become ambassador to Germany, raised more eyebrows a year ago when he agreed to return to Washington and another mid-level job, albeit an important one as architect of U.S. policy in Bosnia.

OUTLOOK: It's still uncertain whether Holbrooke's bare-knuckles approach to Bosnia — he recommended the NATO bombing campaign that led to the current cease-fire — will bring lasting peace. If it does, success will bring openly ambitious Holbrooke that much closer to the Secretary's job he wants.

Brace for a 35-cent postal stamp, maybe by year end. Postal Service sources say a new round of wage hikes for postal workers make a rate increase inevitable.

Note: Postal Service admits 13 percent of all mail is delivered late, and the average first-class letter took 22 percent longer to deliver in 1990 than it did in 1969.

Political Notes:

Next week's televised "debate" among Republican presidential candidates will be short on fireworks. New Hampshire TV station sponsoring the event changed the format specifically to restrict sniping. Station says it acted after one participant brought up the issue but refused to say who that was. Logic points to GOP front-runner Bob Dole, who has the most to lose if the gloves come off...

Recent mood-of-America poll by GOP pollster Frank Luntz finds more Americans (67 percent) can name the Three Stooges than can name three members of the Supreme Court (17 percent)...

In a three-way race for president, Luntz finds Americans now support Colin Powell (35 percent) over both Clinton (26 percent) and Dole (25 percent). Powell's support is rising about 1 percent a week, could top 40 percent in a month.

The National Institute of Justice reports plans to certify DNA experts are nearing completion. Those getting the nod must have a bachelor's of science degree and pass a general knowledge exam, with recertification every five years.

Postal Service recommends the following deadlines for sending holiday packages overseas.

- Oct. 16 to Africa and South America.
 - Nov. 1 to Southeast Asia.
 - Nov. 6 to Australia, the Far East and Central America.
 - Nov. 13 to Europe and the Caribbean.
 - Nov. 27 to Canada.
- Later shipments can be made but will cost more.

And, suddenly, there was Opal

DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — While O.J. walked, Opal charged.

On Tuesday afternoon, as much of the nation came to a standstill to watch O.J. Simpson's acquittal, forecasters in the National Hurricane Center watched nervously — and unusually alone — as Opal's strength mounted.

It had been a busy year for hurricanes and a busy week for news, and the forecasters couldn't round up any reporters when Opal, idling near Mexico at the beginning of the week, strengthened far faster than the center's 100 years of records suggested it could.

Tuesday afternoon, Opal's winds were 100 mph; by Wednesday morning, they were 150 mph and threatening to go higher, and the storm was moving swiftly north.

"I think everybody was watching the O.J. trial. We were yesterday, all of it," Bill Fanning said Wednesday as he, his wife and their four children fled their home in Destin. "Now it's a panic."

If Opal didn't get any respect before its arrival, its departure left ruin and destruction that will provide reminders for years of its stunning fury.

Entire island communities were virtually destroyed. Half-million-dollar beachfront homes were obliterated. Houseboats were sunk and pleasure boats flung a half-mile inland.

The gentle slopes leading to the sugary sand that provides the southern Florida Panhandle's economic foundation were gouged; beaches that glittered a week ago were transformed into 10-foot cliffs that plunged into debris and sludge.

At least 18 people were killed as Opal swept north through Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina. Initial estimates were of $1.8 billion in damage to insured property, making the storm that followed the Trial of the Century the third-costliest hurricane in U.S. history.

When Panhandle residents awoke Wednesday morning, they began realizing they were in harm's way. The evacuation began quickly; it lasted hours. The Fannings quickly got stuck in heavy traffic; it took them six hours to travel 90 miles.

Wednesday afternoon, as hurricane-force winds began reaching inland, people began begging for shelter.

"You can't say no to anybody," said Micki Ransom, who had 15 people in her home in Crestview, 25 miles inland from the Gulf shore.

American Red Cross volunteers at the Crestview High School shelter had been told they could house 500. Nearly 1,000 lined locker halls and classrooms as the wind began crumpling storefronts and tearing down trees and utility poles.

As the hurricane struck, Destin resident Cindy West opened her door to find a desperate woman and her elderly mother, drawn to her home's generator-provided light as a beacon amid the dark whirlwind.

"It was so black, the wind was screaming. They felt like they were going to flip over if they kept driving," she said. "They said, 'You're our only hope.'"

At Harry T's Boathouse Restaurant on the harbor between Destin and Holiday Isle, manager Wayne Anderson decided he had begun evacuating too late and would have to ride it out in the sturdy restaurant. He took in eight other people, and they watched the hurricane through the harborside picture window.

As Anderson videotaped, a pontoon boat was pushed nearly a mile, ripping through two docks and then through "the Shark Shack," built for the filming of the movie "Jaws II," and onto shore. Boats were swamped, flipped and tossed, some landing on the other side of U.S. 98.

In the restaurant's terrace room, wind threw tables and chairs up and down and napkins and sweetener packets swirled eerily around and around in circles. "I call this the Poltergeist Room," Anderson said.

On Thursday morning, evacuees began returning to the Please see CPAL, page 7A

Refugees return but can't stay

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — All Darcy Wells has seen of her house since she fled Hurricane Opal was a fleeting glimpse on television.

"It looked like our house was standing in water," she said. "We saw it. It's there, but we couldn't tell what condition it was in."

Wells and other residents of the narrow barrier island that became the hurricane's ground zero were getting their first chance today to see their homes, if they are still there. For eight hours, they can inspect and shore up their property. But they were not being allowed to stay.

Some residents hope to return to their neighborhoods soon. But officials say it could be months before even basic infrastructure such as water, sewer and electrical power is restored to Santa Rosa Island.

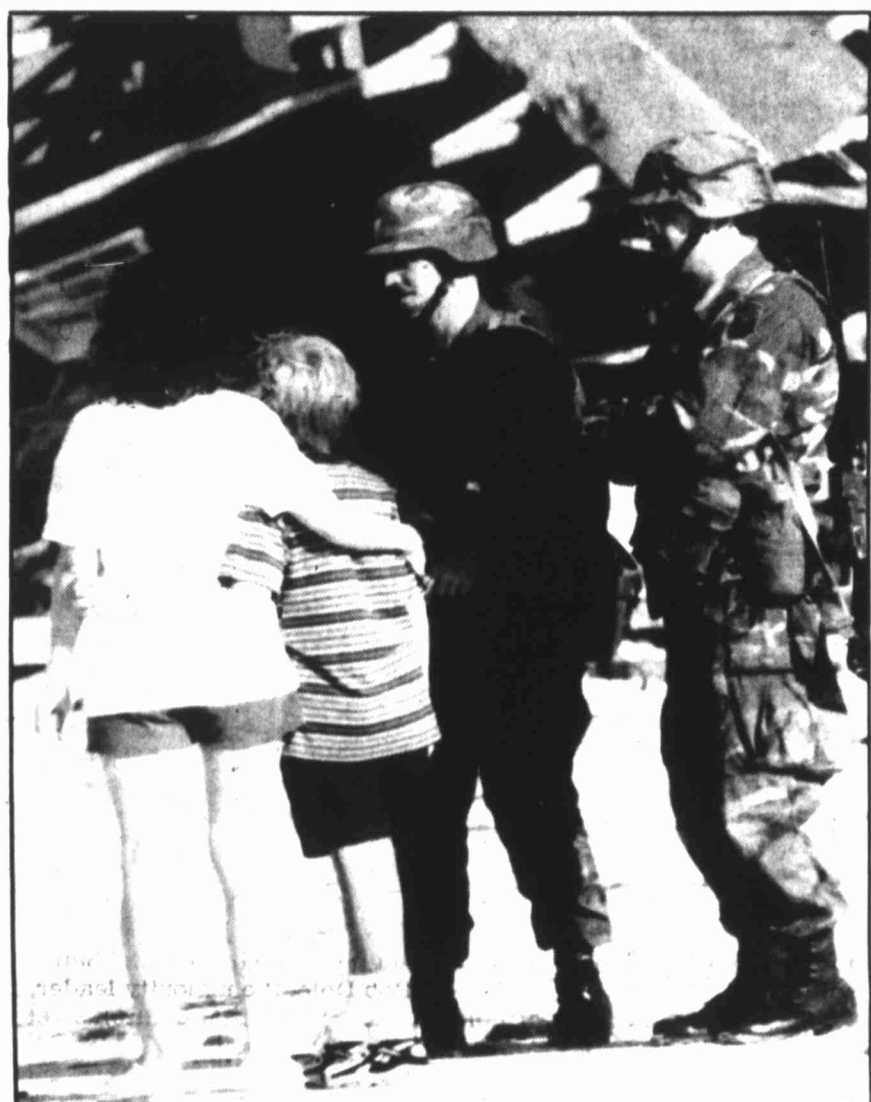

The island, a narrow ribbon of sand, scrub oak and sea oats, stretches nearly 50 miles from Pensacola east to Destin. Eglin Air Force Base and the Gulf Islands National Seashore own large, virtually undeveloped sections. Private development is limited to Pensacola Beach, Navarre Beach and a section at the east end owned by Okaloosa County.

That section and the Holiday Isle area of Destin were to remain closed to residents today. About two dozen people who live in those areas hadn't been heard from since the storm, but searchers Friday night failed to find any bodies or living victims, and authorities said the residents may simply have left after the storm.

The hurricane roared ashore Wednesday with 144 mph gusts, killing 18 people in four states. It caused an estimated $1.8 billion in damage to insured property along the Gulf of Mexico, making it the third-costliest hurricane in U.S. history.

Some people who took to a helicopter Friday to see what was left of Navarre Beach and Pensacola Beach burst into tears, said pilot Bill Pullum.

"I certainly did," said Mary

National Guardsmen Sgt. Michael Starkey of Defuniak Springs, Fla., left, and Spc. Brian Bowzer of Niceville, Fla., right, talk with residents of Mexico Beach, Fla., Saturday as they stroll the beachfront surveying destroyed homes caused by the storm surge of Hurricane Opal Wednesday. The National Guard has been deployed in the area to protect property from looting and help police while residents make their way back to their homes.

Rebholtz. She was inspecting houses for several friends, including some who suffered damage from Hurricane Erin two months ago. "One of my friends just got his roof on, and it's gone again."

Access was limited until today so authorities could begin clearing debris and sand off roads, check for hazards, search for possible storm victims and make sure bridges were sound.

Pensacola Beach residents were being allowed to drive onto the island but had to park their cars in a central lot and walk to their homes — several miles, in some cases — unless they had four-wheel-drive vehicles.

Navarre Beach residents were to be taken across a bridge there in National Guard vehicles. They were allowed only to look at their property, not bring anything back.

More than 600 law enforcement and National Guard personnel — some toting M-16 rifles — patrolled the region to protect property. Sheriff's deputies in the Panama City Beach area made 14 looting arrests between Thursday night and Friday night. Another 3,000 Guard troops helped at hospitals, shelters and nursing homes.

Thirty-one aircraft were being used to ferry in food and other supplies.

Power was still out to more than 1.1 million people. Two-thirds of the outages were in Alabama, where entire towns, as well as some of Birmingham's suburbs, were without electricity.

And in Tallahassee, refugees from the storm had to make way for football fans who had booked the city's hotel rooms long ago for today's Miami-Florida State game. The Red Cross opened a shelter for people who lost their rooms so hotels could honor fans' reservations.

Carjacker given life sentence

TYLER (AP) — A 20-year-old man who was convicted for his part in a fatal 1994 carjacking will receive life in prison after prosecutors earlier waived the death penalty.

Jurors deliberated for about two hours before finding Donald Ray Coleman guilty of capital murder in the death of Tyler civic leader John Luttig.

The conviction comes almost seven months after co-defendant Napoleon Beazley of Grapeland was convicted as the triggerman and sentenced to die for the April 19, 1994, slaying.

Coleman and his brother, who has yet to stand trial, had testified that Beazley initiated the carjacking because he wanted "to see what it's like to kill somebody."

Coleman must serve at least 40 years before becoming eligible for parole. But the sentence won't begin until after Coleman completes a sentence of 43 years and nine months on federal carjacking and firearms charges, state District Judge Cynthia Kent decided Friday.

Coleman rejected an offer for a plea bargain in September that would have allowed the two terms to be served at the same time and made him eligible for parole about 30 years sooner.

He said then that he could not accept the offer because it would require him to plead guilty to the killing. He said he witnessed the crime, but was not the triggerman.

"If I plead guilty, I would be lying to myself and I'd be lying to God," he told the Tyler Morning Telegraph during a previous interview.

Coleman's brother, Cedrick Coleman, also is charged with capital murder. He is to stand trial next month in the 114th District Court.

Outside the courtroom Friday, Coleman apologized to the victim's wife, Mrs. Bobbie Luttig, who survived the attack uninjured.

"I love her and I'm sorry for what happened to her husband," Coleman said. "I never wanted that to happen."

Quarantine ripples through state, threatening events including Fair

DALLAS (AP) — Ripples from a livestock virus scare are starting to rock a variety of events around Northeast Texas, including the state fair.

The Texas Animal Health Commission clamped the quarantine on parts of three East Texas counties earlier this week after highly contagious vesicular stomatitis was diagnosed in a horse near Henderson.

The disease affects horses, cattle, sheep, goats and deer, causing blisters in and around the animals' mouths, hooves and teats.

The 30-day quarantine affects parts of Rusk, Smith and Cherokee counties within a 10-mile radius of Henderson. But the scare extends to Dallas, 125 miles to the west.

The disease threat prompted the State Fair of Texas on Friday to cancel a riding competition scheduled for next week. It also prompted the Canadian Mounted Police to delay for a month returning their horses home after a show at the fair.

It also forced Dallas Police Chief Ben Click to call off a Friday photo opportunity at the fairgrounds to promote a police benefit rodeo.

Commission divided over FFA plan to build jail

PROGRESO (AP) — A plan for the Future Farmers of America at the Progreso High School to build a city jail for $150 has divided the City Commission, with opponents concerned about liability.

The commission approved the project 3-2 on Wednesday.

Alderman Juan Serna said he is confident that the youths, who have won prizes at stock shows for welding, are qualified for the job. Mainly, they'll work on welding the bars on the holding cell.

The 99-year-old town, which incorporated three years ago, has struggled with financial difficulties.

"We're just trying to save the city a little money," Serna said.

But Alderman Saul Valdez opposes the plan, saying no bidding was done and proper procedures were ignored.

"They don't have a plan from an engineer," he said.

Survival of prairie chickens after release a good sign

HOUSTON (AP) — Although only one quarter of the Attwater's prairie chickens that were part of a captivity breeding project have survived more than a month, officials say they are pleased with the results.

Thirteen prairie chickens from the Houston Zoo and the Fossil Rim Wildlife Center near Dallas were released to the wild on Aug. 21. Three were still alive Friday at a national wildlife refuge near Eagle Lake.

The release marked the first time that captive-bred members of the endangered grouse species have been set free.

"To the normal Joe Public, it probably doesn't sound like a very good release, but we're tickled pink," said Terry Rossignol, acting manager of the refuge.

"We knew we would have some mortality and figured that after a couple of months we wouldn't have any (of the captive-bred birds) left," he said.

"The fact that a quarter of them are remaining is very encouraging to us."

Biologists regard the captive breeding program as the last hope for helping the species avoid extinction. Scientists consider the prairie chicken, which is unique to Texas, one of the nation's most severely endangered species.

The prairie chicken had a population in 1900 of 1 million. As of Friday, there were 84 Attwater's prairie chickens living at the zoo, Fossil Rim and a third breeding center at Texas A&M University. At the refuge and elsewhere in Texas, officials estimated in an annual census last spring that 68 of the birds were still alive in the wild.

The birds were equipped with radio collars before their release so reasons for mortality might be learned to aid future releases.

Of the 13 birds, three are still alive at the refuge, one was returned to the zoo where it recovered from possible dehydration and nine are known to have died, Rossignol said.

One of the prairie chickens that died showed signs of a fungal infection, one appeared to have been killed by a bird of prey such as an owl, one was apparently killed by a mammal such as a coyote or bobcat, six died of undetermined causes.

The next release of captive-bred prairie chickens may occur next spring, after annual hatchings at breeding centers.

Demos say GOP Medicaid cuts threaten nursing home care

WASHINGTON — Republican proposals to overhaul Medicaid would repeal federal standards for quality of care in nursing homes, according to Senate Democrats and advocates for the elderly.

Republicans seeking to balance the federal budget have proposed cutting the growth of Medicaid, which provides medical assistance to 36 million low-income elderly and disabled patients, by $182 billion, or 30 percent, over seven years.

"Two of the cruelest aspects of the plan are the elimination of any federal quality standards for nursing homes and the elimination of any federal financial protection for the families of those needing nursing home care," according to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Republican proposals in the House and Senate that would convert the federal Medicaid program into block grants for the states also would eliminate Medicaid's federal nursing home standards.

Advocates say the law has dramatically reduced the use of sedatives, physical restraints and the abuse of patients in some nursing homes that were documented by a National Academy of Sciences study.

"The federal standards passed in 1987 have ended much of this unconscionable abuse and achieved substantial improvement in the quality of care for nursing home residents," Kennedy said. "It is difficult to believe that anyone, no matter how extreme their ideology, would take us back to the harsh conditions before 1987."

In a forum held by Kennedy late last week, Medicaid recipients, advocates for the elderly and nursing home operators warned that the standards passed in a 1987 law were essential to safeguarding against abuse and neglect.

A Kennedy aide said Saturday the forums were held to shed light on Republican Medicaid proposals and counter assertions that people who can afford to pay are taking advantage of the system.

The aide said Republicans would lead voters to believe "nursing homes are ... filled by millionaires, and clearly that's not the case."

Republicans say that the states are capable of setting nursing home standards. Critics counter that the law was passed because they had failed to do so.

Morris Kaplan, owner of the Gwynedd Square Nursing Center in Lansdale, Pa., told Kennedy's panel that the Republican plan "specifically repeals one of the only pieces of federal law that protects residents of nursing homes from abuse, neglect or bad care."

Rep. Thomas J. Bliley, R-Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee told reporters that Republicans were determined to end "an eight-year experiment with federalization of nursing home standards."

'Snacking Bandit' gets a taste of justice

NEW YORK (AP) — The burglar had an appetite for jewelry, cash, computers and leftover pizza, acquiring the nickname "The Snacking Bandit."

Now authorities are serving up some justice.

Paul Keller, 30, was arrested Thursday after he went to police, saying he was the victim of a robbery, police Capt. Bernard Gillespie said.

The officer taking his report noticed he fit the description of "The Snacking Bandit," suspected in 11 break-ins. Keller was picked out of lineup by one of the victims, Gillespie said.

Keller was charged in the May 19 burglary of an apartment and the robbery of its occupant, a 32-year-old woman.

130,000 hear Pope's plea to stand up for family life

NEW YORK (AP) — Central Park was transformed into a giant open-air cathedral Saturday as Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass before a flock of 130,000, urging Americans to stand up for family life and side with the homeless, the disabled and people with AIDS.

"Do not be afraid to search for God. Then it will truly be the land of the free and the home of the brave," the pope said at the end of the service. "God bless America."

The celebration was the pope's farewell Mass in the New York region during his five-day U.S. trip, and the city the pontiff describes as "God's playground" did not disappoint.

A gold carpet in the shape of a cross stretched across the Great Lawn, while performers such as Natalie Cole, Roberta Flack and the Boys Choir of Harlem were among the performers who filled the park with sacred music in the muted light of a cloudy October morning. The tenor Placido Domingo sang at Communion.

Beneath the dramatic Manhattan skyline, where the silhouettes of tall buildings seemed to form cathedral spires rising gracefully beyond an expansive border of greenery and trees, the pope celebrated Mass on a majestic stage framed by a cross embrodered with a sea of faces.

There wasn't only love.

Outside Central Park, 35 sign-carrying demonstrators from American Atheists marched before Mass.

The cross that will serve as the backdrop for today's mass celebrated by Pope John Paul Iooms over Camden Yards. The Pope wraps up his visit in Baltimore.

Support growing for creation of emergency bailout fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is picking up support for creation of a $50 billion emergency bailout fund to deal with future Mexican-style financial crises, but the Clinton administration concedes it hasn't yet resolved the question of how it will be financed.

Top finance officials from the world's seven richest industrial countries — the United States, Japan, Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada — were meeting today at the U.S. Treasury to address the issue of future national crises and other problems facing the world economy.

Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan and their counterparts were expected to spend considerable time reviewing the wide swings in currencies this year that saw the dollar plunge to record lows against both the Japanese yen and the German mark in April.

Since then, the U.S. dollar has rebounded, regaining all of the ground it lost. Much of the recovery has been credited to successful policy coordination between the so-called Group of Seven, or G-7, countries. Rubin said at a pre-meeting news conference that officials wanted to explore ways to strengthen that coordination.

The meeting of top finance officials from the seven largest economies was being held in advance of the annual meetings starting Sunday of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

waterfront, not sure what they would see. Some were shocked at what they couldn't see — entire homes had vanished amid the storm's powerful surge, along with miles of beach.

"This is just unreal," said Santa Rosa Beach resident Jo Henderson. "I'm in shock."

"I expected to see some beach erosion, but I didn't have a clue it would be anything like this," said Joan Harris, looking at the ravaged gap between her Miramar Beach condominium and the gulf.

Down the street, residents scratched their heads and tried to remember how many houses had been there before. On the beach at Destin, Greg Lockley started drawing a diagram with his finger in the sand.

"It's so hard to tell anymore where anything was," he said. "That dune used to come quite a ways," he said, pacing off about 20 steps. "Now it's all gone."

Jan Oswell walked 10 miles up and down her beloved beaches around her home in Blue Mountain Beach. Hours later, she was still stunned.

"I haven't had a good cry yet," she said, shaking her head and showing Polaroid snapshots of beach scenes from a few weeks earlier.

It will take years to restore the beaches, if they can ever be restored, and many months to rebuild the ruined homes. Some Panhandle residents still hadn't been able to get their homes repaired from Hurricane Erin's damage two months earlier because workers were too backlogged.

There were outbursts of frustration and anger, especially from some residents kept away from barrier islands where authorities were trying to create safe conditions and account for missing people. A National Guardsman carried an M-16 as Destin residents lined up Friday for the first gasoline available since the storm.

Yet, as the week ended, many residents seemed philosophical and determined, relieved to be alive. One evacuee placed a large sign outside his house, reading: "Thanks, Lord."

"I won't be without a boat for long," said Dennis Johnson, who lost his uninsured $20,000 houseboat. "This is just a price we have to pay for living here."

"It's just a small setback," carpenter Billy Forrest said as he resumed work Friday on a new $175,000 beachfront house. "We'll just build back better and stronger, I guess."

Fighting heavy prior to cease-fire

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The government and rebel Serbs reported heavy fighting in northwestern Bosnia today as the two sides battled for position before settling into a cease-fire.

In the Bosnian capital, officials met to plan a mine-clearing operation to pave the way for repairing electrical cables and restoring power to the city — one of the chief conditions for the truce to take effect on Tuesday.

"Let no one think that peace is imminent or around the corner," cautioned U.S. envoy Richard Holbrooke, who negotiated the cease-fire accord announced Thursday by President Clinton.

In Croatia, President Franjo Tudjman on Friday acknowledged for the first time that Serb civilians had fallen victim to murder, looting and arson after a three-day Croatian army offensive in early August to retake Serb-held territory.

Serbs resumed heavy attacks on Bosanska Krupa, about 125 miles northwest of Sarajevo, early today, state-run Sarajevo radio reported. It said government forces were weathering hundreds of shells and holding their positions.

Bosnian Serb media claimed that the government forces were fleeing in panic, and that government artillery was retaliating by shelling residential areas. Bosnian Serb television said four civilians had been killed by the shelling.

There was no U.N. confirmation of the reports.

Several tough conditions must be met before the Bosnian truce can take effect, including restoration of natural gas and electricity service to Sarajevo and the opening of routes to the eastern government enclave of Gorazde.

If these measures are in place in time, the 60-day truce will begin at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday (7:01 p.m. EDT Monday). If the work is not completed, the truce will be delayed.

Bosnian government and allied Croat officials met with rebel Serbs at Sarajevo's airport this morning to discuss a mine-clearing operation. The work was to begin later in the day to allow repair of two main high voltage cables into the city.

The accord has awakened high hopes. Though many previous truces have failed, the warring parties now seem genuinely interested in trying to settle their disputes in negotiations — even if skirmishes have surged in last-minute maneuvering for position.

Holbrooke, the U.S. envoy, already has brokered preliminary agreements on the division of Bosnia between Bosnian Serbs and a Croat-Muslim federation, and a power-sharing arrangement in a future government.

The cease-fire is intended to lead to negotiations on the details, scheduled to start Oct. 25 in the United States.

Responsibility for French bombings claimed by Algerian Muslim militants

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An Algerian Muslim militant group has claimed responsibility for a series of deadly bomb attacks that have rocked France since the summer.

A statement dated Sept. 23 from the Armed Islamic Group said it would keep up the attacks to punish France for interfering in Algeria's domestic affairs and because French President Jacques Chirac had ignored its call to convert to Islam.

"We are continuing with all our strength our steps of holy war and military attacks, and this time in the heart of France and its largest cities ... to prove that nothing will stand in our way so long as it is done for the sake of God," said the statement, sent to a Western news agency in Cairo.

There was no immediate word on why the statement was dated Sept. 23 but only released Saturday. The statement was signed by Abu Abdel-Rahman, a known leader of the Algerian militant group; its authenticity could not immediately be determined, but contents were in line with past statements by the group.

Another bomb exploded Friday in a trash can in Paris, wounding 13 people, just hours after Khaled Kelkal, the Algerian-born suspect in the bombings, was buried. He was killed in a gunbattle with police near Lyon a week ago.

It was the seventh bombing or attempted bombing since July 25, when a gas canister similar to the one on Friday exploded in a regional subway station in Paris, killing seven people and injuring 84.

Officials have linked the attacks to Muslim militants targeting France for its financial support of Algeria's military-installed government. A 31/2-year-old Islamic insurgency in Algeria has left more than 30,000 people dead.

Quake kills 100 in Sumatra

PADANG, Indonesia (AP) — A huge earthquake wrenched the island of Sumatra before dawn Saturday, killing at least 100 people, injuring hundreds and leaving tens of thousands homeless or afraid to return to their damaged houses.

The magnitude 7 quake did the most damage in a remote valley region in south-central Sumatra's Jambi province. It flattened houses, triggered landslides and overwhelmed the region's ill-equipped hospitals. At least 252 people were injured, officials said.

"We were all in deep sleep when the house started to shake and sway," said Ngatimin, a municipal worker in Sungaipenuh, about 10 miles from epicenter.

The 1:09 a.m. quake was felt 100 miles away in Padang, a city of about 500,000, but there were no injuries or damage reported. It was strong enough to wake up people in Singapore and Malaysia, hundreds of miles away from the epicenter.

Rescuers, hampered by heavy rains and poor communications, recovered 70 bodies from under the rubble of buildings and mounds of mud by nightfall Saturday when the search was called off.

Steers out-gain, but fail to out-score, Levelland in final pre-district tune-up

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers wanted to use Friday's game with Levelland to build some momentum toward their district-opening game with San Angelo Lake View next week.

Instead, the only thing that's growing in the Steers' camp is frustration.

For the second time this season, Big Spring won the battle of the statistics but not the scoreboard, dropping a 31-29 non-district decision to the Loboes Friday night in Memorial Stadium.

The Steers (1-4) are a young team, and their inevitable growing pains are bound to be frustrating to both them and fans. But don't include BSBS head coach Dwight Butler in that group.

"We've got 10 sophomores and a freshman on this team, so we knew it would be tough sledding," Butler said. "I'm not going to make any excuses, though. I'm proud of our young men, and I feel they can still be winners this year."

Mistakes and missed opportunities plagued the Steers Friday night. After taking their opening possession 62 yards for a touchdown, the Steers appeared primed to blow Levelland right off the field. But turnovers on its next three possessions - two fumbles and an interception - stalled Big Spring's momentum and allowed Levelland to regroup.

The Loboes did that midway through the first quarter, when quarterback Pat Smith capped a 45-yard drive by sweeping around right end 18 yards for the score. Levelland's 7-6 lead would hold through halftime.

In the second half, both team's offenses, came alive. The difference was that Levelland's attack was just a bit livelier than Big Spring.

"It wasn't so much any adjustments we made. We just quit making mistakes," said Levelland coach Tom Ramsey. "The score went from 7-6 at the half to 31-29 at the end, so you can see that the offenses came alive for both teams."

SWC Raiders shock Aggies

LUBBOCK (AP) - Texas Tech's Zach Thomas, so weak from the flu he couldn't practice most of the week, had 13 tackles and ran back an interception 23 yards for a touchdown with 30 seconds to play, giving the Red Raiders a stunning 14-7 victory Saturday over No. 8 Texas A&M.

"I faked the blitz and read the quarterback's eyes and cut the ball off," Thomas said. "I saw the end zone and just ran for the line."

Thomas also had 13 tackles as the Aggies' record 29-game unbeaten string in Southwest Conference play came to an end.

Lady Steers break out of funk, down Fort Stockton

By DARRELL ERICSON
Sportswriter

The nightmare is over. The Big Spring Lady Steers gained their first District 4-4A win of the season, 16-14, 3-15, 15-12, over the Fort Stockton Prowlers Saturday at Steer Gym.

Mandy Morrow's serving helped the Lady Steers move out to an early 5-0 lead in game one. Then, the Lady Steers met the destructive force of Fort Stockton's Talmie Smith. Smith accumulated 23 kills during the match. Big Spring head volleyball coach Traci Pierce said, "Smith is an unbelievable player. She is powerful on the net. It makes me glad she is graduating."

Smith brought the Prowlers back into the game. Continuing to deliver the powerful kills, Smith paced the Prowlers to a 12-9 lead.

However, the Prowlers, on game point 14-13, lost the serve. Molly Smith stepped up to serve an ace and tied the game 14-14. An unreturnable block by Tosha Wilbert regained the lead and on another block Wilbert scored the winning point.

The Lady Steers fell back into their all-to-familiar recent rut, however, losing their second game 15-3.

Fort Stockton climbed to a 6-0 lead before the Lady Steers even touched the ball. Amy Cordova continued the Prowlers scoring on 12 serves.

"We were coming off a high from the first game and weren't mentally weren't ready to play. We allowed Smith to intimidate us," Pierce said.

The third game demonstrated how momentum can switch with the blink of an eye.

The lead switched hands numerous times and it soon became a battle for momentum.

Wilbert and Smith slowly began to capture the momentum and began a steady climb to the win. The score soon became tied 10-10, and went back and forth until the Lady Steers held match point at 14-12. Wilbert then added another kill to score the winning point.

"The girls dug down deep and didn't give up. I am as proud as I can be. We learned a lesson today - how to win. It was a confidence builder and the players are ready to win again," Pierce said.

Top scorers in the match for Big Spring were Morrow with 8, Stephanie Jones with 7, and Smith with 10. Wilbert had 10 kills and six blocks.

The Lady Steers are now 1-5 in district play and face Lamesa Tuesday at 5 p.m. in Steer Gym.

The junior varsity and freshmen also won.

The junior varsity went to a three-game match dropping the Prowlers, 15-10, 10-15, 15-5.

The Freshman won in an 8-15, 15-6, 15-10 match.

Offense paces Coahoma

By DARRELL ERICSON

COAHOMA - They can run and they can pass. It was that simple, really.

It was Coahoma's offense that led the Bulldogs to a win Friday night against Hawley.

Scoring virtually every time they got their hands on the ball, Coahoma defeated Hawley 42-13.

Four minutes into the first quarter the Bulldogs scored their first points on a 3-yard run by Kelby Bailey and an extra point by Jay McHugh. The Bulldogs' offense, led by Adam Tindol, drove 83 yards to set up Bailey's touchdown run.

Bailey said, "The offense is improving every week and we showed it tonight. The offensive line did a great job blocking, they opened the holes and gave us a place to run."

Holding the ball for eight minutes for the remainder of the first quarter and two minutes of the second, the Bearkats responded with their first touchdown.

Thirty-three of the 50 yards on the drive was gained by Hawley's Jeremy Thompson, who scored on a 4-yard run. Thompson totaled 31 carries for 121 yards.

Coahoma's head coach Eddie McHugh said, "(Thompson) is a good ball player. His size and speed makes him hard to stop. He's a 220-pound fullback who can run the ball."

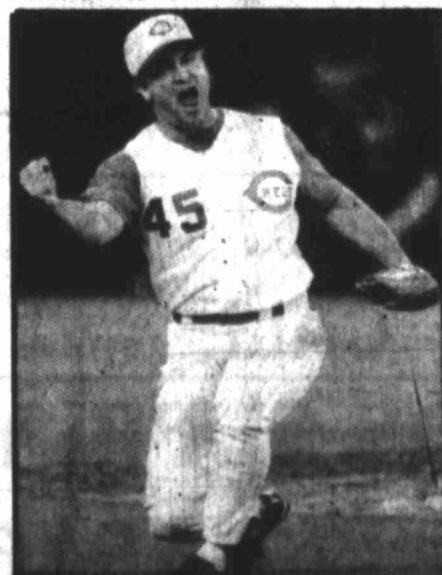

Despite Thompson's TD, the Bulldogs continued to dominate the first half.

Tindol completed touchdown passes of 10 yards to Matthew Hamilton and a 25 yards to

Aikman probable for Packers

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Mike Holmgren heard this song before from an old familiar score.

It was a chilling scenario: A substitute quarterback for injured Troy Aikman has a career day for the Dallas Cowboys, and the Green Bay Packers lose.

"We've been through this with Troy before," said the Green Bay coach. "Jason Garrett got us last Thanksgiving Day. Now, Wade Wilson is going to try to do the same thing."

Well, not so fast. Aikman announced Friday that he will start on Sunday against the Packers - on one condition.

The only way his strained right calf muscle will be able to hold up is if the Cowboys' offensive line gives Aikman even more protection than normal.

"I'm not outrunning anybody, I promise you that," Aikman said.

BSHS tennis team routs Monahans; Andrews showdown next

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

As warmup acts go, it wasn't bad. The Big Spring High School tennis team built momentum toward this week's showdown with Andrews by demolishing Monahans, 16-2, in team action at Figure 7 Tennis Center Saturday morning.

The Steers, ranked 10th in the state 4A polls, got their usual overpowering performance from the boys' side of the ledger, but the pleasant surprise Saturday came from the Big Spring girls, who dominated Monahans en route to dropping only two matches.

Big Spring exerted control early in the contest, winning all six doubles matches. Despite singles losses by Stephanie Lewis and Yu-Ching Li, the Steers coasted home with the win.

Paced by top seed Hsuan-Hsiao Li, the BSHS boys blanked a district opponent for the second straight contest. The Steers didn't drop a set en route to the whitewash. BSHS coach Ralph Davis was using the Monahans match as a barometer for how his team would fare Tuesday against District 4-4A rival Andrews. Andrews defeated Monahans 13-5 last week in the first round of league competition.

"If we came out with only three or four losses, that's close to what Andrews did to Monahans, so this would be an indication of the type of blood-bath we'll have in Andrews," Davis said. "They're gunning for us, and they're tired of us dominating the district. Their whole team goal is to beat us."

If Saturday was any indication, Andrews will have its hands full. If Big Spring was supposed to have a weakness this season, it was on the girls' side, which is predominantly freshmen and sophomores. But Li said the BSHS girls will surprise people.

"I think the girls will hold up," he said. "They have a lot of freshmen, and they haven't played a lot, but they can make the shots."

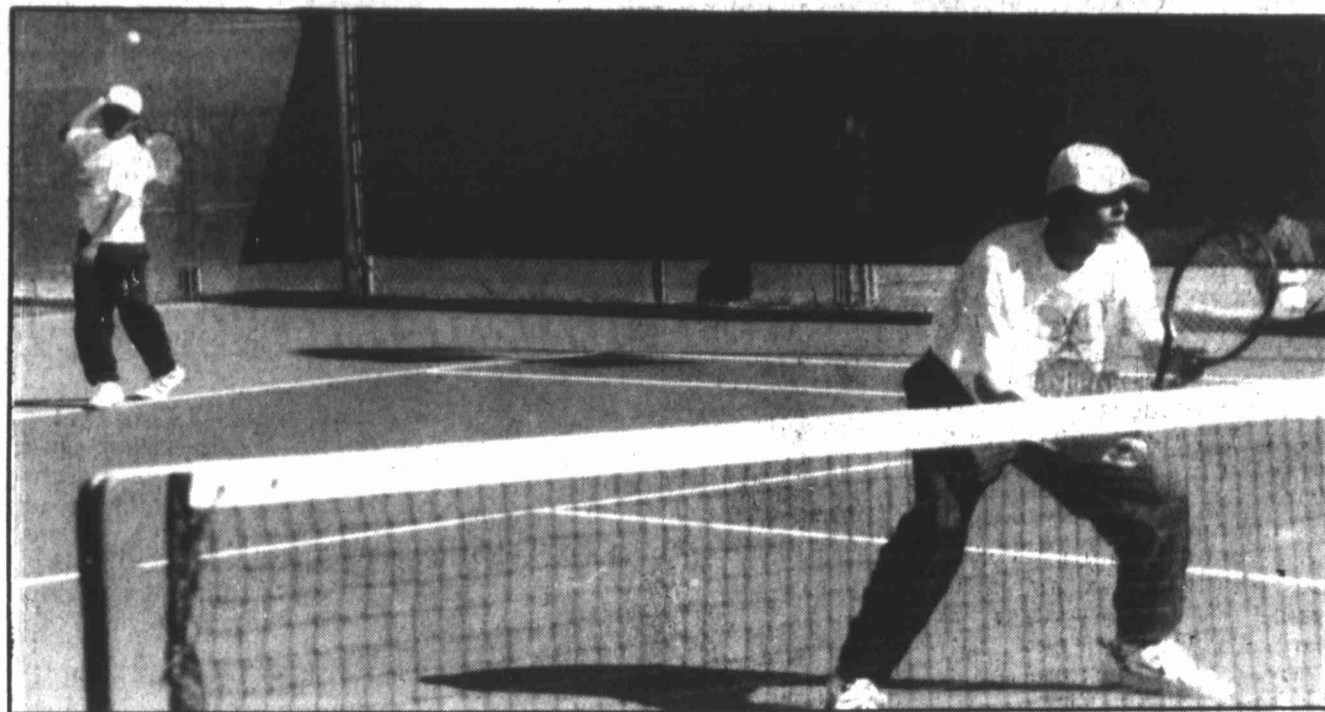

Big Spring travels to Andrews for its showdown with the Mustangs. Matches begin at 4 p.m.

Torres second at Lubbock meet

LUBBOCK - Big Spring cross country runner Marco Torres had the top local time at Saturday's Texas Tech Invitational, finishing second in the junior varsity boys' division.

Torres clocked a time of 17:45 to beat all but one of the 113 runners in the JV field. Other BSHS JV times were: Gus Ottoni, 52nd, 19:39; Jason Canales, 54th, 19:45; and Roy Ortega, 59th, 20:02.

Big Spring fielded a full team only in the varsity girls' division, and finished 17th out of 26 teams. The top local time was clocked by Tonya Phifer, who finished 39th in a time of 13:20, a personal best for her. Other BSHS finishes included: Marisol Carnero, 73rd, 13:46; Daun Shubert, 86th, 14:03; Naomi Arguero, 111th, 14:20; Zareth Valdez, 131rd, 14:45; and "I was pretty pleased with Marco, and the girls did pretty good, too," BSHS coach Randy Britton said. "You take some Levelland (4-1) received a second-half boost from tailback Michael Franklin, who scored three touchdowns and gained all but 27 of his 130 yards in the final two quarters.

Franklin's first score, a 2-yard plunge over the right side of the line, capped Levelland's first drive of the second half. That score temporarily quieted the crowd, but the Steers soon had their fans cheering again.

On the ensuing drive, quarterback Bucky Crenshaw engineered a 69-yard march which included passes of 14 yards to Daniel Franks and 17 yards to Marc Baker. Crenshaw then ended the drive with a 1-yard TD sneak, and passed to Franks for the two-point conversion and a 14-14 tie.

The good times didn't last very long for Big Spring, however. Three minutes into the fourth quarter, Levelland's Jakiki Garrett fielded a Todd McAdams punt at the Loboes' 43 and zoomed down the right sideline before being tackled at the Steers' 1. A play later, Franklin added another touchdown and a 21-14 lead.

Franklin scored his third touchdown of the night on a 50-yard run, and Russ Alexander booted a 33-yard field goal to give the Loboes enough of a cushion to win.

The loss dropped the Steers to 1-4 for the season, hardly an enviable record heading into district play. Butler, however, is not ready to count his team out.

"It starts for real for us next Friday. That's what we've been waiting for," Butler said. "I think they've proved in the last two weeks that they're not going to quit, and that's all you can ask for from these young men."

Big Spring and Lake View will tangle in San Angelo Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Tech

stormed the field to celebrate the victory — the first by any SWC team over the Aggies since a 28-27 Texas win in 1990. The Aggies were tied by SMU, 21-21, last year.

"I was proud of our team because we could have let up a million times, and we never did," Tech coach Spike Dykes said after his first victory over a Top 10 opponent. "We never panicked when we made mistakes, and we never got our heads down."

Tech (2-2, 1-1 SWC) forced five turnovers and held Leeland McElroy — the nation's leader in all-purpose yards — to 80 total yards. McElroy had been averaging 16 points per game; he scored just once Saturday.

The victory preserves the conference championship hopes of the Red Raiders, who lost 9-7 to Baylor last week.

Once aspiring for a national championship, Texas A&M (2-2, 0-1) now is on a two-game losing streak, having fallen 29-21 two weeks ago to No. 4 Colorado.

"We are not accustomed to this," said A&M coach R.C. Slocum. "This is a bitter experience. The disappointing thing is that we played so poorly. The defense played pretty well, but we struggled offensively."

Turnovers made the difference for the Red Raiders, who recovered all four of their fumbles. The Aggies lost two fumbles, and Corey Pullig was picked off three times.

Both teams combined to miss four field goals. And Tech had one field goal negated by an illegal-motion penalty. The Aggies blocked one Tech three-point attempt.

The Aggies took advantage of two poor Tech punts into the wind to get possession in Red Raider territory twice in the final five minutes, but couldn't move close enough for a field goal. For Thomas, a senior middle linebacker who had the flu and didn't practice until Thursday, the game-winning interception was the sixth pickoff of his career.

McElroy had been considered a leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy by averaging 132 rushing yards per game. But this time, he made just 80 yards on 27 carries and he sprained his left ankle in the third quarter. He was tackled for a loss seven times.

Pullig completed 20 of 46 attempts for 246 yards. A&M rushers added 101 yards compared to just 34 Tech yards rushing.

Texas 37, Rice 13. AUSTIN (AP) — For a half, No. 20 Texas looked like the team that lost to Rice last year for the first time in 29 years.

Fortunately for the Longhorns, the offense made up for a poor-tackling defense and Texas scored 24 unanswered points in the second half to beat Rice 37-13 Saturday.

"The good thing about football is there are two halves. Thank goodness for that, because the first half, we didn't play the way we should," Texas coach John Mackovic said.

"We missed so many tackles and gave them so many opportunities. Offensively we were sharp in the second half. We moved down the field and had very few miscues."

Ricky Williams ran for two touchdowns and James Brown threw for two as Texas (4-1, 2-0 Southwest Conference) avenged a bitter 19-17 loss to the Owls (1-3-1, 0-1) last year.

Texas got little help from its defense, which gave up 428 yards, including 275 on the ground. Rice had 253 yards in the first half as the Longhorns repeatedly let the Owls slip through their arms.

Mike McMillan to give the Bulldogs a 21-7 halftime lead.

Hawley's offense, which consisted mainly of Thompson running the ball, didn't account for many points but took plenty of time off the clock. The Bearcats had an eight-minute drive in the third quarter, but failed to capitalize.

The scoring resumed four minutes into the fourth quarter when Tindol connected with McMillan for a 17-yard touchdown.

Thompson followed three minutes later on a 8-yard run which made the score 28-13.

Tindol later scored on a 15-yard run.

With a 4-1 record, Coahoma will face off against Winters in the Bulldogs' District 6-2A opener next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Area roundup: C-City smokes Lubbock Cooper; Forsan falls

COLORADO CITY - The Colorado City Wolves rolled past Lubbock Cooper to gain their third pre-district win. It was Lubbock Cooper who got on the scoreboard first but the Wolves rallied to defeat Cooper, 21-6.

Cooper's Justin Bagwell broke a first quarter deadlock running for a 2-yard score off a pass from Greg Armes. The extra point kick went wide.

Minutes later, Colorado's Lynn Boyd caught a pass from Frank Espinoza and raced 52 yards for the score. The extra point gave the Wolves a 7-6 halftime lead.

A 3-yard touchdown run in the third quarter by Arian Emmerson, and a 6-yarder by Chris Fambro in the fourth quarter put the game out of reach for Colorado City.

Espinoza finished the game with 172 yards passing and Boyd received 111 yards receiving with a touchdown.

"This is just what we needed going into district play. We talked about it all week and that was a big factor of going in and playing well. We had a great all-around effort," Colorado's head coach Bill Grissom said.

The win lifts Colorado to 3-2 for the season while Cooper dropped to 2-2.

The Wolves will begin district play against Crane next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

"Sterling City played a good ball game. We just missed some chances to score. We had to make some on-hand adjustments to compensate for some lost kids and that was tough on the players."

Forsan will face off with Stanton next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Iraan 28 Stanton 0

IRAAN - The victory in the battle of the unbeaten went to the Iraan Braves Friday night.

Iraan continues to be a problem for Stanton. The Braves have beaten the Buffaloes by one point in the last two seasons, and have not lost to them since 1989.

Iraan, which was listed in the Associated Press' top 10, improved to a 5-0 record while Stanton fell to 4-1.

Iraan's Heath Copeland had three touchdowns to put a dent in the Stanton effort. Stanton's running back Todd Davis had 123 yards on 12 carries, but Stanton could not find the goal line.

"We made some mental mistakes on offense which we never made before. We had six turnovers, four of them in the third, which killed us," Stanton's head coach Mark Cotton said.

"The only good aspect that arose out of the loss was the pressure situation. We will be there again and hopefully we won't make those mistakes again. Right now we have to recover and get ready for next week," Cotton added.

Stanton opens district play next week with a homecoming game against Forsan at 7:30 p.m.

GARDEN CITY - The Garden City Bearkats will go into district play with a win under their belt. By defeating Christoval the Bearkats upped their record to 1-4.

Christoval was leading going into halftime 18-16, but was shut out during the second half. The Bearkats totaled 306 yards of offense, compared to Christoval's 169.

Garden City will face off against Sterling City next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Sands 52 Meadow 6

ACKERLY - The Sands Mustangs and Steven Gillespie dominated the Meadow Bronchos 52-6 in six-man action.

Gillespie scored on a 60-yard punt return, a 35-yard pass from DeLynn Reed, and a 75-yard kickoff return to start the third quarter.

Dallas Hopper started the game in the first quarter on a 5-yard run and added another 5-yard TD run in the second quarter.

Reed hit Micheal Wiginton for a 6-yard pass to end the first half scoring.

When Justin Hambrick scored from a yard out with 7:39 remaining on the clock, the 45-point rule was enforced and the game was called.

Sand totaled 310 yards in 2 1/2 quarters while limiting Meadow to one total yard on offense. Meadow's score was on a 72-yard interception return by Nickolas Seaton.

Sands' head coach Billy Barnett said, "The offense performed a lot sharper than last week. The backs did a good job. We ran and threw the ball real well."

Not worrying about records or wins, Barnett now concentrates on Wellman. "Wellman has a good ball club and we are going have to be ready. It is a whole new week starting Monday and the 5-0 record doesn't matter. It a new season."

The Mustangs, now 5-0, will face off with Wellman next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

PATRICIA - The Klondike Cougars totaled 237 yards rushing and 158 yards passing to improve their record to 5-0 in their Friday night victory over Ropes.

Tanner Etheredge completed 11 of 21 passes and threw four touchdowns. He also had a 49-yard TD run. Lon Estes had three touchdowns by way of a 1 and 8-yard run, and a 26-yard pass from Etheredge.

Etheredge added to his passing average when he connected on long passes to James Rawlings and Chris Arismendiz. Rawlings scored on a 45-yard pass while Arismendiz added points with a 40-yard pass.

The offense was not the only ones having fun. Clayton Roberts did the scoring for the defense, running 43 yards with an interception.

Jason Campbell, owner of Stagecoach Gifts in Sand Springs, wears a mask while posing with other masks in the store. The novelty store, along with Big Spring stores, is kept busy during the Halloween season. The discerning costume wearer can choose from individual pieces or complete sets.

Halloween's only three weeks away - time to pick your best costume, fool your friends and spook your neighbors

The best-dressed day of the year is coming your way. It may seem like an eternity to children who can't wait for that one evening of the year where they can collect - and eat - enough candy to choke an entire livestock show.

To those who must pick just the right outfit, however, there's never enough time to put together that special Halloween look. Going beyond the ordinary takes time.

Why settle for a witch, demon or ghost getup when you could be Judge Lance Ito, the Cryptkeeper from "Tales from the Crypt" or a crash test dummy?

And why settle for Morticia Addams hair when enough wigs are available to change your image from Tina Turner to Joan Jett to Rapunzel to just about anything.

Take a look at what's out there - wigs, makeup, costumes, full-head masks. This is the one time of year when people can radically change their image without getting strange looks from others.

Dressing up for Halloween isn't just for children. For those too old to trick-or-treat, shedding the usual getup for something wild is as much fun - or more - than any candy you could collect.

Wigs and other assorted hair pieces can help finish off the perfect costume, as those found in the Halloween costume section of Stagecoach Gifts. Complete costumes, for those who don't want to assemble their own, are next to the wigs.

Son learns value of a good memory and keeping one's word

Have you ever noticed that kids are like elephants?

Barbara Morrison
Columnist

when questioned about its origin. But, now that I think about it, that's an issue, too. What I am talking about, though, is their tiny little minds which have a tendency to remember EVERYTHING. You know, like when they lose a tooth and the first thing they do in the morning upon waking is to quickly lift up the pillow to check and see if the tooth fairy has arrived.

Well, nine chances out of 10 in my household, the tooth fairy simply forgot. She's rather absentminded. My kids have some pet phrases for her forgetfulness.

I prefer to call it "Somtimers Disease." I sometimes remember and I sometimes don't. And the only cure is a week-long vacation on the beaches of the Bahamas, which is why I still have the dreaded disease.

Anyway, this past week, I was able to witness my middle son's memory calisthenics in their prime. Looking back, I am now wondering why his exercises in remembering seem to be rather selective in nature and don't extend themselves to subjects such as "chores" or "notes from school."

Well, to set the stage, two years ago my son and his best friend made a deal with the best friend's dad. The two little boys played Little League baseball together and were huge fans of the Seattle Mariners.

I guess that's some professional team that is doing quite well this year. All I know is that there is some hero who plays on it by the name of Ken Griffey, Jr.

Mind you, my son can NEVER remember a name when asked to take a message over the phone for me, but he can sing, spell or chant Ken Griffey Jr's name. And, he can quote statistics, batting averages, playing schedule, you name it.

All for love of the game. Yeah, right. Where's the justice?

Anyway, two years ago, this boy's dad, Jay Phinney of Karat Patch fame, promised the boys he would take them to the game when the Mariners played the Texas Rangers.

This was the biggest deal of my little guy's life since he had never been to a professional ballgame before. And, of course, that Ken guy was going to be there.

Well, that year, these same two little guys made the Little League Minor All Star team, which was also a big deal to them. And, as luck would have it, the game they needed to play and the game of the big matchup between the Mariners and the Rangers were scheduled for the same day.

So, Jay, being the wise man that he is, let the boys make the decision. As parents we were proud when they chose to fulfill their obligation and play on their own team in a game where other players were relying on them.

Believe me, looking at their faces, you could tell it wasn't a decision easily reached. Upon hearing their decision, Jay promised the boys he would take them to the next matchup.

Now, for all of you baseball fans, you will remember there was no matchup the year after that due to the baseball strike.

Do you think our little guys forgot? I almost thought they did. That is, until this year.

That's when one day my guy came running in the house to announce he was going to the game on Friday. "TWO years later and he still remembers?" I was in awe. But that's when I learned the whole truth.

"Mom, it wasn't ME who did the remembering," my guy explained. "JAY did. He made us a promise and he kept it."

So simple and yet what an impact Jay made on my little guy, and I guess, me, too. You see, not only did my little guy have "the greatest time in the whole world" at the baseball game. He learned the value of a man's word.

And, that in itself, is a great big lesson. Thank you, Jay.

Spaying, neutering may be kindest cut of all

DEAR ABBY: Stemming the tide of pet overpopulation is a never-ending battle, and I'd like to tell you that your recent series of letters about the advantages of neutering pets was appreciated. The letters were triggered by a Florida woman who said her husband wouldn't allow her to neuter their cocker spaniel. Although the dog was urinating everywhere, including the house, her husband just "couldn't do that" to his dog.

Unfortunately, there's another reason why some people do not have their pets neutered: THEY CANNOT AFFORD IT. You would help prevent a tremendous number of unwanted dogs and cats and do your readers a great service if you would let them know about SPAY/USA.

SPAY/USA is a nationwide network of spay/neuter clinics.

When people call SPAY/USA, they will be referred to one of more than 3,500 veterinarians from coast to coast who perform this surgery at an affordable price. (Some vets charge more than $120 to neuter a female cat.)

Please, Abby, help those who cannot afford to pay the full price by letting them know about our service. With the help of animal lovers like yourself, we can make this a better place for all of us -- humans and animals alike. --ESTHER MECHLER, DIRECTOR, SPAY/USA

DEAR ESTHER: I am delighted to help. Readers, the toll-free number for SPAY/USA is: 1-800-248-SPAY (7729). Dogs and cats that are not intended for breeding should be neutered. Not only does this prevent a homeless population of millions of unwanted dogs and cats, it also eliminates the risk of ovarian or testicular cancer, and greatly reduces the risk of prostate disorders, as well as eliminating the urge for the pet to "mark its territory."

DEAR ABBY: Handling "pop-in visitors" is really very simple - just give them something to do!

"Betty, I haven't had time to do the dishes - would you rather do that or clean the litter box?"

"Dill, I've got some yard work to do - want to handle the lawn mower or the rake?"

The problem will be resolved in a hurry! --KEN LORD, TUCSON

DEAR KEN: Right on! Now, why didn't I think of that!

A drive through mountains

We left Fort Davis around 8 o'clock one morning and took and leisurely drive through Marfa and Shafter. At Presidio we got on "The River Road," which is really Highway 170 that runs alongside the Rio Grande. National Geographic Magazine once described this stretch of road as the most scenic in the U.S.

The road goes past the entrance to the largest state park in Texas, the Big Bend Ranch, which offers tours of volcano country. Visitors find surprising waterfalls, streams and springs.

We had lunch at Lajitas, which has some of the best-tasting water I've ever had. We visited the Lajitas trading post and saw Clay Henry's offspring. Clay Henry was a beer-drinking goat that was once the mayor of Lajitas.

We stopped off at Terlingua, visited the store and surveyed the site of the famous chili cook-off, one of the largest beer busts in Texas. We entered the Big Bend National Park just past Study Butte and drove to the Chisos Basin, where the park headquarters are located.

Hiking trails of all lengths and styles start at the basin. We took a quarter mile hike on the paved "Window Trail" just down the mountain from the park's restaurant. Then we took a longer walk along the well-marked "Meadow Trail."

The Big Bend Park has so many fascinating things about it. The black bears that are in the park now are attracting more and more visitors. Mountain lions roam through the park. Birding is spectacular.

We left the park and drove toward Marathon, stopping off to see Hallie Stillwell, the Matriarch of the Texas Mountains. She'll be 98 years old in October and is slowing down a bit. She once tracked and killed a mountain lion just because she wanted to. She has been a justice of the peace, newspaper columnist, operator of a wax camp, teacher and rancher.

Her daughter Dadie has built a museum in Hallie's honor. It's on the premises of Hallie and Dadie's RV park and store on the road to Maravillas Canyon. Hallie's granddaughter Linda has joined the family-operated business.

At Marathon we had dinner at the Gage Hotel. Superb, as usual.

We left the Gage at around 9:30 p.m. Since it was dark, we decided to see the lights at Paisano Pass between Marfa and Alpine. We've seen the lights every time we've gone to the viewing area, at least half a dozen times. The lights move in all directions and go on and off. There hasn't been a suitable explanation what they are.

We returned to Fort Davis well before midnight. We had a full day, didn't ever hurry and traveled less than 300 miles. It's a trip worth taking.

Good health requires clean hands

A few ounces of prevention...that's what infection control is all about. Frequent hand washing is one of the best prevention techniques anyone can use, Big Spring VA Infection Control Nurse Les White says.

Teaching children to wash their hands after using the restroom, coughing or blowing their nose, and before and after eating are good infection prevention practices that should be encouraged at a very early age. Adults as well as children should practice these basic controls daily.

Pat Atkins
VA Medical Center

"A Few Ounces of Prevention" is the theme for National Infection Control Week, Oct. 16-20. During that week, a lobby display will highlight some of the progress the infection control team had made at the medical center during the past year. Team members will be available to discuss the progress and answer questions about infectious diseases.

The autumn months should stimulate all of us to make certain that all older adults receive influenza vaccination.

Influenza and pneumonia are major health concerns during the winter months. Elderly persons and persons with underlying health problems are at increased risk for complications of influenza infection.

Vaccination of high risk persons is the most cost-effective method for reducing the frequency of complications of flu.

Those who are at high risk for influenza related complications are:

- *Persons 65 years and older.
- *Residents of nursing homes and other chronic-care facilities.

*Any person with chronic disorders of the lung, heart, or blood vessels.

*Any person with diabetes mellitus, renal failure, depressed immunity or hemoglobin disease that require regular medical follow-up or hospitalization during the preceding year.

Flu vaccinations are now being given to veterans at the Big Spring VA Medical Center Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Appointments are not required.

Chief of Staff Darryl Powell, a nurse, and an administrative staff member will travel to Abilene; Hobbs, N.M.; and San Angelo on Oct. 16, 17 and 19 to ensure veterans in those areas can receive the vaccine.

Donations from Odessa Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 4372 and Auxiliary helped make it possible to purchase transportation to veterans traveling to and from the Big Spring VAMC from Odessa and points west.

Volunteer drivers and dispatchers will work with the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Transportation Network Coordinator Heidrun Covington to provide this service. For additional information, contact Chief Voluntary Service Fred Cox at 264-4824.

Lending program changes under USA reorganization

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's reorganization plan is being felt even in Big Spring, but should be to the benefit of local producers.

One of the major changes in the reorganization as of Oct. 1 is farm lending programs of the former Texas Farmers Home Administration have been transferred to the Texas Consolidated Farm Service Agency, formerly the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Nationwide, the USDA is in the process of closing or consolidating almost one-third of its 3,700 field locations and establishing 2,535 USDA service centers where producers will be able to receive one-stop service.

Howard County Farm Service Agency Executive Director Rick Lyles said this means his office will have some added responsibility, but the end result should be better service for area producers.

"We're optimistic about the changes, and we think we'll save the taxpayers a bit of money too," Lyles said.

The consolidation efforts began last year when the USDA trimmed its agencies from 43 to 29, and cut its staff by 13,000 employees in an effort to save more than $4 billion.

In Texas, 98 county offices have closed, moved or consolidated to create 220 USDA Service Centers.

In the past farmers who were unable to obtain credit from traditional lenders used the former FHA's farmer program loans to buy and operate farms, while the former Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service administered the farm programs.

With consolidation of the farm lending programs now in place, all of the programs will be administered by the Consolidated Farm Service Agency.

"We're not really taking anything over," Lyles said. "We're just consolidated with the FHA. A lot of these moves were for budget reason and what would be more convenient to farmers."

He added the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has been consolidated with the Farm Service Agency as well.

Acting State Director Harold Bob Bennett said the reorganization efforts have been made to streamline the way USDA does business.

"Ultimately, when a Texas farmer steps into our USDA service centers, all of their needs will be taken care of quickly, and they will be able to get back to what they enjoy doing most, and that's farming," he said.

Benefits of the reorganization will also be felt by rural Texas communities as well because statewide efforts are better coordinated.

Lyles said before the reorganization producers had to use the field office in Stanton, but now producers can stop by the office on Lamesa Highway and not have to worry about going anywhere else.

Producers having any question about the USDA's reorganization should contact Lyles at 267-2557.

The SWCD purpose is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on agricultural lands within the district. In addition, the district serves as a voice for farmers, ranchers and local community entities on conservation matters.

The board of directors coordinate the conservation efforts of various local, state and federal agencies and other organizations. It also has authority to enter into working agreements with these governmental agencies and private concerns to carry out its purposes.

The five members serving on the district board of directors are responsible for carrying out district policies and procedures for carrying out the district program within the framework of the Texas Soil and Conservation District law.

In Texas, there are 214 districts. Each is a legal subdivision of state government, organized by local agricultural landowners with the assistance of the state board.

Programs highlight cotton, horse raising

Two important agricultural events will be coming up this week in the area that should appeal to area cotton producers and horsemen.

The first one will Tuesday at noon at the Circle 6 Ranch six miles north of Stanton.

The Martin County Cotton Growers Association will be hosting their Bi-Annual meeting. Scheduled on the program will be Big Spring USDA Experiment Station Director Bill Fryrear, who will discuss the results of the pilot project in the area involving their work with windstrips.

Wayne Huffaker, area representative of the Boll Weevil Eradication Program will be there to bring updates on the program's progress. Mark Larry from the National Cotton Council will be there to bring an up-date on the new farm program, which should have wide appeal to area producers.

The following Thursday at 8 a.m., at Winnemaker Farms near Gardendale, will be the annual Permian Basin Fall Equine Seminar.

This program includes imprinting of Baby Foals by Bill Melson, Mgr., Winnemaker Farms, Equine Marketing by Neal Mullarky from the AQHA and Equine Dentistry by Dr. Leon Scrutchfield Texas A&M Veterinary Medicine. It is sponsored by the county offices of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Andrews, Crane, Ector, Howard, Martin, Midland, Upton and Ward and Winnemaker Quarter Horse Association.

Producers needing CEU credits will have the opportunity to receive two hours at this program.

Nichols, Crenshaw honored with 4-H Gold Star award

National 4-H Week was highlighted in Howard County with the annual county 4-H Awards Banquet, this year held at Howard College.

Highlights of the evening included the naming of the Gold Star winners, the highest award a 4-H member can earn on the local level.

This year's winners are John Paul Nichols and Bucky Crenshaw.

Nichols is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Nichols from the Fairview Community and is a senior at Big Spring High School. He has been active in 4-H for nine years, having had beef cattle and shooting sports activities as his major project interest. He is an active member of the Lucky Acres 4-H Club and the county's Shooting Sports Club where he has participated on the county, district and state levels of competition.

Crenshaw, also a Big Spring High School senior, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crenshaw, Big Spring, was cited for his leadership activities in 4-H for being instrumental in the formation of the Seniors 4-H Club in Howard County, helping initiate that club's fund raising project, the annual club lamb sale and assistance with the annual AJRA Junior Rodeo. He has served as a team member of the county's 4H livestock judging team.

Commercial wind power project ready

By JOHN MacCORMACK
San Antonio Express-News

SALT FLATS, Texas — An hour before sunrise, the Delaware Rim is strung with a necklace of tiny glowing embers, a spectacle of beauty to certain onlookers standing in the darkness several miles away beside Texas 54.

"Look, you can see the turbines. They have lights on top. Son-of-a-gun, those are our babies," exclaimed Deborah Lewis, wind project manager for the Lower Colorado River Authority.

Where just a year ago cattle and trophy mule deer foraged undisturbed among the pinon pines and juniper, 112 sleek wind turbines now line the ridge tops, facing into a western breeze.

The turbines, each 80-foot-tall and capable of powering 100 average Texas homes, are the initial phase of state's first commercial wind project.

In late August, power from the turbines began moving east through a new 28-mile transmission line into the Texas energy grid, and by the end of September, the entire project will be on line.

It will generate 35 megawatts of power — enough to light a town of 10,000 to 12,000 homes — for customers in Austin and dozens of Central Texas communities, including Seguin, New Braunfels, San Marcos and Bandera. "This is not a demonstration project. It's the largest commercial wind project in the United States outside of California, and it represents one percent of our system," said Lewis.

The city of Austin has agreed to buy 30 percent of the wind project power.

The LCRA, an Austin-based public utility that serves customers in 50 Central Texas counties, will buy the remainder.

And if the LCRA finds enough additional paying customers, there is sufficient wind energy here to multiply the project 20-fold, according to Dale Osborn, vice president of Kenetech, the company that designed and built it.

"It will definitely be expanded beyond 112 turbines. It's not a matter of if, it's a matter of when," said Osborn.

"We have several options to expand, and the greatest is to take the energy west. We are at the eastern edge of the western energy grid, and it's my belief that New Mexico, California and Arizona can be served from this site," he said.

The site on the Six Bar Ranch is a mile feet above sea level and just several miles south of the New Mexico state line. Here the black-bladed turbines whirl under the stony gaze of El Capitan, the most prominent peak in the Guadalupe National Park.

Van Horn, is 55 miles to the south, while Carlsbad, N.M. is about the same distance to the north. The closest communities are the tiny settlements of Pine Spring, Dell City and Salt Flats.

But despite its remoteness, project engineers were quickly drawn to the site, in part because the strong wind here is well documented by 20 years of data accumulated at the nearby national park.

Kenetech has built thousands of turbines for wind projects at five locations in the United States, and overseas from Spain to the Ukraine to New Caledonia.

But, Osborn said, the dry west winds that blow across the barren salt flats and up the face of this rugged West Texas escarpment — gusting at 80

EXPORTS

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas exports for the first six months of 1995 totaled $34 billion, representing an increase of 19.5 percent over the first half of 1994, according to the Texas Department of Commerce. Officials said Thursday that Texas' growth surpassed exports for the nation, up 15.7 percent for the first half of 1995.

Mexico remained Texas' top export destination, although exports to Mexico declined approximately 7.9 percent — from $11.5 billion to $10.6 billion — compared to the first half of 1994, according to the Commerce Department. Exports in the first half of the year to Canada, Texas' second-leading export market, increased from $2.5 billion to $3.4 billion or 37.2 percent compared to the same time last year.

Wind

mph — are almost unmatched. "In my view, this is at least the second-best wind site in the United States, second only to Wyoming," he said.

"It's far superior to California. The average wind speed in California is 16 mph at Altamont Pass. Here it's closer to 20 miles an hour," he said.

The $40 million wind project, which is owned by three institutional investors, is the fruit of a collaboration of public and private interests.

It began about three years ago when the LCRA and the General Land Office decided to explore wind as an alternate energy source.

"Our project is unique. It's a joint venture between the LCRA, the city of Austin, Kenetech and the General Land Office," said Mark Rose, general manager of the LCRA.

"Kenetech is developing and building the project. Austin is buying power, the GLO is managing the land, and the LCRA is both buying power for its own customers and marketing it to others," he said.

But first a legal obstacle had to be overcome.

By law, the LCRA was not permitted to sell power out of its Central Texas service area. To overcome this, the state Legislature passed a bill during the 1993 session allowing this, but only power generated on lands managed by the GLO and using renewable energy sources.

A land transfer agreement among ranch owner Tony Kunitz, Kenetech and the GLO enabled LCRA to use the Culberson County site.

But before any steps are taken to expand the project, the LCRA or Kenetech must find utilities that are willing to pay a slight premium for the wind-produced energy.

"Kenetech has leased about 65,000 acres, which would accommodate 750 megawatts of power. That's a good-sized power plant. That would be a big deal. The trick is overcoming the cost of the transmission infrastructure," Rose said.

For the hardy residents of Culberson County, a vast expanse of arid emptiness on the northern edge of the Great Chihuahuan Desert, the wind project has come as a welcome, if unexpected, surprise.

This is a county, after all, with only one incorporated municipality, the city of Van Horn (pop. 2,700), and with an overall population density of slightly over one person per square mile.

"We had some opposition in the beginning from ranchers in that area, mainly because the county granted (the project) some tax abatements, but the local businesses supported it," said County Judge John Conoly. "And if the project proves successful, even at its current modest size, it will be a boost for the local economy."

"We have mainly tourism, irrigated farming, a little gas and oil over on the northeast corner of the county, a talc mine and a large sulphur mine, but its valuation has diminished tremendously over the past few years," Conoly said.

In mid-November, energy VIPs and several hundred participants of the Border Energy Conference will be traveling from El Paso for the project's grand opening.

From Texas 54, the distant turbines resemble tiny three-petaled flowers. Because the site is off-limits to locals, it has taken awhile for word to get around as exactly what is going on up there on the ridge top.

"Most folks wanted to know how much water they'll make. Out here, a traditional view of a windmill is to pump water not make electricity," said Steve Barger, a bearded electrician from Van Horn who is employed at the site as a "windsmith."

While up to 200 workers were on the site during the construction phase, only five, including Barger, will remain to maintain the turbines once the project is finished. "If this does go, it could help this area a lot. There's not that much going on out here," he said.

According to Kenetech's Osborn, the gray-and-black turbines, each with three 50-foot hollow fiberglass blades, are the latest in wind-generation technology.

Each turbine is equipped with sensors that monitor wind speed and direction. Based on this, each turbine automatically rotates to position itself and also adjusts its blade pitch for maximum efficiency.

Furthermore, each unit is linked by telephone line to Kenetech's control room in Livermore, Calif., where technicians monitor the unit's performance.

According to Osborn, the turbines should have at least a 30-year lifespan.

The blades make only a gentle whoosh as they pass overhead, with a tip speed of 200 mph, while the generator at the top of the unit grinds like a washing machine.

"There's a perception that these things are noisy, but they're really not," said Osborn. "If you put them a half mile from residents, you can't

 And even though Culberson County is just west of the fabled if somewhat depleted Permian Basin oil-and-gas region that sustained the Texas economy for decades, Lewis said the wind project may offer a modest resurrection of the energy economy.

 "This region understands energy development. As one energy resource is flagging, and the jobs that go with it, another resource, which can never be depleted, is now emerging," said Lewis.

 "With wind, the capital costs are all up front, but the fuel is free. In 10 years, I think we'll have several thousand turbines there, extracting the full potential of that site," she said.

NEWS IN BRIEF

NEW YORK (AP) — America's profit machine is starting to squeak.
 As U.S. companies begin to report earnings for the July-to-September quarter over the next few weeks, Wall Street's soothsayers expect the smallest growth in more than a year.
 That could be trouble for the national economy, since slowing profits tend to dissuade corporations from hiring new workers, building new factories and buying new equipment. It also could hurt the stock market, which has been showing signs of fatigue.
 The nation's retailers turned in mixed and largely disappointing sales results during September as choosy consumers first put off shopping and then shunned many discount and specialty merchants.
 Investors were clearly displeased, and punished the stocks of poorer performers Thursday, including J.C. Penney Co. Inc. and Talbots Inc. But Wall Street also rewarded those posting better sales, including Sears, Roebuck and Co. and Dayton Hudson Corp.
The Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP) — Answering allegations that he's just out to line his wallet, renegade stockholder Kirk Kerkorian challenged Chrysler Corp. to ban shareholders from receiving any profits not shared by all.
 The No. 3 automaker has suggested that the Las Vegas billionaire, whose Tracinda Corp. sought to purchase Chrysler six months ago, is seeking a premium-priced buyout of his millions of shares — a practice known as greenmail.
 Kerkorian has rejected that suggestion.
DETROIT (AP) — The six unions that have been on strike against The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press for three months offered to return to work under certain conditions. The newspapers responded coolly.

 About 2,500 workers — from truck drivers to reporters — walked off their jobs July 13, largely over work rules and wages.
 The unions said Thursday they will send their members back to work if the newspapers agree to a month of intensive bargaining, give the employees their old jobs back and let them work under the terms of their expired contracts.
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's treasury secretary said the success of an international bond sale to finance the early repayment of part of its U.S. emergency loans demonstrates returning confidence in the shaken Mexican economy.
 But critics said Thursday that repayment of $700 million of the $12.5 billion U.S. debt was more symbolic than substantive, intended to shore up Mexican stocks and a wobbly peso while helping President Clinton blunt Republican opposition to his bailout package.
WASHINGTON (AP) — The percentage of Americans in poverty dropped under 15 percent last year to 38.1 million, the first year in a decade that both the rate and total declined. There were no signs the gap between rich and poor was closing.
 The report, coming as Congress argues over cutting programs that aid the working poor, followed other recent signs of declining poverty.
 However, the total was still 5.6 million above 1989, when the poverty rate was 13.1 percent, Census Bureau statistician Daniel Weinberg said Thursday.
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Southwest Bell's plan to sell detailed information about people to the businesses they call has been put on hold because of questions about customers' privacy.
 The service, called Caller Intellidata, is an embellishment of Caller ID, which delivers the names and numbers of incoming callers to subscribers. The new service would package the Caller ID information with the caller's address and demographic information compiled by Equifax Inc., a national credit reporting and information service.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Warner Bros. Records chairman Mo Ostin, who helped build the label into a powerhouse with stars like Jimi Hendrix and R.E.M., was named chief of DreamWorks SKG Music.
 Ostin 68, joins the entertainment company founded last year by Steven Spielberg, Jeffrey Katzenberg and David Geffen.
 Joining him in starting the company's music division will be former Warner Bros. Records President Lenny Waronker and Ostin's son, Warner Bros. Vice President Michael Ostin, Dreamworks SKG said.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Recently laid-off workers boosted the number of new claims for jobless benefits last week, but analysts said the level remained consistent with moderate job growth.
 First-time applications for unemployment insurance totaled a seasonally adjusted 341,000, up 6,000 from the week ended Sept. 23, the Labor Department reported Thursday.
 Many analysts had expected a slightly larger 8,000 increase last week.
 Technology stocks pulled out of a deep hole on Thursday, pulling the entire stock market up with them. The Dow Jones industrials gained 22.04 at 4,762.71 and breaking a three-day losing streak.
 Bonds rose, the dollar tumbled and gold prices were mixed.
 Crude oil futures plummeted to two-month lows on reports that hurricane damage was light to important production and port facilities in the Gulf and Texas Panhandle. Wheat, cotton and lumber futures also fell.

State jobless rate is down .6 percent

DALLAS (AP) — The state's unemployment rate dropped six-tenths of one percent to 6.1 percent in September, back in line with Texas' relatively stable rate over the past year, the Labor Department said Friday.
 The August unemployment rate jumped to 6.7 percent, after a July mark of 6 percent and a June rate of 6.3 percent.
 Bill Luker Jr., regional economist for the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, said unemployment in Texas has averaged about 6 percent over the past year.

 "Essentially Texas unemployment is stable, which has its positives and negatives," he said. The rate is remaining steady because Texas still is producing jobs, although not as quickly as last year, while people drawn by the reputation of a good economy continue to surge into the state's labor force, Luker said.

 The state's three-month unemployment average, considered a more stable measure, averaged 6.3 percent over the months of July, August and September, the same as for the three months ending in August.
