Extra money for veterans' housing hinges on proposition

Editor's Note: This is the second article in a series of stories explaining the 14 Constitutional amendments voters will be asked to decide Nov. 7.

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Recently, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro was in Big Spring supporting Proposition 5 in the Nov. 7 Constitutional Amendment election.

Proposition 5 would allow the Veterans' Housing Assistance Fund to issue an additional $500 million in bonds.

The program was created back in 1946 and has provided low interest loans to Texas veterans since that time.

Arguments in favor of the proposition include the program's record of being self-supporting and the benefit it provides veterans who have served our country.

The demand for veterans' housing loans is increasing, and the Veterans' Land Board could run out of money to lend.

Texas veterans receive few state benefits for the sacrifices they have made in serving their country. These loans pose almost no financial risk to the state.

Opponents point out the state is ultimately responsible for this debt and should carefully consider adding additional bond authority to the program.

The state should not increase debt to help a special group that already receives numerous government benefits.

The bonds used to fund the program are repaid by monthly mortgage payments and the program's administrative costs are financed through a small fee charged on each loan.

Mauro's message to Big Spring and Howard County was misinformation and a crowded ballot could jeopardize the future of the popular veterans land and home loan programs administered by the Veterans Land Board, which he chairs.

"The future of these programs depends on the veterans groups in Texas getting the word out about the importance of this election and spreading the word about the positive economic impact the Veterans Land Board loan program has on building and improving communities throughout the state," he said.

The loan board dates back to the Republic and the first act of the Congress of the Republic of Texas was to direct Land Commissioner John Borden to issue grants to veterans of the War for Independence from Mexico and the War for Independence from Spain.

Since the board's creation in 1949, more than 147,000 loans totaling more than $2.4 billion for land, housing and home improvements have been made to Texas veterans.

More than 170 of those loans worth more than $2.3 million were made in Howard County.

"Proposition 5 isn't about Republicans or Democrats, it's about building communities. It's not about doing veterans a favor, it's about repaying one,"

Mauro said.

The effect the land board loans have on local communities extends beyond the fact that it helps veterans realize the American dream of home ownership. "Each dollar loaned to a veteran generates $6 in economic activity and the default rate on veteran loans is less than 1 percent compared to 4 percent in the general market," Mauro said.

"This is why the Veterans Loan Board programs have never cost Texas taxpayers a single penny - and they never will. Texas veterans are the best credit risk going," he added.

Investigation continues into car fire

An investigation continues into why a police car was set on fire.

Fire Marshal Burr Lea Settles said no suspects have been arrested as of Monday morning. He asks residents to call CrimeStoppers if they have any information about the incident.

Early Saturday morning, someone put a Molotov cocktail under the marked vehicle of Sgt. Richard Perez at his home on Alabama Street. The rear tires got hot and exploded. The car was destroyed; no one was injured.

Meanwhile, Settles is investigating another car fire that occurred Thursday night. The fire marshal said the two incidents are not related.

"The fire was started inside the car. We have a suspect in mind and have his statement. We are also in the process of having a polygraph set up for him to take," Settles said.

The car belonged to Imelia Duenez, an assistant manager for Little Caesars. Her car was set on fire in the parking lot of the pizza parlor.

Both cases are being handled as arson, which is a second-degree felony.

Access to accident reports now limited

A law limiting access to accidents is being enforced after a judge in Houston denied an injunction of House Bill 391.

The law states anyone wanting a copy of an accident report must make the request in writing and know two of three criteria: the date of the accident, a name of an individual involved or the specific location of the accident. A fee of $4 will be charged.

One of the main reasons for this bill was to stop for-profit agencies, especially in large cities, from putting the information on a list and selling it to attorneys, chiropractors and auto repair shops.

Fundraiser underway for Dora Roberts center

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Dora Roberts Community Center will be the beneficiary of a fundraiser starting today for the purpose of maintaining the center and getting more use out of it.

The center has been in use since it was renovated a year and a half ago.

One of the principals behind the renovation of the building was Beverly McMahon, who helped organize this year's fundraiser in conjunction with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

"We will have six temporary phone lines to kick off what we hope will be come an annual fundraiser for the Dora Roberts Community Center," McMahon said.

The fundraiser is also to benefit the formal Christmas gala at the center Dec. 2.

Residents will be asked to support the fundraiser as a benefactor, patron or sponsor.

The benefactor package is $500 and includes eight tickets, 16 drink tickets, a table for eight, name on invitation as a benefactor, and attendance at the pre-party for benefactors, patrons and sponsors.

Patron sponsorship is a $250 package and includes four tickets, eight drink tickets, the pre-party and name on invitation as a patron.

The sponsors package is $100 and includes two tickets, four drink tickets, the pre-party and name on invitation as a sponsor.

The chamber will try to do a different type of fundraiser each year, McMahon said.

"All of the money generated from the fundraiser will be used for nuts and bolts maintenance of the community center," she added. This means long term items like painting and carpet can be taken care of when needed.

"The building is now generating enough revenue from rentals and the city subsidy it receives each month to pay for the day-to-day maintenance."

Chamber of Commerce President Jim Weaver said many people can remember when the center was the Cosden Country Club.

The chamber or the city couldn't possible match that today because it was so heavily subsidized by Cosden as a benefit to its employees for working for the company, Weaver added.

He added the next big objective is to see a floor put in the center, which would really give the ballroom some of the look it once had.

"With joint cooperation, the people of Big Spring could really see some nice changes in the center down the line," he said.

State grant will give new look to houses

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

A $208,000 grant from the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs may soon give local homes a facelift.

The grant will be used to facilitate the city's Homeowner Rehabilitation Program.

Assistant City Manager Emma Bogard said the city is still working on the program and inspections are under way for about 20 selected houses.

The process includes verifying eligibility; inspecting substandard housing conditions; preparing work write-ups; preparing construction documents and contracts; and making interim and final inspections of construction work.

Eligibility requirements include:

"An applicant must be an individual or family who owns and occupies a single family residential unit within the city of Big Spring, and will be considered the owner of record if he/she is on the books at the Howard County Courthouse; or possesses a life estate which has been, or may be filed for record in the County clerk's office.

"Since HOME funds are intended to serve low and very low income residents or hardship cases who have no other means of financing repair or improvements, such funds will not be made available to any owner-occupants who have substantial financial resources available.

Family, employees recall Selena's hectic last days

By TERRI LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The last week of Selena's life was hectic. With tax time fast approaching, the 23-year-old Tejano music star was doing her best to prove she could run her own business and launch her dream project.

"Since she was a little girl, she wanted to be a fashion designer," father and manager, Abraham Quintanilla Jr., testified last week at the murder trial of Selena's accused killer, Yolanda Saldívar.

The singer's musical pursuits began at age 6, and she went on to win a Grammy award, which she accepted in a white sequin dress of her own design.

But on the heels of that honor, she began branching out, opening her first Selena Etc. boutique in 1994, where women could buy clothing she helped design and have their hair and nails done.

When a manager was needed for that Corpus Christi store and another in San Antonio, Selena turned to Saldívar, a registered nurse who approached the family in 1991 about founding a Selena fan club.

But trouble between the two began shortly after the second store opened in January. As the singer was busy on her most ambitious project — Selena's

House of Design — her father received calls from angry parents who insisted they had received nothing for their $22 fan club membership fees.

On March 9, Selena and relatives met Saldívar at the family's recording studio to discuss missing records and plans to move the fan club.

Suzette Quintanilla Arriaga, a drummer in her sister's band, verbally attacked Saldívar, who failed to explain what happened to the records.

"I pointed to Yolanda in her face and told her she was a liar and a thief," Arriaga said. "I knew she was lying."

Quintanilla threatened his daughter's assistant with an embezzlement investigation.

Afterward, Selena phoned Saldívar and fired her, her husband said.

Two days later, Saldívar was shopping for a handgun, testimony showed.

The days leading to her death were filled with worry for Selena. Manicurist Celia Soliz recalled the singer's demeanor only a day before.

"She was very upset," Soliz testified. "She spoke to Yolanda (by phone). She had said when Yolanda returned to town, she had some documents with her."

Later that night, Selena's husband took her to the Days Inn motel to meet Saldívar, where she retrieved a bag of paperwork. But as the couple drove away, Selena discovered something. "She said, 'It's not all here,'" Perez told jurors. "There were statements missing. She (Selena) was upset."

Later Saldívar contacted Selena and told her she needed to be taken to the hospital, a request Selena promised to fulfill the next morning.

On March 31, Selena met Saldívar to finish all business ties, and the assistant told of being raped the previous day.

Two nurses at Doctors Regional Medical Center recalled how Selena shook her head as Saldívar appeared to change her story on how the attack occurred.

Taking Selena aside, nurse Karla Anthony asked her, "Is this the same story that she told you?"

"She (Selena) put her fingers to her lips and shook her head."

A medical exam was performed, but no police were called to the emergency room because the attack was alleged to have occurred outside the United States.

The two women drove back to Saldívar's motel room, No. 158, where they began arguing.

Saldívar demanded the return of a gold and diamond ring Selena Etc. employees and Saldívar had bought her. Selena took off the ring, but before returning it was shot.

Campaign begins against violence

By JANINE ZUNIGA
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A bandage strip across the earth to symbolize the healing worldwide of crime victims, perpetrators and survivors is the logo for groups in Dallas celebrating "A Week Without Violence."

"Our main goal is to educate the community that there are alternatives and there is help out there," said Traci Levin, development associate at the YWCA of Metropolitan Dallas.

The YWCA, together with The Family Place, Texas' first domestic violence program, and about 30 other collaborators announced the kickoff of the educational campaign Sunday at Dallas City Hall. The programs coincide with national "A Week Without Violence" events taking place in about 300 cities.

The week is designed to generate increased political and financial support for alternatives to violence; discuss practical alternatives that are accessible to people from all communities; and heighten awareness of everyone's responsibility to act against the epidemic of violence.

Members of the Davidson family react to a portrait of John Davidson, a shooting victim, in Los Angeles. Portraits of dozens of crime victims were displayed downtown as part of YWCA's Week Without Violence campaign. The campaign will be in all 50 states and 91 countries.

Organizers of the week provide some statistics about violence:

- The FBI says 7,600 hate crime incidents were reported in 1993.
- Domestic violence is the No. 1 cause of injury to women in the United States.
- More than 1,000 people were murdered at work in this country in 1993.

- About 86 violent crimes are committed every week in Dallas County.
- Some 75,000 women and 150,000 children suffer from family violence in Dallas.
- Levin said Dallas' campaign is special because so many city agencies are involved.

Trial set to begin in killing of soldier in San Angelo

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — High up the list of 592 prosecution exhibits in the murder trial of Louis Jones, there is a book seized from his home: "Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

That title hints at some of the contrasts in store in the case of a former Army Ranger accused of kidnapping and killing a 19-year-old soldier.

Federal jury selection is set to begin today.

Court records say Jones confessed to abducting Army Pvt. Tracie Joy McBride last February from a laundry facility at Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo.

Her body was found 12 days later under a bridge in Coke County, 27 miles north of the city.

McBride, a Minnesota native, disappeared just nine days after arriving at Goodfellow.

The trial was moved to Lubbock because of heavy news coverage around San Angelo, where more than 7,500 area residents signed a petition favoring the death penalty if Jones is convicted.

Jim McBride of Centerville, Minn., described his family as "ecstatic" upon hearing last month that federal prosecutors will seek the death penalty.

"With what he has done, he deserves nothing less," McBride's father told the San Angelo Standard-Times.

A gag order issued by U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings made attorneys mum.

But defense attorney Carlton McLarty said earlier that the death penalty would be inappropriate, given Jones' background and 22-year military career.

The defense exhibit list includes his certificate of promotion to master sergeant and an army commendation.

The 45-year-old defendant was employed as a bus driver at Goodfellow.

The exhibit list filed by prosecutors includes autopsy photos of wounds to the victim's left eye, fractures to the back of her head and bruises at the base of her skull.

Other exhibits include photos of duct tape found outside Jones' house and a machete found inside.

Cummings last week denied a defense motion to suppress the confession Jones gave investigators and evidence seized from his house.

And the judge on Friday denied a defense attempt to delay the trial, originally set for Sept. 5.

"It will never really be over in our heart," McBride said. "But justice has to be served, and for what he did or for anyone who had done something like that, we as citizens have to go through every step to see to it that one day these kinds of things won't happen in America."

Militia leaders meet

DALLAS (AP) — While rifle-toting, camouflage-clad guards stood sentry, state militia leaders met Sunday to improve their image and plan strategy for their national organization.

The second "National Command Seminar" held in as many years included information on militia political activities and training programs.

"There is a thunder rolling across this country," said John Parsons, a South Dakota militia commander, "and what you're looking at is the lightning bolt in that thunder."

Representatives of more than two dozen state militias, to help explain their emerging public goals, opened Saturday's session to reporters who were escorted by armed guards from a checkpoint to a tent for two hours of talks.

"We don't want violence," said Raymond Smith, a colonel in the Fairfield, Texas, militia unit and a member of a national council. "We want our country back. We want the people back in control of the country."

At the Texas meeting, leaders tried to disassociate themselves from the Oklahoma City bombing and last week's sabotage of an Amtrak train in Arizona.

A note found at the scene mentioned the government's handling of the Branch Davidian and Ruby Ridge standoffs.

"I don't have a clue about who was behind the recent train derailment, but it's definitely the wrong way to go about getting your point across," said Jim McKinzey, commander of the 51st Militia in Kansas City.

Cleveland takes lead in series

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians have given the Seattle Mariners no other choice.

It's Randy Johnson time. The big left-hander will be pitching with the Mariners' season on the line once again Tuesday night now that Cleveland has taken a 3-2 lead in the best-of-7 AL playoffs. The Indians won Sunday night 3-2.

Johnson will be working without a net for the fourth time this month; a loss sends the Mariners packing.

"We were down two games against New York (in the first round) and we came home and swept them," Johnson said after watching his teammates come up short Sunday night. "I don't think anybody projected us to be where we are right now. But we're going home, and we play well at home."

Johnson, who was 18-2 during the regular season, would

Atlanta's bullpen strong first starters on down

ATLANTA (AP) — Everybody already knew about the Atlanta Braves' strong starting pitching. You might be able to beat the Braves, the thinking went, by getting to their bullpen.

That may have been the case a few years ago when the Braves lost the 1991 and 1992 World Series, then dropped the 1993 National League playoffs to Philadelphia.

It's not true anymore. For example, how's this for a nice pitching line: 11 IP, 5 H, 1 ER, 3 BB, 14 SO?

It doesn't belong to Greg Maddux, John Smoltz or Tom Glavine, Atlanta's top three starters. It belongs to the bullpen, accumulated in the four victories over Cincinnati that gave the Braves the first sweep in NL championship history since the series went to seven games in 1985.

"Obviously, their pitching was outstanding. One of the Achilles heels of the Braves has been their bullpen, but they were nearly perfect. We scored only five runs in four games, and it's remarkable they could do that against an offense like ours," Reds manager Davey

Johnson said.

Mark Wohlers, the hardest-throwing stopper in the league, saved Game 1, got the victory in Game 2, mopped up in Game 3 and finished off Game 4 with a strikeout. Greg McMichael got the Game 1 victory and pitched a dominant inning in Game 4, and Alejandro Pena consistently got some of the biggest outs in the toughest situations.

"Our bullpen is probably the best we've had (in the 90s)," manager Bobby Cox said.

General manager John Schuerholz expressed the same thought the day before the series began. By comparison, Cincinnati's bullpen surrendered 12 earned run, 15 hits, 11 walks and three home runs in 11 2-3 innings.

But it wasn't just the Braves bullpen that gave them the edge. It was a combination of all facets: the offense, the bench, the starters, the defense.

The Braves hit .282 in the series, led by Chipper Jones and Fred McGriff, both at .438, Javier Lopez at .357 and Mike Devereaux at .308. They

Is the NFL targeting Jones?

Can you see the inevitable?

Emmitt Smith is going to want more money sooner or later. And based on his production this season, I think he'd be well worth it.

Then again if you were the bread and butter of a team (or at least one piece of the bread) and a new slice of bread joined the team, you would be a little taken back too.

Emmitt has helped turn the once 1-15 Dallas Cowboys into one of the two best teams in the NFL for the last several years and has run his way to two Super Bowl rings.

Deion Sanders will be a valuable asset to the Cowboys, but no one has ever had to fight so hard to get the contract he deserves as did Emmitt two years ago.

It's almost a scientific fact that Dallas can make an adjustment and still win without any one of their big name players - all except for Emmitt.

As Emmitt goes, so goes the Cowboys. Sort of reminds me of a former Cowboys who wore number 33. Tony something was his name.

Hopefully Emmitt is happy with his present contract and endorsement deals, but I wouldn't blame him a bit if he asked for more.

After all, he's on his way to his fourth rushing title in five years.

I shouldn't jump to too many conclusions because the NFL recently told Jerry Jones he had to restructure Deion's seven-year, $35 million contract.

The NFL's reasoning, rejected by Jones and the NFL Players Association, is the contract violates the spirit of the NFL's $37.1 million-per-team salary cap.

Since the league instituted the salary cap, teams have used signing bonuses and other legal methods of signing high profile players to contracts that were considered within the limits of the cap.

Jones is absolutely right when he says the NFL is trying to stick it to the Cowboys, especially the Cowboys' management.

I don't think it's unfair to say the NFL wants to find some way of getting back at Jones for signing deals with Nike, Pepsi and American Express.

The NFL might want to be a little smarter in who they pick on.

You can bet Jones won't take this lying down. To use his exact words, "The first time we (the Cowboys) step out and use the system for a high profile free agent, the NFL objects to it. It's blatant subjectivity."

I don't blame him a bit for saying he's lost his faith in the NFL. Who wouldn't?

There are even rumors flying around that the NFL is trying to take the annual Thanksgiving Day game from the Cowboys.

The NFL should take note that you don't pull on Superman's cape, you don't spit into the wind, you tug on the mask of the ole Lone Ranger and don't mess with them Boys.

Dallas Cowboys' fullback Daryl Johnston goes airborne over the San Diego Chargers' defense for a one-yard touchdown during the third quarter of their game Sunday in San Diego. The Cowboys defeated the Chargers 23-9.

Turnovers take Chargers out of game

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Shawn Jefferson broke left, and Gale Gilbert threw down the middle. Larry Brown made the catch — for the Dallas Cowboys.

And so began a damaging trend for Gilbert, a career backup quarterback who committed turnovers that ended San Diego's first four drives on Sunday. Two of the turnovers spawned short touchdown runs by Emmitt Smith, and the Cowboys beat the Chargers 23-9.

It almost became predictable. Gilbert drew his arm back to throw, Russell Maryland popped the ball loose and Shante Carver recovered.

Gilbert tried to throw the ball away through the end zone, but Brock Marion reached up and snared it. Gilbert tried to throw deep to Tony Martin, and Clayton Holmes stepped well in front of Martin to intercept.

"I can't really explain some of the throws he was throwing," said Carver, a defensive end. "He threw a couple of them right to us. That might be inexperience or it might be our pressure and the DBs being in the right place at the right time."

The Cowboys improved to 6-1. Defending AFC champion San Diego (3-4) is on its first three-game losing streak since early in the 1993 season.

Afterward, Gilbert took the blame and tried some humor.

"After the three interceptions, I think everything went smoothly after that," said Gilbert, who made just his fourth start in 10 seasons because of Stan Humphries' bruised throwing shoulder.

"I killed us in two scoring opportunities in the first half," he said. "We had a hard time recovering from that."

He said the first interception was a miscommunication between him and Jefferson. "The other two were just stupid throws," Gilbert said.

"It's kind of hard to have bad days as a backup," said Gilbert, who lost his previous start with San Diego, 10-9 last year at Atlanta. "You need to get the job done and I didn't."

Gilbert was under pressure all day and was sacked six times. Carver had two, including a crunching hit on the game's last play. Charles Haley also had two.

"We had guys in his face and he was throwing off his back foot," Marion said of Gilbert.

Tie leaves Texas, OU thinking

DALLAS (AP) — After Texas had jumped all over Oklahoma, scoring 21 points in the first nine minutes, it would have been understandable if John Mackovic had allowed himself to think his Longhorns would roll to victory.

He did not. "I think this game would have gone 60 minutes, one way or the other, no matter what," he said. "Even if the score had been 28-0, I still think it would have been 60 minutes. I think both sides play that way."

"It's one of the classic games. The players have a lot of respect for this game and I think that's what makes it unique."

Saturday's game did indeed go 60 minutes, and it ended in a 24-24 tie that left both teams 4-1-1 and left both sides with plenty to think about.

Texas fans are left to wonder what might have happened if the Longhorns hadn't been called for holding on a second-and-5 play from the Oklahoma 6-yard line in the second quarter.

The penalty pushed Texas back to the 21. Two plays later, James Brown was sacked for an 12-yard loss to the 33 and the Longhorns wound up punting. The punt was downed at the 2-yard line, but the Sooners drove the length of the field for a touchdown.

Instead of being ahead 28-0, the Longhorns found themselves with a 21-7 lead.

"I thought we really had 'em on the run, and we had a good run on that (second down) play," Mackovic said. "That holding call really did hurt us there."

Texas fans also are left pondering how things may have

Darrin Smith ends holdout

DALLAS (AP) — The Cowboys completed negotiations with their last unsigned player when line-backer Darrin Smith signed a one-year contract that will pay him $270,000 for the remainder of the season.

Smith ended his 85-day holdout by agreeing to the deal for the final 10 games of the season Saturday. He missed all of training camp and the first six games of the season.

Terms of the contract were said to include a base salary of about $270,000, The Dallas Morning News reported for today's edition.

The agreement includes a $100,000 bonus if the Cowboys win the Super Bowl, the paper said.

Death, riot bollix up boxing

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — For 11 rounds, James Murray played a major part in what makes boxing a thrilling spectacle.

His death of a brain injury and the riot that followed his 12th round knockout showed why critics want the sport banned.

The 25-year-old Scottish bantamweight died in hospital Sunday, two days after he was knocked out by countryman Drew Docherty in a British title fight at Glasgow's Hospitality Inn.

In a closely-fought battle with a world title shot awaiting the winner, the two bantamweights had the crowd on their feet with sharp punching and skillful defending. But some of the fans couldn't take the result.

Feminist argument becomes a lesson in anthropology.

DEAR ABBY: How blind we mortals be! "J.G. in Philadelphia" complained that women have been forced to hide their bodies because men view female breasts as sex objects. She claimed that there is nothing inherently erotic about the female breast, but "our constant attempts to cover them makes it seem that way," and there is no basis for it in psychology.

Doesn't she realize that throughout the animal kingdom, female breasts enlarge only to signal readiness for sex or to feed newborns? The single exception to this is humans -- and because human females and babies are dependent for so long, the male must be "persuaded" to hang around. The strategic instruments of persuasion are perpetually enlarged breasts that dupe the poor hormone-driven, visually addicted human male into unconsciously believing the female is always ready for sex.

Of course, what works for "evolution" doesn't always conform to reality. But if she's got the equipment, it certainly seems that way. -- CLARK T. CAMERON, PH.D., PSYCHOTHERAPIST

DEAR DR. CAMERON: I respectfully disagree with your hypothesis. I spoke with Prof. Soo-Young Chin of the Department of Anthropology at the University of Southern California who -- after her laughter subsided -- was quick to agree with "J.G. in Philadelphia."

The simplest way to examine such a conjecture, she informed me, is to look "cross-culturally."

"There are cultures in which the female breast is bared at all times. It is considered that part of the reproductive system intended for babies and children -- not grown men."

Throughout the animal kingdom, the purpose of breasts is to nourish the young; they are not a part of the sexual arousal system. Male animals do not fondle the breasts of female animals as part of the mating process.

Western culture's insistence on keeping the breasts hidden is what makes them erotic -- that which is restricted immediately becomes more appealing.

Western culture's insistence on keeping the breasts hidden is what makes them erotic -- that which is restricted immediately becomes more appealing.

She says she never baby-sits with her grandchildren unless there is an emergency. Everyone says I am all wet with my ideas, but I think a grandmother should act like a grandmother, and should be more proud of her grandchildren than her bowling score. -- A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: This grandmother is acting like a grandmother. A modern one. Nowadays you can't tell a grandmother by looking at her, and I say more power to her!
