A Big Spring police officer was involved in an accident Wednesday afternoon while responding to a call.

Reports indicate Officer Kip Patterson, 27, was responding to an alarm call when his Ford Crown Victoria was struck by a Chevrolet Blazer driven by Elizabeth Leigh Corson, 23.

Patterson was northbound on Goliad with his lights and siren on traveling 10 to 15 miles per hour to allow vehicles to clear the intersection.

Corson, who was traveling west on FM 700, stated she could not see Patterson's patrol car at first due to other vehicles in the turning lane. She then said once Please see WRECK, page 2A she saw the car she was unable to take evasive action. The front of her Blazer hit the passenger side of Patterson's vehicle.

Patterson and his passenger, Darin Brand, 32, were transferred to the emergency room at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. Corson was not injured. Patterson was treated and released while Brand is listed in stable condition.

Brand was riding with Patterson as part of his college internship with the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Lt. Scott Griffin said officers use their discretion to determine how they will respond to a call such as whether to turn on their lights and/or siren.

Man charged with assaulting an officer given deferred adjudication

By KELLIE JONES Staff Writer

A man charged with assaulting a Big Spring police officer has pleaded guilty in district court. William Otto Warner, 18, was sentenced to five years deterred adjudication after being charged with the May 1994 aggravated assault on Cpl. David Sellers. Sellers was one of several officers who had responded to a domestic dispute in the 2500 block of Gunter Circle last spring.

The latest two incidents were Sept. 1 and Sept. 11.

On Sept. 1, officers had attempted to pull Munoz over Officers took Warner out of because they suspected she was the car in an effort to calm him driving drunk. She did not stop and a pursuit ensued. During the chase, she attempted to ram patrol cars and run them off the road. The second incident happened after Munoz left a gas station without paying for gas and the nozzle still in her tank. An officer attempted to pull her over and a chase began. At one point, she drove the wrong way down Fourth Street. Munoz had also rammed her car into a marked police unit twice during the pursuit.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lon Lyman was supposed to get nearly $30,000 from the Agriculture Department early this month. The Okaton, S.D., rancher is still waiting, and he's getting very angry, because he has a Nov. 1 tax bill to pay.

Lyman says he needs the check "to pay taxes and keep going." He was hounding members of Congress by telephone on Wednesday about his payment under the Conservation Reserve Program, which idles nearly 35 million acres. Lyman gets $40 per acre each year for idling 700 of his 7,000 acres.

He learned quickly that his payment under the popular conservation program was caught up in a political tug-of-war between Republicans and Democrats. The spat, part of the budget debate, has held up about $1.8 billion in payments to thousands of farmers and ranchers.

The payments were due the first week of October. Under the program, created 10 years ago, landowners are paid to idle their erodible land and other environmentally sensitive land, and they get help planting a grassy cover, trees or other protection.

Although criticized for its generous payments for land that could safely be farmed, the program has worked its way into the livelihoods of rural America. Farmers bank and borrow on the money. Absentee landlords could profit from government largesse. Many farmers have used it as a way to retire. Please see FARM, page 2A

Warner is the brother of the woman involved and had heard about the fight. He was traveling at a high rate of speed on Wasson Road to get to his sister's house and was pulled over down. The teenager then began fighting with Sellers and other officers. Sellers had to use pepper spray and during the fight, the officer's ankle was broken in two places.

Deferred adjudication means the offense will not go on their record if the defendant does not violate the conditions set by the court.

Meanwhile, a woman involved in three different chases with police has pleaded guilty.

Amendment 1 allows further educational funding

Editor's Note: This is the fifth article in a series of stories explaining the 14 Constitutional amendments voters will be asked to decide Nov. 7.

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

Proposition 1 in the Nov. 7 Constitutional Amendment election, if passed, will mean more loan for Texas students.

The proposition, entitled Student Loan Bonds," seeks permission for the Higher Education Coordinating Board to issue $300 million in general obligation bonds to provide educational loans to Texas students.

"The first such proposal to provide student loans in Texas was passed back in 1965 and since then a number of other bond proposals have been passed providing similar assistance to Texas students through such programs as the Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan Program," State Rep. David Counts said.

Repayments of the student loans are applied toward the retirement of the bond. Although the state is ultimately responsible for repayment of the bonds, the program has always been self-supporting.

Arguments against passage of this proposition include the fact the bonds are considered as state debt and financial assistance for students' educations is primarily the responsibility of the private sector.

"Others, however, feel the program is needed to insure a well educated work force to lead Texas into the 21st century. The Higher Education Coordinating Coordinating Board has indicated without these additional funds, they will be unable to meet the anticipated loan requirements for the 1996-97 academic year and beyond," Counts said.

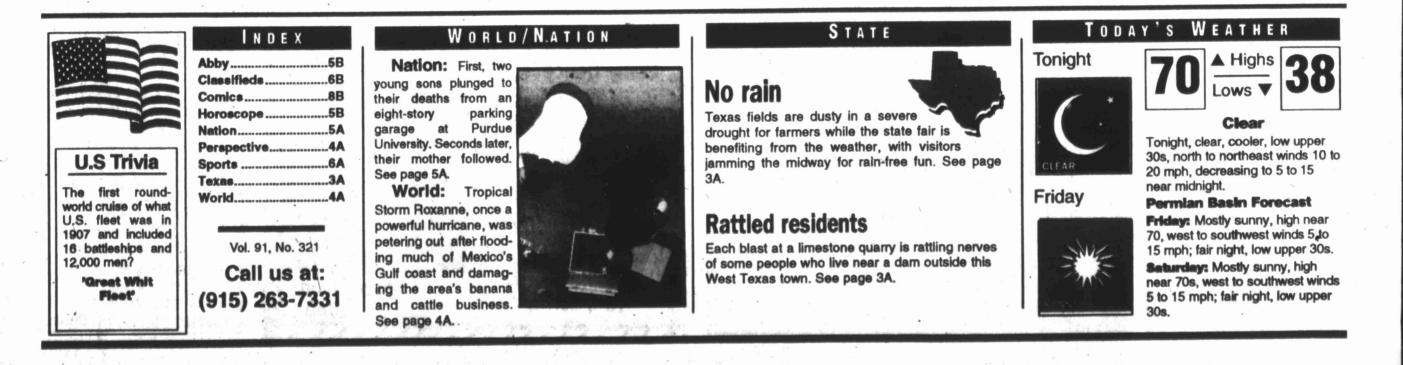

Another issue gaining attention is Proposition 4.

The proposal, called "Limited Home Equity Loans," would permit homeowners to refinance their homes to pay off an Internal Revenue Service lien or, in the case of divorce, to buy out the other spouse's equity in the home.

Counts said all other 49 states permit homeowners to borrow money using the equity in their homes as collateral. Texas does not.

Proposition 4 would ease current restrictions in only two very limited circumstances.

Argument against the proposition say the state's constitutional prohibition against home equity borrowing has served Texas well and the remedy to avoiding unnecessary lawsuits should be resolved through laws passed by the legislature rather than through a constitutional amendment.

There's still time for the Agriculture Department to pull through, Campbell said. because many bank payments become due in November, December or the first of the year "to leave some room for this type of a situation or whatever else may come up.'

his signature, the department says it cannot make the payments on 375,000 land contracts. Behind that is an anticipated budget showdown next month between congressional Republicans and the president. Republicans have talked of sending all remaining spending measures to him in one package in several weeks, and then adjourning Congress.

They hope that would force Clinton either to sign the bills or cause a broad shutdown of federal agencies. Administration officials have countered that the president would veto the package and order Congress to return to the Capitol and continue working on spending legislation.

Farm-state lawmakers of both parties have begun complaining.

Among them is Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. Dole said in a letter Friday to Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman that the payments could be made under existing stopgap spending authority.

Glickman said Congress could fix the problem by sending Clinton the bill to sign. "You want to get these programs moving, get the bill to the president," he said.

Reps. Tim Johnson, D-S.D., Earl Pomeroy, D-N.D., Collin Peterson, D-Minn., and David Minge, D-Minn., also wrote House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., on Tuesday urging him to send the bill to Clinton.

Roxanne giveth rain but not to West Texas

DALLAS (AP) - Texas fields are dusty in a severe drought for farmers while the state fair is benefiting from the weather, with visitors jamming the midway for rain-free fun.

Much of Texas has received little or no significant precipitation since mid-September, with the exception of the Gulf coast's rainstorms from a pesky hurricane and tropical storm, forecasters and agricultural agents

But what is Roxanne's gift to South Texas is bad news for the rest of the state. The storm, which has swirled around and through Mexico for 10 days, has cut off much of the rest of the state's moisture supply. "We have been in a dry weather pattern. We keep getting dry cool fronts through here," said Lonnie King, a meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Fort Worth.

"With Roxanne in the Gulf of people in southern Mexico.

Mexico, that keeps us cut off without southeasterly air flow that would usually bring us moisture. Winds are tending to be light or out of the southwest, which keeps us dry."

Even South Texas did not receive nearly as much rainfall as expected from Roxanne, where some counties were hoping for some much-needed drought relief from the hurricane that has killed at least nine

Doyle Warren, district Texas Agricultural Extension Service director in Weslaco, said large parts of the Rio Grande Valley could have greatly benefited from the expected tropical mois-

"If our water storage continues to decline as it has, we're going to be in a very serious situation as far as what crops we will be able to plant next year," he said.

Little or no rainfall is expected through most of the state this the driest since October 1987's week with two more dry fronts expected, said Jon Zeitler, meteorologist at the NWS Agricultural Service Center in College Station.

And many areas have received below-average rain amounts in the past two months.

The North Texas area has had .17 inch of rain so far this month compared with a normal rainfall total of 3.52 inches —

.12 inch.

For September, the area received 1.54 inches compared with an average 3.39 inches for the month.

The story is similar around the state. Austin and San Antonio have received .07 inch to date in October compared with a normal 1.86 inches.

HOUSTON (AP) - Corpus from the singer's boutiques. Christi police left out part of Yolanda Saldivar's statement that claimed the shooting of Tejano singer Selena was an accident, a Texas Ranger says.

"She hesitated to sign the statement because it didn't have the word 'accident' or 'accidental,"" Robert Garza testified Wednesday at Ms. Saldivar's murder trial. "It didn't reflect what she had stated, according to her."

Judge Mike Westergren ruled the statement admissible despite defense claims that police reneged on a promise, made during a 9-hour standoff with a suicidal Ms. Saldivar, to let her immediately talk to a lawver.

Prosecutors rejected any kind of conspiracy or cover-up by law enforcement officers to conceal Garza's take on the interrogation.

Sgt. Paul Rivera, the homicide detective on the case, agreed that Ms. Saldivar initially questioned the document.

"Before she signed the statement, she went back up and said: 'Right here, where it says I shot at her,' she said, 'it went off. The gun went off," Rivera testified.

Rivera said he reminded her: "You just told us you pulled the hammer back and shot at her. She said, 'That's right.' Then she signed the statement."

"There's always discrepan-

Ms. Saldivar, 35, could get life in prison. The trial was moved to Houston because of heavy publicity.

The signed confession says: "I took the gun from my purse and Selena started walking towards the door, which was opened. I pulled the hammer back and I shot at her as she was walking towards the door, which was open.'

It makes no mention of accident.

Garza, who watched the interrogation by Corpus Christi police through one-way glass, said what he heard Ms. Saldivar say was that she "pulled a gun out of her purse, held it to her own head. She said she had the hammer back. She said that in a gesture to Selena, she told her to close the door and the gun went off."

He said he filed a supplemental report because it looked to him like Ms. Saldivar wavered before signing.

Garza, however, testified he did not see the entire questioning of Ms. Saldivar and mentioned his reservations about the statement to Rivera.

"What I remember him saying is that she was twisting it and trying to change it around," Garza said. "I understood what he was talking about. It happens a lot."

Before court finished Wednesday, jurors also were told investigators never retrieved the bullet that killed Selena. It entered in her back and exited through her chest. Another witness testified that five days after Selena's shooting, investigators were called back to Days Inn Room No. 158 when a floor safe there was opened and a woman's leather purse belonging to Ms. Saldivar was found inside.

The ground moves so much that some people worry that the dam, built in the early 1920s. might be jeopardized.

. M. HOUSTON (AP) - Nearly three decades after he died in Vietnam, Lt. Cmdr. John Frederick Barr finally has been laid to rest. The Navy pilot was buried with full military honors Wednesday, 28 years to the day after his A-4E Skyhawk bomber crashed in North Vietnam.

About 100 friends and relatives gathered at Houston National Cemetery for a service that included a bugler playing taps, a 21-gun salute and a fly-

Barr was 33 when his plane crashed near a Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site in Hai Phong on Oct. 18, 1967. No parachute was seen and no body was recovered. In the late 1980s, the Viet-

There was no evidence, however, that the remains and records were found at the same site. Positive identification came two years ago, when DNA from the remains was compared with that of Barr's sister and mother in a new military test.

Barr was born in Illinois but grew up in Hope, Ark. He enlisted in the Navy in September 1952, earned a college degree while in the service and was trained as a pilot at the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla.

He went to Vietnam in June 1967 as a member of Attack Squadron 164, also called The Ghost Riders. He flew Skyhawks, the Navy's workhorse in the war, off the aircraft carrier USS Oriskany in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Amendment election is an important one ov. 7, Texans are asked to decide the fate of 14 propositions or amendments to the Texas Constitution.

These amendments range from issuance of bonds to exemptions to property taxes.

Only one in every 10 registered voters is likely to cast a ballot in next month's constitutional amendment election, Secretary of State Tony Garza predicts.

These propositions will affect you. And, for that reason, it behooves every registered voter to find out what the amendments are about.

Early voting has already started at the Howard County Courthouse. Nov. 7 is the day for going to the actual polls.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

Charles C. Williams DD Turner Managing Editor Publisher

With items such as property tax exemptions for veterans, extension of the homestead property tax exemption for seniors to having land used for wildlife management be treated as agricultural land for taxing purposes, it makes sense to vote.

Given the feeling about taxes, you need to learn all you can about these propositions. Listen to the pros and cons and make a decision.

And, remember to take the time to vote.

But it means even more when black men express devotion to these values, because our most serious domestic problems begin with the no-father black family. When daddy is a noshow, it leads to illegitimacy. chronic welfare, child neglect, drug use, black crime and so many other social migraines. However, there is a slight problem. It's not easy to be a dutiful family man when there's no paycheck because you can't find a decent job or even a crummy one. With businesses possessed by the downsizing spirit -- the 1990s' cool way of saying "take a walk, you're fired" -- it's hard to see where these jobs are going to come from. Especially for the young blacks who are coming out of the big-city human warehouses that we call schools.

Fine. Wonderful. But the most them all was Louis Farrakhan, one of the few men in America who can talk for two hours without putting anyone to sleep. I have to admit that I enjoy a Farrakhan speech. It has rhythm, style, pacing, graceful transitions, soft phrases rising to thunderous crescendos. It's very much like a fine musical composition, which isn't surprising, because Farrakhan used to be a professional calypso singer. Unfortunately, it's not music. It's words. And no matter what kind of soft-spoken con job he he has a live and receptive audi- ambush. ence, Farrakhan just can't resist

Roxanne begins to diminish

VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico (AP) — Tropical Storm Roxanne, once a powerful hurricane, was petering out Wednesday after flooding much of Mexico's Gulf coast and damaging the area's banana and cattle business Forecasters, however, were keeping a wary eye on the erratic storm.

"This storm has been driving us crazy," said Tricia Wallace, a staff meteorologist at the U.S. National Hurricane Center in Miami. "The storm has been breaking up ... but we'll keep watching.

The Mexican government lifted tropical storm warnings for the entire gulf coast at 11 a.m. EDT, but slapped them back at 4 p.m. EDT for a stretch of coastline from Tuxpan northward to San Fernando.

Roxanne was last reported drifting northwest at 6 mph, and was located at 8 p.m. EDT about 165 miles east of Tampico. Mexico. Sustained winds were about 40 mph.

U.S. Coast Guard and Mexican helicopters continued searching for three people still believed missing from a petroleum workbarge that sank Sunday night with 245 people on board. Five people were killed.

On Wednesday, officials said three fishermen from Brownsville, Texas, were rescued from a small reef where they had wrecked during the hurricane. The fishermen set out from Brownsville on Oct. 11 and were headed for Belize.

CIUDAD DEL CARMEN, Mexico (AP) — After spending 35 terrifying hours clinging to a groaning crane that jutted from a barge sunk by Hurricane Roxanne, Honrado Balan was overjoyed to be home — even though the storm left six feet of water in his house.

"I was thinking of my family, not of my belongings," said Balan, hugging his 4-year-old daughter as he recounted the wet and cold ordeal that he and 14 co-workers endured.

They were among 245 men working on a pipe-laying barge in Campeche Sound when the storm surprised them. Roxanne had roared through the area last week on its way north, then unexpectedly doubled back.

Six other storm-related deaths were reported from Roxanne last week. Tens of thousands of Mexicans have had to evacuate their homes this week in fishing hamlets and beachfront towns in Yucatan, Campeche and Tabasco states as storm tides and swollen rivers caused severe flooding.

Tabasco Gov. Roberto Madrazo Pintado said more than half of the state's highway network was seriously damaged, losses his transportation chief, Carlos Ruiz Sacristan, estimated at $60 million.

the people survived, it would be a miracle," said Len Cobb of Pensacola, Fla.

"I made a lot of changes in my lifestyle when I was in that life raft," he said with a grin.

Ray Bailey of Votaw, Texas, said he was in the water for four hours, clinging to the side of a life raft, but insisted he never doubted he'd survive: "I figured I'd hit bank somewhere.'

More than 200 people, many bobbing in the hurricane sea with only a life vest, struggled toward tugs called to the scene.

playing the Jew-baiting, honkie hating, history-twisting demagogue. So there we had hundreds of thousands of black men, pouring into Washington in a show of solidarity, brotherhood and praiseworthy expectations. They were joined by some of black America's most respected leaders.

Which was inspiring and should be a cause for hope.

But who got them together? Who was the big drawing card? Who got the biggest cheers and most adulation?

Louie "the Lip" Farrakhan, black America's most influential hatemonger.

If that's not depressing, you'll never need Prozac.

Farrakhan even had the gall to speak fondly of Malcolm X while reciting a list of outstanding black men who have been victimized by white America.

Apparently he thinks we've all forgotten that Malcolm X was murdered in public, not by white racists, but by black hit men from the very same Black Muslim organization in which Farrakhan was a rising star. Yet the big Washington rally provided hope that was so obvious that most of us couldn't have overlooked it.

civil rights workers -- black and white -- were being murdered. White politicians were bellowing about how niggers would be kept in their place and would be wise not to get uppity. Black students needed military bodyguards to enter some universities.

If anyone had told me the following: Within a few generations, the biggest cities in America would elect black mayors, major corporations would have black executives, the finest universities would be chasing after black students, the black middle class would dramatically expand and laws would have outlawed just about all forms of housing, political and educational discrimination. And that the polls would show the leading potential candidate for president would be a distinguished retired Army general who happens to be a black man from New York.

If anyone had promised those things when I was dodging Klansmen in Alabama, I would have said that I hoped to live long enough to be part of that utopian society.

And I've made it. So how come I'm depressed? (C) 1995 Tribune Media Services Inc.

The barge's equipment included a 110-foot crane, tall enough to give them something to cling to when the barge sank in 50 feet of water. The seamen took turns sleeping, lashing themselves to the crane that poked above the 40-foot waves.

"The fear we had ... was that the support would break and surely we would all die," said Hernan Calderon of Chetumal, one of 15 rescued on Tuesday.

The vessel's owner, CCC Fabricaciones y Construcciones, said 237 of the 245 crewmen had been rescued. At least three were confirmed dead and the U.S. Coast Guard said it spotted two more bodies.

This morning, a C-130 U.S. Coast Guard helicopter from Clearwater, Fla., joined in the search for the four people they hoped were still alive.

"Weather conditions are great, and there is a better chance of finding those unaccounted for," Coast Guard officer Renee Gordon said today

Strong quake puts Japan on alert for wave that never came

With winds of 40 mph, Roxanne drifted to the northwest today. At 5 p.m. EDT, the storm about 170 miles east of Tampico, Mexico.

Roxanne was downgraded to a tropical storm on Tuesday, but it was still a fierce hurricane when it began heading toward the city of Campeche from the northwest on Saturday.

Barge crewmen said the wind and waves grew alarmingly and by early Sunday they were in a full battle against the storm.

"We thought we could save it until the time it started to go down," said John Sullivan, a tower operator from Baton Rouge, La.

Huge waves smashed across the decks and crew members struggled for hours to pump out the water. Eventually the barge listed to starboard, raising fears that it would capsize, said Danny Miller of Talladega, Ala. Within an hour, crew members began tossing out life rafts and jumping into the madly rolling sea.

... I thought that if 50 percent of was rescued Sunday night.

"Those guys on the tugs, those were the heroes of the whole thing," Cobb said. "They were whipping those boats around down in those 40-foot troughs" without causing serious injury to the survivors. "It was amazing."

But 15 men took refuge on the barge's massive crane, judging that it would stay above water even if the barge sank. As the tugs pulled away with 222 survivors, the 15 were left behind, clinging to metal.

Some of the 15 were almost delirious at times, said Calderon, who noted that the barge's smaller crane had been smashed by the storm.

But by 3 p.m. Monday, a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter flew over the site and "we felt joy," said Balan.

At 11 p.m., rescue tugs appeared on the scene. Four of the men jumped from the tower into the still-churning seas and were rescued. The rest hung on for another seven hours until the waves had calmed to make a safe retreat.

But King said the persistent dry weather pattern, which has left North Texas without any significant rainfall since Sept. 19, has delivered pleasant fall temperatures.

"When the air is real dry as it has been, it heats and cools more rapidly and so we have a greater temperature difference between the morning low and the afternoon high," he said.

Overnight lows have been normal or below-normal - mostly in the 50s and 60s - with highs in the 80s above normal for the season.

Attendance at the nation's largest state fair, aided by the weather, has topped 2,578,000 about 190,000 more than last year when almost half of the event was rainy.

"This year, it has or one day and the ten., have been so warm and so sunny," said Nancy Wiley, spokeswoman for the State Fair of Texas. "In 1994, even some of the times we didn't have rain it was still cold and windy. But those who work here still have their sweaters hanging up on the rack.

"When you get up every morning and it is beautiful, people are making their decision to go to the fair," Ms. Wiley said.

She said with the weather and some promotions, total 1995 attendance will approach the 24day record of more than 3.4 million in 1990.

Roxanne brought some rain to the Rio Grande Valley last week, and the system may bring more showers in the next few days, meteorologists said.

More than 5 inches of rain fell in Brownsville and South Padre Island when the hurricane battered the Mexican Gulf coast which has been downgraded to a tropical storm, continued to drift northward Wednesday. There was a 30 percent chance for more showers Thursday, said Don Ocker, an NWS meteorologist in Brownsville.

Unfortunately, the rain hasn't hit far enough north to affect the two international reservoirs that supply water to the Lower Rio Grande Valley and northern Mexico.

"It doesn't do anybody any good. Really, we need it southwest of Presidio," Ocker said. "They've had some rain up there, but not enough to do any good."

Falcon Lake and the Amistad Reservoir are at all-time lows. Texas has used all but about 44 percent of its reserves, while Mexico's are at about 12 percent, according to Rio Grande Watermaster John Hinojosa IV.

TOKYO (AP) — Southern Japan went on tsunami alert Thursday following a strong earthquake — but the big wave never came.

During the alert, hundreds of thousands of coastal residents were ordered to higher ground as authorities warned of the possibility of waves up to six feet.

But the biggest wave was only 4 1/2 inches high, on Kochi 490 miles southwest of Tokyo. The tsunami alert was lifted after three hours.

The warnings came after a powerful earthquake with a preliminary magnitude of 6.7 jolted the southern Amami islands at 11:41 a.m. Thursday (10:41 p.m. EDT Wednesday). Tsunami warnings frequently follow quakes, but a full-scale alert is

There were no reports of injuries or damage from the quake itself.

The tsunami-alert area, about 50 miles southwest of Tokyo, was battered by more than 300 aftershocks. It had also been shaken by a strong quake a day earlier.

The area under alert — the eastern coastline of Kyushu, the Amami islands and the southern tip of Honshu — included cities such as the prefectural capital of Kagoshima, with 540,000 residents, Oita, with 427,000 people, and Miyazaki, with a population of 290,000.

A lower-level warning was also issued for Shikoku and the southernmost island of Okinawa.

People were told to move to high ground or make their way inland. But a few gawkers gathered on high bridges at Miyazaki to see the wave. Office worker Yasumasa Ikari went down the harbor at nearby Hyuga to watch it roll in.

"It was nothing, really," he said. "Just a wave."

After the first small waves, authorities warned against a false sense of security, saying a bigger wave could still follow. It didn't.

The wave did swamp some small boats. Nine fishing boats were overturned or damaged in port, the Kyodo news service said

As a precaution, Japan's military dispatched boats, helicopters and even an F-15 fighter jet to monitor the waters in the affected area. Media helicopters swarmed to the scene, and television continually broadcast warnings.

"Everyone on the coast in the areas of danger must evacuate to higher ground," television announcements said. "Please follow directions of police and fire officials."

Tsunami, or high waves generated by undersea disturbances, are widely feared in Japan. Sometimes quakespawned waves kill far more people than a quake itself.

In 1993, following a 7.8-magnitude quake, a tsunami wiped out much of the northern fishing island of Okushiri, killing scores of people.

Wednesday and Thursday's earthquakes were centered about 12 miles undersea off the island of Amamioshima, near Kikaijima. As many as 9,500 people on Kikaijima were still without water Thursday morning following the first quake.

jamin Borew said of the commotion he heard Wednesday at the gate of his Palm Beach County home.

"The fish and game agent said not to try to catch it or bother it," Borew said. "No problem there."

State game officials said they have received at least 20 reports of alligators in residential areas and were sending trappers to kill them. But they noted most gators fear humans and those less than 6 feet long are usually harmless.

"You know, they don't usually attack someone," said Lt. Jeff Ardelean of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. "They might take a bite out of a child, but they're not big enough to eat them.'

Though the rains that began falling Sunday were expected to stop today, hundreds of people have already been evacuated from areas where waters were up to 3 feet inside homes and up to 5 feet in streets. Gov. Lawton Chiles surveyed parts of Palm Beach and Martin counties by helicopter Wednesday, seeing for himself the water scooters and small boats zipping through flooded streets. He later declared a state of emergency in Hendry, Martin, Palm Beach and St. Lucie counties. And for a state that has already endured direct hits from two deadly hurricanes — Erin in August and Opal earlier this month - this week's high water has only added to the toll of damaged and destroyed homes.

"You can see the piles of carpeting in driveways. There are rugs and other things hanging on fences and bushes," said Palm Beach County resident Leon Graybill.

About 250 people were evacuated in Palm Beach County and in Lee County on the southwest coast, 272 people were driven into shelters, for some the second time their homes have been flooded in the past six weeks.

"We helped some people put carpets back in their homes and replace their appliances," said

Barbara Franz, emergency services director for the Red Cross in Lee County. "And now they are back in the shelters.'

The National Weather Service recorded 20 inches of rain in northern Palm Beach County in the 24-hour period ending at midnight Tuesday. That is more than 200 percent above normal for the entire month in Palm Beach County.

It may not be completely over. A new round of rains was possible over the weekend, forecasters said.

CHICAGO (AP) — Eric Morse died when he was only 5, dropped from a 14th-floor window because he would not steal candy for two older boys. His 9year-old brother lives with the memory of his failed battle to stop them.

Now, the two boys accused in the death face years behind locked doors. The two, who confessed to dropping Eric from the high-rise, were found delinquent of first-degree murder Wednesday.

The shocking cruelty of the crime — which took place in September 1994 in a vacant Chicago Housing Authority apartment - drew national attention and outraged the city, where an 11-year-old had been slain by members of his own gang two weeks earlier.

During the two-day hearing, Derrick Lemons testified that he fought the two boys, 10 and 11 at the time, in an attempt to save his little brother.

As the boys dangled Eric out a window, Derrick, then 8, said he tried to pull his brother in again, but the older boy bit his finger.

Shooting rules revamped because of Ruby Ridge

WASHINGTON (AP) - With Gorelick. his agency embarrassed by its use of a special shoot-on-sight order in the deadly standoff at Ruby Ridge, Idaho, FBI Director Louis Freeh has revamped the bureau's customary shooting rules.

The shooting rules of engagement are being replaced by a tighter, uniform policy for use of deadly force by all federal law enforcement agencies that requires officers to use alternatives if possible.

The Clinton administration's new policy, a response to the bloodshed at Ruby Ridge, was announced at a Senate subcommittee hearing Wednesday by Deputy Attorney General Jamie

Under the new policy, law enforcement agents may use deadly force only when they have a "reasonable belief that the subject of such force poses an imminent danger of death or serious physical injury to the officer or to another person," Gorelick testified. "Deadly force may not be used if an alternative reasonably appears to be sufficient to accomplish the law enforcement purpose.' Henceforth, she said, FBI agents will be guided solely by the new government-wide policy, "which may be further restricted, but not expanded, by on-scene commanders.'

Freeh was to testify today before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on terrorism, which has been holding hearings since early September on the 1992 Ruby Ridge standoff with white separatist Randy Weaver.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., the panel's chairman, said Wednesday he planned to ask Freeh how the FBI would apply the new shooting policy.

FBI spokesmen didn't return telephone calls seeking comment.

The FBI has been sharply criticized in the Senate hearings for its use of special orders at Ruby Ridge that said snipers "could and should" fire at any armed adult male spotted outside Weaver's mountainside cabin.

Ailing Steers seek to reverse tailspin

By STEVE REAGAN

Sports Editor

It seems that nothing and nobody wants to cooperate with the Big Spring Steers. Injuries haven't.

The schedule sure hasn't. And now it looks like the Fort Stockton Panthers don't want to cooperate, either.

The battered and bruised Steers look to reverse their recent tailspin when they travel to Fort Stockton Friday. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

The Steers, who have already suffered injuries to both starting running backs, two of three starting linebackers, a pair of defensive secondary people and some key backups took a hit on the defensive line when starting end John Jenkins went down with a separated shoulder in a recent practice. He is expected to miss at least two weeks.

Middle linebacker Gabe Rubio also is out for the Fort Stockton game because of an infected shoulder. No estimate is available as to when he can return.

Among those who should be able to play Friday are tailback Antwoyne Edwards and fullback Donny Hill, both almost fully recovered from ankle injuries, and offensive lineman Rudy Hernandez, almost back to full speed after a thigh injury.

The recent spate of injuries have Big Spring coach Dwight Butler scratching his head.

"There is no good time to have injuries, but when you spend the whole year regrouping and moving people around everything is OK, especially (because of injuries), you're not when you're close in so many and a new program, and that going to have any consistency," Butler said. "I'm not blaming anything on injuries - that's just the nature of the game but in defense of these young men, you can't develop any consistency.' The injuries have only served to make the team's 1-5 start (0-1 in District 4-4A), in which the Steers have lost by an average of only seven points a game, even more unbearable.

"To these young men, it must be hard to keep telling yourself games and just can't get over the top," Butler said.

Now, to make matters even worse for Big Spring, Fort Stockton is showing signs of life after years of being the district doormat. The Panthers are only 1-5, but that one victory came at just the right time - a 21-20 win over Monahans last week to open district play.

The Steers creamed Fort Stockton 54-14 last year, but Butler is not looking for a reprise.

"They've got a new coach, Please see STEERS, page 7A win last week elevated their program 500 percent," Butler said. "I'm not going to lie and say they're the best team we've ever faced, but when you have a team that hasn't won a game in two years, and they defeat their most vicious rival, automatically the kids believe they can play with anybody.'

The Panthers, under new coach Phil Lopez, rallied from a 14-0 halftime deficit to defeat Monahans last week. It marked Once considered a leading Heisman contender, Phillips was kicked off the team hours after his arrest, but Osborne later said he was suspended. Phillips is to be sentenced Dec. 1 after being found guilty of misdemeanor assault and trespassing charges.

Phillips said he would apologize to McEwen, but a court order prevents him from contacting her. He also said professional agents offered him $100,000 to leave school and wait for the NFL draft.

"I didn't do that. I stayed here. I'm going to go to school and try to do what's right,' Phillips said in an emotional voice during the 10-minute interview. "These people who are talking like they know me, they don't know me. It's killing me how they talk like they know what's going on. They code when he attacked Kate McEwen, his former girlfriend. In similar cases, students have been required to make restitution to the victim and receive behavior education.

The media-shy Phillips broke his silence in an unexpected telephone call to Omaha radio station KFAB. He said he wants to play this year and would love another shot at the Heisman Trophy next season with Nebraska. KFAB is the flagship station for the Nebraska sports network.

Phillips said he "reacted without thinking" when he attacked McEwen, a Nebraska basketball player, at the apartment of transfer quarterback Scott Frost on Sept. 10.

"I'm going to look this right in the eye," Phillips said. "I'm not going to be afraid or embarrassed. I did wrong. Everybody would return to Nebraska next year, saying it depends on whether people want him to play. If so, he said, then "I'll come back and play. If not, then there's no need for me to be here."

Phillips can return to the team if university officials leave his student status intact. Osborne said Phillips would not be in playing shape at least until the Nov. 4 home game against Iowa State.

His potential return sparked different responses.

"I can't wait until he gets back," said Ahman Green, a freshman tailback who leads the Huskers with 615 yards. 'I'll be happy for him. I feel that as a team we should be complete. We have unity, but his return would be great. He keeps us loose."

COAHOMA – The Coahoma Bulldogs (4-2, 0-1) lost their first district game to Winters last week 35-16. Now they are facing a must-win situation.

"We have been trying to refocus, we can still obtain our goals. We can't start feeling sorry for ourselves," Coahoma's head coach Eddie McHugh said. The Bulldogs are at Wall (4-2, 1-0) Friday at 7:30 p.m.

"We have to get up off the floor. We're still in the run for the playoffs, we can't get down now. If we win the next four games we will be (in the playoffs).

situation. It's going to be tough playing Wall, in Wall," McHugh said.

In last week's game against Winters the Bulldogs had trouble with their offense, squandering three scoring chances.

McHugh said, "Offensively we have to execute better and put the points on the board. The defense is doing a good job. We gave up some points last week but overall we did good." McHugh is interested to see how his team will respond to this test.

The Hawks' inexperience ing 41-8 loss to Stanton last week, Forsan faces off with state-ranked Winters Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Forsan.

The Buffaloes have suffered several injuries the past few weeks, but they do have some players back for Winters.

Knowing Winters can pass as well as run, Forsan as been concentrating on pass defense.

"The defense will be the key in keeping the game close. We have to be ready in the secondary to contain the pass. John Paul Belew is 6-foot-4 and can stand up and throw, our dline will have to get in there and apply the pressure." Forsan coach Jan East said.

City of Irving wants its share of Jones' endorsement deals

The City Council had planned to discuss the matter in executive session on Wednesday, but postponed the item for two weeks until Jones could provide some input.

Parrish said revenue from the city's share of the contracts would go mainly to maintenance of the stadium, with a portion going to the city general fund.

The city's desire for a piece of the action poses another snag in Jones' plan to execute the exclusive contracts that have drawn sharp criticism and a $300 million lawsuit from the National Football League.

In July, Jones signed a $40 million, 10-year deal with Pepsi to make the cola the official soft drink of Texas Stadium. Coca-Cola is the official soft drink of the NFL.

HOUSTON (AP) — Imagine an empty Astrodome. That is the prospect after Houston Astros owner Drayton McLane Jr. confirmed Wednesday that discussions are under way about a possible sale of the club to a group headed by Virginia businessman Bill Collins.

The Collins group would move the National League baseball club first to Washington, D.C., then to its Northern Virginia suburbs, according to reports.

Meanwhile, the Astrodome's other professional sports tenant, the NFL Houston Ollers, continue negotiations for a move to Nashville, Tenn., by 1998.

McLane told KRIV-TV in Houston Wednesday that the Astros have lost $65 million since he bought the club three years ago.

The NBA's 54 referees have been locked out since Oct. 1. The league has hired replacements, mostly from the ranks of the Continental Basketball Association, to officiate exhibition games in groups of two.

The replacements are simply not as experienced as the NBA's regular game officials, Mathis said, and that leads to problems such as Tuesday night's fight between Washington's Chris Webber and Chicago's Luc Longley.

"It's going to get worse," Mathis said Wednesday, the longer the lockout lasts.

"One of the marks of a veteran referee is sensing problems and getting to them before they escalate," said Mathis, who has worked NBA games for 19 years.

Webber said after the game that Longley started elbowing him in the first quarter.

"We have to have everything come together and click into position. Good execution from both sides of the ball will give us a good chance to win."

One thing that has remained constant is the attitude of the team and the players. "The kids will always come out and played hard. They will always apply the effort it takes to win. If we get a break or two and some momentum there is no telling how well these kids can play," East said.

The Blizzards expect a hard game out of Forsan. "Forsan always has the ability to perform. Last year they came down here and had a 14-0 game. The kids always play hard.

I'm sure Coach East will have them ready to play. Right now they have their backs against the wall, and they always seem to come out fighting," Winters' head coach Robin Byrd said.

Executing offensively and defensively will be the main key for Winters. Byrd said, "Forsan is capable of moving the ball, they have moved the ball in every game they have played. We have to perform and improve in order to continue with the success.'

THE BEST VS. THE BEST

1995 World Series matches Cleveland, Atlanta – teams with best records in baseball

Atlanta Braves and Cleveland Indians got what they wanted, and all of baseball may be better off because of it.

For the first time in almost a decade. the two best teams in the majors are meeting in the World Series.

"I think the right thing happened," Braves manager Bobby Cox said Wednesday night during a workout in Atlanta. "I think this is the way it should be.

All of those worries that wild cards, expanded playoffs and a skewed season would mess up the year turned out to be for naught. Instead, this October meeting looks like one of the better ones in recent memory.

The Indians led the majors in hitting, scoring and home runs. Now, following the most impressive pitching performance in AL playoffs history, they're trying to bring the championship to Cleveland for the first time since 1948.

The Braves, who led the majors in pitching, also are on a mission. This is their fourth straight trip to the postseason, and they're still looking for the first title.

"It's going to be the matchup of the century," Cleveland third baseman Jim Thome said.

Greg Maddux, certain to win his record fourth straight NL Cy Young Award, will start Game 1 for the Braves. AL playoff MVP Orel Hershiser, whose WHO'S GOT THE BALL?

ATLANTA (AP) — The 7-0 record is the best in postseason history, is likely to face him Saturday night in Atlanta.

"I know the Braves are going to be very hungry," Hershiser said.

The last time the two teams with the two best records - not including clubs that were tied for the best marks — met for the title was 1986, when the New York Mets beat Boston in a thrilling seven-gamer.

Meanwhile, it's about time anyone played in the World Series.

The last pitch anyone threw at this time of year was the one from Mitch Williams that Joe Carter whacked for a home run in Toronto. That was two years ago, although it seems like even longer than that.

Since then, there's been a strike that ruined the 1994 season and got 1995 off to a poor start. There have been replacement players, replacement umpires and a new playoff format.

There also was a new television format, one that meant most people did not see most games. That will change this week - everyone will see every game, albeit under a unique arrangement in which ABC and NBC will take turns showing them.

There should be plenty of good ball to watch.

The Indians have Albert Belle, the first player ever to hit 50 home runs and 50 doubles in a season, perhaps the most exciting player in the game in leadoff man Kenny Lofton - the guy who scored from second base on a passed ball Tuesday night in Seattle and a Gold Glove shortstop named Omar Vizquel who occasionally doesn't bother using a glove to field grounders.

Cleveland dominated the regular season by going 100-44, swept Boston in three games in the first round of the playoffs and posted an AL playoffs record 1.64 ERA in beating Seattle in six games. The Indians are making their first Series appearance since 1954.

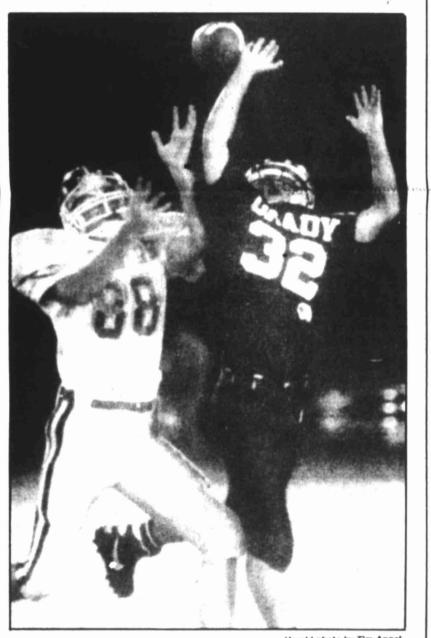

"This team and staff is playoff-tested and they are ready for the World Series," Hershiser said. "They are ready to execute.'

The Braves, unlike the Indians, do not have many players in the top 10 in the NL's major batting categories. Instead, they won 90 games in the regular season, beat Colorado 3-1 in the playoffs and swept Cincinnati in four games because of pitching.

Maddux, Tom Glavine, John Smoltz and Steve Avery helped Atlanta lead the majors with a 3.44 ERA. Reliever Mark Wohlers, who might finally be the Braves' answer in the bullpen, was a big reason the Reds scored only five runs in the four-game sweep.

Cleveland fans cheer as they await the arrival of their team at Hopkins Municipal Airport Wednesday. Cleveland, the American League champion, faces the National League champ Atlanta Braves in the World Series, beginning Saturday in Atlanta.

A Big Spring family will be honored tonight as one of Samaritan Counseling Center's Families of the Year.

Debbie and Scott Burt will be guests of honor at a banquet at the Confederate Air Force Hangar.

"Strong families are vital to life in today's society, and this is our time to celebrate the value of healthy families," said Dr. Jerry Kelly, director of the Permian Basin Samaritan Counseling Center.

The Burts don't think of themselves as extraordinary people - Debbie's reaction to being chosen as family of the year was "shock." But she was also pleased. "It's neat that someone could see something in our lives that would make them want to nominate us."

Scott, the son of Jim and Mary Burt of Big Spring, is the owner of Highland Animal Hospital. He graduated from Big Spring High School in 1976 and received his veterinary degree from Texas A & M. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club, of which he is community service director.

Debbie, the daughter of James and Ann Fitts, graduated from Big Spring High School in 1979 and attended Howard

What makes the Burt family work when so many families around them are falling apart? "We have put God first and at the center of our lives, and everything else falls into place," Scott said.

The family is active in Trinity Baptist Church, where Scott is a deacon and served three years as the youth director. Scott and Debbie sing in the church choir and work with the youth program, and the girls are involved in all the youth activities.

The Burts believe in being good citizens and contributing to their community. This is Debbie's fourth year on Forsan's school board, a job she takes on in addition to her fulltime commitment as a homemaker and the family chauffeur.

The Burts were nominated as Family of the Year by Linda Conway on behalf of the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club.

Rotary has always placed a strong emphasis on community service, Conway said, but last year, Scott's commitment resulted in the club putting forth a greater effort. When the time came for nominations, the Burts came to mind. "He's got a really great family, and he's a really great guy," she said. Families come in different sizes, ages, varieties, and colors, the people at Samaritan counseling Center say. What strong families have in common is they provide a place where people can learn who they are; where they develop values, trust, discipline and responsibility; where they learn to give and receive love.

The Family of the Year banquet will feature a guest speaker. Tickets are $25 per person. Call Samaritan Counseling

Scott and Debbie Burt and daughters Callie, LeDawn and Codye have been chosen as Big Spring's "Family of the Year" by the Samaritan Counseling Center, based in Midland. The Burts will join winning families from Midland and Odessa at a banquet in their honor tonight at the Confederate Air Force Hangar in Midland.

with band

to march

By JILL HATHAWAY

Longview News-Journal

LONGVIEW - Marching to the beat of a different drummer may help Jay Thompson get in step with the band.

The 13-year-old seventh-grader at Forest Park Middle School is determined to march with the symphonic band this football season, in spite of what some may say about his chances.

Jay is blind. He also happens to be musically gifted. And he's got a friend who is willing to make a leap of faith right along with him.

Shannon Brewer, teacher for the visually impaired program in the Longview Independent School District, is dedicated to helping Jay achieve his goal.

At a recent session, Jay and his teacher were working hard on the school's practice field as the rest of the band marched in a group yards away. Brewer counted the steps out loud as Jay marched toward her, smiling and swinging his arms.

Trying to consistently take six steps per five yards, Jay finished his 18th step and stopped. "Did you do it, Jay? You sure did!," Brewer told him.

'They're a little bit ahead of us," Brewer said of the other band members. But she is not deterred. "Eventually we'll get with the group.'

"Trust me, when I set my

"I could see me falling all over everybody with my tuba," he said.

Neal Weiner would like to see Fido checking out the carrots at the local farmers' market rather than mimicking the the dog in the television ad and chasing a chuck wagon across the kitchen floor.

Weiner, a veterinarian who practices in Lewiston, Calif., believes a diet of commercially processed food is the leading cause of problems in dogs and cats.

He advocates feeding pets a mix of raw meat, raw and steamed vegetables and cooked grains.

And it's not just in matters of diet that Weiner finds himself in the minority. Of the about 50,000 veterinarians in the United States, Weiner estimated there are about 500 who, as he does, practice holistic or homeopathic medicine.

He freely concedes that the holistic, return-to-the-earth approach to pet care - with its emphasis on herbs, flower remedies, "energetic" medicines and spiritual healing is not for everybody.

Weiner said he's found a lot of his customers "are people looking at that (alternative medicine) in their own lives" and want to extend it to pet care as well.

As a holistic veterinarian, Weiner said he looks at pet health care from the point of view that a disease and its symptoms indicate something is out of whack on a mental, emotional, physical or spiritual level.

Rather than treat the symptom (antibiotics for an ear said he relies on homeopathic techniques to find and correct the underlying cause of the problem

One technique that definitely has a holistic look to it is muscle testing, a type of "applied kinesiology" borrowed from the chiropractic field.

While a technician places one hand on the dog or cat and stretches out her other arm, Weiner touches various areas on the technician's body and tests the resistance of her outstretched arm with his other hand.

For purposes of the test, Weiner said the technician is serving as an "extension cord" into the energy field of the patient. If he can push her arm down with little resistance, that indicates a problem.

Depending on where he touches the technician, Weiner said he can detect infections, structural problems, allergies, organ weaknesses, hormonal imbalances, emotional disturbances and a host of other problems.

Weiner said he still uses blood tests to confirm his findings. Muscle testing, however, 'gives us a tremendous amount of information very quickly. It's non-invasive and inexpensive. The body has an innate intelligence — if you ask it."

"The holistic approach is to treat the disease and prevent it from returning. An illness is a lesson, a teaching tool that lets a person know they're out of balance. We're always trying to get into 'What's the cause?' and how we can educate people so their dog's or cat's well-being can be improved."

Dinosaur Bigger Than T-Rex is Found

NEW YORK (AP) - An amateur fossil hunter has discovered what may be the biggest meat-eating dinosaur known, a fearsome beast that looked like the longtime record-holder Tyrannosaurus rex.

The creature was 41 to 43 feet long and weighed 6 to 8 tons when it roamed the grasslands of what is now Argentina, scientists estimate.

It lived about 100 million years ago, or about 30 million years before T. rex appeared, said paleontologist Rodolfo Coria of the Carmen Funes Museum in Neuquen, Argentina.

A bone-by-bone comparison with remains of the largest known specimen of T. rex suggests that the newfound creature was slightly longer and maybe three tons heavier, said Coria, who reported the fossil find with an Argentine colleague in the journal Nature.

"This is a monstrous animal," said University of Chicago paleontologist Paul Sereno, who has examined the newfound fossils. "It's probably a bit bigger than T. rex."

Scientists are uncertain how big T. rex got. Estimates range from about 40 feet to 50 feet.

The initial fossil find was made by a local auto mechanic who hunts dinosaur bones as a hobby. In honor of the discoverer, Ruben Carolini, the huge dinosaur has been named Giganotosaurus carolinii.

Scientists have recovered about 70 percent of the skeleton, including parts of the 5foot-long skull, most of the vertebrae, both thigh bones and curved, serrated teeth about 8 inches long. Without a complete skeleton scientists can only estimate the creature's size.

The creature ran on its hind legs and probably had rather small arms, Coria said. Just what it ate in its environment, which resembled the African savanna, is a mystery, he said.

Despite the overall similarity in appearance to T. rex, Giganotosaurus was not closely related to it, and the two beasts arose independently, Coria said.

T. rex lived in North America, and there was no land bridge from South America that could have let Giganotosaurus or its descendants move north to become ancestors of T. rex, Sereno said.

Jack Horner, curator of paleontology at the Museum of the Rockies in Bozeman, Mont., said comparing the sizes of Giganotosaurus and T. rex is tricky because dinosaurs grew continuously until they died, rather than stopping at some adult length.

More important will be finding out whether Giganotosaurus was a hunter or a scavenger, he said. T. rex is usually considered a hunter, but Horner has suggested it was a scavenger.

In any case, fossils of a meateating dinosaur from North Africa suggest a beast that was bigger than T. rex, he said. No analysis of those bones has been published, he said.

Use the facts from the story to complete each of the following statements below:

1. The bones of a huge dinosaur were found

a) 100 million years ago.

b) by a museum worker.

c) in Argentina. 2. The creature was named

Giganotosaurus carolinii because

a) it measured about 30 feet long.

b) Ruben Carolini discovered the bones.

c) both a and b are correct.

3. Ruben Carolini, an auto mechanic, spends his spare time

a) looking for fossils (remains of animals.)

b) studying at the University of Chicago.

c) building skeletons.

4. According to the article, the monstrous dinosaur

Coahoma's school spirit kicks in

Special to the Herald

Homecoming week at Coahoma High School allowed students and faculty alike to dress up and display their school spirit.

Monday was hat and shades day. Students were allowed to wear hats and shades to show their spirit. Tuesday was blackout day. Students were encouraged to wear something black. Some even painted their faces black.

Wednesday was twins day. Students picked someone to wear something alike. Thursday was decade day. Students were to pick their favorite decade and dress appropriately. Friday ended the week with red and white day.

Wednesday was the annual bonfire. Students met in front of the high school, watched the football team climb to the top of a fire truck and escorted them to the bonfire site.

All week long the student council held a spirit link drive. The money raised went toward the Cancer Society and partial purchase of the new mascot suit. The results of this drive were freshmen in fourth place, sophomores in third, juniors in second and seniors in first place.

The Homecoming court was chosen by the student body during the week. Krista Jeffcoat was escorted by father Alvis Jeffcoat, Christy Bennett by father Larry Bennett, Kim Gray by father Pat Gray, Nicci Reid by father Donald Reid and Kayla Stanislaus escorted by brother Brenden Stanislaus.

Before the game the football hero, chosen by the student body, and the football sweetheart, chosen by the football team, were announced. The football hero was Adrian DeLaRosa and the sweetheart was Kim Gray.

During halftime the Homecoming Queen was announced as Krista Jeffcoat. Following the win over Hawley, students joined at the cafetorium for a victory dance.

WE I THE PARTY AND A STREET AND A STREET Associated Press.pheto Edna Tamayo explains parental involvement and dropout prevention programs in Harlingen, Texas, that she helped institute and that helped earn her the title of Hispanic Woman of the Year.

By LARRY ROWE

Valley Morning Star

HARLINGEN, Texas -- "We had a job to do and we just did it," Edna Tamayo said, remembering her first teaching job at the Hardin Ranch School more than 30 years ago. "It did more for me than all my education courses at the university, because it was common-sense teaching and it came from trial and error."

It was also the beginning of a career that changed education in Harlingen and inspired school programs across the Rio Grande Valley.

She has been named the Valley Morning Star's Hispanic Woman of the Year.

Seven years ago, after years of teaching, Mrs. Tamayo became the head of parental involvement and dropout prevention for the Harlingen school district.

of her ideas — favoring human contact over written manuals and pulling parents into schools - is credited for cutting the dropout rate from 15 percent in 1989 to 2.6 percent in 1993.

Besides keeping hundreds of more students in school, the achievement earned the district national recognition among educators.

"I think Edna was 99 percent responsible in providing the leadership to reduce the dropout rate," said James Smith, the former Harlingen superintendent who put Mrs. Tamayo in charge of the programs.

Mrs. Tamayo, 57, doesn't like to see the program through numbers - "I don't deal in statistics" — but the impact that a good parental involvement had in Harlingen should sound a wake-up call, she said.

Many schools follow the same philosophy, but few have been as persistent and innovative as her program.

She recruited former gang members, for example, to warn children about gangs and lecture teachers about youth problems.

She set up full-time havens for parents on school campuses, and "family learning centers" in the housing projects to give children a place to study with older students after school.

She tapped into a generous resource at Texas State Technical College by recruiting mentors there for struggling teen-agers.

And almost two years ago, she took her program out of its conventional setting to aid a distressed community. Families in the Las Palmas colonia had out of 83 positions, including a sweep of the top three places. Big Spring accounted for six sopranos, including first chair, and two tenors.

Theresa Porras, fifth place; Kristin Lysaght, eighth place; Vanessa Yanez, 12th place; Karissa Wilson, 22nd place and Cynthia Shipman, 25th place. Altos from Runnels were Laura Davis, first place; Andrea Fleming, second place; Amber Bedell, 11th place; Amanda Morris, 14th place; Lindsay Brown, 17th place; Shandria Scott, 22nd place and Bond Moughon, 23rd place.

were Alicia Phifer, first place;

Altos from Goliad were Koeisha Boyd, third place; and Stephanie Herrera, ninth place. Tenors were Fred Morales, 10th place, and Marcus Fernandez, 14th place.

beseeched her for help in controlling violent gangs of children. Some were too afraid to talk to her in public. "We didn't tell them we had an answer on a silver platter," Mrs. Tamayo said. "We just went on this assumption: Positive activity will make negative activity decline.'

She and her staff worked with the families to give the children activities and older role models in their neighborhood. She insisted on police patrols and helped neighbors clean up a vacant lot for sporting events.

"She's a great lady," said Amos Gonzalez, a Harlingen attendance officer who took on the Las Palmas project. "She knows what she's doing and she has a big heart for the community, especially the Hispanic community."

Mrs. Tamayo gives credit to the staff, who come up with many of the dropout program's innovative ideas. "It takes special people to implement a program," she said. "This isn't a program that can be implemented from a handbook."

Gonzalez, for example, suggested teaming up the Las Palmas children with the Rio Grande Valley WhiteWings. Before home games, the kids help prepare the stadium and hang out with the players.

BIG SPRING HERALD

You sense a change in the wind. Use your energy and make choices for yourself.

Listen to a loved one who may have a great but offbeat idea.

Consider taking a trip or taking a class in your area of expertise. Get in touch with your nurturing side. Tonight:

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Deal creatively with work and a loved one. You might feel you must juggle different interests.

You see life in a new way and are clear about what you want.

Consider your options with care. If single, you might get an opportunity to change that status. Tonight: Be a wild thing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Stay anchored about what is happening. You need to evaluate a relationship and decide if it should go further. Pay attention to what is happening as you make a decision. Your creative style knows no limits; you are in command. Tonight:

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

Communications are active,

and you need to make decisions that involve work. You are about to enter a period when there is going to be much activity at work and in your daily life. Take a hard look at how you can eliminate red tape.

Tonight: Go out with co-work-

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A financial risk may be quite enticing, but it may not be a good bet in the long run. Do a better job of establishing your limits and knowing when and where to leap. Honoring your financial status and knowing your limits is instrumental.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

You are direct in your dealings with others. You might have many decisions to make between a family member and what you want. You might have to find a midpoint as you deal a situation. Understand how much someone wants to be close to you. Tonight: Be your SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take the lead at work. There are many different ways of e valuating a change. You need to think through what is possible. Your upbeat attitude helps you handle a key matter. Expect to have more energy in the next few weeks. Tonight: Be out and about. ***

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's important that you get news from a distance before you make an important decision. Precision is needed as you deal with plans and a potential trip. Express your ideas and put yourself on the line. You are far more centered than you think. Tonight: Try another form of entertainment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your view of your options is far different from someone else's. Be clear about what you want. A friend or loved one gives you a lot of support. Discussions bring understanding. Tonight: go for closeness.

life. While I have no objections to being friends, I have absolutely no romantic interest in him. I have spoken to him on the telephone, but do not care to go out with him.

Once, in high school -- nearly 30 years ago -- I sent my brother to tell him I couldn't keep our date, hoping that he would find out that I was seeing someone else. He never took the hint.

He has always made it quite obvious that he had a heavy crush on me and keeps finding excuses to see me. I hate to hurt his feelings, but how do you make someone understand that there is nothing there -never has been, and never will be? -- NOT INTERESTED

DEAR NOT INTERESTED: Try the direct approach. Simply tell him that while you think he is a very special man, your feelings for him are strictly platonic.

Some shop owners may refuse the tip, others may accept it, or put it in a "kitty" for hairdressers who may not have had a very good week.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, I invited a close girlfriend over for dinner to cheer her up after she had lost her job. "Lucy" was immediately attracted to my boyfriend and boldly flirted with him. Naturally, he responded. Lucy said he started it, and he said she started it. Hit with this double whammy, I was upset and let them both know it. Then I reluctantly gave them the green light to pursue their mutual attraction. Now they're "seeing each
