Speed behind most fatal accidents in county

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

There has been some talk in the recent past about raising the speed limit on interstates to 70 miles per hour. A recent preliminary state study suggesting a raise in the speed limit would be appropriate in some areas would be a deadly idea, according to Southwestern Insurance Information Service of Austin.

Engineers with the Texas Department of Transportation conducted the study on stretches of interstates and major highways leading into and out of Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and Waco. Insurers said they do not support this increase because the two main contributing factors to accidents is excessive speeding and drinking and driving. According to Department of Public Safety records, there were 703 accidents in Howard County last year with 10 fatalities. The contributing factor in two of the fatal accidents was speeding over the posted limit. A third fatal accident was caused by "speed unsafe." A DPS spokesperson explained speed unsafe refers to when a person may be driving the posted speed limit but should be going slower due to unsafe conditions such as rain, ice or snow.

Another trio of fatal accidents were caused by someone driving drunk. Not every accident lists a contributing factor and the trooper may or may not issue a ticket at every collision. In Howard County, 24 accidents were caused by people speeding and an additional 76 accidents had listed the contributing factor as speed unsafe. In Martin County, there were 67 accidents in 1994 with one fatal accident. No contributing factor was listed in regards to that accident. Eight accidents were caused by drunken drivers, one by speeding over the limit and 14 as speed unsafe. Glasscock County reported 32 accidents with two of those being fatal. One fatal accident had a speeding over the limit listed as a contributing factor. Three accidents involved a drunk driver, three for speeding and two for speed unsafe. Only four accidents were reported in Borden County and no contributing factors were listed. In Mitchell County, there was a total of 123 accidents and four of those were fatal. Three of those accidents listed either speeding, driving drunk or speed unsafe as the contributing factor. More than a well or milestone

■ 75 years of pumping oil celebrated

By CARLTON JOHNSON

The 75th anniversary celebration of the Westbrook Abrams No. 1 discovery well was more than just a milestone to oil industry employees and enthusiasts - it was a reflection of what the oil industry has meant to West Texas. Approximately 200 people, including Fina's CEO Ron Haddock and former Big Spring Fina Manager Jeff Morris and several Fina vice presidents attended. "W.H. Abrams No. 1 (also known as the T&P No. 1) was the beginning of the oil industry in the Permian Basin," Fina Oil and Chemical Plant Manager Phil Carruthers said. Friday's ceremony also included celebrating the recovery of the 100 millionth barrel from the Westbrook field and a special presentation to the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum. Today the well is known as

Gramm says he won't compromise on budget bill

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

"No compromise!" was the message Ed Hodges brought to Big Spring from Sen. Phil Gramm last night. Hodges, Gramm's state director, was making a 20-city sweep of the state to discuss the House-Senate budget reconciliation effort now going on in Washington. Hodges used a football analogy to make his point - if the team has the ball on the five-yard line, first and goal, the fans will wonder if they go for the field goal instead of the touchdown. Gramm believes Congress has built up the momentum to pass the budget reconciliation, and any compromise with the president will leave voters wondering why - why the promise of a balanced budget was once more cast aside, explained Hodges. Hodges summarized the tax cuts proposed for consideration by the House/Senate conference committee which must achieve a reconciliation between the Senate's proposed budget and the House's. This plan "will balance the budget in seven years," Hodges says, in part by cutting the federal budget by $245 billion over that period. The $245 billion in cuts had already been passed by both houses, Hodges says; the debate beginning today will focus on ironing out details - "we have the blueprint." The cuts Hodges discussed Monday include a $500 per child tax cut for families, estimated to achieve $163 billion; a reduction in the capital gains tax from the current 28 percent to 14 percent, estimated to achieve $63 billion; $10 billion in inheritance tax relief; a proposed American Dream Savings account, estimated to achieve $7 billion; a $5,000 per child adoption expenses credit, estimated to achieve $1 billion; and a revision in the IRS code to re-establish deductions for home offices, estimated to achieve $1 billion. Hodges discussed the continuing resolution allowing the government to continue functioning despite the end of the fiscal year. Congressional leaders have expressed an intent to send the compromise budget to the president on the last hour of the last day of the resolution, Nov. 13, in an attempt to prevent a veto.

Boys' Club helps build young men with UW help

Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of reports looking at the 10 agencies the United Way funds. The United Way is currently raising money for the organizations with a goal set at $210,000.

The Big Spring Boys' Club is another one of the 10 agencies assisted by the annual campaign drive of the Big Spring/Howard County chapter of the United Way. Approximately 2,000 to 3,000 boys have passed through the doors of the Big Spring Boys' Club since it opened in July 1967. Boys' Club Director Bert Andries was with the club then as president and says results sometimes come in increments. The on-going programs of the Boys' Club are effective and give boys something constructive to do as well as guidance and supervision. "A lot of our members are second generation. Some of the boys can see their own fathers in some of the pictures we've hung," Andries said. The Boys' Club is an all-boy, daily building-centered program where boys six through 17 years of age, may go any weekday afternoon and evening until 7:45 and Saturday's from 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. Last year the United Way allocated $32,484 to the Boys' Club plus $1,216 in combined federal campaign designations, totaling almost 50 percent of the Boys' Club budget. The remainder of the club's budget is derived through donations. "We keep a variety of activities for boys here at the Club. Computers and educational type games to go with them, table games, wood working and a small shop, a gym, study hall and a swimming pool operated on Big Spring's northside in the summertime," Andries said. "Any boy can afford to belong. Boys' Club membership fees are only $1 a year through eighth grade and $2 for high school age boys up to 17 years of age," he added. Boys' Club fees are to reinforce the idea of membership. Members not only own the Boys' Club, but also have the responsibility as well as the privilege of membership. "It's the support of the entire community that makes the Boys' Club work," Andries said.

Summer spending rose in September

WASHINGTON (AP) - Consumer spending rose slightly in September in what analysts said was a sign of moderating economic growth. Just three days after reporting a surprisingly robust expansion in the economy during the third quarter, the Commerce Department said Monday that Americans' personal income advanced 0.4 percent in September and spending edged up 0.2 percent. The government also revised downward spending for July and August. While it still was up a strong 0.8 percent in August, that was less than the previous estimate of 1 percent.

Spending actually fell 0.3 percent in July, instead of dropping 0.1 percent. Consumer spending, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $4.92 trillion last month, represents two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

Westbrook Southeast Unit No. 701 and is maintained and operated by Fina.

Initially in 1920, the W.H. Abrams No.1 didn't produce what was originally expected, so another well was drilled and it produced significantly more.

"People didn't have the technology then that we have now and had they drilled the well a little more to the west, they would not have found oil at all," Carruthers said.

On July 16, 1920, approximately 2,000 people, enjoying a festive atmosphere, watched as the workers shot the W.H. Abrams well with 600 quarts of nitroglycerine to activate it.

"Back then you drilled the well, you cased it and to perforate the well, it was shot with nitroglycerine," Carruthers said.

The W.H. Abrams No. 1 came under Fina's operatorship with the formation of the Westbrook Southeast Unit and was redesignated as Westbrook Southeast Unit No 701 in 1968.

A lot of confusion has been caused by the name change, the out-of-date historical marker, as well as the much publicized Santa Rita No. 1 in Reagan County.

To the rest of the world, the name and status of Westbrook Southeast Unit No. 701 is unknown. The Santa Rita No. 1 receives top billing as the Permian Basin's "First" at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum in Midland, despite that fact oil began flowing from it on May 28, 1923, almost three years after completion of the W.H. Abrams No. 1.

The Westbrook Southeast Unit No. 701 continues to produce oil to this day and by reaching 100 million barrels of oil production this past June, the Westbrook Southeast Unit has placed itself among the major oil fields in Texas.

FBI under siege again for Waco

WASHINGTON (AP) — Still stinging from recent Senate criticism of their conduct in the deadly Ruby Ridge standoff, federal law enforcement agencies are being scrutinized anew for their siege against the Branch Davidians near Waco, Texas.

The Senate Judiciary Committee was to open hearings today on the 1993 Waco tragedy, in which cult leader David Koresh and 80 of his followers died following a 51-day siege by federal law enforcement agents.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, called today's hearings essential "so that we may identify necessary policy changes, in order that public confidence in law enforcement can be strengthened."

"Many law-abiding citizens are concerned by the resort to use of force and violence by law enforcement personnel in (the Waco) case," he said.

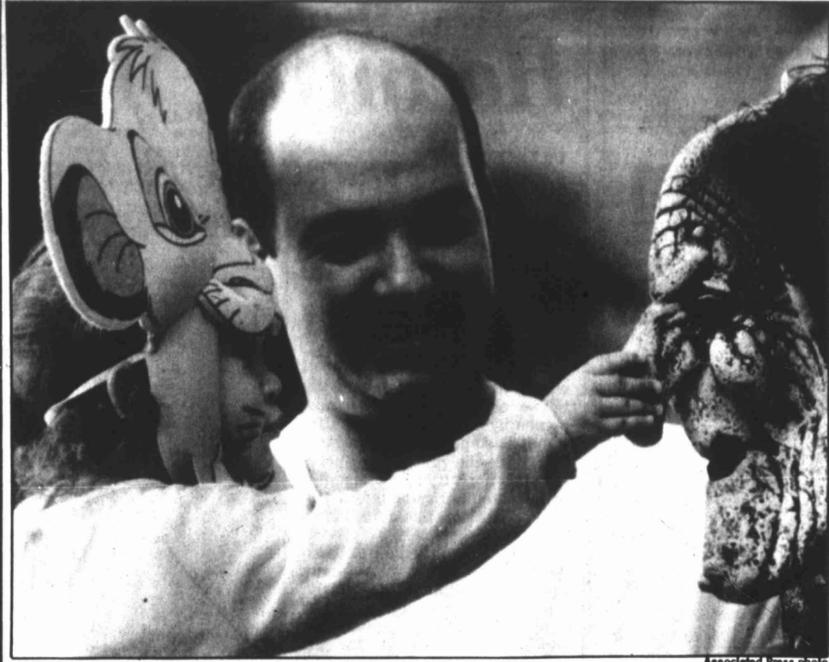

Witnesses in the new round of hearings were to include John Magaw, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and Ronald Noble, undersecretary for law enforcement at the Treasury Department, which has authority over the ATF.

Other witnesses were to include three ATF agents at Waco — among them Jerry Petrilli, who was one of the first law enforcement officials through the compound's gate, as he attempted to serve a search warrant as part of a firearms investigation. He took about 10 steps before a grenade exploded, peppering him with shrapnel.

Two agencies — the FBI and the ATF — bore a steady barrage of criticism by Republican lawmakers last summer in politically charged House hearings on the Waco siege.

About a month after the House hearings on Waco, the FBI and ATF took another pounding in a Senate subcommittee inquiry into the 1992 standoff against white separatist Randy Weaver at Ruby Ridge, Idaho.

Suburban savagery leads to arrests

DALLAS (AP) — Despite enduring unspeakable horrors, a North Dallas couple has helped police track down three men they believe were responsible for their three hours of hell.

Three men were charged Monday with raping the 31-year-old wife while her 34-year-old husband was forced to watch, a crime that shocked even hardened Dallas police detectives.

The arrests, in turn, have police detectives dusting off the files of robbery cases dating back to 1993.

Kenneth Ray Johnson 23; Noel Raul Cordoba, 19; and James Alexander Hopson, 22, all of Dallas, were charged Monday with aggravated sexual assault in the Thursday attack. Hopson also was charged with aggravated robbery. More charges are likely to be filed, police said.

Police said the rape was so savage that they declined to reveal details. It also left the victims so traumatized that, at first, they could not aid in the investigation, police said.

But the couple came through with descriptions.

"They said one of the men was white, one of the men was black, one of the men spoke Spanish," police spokesman Sgt. Jim Chandler said. "Of the suspects we've arrested, one is white, one is black and one is Hispanic."

He added: "In fact, property belonging to the couple was recovered. The men were carrying some of that property with them."

Furthermore, police believe those men and two others are responsible for a chain of robberies dating back two years.

Johnson and Cordoba, along with David Darren Woodruff, 19, and Michael Eugene Porter, 22, were charged with aggravated robbery in an Oct. 17 holdup in which a cab driver was shot and two passengers were robbed, Chandler said.

Woodruff and Porter both were arrested at a Plano residence around 6 a.m. Monday. Aggravated robbery and aggravated sexual assault are first-degree felonies, carrying a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, police spokesman Ed Spencer said.

"We think the five are involved in as many as nine or 10 robberies dating back to 1993," Spencer said. "We believe they all know each other, and we believe that they've hung out together."

It was not immediately clear how the five met or how long they've known each other, Chandler said.

Ex-officer indicted for murdering wife

MERIDIAN (AP) — A police investigation that uncovered new evidence in the latest of a retired Army officer's three wives to die under unusual circumstances has resulted in his indictment for her slaying.

Jack Wayne Reeves remained jailed today on a sealed murder indictment handed up Monday by a Bosque County grand jury. "The Arlington Police Department has conducted an extensive investigation," said District Attorney Andy McMullen of Hamilton. "Based upon that extensive investigation, the evidence was developed to support the action that was taken."

Reeves was held in Bosque County Jail in lieu of $300,000 bond set by 220th State District Judge James Morgan.

Sheriff Tim S. Gage said grand jurors heard the new evidence last week in the death of Emilita Reeves, who had disappeared for almost a year. Her skeletal remains were found Oct. 1 by a hunter walking in a dry creek bed near Lake Whitney.

Reeves, 55, had been free on bond and on an electronic monitor awaiting a Jan. 22 murder trial in the 1978 death of another of his former wives, Sharon Reeves, in Coryell County.

And Hill Country law officers have reopened the investigation into the death of a third former wife, 29-year-old Myong Hui Reeves, who drowned while the two were fishing on Lake Whitney in 1986.

Reeves, who had been considered the prime suspect in Emilita Reeves' death, was subpoenaed to testify Thursday before the grand jury in Meridian.

Although never reporting Emilita missing to police, Reeves did distribute fliers and offer a reward for her return.

Reeves of Arlington was granted a divorce soon after her disappearance, saying she had abandoned him and their 3-year-old son, who is now staying with relatives.

Trial in 911 abduction heading to the jury

FORT WORTH (AP) — The capital murder trial of an Arkansas man accused of kidnapping and killing an Arlington teenager is near an end.

After a week of sometimes conflicting confessions by the 24-year-old defendant and others involved in the Sept. 24, 1994, abduction of 16-year-old Lisa Rene, the case was headed for the jury today after final arguments.

U.S. District Judge Terry Means told jurors to return to court today to hear closing arguments, prior to the case being turned over to them.

The case is the first death penalty case in the nation to be tried under new provisions of the 1994 Crime Bill, which added new crimes for which federal prosecutors could seek the death penalty, including kidnapping that leads to death.

Orlando Hall of El Dorado, Ark., is accused of helping to abduct Miss Rene on Sept. 24, 1994, then helping to kill her two days later by hitting her in the head with a shovel as she stood near a shallow grave in a park at Pine Bluff, Ark., where she was buried alive.

Hall and several associates, including his brother, testified that the abduction wasn't planned, that they went to the girl's apartment in search of her two brothers.

When the brothers weren't there, instead of abducting them and torturing them to force the return of about $5,000 paid for drugs that weren't delivered, they took the girl instead.

Quote of the Day

"If what we do as journalists is to act as witnesses, then I want to be in the front seat."

Peter Jennings, news anchor, 1993

Keep momentum from 'At Your Service' going

This past Saturday, local merchants launched an "At Your Service" program aimed at retaining shopping dollars in Big Spring.

The program's first effort was a success, as people were drawn to the stores for giveaways and free coffee.

The main hope here is residents will continue to shop in Big Spring long after the giveaways and free coffee are gone.

That is up to the merchants. It is more than a matter of being competitive. Shoppers want good customer service - not fawning, but service with a smile and a helping hand.

Many reasons have been given by residents for taking their shopping dollars to Midland, including selection, price and service.

Some of this simply can't be helped because our stores can't always offer the selection of a bigger town.

However, we can offer service where paying slightly higher prices is worth it. Good customer service draws people back to a store again and again. The opposite is also true; bad customer service keeps them away.

"At Your Service" is a good idea. Residents need to give it a chance and merchants have to keep it working.

She can't get rid of him

There can come a sad moment in some marriages when both sides finally know that the magic has faded away.

That's the way it was with Richard, a Chicago lawyer. He had an attractive, intelligent wife, two lovely children, and a spacious home in a Chicago suburb.

But he was in his 40s, often a difficult age for a man. His once-happy home life seemed a bit dull. His wife, the same age, was still slender and attractive, but she seemed to spend a lot of time in her role as mother to their children and on other domestic duties.

Their relationship just wasn't the same as when they were in their 20s, laughing, carefree, and he was beginning his law career.

No, things had changed over the years. The real excitement in his life came when he went downtown to defend his felonious clients and to pal with the colorful characters in the Criminal Courts Building.

And he became certain that the romance had gone out of his marriage when he found himself regularly sneaking into bed with a cute young thing in her 20s.

His wife learned of his hanky-panky, so he left his home, moved in with his young girlfriend and filed for divorce.

His wife didn't take it too well. Women can be that way, especially when they've spent years raising the kids and working part-time during those lean early years of a marriage.

So the wife did what many wives do when they believe they have been treated shabbily. She made the divorce difficult by getting a lawyer and asking for a hefty chunk of her husband's wealth and generous child support for their two teen-age daughters.

That wasn't easy, because Richard had his money well stashed. And it appeared, from financial records his wife found, that he might not have been perfectly honest with the Internal Revenue Service.

Naturally, her stubbornness irked Richard. And it troubled him that if she got really mad and blew the whistle to the feds, he could wind up in serious tax trouble.

There was the potential inconvenience of having to give his wife much or most of his lot and pay big child support, while trying to give his new young sweetie the lifestyle she deserved.

That's when he decided that divorce wasn't the solution to his problems. Murder was.

Of course, he wouldn't do it to himself. Being a lawyer, he had professional standards to maintain.

Instead, he would hire one of the many criminal cutthroats who were his clients.

The $10,000 assignment went to a hulking thug who had been a member of a murderous motorcycle gang.

The hired hit man stalked the wife for a while, intending to shoot her dead when he got the chance. But she never presented a suitable target.

So he decided instead to blow her up.

You may have read about it a couple of years ago. The wife, Margaret Kagan, left a commuter train, got into her car, turned the key, and the car exploded and was engulfed in flames.

Close, but no cigar. The bomb hadn't been placed properly, and Mrs. Kagan managed to scramble out of the burning, melting car with only minor injuries.

When Richard Kagan got word in his law office that his wife was still alive, and yelling to the cops that he did it, the poor fellow had to pop a nitro pill for his heart.

In such cases, the estranged husband is always the logical suspect, as unfair as that might seem to Californians who serve on juries.

And it was only a matter of time before the cops tracked down the hit man and persuaded him to squeal on Richard in exchange for a lesser prison sentence.

Another example of the recurring north suburban complaint that it is difficult to hire good help these days.

So Richard stood trial, his hit man told all, and after Richard wept and blubbered that it was all a mistake and that he really adored his wife and kids, the judge told him what a slimy character he was and sentenced him to 42 years in prison.

And that's where Richard is today. But the story hasn't ended yet. As goofy as it sounds, Richard and Margaret are still married.

After he was sentenced last year, Richard dropped his divorce suit. He would have sounded strange explaining to a judge why he wanted to be rid of Margaret.

But after the explosion, Margaret filed for divorce. You can't blame her. It is one thing to be dumped. It's something else to be blown up.

You might think that this would be an open and shut divorce.

"It's this way, your honor. He hired a guy to kill me. So the hit man is doing 10 years and my husband is doing 42 years. So I don't think it's likely that we'll patch things up."

What's there to talk about? Apparently a lot. Richard, from his cell, is putting up a legal battle with writs and motions and all sorts of things he learned in law school. It's more fun than working in the prison laundry.

The case has bounced from one judge to another, and could wind up in front of a fourth.

So Margaret still isn't rid of the husband who tried to blow her to bits.

And lawyers actually complain that they are misunderstood.

Haunting We Will Go!

W. Texas journalist stakes out flirtatious ghost

By AND GRIESER
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH — When a group of ghost hunters spent the night waiting for the spirit of Augusta Armstrong, they got the cold shoulder.

Starting almost exactly at midnight, cold spots roamed the house on Grand Avenue now owned by City Councilman Jim Lane. The spots — often associated with the presence of paranormal activity — caused a drop in temperature and a tingling sensation like a mild electric shock.

Lane's Grand Avenue residence was built for Augusta, known as Gussie to her family, friends and, decades after her death, Lane and his ghost-hunting guests. Although the 21-year-old Gussie was engaged at the time, her father, W.L. Armstrong, promised Gussie the house of her dreams if she would move to Fort Worth from Cisco, Texas, to continue her duties as surrogate mother to six siblings, according to "Armstrongs of the Catawba," a 1969 genealogy by Norma Todd Cansler. The house was completed in 1906; Gussie lived there until 1954, when she died alone at age 75, never having married.

Jim Lane first met Gussie while reading late one night. He looked up from his book to see a young woman leaning against the doorjamb with a seductive smile on her face. After a few seconds, she disappeared. In the 41 years since Gussie's death, over 400 mysterious incidents have been reported in the house. Most notable is an attempt at exorcism by the Catholic church in the early 1960s, ending with a priest's note that the spirit could not be budged.

Lane — who bought the house in 1969 — is part Cherokee, and so says he was raised to respect spirits, not fear them. He speaks of Gussie with affection, often saying she still owns the house, and he merely lives there.

The evening of the Star-Telegram's 10th ghost hunt began with a firm sense of tradition. The journalists arrived early and spread fresh roses, Gussie's favorite, in the rooms where the most sightings had occurred: the music room and parlor on the first floor and Gussie's and her father's bedrooms on the second. Gussie sightings are often preceded by an extreme drop in temperature and the smell of fresh-cut flowers, of which she was fond.

The October night was mild, so windows were left open; any temperature drop would still be noticeable. When every hunter had arrived — 18 in all — the group gathered in the music room to hear stories from past ghost hunts and then the history of the Armstrong house.

Just over an hour later, the hunters split into smaller groups and went to their assigned posts: the music room, parlor, garage and W.L. Armstrong's room. The lights were extinguished (only flashlights allowed) and the hunt began.

Around midnight, the temperature in the music room dropped alarmingly. Ty Benz (sports editor of the Denison Herald) and 16-year-old Adam Skokan-Guinn both felt a tingling sensation, and the hair on their arms and necks rose. Blake Sills, a William James Middle School science teacher who was also in the music room, said he felt something brush past his left ear.

Diane Harris stands in a doorway of Jim Lane's haunted house on the north side of Fort Worth. The house, completed in 1906, was built for Augusta Armstrong. She lived there until 1954 when she died alone at age 75. Lane says he has seen Gussie's spirit in the house.

"It felt like a little hair," he said later. "Of course, it could have been a hair."

At the same time, Wichita Falls Times Record News reporter John Moore felt an increasing pressure at the top of the staircase. He started walking down the stairs but stopped after a couple of steps: He felt a drop in temperature and strong tingling throughout his body, almost like going numb. The cold spot moved from the foyer through the dining room and parlor, never lasting more than a minute or two.

The time was 12:45 a.m., and the ghost hunt began in earnest.

As is her habit, Gussie (always the flirt since her death, according to Lane) was making herself known to the males, who were always the first to notice the cold spots. One noticeable exception: As I was making notes at the dining room table, my fiancée, Amy Allbach, playfully said she'd "punch out" any spirit who tried to come on to me. Immediately, the temperature dropped, and we quickly moved to another room.

Star-Telegram copy editor Kathy Harris returned to her sleeping bag when the excitement slowed and found it folded shut and smoothed out. At that moment, 13-year-old Courtney Harris (no relation), sleeping nearby, rolled over and mumbled, "I think I heard something."

TCU Daily Skiff production manager Debra McLamb and her husband, Randy, had moved from the garage to Gussie's room earlier in the evening, but Debra got a sense of being unwelcome — "Like someone would've pushed me out of there" if they could, she said — around 1 a.m., to the point where she demanded she be let out of the house for a few minutes to gather her wits.

At about 2:05 a.m., cold spots again appeared in the foyer and then at the upper stairs, but disappeared quickly. At 3 a.m., 13-year-olds Grant Skokan-Guinn and Chris Gonzaga say they saw a flicker of movement on the stairs, and then saw a vague outline at the same spot on the upper stairs where the cold spot had earlier been felt twice.

At 3:20 a.m., Star-Telegram writer (and veteran ghost hunter) Jeff Guinn and John Moore felt a cold movement on the second-floor hallway between Gussie's and her father's bedrooms. John then saw a vague gray blob about 2 feet above the stairs, which he described later as "not smoke or mist, but like the surface of water." After two or three minutes, it faded. Jeff gathered all of the males at the top of the stairs to tempt Gussie into showing herself, but she didn't; the night's activities had ended.

The ghost hunt concluded at 5 a.m., when the four hunters who were left awake finally turned on the lights and turned out the sleepers.

Although somewhat disappointed that Gussie had not conclusively proved her existence, the hunters were excited about the cold spots. Despite the skepticism that comes easily in such situations, many of those gathered left believing something unusual had happened. Perhaps Gussie was curious enough to look in on the strangers in her house — a thought that bears further investigation.

Modern day witches coming out of broom closet

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — With their popular Halloween image of snaggtoothed hags in pointy black hats cackling over bubbling cauldrons, it's no wonder most of today's witches are staying in the broom closet.

Yet some have come out on one of their most sacred of days to say that the witches of the '90s aren't so scary, with pagan beliefs turned into full-blown religions, complete with services and holidays.

"Even if this is the only time of year that anyone pays attention, it's a chance to tell people there's nothing to fear from us," said Allan Patnode, who considers himself a witch (He does not use the term warlock).

Witch Dee Coyle Anderson added, "Witches do have other holidays, you know. People tend to think we worship just once a year."

These witches, among 50 members of the Hudson Valley Pagan Network, are contemporary followers of an ancient pagan religion based on Celtic mythology.

In its most basic form, witchcraft, or Wicca, is a form of nature worship. The pagan calendar in most traditions follows the seasons, with the solstices and equinoxes as holy days.

The core of the Wiccan worship is belief in a deity with male and female attributes whose psychic energy can be tapped. Most witches say they do not use the energy for destructive purposes.

But from their traditions come legends of satanic worship — and a bad image.

Domenici offers to lift debt ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Senate Budget Committee has sounded a rare conciliatory note in the battle over balancing the federal budget and keeping the government operating.

Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he would consider lifting the debt ceiling to permit borrowing through November — but not through January as the administration would like.

Domenici's idea gained little support from other GOP leaders.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said

Monday they are waiting to hear from President Clinton. They balked at discussing the debt limit question with Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin.

Gingrich said: "It's very hard to follow Rubin, so it would be nice to talk to his boss."

"I think there's some feeling among Republicans that Secretary Rubin's been so political ... that he doesn't have a lot of credibility up here," Dole told reporters. "He may have a good case, but no credibility. If this is this important, it ought to be ratcheted up to the presidential level."

Republicans are refusing to raise the debt limit until Clinton agrees to their plans for balancing the budget in seven years, cutting taxes and scaling back Medicare and Medicaid.

The House and Senate passed similar versions of a sweeping budget bill last week and negotiators are to meet to work out the details. Clinton has said he would veto the measure.

Rubin said Congress is acting irresponsibly by refusing to separate the debt limit issue from broader budget matters to avoid the first default in the federal government's history. He proposed last week that the $4.9 trillion debt limit be raised by $85 billion, enough to keep the government going into next year.

"Linking a debt limit increase to resolution of differences on the budget could cause profound damage to our country," Rubin said.

Rubin said that without an immediate extension of the government's borrowing authority, the Treasury will run out of cash and be unable to issue new securities next week.

That's when the department hopes to borrow the lion's share of $61.5 billion to fund the government in the fourth quarter that began Oct. 1.

Firefighters hauling a hose approach a blazing garage behind an occupied home on the northeast side of Detroit in the early hour of Tuesday. The occupants of the home escaped safely. About 35,000 volunteers patrolled the city and the number of Devil's Night fires appear to be down this year from a reported 182 last year.

Volunteer patrol credited with keeping Devil's Night under control

DETROIT (AP) — Thousands of volunteers who patrolled streets were credited with thwarting widespread fires in the pre-Halloween arson spree called Devil's Night.

The Detroit News reported 41 fires had been confirmed at midnight, far fewer than 182 reported last year, and the 297 that burned in 1985 when the burnings of trash piles and houses peaked.

"The force on the street makes a difference," Deputy Fire Chief Charles Curry said as he joined about 35,000 volunteers Monday night outside an abandoned apartment building. "It seems to be helping."

Among the volunteers was J.J. Webster, a 42-year-old cook who said he was inspired by the recent Million Man March.

"There's a new spirit of determination by black men in the city," he said. "We're not going to allow Detroit to be embarassed again."

The city, which on any day has 40 to 60 fires, did not have updated numbers on fires or arson arrests early today. New figures were to be released Wednesday.

Stung by last year's failure to keep Devil's Night arson down, Mayor Dennis Archer this year signed up thousands of volunteers to patrol neighborhoods, launched an extensive awareness campaign, and limited the dispensing of gasoline in portable containers in the days leading up to Devil's Night.

Also, in the past two months, the city has demolished more than 1,800 vacant buildings, towed more than 2,000 abandoned cars and removed 190,000 discarded tires to keep them from being used as fuel.

Devil's Night has long been a night of mischief in Detroit, but escalated in the 1980s.

Conduct shouldn't nix indictments

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Prosecutors in the federal building bombing case jeered a dismissed grand juror's history of embracing conspiracy theories, but said his conduct does not warrant throwing out indictments against Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols.

Hoppy Heidelberg was dismissed last week from the grand jury investigating the April 19 bombing because he violated secrecy rules by giving an interview to Media Bypass, a magazine with right-wing militia ties.

In the interview, Heidelberg voiced concern that prosecutors did not present enough evidence concerning the possibility of a larger conspiracy.

If held in contempt, Heidelberg could face a maximum of six months in prison and a $1,000 fine.

In a motion filed Monday, Special U.S. Attorney Sean Connelley said Heidelberg's concern did not stem from evidence produced to the grand jury, "but instead from his own conspiracy theories that predated this crime by decades."

Contempt charges leveled by man won't dim lights

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Jennings Osborne thumbed his nose at court orders to reduce his colossal Christmas lights display to a level where it was no longer a nuisance, the Arkansas Supreme Court said Monday in finding the Little Rock businessman guilty of contempt of court.

"We have no hesitation in concluding that our December 5 and 16 orders have been flouted," the court said. "Osborne maintained massive Christmas lights displays in 1994 after we expressly forbade him to do so."

The court fined Osborne $1,500 — $500 for each of the days on which he illuminated the display, Dec. 17, 18 and 19 — and sentenced him to 10 days in jail, with all 10 days suspended. He also was ordered to pay fees and attorneys' costs.

Azerbaijani men carry the coffin of one of the victims of the weekend subway fire into a car prior to burial in Baku, Azerbaijan, Tuesday. Most of the 300 people killed in one of the world's worst subway disasters died of carbon monoxide poisoning from burning materials in the carriages; more than 260 were injured.

300 killed in subway fire

BAKU, Azerbaijan (AP) — Rescue workers recovered about 300 bodies Sunday from the wreckage of a subway that caught fire in the capital, trapping hundreds of terrified passengers. At least 200 others were injured.

Unable to escape from the packed cars, most of the people who died were killed by carbon monoxide poisoning from burning toxic materials in the train carriages, officials said.

Azerbaijan declared two days of mourning for the dead. Officials blamed the tragedy, the worst underground railway accident in the former Soviet Union, on the Baku subway's "outdated Soviet" equipment.

"As soon as the train entered the tunnel I saw a flash," said Tabil Guseinov, 45, a passenger. "Then the flames enveloped the train car, there was a sound of breaking glass, and the lights went out."

"People started breaking windows to get out. We were starting to suffocate," he said.

The fire broke out between two subway stations in central Baku on Saturday afternoon because of a malfunction of the train's electrical system, officials said.

Survivors described sparks flying from high-voltage cables just after the train left the busy Ulduz station.

Rescuers battled the blaze until early Sunday, then pulled the injured and the dead, wrapped in rugs and blankets, from the tunnel. Police and security forces sealed off the area, barring journalists.

Authorities initially said only two people had died in the fire, but the death toll climbed steadily overnight as more bodies were found.

Interior Minister Ramil Usubov told The Associated Press on Sunday morning that at least 289 people had died, including 28 children.

Morgue officials said they counted at least 303 bodies, and the independent Azerbaijani news agency Turan quoted medical officials as putting the death toll at 337.

Azerbaijan's health minister, Ali Insanov, said 269 people were injured. Of the injured, 62 remained hospitalized Sunday, most of them in serious condition.

"The main reason was carbon monoxide poisoning, which paralyzes the respiratory system and causes emphysema and instant death," Insanov said.

It was not known how many people were on the train.

In Moscow, where the subway carries 1 million people a day, officials attributed the high death toll to panic among the passengers and, possibly, mistakes by the train driver.

The high number of deaths may have been caused "by a fire in three to four cars and an ensuing panic..."

SECESSION FAILS

Quebeckers choose to stay with Canada by narrow vote

MONTREAL (AP) — Canada survived, just barely. But Quebec emerged today from its independence referendum torn in half, with the defeated separatists targeting scapegoats and defiantly pledging another breakaway attempt.

The federalists who backed national unity squeaked through to win with 50.6 percent to 49.4. By a margin of barely 50,000 votes out of 4.67 million cast Monday, Canada was spared the loss of its largest province, with one-quarter of its people.

But victory speeches calling for reconciliation coincided with street fighting between hundreds of youths from the rival camps, as well as a fire set at the office of a federalist leader.

The co-leader of the separatists, Quebec Premier Jacques Parizeau, shocked Canadians with a bitter speech blaming the defeat on big business and Quebec's non-francophone immigrants.

"It's true we have been defeated, but basically by what? By money and the ethnic vote," Parizeau said. "We (French Quebeckers) voted for the Yes by a margin of 60 percent."

About 82 percent of Quebeckers are French-speaking. As expected, more than nine in 10 of English-speaking and immigrant Quebeckers voted No — they have traditionally felt excluded by the francophone majority.

B'nai Brith Canada, an anti-discrimination group, demanded that Parizeau retract his remarks, saying they were "unfitting for a premier of a province."

"Parizeau's disdain for minority communities is extremely harmful," said Frank Dimant, the organization's executive vice president.

Prime Minister Jean Chre-

Two Yes supporters hug at their campaign headquarters in Montreal after the No victory in the Quebec referendum Monday. By a perilously narrow margin, Quebeckers heeded pleas for national unity and voted against secession, sparing Canada a traumatic fracture but leaving the French-speaking province split down the middle.

tien, a Quebecker who campaigned vigorously to keep the province in Canada, went on national TV to invite Parizeau to discuss reforms that would satisfy Quebeckers.

"We have every reason to be proud of a democracy where citizens can peacefully debate the very existence of their country," Chretien said. "The time has come for us to work together... to turn a new page."

But there was no echo of compromise from Parizeau.

"We lost by a tiny margin," he told supporters at separatist headquarters. "What do you do? Well, you roll up your sleeves and you begin all over again."

President Clinton called Chretien after the results were announced and expressed admiration for a "strong and united Canada," said White House spokeswoman Ginny Terzano.

One of the few certainties to come out of the referendum was that Chretien would face intensified pressure to overhaul the federal system.

Premiers of several English-speaking provinces, while hailing the outcome of the referendum, said the narrow vote proved it was time for Ottawa to discuss decentralization that would give more power to the provinces.

YOU CAN

Dear Jax,
What are the names of teeth and why are those the names?
Lauren Page
Homewood, Illinois

empirical research
Learning by direct observation or by doing

- Bite into a soft candy bar.
- Your incisors (in-SIZE-ors) cut into it. The name comes from the Latin word incise, which means to cut. Our word scissors comes from the same word.
- Pull away from the candy bar.
- Your canine teeth grab onto it. Canine (KAY-rine) is Latin for dog-like. Dogs, tigers and wolves have sharp, pointed teeth. Some animals have overdeveloped canine teeth. We call them fangs. The mythical vampire Dracula supposedly had long canine teeth — fangs.
- Chew it up.
- Your molars (MO-lars) and premolars are grinding the candy bar. Molars is Latin for things from the mill. A mill is where wheat is ground up into flour with big heavy stones grinding like your molars.

Dear Lauren,
People use scientific methods to find the time and don't even know it. The names of teeth are based on Latin, a language from ancient Rome. The names for teeth are very old — much older than the Middle Ages, when the great scientist Galileo began to use a telescope to see the real challenges to the health of your teeth.

teeth types!

A - Incisor teeth are your 2 front teeth.
B - Canine teeth are fangs on either side of your incisors.
C - Premolar teeth are on the sides of your mouth.
D - Molars are in the back on the sides of your mouth.

Chew up a pair of your lips and look at the teeth marks on it.

Safety Tips For A SPOOKTACULAR HALLOWEEN

1. If possible, all trick or treating should be done while it's still light outside.
2. Be aware of masks that obstruct vision. Non-allergic makeup is a fun and inexpensive alternative.
3. Always carry a flashlight when trick or treating after dark.
4. If masks are a must, they should be worn on top of the head while walking to a destination.
5. Be sure to clear your yard and front walk of any obstacles that could cause a fall.
6. Instruct your child that no treats are to be eaten until they return home. A light snack before departure may help.
7. Inspect all treats thoroughly. Wash and cut fruit; discard any unwrapped candy.
8. Visit only well-lit familiar homes.
9. Cross only at corners. Never dart between parked cars or in the middle of the block. Don't forget to look both ways!
10. Accept treats only at the front door. Never go inside a stranger's house for any reason.
11. Plan a route and make sure the family knows the plan. Set a curfew and stick to it.
12. White clothing or reflective tape will increase visibility after dark.
13. Wigs and costumes should be made of non-flammable materials.
14. Children under ten should always be accompanied by an adult.
15. Know who your child will be trick or treating with and never let a child of any age trick or treat alone.
16. Sharp or pointed toy weapons are unsafe and should be discouraged.

THE DRIVE FOR FIVE?

Young, untested Lady Hawk team opens season Wednesday

By DARRELL ERICSON
Sportswriter

The Howard College Lady Hawks will begin their basketball season Wednesday Nov. 1 against Ranger College.

For those unfamiliar with the team, the Lady Hawks will be looking for their fifth straight Western Junior College Athletic title, and their fourth Region V crown.

The Lady Hawks have been on the court since Sept. 5 and have been working to keep their winning tradition alive.

"Right now the sophomores are expecting to win and the freshmen will usually follow them. The freshmen knew about the tradition and history behind Howard College - that is why they came here," Howard head coach Terry Gray said.

Gray is expecting the freshmen to step up to competition level.

"We are a young team and always have been. Being a two-year school it's hard to have experience. The freshmen have to step up and become sophomores quickly during their first year."

The Lady Hawks are ranked seventh in the NJCCAA preseason poll and first in WJCAC preseason poll.

With only one returning starter and two returning lettermen, the Hawks will look toward freshmen depth and 5-foot-5 point guard Joyce Howard as keys to success.

"She led the conference in assists as a freshman, and that should tell you something. She has been directing the team in a positive way," Gray said.

One of the brightest stars among the newcomers is Keelah Wilson. Six-foot-two Wilson has come on strong for the Lady Hawks.

Gray said, "She's an exceptional player. She is a strong rebounder and is very aggressive and physical."

Returning for her sophomore season is 5-10 power forward Summer Swoboda. "Summer has a lot of confidence inside," Gray said. "I think it motivates her. It's a challenge to play against bigger girls and she likes a challenge."

The Lady Hawks may be younger than last year, but they also will be taller.

"We have six freshmen that are 6-foot or higher. We go as high as 6-3 Pauline McGee," Gray said.

The freshmen have impressed Gray with their work ethic. "They work extremely hard. Their desire and hustle is outstanding and they are very competitive. There's a lot of diversity in this group and they can do a lot of things."

A main key will be on defense, which has been the trademark for the Lady Hawks. "The key for us has always been on defense and we will have to continue that to help maintain the success," Gray said.

The defense is ahead of the offense, but Gray said the offense should come around.

"We have a very good team chemistry which is probably our biggest attribute."

The toughest part of the season will be defending the titles the Hawks have gathered over the years.

"It's tough starting high. Every time you have to defend the title someone is looking to knock you down. The toughest part is the pressure we put on ourselves to always do our best," Gray said. "As a coach I recruit for quality players, who will win in the classroom as well as on the court. We have players who will."

Sheffield shot, slightly wounded

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Gary Sheffield was shot Monday night when the Florida Marlins outfielder stopped his car at a traffic light on the way to pick up one of his children.

Sheffield was wounded - not seriously - in the upper left shoulder and released from the hospital.

SHEFFIELD

The team said Sheffield was shot during an attempted robbery, but police had no motive.

"There doesn't seem to be any reason at all," officer Diane Coles said. "According to Mr. Sheffield, he was just sitting at the light with his window up and someone came up and just shot him through the vehicle."

Added Marlins spokesman Chuck Pool: "Apparently he turned away just as the gun went off."

Tampa police officer Scott MacLean said the bullet "didn't really penetrate too badly."

Sheffield, 26, was able to drive away in his 1993 white Mercedes and call for help, said Tampa police officer Donna Garvin. No suspects were in custody Monday night.

Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski said he had spoken with Sheffield's mother.

"Everything sounded like he was doing fine," said Dombrowski, adding the injury was not expected to endanger his career.

Cloud of uncertainty hangs over Cowboys' camp this week

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Coach Barry Switzer is uncertain whether he'll have either of his starting defensive tackles or a reserve cornerback during a stretch of key games that lie ahead for the Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys are 7-1 and tied with the Kansas City Chiefs for the best record in the NFL, but all is not well as the club prepares for games the next four weeks against Philadelphia (5-3), San Francisco (5-3), Oakland (6-2) and Kansas City.

Most ominous are reports that Pro Bowl defensive tackle Leon Lett and reserve cornerback Clayton Holmes - a starter until Deion Sanders joined the club - face suspensions for up to six weeks for violating the league's rule against steroids, illegal drugs and alcohol abuse.

Also, defensive tackle Russell Maryland sprained a knee when Atlanta running back Craig Heyward cut-blocked him on the final play of Dallas' 28-13 victory over the Falcons on Sunday.

Switzer said Monday that Maryland might miss some practices and would almost certainly be limited in others.

Maryland had a magnetic resonance imaging test Monday that revealed he sprained a media collateral ligament.

Lett and Holmes didn't come to the practice facility on Monday, which was a day off for the Cowboys, who don't play again until Monday night against the Eagles.

Citing confidentiality clauses in the league's drug policy, which contains penalties of as much as $500,000, Switzer said Monday that he has not been informed that a suspension of Lett and Holmes seems imminent, pending only a reported appeal, for positive drug tests.

"There's some things where it's best not to know," Switzer said. "They have a policy where they don't allow the coaches to know about those things because they don't want the outside factors to influence coaching decisions. I understand the rationale involved in that, so we're the last to know."

Switzer added, "I just don't want to have any comment on it. I have no idea what will happen."

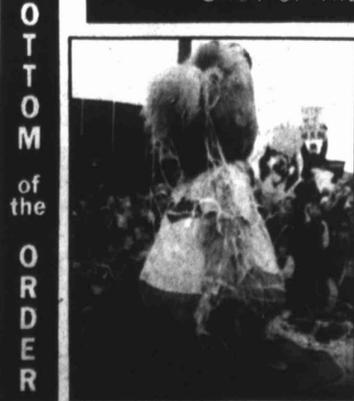

Owner Jerry Jones said only, "I haven't been informed by the NFL."

Agent Jim Steiner, who negotiated a multiyear contract that pays Lett $2.56 per million and included a $4 million signing bonus, chose not to discuss the matter.

Players don't draw a paycheck for games in which they are suspended under the league's drug policy.

If the players are suspended, it would mean they were caught violating the drug policy previously. The NFL levies suspensions only against players who've violated the rules at least twice.

TEXAS

Rangers make staff changes

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The Texas Rangers have hired Lee MacPhail IV as assistant to General Manager Doug Melvin and made several changes to its full-time major league scouting staff.

The club said Monday that MacPhail will be involved in player development and personnel scouting. The Rangers' announcement said MacPhail will help Reid Nichols, director of player development, as well as Melvin.

Appointments of Rick Taylor and Damon Oppenheimer as national scouting cross-checkers were also announced by Len Strelitz, the Rangers' new director of amateur scouting. Both came from the New York Yankees.

Area scouts are Todd Guggiana, Bobby Heck and Jim Lentine, Strelitz said, with Bob Zuk a special assignments amateur scout.

NATION/WORLD

Torre, Yanks near deal

NEW YORK (AP) - Joe Torre might be the only candidate to become manager of the New York Yankees and could be hired within days, The New York Times reported today.

The newspaper said Torre, fired by St. Louis in June, needs only to meet with new general manager Bob Watson. The job opened last week when Buck Showalter was unable to work out a new deal.

Tigers hire new GM

DETROIT (AP) - Looking to rebuild a team that was one of the AL's worst last season, the Detroit Tigers hired Randy Smith as general manager.

Smith, the former general manager of the San Diego Padres, signed a three-year deal. At 32, he is the youngest general manager in the majors.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

Arizona at Denver	N.Y. Giants at Seattle
Buffalo at Indianapolis	Pittsburgh at Chicago
Carolina at San Francisco	St. Louis at New Orleans
Detroit at Atlanta	Washington at Kansas City
Green Bay at Minnesota	Miami at San Diego
Houston at Cleveland	Philadelphia at Dallas
Oakland at Cincinnati	Texas Tech at Texas
New England at N.Y. Jets	SMU at TCU

POWER POINTS OFFICIAL RULES

- Object of the game is to amass as many of the 136 possible points as you can. Simply review the week's schedule of games, listed on entry form, and decide which game you are surest of picking a winner in. Write the name of your projected winner on the 16-point line. If that team wins its game that week, you win 16 points. Write the name of your second-best winner on the 15-point line, and so on down to the 1-point line, which game you figure to be a long shot. Next, fill in Tiebreaker 1, the total points scored by both teams in the week's Cowboys or Oilers game. If this step fails to produce a winner, the judges will apply Tiebreaker 2, total offensive yards from scrimmage in this game. If a winner still doesn't emerge, a drawing will be held among those contestants still tied. Decisions of the judges are final.
- Any entry form that does not contain a legible name, address, etc., will be disqualified.
- Entries that fail to forecast a winner from each and every game will be disqualified, as will entries that fail to distinguish between the Jets and Giants of New York and, when necessary, between the Houston Oilers and the Houston Cougars.
- No points are awarded on tie games or in case any game is not played for any reason during its scheduled week.
- Entering POWER POINTS constitutes permission for contest for his or her name and photograph to be used for news and reasonable promotional purposes at no charge.
- Employees of this newspaper and their immediate families are ineligible to participate.
- No purchase necessary. Facsimile game entry forms will be accepted and are available at all outlets of participating co-sponsors. Enter contest by dropping entry form into POWER POINTS container at participating co-sponsors.
- Weekly deadline for entry will be 2 p.m. Fridays except when noted otherwise on weekly entry form.
- Neither this newspaper nor any co-sponsor will be responsible for illegible entry forms or those lost, stolen or damaged in any way.
- Limit: one entry per person per week. Each entry must represent the original work of one entrant; "group" entries, "systems" or other attempts to enter multiple entries will be disqualified. Filing out extra forms and putting your friends' and relatives' names on them violates this rule. Any such entries are destroyed prior to grading.
- Contestants must have reached the age of eight (8) years by the Sunday of any week's play.

Free agents face shaky market

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Canseco, Roberto Alomar and Rickey Henderson left their teams on the first day of baseball's free agent market.

Whether they and the other free agents will find the market to their liking remains to be seen.

Industry revenue dropped by between $300 million and $500 million this year following the 232-day strike, and the sides are operating under the collective bargaining agreement that expired in December 1993.

"I reserve judgment, but I do expect that the premier free agents will receive top dollar," agent Randy Hendricks said.

Randy Levine, the owners' new negotiator, starts work Thursday. The teams, according to several sources, are formulating a new proposal, their first since March 28. However, it's unclear when any offer would be made.

Owners are considering whether to have a meeting Nov. 14, but acting commissioner Bud Selig hasn't made a decision.

In addition to labor, owners must consider their unsettled television situation for next year, the proposed sales of the Pittsburgh Pirates and California Angels and the possible sale of the Houston Astros.

Among the 11 players filing Monday were Rene Gonzales and John Habyan of California, Tom Gordon of Kansas City, Rob Dibble of Milwaukee, Charlie O'Brien of Atlanta, Ron Gant of Cincinnati, Bryan Harvey of Florida and Dave Magadan of Houston.

Players may file through Nov. 2, and as many as 155 could be eligible. Boston catcher Mike Macfarlane became eligible Monday when the Red Sox declined to exercise an option for $2.3 million and instead paid a $150,000 buyout.

Seattle said it will exercise a $3.5 million option on AL batting champion Edgar Martinez, a move that must be made by Tuesday. The Mariners also will exercise a $600,000 option on infielder Joey Cora and offer salary arbitration to reliever Norm Charlton, which prevents him from becoming eligible for free agency.

Charlton is among 49 players covered by the repeater rights restriction, which prevents a player from filing for free agency twice in a five-year span. If clubs don't offer salary arbitration by Thursday, players in that group become eligible to file for free agency.

Avalanche buries Stars with season-high outburst

DALLAS (AP) — The way Jocelyn Thibault sees it, the Colorado Avalanche won their fifth consecutive game because the Dallas Stars hadn't lost in five games.

Thibault stopped 21 shots Monday night, and the Avalanche matched their season-high for goals in a 6-1 victory.

"They had been playing great, so maybe that's why we were so ready for them," Thibault said after coming within 11 seconds of his second career shutout. "We were a little more aggressive early because we were expecting a great game from them. That's why we were able to take the lead like we did."

They took the lead early, 72 seconds in to be exact, as Craig Wolanin beat a screened Darcy Wakaluk with a 50-foot wrist shot.

"We played a solid game," Wolanin said. "And he (Thibault) was exceptional. If we play defense like that, the scoring will take care of itself."

Joe Sakic had two goals and two assists for Colorado, which leads the Western Conference with a 7-3-1 record, but it was the defense that drew the most attention.

"We've been playing well on defense, but this was our best defensive game all year," Thibault said after improving his record to 1-1. "My teammates played almost a perfect game in front of me."

Thibault was seldom tested by the sluggish Stars, who had only 12 shots in the first two periods.

"That's probably as good a competition as we've faced all season," Stars coach Bob Gainey said.

HOROSCOPE

FOR WEDNESDAY,
NOV. 1, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Much goes on behind the scenes. You need to think through a change. Be aware of someone's need to have things his way. Diplomacy may not work in the face of manipulation. State your boundaries, and say no firmly. Tonight: Vanish while you are ahead. **

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Use kid gloves as you deal with partners who can be volatile and difficult. Be imaginative with your choices. Find a way to steer around a problem rather than into one. Know what you want to happen, and work from that point. Tonight: Dance through the obstacles. ****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Fatigue can be a major problem if you don't pace yourself. Consider a making a change or eliminating some superfluous things in your life. Be clear about what is mandatory as you deal with others. Consider an exercise or diet plan. Tonight: Get some rest. ***

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your city soars in new directions, and you feel much more connected to it. Getting what you want could be another story, and that is where you need your ingenuity. Be willing to take more risks and let others express their beliefs. Tonight: Get a bit wild. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): One-to-one relating helps you overcome obstacles that affect your well-being. Understand what motivates someone before you make a decision. Someone will feel more secure if you follow through on what you promise. Tonight: Go for togetherness. ****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It may be wise to defer to another in a confrontation. Otherwise, you might not appreciate the result. Follow your instincts, but stay quiet. Timing can make or break you. Gather information, but don't take action. Tonight: Say yes. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work certainly dominates your life right now. Your best bet is to employ the nose-to-the-grindstone technique. You need to be as efficient as possible. Evaluate a financial offer, but don't let it run you. You make good choices easily. Tonight: Count on going into the wee hours. ***

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It may seem fine to get your way, but the cost of taking such an action could be enormous. Be in touch with your feelings and long-term desires, yet realize you might need to lose a battle to win the war. You are creativity-plus. Tonight: Be out and about. ****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cut back, and gain perspective before taking a wild leap of faith. The right course today is the conservative path. There is also the possibility that you are making a mountain out of molehill, though it may be hard to convince you of that right now. Tonight: Vanish quickly. **

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not push a friend too hard. Consider the long-term consequences of such an action. Be positive and upbeat about your potential and desires. Recognize the importance of conversations, negotiations and a joint decision. Tonight: Hang out at a favorite spot. ****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You might feel as if someone has squashed your ideas and who you are. Resist the desire to take this out on others. Be more direct about your ideas regarding making and spending money. Tonight: Go for indulgence. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are empowered by someone else's indecision. You might feel momentarily blocked, but you will be able to bypass these feelings. You need to recognize there are other ways. Your best bet is to let your personality melt barriers. A smile goes a long way. Tonight: Be yourself. **

IF NOV. 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your creativity is unusually high this year, helping you make what you want happen, if you are directed. Good luck surrounds your day-to-day contacts, but recognize that there is a limit to what you can and cannot do. Learn to pace yourself - it can make a big difference in how you feel. Your finances flourish until January when your focus changes dramatically. If you are single, you meet people easily and could meet a new suitor, one you'll adore. If attached, make time for your relationship. PISCES stimulates ideas.

Blind date is rude, crude and socially unacceptable

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for my 20-year-old daughter who recently had a bad experience with a blind date.

The morning after the date, which she thought had gone very well, the young man called her up and told her he thought she was a wonderful person, but he would never consider marrying her because he didn't want to have ugly children.

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

Then he went on to tell her that she needed to have surgery on her nose and chin (her nose is too big and she has a receding chin).

In my day, I would have hung up on him and never seen him again, but it seems today, people are encouraged to be completely honest regardless of how much it hurts others.

Abby, what response should my daughter have given this fellow in order to have put him in his place? -- A CARING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I might have said: "You may think I'm less than movie-star material, but what kind of insensitive clod would say that after one date? My flaws can be corrected, but your rudeness and insensitivity cannot. Goodbye."

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter from "Worried Mom in Virginia," whose son is constantly ridiculed by his schoolmates:

As a kid, I was ostracized for many years, beginning in elementary school and continuing through high school. My problem was I was the girl who developed sooner than anyone else. I had breasts and acne before any of my classmates.

Each day, I dreaded school. I tried to fight off the teasing. (I even popped a guy in the eye once for a nasty remark.)

Moving halfway across the country and attending a new school didn't help, nor did parental advice, talks with other parents, etc.

However, I discovered a few things that did help: I became involved in local children's theater, my church's high school group, and I also continued in Girl Scouts. These groups didn't tolerate teasing. Everyone was a little different, but everyone was accepted. It helped me tremendously.

By the way, Abby, I was an ugly duckling who grew up to be a swan. -- HAPPY ENDING IN PLANO, TEXAS

DEAR HAPPY: Thank you for an inspiring letter that may help other children overcome ridicule by cruel classmates.

THIS DATE IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 31, the 304th day of 1995. There are 61 days left in the year. This is Halloween. Today's Highlight in History: On Oct. 31, 1517, Martin Luther posted the 95 Theses on the door of the Wittenberg Palace church, marking the start of the Protestant Reformation in Germany. On this date: In 1795, English poet John Keats was born in London. In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state. In 1926, magician Harry Houdini died in Detroit of gangrene and peritonitis resulting from a ruptured appendix. In 1941, the U.S. Navy destroyer Reuben James was torpedoed by a German U-boat off Iceland with the loss of 115 lives, even though the United States had not yet entered World War II. In 1955, Britain's Princess Margaret ended weeks of speculation by announcing she would not marry Royal Air Force Capt. Peter Townsend. In 1956, Rear Adm. G.J. Dufek became the first person to land an airplane at the South Pole. In 1959, a former U.S. Marine from Fort Worth, Texas, announced in Moscow that he would never return to the United States.
