Appeal considered if Steers beat Andrews

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers' strange football season just keeps getting stranger.

The District 4-4A Executive Committee voted 3-1 with two abstentions Thursday to force Big Spring to forfeit its Oct. 27 victory over Pecos because of the improper use of a player.

Big Spring ISD Superintendent William McQueary said the committee had two options Thursday - vote for either a reprimand, which would have allowed the victory, or forfeiture.

Monahans, Pecos and Fort Stockton voted for the forfeiture, while San Angelo Lake View voted for a reprimand. Big Spring and Andrews, the two schools with the most to gain or lose by the vote, abstained.

If the committee had voted for a reprimand, tonight's Big Spring-Andrews game would have been for the second and final state playoff spot in the district. With the forfeiture, however, the Steers have no chance at the playoffs and Andrews is awarded second place in the district.

BSHS Athletic Director Dwight Butler said Wednesday the school turned itself in to the University Interscholastic League after discovering it had inadvertently allowed a player to participate in more than one football game a week.

The player, who was not identified, played for the Steers' junior varsity the night before the game, then participated briefly in the varsity's 56-8 homecoming victory over Pecos.

McQueary said the meeting, monitored by an official from the University Interscholastic League, centered on whether

Big Spring violated eligibility rules or contest rules.

Eligibility rules -generally carry tougher penalties than contest rules.

"We say, and Lake View said, that this was a violation of the contest plan," McQueary said. "An individual played in more games than the book says he can. That is squarely in violation of the contest plan. It is not an eligibility violation."

But the superintendents from

Pecos, Monahans and Fort Stockton disagreed, leaving Big Spring with few options.

McQueary said the district may appeal the decision to the state UIL executive committee if the Steers defeat Andrews tonight. He said that decision would have to be made by the BSISD school board.

He added, however, that chances of a successful appeal would be "minute."

Members of Big Spring High School's band percussion section prepare for the Lone Star Classic Drumline Marching Contest, sponsored by Lewisville's Marcus High School. The contest will feature 16 high schools pounding out their best rhythms before a panel judges.

WITH A BANG ON A DRUM

Big Spring High's drumline heads for pounding competition

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Saturday, the 21-member percussion section of the Big Spring High School marching band will bang the drums with the best of the best in Lewisville.

Assistant Band Director Dan Monahan, one of the escorts on the trip, is a member of the Percussive Art Society and called the group to see if there were any competitions in the area, which is how this trip came about.

Monahan said the Percussive Art Society is familiar with the work he has done with other bands and that made it easier for him to find another competition.

The Lone Star Classic Drumline Marching Contest, sponsored by Lewisville's Marcus High School, will feature 16 high schools pounding out their best rhythms before a panel of distinguished judges from the East Coast, University of North Texas and Drum Corps International.

The 21-member group will be led by section leaders Jeff Moss and Andrew Calvio.

The Big Spring group will leave at 4 a.m. Saturday and the competition will begin at 1 p.m. with Big Spring performing at 2:30 p.m.

"We are the only Drumline from West Texas going out of 18 in the area," Monahan said.

Coahoma student brings gun to school

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

COAHOMA - A student brought a pistol to the junior high here Thursday.

The student had no apparent intent to harm anyone, Superintendent L.D. Monroe said.

The student brought the pistol to school and showed it to another student. The school notified the Howard County Sheriff's Department who notified juvenile authorities who took the boy into custody. He was later returned home.

The student has been suspended for 10 days pending a hearing by the Admission Review and Dismissal Committee, to meet Nov. 27 or 28.

Since the boy is a special education student, the committee must determine whether his condition was responsible for the behavior. The committee's determination could be followed by an expulsion hearing - under Texas law, bringing a firearm onto school property is punishable by expulsion for one calendar year.

Whatever the determination, Monroe says, the district still has responsibility for making education provisions for the student because he is enrolled in the special education program. There is a real possibility he will be sent to Alternate Education Placement.

Monroe emphasized the boy was not aggressive or hostile, and at this point there is no evidence he had intent to harm anyone.

School officials do not know why the boy brought the pistol to school.

MASTER PLAN

Water quality still a major concern for Big Spring residents

Big Spring

The completion of the 157-mile Ivie Pipeline System provided some much needed quality improvement last spring.

However, water quality in Big Spring is still an issue. Recent improvements quality have provided a decrease in the amount of chlorides with water pumped from Lake Thomas.

But Big Spring has been forced to return to using predominantly Lake Spence water because it is lower in mud content than Lake Thomas water.

In its present condition, the city's water treatment plant is incapable of handling the increased amounts of suspended solids from Lake Thomas.

One idea outlined by the master plan's water task force was to start a public relations program to encourage water conservation, especially in amounts used and the times lawns are watered.

The completed master plan suggests the city should enter into a study of the water supply and treatment system with the cooperation of the CRMWD, emphasizing:

- Potential benefits, cost and viability of moving the Lake Thomas intake structure to a location that will assure that less solids are picked up in the intake process.

- Potential benefits, cost and viability of modifying the water treatment plant to handle increased solids loading.

- Potential benefits, cost and viability of treating the water to remove the salinity.

- Potential benefits, cost and viability of any combination of the above items.

- Investigation of all possible funding sources for improvements to the system. This should address funding sources both inside and outside the city, and should investigate the level of financial participation that should be undertaken by the CRMWD.

"Development of a strategy for applying the most cost-effective solution for Big Spring's water quality problems. This solution may involve one or more of the first three items, but must deliver the most benefit for the money expended on the solution and must be financially feasible."

Further death row appeals waived

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who was sentenced to death for killing two people in a pawnshop robbery has waived his rights to any further appeals of his sentence.

District Judge Caprice Cospers Thursday then set a Feb. 9 execution date for Leo Jenkins, 38.

Jenkins was given the death penalty for the Aug. 29, 1988, robbery at the Golden Nugget Pawn Shop that resulted in the deaths of Kara Denise Voss, 25, and her brother, Mark Brandon Kelley, 20.

Jenkins confessed to the murders and was convicted in 1990 and sentenced to death.

The victims' mother and Houston anti-crime advocates say they believe Jenkins may change his mind.

But Jenkins' sister, Deborah LeMaster said her brother will not reconsider and she is behind his choice 100 percent.

"I think it takes a heck of a person not to want to try and go on living. He has admitted he is guilty and he does feel sorry for the family," she said.

Investigation nabs pot, men and cougar

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A lengthy undercover smuggling investigation that led federal drug agents from South Texas to Detroit has netted more than 6,800 pounds of marijuana, $206,500, nine men and a baby cougar.

A number of search warrants were issued within the last two days. Alonzo Pena, head of the U.S. Customs Service investigations in Brownsville, said.

Undercover agents detected the network months ago after smugglers slipped loads of marijuana across the U.S.-Mexican border near Brownsville, Pena said. But rather than arrest truck drivers, investigators followed them to find their connections.

Unit packs up for move to Fort Carson as part of reorganization

FORT BLISS (AP) — The final farewells have begun.

Convoys of cargo trucks and rail cars burdened with tanks are rolling out of Fort Bliss as, after months of anticipation, the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment is finally beginning its move to its new home at Fort Carson, Colo.

"It's sad that we're leaving," said 1st Lt. Annette Duckworth, the regiment transportation officer in charge of moving out the troops.

She said she will miss El Paso, but noted the troops in the 4,800-soldier regiment are excited about going to Colorado.

The move, which should be completed by the end of April, is part of the downsizing and reorganization going on within the military as a whole. The 3rd Cav is expected to be replaced by several air defense artillery units that are scheduled to move onto the post in coming years.

Because of that and the anticipated creation of other units at Fort Bliss, the economic impact in El Paso of the Cav's departure is expected to be minimal. But there still will be an emotional impact.

Capt. Jay Magruder said he chose to quit the service rather than leave El Paso with his regiment.

"I like El Paso that much," he said. "My wife and I bought a house last December, and we JACKSONVILLE (AP) — Cherokee County law enforcers said Thursday they were investigating the death of a hunter who may have been gored to death by a wounded deer or wild hog.

Cherokee County Sheriff James Campbell said it appears that Douglas Moore of Whitehouse was hunting near Jacksonville and shot an animal that turned on him. Moore was buried Thursday.

Deputies found Moore on Monday beside his truck with an unloaded deer rifle. He had a puncture wound that severed an artery in his lower left leg, the sheriff said.

Another officer, Capt. Mitch Osborne, said moving will be difficult because of the legacy the regiment is leaving behind after being based at Fort Bliss for 23 years.

The unit has served in the West for large parts of its 149-year history, which has included campaigns in conflicts from the war with Mexico to Operation Desert Storm.

"It brought a tear to my eye to see the flag brought down for the last time" during the Cav's final review last month, Osborne said. "It was sad."

Whooper-te-do, cranes arrive at Aransas refuge

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A whopping number of whooping cranes have arrived at the Texas Gulf Coast for the winter. An unusually large number of the birds already at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge near Austwell has wildlife biologists predicting a record population for the endangered birds.

"At this time, we're very optimistic that we'll get darn close to the record," Tom Stehn, a biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said in Thursday's San Antonio Express-News.

After an aerial survey Tuesday, Stehn said 122 "whoopers" — 103 adults and 19 chicks — had arrived at or near their winter home at the wildlife refuge near Austwell, about 30 miles south of Victoria.

About 145 whoopers will make it to the Aransas area for the winter, Stehn predicted. In 1990, a record 146 whooping cranes made it to or near the refuge, the most since it opened in 1937. The refuge has been instrumental in the repopulation of the cranes. Their population dropped to 16 in 1941.

The huge birds typically begin their 2,500-mile trek from Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park in mid-October. The entire whooper population usually completes the voyage by mid-December.

But winter weather conditions in the northwest United States and Canada the past two weeks have caused many of the whoopers to migrate earlier than usual, Stehn said.

Whooping cranes migrate during the day and make regular stops to feed and rest away from human activity. They travel as singles, pairs, families or flocks of four to five adults, sometimes joining sandhill cranes for part of the trip.

Conservative Republicans praising soldier's stance on wearing U.N. insignia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disobeying a commander's orders is enough to get a soldier court-martialed.

In the case of Michael New, it's also enough to draw heaps of praise from conservative House Republicans.

The Army specialist's refusal to wear a United Nations insignia on a peacekeeping mission to the former Yugoslavia drew plaudits Thursday during a small Capitol Hill rally for the 22-year-old Texan.

The Conroe native was praised as a courageous defender of the Constitution, variously called a "great American," an "exemplary soldier" and a "courageous man" by some of the 10 House members appearing in support of New.

New's case has sparked a necessary dialogue between the American people and Congress over U.S. policy allowing the president to send troops on U.N. peacekeeping missions, they said.

"I think that the issue must be debated publicly, furiously and violently, and we must protect the rights of our servicemen," said Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Dallas. The former Vietnam prisoner of war emceed the New event, organized by Republican Veterans of Texas.

Conservatives have seized onto New's case in their attempt to force the Clinton administration to justify placing U.S. troops under U.N. command.

"Michael New has become a symbol to a cause — a cause which aims to prevent the president from sending American soldiers to die for the United Nations in a United Nations uniform," said House Majority Whip Tom DeLay, a Republican from the Houston suburb of Sugar Land.

Quote of the Day

"No attempts must be made to encase man, for it is his destiny to be set free."

Frantz Fanon, psychiatrist, 1967

Take a moment Saturday to remember our Veterans

Saturday is the day when we all need to stop and reflect on those who have served their country in the armed forces.

We have been extremely lucky in this country not to have experienced much of the horrors of war on our own soil in this century. Pearl Harbor has been the exception and a horrible one.

Saturday, activities are on tap to honor local veterans including a wreath-laying ceremony at the West Texas Vietnam Veterans Memorial at 10 a.m. followed by a parade.

There are many other activities including a breakfast at the American Legion and the annual ceremony at the VA Medical Center.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

It is important we remember our veterans. We, who have never fought in a war, never experienced the horror, never prayed just to get back home alive in one piece, have the duty to honor these men and women who fought to keep our freedoms intact.

We owe a debt to them for taking up the cause of freedom.

That's what Veteran's Day is for - to remember what they sacrificed in the name of freedom. For all of us.

Veterans

A Veterans Day parade will start right after the brief ceremony at the memorial, go down 10th Street past Scenic Mountain Medical Center to Gregg Street. The route will then turn south on Gregg, through the main entrance of the VA Medical Center, then through the Lancaster Street exit and ending in the parking lot on the hill behind the center.

Anyone is welcome to join in the parade and can do so by being at the memorial at 9:30 a.m. to line up.

The public is invited to attend the annual ceremony at the VA Medical Center at 11 a.m. This year's guest speaker is Col. Mark A. Williams. He is the director of staff of the Seventh Wing at Dyess Air Force Base.

Community Relations Coordinator Fred Cox said Williams is responsible for the supervision of 13 headquarter staff divisions who provide support to all Seventh Wing organizations.

A special greetings from Gov. George W. Bush and a proclamation by Mayor Tim Blackshear will be read at the ceremony as well.

Those who attend will be treated to songs by Stan and Carol Hanes. Three residents of the center's nursing home care unit will be honored. They include John H. Collie, 99; George F. Newbrough, 96 and Rex Kelly, 90.

Cox said Mrs. Odell Turner will place a wreath at the base of the flagpole in memory of the veterans who died while fighting for our country's freedom. Turner is past president of the American Gold Star Mothers. The honor guard from Dyess will also participate in the activities.

The Big Spring Harley Owners Group, Coors Distributing, Mel's Seafood, the Harley-Davidson Shop and the Jones Valley Band are working together to honor veterans this year.

They are asking people to participate in the ceremonies with the VA Medical Center and then come to a seafood festival at the motorcycle shop at 908 West Third.

There will be oysters on the half shell, fresh boiled shrimp, crawdads, bike games, a live band and a 50/50 drawing. The cost is $10 per person or $15 for couples.

The 50/50 drawing involves people purchasing tickets for $1 or six for $5 throughout the day's events. At the end of the day, there will be a drawing to see who wins half of the money collected.

The other half will be used to support their children's charity. An employee with the shop said every year they purchase the t-shirts for children who attend the Muscular Dystrophy Association camp in Canyon, Texas.

with last year in Chicago won the Illinois State Championship.

"This is a high level contest and I've had some success in the past with schools I've worked with. The kids are incredibly excited and scared as well because they've never done anything like this, but they're ready," Monahan said.

The group will be playing a piece the entire Big Spring band used in its marching band show called "Mambo" from Westside Story and a piece written by Monahan called "Inconsistent Jim."

Monahan said the piece he wrote is a Latin Afro-Cuban piece and a difficult piece the group has learned in just two weeks practicing from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and noon to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Monahan added he is also proud of how the drumline has maintained its grade point average of just under 90 percent while practicing for so many hours.

After the Big Spring drumline performs they will be able to see some other competitors perform and then wait for the awards ceremony around 8 p.m.

"I can't begin to tell you how proud I am of these guys. We have a legitimate shot at doing some great things or they wouldn't have let us come," Monahan said.

Plan

ble. Big Spring has an ongoing program to update the city's water distribution system.

One of the problems with the current waterline structure is several valves need replacing. When city workers have to open a hydrant to get to a leak, a second valve has to be opened to relieve the pressure enabling workers to get to a damaged or leaking line.

According to the Phase I report in the master plan on Big Spring's water distribution system, the majority of the system in the city was built during the 1930's.

The pipes in the system consists of a variety of materials including galvanized iron, steel, sand cast, unlined cast iron, cement lined cast iron, steel cylinder (concrete), asbestos cement, polyvinyl chloride (PVC) pipe.

Because of the salinity of Big Spring's water, many of the pipe materials are subject to corrosion and the city is replacing existing lines and constructing new lines with PVC pipe.

Big Spring has approximately 150 miles of water lines, ranging from two inches to 20 inches in diameter. Since 1980, the city has replaced about 35 miles of distribution lines as a result of an approved $10 million capital improvement package for renovations to the water system, waste water system, and streets.

Conclusions from the city's water loss audit last spring indicated the following:

•Large meter installations weren't constructed with testing in mind.

•Large meters weren't not registering within allowable limits of accuracy. Compound meters are the worst performing meters.

•Twenty-one of the 96 meters tested were not registering within allowable limits of accuracy and four of the 96 meters were completely stopped.

•Residential meters more than nine years old are under-registering any two-inch disc meters more than six years old are under-registering.

•The total amount of water lost due to under-registration is approximately 230,000 gallons per day, which is about 20 percent of Big Spring's total water loss.

Based on these conclusions, the auditing firm recommended the city conduct additional analysis to determine whether it would be cost effective to increase the accuracy of the meters and reduce the amount of water loss deriving from under-registration.

Two other reasons listed as possibilities of Big Spring's water loss were unauthorized use through fire lines and leakage.

It was also recommended that a flow measurement be made of the consumption in Big Spring's industrial park, to determine if unauthorized use or leakage is present in the area.

The overall summary of the master plan indicate's Big Spring's existing water distribution system has adequate capacity for future growth; maintenance of the total water system remains a priority; storage and pumping facilities are adequate through the year 2004; the city's water losses will continue to be investigated; and the overall capacity of the treatment plant is adequate through the year 2004.

Terminoodles, a team of 23 Gunter High School students, stand with the remote control robot they built to pick up five-foot-long foam noodles in Dallas. They built the robot for an annual engineering and technology competition sponsored by Texas Instruments which they won despite being the smallest high school competing.

WHAT SMALL CAN DO

Build a robot that wins an engineering, technology competition

By DAVID FLICK

The Dallas Morning News
GUNTER, Texas — The Terminoodles were not supposed to get this far, but they did.

"I think it was determination to show that the underdog can do it," said Justin Camel, 17, the team's leader. "People thought that (teams from the nearby towns) Sherman and Denison were going to win again, but we sneaked in the back door."

The Terminoodles are a team of 23 Gunter High School students who built a robot for an annual engineering and technology competition sponsored by Texas Instruments. The school won the regional robotics competition last month though it was the smallest to participate, with an enrollment of 180 in grades seven through 12.

And its team was perhaps the least traditional. The competition usually pits students from talented-and-gifted programs, and the Terminoodles have their share of those. But this year, four members of the Gunter team were from special-education classes for students with learning disabilities.

"Normally, kids like this aren't encouraged to try out for this sort of thing, but I'm a special-education teacher and I knew these kids could do it," said Leah Martaindale, the faculty coordinator for the Terminoodles.

The Terminoodles' success has galvanized this Grayson County town of 849 people about 50 miles north of Dallas, where residents have been seeking a distraction from the Class 2A Gunter Tigers' 2-7 football record.

The robotics team has been the object of two overflowing pep rallies. Posters line the school hallways. Terminoodles members have returned from class to find their lockers decorated by admiring fellow students.

The support delights Danny Davis, 13, an eighth-grade special-education student on the team.

"Some people thought we weren't going to win because we had special-ed kids on the team," he said. "But we showed them."

Under the competition rules, TI sends each team a box of parts. This year, the goal was to use the parts to build a remote-controlled robot capable of picking up a series of spongy "noodles" — long plastic foam cylinders popular as swimming pool toys. The noodles must be collected under certain conditions and within a certain amount of time.

The Terminoodles' idea was to fit the robot with a "walking beam", commonly used in agricultural equipment. "We live in a farming area," Ms. Martaindale said. "It works like hay balers and combines."

The name "Terminoodles" is a combination of the word "noodles" and the Arnold Schwarzenegger movie "The Terminator," picked for its high-technology associations. Justin said the name was selected by consensus at a team meeting, which also adopted the team slogan: "This time we're serious."

The robotics team has been the object of two overflowing pep rallies. Posters line the school hallways. Terminoodles members have returned from class to find their lockers decorated by admiring fellow students.

Serious enough that membership quickly dropped from 40 volunteers to 23, who had to be willing to work on the project 16 hours a week for six weeks.

The team received three trophies, two plaques and two medals in the regional competition Oct. 28, plus the invitation to journey to College Station, Texas, on Saturday for a statewide competition at Texas A&M University.

Danny said he volunteered because "I thought I'd have something to be proud of."

He said he was afraid that the team members from the school's talented-and-gifted program wouldn't take his ideas seriously. But, in fact, one of his ideas solved a major problem.

Early prototypes of the Terminoodle robot had trouble maneuvering because the machine's undercarriage would become hung up on obstructions. Danny's idea was to raise the robot's motors below it. The rounded, smooth surface of the motor would climb over the obstructions more easily than the flat undercarriage, he reasoned.

After meeting some resistance, his idea was adopted. Ms. Martaindale said that such inclinations helped overcome skepticism toward the special-education students.

She said some team members had doubts about the special-education students' abilities. "Until they got started," Ms. Martaindale said. "And then they got respect."

Some of the special-education students said, however, that the only resistance they had to overcome was their own.

"I didn't think I would be able to do it that well, I didn't think I could actually help build the machine, but I did. I helped," said Jimmy West, 13, a seventh-grader.

Angie Trevino, 16, a sophomore, said she encountered more opposition because she was a girl than because she was a special-education student.

"When I started, some of them didn't want me to do anything," she said. "They wanted me to sand the plywood. When I said I wanted to start drilling holes, they said that that was a 'guy thing.'"

She proved herself an able driller, and it became her favorite part of the project.

Justin, the team leader, said he thinks the addition of special-education students improved the team, which had never won a regional competition before.

"It gave us a variety of people," he said.

Ms. Martaindale is especially pleased that the success of the special-ed members has endowed the students with new self-confidence.

"You should see Angie's work. Her schoolwork has just blossomed," Ms. Martaindale said. "You can tell she feels good about herself. If you won all these things, wouldn't you?"

Matt Newman, 13, an eighth-grader in special education, said being on the team has brought him respect from his classmates.

When he walks down the hallways, he said, "people will come and tell you they envy you. It's kind of an honor to have that being said to you."

False bombing suspect suing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A Jordanian-American said he plans to sue the government for $1.9 million for strip-searching and parading him in handcuffs through a crowded airport after the Oklahoma City bombing.

Abraham Ahmad said he was singled out because of his Middle Eastern appearance and name, and because he boarded a flight to Jordan the morning of the April 19 bombing, according to the complaint he filed Thursday.

In an April 20 affidavit unsealed by prosecutors later Thursday, FBI agents said they detained Ahmad, 32, because his luggage contained tools that could have been used to build the bomb that tore the face off the federal building.

The document also said agents asked a judge to let them detain Ahmad because his bags contained garments that resembled clothing of a man seen running from the scene.

Ahmad, a naturalized American citizen who has lived in Oklahoma for 13 years, was held for more than two days before

Guard: Nichols said he might have accidentally helped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Terry Nichols reportedly told a guard he might have accidentally played a role in the Oklahoma City bombing, and said of Timothy McVeigh: "It looks like ... maybe he did it."

Nichols, indicted as a conspirator with McVeigh in the April 19 bombing that killed 169 people, insisted he knew nothing of a plot to blow up the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

Initially, he denied his friend McVeigh was capable of doing it, according to the Los Angeles Times, which cited confidential FBI reports it obtained two weeks after his arrest, on the verge of tears in his Wichita, Kan. jail cell, Nichols confided to a guard: "We were good friends for five years. But it looks like ... maybe he did it. ... And I think I may have, I may have accidentally helped him in doing it."

"I cannot believe it was him," Nichols said flatly. "I cannot see why he would do it."

Gradually, he said it might be possible McVeigh was responsible, the paper reported.

Two weeks after his arrest, on the verge of tears in his Wichita, Kan. jail cell, Nichols confided to a guard: "We were good friends for five years. But it looks like ... maybe he did it. ... And I think I may have, I may have accidentally helped him in doing it."

he was released. He was cleared of any wrongdoing and was never officially described as a suspect in the blast, which killed 169 people and injured 500.

"No one should ever have to go through the mistreatment I went through," said Ahmad at a news conference. "This ordeal has left me and my family hurt and emotionally scarred."

Budget rhetoric begins to boil

WASHINGTON (AP) — With administration officials and Republicans swapping increasingly bitter accusations, congressional leaders are expected to quell internal differences and send temporary spending and borrowing bills to President Clinton today.

Both bills are all but certain to be vetoed by the president, raising the specter of a government shutdown on Tuesday, and a tightening debt crisis as the week wears on.

Cabinet officers complained the measures were designed to force distasteful extraneous provisions down the president's throat, such as legislation making it more difficult for the government to issue new environmental, health and safety regulations.

"That's a form of terrorism. We are not going to accept that," said Leon Panetta, the White House chief of staff.

The public wrangling over the short-term measures took place against a backdrop of private talks among GOP senators and representatives working to put together a compromise version of massive budget legislation eliminating deficits by 2002, wringing $270 billion in savings from Medicare over the seven years and handing out $245 billion in tax cuts to families and businesses.

Republican leaders hoped to reach agreement over the week-end on that bill.

The short-term spending measure, adopted 50-46 by the Senate Thursday night, would provide stopgap funds for government agencies through Dec. 1.

Debate continues over medical status of Kevorkian's latest victim

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — Amid debate over whether the latest person to die in his presence was terminally ill, Dr. Jack Kevorkian insisted she was suffering from bone cancer and challenged a prosecutor to charge him.

"I dare you to charge me. D-A-R-E. If you don't, you're either a coward or a liar," Kevorkian said in an appearance Thursday night on CNN's "Larry King Live."

Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson said a decision on whether to charge Kevorkian had not yet been made.

"This is not a game," Thompson said. "As a prosecutor, you're not going to make decisions based on a dare."

Asked by King if Cashman died peacefully, Kevorkian replied, "Like everybody else, I would guess that she died peacefully."

Cashman, 58, of San Marcos, Calif., was found Wednesday in a car near the morgue. Kevorkian's lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger, said Cashman had undergone a mastectomy three years ago and suffered "excruciating" pain from the disease spreading through her body.

A preliminary autopsy found no visible traces of the disease.

At the request of The Associated Press, Dr. Jeffrey Forman, vice chairman of radiology at Wayne State University School of Medicine, reviewed some of Cashman's medical records, which were provided by Kevorkian's lawyer.

Cashman did have bone cancer, but it wouldn't necessarily have been detected during a routine autopsy, Forman said.

'Calvin and Hobbes' cartoonist retires

Cartoonist burnout strikes again.

"Calvin and Hobbes" creator Bill Watterson will retire his comic strip Dec. 31, becoming the third top cartoonist this year to hang up his pen at an early age.

After a decade of drawing the terrible tyke and his sometimes-stuffed tiger, Watterson said Thursday he wants to escape the deadline grind and frustration of shrinking funny pages.

He follows Gary Larson, whose last "Far Side" panel appeared Jan. 1, and Berkeley Breathed, who stopped drawing "Bloom County" in 1989 and then retired his weekly "Outland" comic strip last March.

Larson wanted to keep his work out of the "Graveyard of Mediocre Cartoons." Breathed said cartoonists "die and go to hell for working beyond that magic intersection of art and fun."

And now Watterson: "I've done what I can do within the constraints of daily deadlines and small panels," he said.

Croatians move artillery into weapons-free zone

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — Violating a U.N. weapons-free zone, Croatian troops have moved heavy artillery near rebel Serbs, the United Nations said today. The move heightened chances of new fighting in Croatia's easternmost region.

Croatian President Franjo Tudjman warned again this week that his army would forcibly retake the strip of land, known as eastern Slavonia, if no settlement allowing for renewed Croatian control is reached by Nov. 30.

U.N. spokesman Douglas Coffman said the Croats moved "some troops with heavy artillery" into a six-mile heavy weapons exclusion zone bordering a smaller strip of land where troops are completely banned for both sides.

Coffman called the incursion a severe violation of a cease-fire meant to keep the two sides apart until they agree on the fate of eastern Slavonia, the last bit of Croatia held by rebel Serbs.

Croatian Defense Ministry sources reported Thursday that three convoys of troops and heavy weapons were moving toward eastern Slavonia.

Maj. Dan Roy, a U.N. military spokesman in Zagreb, said today that "not a significant number of troops" were involved, suggesting the deployments were a show of force instead of attack preparations.

Another U.N. source spoke, on condition of anonymity, of a "fairly large contingent" of Croatian troops, but not enough for an offensive.

Backed by the Yugoslav Army, Croatian Serbs took about one third of Croatia in 1991 after Croatia voted to secede from Serb-led Yugoslavia. After more than three years of an uneasy cease-fire, Tudjman's troops recaptured most of the land in lightning offensives in May and August.

A Croatian attack on the last strip — along the border with Serbia — could draw in the Serb-dominated Yugoslav Army again, prompting a wider war in the Balkans even as the various sides are meeting near Dayton, Ohio.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher was due at the talks today and said he was going to try to resolve the eastern Slavonia dispute.

Israeli police admit to three prior attempts on Rabin's life by Jews

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — There were at least three unsuccessful attempts by Jews on Yitzhak Rabin's life since the agreement to hand over land to the Palestinians was signed in September 1993, police said today.

Israel's police minister has already declared the Rabin assassination to have been a conspiracy, and not the act of a lone gunman, as the confessed killer claimed. A sixth suspect — a student at a Jerusalem engineering college — was arraigned today.

The report of the failed assassination attempts came from police spokesman Eric Bar-Chen, who released a statement that did not offer any details. Asked to comment on that statement, Police Minister Moshe Shahal told Israel radio there were likely more than three attempts on the prime minister's life.

The man who confessed to shooting Rabin at a peace rally Saturday night has reportedly told police he tried to get close to Rabin twice earlier this year: Once, when the prime minister visited the site of a bus bombing on the Israeli coast; and once, when Rabin opened a new interchange near Tel Aviv.

It was not clear whether Shahal and Bar-Chen included these reported attempts in their tally.

None of the suspects, including confessed gunman Yigal Amir, has been charged in the murder. Police have said they intend to charge Amir and one other man with murder; the other four are to be charged with knowing about the planned murder and failing to prevent it, an offense in Israeli law.

Rabin's funeral had drawn to Israel the largest assembly of world leader's the country had ever known, but one man was conspicuously absent: Yasser Arafat.

The PLO leader cited security reasons for his absence, but also likely stayed away because his presence in Jerusalem would enrage Israeli right-wingers who reject the Palestinian claim to the city's eastern sector as the capital of a future state.

Under cover of darkness Thursday, Arafat paid his only known visit to Israel in a secret condolence call to Rabin's widow, Leah, saying he felt it was his "duty."

Israeli government spokesman Uri Dromi said Arafat and his entourage stayed only briefly at the Rabin home in Tel Aviv. Arafat's presence in Israel was kept secret until he returned home to the PLO-ruled Gaza Strip.

Dromi quoted Arafat as telling Mrs. Rabin that the slain premier was "a hero of peace" and that he had lost a personal friend. "He will be sorely missed by both me and the peace process," Dromi quoted Arafat as saying.

Mrs. Rabin replied that her husband had considered Arafat "a full partner in peace" and wished him success in seeing through the process of Israeli-Palestinian conciliation, Israel radio reported.

The mother of the confessed gunman said Thursday she no longer considers him her son. Geula Amir, a kindergarten teacher in Herzliya, just north of Tel Aviv, told Israel TV that she and her husband raised their son Yigal to respect life. "Shlomo and I have been teaching (our children) love, tolerance, respect," she said.

Execution of Nigerian activist expected

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The execution of a Nigerian playwright appeared imminent today: Hangmen were reportedly sent to the jail and a British group said he and eight other condemned men were moved between prisons for execution.

Ken Saro-Wiwa, 54, was convicted Oct. 31 in the deaths of four men during a May 1994 political rally. He says he was framed because of his opposition to the military regime of Gen. Sani Abacha and to Nigeria's vital oil industry.

The Ogoni Community Association, a British-based organization of people from Saro-Wiwa's ethnic group, said a witness saw him and the others moved in chains from one jail in the southern city of Port Harcourt to the main jail.

"They had chains round their ankles," association spokesman Cliff Etridge told the AP in London. "This was at 7:30 a.m. Nigerian time. Troops have continued to build up in Ogoniland prior to any possible riots."

Earlier today, Saro-Wiwa's son said the military dictatorship had already sent executioners to the jail in Port Harcourt, but wardens turned them away because their paperwork was not in order. That report also appeared in newspapers in Lagos, the commercial capital of the West African nation.

Nigeria's Provisional Ruling

Council on Wednesday upheld the death sentences against Saro-Wiwa and eight other members of the Ogoni ethnic group.

Saro-Wiwa has campaigned on behalf of the 500,000 Ogoni people who live in Nigeria's oil-rich south and say their land and water are being destroyed by oil industry pollution. Oil accounts for about 80 percent of Nigeria's export income, and critics of the industry often are silenced.

Wiwa is at the Commonwealth conference of Britain and 51 former colonies to lobby leaders to appeal for his father's freedom.

Commonwealth nations today appealed for clemency to spare the life of Saro-Wiwa.

State-ranked rivals to meet

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

ACKERLY - Anyone who has trouble getting motivated for tonight's Sands-Klondike showdown should be checked for a pulse.

Quite simply, this game will have almost everything:

- It is for the District 5 Six-man championship.
- It matches undefeated, state-ranked teams (Klondike is No. 2; Sands No. 3).
- And, to top it all off, it features one of the most storied six-man rivalries in the state.

So, when the coaches say motivation will not be a concern, believe them.

"If I have to do anything to fire the guys up for this one, they're brain-dead," Sands coach Billy Barnett said.

Both teams have already clinched playoff spots, but Barnett doesn't believe that will detract from the matchup.

BARNETT

"There's a basic dislike when it comes to Sands and Klondike," Barnett said. "It's a rivalry that goes way back. It wouldn't make any difference if both teams were 0-9 - it's just a big game."

"We reached one of our goals, which was to reach the playoffs," Klondike coach Jim Kinnear said. "But I guess the really important goal is to win district, and they seem to be ready to accomplish that goal."

The Mustangs (9-0, 4-0) have not been severely tested this season - only one game has not been ended by the 45-point rule - and have outgained their opponents by an average of 227 yards a game.

But the Cougars (9-0, 4-0) also have been on cruise control this season as well. Klondike has won all but four of their games by 45 points or more and is outgaining its opponents by more than 150 yards a game.

The biggest matchup tonight will be between Klondike's high-powered offense, averaging 388 yards a game, and Sands' rock-solid defense, which has allowed only 96 yards a game this season.

JV Steers fall; freshmen drop season finale

By DARRELL ERICSON

The Big Spring junior varsity Steers finished out their season with a 3-6 record with a 32-14 loss to Andrews.

Jacob Rios scored the Steers' first touchdown on a 6-yard run. A failed conversion attempt left the Steers behind by two.

Andrews pulled ahead in the third before John Lattermilk scored the Steers' second touchdown. Lattermilk scored on a 12-yard pass from Gabe Mendoza and followed his touchdown with the 2-point conversion run.

The freshmen Steers had a chance to win up to the last minute of the game but came up short as the clock ran out.

Andrews scored the first touchdown of the game on a 5-yard run in the first quarter. Big Spring Josh Ontiveras followed on a 3-yard run. The extra point try failed.

In the beginning of the second quarter Joe Owen scored on a 40-yard run to give Big Spring the lead, but Andrews soon followed with another 5-yard run and a good PAT.

In the fourth quarter Ontiveras scored on a 78-yard run, but the clock ran out soon afterward.

The freshmen Steers finished their season with a 2-7 overall record.

In the first quarter the Mavericks pulled ahead on the work of Colby Ford. Ford had three touchdowns to take the Mavericks to a quick 19-0 lead.

Ford scored on runs of 37 and 42 yards and on a 45-yard pass reception from Jason Choate.

A 50-yard pass from Blake Gee to Jason Woodruff took the Mavericks up by one and a 15-yard run by Jason Woodruff finished the score.

Playing well for the Mavericks were Blake Gee, Mike Dixon, Ryan Guinn, Bo Butler, Willie Bravo and Nick Valencia.

The Mavericks final record was 7-2.

The Runnels Yearlings tied their B-team game and lost their A-team game.

The A-team scored its first and only touchdown late in the fourth. Oscar Gonzales scored on a 15-yard run, and it was because of a blocked punt by Anthony Ortega.

The Yearlings allowed two turnovers and failed to score from inside the Andrews 10 three times as Andrews climbed to a 19-0 lead.

The A-team finished its season with a 7-2 overall record.

The Yearling B-team tied its last game and it was Jimmy Hawkins who came up with the touchdown.

Fillingim to compete in New York Marathon

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Editor

Glen Fillingim and about 27,000 of his closest friends are going for a little run this weekend.

A 26-mile run. Through the heart of New York City.

Fillingim, a local accountant, will be among the thousands of contestants in Sunday's annual New York Marathon, an event that attracts many of the world's elite long-distance runners.

Fillingim has competed in four marathons, the first being at the Dallas White Rock Marathon in 1989.

FILLINGIM

thought, "Well, if I can run a half-marathon, I can run a full one."

About 12,000 slots for the race are doled out to the general public in lottery fashion. Fillingim and his brother Bruce applied earlier this year, and learned of their acceptance in May.

Needless to say, he is thrilled to be going.

"I've been running for about 15 years," he said. "I've seen the New York Marathon on television and thought that I'd like to do that."

The event will be a family affair, with several relatives accompanying Glen and Bruce to the Big Apple.

"My mother can't wait to go," he said. "She's wound tighter than a top."

Fillingim's best time in a marathon is a clocking of 3 hours, 41 minutes he accomplished at White Rock. With the crush of humanity expected in New York, however, he's under no illusions about setting a personal record.

"I want to finish under four hours," he said. "It's a hard race to run a (personal record) in unless you're a world-class athlete and you're running near the front of the pack."

And Fillingim has no illusions about pressing the big boys.

"I'll be the slow guy in front of the street sweeper," he laughed. "But I will finish."

A&M outlasts Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice coach Ken Hatfield sprung a slew of trick plays on No. 18 Texas A&M. Aggies coach R.C. Stocum sprung Leeland McElroy.

Hatfield's gadgets — two fake punts, an end-around and a desperation halfback pass — gave the Aggies a scare Thursday but it was McElroy who carried the day as Texas A&M struggled to a 17-10 victory.

McElroy ran 28 times for 168 yards, including a 45-yard score, and quarterback Corey Pullig threw a 26-yard touchdown pass to Albert Connell that put the Aggies ahead for good in the third quarter.

But Rice, ending a 75-year series against Texas A&M with the Southwest Conference's demise, left the Aggies something to remember.

Second half defensive stand allows Howard to stay perfect

By DARRELL ERICSON
Sports writer

Ball handling and defense led the Lady Hawks to a quick 12-0 lead and finally a 66-54 victory over Paris Junior College Thursday at Garrett Coliseum.

While sophomore point guard, Joyce Howard controlled the floor, Keelah Wilson was the main key to the quick lead with her work on the boards.

While Wilson was grabbing rebounds, Toni Westfall, Donelle Jones, and Howard were collecting the points. Jones led the Lady Hawks with 15 points, while Jones and Westfall scored 9 and 8 points, respectively.

Paris took advantage of three-pointers and Howard mistakes to stay close early. Misty Womack and Kenda Patterson brought the Lady Dragons to within two points of the Lady Hawks with seven minutes left in the first half.

the first half on her three point shot and Womack hit another three at the end of the first to take a short 27-25 lead.

Howard head basketball coach Terry Gray said, "The 12-0 lead let the girls get relaxed. We lost a little intensity because of it, but our rebounding picked up at crucial points to get the victory."

The second period was decided on the defensive efforts of the Lady Hawks. A steal by Jones allowed the Lady Hawks to break a 33-33 tie and a blocked pass by Summer Swoboda gave the Lady Hawks the advantage in the second half.

"We concentrated on the positive points of the game and defense. When it comes to defense we are fundamentally strong and we usually rely on that to pull us back into a game," Gray said.

The Lady Hawks built their lead to 10 points on a two-point shot by Westfall.

Gray said the team still hasn't reached its full potential.

"Having six games in the first nine days is tough," Gray said. "The team's intensity is strong for playing that number of games in that short of a period."

The Lady Hawks will concentrate on staying sharp and keeping their skills tuned for their next appearance at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. against Western Texas College.

'Prime Time' fires back at ex-teammate

IRVING, Texas (AP) — A war of words between Deion Sanders and former teammate Jerry Rice has developed into the most compelling aspect of a Dallas-San Francisco matchup this week that had lost much of its glamor.

Things have been icy between the Dallas defensive back and the San Francisco wide receiver since last year's Super Bowl when Rice got mad at Sanders and some other 49ers for breaking a mid-week curfew.

In a profanity-laced locker room tirade this season, Rice seemed jealous of the credit Sanders received for the 49ers' rushing and passing. On the ground, the Cougars have been led by fullback Lon Estes, who has 948 yards and nine TDs on 77 carries.

Furthermore, Sanders thinks Rice misrepresented their difference of opinion over the curfew incident the week before the Super Bowl.

"It has been funny to see him upset and cursing. He's a good dude. He just said some things that didn't come out right," Sanders said.

"I have no personal battles against the 49ers," he said. "They are just going through denial right now saying they don't miss Deion and don't miss Ricky Watters and don't miss Mike Shanahan and don't miss Ray Rhodes."

Sanders said he talked to some of his former San Francisco 49er teammates on Thursday and none of them made such "ignorant" remarks.

Sanders and Rice meet on the field Sunday in Texas Stadium with Sanders expected to be covering Rice, the NFL's all-time leading yardage receiver.

Give the 49ers a 46-yard field goal and take away an interception, and the 49ers are 7-2 and their Sunday game with the Cowboys, who are 8-1, assumes its predicted splendor. Instead, the 49ers are 5-4 after two straight losses.

Sanders, who defected to Dallas for a $35 million package that included a $13 million signing bonus, promised no Andre Rison incident on Sunday. Last year Sanders and Rison, who was a wide receiver for Atlanta, settled a grievance on the field with their fists when the 49ers played the Falcons.

"There will be no freak show this time," Sanders said. "It's not going to get like that, I promise you. Jerry and I have a nice respectful rivalry."

Sanders said his right left hamstring was healing to the point where he might be able to also play offense. He had no offensive snaps last week because of the hamstring problem.

"I want to do my thing in the end zone," Sanders said.

Sanders did return a punt 43 yards on a reverse and get his first interception as a Cowboy in a 34-12 win over Philadelphia on Monday night.

"I'm very happy I don't have to worry about Deion any more when we play the 49ers," Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman said.

Sanders said he is enjoying his stay with the Cowboys much more than he did the 49ers.

"This team is loose and confident and very close off the field," Sanders said. "Other than a Harris Barton cookout, there was no camaraderie with the 49ers. These guys in Dallas enjoy the game. At San Francisco, it was punch in and go home."

defense, too," Barnett said. "Another thing is that our offense have been pretty good."

Sanders' attack has been powered by its usual rushing-by-committee approach favored by Barnett. Four runners, led by senior Dallas Hopper, have gained between 327 and 466 yards on the ground. Together, the quartet has accounted for 38 touchdowns.

Quarterback DeLynn Reed has proved to be a capable passer, completing 43 of 73 passes for 678 yards, 15 TDs and two interceptions.

The outstanding offensive player this season, however, has been Klondike quarterback Tanner Etheredge. The senior has accounted for more than 1,800 yards and 42 touchdowns rushing and passing. On the ground, the Cougars have been led by fullback Lon Estes, who has 948 yards and nine TDs on 77 carries.

Graham chooses son as his successor

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Graham, who once said only God can choose his successor, will be succeeded by his oldest son, a prodigal son who drank, fought and was expelled from college before a religious conversion at 22.

Ending years of speculation over who will take over the nation's most coveted evangelical pulpit, the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association announced Wednesday that Franklin Graham was elected to the new position of first vice chairman, with the right of succession should his father become incapacitated.

The 77-year-old Graham, who suffers from Parkinson's disease, said he will continue as chairman and chief executive of the organization he founded in 1950.

After a decade of deflecting questions about successors, the evangelist said of his son's selection: "As a father I am both proud of his capacity for leadership and humbled in gratitude for the Lord's blessing on him."

Franklin Graham, 43, rebelled against his famous father as a teen-ager and young adult. He led police on high-speed chases and was kicked out of LeTourneau College in Longview.

At 22, Graham reported having a religious experience in Jerusalem that changed his life. In 1978, he joined the board of Samaritan's Purse, a mission organization.

The younger Graham has increasingly been preaching as an evangelist. He spoke to over 200,000 people at nine crusades in the United States and Canada this year, and appeared with his father for the first time at an October crusade in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

He will continue as director of Samaritan's Purse and World Medical Mission, an organization he helped found.

In an interview Wednesday, the younger Graham echoed his father's sentiments that "only God knows" who will replace Billy Graham as America's leading evangelist, but he vowed, "I will be a voice" on the crusade landscape.

Evangelist Billy Graham and his eldest son Franklin are shown in this September 1984 file photo at the Novosibirsk Baptist Church in Siberia. Graham will be succeeded by Franklin.

Parents fight for young casualties of Gulf war

By CATHY SPAULDING
Plano Star Courier

PLANO — As an Army paratrooper during Operation Desert Storm, Darrell Clark tracked Iraqi artillery and watched as Army Warthog A-10 anti-tank aircraft destroyed enemy tanks.

The battle resulted in possibly 60 Iraqi casualties and no American casualties as tanks burned all around him, he says.

Clark now believes his 3-year-old daughter, Kennedy, was yet another casualty of the war.

The child was born with almost no thyroid, a gland which produces a hormone essential for physical and mental growth. She is severely anemic. Knotted red lumps, benign tumors of tangled blood vessels, could be seen all over her body and face, which is swollen into the shape of a pear.

Clark, who now works for his family's financial service in Plano, suspects the deformities could be traced to hazardous chemicals he was exposed to during the 1991 war against Iraq.

He is among a growing number of Gulf War veterans who since have fathered children with birth defects.

"I joined the military to defend my country and give my life," he said. "But I did not sign that line for the lives of my daughter or wife."

Kennedy Clark is one of five afflicted children of Gulf War veterans profiled in the November issue of Life magazine. The national magazine tells of the trials families go through with children suffering from deformities of their faces, spines, limbs and internal organs. It tells of the families' often futile efforts to get help from the government that sent the fathers into battle.

Clark said he has no idea how many children are afflicted. He said he and the others would like to see a study of how many children of Gulf War veterans could be affected as a result of their parents' exposure to hazardous elements.

Figures from the Association of Birth Defect Children note that out of 40,000 births to Gulf War veterans, 12 percent had

Catholic document discusses issues surrounding family, fidelity

By TERRY MATTINGLY
Scripps Howard News Service

At least once a year, most religious groups feel the need to issue a lengthy document about this or that social issue. These texts emerge after private debates in which committees write, rewrite and edit each line. Early drafts often surface in the media, before the word-crunching continues in public meetings.

The results usually resemble government legislation or sausage. Rare is the person who yearns to inspect the contents. This is ironic, since most of these statements are supposed to be practical, "pastoral" letters from leaders to the faithful. This week the National Conference of Catholic Bishops released "Faithful For Life: A Moral Reflection," a pastoral statement that attempts to break the mold. First, it was created amid little fanfare or controversy. Second, the 25-page booklet is candid, concise and smoothly written.

Clearly, the writers hope that real people may actually read and understand it.

"This is about abortion and euthanasia, but there's more to it than that," says Helen Alvare, of the NCCB's Office for Pro-Life Activities. "This puts these issues in a new context — the crisis in the American family. ... Everything is woven together. It's more like a meditation."

Nevertheless, this document does address controversial social issues linked both to sex and government policies, and was released only days before a papal visit to the United States. It also closely follows an encyclical, "Evangelium vitae (The Gospel of Life)," in which Pope John Paul II condemned abortion, euthanasia and a growing "culture of death" in language that verged on a declaration of infallibility.

All of which makes the tone of "Faithful For Life" — less political and, at times, almost poetic — even more unusual.

The bishops stress that it is at life's beginning and end that people are most vulnerable and dependent on family members and neighbors. Consider these sobering words:

"Many are welcomed by these to whose care they have been entrusted. Others are not so welcomed." The result is a cultural nightmare — from lurid TV talk shows to death-metal music, from slasher movies about abandoned kids to bookstores full of books on loneliness. Many shattered families are failing to care for their own.

"When a family lives in fidelity it is a place of refuge and dignity," write the bishops.

"If it becomes each one only for himself or herself, then instead of being the source, school and standard for fidelity ... the family can become the scene of its harshest violations. The home becomes the place where, when you knock, they no longer have to let you in."

Part of the problem is that most of today's loudest voices in brawls about "family values" keep stressing individual rights and responsibilities and the power of self-determination and unlimited freedom. It is in this context that the bishops must make a case for a different message: Families are not built on freedom of choice, but on ties that bind.

"Faithful For Life" notes: "Many of the critical moments in our lives require that we rise to meet responsibilities given to us, not chosen by us. ... We are bound to our children, not because we chose them, but because we were given them: simply because they are our children, our very near neighbors."

Parents and children must be able to trust each other. This is built on trust between husbands and wives. At some point men and women must believe that fidelity is more important than freedom, or all is lost.

The bishops insist that when "a people lose confidence in fidelity between husbands and wives, it is an easy leap to imagine that other fidelities ... no longer need to be permanent, for-better-or-for-worse obligations."

Help exists for depressed clergy

By VICTOR VOLLAND
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The Rev. Bob Allen traveled to the edge four years ago when his 24-year-old daughter got diagnosed with breast cancer.

The pastor of Florissant Valley Christian Church in Florissant, Mo., knew he had to be the strong one for everybody, including his congregation. But his brave front gave way late some nights, as he drove home alone or awakened in the middle of the night.

And it got worse: Allen's daughter died in February.

But the pastor found help in a support group at a private counseling agency that specializes in treating problems of ministers.

Who ministers to the ministers?

More people than ever, and still not enough, experts say.

In the St. Louis area, one of the oldest, Care and Counseling in suburban Creve Coeur, has expanded to eight centers. The interfaith agency treats 300 ministers and church professionals a year for burnout, depression, alcoholism and improper sexual behavior.

Roman Catholic priests, nuns and brothers receive psychological counseling at two centers operated by or affiliated with the church. The St. Louis Rabbinical Association operates an informal network of rabbis trained as counselors who give advice to fellow rabbis on a crisis hot line or refer them to professionals.

The Assemblies of God, one of the largest evangelical Christian denominations, recently established a 24-hour telephone hot line for troubled clergy. Callers are assured confidentiality, because many Assemblies of God ministers fear they will lose their jobs if they admit they need counseling.

The pressures on ministers were underscored last summer with a minister's suicide. The Rev. Timothy Brewer of Central Presbyterian Church in suburban St. Louis had just returned to the pulpit after losing a leg in an accident. He left a note saying there were few places that a depressed minister can go for help without ruining his ministry.

The Rev. Dale Kuhn, a 15-year veteran on the Care and Counseling staff and a Lutheran minister, said parishioners often hold their pastors up to an impossible godlike standard.

The family of a busy, preoccupied pastor can easily feel neglected and depressed and may need therapy as much as the pastor, Kuhn said. "The pastor feels his call is from God also and that the congregation must come first," he said.

"I say the family must come first because the minister who cannot take care of his own family cannot serve others well."

Never underestimate this 'nice' district attorney

By KEN ELLSWORTH
Ablene Reporter-News

SNYDER — Former kindergarten teacher Dana Cooley looks like she could be pushed around all over the place.

And maybe so until you come up against her in court.

The Scurry County District Attorney is pettily built and admittedly shy and there may be no better word to describe her than "nice."

Awfully nice. Some might say too nice.

But they would be wrong, as hardened criminals and wily defense attorneys have been finding out.

"Almost everybody says that I'm too nice until they see me try a case. They think I'm too nice to do this job," Cooley, 37, said.

Scurry County Deputy Sheriff Darren Jackson, who often serves as bailiff in 132nd District Court, has seen Cooley plenty of times. Your first impression of Cooley, he said, could be fatal in court.

"You would be underestimating her," he said. "She is small in stature and quiet-voiced, but she can be aggressive. She can be forceful."

Her style is not, Cooley said, an example of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, but some cases do seem to bring out the beast that is not readily apparent in other situations.

"I can stand in the courtroom and call the defendant a criminal and say it forcefully and I can call him worse than that if I have to," she said. "There are people who say, once I'm in the courtroom, I'm not so nice."

Becoming a DA and prosecuting criminals was not always in Cooley's plans. She was appointed to the position by the governor in August, after Ernie Armstrong, the previous DA, had accepted the judgeship of 132nd District Court in Snyder, 80 miles northwest of Abilene.

Despite starting out as a teacher, the Abilene Christian University education graduate, Class of '81, knew she wanted to be an attorney from the time she was in high school in Borden County.

But she never imagined being a DA.

"I envisioned myself as an attorney who stays in the office and does research and writes briefs, but I never thought I would be trying criminal cases, but it is something I enjoy very much."

After three years of teaching home economics and remedial reading in Borden County, Cooley, despite loving her job, decided to go to law school. She was just 25 at the time and had a young daughter, Erin, who is now 10, but who was less than a year old at the time.

She and her husband, Ted, now have a second daughter, Meghan, 3.

Ted, who works for Fina Oil in Post, was very supportive of his wife's law school ambitions, Cooley said.

Cooley went to law school at Texas Tech, driving back and forth to classes. She graduated in 1988. Out of law school, Cooley came straight to Snyder. She was hired by then district attorney Armstrong to be assistant district attorney.

"I didn't want to go to a big city," she said.

"I saw that she had integrity and was straight forward and had good skills and that was important to me. I didn't know if she would be a good prosecutor," Armstrong said. "But all those are the qualities of a good prosecutor."

Despite common perception, Armstrong said, you can be nice and still be a good prosecutor.

"I don't see a contradiction," he said. And Cooley is a good prosecutor, he added.

"I like prosecuting cases. I consider it being on the right side and I like being on the right side and I like being a part of the law enforcement team," Cooley said. "And I like being a part of what makes this community a nice place to live, a safe place to live."

Some say newly appointed Scurry County District Attorney Dana Cooley is too nice for the job. Criminals and defense attorneys are finding out otherwise.

the ones that bounced until I could make them good.

Thank you to the parents who took my children with them on vacations I never could afford -- even though I worked full-time while holding down several part-time jobs.

Thank you to the doctor and the dentist who charged me less than their regular rates for my children.

Thank you to my principal for paying me to paint the interior of his house so I could buy groceries during the last three weeks of summer before school resumed.

Thank you to the superintendent who valued me enough to ignore the demeaning letters from my ex-husband.

Thank you to the farmers who hired my sons to clean their chicken coops and help with harvesting their hay crops. What you paid them was their only spending money.

It has been more than 20 years since you opened your hearts to my children and me -- but if you could see the two lawyers and Ph.D. chemist they became, you'd know we did a good job with the kids.

Abby, I'm sure that most other single mothers have similar thank-yous to offer. -- THANKFUL IN VIRGINIA

DEAR ABBY: You really blew it! Your answer to the lady who had a friend whose daughter had an incontinent dog was terrible. Your suggestion that she leave the dog in a motel that permitted dogs was really the pits.

I am the general manager of a motel. We allow pets, although they cannot be left unattended in the room. Even the best behaved dogs will bark at the strange sounds in a strange place.

But an incontinent pet! I wouldn't want one in my motel under any circumstances.

Abby, how would you like to be a housekeeper for this person's room? Most probably, the carpet would have to be removed to relieve the room of its odor. Pretty expensive solution to this problem. I think you owe an apology to all motel keepers. -- DIXIE COOPER, SUPER 8 MOTEL, HAVRE, MONT.

DEAR DIXIE COOPER: Oops! A thousand apologies for my unenlightened advice concerning the incontinent dog. Too late did I become aware that there are "diapers" for dogs.

If and when I ever go to Montana, I'll ask Jane and Ted if they can put me up for a night or two. (I don't bark, and I don't need diapers.)

New jeans may improve rear view

By MARILOU BERRY

Scrrips Howard News Service

It had to happen. After the advent of the Wonderbra, jeans to boost the derriere were inevitable.

Just launched by Code Bleu and Sun Apparel are MiracleBoost Jeans, touted to lift, sculpt and contour, thereby shaping millions of women's figures.

Sun Apparel, a designer, manufacturer and marketer of denim apparel with sales of more than $250 million, calls MiracleBoost "the first jeans to foray into the lucrative shapewear market."

And just watch some of the others follow suit.

Clare Tassone, Sun Apparel's director of merchandising said she cannot reveal the technology involved in developing the patent-pending jean. It incorporates a unique design giving a woman a shapelier, rounder and firmer bottom.

"There have always been girdles and padded bras," says Michelyn Camen, Sun Apparel's executive vice president of marketing and licensing.

Now that the intimate apparel industry has remarketed this concept into shapewear, the enhancement idea has generated soaring sales.

Ms. Camen says seeds of conception for MiracleBoost's development were planted by one of Sun Apparel's principals, Miles Ruben.

"He noticed the hoopla surrounding the Wonderbra and certain kinds of butt boosters that were on the market. Miles said, 'Everyone's talking enhancement. Why aren't we in it?' That was the signal for us to get into it."

birth defects. Clark's wife, Shana Clark, said she plans to start a petition drive asking Congress and the Defense Department to provide health care for afflicted Gulf War veterans and their families. She also is seeking help from first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, who has promoted support for war veterans, she said. The letter asks Mrs. Clinton to use her clout to get Congress and the Department of Defense to "find the missing link in these illnesses."

He recalled one instance when they were 60 kilometers (about 38 miles) from Baghdad when his unit had 20 Iraqi tanks coming their way.

American antitank aircraft fired on these tanks, setting most of them on fire. Most of the Iraqis in these tanks were incinerated as the tanks burned.

Clark said he and others in his unit went into the war zone uninformed, carrying their gas masks by their legs. He said the smoke from the burning tanks reminded him of a camp fire and that personnel saw no reason to put the gas masks on.

He said he discovered later that the aircraft hit the tanks with depleted uranium rounds, waste from nuclear reactors. Life Magazine quoted a 1993 General Accounting Office report said the Army failed to effectively educate personnel in hazards of depleted uranium contamination and in proper safety measures.

Clark said he and other veterans also were given pyridostigmine bromide (PB) to counter possible effects of nerve gas that may have been released by bombing of Iraqi supply depots.

Clark himself said since the war, "I catch pneumonia twice a year, and sometimes I get chronic fatigue in which I don't feel like doing a thing."

One year after Kennedy was born, Clark was tested positive for radiation contamination, his wife said.

In a statement issued in August, the Defense Department concluded that there is no single illness or syndrome resulting from veterans' involvement in the Gulf War. However, a study of 10,000 patients did find multiple illnesses with overlapping symptoms and causes.

We can't blame all sins on Satan

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Does the devil make us do the bad things we do, or do we do them ourselves? I have always wondered how the devil fits in with the way the world works.

Billy Graham
Columnist

MRS. H.B. DEAR M.R.S. H.B.: Sometimes the devil acts in a very direct way -- but very often he simply works by exploiting our weaknesses and tempting us in such a way that we refuse to resist. In the end, the result is the same: We turn against God's will and follow Satan's way instead.

And when that happens, we alone are to blame for our sin. We cannot blame Satan (although he is guilty of trying to turn us away from God); we ourselves are guilty. And the tragedy is that everyone of us has sinned against God, and we continue to do so every day.

No, we may not be bad people, when we compare ourselves to some others. But in God's sight we all stand condemned, for, as the Bible says, "All have turned away ... there is no one who does good, not even one" (Romans 3:12).

And that is why our only hope is Christ. We cannot save ourselves; our sin is too great. But God has provided a way for us to be saved and forgiven -- and that way is Christ. You see, Christ came to take away our sins through His death on the cross. We deserved to die for our sins, but Christ took our sin and our judgment upon Himself when He died for us on the cross.

Have you put your hope in Christ by turning to Him in faith and trusting Him as your Lord and Savior? If not, I invite you to commit your life to Christ right now. He will forgive you, and He will help you fight Satan's hold over you. Christ has defeated Satan, and when you belong to Christ you can know His strength to resist temptation and to follow God's plan for your life. Don't delay, but give your life to Christ today.
