Temporary budget deal reopens government - at least until Dec. 15

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government reopened today after congressional Republicans and the White House ended their budget showdown and agreed to balance the budget by 2002. But to get there, dramatic negotiations lie ahead over taxes, Medicare, education and the environment.

The crisis atmosphere, which sent 800,000 "nonessential" federal workers home for six days, eased Sunday with agreement on a temporary spending measure that will keep the government operating through Dec. 15.

Both parties said they're ready to fight for the priorities that will define them for years to come — and provide voters a clear choice in next year's elections.

By voice votes Sunday night, the House and Senate adopted legislation to reopen the government for one day, and President Clinton quickly signed it. The Senate also approved a bill funding the government through Dec. 15 and the House planned to follow today.

House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, elated that the Republicans won their non-negotiable demand for a seven-year balanced budget, said, "Americans in Congress are fighting over great principles."

Clinton said Sunday the temporary agreement "reflects my principles" because Republicans showed a willingness "to move forward without forcing unacceptable cuts in health care, education and the environment on the American people."

He added that the Republican seven-year balanced budget legislation, which needs final approval in the House, "clearly does not come close to meeting that test, as I have said repeatedly. Therefore, I will veto that budget."

The agreement reached Sunday does not, as the White House had wanted, raise the government's $4.9 trillion borrowing ceiling. However, private experts agree the Treasury Department can avoid the ceiling for months by tapping retirement trust funds set aside for the civil service.

Only on Sunday, when offers and counterproposals were shuttled between the White House and congressional Republicans, did all sides tone down the dire predictions that one party or the other would ruin the country.

By Sunday night, both sides embraced the temporary spending accord enthusiastically.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., remained optimistic that productive negotiations would continue, adding: "I hope in the next three or four weeks we will produce a balanced budget with the president on board."

In a compromise that was a key to the temporary agreement, the two sides said the Congressional Budget Office will measure whether or not

Who got upper hand with budget?

By SONYA ROSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton put federal employees back to work in the belief that he, not Congress, came out of their government-crippling standoff with the upper hand on balancing the budget.

While congressional Republicans gloatingly called him a loser who blinked and then capitulated to their demand of a balanced budget in seven years, Clinton told reporters he is the man with the advantage.

Consider this, Clinton said: If Congress passes a budget that forces "unacceptable cuts" in the programs he deems important, he won't sign it, raising the possibility of a second government shutdown — a prospect dreaded by Republican leaders, who bore most of the blame for the first one.

"You know what my standards are, and you know what I'll do if we meet them and what I'll do if we won't," Clinton said. "So, from my point of view, this is a very good thing," he said. "The American people have won in two ways. The government will go back to work ... (and) we can have an open, honest, straightforward discussion about how best to balance the budget."

The temporary agreement reached Sunday put hundreds of thousands of federal workers back on the job immediately, ending a six-day furlough.

Had last week's impasse dragged on even a few days longer, the Office of Management and Budget said Sunday, military personnel might not have gotten paid, 60,000 preschoolers would have been frozen out of Head Start programs, and benefits to 3.3 million veterans would have been thwarted.

Even prisons and veterans hospitals would not have been able to buy supplies.

Now, though, government funding will be extended until Dec. 15. The White House and Republicans agreed to seek legislation that balances the budget in seven years while preserving a solvent Medicare program, welfare reform, and adequate funding for Medicaid, education and environmental programs.

Man killed in car accident

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A Big Spring man was killed when the car he was riding in collided with another vehicle this weekend.

Kurt Frank Boubek, 32, died in an early-morning accident Saturday on Highway 350 just north of Big Spring.

Department of Public Safety reports indicate Boubek was the passenger in a 1992 Ford Escort driven by Sandra Kim McClinton, 30, of Big Spring.

McClinton was driving east on Highway 350 when she veered into the wrong lane while coming over a rise in the road. Kim New Fregia, 39, of Big Spring, was westbound on the highway when she attempted to avoid hitting McClinton.

Fregia swerved to the left and the two cars collided almost head-on.

"Fregia was wearing a seat belt and that saved her life," said DPS Cpl. Mike Dawson. He added McClinton was driving on the wrong side of the road because she was drunk. Neither she nor Boubek was wearing a seat belt.

"The Big Spring Fire Department EMS and the Howard County Fire Department worked well together to get the two people out of the wreck. They were trapped in there for some time, and the Jaws of Life had to be used to extract them," said Dawson.

The two women were transferred to Scenic Mountain Medical Center by ambulance. Fregia is listed in stable condition.

McClinton was taken to Methodist Hospital in Lubbock and is in serious condition. No charges have been filed.

Graveside funeral services for Boubek were at 2 p.m. Monday.

Body of unidentified man found

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The body of a 70-year-old black male was discovered this weekend by a property owner walking his fence line.

Police reports indicate the body was found around 1:30 p.m. Saturday on Horse Pen Road on the north side of Big Spring. The still-unidentified man had been dead about 10 days.

Justice of the Peace Bill

Shankles ordered an autopsy to be performed in Lubbock on Sunday.

Big Spring Police Department Sgt. Victor Brake said the cause of death is unknown. A preliminary autopsy was conducted, but because of the condition of the body, more tests will have to be run.

"We are sending the pathologist some dental records of who we suspect it might be. We don't believe he is a local man. We are also going to send some more evidence from the scene,"

Brake added.

In an unrelated incident, Tony Monjico Castellano, 22, was arrested for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. He allegedly struck a 33-year-old man in the face, then put a butcher knife to the victim's throat and threatened him with bodily harm.

Brake said the incident happened at a party in the 1100 block of Lamar. Castellano was transferred to the county jail and later released on a $3,000 bond.

Transporting students a problem for area school districts

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

One of a school district's major headaches is getting the students to and from school.

In smaller districts that might have a total of 200 students, the round trip for a single bus could be 100 miles or more, and students could be condemned to spending as much as four hours a day commuting to and from school.

One solution has been for smaller districts to buy a fleet of vans instead of a couple of larger buses. Now, changes in federal and state transportation and safety regulations have made the vans a doubtful alternative.

Coahoma Independent School District officials made the decision last year to quit using large vans for student transportation. The district has a small bus on order, and uses nine passenger vans to transport small groups of students to activities.

Other districts, still waiting on the Attorney General's ruling on the large vans, are working around the problem. "More or less on hold," is the way Glasscock ISD Superintendent Charles Zachry describes it. The large vans are parked or being used to transport faculty and staff members until the ruling is received.

Grady Superintendent Johnny

Tubb listed possible consequences of the coming ruling:

- The vans could be defined as small buses, and modifications required to bring them into compliance with bus safety regulations. Those modifications would include painting them yellow; adding alternating flashing lights, convex mirrors and fire extinguishers; and possibly requiring anyone driving a 15-passenger van to be a Commercial Drivers' License (CDL) holder.

•The vans could be allowed, but limited to extra-curricular activities only.

- The vans could be eliminated entirely. If this is the attorney general's ruling, Tubb says, many districts will need a phase-out period to allow them to eliminate the large vans and replace them either with small buses or groups of smaller vans. The waiting period on a small bus is eight months to more than a year.

The request for an opinion voids the previous opinion on the use of large vans, said Joey Lozano, a communication officer with the Texas Education Agency. TEA's intent in asking for the opinion is to allow as much flexibility as possible to the school districts within the law. New issues have been raised, and the new opinion will address them.

There is no date yet on when the attorney general will issue the ruling. It will take time to allow research into what the legislature's intent was and to clarify the law's language. While federal regulations will be taken into consideration, the opinion will focus on state requirements.

District officials agree they won't take any chances with students' safety, whatever the ruling may be. "We are not and will not transport students in vans until we have a definitive ruling," Tubbs said.

Budget

any eventual budget deal eliminates deficits, but only after consulting with the White House and other government and private economists.

The argument over whose technical and economic assumptions are used is important because the White House budget office's more optimistic forecast would permit nearly $500 billion more in spending over seven years than the congressional office's prediction.

Republicans credited Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., for the CBO compromise that proved key to the agreement.

A reporter asked Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., "Who blinked?" He responded with two words and a smile, "Seven years."

But Senate Democratic Leader Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., said the agreement "preserves all of our options." The White House and Republicans agreed the balanced budget legislation would "protect future generations, secure Medicare solvency, reform welfare, provide adequate funding for Medicaid, education, agriculture, national defense, veterans and the environment."

If Clinton and Congress cannot resolve their deep differences in these areas, the government could again be shut down after Dec. 15.

The agreement also provides that any eventual budget deal "shall adopt tax policies to help working families and stimulate economic growth."

Meanwhile, Clinton signed two appropriations bills, one funding Congress and the other the White House, Treasury Department and Postal Service for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

Seven of the 13 appropriations bills for the new fiscal year remain to be enacted. One on Clinton's desk, funding the Defense Department, is expected to be vetoed.

The breakthrough on the temporary measure came during the Senate's first Sunday session in five years and only the 17th since the founding of the republic.

Walesa loses Polish presidential election

By FRANK BAJAK
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — After a stirring political comeback, onetime Solidarity firebrand Lech Walesa has been defeated by a telegenic ex-Communist in a presidential runoff that exposed lingering divisions in Polish society.

A top Walesa minister immediately quit, and more vowed to follow.

Aleksander Kwasniewski's 51.72 percent of the vote Sunday gave him at least a half-million more votes than incumbent Walesa, according to results compiled by the state news agency PAP from electoral commissions in all of Poland's 49 provinces.

Walesa had 48.28 percent, PAP reported this morning. Final official results were to be released at noon EST by the State Electoral Commission.

Walesa's popularity plummeted during his five-year term as Poles rejected the bull-headed style that served him well as a Solidarity union activist during the 1980s.

He fired three prime ministers, alienated potential allies and feuded constantly with the leftist-dominated parliament.

Kwasniewski promised to promote compromise. A former Communist sports minister, he attracted young voters and victims of free-market reforms with the slogan "Let's Choose The Future."

Though Poland's economy is growing at 5.5 percent annually, the transition from a centrally planned economy was costly and many Poles blamed Walesa.

Political analysts did not expect a Kwasniewski victory to turn back the clock on Poland's reform path, and financial analysts said they expected a continued bullish stock market and robust foreign investment.

However, Poland's chances for swift acceptance into NATO could be hurt with a former Communist as president.

Reluctant members would have a pretext for keeping the country at arm's length.

A Kwasniewski victory would also give his coalition, which has enjoyed a parliamentary majority since 1993, the potential to strongly influence Poland's new constitution. A draft is due by spring.

Aleksander Kwasniewski, accompanied by his wife Jolanta, waves to his supporters during an election party in Warsaw, Poland, Sunday night. According to last results, ex-Communist Kwasniewski won the presidential election runoff over incumbent Lech Walesa.

Embassy blast in Pakistan triggers call for help in Egypt

By IAN STEWART
Associated Press Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Shaken by a lethal car bomb that tore through Egypt's embassy in Pakistan, officials today issued a general call for help fighting terrorism.

"We are willing to take help from all quarters," Interior Minister Nasirullah Bazaar said in an interview today. "This is a deplorable crime — a crime against humanity."

On Sunday, a suicide-bomber rammed a truck packed with explosives into the Egyptian Embassy, killing the bomber and 16 others, wounding 59 and ripping an entire side off the embassy building.

The 17th victim, an Egyptian, died today, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported. That brought the number of Egyptians killed to five.

Three Islamic militant groups have claimed responsibility.

Egypt's Ambassador

Mohammed Noman Galal, who was unharmed, called the bombing "a ghastly act." And Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto sent her condolences to Egypt's president and vowed to "do everything possible to bring (the attackers) to justice."

The deadly explosion occurred four days after Egypt's No. 2 diplomat in Switzerland, Alaa el-Din Nazmi, was assassinated in Geneva. A previously unknown Islamic militant group, the International Justice Group, claimed responsibility for that murder.

In Cairo, Western news agencies received three claims of responsibility for the bombing. None could be independently verified.

The first was an anonymous caller claiming it for al-Gamaa al-Islamiya, blamed for most of the violence in a 3-year insurgency in Egypt. The second was an anonymous caller claiming it for al-Jihad, which was blamed for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's 1981 assassination.

Blizzard kills two U.S. students, injures four during Alpine ski trip

By THIERRY BONET
Associated Press Writer

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — It was supposed to be a weekend of fun — seven college friends on an Alpine ski trip near the Italian border. But a wrong turn, a blizzard and inadequate clothing turned it into calamity.

After a terrifying night stranded in the storm, two students perished and four others remained hospitalized Sunday in serious condition, suffering from hypothermia; their body temperatures had dropped to about 86 degrees. Two have frostbite.

The seven, all Americans and juniors at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, were studying in Luxembourg.

Brent VanHala, the only one to escape unharmed, hiked out into the snow seeking help after the blizzard stranded the group on a mountain near Tignes, on the France-Italy border.

"It was after I left that they died," VanHala, 21, said Sunday from his hotel in Tignes.

The group was ill-equipped for the trip up the 8,000-foot Grande-Motte mountain, wearing jeans and sweaters instead of ski suits, the ski slope manager said. After they strayed from the marked trail, a blizzard hit, forcing them to spend the night in the shelter of some over-hanging rocks.

The next morning at dawn,

I just kept thinking: 'Am I going to make it?' But I put in my mind: 'You are going to make it.'

Julie Chamberlain

VanHala, of North Canton, Ohio, spotted the ski lift line in the distance and trekked down the slope for help. Rescuers rushed to the mountain by helicopter.

By the time they arrived, Rebecca Andrew, 20, of Bath, Ohio, and Christopher Egger-ton, 21, of Mansfield, Ohio, had frozen to death.

The students went undetected because they had left the trail, said Roger Bouzon, assistant manager of the Tignes ski slope.

He also said the group left its equipment 300 yards from the edge of the trail and hiked 500 yards farther to spend the night.

"It was a wrong turn by us. There was no fault on the part of the operators," VanHala said. He refused to comment any further.

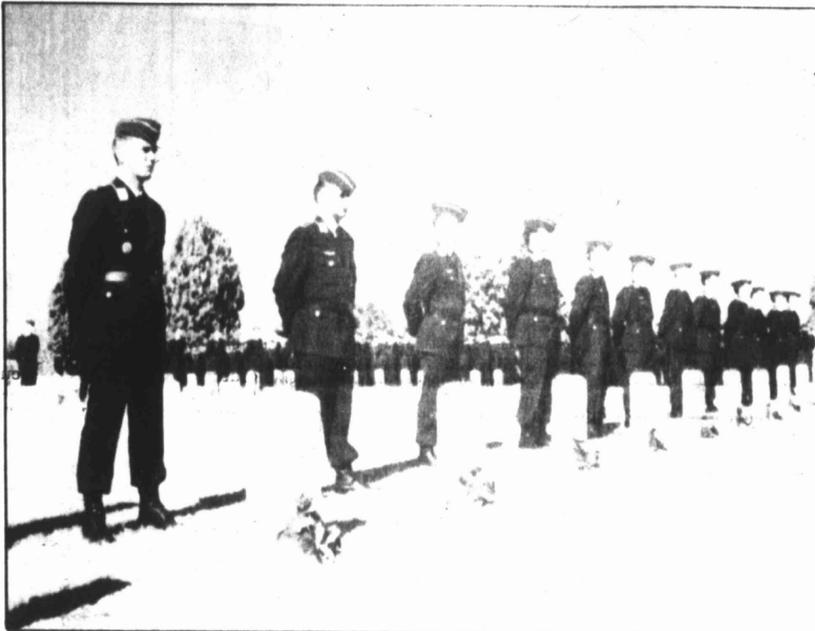

The four injured were recovering in three French hospitals Sunday.

Julie Chamberlain, 20, of Cincinnati, was hospitalized in Grenoble. Elisabeth Carey, 20, of Fairview Park, Ohio, was in nearby Moutiers. Christopher King, 20, of Naperville, Ill., and Jon Poploskie, 20, of Troy, Mich., were in the Bourg St-Maurice clinic.

"I just kept thinking: 'Am I going to make it?'" Chamberlain, 20, told The Cincinnati Enquirer.

"But I put in my mind: 'You are going to make it.'"

Deadline nears to get into Christmas spirit

The deadline to get into the Christmas spirit is nearing. In fact, it is Wednesday.

Even though it is still November, it is time to get the mind on what most people consider the best time of the year with "chestnuts roasting on an open fire," someone clambering around on your roof and Rudolf and all the other reindeer bringing joy to all the boys and girls.

There is still time to sign up to participate in the Big Spring Herald's Christmas Parade and the Christmas Tree Forest. The deadline is Wednesday to enter both of these events which will be conducted in conjunction with the Trail of Lights.

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, we have much to be thankful for and to celebrate.

So, get out your celebrating spirit and sign up. It will help to get the spirit flowing for the Holiday season.

Suing fever hits America

It's not helping the profession when lawyers are allowed to advertise that they will sue anybody for anything for a contingency fee.

But dues paying Americans are learning to snicker over things that used to make us fighting mad.

A whole new generation is growing up assuming a lawsuit is a shortcut to big money.

A teen-ager in Nashua, N.H., Christopher Conley, playing basketball, jumped high to try to slam-dunk the ball ... and lost two teeth when they caught in the basketball net.

He sued the manufacturer of the net and got a settlement of $50,000.

From his jail cell in Oklahoma City, inmate William Warren sued the city, demanding his right to wear pink nylon bikini underwear.

He said that prison underwear made of white cotton constituted "cruel and unusual punishment."

Then there is the Notre Dame student who had FIGHTING IRISH tattooed on his upper arm and is suing the tattoo parlor for misspelling "FIGHTING."

A California woman sued for damages when her silicone breast implant melted.

The court awarded her $6 million. She got $1.8 million. Her lawyers got $4.2 million.

There is a trial lawyer in Houston who made $90 million last year.

Another made $40 million. Pedro Duran of Pensacola, Fla., got drunk and passed out on the CSX railroad tracks. And after a train came by and cut off his arm, he sued the railroad.

And he was awarded $600,000. A man and wife in Minneapolis stopped off at the King of Clubs bar and had more than a few drinks.

On the way home, they got involved in a fight that escalated until, she says, he hit her. She is suing the bartender.

Warren Smith of Roanoke, Va., figured out a way to beat the state lottery. He would go to a fortune teller — a palm reader named Lola Rose Miller — and she would tell him the numbers to play.

And she did. And he is suing her because she gave him "the wrong numbers."

He wants $3 million. Every suing person who is awarded cash is likely to inspire a thousand imitators.

It appears such an easy way to instant riches. At the Fort Kent Golf Club in Maine, golfer Jeannine Pelletier shanked her shot out of bounds.

The ball hit railroad rails alongside the course. And bounced back and struck her in the face.

She sued the golf club and got $40,000. California prison inmates are suing the state at your expense. One — because he said jailhouse chili was too hot — cost you thousands of dollars.

Another sued because his dessert cookie was broken. Another sued because he thought prison loudspeakers were broadcasting his private thoughts.

Mostly frivolous lawsuits filed by prison inmates just in California cost taxpayers $25 million last year.

Two bills are moving through Congress intended to make prisoners pay for their lawyers.

OUT FRONT

Johnny Hobbs checks an air shaft leading to an abandoned underground missile silo on his property near Winters, Texas, Oct. 10. Hobbs bought the missile silo about 15 years ago with the idea of making his home underground.

A Silo Without A View

Winters man tries nuclear missile silo as a home

By RICK SMITH

San Angelo Standard-Times

WINTERS, Texas — Johnny Hobbs' $13 million home had everything: plenty of room, a constant 72-degree temperature, sound-proofing, indoor swimming pool, the ability to withstand any disaster save for a direct hit by a nuclear bomb.

It had everything, that is, except a view.

"No windows down here," Hobbs said, leading the way down several sets of stairs into an abandoned nuclear missile silo near Winters.

Hobbs bought the missile silo about 15 years ago with the idea of making his home under the ground.

"It's good and solid. Cool in the summer and warm in the winter," Hobbs said, shouldering open one of four enormous blast doors that the Air Force used to protect the silo's intercontinental ballistic missile.

"But I got to be where I can see the sunshine."

For three months, Hobbs, his wife and three children lived in a 40-foot-diameter round underground room that the silo's military crew once used for living quarters.

"It gets to you, not being able to look out," Hobbs said, thumping one of the shelter's 12-foot-thick concrete walls.

After three months, the family moved up and out, into a ranch-style brick home that Hobbs built just above the former missile site. Now, the silo's above-ground, bunker-like entrance butts up against his home. Open a living room door, and stairs lead down into the Texas-size basement.

The silo was one of 12 Atlas missile sites that ringed Abilene's Dyess Air Force Base during the height of the Cold War. Then, in November 1964, barely two years after they became operational, all 12 were declared obsolete. They were disbanded and replaced by newer, deadlier weapons situated elsewhere.

Government contractors stripped the silo's equipment, and the empty hull remained, an inviting target for a generation of adventure-seeking vandals.

Hobbs learned about the missile silos almost 20 years ago, and immediately wanted one.

"It sounded like a good place to live," he said. He contacted an Abilene real estate company and they found him an available missile site, complete with a two-story, doughnut-shaped crew quarters and command center, escape hatch, assorted passageways and tunnels and a 180-foot-deep, 50-foot-diameter shaft that once contained a nuclear-tipped missile.

Over the years Hobbs put his stamp on the underground "fixer-upper," building railings for the stairs, reconnecting the electric lights and even installing a wood-burning stove in the living quarters.

But the silo still bears a military-issue look: forbidding gray metal flooring; bare concrete walls with stenciled warnings that crew members must "ensure blast doors are full closed."

"What do you do with something like that?"

Even after 15 years of missile silo ownership, Hobbs still isn't quite sure what to do with his government surplus bargain.

Other silo owners have used theirs for everything from garbage dumps to storage rooms, he said.

Hobbs' children, when they were younger and lived at home, used the underground world for a playground, holding dances, parties and Halloween haunted houses in the passageways, rooms and tunnels.

Hobbs and his wife raise birds, and he said he plans to build aviaries for the birds in the underground rooms.

One thing he doesn't plan to do is offer guided tours.

Over the years, curious visitors have "pestered me to death," he said, wanting to see the silo.

Now, Hobbs has declared it off-limits to outsiders.

But neighbors have an open invitation to seek refuge in the shelter in the spring, when fierce storms rake across West Texas.

"We go down there four or five times a year in bad weather," he said. "You could have a tornado up above and not even hear it down there."

The irony of owning an empty, $13 million basement isn't lost on Hobbs.

"It cost $13 million just for the concrete, and it was obsolete before it was finished," he said, climbing up the steps, into the sun.

"But it makes a pretty good storm cellar."

But I got to be where I can see the sunshine.

Johnny Hobbs

And Hobbs left the site's reason for being — the 180-foot-deep silo — untouched.

"I don't even like to go back here," he said, shining a flashlight down a pitch-black tunnel that leads to the silo.

"Spooky, ain't it?" Hobbs asked, his voice endlessly echoing. He pointed a flashlight beam into the cavernous hole, which has a 60-foot-deep pool of water at its bottom.

Woman, shot in legs, wants to return home to son

HOUSTON (AP) — Ana Prieto Canela, her legs shot off in a domestic dispute, now looks forward only to the day she can return to her native Honduras.

The 24-year-old woman sits in a wheelchair in an apartment near the Texas Medical Center, where she undergoes physical therapy to prepare her for prostheses she will get in the next two months.

Although her husband's trial for the shooting begins next month, her thoughts are only of her 3-year-old son Julio, hospitalized with bronchitis in Honduras.

"I just want to get well enough and learn to walk again so I can go home to see him," she said.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has granted Canela "extended voluntary departure," allowing her six months to recuperate and return to her country.

Houston area residents, touched by her plight, have donated $30,000.

Canela said she would try to repay the donations by helping others when she returns to Honduras, which she left for a better life in the United States.

Canela and her husband, Julio Bustillo, spent 22 days walking, hitchhiking and jumping a train to get to Houston.

Never did she imagine the journey would end in a nightmare.

Canela said Bustillo told her she could not go to work because his friends teased him for having a wife that worked when he did not. On Sept. 28, as an argument escalated, her husband went to a closet, grabbed a shotgun and shot her in the leg.

Supporters of 13-year-old killer hold vigil for her

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — About 200 supporters of a 13-year-old girl incarcerated for murdering two young children lit candles, prayed and burned incense Sunday night outside the Bexar County Juvenile Detention Center.

The vigil was organized by defenders and supporters Victoria Dalton. Some people have expressed outrage over her 14-year prison sentence, terming it too harsh for a teen-ager from a dysfunctional home.

Inside the facility, Victoria is serving the prison term in connection with the deaths of 6-month-old Timothy Gutierrez and his 2-year-old sister, Renee Alicia. The children died Jan. 6 while they were in Victoria's care.

"We would be remiss if we did not support this young victim," said Jose Gallegos, a former probation officer who organized the prayer service. "There were three victims that night. We feel some of the adults should be held accountable."

"We're not here just for her," said Frances Carnot. "We're also here for all the other children who might be incarcerated for an injustice."

Under the sentence she received, Victoria will remain in custody of the Texas Youth Commission until she is 18. At that time, she will return to court, where a judge will decide whether she should be released, returned to TYC until she is 21, or transferred to an adult prison to serve the remainder of her sentence.

Whether Victoria was aware of the gathering was unknown. But members of her family appreciated the support.

"Victoria, if she could see us now, she would be overwhelmed," her uncle, Timothy Dalton, told the crowd. "This is not over yet. Remember that."

WATERLOGGED

Residents of Raymondville carry groceries to nearby family members Sunday afternoon. The town was still under water after heavy rains flooded the city Friday. Water was receding slowly from the downtown section, but some northern neighborhoods remained under water.

Man arrested in crime spree flees hospital

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man arrested in a crime spree involving a carjacking, kidnapping, rape and robbery has escaped after authorities took him to a hospital for treatment of a broken hand, police say.

Officers said Roland Valle, 18, was arrested early Sunday on a warrant charging him with aggravated sexual assault and kidnapping of two women.

Authorities said they could not handcuff Valle because of the broken hand he apparently suffered before he was arrested. Police took Valle to University Hospital Sunday for treatment of his hand. Officers said he ran out of a treatment room and fled from the hospital. Officers searched the hospital area for two hours, but then called off the search.

Marine first in more than 50 years to lie in state at Alamo

The body of World War II Medal of Honor recipient William J. Bordelon lies in state in the Alamo Chapel in San Antonio, as U.S. Marine Corps Honor Guard Sgt. Freddie Palacios stands guard and takes part in the ceremony.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The city's first native-born Medal of Honor recipient will be reburied today after his body was exhumed from a Honolulu cemetery at the request of his family.

Staff Sgt. William James Bordelon was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for actions that cost him his life on Nov. 20, 1943, during the invasion of Tarawa.

Bordelon is only the fifth person ever to lie in state in the Alamo, the Daughters of the Republic of Texas said Sunday.

The Marine Corps Reserve's 4th Reconnaissance Battalion was providing the honor guard for the ceremony. Pictures of Bordelon and other memorabilia will be on display inside the chapel.

"It is quite a thrill to see a congressional medal," said Dorothy Black, a DRT member and Alamo chapel hostess. "It is in the case, along with a certificate from President Roosevelt, and a purple heart, its certificate and a photo of the USS Bordelon."

She said family members, friends and dignitaries will be admitted first to the shrine in downtown San Antonio. The large doors will be closed to allow family members some private time.

The public then will be allowed to file into the chapel to view Bordelon's flag-draped casket, flanked by two Marine honor guards.

"We have a beautiful wood pedestal for the casket at the back of the shrine," said Mrs. Black.

The last person to lie in state at the Alamo was Clara Driscoll in 1945. She is the DRT member who is credited for her efforts in preserving the shrine.

We believe bringing his body home is good for San Antonio, and we're delighted to be a part of this celebration.

Richard Tietz

Richard Tietz, the Alamo's director, said the DRT, which operates the Alamo, is happy to have the city's first native-born Medal of Honor recipient lie in state in the shrine that commemorates Texas' first war heroes.

Bordelon, single-handedly destroyed four Japanese machine gun positions, ignoring several serious arm and facial wounds, and again risked his own life to rescue two Marine buddies from certain death.

"We believe bringing his body home is good for San Antonio, and we're delighted to be a part of this celebration," he said.

The Rev. George Montague of St. Mary's University, the Rev. Bill Davis of St. Anthony's Catholic High School and other priests will celebrate a funeral Mass today for Bordelon in Mission San Jose, where he served as an altar boy during his childhood.

Montague's older brother, Charles, was killed on Tarawa on the same day Bordelon died, along with his best friend, Gene Seng Jr. The Mass will be 52 years to the day after Bordelon was killed.

The funeral procession will travel to Veterans Memorial Plaza in front of Municipal Auditorium after the Mass for a short ceremony announcing plans to raise funds to build a memorial to Bordelon and San Antonio's other Medal of Honor recipients who were killed in World War II.

The body will be reburied at noon near an oak tree near the Circle of the Flags in Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery.

Waco man to judge marijuana competition

WACO (AP) — John Wilson didn't have to work out, eat healthy or even give up smoking to train for this competition.

In fact, smoking was part of his training for the Cannabis Cup in Amsterdam, Netherlands, billed as the "world's cup of marijuana smoking."

As a judge in the Cannabis Cup, Wilson will smoke marijuana submitted by different growers.

The "hemp expo," sponsored by "High Times" magazine, begins Wednesday and ends three days later. "You pay $100 and are given several types of marijuana," Wilson told the Waco Tribune-Herald. "You smoke it and rate it on taste, smoothness, quality, potency. These guys have spent years crossbreeding into hybrids. They're producing some of the most potent marijuana anyone's ever seen."

Wilson openly admits to marijuana use, which he says is the only way to effectively control his mania and depression.

"It's not harmless. I don't advocate the use of marijuana. If something else were legal, I would use it," Wilson said. "I've never found anything that would make it go away at a level I could function. The other drugs they've given me have been like chemical lobotomies — thiorazine and the heavy-duty anti-psychotic drugs."

Wilson must obtain what he believes is a lifesaving medicine through illegal means. The price is high: $50 to $100 an ounce, Wilson said.

Three charged with killing family

By BRIAN BERGSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

ADDISON, Ill. (AP) — When drug dealers overran Deborah Evans' neighborhood in the Chicago suburb of Hanover Park last year, she feared for her family's safety and moved her three children here. Friends said Evans, 28, dreamed of getting off welfare and giving her children a better life. She died before she got the chance.

Three suspects were charged Sunday with stabbing Evans, shooting her in the head and removing a live, full-term fetus from her womb. They also were charged with stabbing to death Evans' 10-year-old daughter, Samantha, and her 8-year-old son, Joshua.

The newborn, named Elijah by relatives, was found alive with one of the suspects on Friday and was in good health at a hospital.

Evans' 17-month-old son, Jordan, was found unharmed and shaking in a bedroom on Friday. Police believe the slayings happened sometime between 7:30 p.m. Thursday and 3 a.m. Friday.

Jordan's father, Levern Ward, 24, of Wheaton; Ward's cousin, Jacqueline Annette Williams, 28; and her boyfriend, Fedell Caffey, 22, were all charged with three counts of murder and two counts of aggravated kidnapping.

FAA's gift to us: U.S. airport security relaxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airport security has been relaxed in time for the holiday travel season, after parking bans and car inspections were imposed last month because of concern over possible terrorist attacks.

Other security measures begun in August and intensified in October will continue, however, said Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Sandra Allen. Those include checking travelers' identification.

While the changes Sunday come just in time for the busy Thanksgiving and Christmas travel season, Allen insisted that did not influence federal officials' decision. She would not say what prompted the change.

"We are constantly monitoring the threat potential, and we came to the conclusion these modifications were warranted," she said.

When security was first tightened in early August, the Newsday newspaper reported the FBI had received information that two militant Muslim groups were planning a suicide attack on a New York airport.

On Oct. 1, security was tightened even more, to the highest levels since the Persian Gulf War, on the same day a group of militant Muslims were found guilty of terrorism in New York. A Clinton administration official said at the time that the alert was related to the terrorism convictions, the signing of a Mideast treaty, the pope's visit and the United Nations' 50th anniversary celebration.

At Dallas-Fort Worth Airport on Sunday, officials reopened about 1,400 one-hour parking spaces near a terminal.

At Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport and at New York's airports, officials halted their inspections of large vehicles as they entered parking garages near terminals.

The extra security, although not as extensive as during the Gulf War, had caused delays at several airports.

"As we approach the peak holiday season ... we certainly were starting to experience the big backups associated with that type of traffic," Lt. Gordon Longton, the Minneapolis airport's security coordinator.

"I know that the airlines stated that they had a few delays, and that some of their customers did miss flights."

In Dallas, parking spaces had been roped off until a plastic laminate could be applied to glass panels on a nearby terminal, to prevent injuries if a bomb exploded in a vehicle parked in the front rows.

Officials said they still planned to finish the lamination.

Ten-year-old to be tried for murder

By WILLIAM C. CRUM
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Brandon Roses spent his autumn days like most 10-year-olds: learning geography and multiplication, rooting for his favorite baseball team, reading Hardy Boys books.

But Brandon is different from his peers: He's charged with murder.

On Tuesday, he faces a non-jury trial on charges he intentionally gunned down his younger sister.

Brandon was 9 when the shooting occurred — the second-youngest Oregon child to be charged with willful murder. The youngest child — a 6-year-old boy accused of shooting his infant brother in 1991 — was never tried.

Charolette, 5, the youngest of David and Laurel Roses' six children, was shot to death with the family hunting rifle on June 23.

Prosecutors said Brandon was home alone with Charolette and 6-year-old brother, Marshall, and got annoyed at his sister when she refused to go to her room.

He got his father's rifle, loaded it with cartridges from a footlocker in his older brothers' room, leveled the weapon at his sister and pulled the trigger, according to authorities who talked to Brandon and Marshall.

The parents said they did not know the two older boys had the ammunition, apparently obtained by earning shooting merit badges as Boy Scouts.

At a two-day hearing in August, some witnesses praised the Roses family for their devotion to family and church, while others condemned them as neglectful and Brandon as a defiant, confrontational child who threw rocks at his little brother.

After the hearing, Judge John Lowe placed Brandon in state custody, allowing him to live with his aunt and uncle, Becky and Jim Stone, while undergoing counseling and awaiting trial.

A court order forbids him to attend school or play with other children. He is tutored at home, and when he rides his bike, his aunt walks alongside him. On Sunday, his parents visit. It's the only day he's allowed to play with Marshall.

If found guilty, Brandon could be held in state custody until he reaches 21. He has not made any public comment on the shooting. His mother is sure he didn't mean to kill.

"A 9-year-old cannot even comprehend taking somebody's life on purpose," Laurel Roses said in August. "He feels like people don't think he's sorry."

Chiefs scrape by Oilers 20-13

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Scoff if you will at the notion that there are mystical forces at work, but do so at your own risk at Arrowhead Stadium.

"I'm starting to think there may be divine intervention helping us along," guard Dave Scott said Sunday night after Kansas City beat Houston 20-13 on Mark Collins' 34-yard fumble return with 15 seconds remaining.

Kansas City, off to a franchise-best 10-1 start, appeared to be headed for its fourth overtime game at home this season when former Chiefs back Todd McNair lost control of the ball, and with it the ballgame.

"I am not a fumbler. I am not a fumbler," McNair said.

"This team scratched and clawed the whole game. For that to happen in this game, it's just unbelievable. This is the toughest one of my career. I singlehandedly lost the game. I let everybody down."

The Chiefs, 3-0 in their overtime games at home, found themselves tied at 13 with 1:46 left after Houston quarterback Chris Chandler's touchdown pass to Chris Sanders on fourth-and-25 from the Kansas City 40.

"To be honest, we probably didn't deserve to win in regulation," Collins said. "But Doug Terry made a good hit, and I just picked up the ball and headed for the pylon."

The Chiefs were miserable on offense, gaining just 66 yards rushing and finishing with 181 yards in total offense.

But they turned three interceptions into points.

"They've got an outstanding defensive football team," Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer said. "We never could really get things going in a rhythm or a flow offensively. We had to continue to rely on the defense, and they came through. You'd never expect that our offense would get less than 200 yards."

The Chiefs could never put Houston away, and the Oilers (4-7) tied it on Chandler's pass to Sanders that seemed to hang in the air forever. Sanders caught it between Terry and Dale Carter as safety William White arrived a second late.

The touchdown came after Chandler had driven the Oilers to a first down at the Chiefs' 25, but consecutive penalties moved them back and seemingly out of the game as the clock ran down.

The Chiefs could not move after the score, and punted the ball back to Houston. After a pass to McNair netted nothing, the Oilers tried a draw and McNair broke free for 17 yards before White held him up and Terry knocked the ball loose.

Coahoma nabs Crossroads football titles

COAHOMA — It was Bulldog Saturday at the Crossroads Little Football League Super Bowl, as both Coahoma teams captured league titles to finish their seasons undefeated.

In the Division I final, Kelby Kemper scored from 50 yards out in the final minute to lead Bulldogs I to a 24-20 win over the Panthers.

Coahoma made it a clean sweep in the Division II title game as Bulldogs II whitewashed the Packers 19-0. Chase Ward scored two touchdowns and kicked an extra point, and Jason Shifflett added another touchdown for the victors.

Both Bulldog teams finished the season with perfect records.

In the consolation games Saturday, the Steers defeated the Lions 8-6 in Division I, while the Longhorns bombed the Cowboys 46-6 in Division II.

Enough already about hard times

Okay! Enough is enough about hard times hitting Valley Ranch and the Dallas Cowboys.

Putting the Oakland game aside, the Cowboys' loss to San Francisco was not a breaking defeat, but had the 49ers lost it would have been for them.

Writer and prognosticators must have left their stats at home when they went to Dallas for the Cowboys/49ers game.

Going into the game Dallas was 8-1 and San Francisco was 5-4. An 8-2 record hardly reflects hard times, but being 6-4 and in a three way battle for the division lead and down in the breaks has to be a little disheartening, especially for the defending Super Bowl champs.

If the 49ers thought getting to Super Bowl XXX would be easy, somebody lied to them.

Going into the Oakland game, all eyes were on Emmitt Smith because of the injuries to Troy Aikman and backup quarterback Wade Wilson.

Smith was leading the league in rushing (1,237 yards) and touchdowns with 17.

He has carried the ball more than 250 times, leads the NFL in total yards from scrimmage and has caught almost 50 passes.

Barring injury, which has hampered Smith the last two seasons, he could be on his way to 2,000 yards rushing and his fourth rushing title in five seasons.

Smith's assessment of the loss to the 49ers was right on the mark.

He said, "Throw the tape in the garbage and keep on moving."

Football fans will recognize the term "gut check" time, which is where the Cowboys are.

After facing the 49ers, the Cowboys went into Oakland yesterday, and Kansas City on Thanksgiving.

The Cowboys have a tough row to hoe down the stretch, but it seems to me that if they get the job done against the NFL's elite, they deserve the right to be in Super Bowl XXX.

Marvin Gaye made a song some years ago called "Ain't

Smith's assessment of the loss to the 49ers was right on the mark.

Nothing Like the Real Thing," which sums up how Smith sees the Cowboys.

All they have to do is line up and blow the other team off the ball. Dallas knows how to win, they know what it takes to win, and they know when it's time to win.

Almost didn't

AUSTIN (AP) — The ninth-ranked Texas Longhorns knew they had to contain Andre Davis, the Southwest Conference's leading rusher, to succeed against Texas Christian.

They didn't and it nearly cost them. In scratching out a 27-19 victory on Saturday, Texas (8-1-1, 5-0 Southwest Conference) had to overcome a stellar performance by Davis.

The senior from Longview had a career-high 35 carries for 141 yards and eight receptions for 51 yards in his first game back from a four-game suspension for alleged contact with an agent.

Whitaker retains title

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Pernell Whitaker retained his WBC welterweight title and Felix Trinidad kept his IBF crown Saturday night.

Whitaker stopped Jake Rodriguez at 2:45 of the sixth round and Trinidad knocked out Larry Barnes with six seconds left in the fourth.

Whitaker, a former lightweight, junior welterweight and junior middleweight champion, improved to 37-1-1 with his 16th knockout. Trinidad is 27-0 with 23 knockouts.

Australia's Jeff Fenech, a former bantamweight, super bantamweight and featherweight champion, ended a 2-year layoff by stopping Tialano Tovar in the eighth round.

Minnesota 43, New Orleans 24.
Tonight's game is San Francisco at Miami.
Steelers 49, Bengals 31
"I still consider myself a quarterback first," said Stewart, the rookie from Colorado. But he was catching the ball on Sunday, including the 71-yard score from Neil O'Donnell.
O'Donnell, 24 of 31 for 377 yards, had two TD passes and Bam Morris ran for three scores in the final 22 minutes for Pittsburgh (7-4), the leader in the AFC Central by three games.
"When we were up 31-13, you would think we'd be in decent shape," said coach Dave Shula of the Bengals (4-7). "We were making some plays on defense in the first half, but the defense couldn't come up with any more plays after that."
Falcons 31, Rams 6
Jeff George passed for 352 yards and four touchdowns, three to Terance Mathis, as the Falcons (7-4) handed St. Louis (6-5) its fourth loss in five games and took the lead in the NFC West pending San Francisco's game tonight. The two teams came into the game tied for the division lead.
Mathis had 10 catches for 134 yards.
Isaac Bruce of the Rams, seeking to tie the NFL record with his fourth straight 100-yard receiving game, came up 10 yards short by catching seven passes for 90 yards.
Buccaneers 17, Jaguars 16
Coughlin decided to go for the 2-point conversion and the win. He wound up with a 1-point loss.
Steve Beuerlein, replacing the injured Mark Brunell, threw a 12-yard TD pass to Pete Mitchell with 37 seconds left to cap a 96-yard drive and pull the Jaguars within 1. Jimmy Smith caught the conversion pass but was just out of the end zone.
"I made up my mind during the drive," Coughlin said of the

for a victory in overtime.
"Nobody wanted to win the game more than he (McNair) did," Fisher said. "We threw a screen pass thinking if we make something, we would call a draw and take a couple of shots at getting in range of a field goal. That was sound football as far as I am concerned."

Kansas City took a 10-0 lead on a 47-yard field goal by Lin Elliott and a 3-yard touchdown pass from Steve Bono to Webster Slaughter.
Houston scored on a 1-yard pass from Chandler to Sanders just before the half, and a 2-point conversion try failed leaving it 10-6.

decision to go for 2. "We had the momentum and had an opportunity to get the thing over. A lower throw, a little earlier, and we're there."

Errict Rhett rushed for 100 yards and two TDs for the Bucs (6-5), who need only one more win to avoid a 13th straight season of double-digit losses. Jacksonville is 3-8.
Lions 24, Bears 17
It looks like the Lions took owner William Clay Ford seriously. Even with Scott Mitchell injured, Detroit (5-6), which always wins when Wayne Fontes' job is in jeopardy, won for the second straight time since Ford told Fontes he'd be gone if he didn't make the play-offs.

Backup QB Don Majkowski threw a 11-yard TD pass to Herman Moore with 2:32 left for the win. Chicago (6-5) lost its third straight.
Panthers 27, Cardinals 7
Kerry Collins threw for 201 yards and two TDs as Carolina held Arizona to its lowest yardage total in 40 years. The Cards, whose only TD came on a 69-yard return of a blocked field goal by Aeneas Williams, netted just 96 yards.
In winning for the fifth time in six games, Carolina (5-6) continued to distance itself from the previous record for victories by a first-year NFL team. The 1961 Vikings won three games, a mark matched by the '66 Falcons and '67 Saints. Arizona (3-8) lost its third in a row.
Broncos 30, Chargers 27
Terrell Davis ran for 176 yards, including 53 on Denver's game-winning drive, and the Broncos won on Jason Elam's 32-yard field goal with 2 seconds left. Denver (6-5) had blown a 27-10 lead before the winning drive. Defending AFC champion San Diego, playing for the second straight week without running back Natrone Means, fell to 4-7.
With the game tied at 27, Denver got the ball at its own 33 with 3:43 left. Davis, who had all 30 Denver rushing attempts, got the call on six straight plays and his 9-yard run on third-and-4 set up Elam's game-winner.

Packers 31, Browns 20
The way the Browns are playing, Baltimore might not want them. They lost their third straight as Brett Favre passed for three TDs and ran for another. The Packers (7-4) took over first place in the NFC Central.
The crowd, announced as 55,388, was subdued. Read one sign: "Go Green Bay. Beat Baltimore."

Bills 28, Jets 26
Jim Kelly threw for 316 yards, hitting Billy Brooks seven times for 103 yards and two touchdowns, and Buffalo held on to win when Thomas Smith broke up the Jets' 2-point conversion pass with no time left.
The Jets pulled within 2 points when Boomer Esiason hit Adrian Murrell with a 41-yard desperation pass in the end zone. The win kept the Bills (8-3) atop the AFC East. The Jets are 2-9.
Vikings 43, Saints 24
A day after turning 39, Warren Moon turned in one of the best performances of his 12-year NFL career with 338 yards and four touchdowns for Minnesota (6-5).
He led the Vikings on scoring drives all seven times he got the ball against a defense that had given up fewer than 20 points in each of the last four games.
Eagles 28, Giants 19
For the second time this year, Randall Cunningham polished off the New York Giants for Rodney Peete.
Just as he did five weeks ago when he last played, Cunningham finished for Peete, who hurt his hip. Fred Barnett caught two TD passes from Peete and Ricky Watters rushed for two scores for the Eagles (7-4).
The Giants (3-8) lost for the third straight time but finely got production from wide receiver Thomas Lewis, last year's top draft pick. He had seven catches for 126 yards and a touchdown after spending most of his first two seasons on the sidelines with injuries.
Colts 24, Patriots 10
Marshall Faulk ran for 96 yards, caught eight passes and scored once as he and Jim Harbaugh led the Colts (6-5), who broke a two-game losing streak. Curtis Martin, coming off two straight 100-yard games, ran for 48 yards and a TD.
Harbaugh was 20-of-26 for 232 yards and two TDs.
Seahawks 27, Redskins 20
Robert Blackmon intercepted passes by Gus Frerotte and Heath Shuler, and Chris Warren ran for 136 yards as the Seahawks beat Washington (3-8).

Steers fall to Merkel

MERKEL - Cold shooting in the second half proved to be the Big Spring Steers' downfall as they dropped a 63-57 decision to Merkel Friday.
Daniel Franks scored 28 points and Greg Wollenzien added 10 for the Steers (0-2).
"We had a one-point lead at halftime, but we went a little cold in the third quarter, and we had some turnovers. That was kind of the ball game," Big Spring coach Gary Tipton said.
The Steers return to action at home Tuesday vs. Lamesa. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Lady Hawks take two over weekend

The Howard College Lady Hawks improved to 9-0 with a pair of weekend victories at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Howard also had an easy time Saturday as they crushed Howard Payne's JV 66-31. Donelle Jones led the team with 14 points, while Summer Swoboda had 12 points and Westfall and Keelah Wilson had 10 apiece.
The No. 7-ranked Lady Hawks return to action Tuesday when they travel to Hobbs, N.M. to take on New Mexico Junior College. Game time is 7:30 p.m., Mountain time.

For troubled teens' parents, right now is the time to act

DEAR ABBY: I can no longer stand by and watch parents ignore their children's problems. If their children are physically sick, most parents take them to a doctor or hospital immediately. When a child is emotionally sick, parents often ignore the problem, hoping it will pass.

I have worked in the mental health field for the past five years, and I can't tell you how many times I've heard parents say, "It's not that bad yet." I CAN tell you, however, how many funerals I have attended for young people who should have been stopped in their self-destructive behavior.

Abby, this is what I would like to tell parents:

- 1. Know the signs and symptoms of drug/alcohol abuse in teens and the signs of a child who has been molested.
2. Do not delay; seek help immediately from your doctor, a school counselor, a drug and alcohol specialist, an employee-assistance plan at your place of work, or a therapist.
3. Don't be ashamed.
4. Join a support group.
5. Value your child's mental and emotional health.
I have seen parents delay treatment for drug use or severe depression because of other priorities such as vacation, the end of the school year, the start of football season. Please don't delay. Even honor roll students can suffer from depression or be dependent on drugs or alcohol.
As a society, we would like to ignore adolescent problems, but these teens are our future, and our future doesn't look too bright. - DEBBIE IN ORANGE, CALIF.

DEAR DEBBIE: Thank you for an important letter. And for parents who might not otherwise know:

SIGNS OF AN ADOLESCENT WHO IS PROBABLY USING DRUGS OR ALCOHOL:

- 1. DROP IN GRADES - a slow decline in the past year, or a sudden decrease.
2. OBVIOUS LOSS OF INITIATIVE.
3. SWITCHING FRIENDS - Are you suddenly seeing a different set of friends around the house? Do you object to his/her choice of friends, or is your child isolating him or herself?
4. EMOTIONAL HIGHS AND Lows - easily upset, emotional state changes rapidly, doesn't seem as happy and as outgoing as he/she used to be.
5. DEFIANCE OF RULES AND REGULATIONS - pushing limits, failing to do chores, and defiant behavior.
6. BECOMING MORE SECRETIVE - failing to disclose any (or very few) personal problems.
7. WITHDRAWING FROM FAMILY FUNCTIONS - meals, outings, church and holidays.
8. CHANGE IN PERSONAL HYGIENE - becoming sloppy, wearing the same clothes frequently, and failing to bathe daily.
9. FAILURE TO INFORM PARENTS OF SCHOOL ACTIVITIES - open houses, times to meet teachers, progress reports, suspensions and warnings.
10. MAKES EXCUSES FOR STAYING OUT LATE - not coming home on time or not coming home at all.
11. ISOLATING - spending an unusual amount of time in his/her room alone.
12. MONEY MISSING - from parents, brothers
