A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Jungle Fever hits regatta

When the canoe named Jungle Fever hits the water next week in Sheboygan, Wis., its crew of 10 hopes to break a couple of world records.

That is, if the canoe itself doesn't break in half. "Or thirds, or quarters," said team member Terry Van Akkeren said.

The 154-foot craft will take part in Monday's Great Cardboard Boat Regatta with the aim of setting records as the longest canoe and the longest cardboard boat.

Van Akkeren estimates that 500 to 600 hours have gone into building the canoe, using 75 sheets of 6-by-10-foot corrugated cardboard painted to keep water out and rowers afloat.

As far as what kind of paint, "that's a trade secret," Van Akkeren said. To beat the records, the craft must float and travel at least 300 feet.

The Guinness Book of World Records lists the world's longest canoe at 135 feet.

2 sentenced in lemonade heist

Two teen-agers learned that the price for robbing a child's lemonadestand is a lot steeper than the $6 they stole.

In separate hearings Tuesday in Hamilton, Ohio, a 16-year-old boy pleaded guilty to theft and a 17-year-old boy pleaded guilty to complicity to theft.

A magistrate fined them $200 each and suspended their driver's licenses for six months. The teens also are to pay back the $6, perform community service and pay court costs and the attorney fees of the 9-year-old victim's family.

Aaron Faughn was selling lemonade and Kool-Aid in front of his house in Liberty Township on June 10 when the teens asked him for change for a $10 bill. When Aaron took out the money he had earned that day, they grabbed it and drove away, police said.

County considering pay raises for employees

By RONN SMITH
Editor

Bailey County commissioners are considering giving $600-a-year raises to most county employees, including commissioners. There have been no such raises for the past two years.

Exceptions to the $600 amount include the sheriff ($2,000) and his chief deputy ($1,500), who were credited by commissioners with saving the county many thousands of dollars in overtime that was previously being incurred.

Other exceptions include the county's Extension agents ($300), whose salaries are only partly funded by the county.

No increases are scheduled for constables, EMTs, van drivers or fill-ins.

In discussing the raises, Commissioner "Butch" Vandiver of Muleshoe said, "I don't care whether we (commissioners) get a raise or not."

Commissioner Joey Kindle of Maple said, "I think we should be consistent."

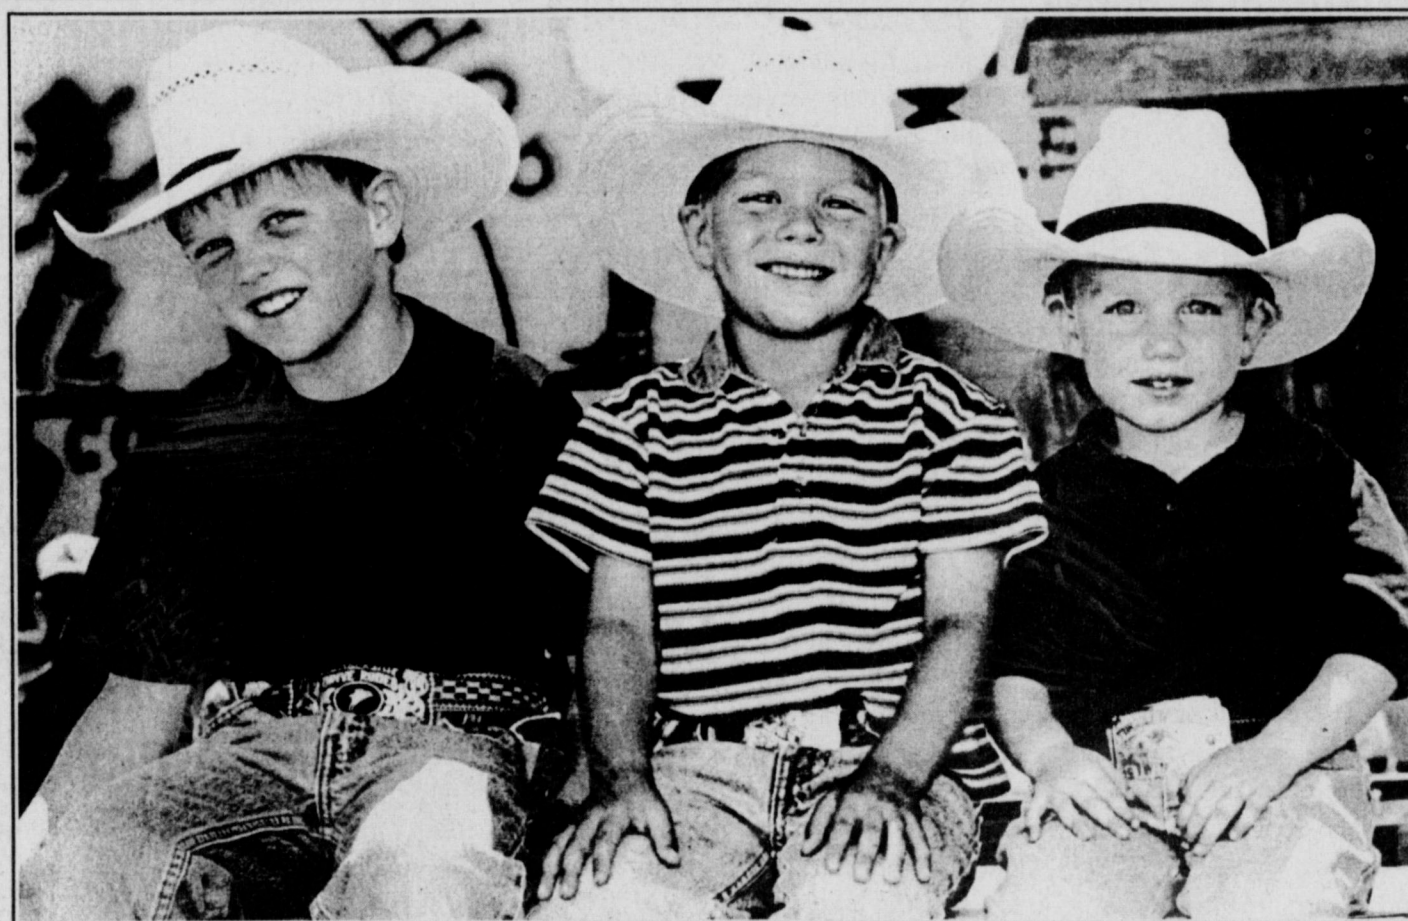

And Commissioner C.E. Grant of Muleshoe said that if commissioners' pay doesn't keep pace, people might decide the office isn't worth seeking.

Most other changes proposed for next year's budget are minor, except for $99,000 earmarked for a new ambulance and an undecided amount to buy or lease a new grader to be shared by precincts 3 and 4.

Redwine to serve at Amarillo state FFA convention

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

AMARILLO — Amarillo will serve as home away from home for more than 7,000 Texas FFA members and guests on July 6-9.

And during that time, a prominent role will be assigned to Brice Redwine of Lazbuddie, one of nine state vice presidents serving FFA.

The annual youth convention will have an expected $5 million impact on the Amarillo economy as kids and other guests visit local eateries, attractions and fill the city's accommodations.

The Texas FFA Convention allows students to be actively involved with the democratic principals of decision-making involved in the organization.

By voting on policy, high school students will decide first-hand how the FFA will operate.

The convention will feature motivational speakers, entertainment, awards recognition and the election of a new state FFA president.

Scholarships totaling more than $1 million will be presented during the convention as well.

"The state convention provides members an opportunity to gain recognition for their achievements as well as participate in leadership activities that can be applied in their local chapters during the next school year," said current state President Brandon Hill of Arlington.

"This year's theme, 'Above and Beyond,' is intended to challenge members to strive for their personal and chapter best and lead the FFA to new heights."

Hill leads the organization with nine vice presidents: Redwine, Koby Reed of Seagraves, Jimmy Birkhead of Rockdale, Trent McKnight of Throckmorton, Nathan Daniels of Wheeler, Jake Prince of Blanco, Jarrod Smith of Temple, Michael Taylor of Nacogdoches and Shay Bluntzer of Sandia.

There are more than 975 FFA chapters in Texas high schools offering agricultural science curriculum.

The Texas FFA Association has more than 57,400 active FFA members. The National FFA Organization, formally known as the Future Farmers of America, has more than 446,000 members across the United States, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

It is a non-profit educational organization dedicated to making a positive difference in student's lives by developing their potential for leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education.

"The FFA provides a laboratory in which students can apply leadership and employability skills learned in the classroom," said Dr. Ben Shaw, director of agriculture science and technology with the Texas Education Agency.

Combest introduces legislation to allow lump-sum payments

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

With American agricultural producers facing another year in crisis, U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, introduced legislation Thursday that would allow farmers to elect receiving all their Agricultural Marketing Transition payments at the beginning of the fiscal year rather than biannually.

"American farmers are facing another year of devastating crisis," Combest said. "While we prepare for the future by improving the farm safety net, we can't overlook the current problems facing the agricultural community. This bill will allow farmers the option of receiving their AMTA payments up front and will hopefully ease their financial burdens."

Combest's legislation, known as HR 2395, would allow farmers the option of all their

Cattle conference scheduled for Dallas

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

DALLAS — Cattle producers sometimes work against nature in their beef production systems.

Dr. Ron Gill, livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said this concern will be addressed in this year's Metroplex Cattlemen's Conference.

It will focus on the synergy that should exist in a ranching operation among forage production, cattle performance, health, marketing and cost control.

Scheduled for Sept. 24, at the Texas A&M Dallas Research and Extension Center in North Dallas, the conference begins at 8:30 a.m. and concludes at 3 p.m.

Registration and a trade show open at 7:45 a.m.

"We'll be presenting methods producers may find useful to redesign their forage production to complement their total operation," among other topics, Gill said.

Amarillo College plans course on violence

Amarillo College Criminal Justice Programs will present "School and Workplace Violence: Assessment, Response and Prevention" from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. July 26-27 at the Business and Industry Center, 1314 S. Polk St. in Amarillo.

Roger L. Depue, founder of The Academy Group Inc. and a retired Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, will teach professionals who deal with potentially volatile situations and "Also recent articles in national livestock publications encouraged producers to delay calving until May and June, or even July and August," he said.

"We need to consider climate and geography before making basic changes in operations. These recommendations come from midwestern or northern states. There, it has never made sense to calve cattle in periods of potential blizzards when a relatively cool summer exists for calving cows, but Texas conditions are not comparable."

L. R. Sprott, professor and Extension beef specialist, will discuss calving season for production efficiency in Texas and Oklahoma.

Gill will outline a sound immunization and parasite control program, again focusing on the high production efficiency that results when the entire operation is coordinated.

"Another key factor in a production system is marketing," Gill said.

emotionally upset individuals how best to deal with these circumstances.

Depue will instruct participants on existing problems, techniques for identifying individuals who may be considering violence, strategies for defusing potentially violent situations and more.

Although insurance will pay the greater part of the expense, the anticipated cost to Wrinkle and her family will be thousands of dollars.

Her treatment after the hospital stay will involve several weeks' stay at a hotel, which also will not be paid by insurance.

McMurry students make dean's list

Kendra Gail Benham and Jo Beth Gilleland, both of Muleshoe, have been named to the spring semester dean's list at McMurry University in Abilene.

Benham is a biochemistry major; Gilleland is a biology major. Students making the dean's list must have earned a grade-point average of at least 3.25 while taking 12 or more credit hours.

The deadline for items to appear in Around Muleshoe is 5 p.m. Monday for Thursday's edition and 5 p.m. Thursday for Sunday's edition. Items may be brought to the office at 304 W. Second, mailed to P.O. Box 449, called in to 272-4536 or faxed to 272-3567.

Joe Don Pogue, owner of the Sulphur Springs Livestock Market and co-founder of the Northeast Texas Beef Improvement Organization, will discuss what they are doing to enhance and capture the true value of cattle merchandise.

"They have shown that quality cattle and sound management can be rewarded through normal marketing channels," Gill said.

Forage production costs are among the greatest concerns of any cattle operation. Larry Redmon, professor and Extension forage specialist, will address the concept of stockpiling forages in the fall to reduce the need for feeding baled hay early in the winter.

"Hay requirements can be reduced by 25 percent to 30 percent through stockpiling forages," Gill said.

The final speaker will be Hugh Aljoe, Noble Foundation forage agronomist, continuing the theme of reduced hay requirements, lower costs and effective winter pasture.

Winter pastures could further reduce hay requirements by an additional 25 percent to 50 percent, according to Gill.

Three hours of continuing education units will be given for integrated pest-management training.

Registration is $15 if received before Sept. 17 and $20 at the door.

The fee includes a copy of the proceedings, refreshments at breaks and lunch.

More information is available by contacting Fred Burrell, Dallas County Extension agent, at (214) 904-3050 or Suzanne Williamson, Dallas County Extension Beef Committee, at (214) 361-7703.

Go ahead and plant veggies in spite of the heat

By RONN SMITH
Editor

Getting motivated to plant vegetables may be a tough assignment with the temperature hovering near 100, but this is the time to plan for fall crops — if you can hack it.

If you don't deal with the heat and humidity any better than I do, you might want to consider starting the seeds indoors.

Aside from being easier on you, this is also much easier on the seedlings during their first two or three weeks, but you do have to remember to check on them every day once they sprout.

You're also taking a chance that you'll set them outside once they're off to a good start, and the heat could get worse by then!

As always, let me remind you that starting seeds indoors in soil is not likely to be worth the trouble because of the threat of damping off. I think you're well-advised to buy a little bag of sterilized potting soil so you don't have to contend with bacteria and other nasties.

The traditional day to plant our family's turnips was Aug. 1, and they pretty much "had" to be planted that day. Actually, any time from July 15 to Aug. 15 is a good time to plant them, but August planting cuts down on trying to keep tiny seedlings alive in the heat.

Turnips that mature in our cool fall weather can be so tender and sweet they make your mouth water. In fact, as I've written before, fresh turnips are one of our most under-rated foods.

At the turn of the century, when many people still believed tomatoes to be poisonous, it was the turnip that was the darling of American gardens. Seed catalogs featured up to 200 varieties of them, the way today's catalogs feature tomatoes.

Of course, back then refrigeration was a problem, and turnips keep remarkably well without it — and they can be left in the ground to be dug as needed.

Vitamin C deficiency was a problem in many diets, and a primary reason for growing turnips was their vitamin C. They're also a good source of dietary fiber, but I don't suppose anyone had heard about fiber a hundred years ago.

Little turnip plants are tougher than most, and they won't have to have protection from the sun, but a sheet of row cover will help preserve moisture so you won't have to water them so often.

Other vegetables with the same range of summer planting dates are Chinese cabbage, kale, kohlrabi (another under-rated vegetable — why aren't you growing kohlrabi?), parsley and sorrel.

Those last two could be real problems to sprout if the weather stays close to 100. Parsley, in particular, is a cool-weather lover — which is why it will do so well for you if you can get it started and through the remaining hot days.

There are some fall vegetables that can't wait for August planting, though.

Things that need to be planted by the end of July are carrots, snap beans, beets, the stuff called sprouting broccoli (actually broccoli raab), okra and New Zealand spinach, the hot-weather substitute for real spinach.

Now, if you've grown beets, you're probably wondering how you'd get those started in July heat. My advice is plant them in a partially shaded spot, like under a tree that isn't too dense.

Beets will do well here in the shade even if planted in the spring. Catalogs that say a certain plant requires full sun aren't always written for climates with sunshine like ours!

I know that beets don't have the hippest image, but more people are warming to them now that the different colors are being grown again.

If you act within the next week or 10 days, you can even get in a last crop of summer squash, watermelons, muskmelons, potatoes, cucumbers and sweet corn.

Happy planting!

We Owe a Debt to Those Who Paid the Price of Freedom

Until my family and I moved to Muleshoe fourteen years ago and I discovered what is by far the largest and best part of America, the "small town" part, I had never experienced Independence Day as it really ought to be experienced. Since that time, I've come to love July 4th as I've discovered that small town folks know how the holiday ought to be celebrated.

I don't know exactly what July pay back the debt of gratitude every citizen of this land owes.

It's a debt, you see, not just to a flag, a nation, a government. It's a debt to the men and women who put their lives and liberty on the line—ordinary people who showed extraordinary courage and uncommon unselfishness by willingly laying aside their own comfort and personal pleasure so that other ordinary people, like you and me, could be free.

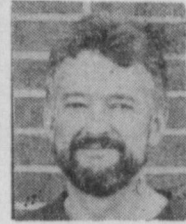

You don't have to belong to a particular political party to begin to pay that debt. You just need to realize that your freedom to belong to any party you choose, or to none at all, did not come cheaply.

You don't have to agree with the domestic or foreign policy of a particular administration of government to begin to pay back that debt. You just need to be thankful to live in a land where the voices of the people are heard—even if you sometimes wish they spoke with deeper wisdom.

You don't have to like everything that has gone on in this nation to begin to pay back the debt we all owe. You just need to love this nation.

You're free not to. That's the amazing thing about freedom. You're free not to acknowledge the gift, not to appreciate it, not to cherish it. You're free to be selfish and self-seeking, ignorant and arrogant, ungrateful and blind. And, at least as long as enough better people still love this land unselfishly, our nation will still be free. But you won't be. And the prison of your unhappiness will be one of your own making.

4th means to you. It's just a date, but all wrapped up in the date, along with mental images of hot dogs, ice cream, and fireworks, are deeper impressions of freedom and liberty—and sacrifice. Very real sacrifices made so that our nation might remain free.

Odd, isn't it, that freedom itself is never really free? It is, in fact, a very costly thing. The price was paid in literal blood, sweat, and tears. Many, like me, who have personally paid so little of the price of freedom but who share mightily in its blessings, tend to forget what a costly thing it is.

I hope we don't forget. As a Christian, my love for this nation pales beside my allegiance to Christ, but it is still true that a lifetime of love and devotion to America, this grand experiment in self-government, is not enough even to begin to

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Muleshoe Girl Scouts enjoyed their Day Camp held on Thursday and Friday evening from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Girl Scout Hut and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Scouts learned an outdoor flag ceremony, did numerous projects and crafts, and enjoyed refreshments.

The group of 31 gathered at the Scout Hut on Saturday morning and caravanned to the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge where they learned the fine art of cooking outdoors. The Brownies each prepared a foil dinner of meat and vegetables which they cooked on their fire. The Juniors prepared a pot meal on their fire and chopped vegetables to add to their meal on a bun. They also prepared cherry cobbler.

The Scouts learned that our refuge is the oldest national wildlife refuge in Texas. President Franklin Roosevelt established it by executive order on Oct. 24, 1935 as a winter haven for migratory birds. This was during the Depression and a Works Progress Administration (WPA) project employed young men to plant trees and construct buildings, dikes and roads. In 1982 other improvements were made, which included interpretive signs, wildlife and lake observation areas and a new headquarters which displays specimens of ducks, geese, sandhill cranes and an impressive golden eagle. The Scouts enjoyed the secluded campground and picnic area. Many Boy Scout Troops and other people have camped there over the years. Because of its superb prairie, Muleshoe is a Registered Natural Landmark: an outstanding example of the nation's natural heritage. Birds commonly seen here are quail, meadowlarks, sparrows, shrikes, owls and hawks. Sandhill cranes and ducks can be seen wintering here.

The refuge has an interesting prairie dog town as well as many other animals, such as jackrabbits, cottontail rabbits, kangaroo rats and coyotes.

Thousands of sandhill cranes visit the refuge annually with a record of 250,000 counted in 1981.

The Scouts returned to the Scout Hut at 2:30 to finish their badge work and earn their Day Camp badge. They enjoyed the cobbler which they had cooked at the refuge with huge helpings of ice cream. They played water games in the back yard of the Hut to cool off. The Girl Scouts decided that the Refuge needs a large covered area over the picnic area to provide shade.

Girl Scouts participating in the Day Camp were Brownies, Megann Mumau, Ashley Mumau, Sunny Snider, Jacie Anstead, Aimee Howard, Jessica Howard, Nicole Crandell, Brittany Crandell, Tabitha Orr and Jenna Whitworth, and Paopoe Unit, Callie Anstead.

Juniors, Amanda Heron, Brooke DeLaGarza, Marina Trevino, Creselda Trevino, Kayla Harp, and Crissie Reeves.

Camp Aides were Cadette Girl Scouts, Kay Lynn Coffman, Jenny Martin and Bonnie Martin. They were excellent role models for the younger girls and led many of the activities. Marquia Joyce also helped.

Day camp director was Brownie Troop Leader Cassie Crandell. Other troop leaders attending were Judy Coffman, Nelda Merriott, Sawnya Anstead, Sherrie Reeves and Gaylene Whitworth, along with Girl Scout mom Sylvia Kennemer.

Also visiting the wildlife refuge were Boy Scouts James Coffman, Jonathan Martin and Andrew Reeves.

The Girl Scouts agreed that they would make a return trip to the refuge in the fall when the sandhill cranes return.

Go for the fruits and vegetables

The average American eats 20 tons of food during a lifetime. Depending on your eating habits, that could mean tons of cookies, tons of hamburgers, or tons of potatoes and carrots!

Your decisions about what those 20 tons consist of affect your health and your family's as well.

Studies have shown that people who consume five servings of fruits and vegetables daily are half as likely to develop cancer of the digestive and respiratory tracts than are people who eat fewer than two servings a day. As a bonus, when you eat lots of fruits and vegetables you're less inclined to binge on high-sugar and high-fat snacks.

The National Cancer Institute recommends that we eat no fewer than five servings of fruits and vegetables per day. Most experts encourage you to aim higher and try going to seven to nine servings per day. A serving is one medium piece of fruit, one-half cup of fruit or vegetables, one cup of leafy salad greens, one-fourth cup of dried fruit, three-fourths cup of 100 percent juice, or one-half cup of cooked or canned dried peas or beans. Serving sizes for kids are smaller, but variety is just as important.

So how do we develop fruit and vegetable habits in our children? The most effective thing we can do is set a good example. When you're grocery shopping, splurge in the produce section instead of the bakery. Fresh fruits and vegetables are actually cheaper than cream-filled cupcakes. Don't be afraid to try unusual foods just because your mother never bought them. Jicama makes a nice crunchy snack, and kiwifruit is a tasty alternative to more traditional fruit. Try preparing fruits and vegetables in different ways. Add vegetables to soups and casseroles, and try sliced fruit in your green salad.

I try to associate fruits and vegetables with special events. For example, several years ago I made a big bowl of fruit salad for my family to munch on as we were watching the World Series. My kids loved it, and now fruit salad is a tradition for sports play-offs. I try not to use dessert to reward my kids for eating their vegetables, because doing so would subtly convey the message that vegetables aren't as good as sweets.

Even though it takes some extra effort to incorporate more fruits and vegetables into our diet, it's well worth it. So go for nine a day - for you, for your kids, for your future.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BERENICE---DAUGHTER OF KING HEROD!
 THE ELDEST DAUGHTER OF HEROD AGRIPPA SEEMS TO HAVE DONE HER PART IN KEEPING ALIVE THE TRADITION OF VILLAINY FOR WHICH THE HEROD LINE WAS FAMOUS OR "INFAMOUS"! SHE WAS FIRST MARRIED TO MARCUS, SON OF ALEXANDRA THE HEAD MAGISTRATE OF THE JEWS IN ALEXANDRIA. AFTER AN EARLY DEATH OF "POOR" MARCUS SHE THEN HURRIEDLY MARRIED HER FATHER'S OWN BROTHER, HEROD CHALCIS, WHO SOON AFTERWARDS, ALSO DIED! THENCE, SHE WENT TO LIVE WITH HER BROTHER AGRIPPA AND THE SCANDAL THAT AROSE FROM THIS RELATIONSHIP EVEN THE HIGH-BORN BERENICE COULD NOT OVERCOME! SHE THEN TRIED TO ALLAY IT BY YET ANOTHER MARRIAGE TO POLEMO, KING OF CILICIA. BUT SHE SOON BECAME TIRED OF HIM AND, DESERTING HIM, RETURNED TO HER BROTHER AGRIPPA. HER CLAIM TO RECOGNITION IN THE BIBLE, CAME WHEN AGRIPPA HEARD ST. PAUL'S DEFENSE (ACTS 25:23-26) WITH BERENICE AT HIS SIDE. SHE WOUND UP HER CAREER, FIRST BECOMING THE MISTRESS OF VESPASIAN, AND THEN HIS SON TITUS--WHO, WHEN HE BECAME ROMAN EMPEROR, DISCARDED HER!

A Capitol Fourth (1999)

Washington, DC, sizzles on the 4th of July when A Capitol Fourth (1999) heats up the city. A sparkling cast of stars celebrates American music, from the big band beat of Duke Ellington to popular patriotic tunes. The 90-minute special is broadcast live from the west lawn of the U.S. Capitol.

The final Independence Day celebration before the new millennium, A Capitol Fourth (1999) kicks off with the entire cast performing a spirited medley of patriotic songs representing each decade of the 20th century. Millions of television viewers nationwide, with an estimated 450,000 in attendance on the Mall in Washington, DC, enjoy the annual Capitol Fourth concert. The program is also heard live over National Public Radio and airs worldwide via the Armed Forces Radio and Television network.

A Capitol Fourth (1999) will be broadcast Sunday, July 4th at 8:00 p.m. on KENW-TV with a stereo simulcast on KENW/KMTH-FM.

The Search for Shangri-La

Did Shangri-La truly exist? Tibetans insist it did. The Search for Shangri-La, a one-hour program, follows traveler and writer Mark Shand and historian and Tibet expert Charles Allen on their quest for the ruins of the lost paradise.

For 10 years, Allen has researched the ancient kingdom of Shang-Shung, a society dominated by the Bon religion that inspired and influenced Buddhism. Twice before, he has tried and failed to enter the remote area that he believes gave rise to the legend of Shambhala — corrupted into Shangri-La. Shand has traveled extensively in Asia, but the area beyond the Himalayas that he and Allen propose to explore is virgin territory for him.

In their pursuit of the utopia that "only the pure of heart can hope to enter," Britons Shand and Allen, with a Nepalese crew led by Binod Rai, contend with time constraints, heavy rains, forbidding terrain, leeches, acute mountain sickness (AMS), brutal winds, yak shortages, missing transport trucks, Chinese politics, and "bad karma."

As they explain in The Search for Shangri-La, Tibet is a holy land revered by Hindus and Buddhists. En route to Mount Kailas, the dwelling place of the Hindu god Shiva, and a peak so sacred that Tibetans swear to kill anyone who sets foot on the summit, Shand and Allen meet two Hindu pilgrims who bathe in the frigid waters of Lake Mansarovar to be cleansed of their sins. To insure the success of their venture, Shand and Allen plan a pilgrimage around the holy mountain, an arduous 30-mile trek in the thin Himalayan air. One circuit, according to Buddhist tradition, wipes out the sins of one lifetime. To draw more spiritual power, some pilgrims, like the one they meet on the circuit, circumnavigate the mountain, prostrating themselves full-length on the stony ground.

The Search for Shangri-La airs Tuesday, July 6th at 9:00 p.m. It repeats Saturday, July 10th at 11:00 p.m.
