Viasana given 99 years for murder

By KELLIE JONES

Staff Writer

It look less than one hour for a jury to find Carman Viasana Jr. guilty of murdering Marcus Aguilar.

It then took the same jury only 15 minutes to sentence him to 99 years in prison.

The eight-man, four-woman jury heard testimony most of the day Tuesday before beginning deliberations around 3:25 p.m.

The question of a dying declaration came up when Big Spring Police Officer Jerry Penny testified. Penny was the first officer on the scene.

Penny testified when he stepped out of his vehicle in the 1100 block of Stanford he heard a man say "Help me, I'm dying." Penny found a man later identified as Aguilar lying on the front porch steps of the residence with a wound to his right neck area.

District Attorney Rick Hamby asked the officer if Aguilar made any reference to how he got the wounds. Defense Attorney Don Richard objected to the question because he felt it had never been established Aguilar made a dying declaration to Penny.

Richard questioned Penny about why he did not put in his report what Aguilar said as he got out of his car. The statement wasn't added until Penny filed a supplemental report four months later. Richard asked Penny if the reason he waited so long to put that in his report was because someone told him it wouldn't be seen as a dying declaration unless the victim knew he was #### dying.

Penny responded, "I told Det. (Jim) Rider about what Aguilar said but he never had the chance to look over the report until November." Penny said it was the night of the stabbing that he told Rider about what the victim had said.

The objection was then overruled by District Judge Robert Moore. Penny then said, "Aguilar told me it was Carman Please see GIVEN, page 2A

The Big Spring City Council unanimously approved a revised version of the original resolution to support the city's master plan.

But it didn't happen without heated discussion and several misunderstandings first.

Comprehensive Plan Committee Chairman Tommy Churchwell asked the council Tuesday night why they originally agreed to accept and support the $100,000 master plan on first reading of a resolution Dec. 12, and then changed their minds at a special called meeting Dec. 27. At that meeting, they agreed to support the plan with a significant change to have the resolution read: "To support and implement the plan where economically and administratively feasible."

Willingham latest candidate for Counts' seat

By CARLTON JOHNSON Staff Writer

The list of candidates for the District 70 State Representative seat now includes the name of Aspermont Republican Carl Willingham.

Willingham officially announced his candidacy at the Stonewall County Community Center last week as the filling deadline passed. His primary reason for running is because he says the voters in District 70 are not being adequately represented.

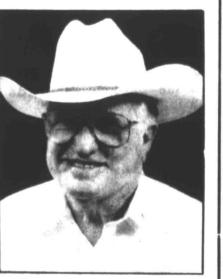

Willingham added his experience as rancher and small businessman makes his day to day Hospital Board, the state Cattle life more closely related to the majority of the citizens living in District 70.

"My current involvement in county government as a Stonewall County Commissionhas given me real insight into the changing tax valuation and increasing costs in our rural counties, and allows me to see first-hand the direct effect state government is having on our counties," Willingham said.

Willingham is also involved in many community efforts including having served as vice chairman of the Aspermont Advisory Board and as president of the Farm Bureau Board. He is currently serving as vice chairman of the Northwest Texas Rail Authority.

He is a charter member of the Republican Veterans of Texas having served in the U.S. Air Force, a member of the Aspermont Lions Club and serves on the board of directors for the Aspermont Chamber of Commerce.

Some of the other issues he cited for making the decision to run include local control of pub lic schools and spending and cutting waste.

COX

She was born on May 5, 1901, in Glasscock County, and married Jim Will Cox on Jan. 3, 1920, in Garden City. He preceded her in death on Jan. 8, 1984. Her parents were Benjamin Preston Lovelace and Bonnie Long Lovelace, a pioneer Big Spring family. She was a lifetime resident of Glasscock County. She and her late husband ranched and she had lived on the ranch for 71 years. Mrs. Cox was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, the Presbyterian Missionary Society and was a member and past president of the Midland China Guild.

Survivors include three daughters: Bonnie Bednar, Garden City, Isabel C. Herzog and Rusaline C. Edburg, both of San Angelo; two sons: Ben Cox, Brownwood, and M. Fern Cox, Big Spring; nine grandchildren; and several great-grandchildren.

She was also preceded in death by one son, Kenneth William Cox in 1942, her parents and one brother.

The family suggest memorials to: Cumberland Presbyterian Children's Home, P.O. Drawer G, Denton, Texas 76202 or the donor's favorite charity.

Arrangements under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

tained after being stabbed three times. Aguilar had been stabbed in the head, lower torso area and on the right side of the neck, which was the fatal wound. Pete Chavarria, son of Aguilar's common-law wife Lupe Chavarria, testified next. He said Aguilar had attempted to run over his wife with a van a few days before Aguilar was murdered.

Chavarria attempted to downplay how upset Viasana, Lupe Chavarria's brother, was when he found out about the injuries. Chavarria said everyone in the family was upset.

Hamby then read part of Chavarria's statement he made to police shortly after Aguilar had been killed during the early morning hours of July 4, 1995.

Chavarria told detectives his uncle (Carman) and his grandfather (Carman Viasana Sr.) came over to the house and everybody was upset. "Carman was pretty mad about what happened to my mom. I told him Marcos was staying at Sammy's on Lamar when he asked me. Everybody left at that time."

Chavarria then made a second statement to police eight minutes later because he wanted to add some additional information about his uncle.

"I remember my uncle said that's blanked-up about what happened to your mom. What can you do? I told him the police told me what to do. Carman then said 'I'm going to get Marcos, do you want to go?' I told him no, we needed to do it right. He then got pissed off and I Gristish, 96, of Juied to talk him out of doing Forsan, died anything but he left, Chavarri-on Tuesday, as statement read. Volunteers needed for meals program

The Mobile Meals Program, also known as Meals on Wheels, needs wolunteers to deliver these meals. If you can spare just one hour per week to deliver eight or 10 meals, we need you. These meals are prepared at the kitchen of Runnels Junior High School. About 85 to 90 meals are prepared, packaged and delivered within the city limits of Big Spring. We receive no state or federal financial funding. We are privately funded. Volunteers deliver these meals. Just one hour per week will get the job done. If you can deliver these meals with a smile, please call 267-4503 or 263 4016.

Richard also questioned the witness about past abuses Aguilar had inflicted on his mother. Chavarria testified his mother had been beaten by Aguilar before, had received bruises and even went to the hospital for treatment at one time.

During closing arguments, Richard told the jury to remember the testimony of defense witnesses who stated Viasana was busy during the time in question taking people to different places. He also reminded them that everyone in the family was mad, not just the defendant.

Hamby said the jury must see more than just the dying declaration made by Aguilar. "Everybody was mad but there was only one who was mad enough and had the nature to commit the murder and there he sits," Hamby said as he pointed to Viasana.

Hamby added Aguilar, his family and the community deserved justice. "It was a slow, painful death. He had to watch his life's blood ebb from his body," Hamby continued.

COLLEGE STATION (AP) -A woman who told police she was abducted and sexually assaulted at knifepoint has been arrested on a charge of making a false report to a peace officer.

Police say the false report caused police to use valuable investigation and they intend to throw the book at her.

"It was a waste of our time," said police spokesman Lt. Scott McCollum. "We could've been making more progress with real cases.'

The woman, who was not identified, faces a class B misdemeanor charge of making a false report to a peace officer and faces up to 100 days in jail and a fine of up to $2,000.

The system, which began in 1994, was meant to free up more expensive prison space by reclassifying some crimes as state jail felonies. The program included construction of regional jails and an emphasis on probation and rehabilitation for nonviolent offenders.

Police reports said they interviewed the woman for almost a week before she admitted that she invented her story of being seized and sexually assaulted in a College Station field.

Officers believe the woman, who is 22, made up the story because she had fought with her husband, was upset about it, and wanted to gain his sympathy.

The woman has been released from the Brazos County Jail after posting $300 bond.

College Station police also will after midnight on Dec. 24. Police said she drove to the College Station Police Department and reported it a week later.

The woman told officers that she had fought with her husband and he walked out of the house. She told investigators she was upset and walked across a field near their home to look for him.

Police said they were told that two men then got out of a parked car, forced her into the field and one sexually assaulted her while the other held a knife to her throat. She said she fled from the men and ran home.

McCollum said it is rare for someone to admit making a false report of a crime.

Soy food agreement investigated

HOUSTON (AP) - An investigation has been launched into the state prison system's contract with a Canadian company to promote soy-based foods in prison.

The inquiry began after authorities learned that Patrick H. Graham, arrested last week in Houston on charges of plotting to help a convicted murder escape had business cards identifying himself as a representative of the company, VitaPro Foods Inc., of Montreal.

Sources told the Houston Chronicle that Graham's alleged connection to VitaPro caught members of the Board of Criminal Justice by surprise. Board chairman Allan Polunsky ordered the investigation, the newspaper reported.

cuted. Lucas testified Tuesday after sitting through a day and a half of testimony from witnesses who described him as a chronic liar.

Lucas said he was working in Florida as a roofer the day the woman's body was found off Interstate 35 near Georgetown. He testified that he knew details of the slaying only because "it was in the (case) file."

ulated for months by overzealous investigators who wanted to clear their unsolved murders. Lucas had some access to their case files and made his confessions after being tipped off with leading questions, several witnesses said.

"Henry had the run of the jail in Georgetown," said Parker McCollough, who represented Lucas in his 1984 capital murder trial in San Angelo. "It was unprecedented the kind of freedom he had."

But Clayton Smith, a Texas Ranger on the investigation team, said he never saw anyone feed information to Lucas to clear a case. During the hours he was around, Smith said, Lucas was never left alone to peek at case files.

Defense attorney Danny Burns asked whether Smith believed that Lucas had committed all of the slayings initially attributed to him.

'No," the state's witness said. "I do not believe that Henry Lucas killed 200 or 600 or whatever he said he killed."

Lucas, who says he is 60, has received prison terms for 10 other slayings. Prison records list his age as 59.

Depositions entered into evidence Tuesday included statements from neighbors in Florida in 1979 who say they saw Lucas almost every day. Defense attorneys sought testimony about his work records and perennial presence to prove Lucas couldn't have gone to Texas to murder "Orange Socks.'

NATO's Implementation Force in Bosnia will eventually include about 60,000 troops from 20 countries. A look at the current status:

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Peace in Bosnia suffered yet another setback when an anti-tank rocket fired from a Serb suburb slammed into a Sarajevo streetcar, killing one woman and wounding 19.

Officials of the NATO-led force policing Bosnia blamed rebel Serbs for Tuesday's rushhour attack, the worst cease-fire violation since the Oct. 12 truce that led to last month's peace agreement.

In Washington, the White House announced that President Clinton would travel to Bosnia this weekend to visit U.S. troops, but Bosnian Foreign Minister Muhamed Sacirbey suggested he skip Sarajevo.

Sacirbey said his government would meet with Clinton in the northeastern city of Tuzla, headquarters for the U.S. troops in Bosnia.

Maj. Peter Bulloch, a spokesman for the NATO-led Implementation Force, or IFOR, confirmed that the lethal rocket was fired from a Serb-held position. NATO officials had originally identified the missile as a grenade.

"The firing came from within Grbavica," a Serb-held suburb near the city center, Bulloch said.

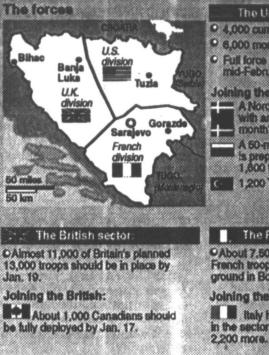

But the Bosnian Serb news agency SRNA issued an official denial, saying the Bosnian Serb Republic's authorities were rejecting "with indignation" those accusations.

French soldiers sealed off a high-rise in Grbavica on Tuesday and searched each floor for evidence of who fired on the streetcar, said Capt. Frederic Solano, an IFOR spokesman. During a second inspection this morning, they found a launch tube of the type used in Tuesday's attack.

At the same time, NATO troops and U.N. civilian police reenacted the attack, hauling the tram back to the spot where it was hit and having the driver explain what happened at the site.

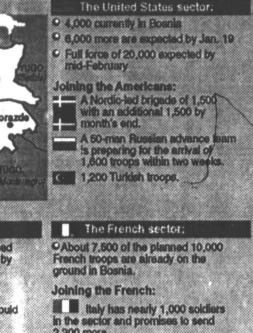

French troops also increased patrols along Sniper Alley, where the attack ofcurred.

Serb-held parts of Sarajevo fear reprisals from the Bosnian government.

Mutual hatred runs deep in Sarajevo, where rebel Serb gunners bombed and shelled the government-held part of the city for more than 3 years, killing thousands in the battered city that hosted the 1984 Winter Olympics.

Hence, Bosnian Serb army officers reportedly have a hard time restraining angry troopers who feel they have lost the battle for Sarajevo and all they have been fighting for. Those men are said to drink more alcohol than ever, and some would do anything out of rage and disillusionment. In addition, many Sarajevo Serbs have veritable arms depots back home, knowledgeable Serbs say.

Hundreds of Serb Sarajevo residents have already fled and thousands have packed their belongings preparing to flee.

Bosnian Vice President Ejup Ganic urged the NATO force to retaliate against what he said was a Serb attack calculated to halt the peace process.

WE WISH TO EXTEND OUR CONGRATUL

"We expect a swift and significant reaction by IFOR. This is a test for IFOR. Now is the time to react. This is also a test for the Dayton peace accord," Ganic told government television in Sarajevo.

The anti-tank rocket left a foot-wide gap in the roof of the street car as the tram was traveling on the main boulevard known as Sniper Alley because of the dozens of deaths caused by snipers during the war.

Reporters arriving on the scene saw a blanket covering a dead body lying in a pool of blood. The victim was initially reported to be a man, but Health Ministry officials said it was a 55-year-old woman, Mirsada Duric.

Streetcar driver Mehtida Dzevlan said the tram was hit near the Holiday Inn while she was driving from the center of the city to the west of Sarajevo.

Sporadic sniper fire from the Serb side of Sniper Alley was heard after the attack. Three French tanks and a dozen armored personnel contiers were deployed near the batel.

Chechen rebels release all hostages

KIZLYAR, Russia (AP) -Chechen rebels freed up to 3,000 people held hostage in a southern Russian hospital, but took 160 others with them today when they left in buses for their breakaway republic, officials said.

The rebels took the captives Tuesday in a deadly raid on the town of Kizlyar in neighboring Dagestan, another southern Russian republic. They demanded the withdrawal of all Russian troops from Chechnya in exchange for the hostages' freedom, and it was not clear why they dropped the demand.

Twenty-three people died in the raid, which showed Moscow that Chechen fighters are far from defeated and are capable of unleashing surprise terror attacks outside their war-ravaged republic.

In Moscow, the Russian government indicated it intended to take a tough line with the separatist rebels.

Zairbek Magomedov, duty officer at the Dagestani Interior Ministry, said about 3,000 hostages were freed this morning following talks between Dagestani officials and the rebels. Some of the hostages were suffering from shock, he said

About 250 rebels and 160 hostages left Kizlyar on buses at a.m., said a ministry 7 spokesman, Abdul Masayev. At least six Dagestani officials also boarded the buses, and Russian President Boris Yeltsin told journalists in Moscow that the officials had agreed to act as guarantors of safe passage.

The column of 11 buses and two trucks stopped about six miles from the border with Chechnya, apparently because a bridge they needed to cross had been blown up. The rebels demanded the Russian Interior Ministry allow them to use another route and guarantee safe passage through Chechnya, news reports said.

Russian helicopters flew over the column and shot at it, angering the rebels, the Interfax news agency reported.

The convoy was expected to head for Gudermes, Chechnya's second-largest town, where fierce fighting erupted last month, Masayev said.

Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin said the rebels would be punished but that no action would be taken that would endanger the hostages' lives.

"We aren't going to start frontal attacks, or act according to an eye-for-an-eye principle, since we feel convinced that death only brings death. But the bandits and the terrorists will be punished," Chernomyrdin said.

Chernomyrdin said Russia would never meet the separatists' longstanding demand for independence. "Chechnya is Russia," the prime minister said.

Russian troops in light tanks were guarding the entrances to Kizlyar, a town of 44,000 some 60 miles northeast of the Chechen capital Grozny. There was no sign of a large military buildup. Tuesday's raid was almost a Russia sent tens of thousands of troops into Chechnya in December 1994 to reclaim the small southern republic from secessionist leader Dzhokhar Dudayev. The war has killed up to 30,000 people, mainly civilians, and uprooted 600,000.

The overwhelming military might has given the Kremlin nominal control, but the Russians and their Chechen allies still face rebel attacks in and around the borders of Chechnya

The rebels in Kizlyar were led by 28-year-old Salman Raduyev, Dudayev's son-in-law.

"We can turn this city to hell and ashes," Raduyev, who sported a green Islamic war band around his forehead, threatened in an interview broadcast Tuesday evening by Russian TV.

Raduyev said he and his fighters encountered no interference as their bus and five trucks traveled to Kizlyar.

The 23 people reported killed in fighting Tuesday included 13 rebels, five police officers and five civilians. About 50 people were reported wounded.

The fighting appeared to be diversionary, allowing the rebels to seize hundreds of hostages and push them into the four-story hospital building. About 1,000 patients and medical personnel were inside.

In Moscow, officials stepped up security to prevent terrorist attacks and Kremlin leaders bitterly debated security breaches that allowed the Chechens to launch another surprise attack..

Kidnappers threaten to destroy dam

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) -A person claiming to represent the kidnappers of two European women threatened Tuesday to destroy a hydroelectric dam unless the government meets their demands.

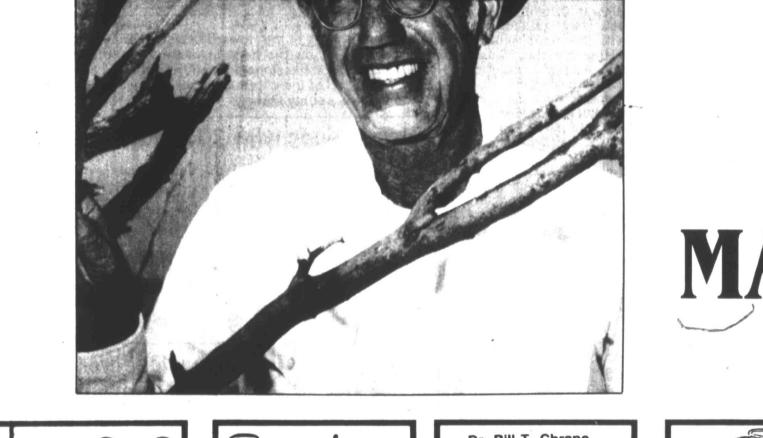

The women were seized Jan. 1 from a hotel in San Carlos, near the Nicaraguan border, by a group that identified itself as the Viviana Gallardo Commando

The kidnappers want more than $1 million in ransom as well as freedom for attackers who took over the Costa Rican Supreme Court in 1993.

A person identifying himself as one of the kidnappers called Channel 7 TV in San Jose on Tuesday and made the threat against the Arenal dam.

"We want the government to talk to us," said the speaker, who also threatened to blow up bridges and telephone and electric power lines.

Master plan needs support, economic and administrative he Big Spring City Council changed the wording on its resolution adopting the recently completed master plan to say "support and implement the plan where economically and administratively feasible."

A previous resolution, adopted on first reading but vetoed on second, support the master plan without such disclaimers. But, after heated discussion at Tuesday, the council went back to the original version of the resolution without any stipulations.

The problem with saying something will be supported when "economically and administratively feasible" is that often it is never economically or administratively feasible.

There will always be something more important, and history shows a lack of implementing master plans for this city.

The city has doubled up the responsibilities of Assistant City Manager Emma Bogard and City Engineer Ralph Truszkowski without filling their former positions. The position City Manager Gary Fuqua previously held has not been filled nor has the vacancy creOpinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

Since this is the case, when will it be administratively feasible to implement the plan?

It is worthwhile noting the council is trying to be fiscally responsible. According to the council, the money isn't in the budget to hire a coordinator.

However, a commitment has to be made to putting a plan coordinator in the budget.

Fugua told the council the department heads will meet to go over the plan to see what the city is already doing and what other items it can do. A report will be made to the council at its next meeting to set priorities.

Too much time and effort has gone into this plan by too many people to see it end up collecting dust on a shelf like the last master plan.

This master plan needs to be treated as an active guide for the future.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - A school bus driver with 39 students aboard drove Tuesday into the path of a semitrailer truck at a slippery intersection, killing himself and sending 37 children to hospitals.

said the bus driver, 60-year-old Richard Winters, may not have yielded to the truck or stopped for a stop sign.

The bus was turning onto a thoroughfare with a 45 mph speed limit. The truck may have been momentarily hidden behind a mirror, said Allen Lamers, vice president of The Lamers Bus Line, which owned the bus.

Lamers said the intersection is a "bad situation" and needs a stop light. "The accident probably could have been prevented if there had been control lights there," he said.

Some of the children were trapped in the school bus before being taken to hospitals. Two were admitted in serious condition, four in fair condition and

Following a public hearing on the issue Tuesday, the Big Spring City Council unanimously approved establishing the Big Spring High School cafeteria as the central location for the three entities involved.

Several residents had previously expressed concern about the difficulty in voting to City Secretary and Finance Director Tom Ferguson.

Ferguson looked into the possibility of centralized voting in future elections and presented the idea to the council in December.

"We have previously discussed the possibility of establishing a central voting location so that voters will have to go to only one place to vote in city, school is acceptable. Now the measure has been approved by the council, there will be an ordinance later in January to establish a central location and instructions for the city staff to file the request with the Justice Department.

Approval from the Justice Department will require a minimum of sixty days to be received by the city after it has filed the request.

Ferguson added, "We wanted it to be in a central part of town."

City officials met with representatives from the school district and college to determine where the location would be.

said, "Hopefully this will cut down on voter apathy."

Councilman Chuck Cawthon said this is something that was mentioned two years ago.

"I think this is the most positive thing the council has done in a long time," he said.

Roy Simmons, representing Citizens for Tax Reform, pointed out in the Nov. 7 election only 1,654 of 16,000 registered voters in Howard County cast ballots, just 10 percent of the registered voters.

"What does this indicate to us?" Simmons asked.

"As far as I'm concerned, this is one of the most important issues we've seen. If we don't get the people out to vote, we have only a small percentage of the voters representing our state and our county," he added.

Congress "to enact real, bipartisan welfare reform."

The veto was Clinton's 12th, and Congress was unlikely to override it. The final welfare bill, a melding of earlier House and Senate versions, cleared both chambers in December by margins smaller than the twothirds majorities needed to override a veto. Only one of Clinton's previous 11 vetoes has been overridden.

Clinton charged that the bill was designed to meet an arbitrary budget target rather than to achieve serious welfare reform.

Clinton objected specifically to cuts in foster care and adoption assistance, help for disabled children and legal immigrants, food stamps and the school lunch program.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - An Englishman was sentenced to 30 days in jail Tuesday for his part in a food fight that broke out aboard a plane when flight attendants refused to serve him and 17 countrymen any more liquor.

Michael Purcell, 25, of Olden Master, England, pleaded guilty to assaulting a flight attendant.

With time already served, he will be out Jan. 17.

Purcell was one of 18 Britons who disrupted a Northwest Airlines flight Dec. 18 from London to Minneapolis. Airline officials said the travelers wanted to keep on drinking and started throwing food, yelling and swearing.

Plan

"You changed the wording to the resolution," Churchwell said Tuesday. "What does this mean?"

Councilwoman Pat DeAnda said it was her understanding the resolution was reworded because of past plans being written and then sitting on the shelf.

Churchwell asked the council if anyone had read the entire plan.

Most of the council responded they had read much of the plan but not all of it.

Councilwoman Stephanie Horton said, "I feel like a lot of the plan is repetitious because we are implementing about half of the things in the plan already. We are moving in the right direction."

The major argument was about hiring a plan coordinator. Horton and Councilman Tom Guess don't see a need for hiring an outside person to implement the plan.

"As far as a coordinator, we need to see what we have in house. I don't think we were given a fair shake at this," Horton said.

Churchwell said the only problem he has is the council sked the 37-member committee to do a job, but nobody could say when the plan would be put into action.

er plan is good. Howard ge, the Big Spring Indepen-School District, Moore merce are behind the plan. Moore Board and the chamber are planning their activities around the plan. Everyone is behind the plan except the city of Big Spring," Churchwell added. Several council members also needed to implement the plan. Churchwell asked, "If you knew you didn't have the money for a coordinator, why did you spend the money on the plan? What I'm looking for is a commitment to implement the plan and not wait until we have money later."

DeAnda said going back and forth on an issue like this sends the wrong message to the citizens of Big Spring.

"I feel like we're telling the citizens we don't even trust ourselves," she said.

Mayor Tim Blackshear said he is in favor of the master plan, but the city can't just jump in and spend a lot of money that's not budgeted.

"I will see that every aspect of the plan is implemented as is and Assistant City Manager allowed by the budget. Right Emma Bogard are pulling douthe plan," Blackshear said.

Guess added he is of the opinion the city manager and city department heads can implenent the plan.

Approximately 57 percent to 58 percent of the plan falls on the shoulders of the city, with

Board and the Chamber of Com- other entities splitting the remainder.

> Guess said the city needs help from the other entities.

"The public wants it implemented with what funds are available. I'm looking for a compointed to the issue of money mitment from the council that you will implement the plan to the best of your ability. The plan is nothing more than 171 suggestions the professionals who wrote it said Big Spring should do," Churchwell said.

> City Manager Gary Fuqua said he and all city department heads will meet Friday to go over the master plan item by item to see what's being implemented and what can be implemented.

"We will bring this issue back to the council and have you set our priorities," Fuqua said.

As for hiring a coordinator, the city does have two director ositions open because City Engineer Ralph Truszkowski now, we're going to need at least ble duty, and the position held a part-time person to work on by Fuque before he became city manager has not been filled. A vacancy was also created by the retirement of former Assistant City Manager Tom Decell.

Budget talks break off; GOP considers bypassing Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — With budget talks broken off again, Republican congressional leaders say they may try to bypass the White House and pass vetoproof spending legislation with the help of conservative Democrats.

President Clinton and the Republicans declared an impasse Tuesday following another lengthy budget session at the White House that failed to resolve major differences over the future of Medicare and Medicaid spending and the size of a tax cut.

In the absence of a budget agreement, there's a possibility that many government offices once again will be forced to close on Jan. 27, when the latest temporary federal funding measure expires. There already have been two government shutdowns since the budget talks began in earnest in November, furloughing some federal workers for a record total of 27 days.

Lack of a quick breakthrough also increases the danger the parties will give up any hope of an agreement and let the voters decide next November, effectively paralyzing many federal programs in the coming year.

"I think it's the president's move," Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said fol-. "We stand discussions when the White House has new ideas to present.

Clinton, telling reporters a "final agreement is clearly within reach," maintained that the two sides were making progress in finding a formula for balancing the budget by 2002. He said talks would resume in a week, giving their staffs time to search for areas of compromise.

But Repúblicans were far less certain about the timing of renewed talks and held out as an option sidestepping the president and taking their latest proposals directly to the House and Senate floors.

"In my estimation, that may be the most productive way for us to move forward," House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, said.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said that with the backing of "Blue Dog" Democrats - conservatives who are promoting their own balanced budget plan - Republicans might have veto-proof majorities for their Medicare, ledicare and welfare plans.

House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., disputed that, saying his forces could sustain any presidential veto because the conservative Democrats opposed the large Republican tax cut proposals.

Gingrich said any attempt to push a new budget proposal hrough Congress would not til after Clinton delivers' his State of the Union address, scheduled for Jan. 23.

ability to become allergic is inherited. Children with one allergic parent have about twice the risk of developing food allergy than children without allergic parents. If both parents are allergic, a child is about four times more likely to develop food allergy than if neither parent is allergic. Many children with food allergies also show sensitivities to inhaled allergens such as dust, cat and pollen or may develop allergies later in life. In addition, adults who develop food allergies often have histories of respiratory allergies such as allergic nasal symptoms or asthma Symptoms of allergic reactions to foods vary, and reactions may be caused by virtually any food. However, most reactions are caused by a limited number of foods: milk, eggs, fish, shellfish, soy wheat, peanuts and free nuts such as walnuts. Allergic reactions usually begin within minutes to a few hours of eating the offending food. Very sensitive people may simply by touching or smelling the food produce allergic reactions.

The most common symptom of food allergies involve the gastrointestinal tract, beginning with swelling and itching of the lips, mouth and throat. When an offending food enters the stomach, nausea, vomiting, cramping and diarrhea may occur. Other symptoms may include itching, hives, eczema and redness of the skin.

Some more severe and even life-threatening reactions occur in some and include a rare but potentially fatal condition called anaphylaxis. This is a rare case when several different parts of the body experience food allergy reactions at the same time. Symptoms may progress rapidly and include: severe itching, swelling of the throat, hives, sweating, breathing difficulties, lowered blood pressure, unconsciousness and even death.

Since there may be different causes of food-related illness, it is important to consult a qualified health professional to determine whether the symptoms are related to food allergy or another medical disorder.

Health clubs switch from sales to service

By LINDA CASTRONE

Scripps Howard News Service

There was a time when health clubs survived by selling memberships - lots of them. Some clubs sold so many they couldn't possibly hold all the members. But with dropout rates as high as 80 percent, it didn't matter.

By the late 1980s, consumers had figured out that clubs were "employing more people in the sales office than they had out on the floor," as Gene Cisneros, owner of Kinetics Fitness Studio in Denver, puts it. And consumers left.

But today insiders say the health-club industry has learned its lesson.

It's these amenities, plus boredom with home exercising, that revived health clubs, says Dr. Rob Loeffler, director of the University of Colorado Sports Medicine Center.

"I've seen a swing (back to clubs) in the past five years," Loeffler says. In the late '70s, health clubs were social centers, he says, and the turnover was "horrendous." Then, starting in the mid-'80s, boomers got married and spent their fitness dollars on home equipment.

"Now I think what's happening is they're getting a little bored," Loeffler says. "They're not looking for dates anymore, but for motivation."

HOUSTON - There's hardly a weight loss plan Cathy Hamm hasn't tried. She has experimented with low-fat foods, fad diets, exercise, Weight Watchers and more.

None of them worked. But now, for the first time in years, she is shedding pounds with little effort.

Four months ago, Hamm, who is 5 feet, 4 inches tall, weighed 207 pounds. Now she is 55 pounds lighter and has faith that she'll be even slimmer before long.

Her latest weapon in the battle against obesity is diet pills. The demand for the drugs is high, despite numerous potential side effects, including short-term memory loss, dry mouth and depression.

been around," said G. Ken Goodrick, a psychologist at Baylor College of Medicine who specializes in weight loss.

Recent studies have shown that a combination of two drugs that have been available for 20 years can be used for years with few serious side effects. This finding has renewed interest in the pills in Houston and throughout the nation

Much of the surge in interest followed publication of a 1992 University of Rochester Medical School study. It found that by using a combination of drugs fenfluramine the (Pondimin) and phentermine (Ionamin), an overweight person can safely stay on medication for many years.

even though the medication has for no longer than 12 weeks. And many weight-loss experts say it may be safer to be fat than to take diet pills for long periods of time.

Weintraub study The involved 121 people, aged 18-60, who weighed 130-180 percent of their ideal body weight. The participants had no hypertension, diabetes or other chronic diseases.

Half the subjects were given the pills and more than 80 percent lost weight. As a group they lost an average of more than 30 pounds. Only 51 completed the study and six people who took the drugs for nearly four years never lost weight.

The drugs work together to control the urge to eat carbohydrates and to eat large quantities. Fenfluramine, which is less addictive than the amphetamines traditionally used as diet pills, increases the brain

Its partner, phentermine, boosts the brain's norepinephrine and causes the person to eat less

The phentermine works with the fenfluramine to reduce the depressed feelings, sleepiness and vomiting that have been associated with taking the latter drug.

Despite the side effects, Hamm is glad she started taking the diet pills.

'One of my big weaknesses are pastries, and I have no desire for pastries now," she said. Before she started taking the pills, she said, "If I smelled or saw food, I would salivate. It's not happening to me anymore.'

By CHERYL CHAPMAN The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - Every day across this great state, from the Big Thicket to the Hill Country, from the Caprock's shrug up from the prairie to Corpus Christi Bay, African-American, Anglo, Hispanic, Vietnamese, Lebanese, Czech, Jewish and hundreds of other voices are raised in a single question:

What's to eat? And maybe it's collards with rich fatback, and maybe it's Yorkshire pudding or menudo, Vietnamese skewered beef or stuffed eggplant supreme, kolaches or Passover apple kugel, but whatever it is, it means "home."

In "Cuisine, Texas: A Multiethnic Feast" (University of Texas Press, $29.95), Joanne Smith of Dallas pulls together scores of recipes, classics of the cultures bound by Texas borders. And whether they're from Mamaw, Abuela or Grandmere, they've all got one thing in common: They're good enough to be served over and over again, whenever the family draws its chairs up to the table. This isn't a pretty-face book with instructions for relatively few dishes tastefully scattered among glossy photos. It's a working manuscript full of recidivists that can be counted on to return.

In fact, the number and diversity of the foods pose a problem; particular recipes can be hard to relocate unless, for instance, you remember that Cappuccino Pie is with Desserts and Puddings instead of Pastries and Pies, and that the Polish stuffed cabbage is under Vegetables, though its beef-packed cabbage leaves and chunky tomato sauce make it main-meal hearty.

There are nifty variations of standards. The recipe for stuffed eggs with sardines, for instance, comes from a 1940s African-American cookbook. It's easy to think, "Sardines and eggs - eeeuuu." But with a little celery salt, a dash of lemon, crisp grated onion, chopped pimiento for color and sweetness, mayonnaise, Tabasco sauce, mustard, parsley and paprika - suddenly, va va voom! Not the usual deviled eggs at all.

There are tea sandwiches, all proper and British, and a great oily bruschetta made with fresh tomatoes, garlic and dried oregano. Just a few names/of the soups give an idea of the book's scope: Italian minestrone, Scottish lamb broth, Japanese miso soup with pork and veggies, Hungarian goulash with tiny dumplings, Greek avgolemono soup, Dutch pea soup, Czech beef soup with liver dumplings, Spanish lentil soup, French cream of mushroom soup, Mexican menudo and Chinese egg drop soup.

And, a real find: Texas Friendship Cake, complete with the coveted recipe for Brandied Fruit Starter.

The recipes are interrupted here and there with accounts of the many-cultured, multihued state's population, their homelands and the descendants who settle down to eat and rise up reborn in their heritage, riches that "Cuisine, Texas," spoons onto everybody's plate.

Mac software turns spoken Chinese into written form

By TOM ABATE

San Francisco Examiner

SAN FRANCISCO — Analysts who follow Apple Computer Inc. are talking about a new Macintosh software program that can turn spoken Mandarin into computerized Chinese characters.

"For the first time, you have an input system that an average person can actually use to put Chinese into a computer," said analyst Pieter Hartsook.

Tim Lau, vice president for Sing Tao, the Chinese daily headquartered in here, said the new Mac program could become popular in Taiwan, China, Singapore and other places where Chinese speakers predominate,

Introduced in Beijing in October, Apple's $299 Chinese

Dictation Kit was named best overall product at COMDEX Asia, the Pacific Rim's top computer show.

The program runs on Power Macintosh computers with 16bit sound, 8 megabytes of memory and a Chinese operating system (available for an additional $100). It includes a microphone.

Users must spend two hours reading selected passages to train the software to recognize their intonations. Once done, the software is supposed to recognize their spoken Mandarin and put the corresponding Chinese character on the Mac screen.

"Speech recognition is a hellacious problem," said Mary Eisenhart, editor of the computer magazine MicroTimes.

STANTON – The Stanton Buffaloes, at full strength for the first time in a month, wanted to make a statement in their District 6-2A opener.

Statement made.

The Buffs broke open a tight game with a barrage of secondquarter three-pointers and opened district play with a convincing 83-60 win over Winters Tuesday night at Stanton High what by the return to action of guard Nick Hull, who has missed the last month because of a broken hand. Although a cast limited Hull's contribution to the stat sheet (only two points), coach Doug Gordon said the psychological impact of having Hull back in the lineup was immeasurable.

We were playing very well this season until Nick broke his hand," Gordon said. "We were 9-2 with him in the lineup and 1-3 without him, so you can see we need him. But all the kids stepped it up. Nick's contribution can be debated, but just having him back in the gym seemed to spark the kids." No one was more sparked than forward Leo McCalister, who led all scorers with 20 points. Also in double figures for Stanton were Jason Hopper (17 points), Taylor Looney (12) and Jamie Rogers (10).

The game was a tight affair until the start of the second quarter. At that point, the Buffs

- tied 14-14 with Winters unleashed its three-point bombardment.

Rogers was first to tally from long range, then Hopper chimed in as well. McCalister followed with a conventional two-pointer before Hopper and Kyle Herm again dialed long distance. The rain of threepointers helped Stanton open up a 10-point lead, and the Buffs were off and running.

"The problem with (the threepointers) is that we do that all the time," Gordon said.

Not Tuesday, however. The Buffs ran their lead to 42-22 at the half, and the Blizzards never got closer than 20 after that

The win improved Stanton's overall record to 11-5, while Winters fell to 4-6. More importantly, it got the Buffs off to a hot start in 6-2A action.

"We needed to start it off right, and maybe send a mes-

"Sometimes it helps us, and sage," Looney said. "We want sometimes it kills us. It's killed to win the first half of district and get it out of the way, so we'll have a playoff spot.

The Buffs will have little time to savor this victory, as they take on defending district champion Jim Ned Friday in Tuscola. Game time is 8 p.m.

Jones wants Cowboys' next trophy Johnson-free School.

IRVING, Texas (AP) - If the Dallas Cowboys win the Lombardi Trophy, owner Jerry Jones wants only his fingerprints on it.

Jones has chafed under the praise former coach Jimmy Johnson received for putting together a team that won backto-back Super Bowls.

There's a commercial from the past that told it all. Johnson was driving a car to the Super Bowl that passed a hitchhiking Jones on a dusty road without picking him up.

"I'd like to do that commercial over and I can tell you for dang sure I'd be driving the car this time," Jones said. "I wouldn't mind somebody else getting that dust."

Jones tries to downplay the fact he wants to show Johnson he doesn't need him to win a Super Bowl.

But Jones said when he hired Barry Switzer, just about anybody could do Johnson's job. However, the Cowboys lost to ..... "That shows you the kind of San Francisco in the NFC title owner I have to deal with," game last year. They get another shot on Sunday in Texas Stadium against the Green Bay Packers. On Tuesday, Jones didn't want to reveal all of his innermost feelings about winning a Super Bowl without his former Arkansas teammate.

"I hear that talk and I guess its logical to relate to part of it," Jones said. "But that's a small thing in comparison to winning the Super Bowl for everything it would mean.

"If we win it without Jimmy then you're not going to hear me allude to it or wink about it. Just having a chance to get that trophy again is all I need."

Johnson was in charge of all the personnel moves and Jones felt hurt he was left out, particularly on draft day.

In Johnson's book, he tells how Jones requested that the coach talk to him when the national TV cameras were turned on in draft central so he could appear involved in the decision making.

Johnson also contends Jones found some 300-pound man in a bar who said he could play football. Jones sent him to Johnson the next day at training camp. The man ran to a nearby tree and barely made it.

Lady Blizzards run wild against Stanton

By STEVE REAGAN Sports Editor

STANTON - The Great Blizzard of 1996 apparently made a pit stop in Stanton and blew the Lady Buffaloes right out their gym.

The Winters Lady Blizzards showed why they are defending champions of District 6-2A, dominating Stanton in every aspect of the game en route to a 56-25 win at the Stanton High School gym Tuesday night.

It was the 6-2A opener for both teams.

Ericka Vega had 10 points and Janet Guy and Jeanna Kozelsky had 9 apiece for Winters, which improved to 10-6, 1-0 with the win. Randi Simer had 7 points to lead Stanton, which fell to 3-14, 0-1 with the loss.

The lopsided nature of the loss left Stanton coach Frank Riney scratching his head. He didn't necessarily believe he than we did. I'm not saying we were the better team, but we could have done better

As Riney indicated, the Lady Buffs started the game cold, and remained that way throughout.

Winters, meanwhile, had little trouble finding the basket, especially after Janabeth Bryan sank a short jumper midway through the first quarter to key a 12-2 run that ended with the Lady Blizzards holding an 18-4 lead.

From there, things quickly went downhill for Stanton.

"These girls are ... not playing as well as they're capable of playing," Riney said. "Right now, they're struggling to get everything together, and maybe sometime before this season is over, they will get it together."

The Lady Buffs return to action Friday at Jim Ned. Game time is 6:30 p.m.

CBS ditches Wright; says no plans to ever bring him back nearly eight months of controversy, CBS Sports finally has decided that Ben Wright is the wrong man.

In a brief statement issued Tuesday, CBS Sports president David Kenin said the once popular British golf commentator has been dropped from network golf coverage and there are no plans for him to return.

Kenin said the furor over sexist remarks attributed to Wright had detracted from CBS' golf coverage, which begins Feb. 3-4 with the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

At the same time, CBS apparently avoided having to fire Wright by agreeing to honor the rest of his contract rather than buying him out. Wright signed a four-year extension last November. In a statement issued through agency, RLR Associates of New York, Wright apologized to CBS, the LPGA and to Valerie Helmbreck of The News Journal in Wilmington, Del., whose story last May 12 started the whole controversy. "Despite the fact that I have been widely misquoted, there is no doubt that I have been guilty of making some insensi-tive remarks," Wright said. Wright promised to "be more thoughtful and, I hope, more sensitive in the future. Wright, 63, a golf analyst with CBS since 1972, was quoted by The News Journal as saying "lesbians in the sport hurt women's golf." Helmbreck also quoted him as saying women golfers "are handicapped by having boobs." Wright denied the remarks and was backed by CBS, while

NEW YORK (AP) - After his own public relations The News Journal stood by its story. Helmbreck also was accused of trapping Wright into making the statements, which she denied.

> In an interview from her newspaper's office, Helmbreck said she considered it "a backhanded apology for him to say that he'd been misquoted and then in the next breath to attempt to apologize to me.

She also wondered what took CBS so long.

"Ben Wright was never misquoted. I know that and almost everyone else knows that now,' Helmbreck said. "Being called a liar is the very worst thing that can happen to a reporter.

"I think it's a little bit shabby that it took CBS this long to figure out how they were going to deal with someone who doesn't

Suspended Aggle arrested

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M small forward Waseem Ali, who was suspended from the basketball team in November for unspecified violations, has surrendered to Bryan police on charges of aggravated robbery.

Police said Ali, 19, of San Antonio was booked into the Brazos County Jail on Monday in connection with a Nov. 14 armed robbery. He was released after posting $20,000 bail Coach Tony Barone refused in November to comment about what the 6-4, 175-pound Ali had done to warrant suspension.

All started 15 of the 29 games he appeared in for the Aggies last season, averaging 2.5 points and 1.4 rebounds.

Phillips going pro

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Lawrence Phillips is taking coach Tom Osborne's advice and leaving national champion Nebraska for the NFL.

Phillips, arrested for assaulting a former girlfriend in September, said he will pass up his senior season and enter the draft.

Fontes' job safe

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Seven straight victories turned out to be enough to save the job of Detroit Lions coach Wayne Fontes despite an embarrassing first-round playoff loss to Philadelphia.

Team owner William Clay Ford said Fontes would return next season. Fontes, 56, is 61-57 since taking over the team in 1988.

On Nov. 28, in response to protests from lesbian and women's organizations. CBS issued a statement in which it said it opposed "bias of all sorts" and added that "Wright has been advised that any comments contrary to the network's policy will not be tolerated.'

Then, in an article in its Dec. 4 issue, Sports Illustrated quoted well-known sports writer and author Dan Jenkins as saying Wright admitted to him that he made the statements in question.

Jenkins later said he was misquoted and that Wright might have been kidding.

Bennie Ivory, executive editor of The News Journal, said he was "sure CBS did the right thing." Asked if the action was long in coming, Ivory said: "I would have dealt with something like that a lot swifter."

New LPGA commissioner Jim Ritts said that while the action was belated, it was welcome. He said LPGA players 'have been unfairly burdened by the absurdity of the allegation made" during the past eight months of controversy.

Still, he said he was "satisfied that CBS has taken the correct action in that Ben Wright will no longer be associated with an LPGA telecast and that we can get back to the real business of the LPGA Tour playing the best golf in the world.

"It would be a plus for the NFL," Jones said. "I think he could add more to the NFL as a coach than a critic. He is a great coach. I said once he was worth five Heisman Trophy winners and five first-round draft picks.

The Cowboys will play at Miami next season, possibly setting the stage for the former friends to meet again.

'That wouldn't be that big a deal to me although I could see where it might be a little distracting that week," Jone's said. Johnson will be in Texas

PGA Tour commissioner Tim Finchem said he would have no comment "on the facts of the matter, but clearly the controversy had become a distraction, and CBS did what it had to do to resolve the situation."

In his statement, Kenin said that "because of the continuing controversy that has arisen from comments attributed to Wright, CBS believes his association with the network has detracted from its golf coverage, as well as the focus on the players and tournaments.

In New York, the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation issued a statement calling CBS' action "a blow against prejudice and bigotry.'

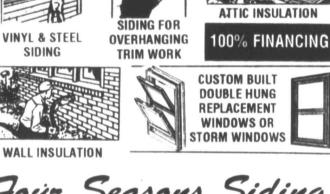

"His comments, as well as his beliefs, were inappropriate and CBS did the right thing by letting him go," GLAAD's media director, Tamra King, said.

Johnson wants Marino back - and more

Spurrier tells Tampa Bay thanks, but no thanks

MIAMI (AP) — Jimmy Johnson wants NFL record-setting quarterback Dan Marino to stay right where he is if Johnson decides to coach the Miami Dolphins. But Johnson warns that teams can get too dependent on a superstar like the Dolphins' signal caller. "I think Dan Marino is a great player, and I think that's a plus," Johnson told the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale for today's editions. He indicated he wouldn't plan to trade Marino, a sure bet for the Hall of Fame.

"When you have a player of Dan Marino's caliber, you sometimes fall into a trap of letting him try to win the game for you all the time," Johnson said. "You have to have a winning football team. My experi-

"That's how I felt about Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith in Dallas. They're great players. But if they're out, you have to be good enough to win anyways."

Johnson says the Dolphins' problem with dissension "without question, has to be dealt with."

"I wouldn't anticipate that being a problem," Johnson said Tuesday from his home in the Kevs.

The former coach of the Dallas Cowboys and Miami Hurricanes said he and Dolphins owner H. Wayne Huizenga had been in contact, would meet soon and would like to work something out this Johnson will be in Dallas this weekend as an analyst for Fox television at the NFC Championship Game between Green Bay and the Cowboys, his former team. Dallas wou'd be an ironic backdrop to announce the new job, considering the clash with Cowboys owner Jerry Jones that forced Johnson to leave after winning back-to-back NFL titles.

Several members of the Dallas Cowboys noted Tuesday their former coach would definitely have a quick impact if hired by the Dolphins.

"Whatever his name is, Haagen Daz (Huizenga). ... I hope he is not a control freak, because if he is, Jimmy won't have that job long," said tackle him.

Nate Newton. If Johnson does get the job, running back Emmitt Smith has a warning; "Total shakedown. Total shakedown. I mean he's going to trim the fat and make some muscle out of their squad."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said: "I think it would be great for him to get back in the NFL.'

Marino has one year remaining on his contract. His agent, Marvin Demoff, and the Dolphins hit a snag in negotiations this season over an extension. Demoff wanted more money and greater guarantees than offered by the Dolphins, who reasoned that they couldn't give Marino the money and still put a good team around

THIS DATE IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 10, the tenth day of 1996. There are 356 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Jan. 10, 1776, Thomas Paine published his influential pamphlet, "Common Sense." In his call for American independence from England, Paine wrote, "Everything that is right or reasonable pleads for separation."

On this date:

In 1861, Florida seceded from the Union.

In 1863, London's Metropolitan, the world's first underground passenger railway, opened to the public.

In 1870, John D. Rockefeller incorporated Standard Oil. In 1920, the League of Nations was established as the Treaty of Versailles went into effect. In 1928, the Soviet Union ordered the exile of Leon Trotsky.

In 1946, 50 years ago, the first General Assembly of the United Nations convened in London.

In 1946, the first man-made contact with the moon was made as radar signals were bounced off the lunar surface.

In 1947, the musical fantasy "Finian's Rainbow," with music by Burton Lane and lyrics by E.Y. Harburg, opened on Broadway.

In 1957, Harold Macmillan became prime minister of Britain, following the resignation of Anthony Eden.

In 1967, Massachusetts Republican Edward W. Brooke, the first black elected to the U.S.

Senate by popular vote, took his seat.

In 1978, the Soviet Union launched two cosmonauts aboard a Soyuz capsule for a rendezvous with the Salvut Six space laboratory.

In 1980, former AFL-CIO President George Meany died in Washington, D.C., at age 85.

In 1984, the United States and the Vatican established full diplomatic relations for the first time in more than a century.

In 1990, Chinese Premier Li Peng lifted Beijing's sevenmonth-old martial law, and said that by crushing pro-democracy protests, the army had saved China from "the abyss of misery."

Ten years ago: Heavy rain at Cape Canaveral, Fla., forced a seventh delay in the flight of the space shuttle Columbia.

Five years ago: Five days before the U.N. deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, peace efforts intensified, with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar setting off on a mission aimed at averting war.

Thought for Today: "People generally quarrel because they cannot argue." - G.K. Chesterton, British writer (1874-1936):

NEW YORK (AP) - NBC had seven of the Top 10 prime-time shows in the first week of 1996. but CBS clawed its way into second place with the national collegiate football championship game.

CBS' climbed out of perpetual third place by half a ratings point - not as lopsided as Nebraska's 62-24 Fiesta Bowl victory over Florida, but just as decisive, according to Nielsen Media Research data released Tuesday.

Surprisingly, CBS placed with only seven programs in the Top 30 - four of them specials and 10 shows in the Top 50.

For the week of Jan. 1-7, CBS earned an 11.8 rating and an 18 percent share of the TV audience, while ABC polled an 11.3 rating, 18 share. Top-rated NBC had a 13.3 rating, 20 share, averaging 19.5 million prime-time
