Erosion-control funds available to Howard County farmers, ranchers

By CARLTON JOHNSON

The Natural Resources Conservation Service in Big Spring is alerting farmers in Howard County of the availability of 1996 cost share funds through the Howard Soil and Water Conservation District.

According to District Conservationist Eddy Spurgin, the funds are available to develop erosion control and proper nutrient and pest management practices to enable the producers row crop operation to meet state water quality

Spurgin added the sign up period for making application began April 22 and will run through May 3. Producers can apply at the NRCS Field Office in Big

The advantage of participating in this program is that if an operator voluntarily develops and maintains a site specific water quality management plan (WQMP) through the district and has that plan certified by the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board (TSSWCB), the operator will be in compliance with state regulatory discharge of pollutants.

The producer will have to maintain his or her plan to retain their certification.

According to Spurgin, a WQMP will include appropriate land treatment practices, such as terraces, waterways, establishment of permanent technologies or any combination to achieve a level of pollution prevention or abate-

A limited amount of cost-share assistance is available to assist in implementing the treatment practices.

Senate Bill 503, which was passed in the last regular session of the Texas legislature names the TSSWCB as the lead agency in Texas for activities relating to abating agricultural and silvicultural nonpoint source pollution.

Spurgin said, "The TSSWCB is responsible for assuring that individual water quality management plans comply with state water quality standards established by the Texas Natural resource Conservation Commission."

He added, "Each WQMP that is developed, maintained and implemented by a landowner or operator through a soil and water conservation district must meet rules and criteria adopted by the TSSWCB."

Spurgin said with a little fine tuning and certification of an existing soil and water conservation plan, a producer might find that his or her operation will adequately meet state water quali-

Best management practice standards, according to Spurgin, will be based on criteria in the current U.S. Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service Field Office technical guide for the Howard SWCD.

Farmers with questions about costshare funds or those seeking additional information should contact Spurgin

Coahoma trio headed to UIL state academics meet

By SARA SOLIS

Staff Writer

Students from Coahoma High School are going to the State University Interscholastic League (UIL) Academic Meet May 2-4 at the University of Texas at Austin.

One freshman and two sophomores qualified at the Regional UIL Meet, held April 20 at Abilene Christian University, to participate in the state final: Kelli Buchannan, first place in Lincoln Douglas Debate; Lucas Phinny, first place in computer applications; and Allison West, second place in Lincoln Douglas

"What's extraordinary is that they're so young," Dottie Rogers, Coahoma High School UIL coordinator, said. She said students who qualify for state UIL automatically become eligible for 827 various scholarships upon graduation.

Rogers said one of the qualifiers is in his first year of UIL participation. "It's the first year for Lucas Phinny to compete in UIL. He came in second at his first meet and he's won every other one," she said.

"Students who participate in UIL academics are as competitive and dedicated as any athlete or musician ... They devote untold hours to practice and invitational meet competition, Coahoma High School students Kelli Buchanan, Allison West and Lucas Phinney will be heading to Abilene in May to compete in the State UIL Academic Meet, Buchanan and West are entered in the debate category, and Phinney will compete in computer applications.

be among the most important they spend during their high school careers. Over the years we've heard from hundreds of students who claim that these contests were the most fulfilling and for many, these hours will and rewarding activities of their entire high school careers," Bobby Hawthorne, UIL academic director, said.

Each UIL contest, whether math, Lincoln Douglas debate or editorial writing is intended to teach the thinking skills students will need in college and in their future employment, he said. He said of the 2.2 million students who participated in UIL last year, 658,000 competed in one or more of the 22 general academic contests.

Danette Toone named to head Moore's efforts

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

After an eight-month search, the Board of Directors of Moore Development For Big Spring Inc. officially named Interim Executive Director Danette Toone to the permanent position of executive director.

Toone was one of more

TOONE than 40 applicants for the position and was recommended by the search committee of Josh Owusu and Joyce Crooker.

Moore Development President Scott McLaughlin said the search was a several-month process since the resignation of Carole Taylor and one of the decisions the board had to make was whether they would stay their present course or take a new direction.

"This board has had some lengthy conversations and it's a consensus of this board that we've made the right choice," McLaughlin said.

Toone said the lengthy wait for the decision to be made was not really a hindrance to the work she needed to get done, but, at the same time, she didn't want the board to feel boxed-in to selecting her.

"If they picked me, I wanted it to be because I was the best person for the job," Toone said.

One of the projects Toone has been working on for the last few months is a Targeted Distribution Plan on which Moore Development is working with a consultant out of Dallas.

Toone said it's projects like this that benefit because the board will not have to worry about a new person having to come in and learn the ropes before finishing projects that are already on the table.

"I feel like the board can go on ahead as a result of this appointment because we have already been working together for so long," Toone said.

McLaughlin said Toone has been on the same page as the allowed the board to do some of the things it set out to do several months ago.

While serving as interim executive director Toone has also been keeping up with the day to day operation of the Business Development Center at Howard College, but that aspect of her responsibilities is a question mark at this point.

"The BDC has been a good program for Moore Development where retention and expansion is concerned, but that something we'll have to sit down and look at now," Toone

Coahoma girl critical after driving in front of UP train

By SARA SOLIS

Staff Writer

An 18 year-old Coahoma girl is in critical condition in a Midland hospital after a Wednesday night collision with an eastbound Union Pacific (UP) train.

DPS Trooper Raymond Harsh said Jennifer Nichols was driving north on Moss Lake Road around 7:45 p.m. when she drove onto the tracks.

Harsh said UP engineer Thomas Fletcher of Big Spring said Nichol's vehicle was approaching the crossing when he laid on the horn. He said after he sounded the horn, he saw Nichols stop approximately 20-feet south of the tracks. According to Harsh, the engineer said just as he reached the intersection, Nichol's vehicle eased onto the tracks.

quarter-panel of the vehicle, spinning it around and then striking the left rear, tearing away the driver's door in the

"It (the train) drug it and threw it 76-feet up the track," Harsh said. He said Nichols was found still seat-belted and conscious, but incoherent. "She was conscious through the whole thing." The train stopped 1,900 feet from the point of impact.

He said she was taken to the Scenic Mountain Medical Center, then to a Midland hospital.

"She's in ICU at Midland in critical condition," Harsh said. According to Harsh, Nichols was supposed to be on her way to pick-up some food at Dairy

"I have no further information as to what she was doing out there," he said.

Grant writer to take on additional responsibilities

By CARLTON JOHNSON

The Big Spring/Howard County Grant Partnership created last year as a joint project of the city of Big Spring and Howard County is about to take on some new responsibilities.

The grant partnership is housed in the offices of Moore Development and is overseen by newly named Moore Executive Director Danette Toone, who suggested to the Moore Development board of directors that

Moore Development fund half the partnership, but in return add responsibilities to the partnership.

Leigh Corson is the grant writer for the partnership and will be responsible for the new duties

CORSON as well as her grant writing responsibilities. Toone said, "Enterprise zones have been a hot item the last few months, but no one has really taken the lead in this area." She added this along with tax abatements, enterprise zone projects and other governmental projects would be added to Corson's responsibilities.

According to Toone, the part-nership would still operate as a separate entity, and the city, county and Moore Development clients would continue to benefit from the new arrangement.

"This will be tried for the one rear remaining on the grant partnership contract, at which time the city, county and Moore

Development will review the partnership and consider funding it again.

Currently the grant partner-ship is operated with funds from an account separate from the Moore Development budget. The partnership started in May 1995 with $10,000 each from the city and county and with $5,000 being added from each of those entitles for the next two quarters for a total of $40,000. Under Toone's proposal, Moore would fund $20,000 of the partnership and the city and county would split the res

Meyer saw it last month when an overwhelming number of people tried out for parts in a planned movie about Selena's life. A third example was the massive turnout at Selena's gravesite on the anniver-

Fascinated by it, Meyer — a sociology professor at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi has joined with two colleagues to study how and why Selena has become more popular in death than she was during her 23 years.

Houstonians may keep old area codes for fee HOUSTON — Houstonians may not have to hang up their 713 area code and phone numbers

State regulators, who earlier this year voted to add another area code to parts of Houston, revised their plan Wednesday to allow customers the option of paying a nominal monthly fee to keep their current numbers for 2) years.

The option was added primarily to pacify companies that feared losing customers because of the new numbers, said Scott Sapperstein, an aide to Commissioner Judy Walsh of the Public Utility Commission. The revision was proposed by Walsh, of San Antonio.

Sapperstein said he expects more businesses than residential customers to pay for the ser-

Corpus schools settle suit over flagpole prayer CORPUS CHRISTI — The Corpus Christi Inde pendent School District has agreed to stipulate on the record that campus prayer gatherings known as "See You at the Pole" events won't be disrupted, the school district attorney says. Under a partial settlement of a 1993 federal lawsuit over district policies regarding student gatherings, the district also agreed to pay 17 students and their parents $6,000, lawyer Shirley Selz said.

After a 1992 incident that prompted the suit, the prayer events have been held on Corpus Christi campuses for the past three years without incident, Selz said.

The Rutherford Institute, a Charlottesville, Va., civil liberties group that specializes in defending religious freedom, said the settlement was a warning to other schools.

"Government attempts at intimidation or interference with the students' prayers will not be tolerated," Kelly Shackelford, a spokesman for the group's Dallas branch, said Wednesday.

Jurors deliberating fate of Hidalgo officials

LAREDO - Deliberations were scheduled to continue today in the federal corruption trial of five Hidalgo County officials accused of rigging contract bids for bribes.

A seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated about six hours Wednesday before retiring without a verdict. The panel was told to return and start again by 9 this morning.

On trial are suspended County Judge J. Edgar Ruiz, commissioners Sam Sanchez and Abelardo Arcaute, former Commissioner Leonardo Camarillo and Head Start Director Luciano Ozuna.

The gunman began shooting on the second floor of the downtown fire station and then moved to different offices, firing as he went, Johnson said.

An unidentified woman who witnessed the incident said she was in a hallway when Tornes said, "Lady get back, I am going to blow the place up.'

The shots could be heard over the fire department's radio, said Presson, who was in his vehicle and talking to a dispatcher at the time.

"Apparently, whoever was on duty keyed up the mike when the gunman came in," Presson said, adding that he heard someone pleading with the assailant not to open fire. "Then I heard shots fired over the radio.' Tornes fled the station and "a chase ensued," causing several wrecks, including one involving an ambulance. Tornes and

The spokeswoman, Barbara Austin, said Ridgeland police officer Elmo Gabbert was in stable condition with a gunshot wound to the hip.

Honor rolls remind of hard work, results

n today's edition, readers will find the list of honor rolls from local and area schools. There are literally hundreds and hundreds of names included from those schools that chose to participate.

The honor rolls remind us of the hard work it takes to "make the grade" while also being part of the reward for that hard work.

There are those who say any special recognition, such as honor rolls or all-star teams, not only recognize those who deserve singling out but serve as well to ostracize those who didn't, for whatever reason, reach the standards established for special recogni-

At the Herald, we believe those students who earn honor roll recognition deserve a special listing, just as we believe those individuals and groups who work to make a difference in our community should be recognized and saluted.

To those students who earned honor roll recognition, we offer our congratulations. To those who didn't, but who worked hard just the same, we offer you encouragement to continue to strive to be the best.

OTHER VIEWS

A sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers: San Antonio Express-News on Mexico and police

Mexican President Ernesto Zedillo's criticism of the recent police beatings of illegal immigrants in California is understandable. But it rings hollow in light of Mexico's own problems with police brutality.

It was only last June that state police officers in Gueralian.

rero snot at a group of peasants on their way to an antigovernment rally, killing 17 farmers.

Last week, local police in Morelos apparently opened fire on peasants who were on their way to an anniversary commemoration of the death of Mexican revolutionary hero Emiliano Zapata. They had planned to attend an environmental protest there.

Zedillo sent a "respectful call" to local authorities to punish those responsible and through his spokesman condemned "whatever action obstructs citizens' rights to exercise their individual guarantees — in particular, the freedom of speech."

The presidential admonition is astonishingly gentle, despite the apparent attempt at a cover-up by the governor of Morelos. The governor initially denied that the shooting took place, contending that police had been unarmed.

He changed his story after witnesses recounted a different version of events and, in a twist of irony, produced a videotape that showed police carrying weapons.

In remarks Tuesday, his first regarding the California incident, Zedillo had this to say: "The attack on (the immigrants') dignity offends us, and it insults us deeply that they are victims of abusive treatment and intimidating acts that physically threaten them and even have meant the loss of life.'

Such strong rhetoric should not be limited to police abuse of Mexicans in the United States. It would be wellplaced in Zedillo's own backyard.

The Dallas Morning News on the private sector and welfare reform:

The clock is ticking for Texas welfare recipients. Beginning in June, a limit will be placed on the number of years Texas families can receive state welfare benefits. Depending on education and work experience, the heads of households that receive support will have one to four years to get off the welfare rolls.

The Texas Legislature approved these reforms last year to encourage Texans to take responsibility for their own

The legislative strategy is a tough but realistic approach to streamlining the state's public assistance system. For example, recipients of Aid to Families With Dependent Children must sign an agreement saying they will strive to become self-sufficient.

Missing from the new strategy is the private sector's role in reducing Texas welfare rolls. At least, it has been missing until now.

For several weeks, Texas Comptroller John Sharp has been working on a proposal that may be unusual enough

Mr. Sharp believes civic organizations and churches in almost every community can help welfare families find work, receive additional training and deal with their most pressing needs. Churches and civic groups would "adopt" families, doing whatever is required to get them off public assistance.

The project, known as Family Pathfinders, tracks what some churches and synagogues already are doing. The most intriguing aspect is the plan to mobilize civic organizations, whose members have broad business experience. These groups are well prepared to know where to find work, day care and other assistance for welfare parents.

The Lions Club will vote to take part in Family Pathfinders during its statewide convention. Other organizations such as the Rotary Club are expected to follow suit.

Product liability act will hurt consumers, workers

By HOWARD METZENBAUM Scripps Howard News Service

Imagine how many more injured or killed Americans there might be if companies did not fear being punished for selling defective machines and consumer goods.

Right now, unbelievably highpaid lobbyists who work for big insurance and manufacturing companies have shoved legislation through Congress that would greatly limit - and in some cases completely exempt most companies from punishment when their faulty product injures or kills.

Only President Clinton stands in the way.

Known as the Product Liabilith Act, this legislation has been cleverly billed as a whack at lawyers. But don't be fooled. The lawyers may suffer some. However, if the bill becomes law, American consumers and workers are the ones who will suffer the real consequences.

Under this bill, once a product turns 15 years old, the courthouse doors slam shut on the injured consumer. He or she won't even be able to bring suit to recover the health care costs or lost wages. This arbitrary cut-off ignores the fact that many products - household appliances, industrial equipment and farm machinery are built to last 20 or even 50 years. The Machine Tool Builders Association, which has lobbied heavily for this bill. estimates this part of the legislation would throw out of OPINION court more than half of all legal claims against machine makers.

Incredibly, this bill says that property is more valuable than people who are injured or killed. It still would allow the employer of a maimed worker to sue to recover its losses caused by the exact same defect in the older product. Sickening? You bet.

Another part of the bill also seems hellbent on protecting business at the expense of everyone else. It would cap the worst corp society for reckie ss or intentional misconduct. In most states today, juries and judges decide what punishment is necessary to stop and deter wrongdoers from engaging in such behavior not some politicians in Washington writing a law.

However, this bill would arbitrarily limit punitive awards to $250,000 or twice the injured party's compensatory losses. whichever is greater. In many cases the potential punishment would be so small that it could be factored in as a routine cost of doing business. Most companies wouldn't do this, but enough would that the injury and death toll would surely

The big insurance companies and manufacturers fighting for this bill also spent the last year trying to get Congress to gut the laws and federal agencies that protect Americans from on-thejob harm, environmental dangers and medical defects. OSHA, the federal workplace safety watchdog, already has

If Americans can no longer count on government oversight, government should at least get out of the way so consumers can protect themselves - by using the courts. If this product liability "reform" bill becomes law, all Americans will no longer have the right they presently enjoy to have their day (and their say) in court.

That's why President Clinton should veto the bill. Lives are literally in the balance.

The Bob Dole presidential campaign sputters along

By LEONARD LARSEN

Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON - The April presidential polls, dim snapshots taken long before the election, nevertheless make it appear Sen. Bob Dole is far behind President Clinton. And Dole's day-by-day performance is no cause for Republican rejoicing.

Dole's laid back, laconic demeanor seems occasionally possessed by mood swings from grumpy to not-so-grumpy, and his public statements sometimes have the detached air of a man preoccupied with memorizing train schedules.

The other day, for example, Dole was said to have "challenged" the president to face-toface talks on a balanced budget, and when the White House promptly accepted Dole was dumbstruck. "We'll see how it looks," said Dole, as if suddenly staring into a full house with a pair of deuces.

Not so long ago, before Dole's all but certified capture of the GOP presidential nomination, prospects for a victory over President Clinton and Republican rule of both the White House and Congress for the first time in nearly 40 years may not have been a lead pipe cinch, but it looked likely.

That was then, before the Clinton re-election campaign shifted out of neutral and before the Dole campaign lost all its party competition and started bumping into doors and stumbling down stairs while Dole aides searched for presidential themes and durable issues for a serious run for the presidency.

And Dole himself sputters along: He shows anger with President Clinton's "leftist" nominees to federal judgeships more than 180 of them - and it turns out Dole voted to confirm all but three of them. Dole is politically mousetrapped on the minimum wage and forced to pledge support to Clinton's election-year vow for an increase.

Dole claims not to admire Clinton's foreign policy but, getting down to cases, he's got nothing else to suggest - not with the Middle East, not with China, not with Russia, not with Bosnia, not with Haiti, not with Cuba, not anywhere.

On many of the hot-button issues used to rally the way-out right-wing Republicans prayer in school, abortion, term limits, abolition of gun controls, a constitutional amendment for balanced budget, another amendment barring flag desecration - Dole seemingly retreats to the train schedules, disconnected from the shouters and the For a victorious campaign that was supposed to be a personal and political humiliation for President Clinton and one to deprive him of a second term, the Dole campaign has the forlorn look of Oakland as it was once described by Gertrude Stein: "There's no there there."

But it's still early, nearly seven months before election day. And, actually, if the Dole campaign and the candidate himself can ever get untangled and speaking in complete sentences that make enough sense to give undecided Americans reasons they should vote for him, the polls and the election itself might turn

Start with this premise: that President Clinton has thoroughly polarized the public, that the majority of people who'll vote for him have already decided and those who've decided they won't vote for him will never change, not in this lifetime and not if the Republicans ran a dirty yellow dog. Clinton, almost like President Franklin Roosevelt, has that effect, not so much with supporters — Clinton's seem mostly lukewarm - but with opponents who've become so much opposed to Clinton they're nearly obsessed. But what might become the great Republican mistake of the 1996 presidential election would be to assume that voters disinclined to vote for Clinton — from those just not supportive to those others who are mad as hell would all choose Dole on election

Clinton's problem might be that his support has topped out, that too many people have already decided they dislike him, whether they once supported him or they're as turned off now as they were from the beginning. Dole's problem might be that beyond his own Republican core, he hasn't given undecided voters, Clinton doubters, even Clinton haters reasons they should vote for him.

In 1992 great numbers of American voters rejected both President Bush and his then-challenger, Bill Clinton. They refused to vote or they parked their votes somewhere to protest, thousands of them with Ross Perot. Bush lost, and so might Dole for the same reasons.

A: Don't be so hard on yourself. You just ended a relationship that has been developing for years. It won't go away overnight, even though he's stopped being around.

It's not possible for most people to just turn off their feelings like a water faucet. You need to give yourself the time to "grieve" a little. After all, in some ways you have suffered a loss, much like when someone

You have lots of memories going through your mind, and you realize that the relationship won't ever be the same. This can create a great deal of sadness, but, in time, it will

It's OK to remember and to even think about the relationship you shared, but it isn't healthy to dwell on it.

If you feel that all you do is think about him all of the time, find someone to talk to about what you are feeling. It's always good to vent your feelings to someone who will just listen and not give advice or judgment.

Just hearing yourself — what you have to say - can sometimes lessen the hurt.

Also, don't be surprised if your sadness turns into anger. Many times anger helps us to actions, especially if it deliberately hurts someone else.

At his age, and for the length of time you dated, he probably felt he needed "freedom" before he finished high school. This doesn't mean he is happy about what he's done, and he may even feel he has made a mistake. So, maybe the two of you should meet and talk things out. You might decide freedom is good for you, too.

Most of all, remember the good times you shared and the good things you learned about yourself as one half of a couple. These are valuable lessons and mostly the reason we date anyway. We learn what we have to offer someone else and what sorts of people we like to spend our time with. You shouldn't feel bad about yourself — you put almost four years of effort into your relationship and that should be commended.

Give yourself the time to recover and to remember who you are, all by yourself. Spend some time with your friends and do the things you haven't been able to do while dating someone steadily. You may still feel sad sometimes, but this won't last forever.

All about Recipe Corner

If you have any recipes you would like to see published, please submit them to the Herald office at 710 Scurry or mail them to: P.O. Box 1431: Big Spring, Texas; 79721; attention: Kellie Jones.

Submissions for the next recipe corner need to be in the Herald office no later than April 29. It is scheduled for May 8.

If you have taken a recipe and reduced the fat, sodium and/or calories in it, please submit these as well.

Recipes for crock pots or meals that can be cooked in 30 minutes or less are also needed.

For more information, call 263-7331, ext. 112.

Top 10 fashion trends for the year 2) Marching orders: Military-

Scripps Howard News Service

Fall clothes won't be in the stores for five months, but specialty retailers already are hosting trunk shows and fashion mavens who like to stay on top of the trends can take their pick from this top 10 list.

1) The color purple: After blue and green, purple is the favorite color of American con-theme in the European fall col- alongside some of the sizzling lections, and they showed up in lace creations designers have collections stateside, too.

3) International velvet: From stretch T-shirts to elegant evening gowns, velvet is a preferred fabric for fall. In such colors as burgundy and brown, it gets new life.

4) Natty knits: Let's hear it for the return of sweaters.

5) Deluxe lace: The little inspired designs were a major black dress is going to pale come up with.

6) Boots: With all lengths of and styles of pants, boots are going to make a major accessory statement for fall. 7) Bright tights: Solid hosiery

Universities scout for students on Internet

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) -Universities are opening electronic doors to prospective students, inviting them to "tour" their Internet campuses no matter how far away they live.

"Students can apply from any part of the globe and take a walking tour of the university by computer," says Joel Stitzel, a computer specialist at the University of Minnesota.

"Instead of having a huge inventory of brochures from colleges, you can actually 'visit' them," Stitzel adds. "I think this will change the way students approach admissions."

The University of Oregon was one of the first to provide admissions information on the World Wide Web, allowing prospective students to cruise through course offerings, faculty publications and a wealth of information about campus life listed on its electronic home

"I was talking recently to families in a very rural, hardto-reach area on the Oregon coast who were using this as a very important tool," says Martha Pitts, Oregon's admissions director. "But that's always been the real beauty of this technology. It allows people to gain access to a whole new world of information no matter where they live."

Clay Hollingsworth, one student who went online to apply to graduate school this fall. says Oregon's home page streamlined the process for him and made it easy to "visit" the Pacific Northwest campus from his home in Denton, Texas.

"I do a lot of Internet surfing and they're one of the few colleges that have it, I've found," Hollingsworth says. "It's the greatest thing that's happened for a student like me."

Penn State University has a goal of processing at least 80 percent of its applications electronically by the year 2000. The 22-campus university system now receives about 50,000 applications a year.

Penn State President Graham Spanier has been a national leader in getting college applications onto the web.

"He's set the standard for all of us," says Steve Mostert, the university's communications director.

Mostert describes a recent staff meeting where he learned that Spanier had received an application query by e-mail that morning, responded to the prospective student electronically, forwarded the query to admissions and received a reply confirming the student had an answer — all in less than half a day. The same process by mail would have taken weeks.

Penn State students can even take a virtual tour of Spanier's office, using a computer mouse to click on paintings hanging on the walls to get information about the artists.

"We're really setting ourselves up to join the electronic world," Mostert says. "That's where everybody's moving."

Like the University of Minnesota, Oregon and Penn State plan to have the entire applications process online soon, so students can complete forms, participate in e-mail interviews and even send tuition payments on the Internet, in addition to touring the campus electronically.

But J.Q. Johnson, an Oregon researcher who coordinates the school's admissions project, says the change will be gradual because many families still lack computers. Parents and students without Internet access will have to take the traditional approach - printed brochures, paper mail, college recruiters and an actual tour instead of a virtual tour.

"It's certainly not going to 9 replace all that anytime soon," Johnson says. "The Internet may be faster, but it's not the only way to get to school."

Conference debates Laura Wilder's take on history

Scripps Howard News Service

MINNEAPOLIS - Friday evening is the time to duke it out over Laura Ingalls Wilder - in a most genteel way, of

"There are many children and teachers who honor her memory and appreciate her remarkable storytelling ability," Heginbotham said. "There are others who are challenging us to think about how to balance the telling of her story."

Wilder was in her 60s when she began writing her "Little House on the Prairie" series of books for children, based on her childhood in the latter decades of the 1800s. (Some scholars maintain Wilder's daughter, Rose, a newspaper reporter, actually was the primary writer.)

Two of the conference participants, both of whom loved the books as children, differ on the books' merits and how much it There were only trees and the matters that some characters hate Indians.

William Anderson plans to tell more than 800 schoolchildren the turning point in his life came early - in third grade, when his teacher read aloud 'Little House on the Prairie." Captivated, he became interested in reading and in history. This led to him wanting to become a writer and researcher.

Then there's author Michael Dorris, who will tell adults at an evening panel discussion he can't read the Wilder books to his daughters because the stories disparage Indians.

Only one page into "Little House in the Big Woods," he heard his own voice saying, "As far as a man could go to the north in a day, or a week, or a whole month, there was nothing but woods. There were no houses. There were no roads. There were no people.

wild animals who had their homes among them." Say what?

"Excuse me," he wrote, "but weren't we forgetting the Chippewa branch of my daughters' immediate ancestry" (from their mother's side), not to mention the thousands of other Indian people who inhabited Wisconsin in the mid-1800s?

In the books, it was only the white folks who toiled and cavorted, ate and harvested, celebrated and were kind to one another, Dorris noted.

Still, Dorris doesn't want to offend hundreds of teachers, parents, librarians and others who find more good than harm _ in Wilder's books. "There's much to love in them," he said. Also, there's value in talking with even young children about what is lacking in characters'

PARIS (AP) - Visitors to the Eiffel Tower will now get more than a great view: They'll get a lesson in how the monument was built.

Operations manager Didier-Paul de Bacque said the new exhibit unveiled Thursday was intended to be "state-of-the-art modern, which, after all, was what the tower was when it opened in 1889."

The new attractions will open to the public this weekend. They include the Feroscope, a large glass sphere inlaid with peepholes through which people can scrutinize details of the tower's construction. Using interactive video screens, visitors can "paint" the tower, selecting from an electronic palette to see how it would look dressed in pink, yellow, or even plaid.

Another innovation is the Movements Summit Observatory, which demonstrates "live" the motion of the tower's point due to wind and

There is also an animated display of one of the engineering feats involved in building the tower: It shows how hydraulic jacks were used to crank up thousands of tons of iron just a bit to ensure the tower's platforms would be perfectly level.

Scientists wonder, question and research. Sometimes they don't agree. For many years, scientists have been arguing about global warming. While they don't all agree about what this might mean to Planet Earth, many think it is going on - and that we can do something

The Greenhouse Effect

Some global warming is good. Without it, Earth would be a ball of ice. The average temperature would be about 5 degrees Fahrenheit, not the 60 degrees that it is today. No life as we know it could live here.

There are many types of gases in our atmosphere. Some of them absorb the heat from the sun and control our climate. "Greenhouse gases" are those that hold the heat around the planet's added to the ones that are already in nat What we do

Most scientists think that gases we make are part of the problem. For example, when we burn fuel or landfill ch as carbon trash, we produce ¿ dioxide and methane.

Carbon dioxide, methane and other gases exist naturally in nature. When we increase the levels, we upset the balance. These extra gases trap even

Scientists Study Global Warming The big question

The big question, the one that scientists are still debating, is: Could temperatures rise high a environment?

What could happen Global warming could change the environment. For example, some scientists are concerned about: Rising sea levels

Sea levels could rise. Ice sheets could melt and add to the water level. As water warms, it takes up more space. The sea level has risen about 5 inches during this century.

Scientists believe sea levels could rise more than 3 feet in the next 100 years. Many places near the coast would be in danger of flooding.

• Climate changes
The climate could change. Climate is the average weather over many years. In some places a warmer climate may seem better. But plants and animals are used to the climate that has existed for If the climate change is too large and too fast, then some plants and animals could really suffer. They could even be wiped out if they couldn't adjust or migrate to a more suitable climate. Weather extremes

Weather could become more violent and extreme. The Earth's water cycle could change. In some places there would be more evaporation, droughts and forest fires. But in other areas there would be more rain and snow, storms and floods

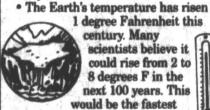

Has it started to change things?

Some scientists say global warming has already started to change the environment. This is because:

Big Spring track gears up for regional meet

Herald Sportswriter

Friday is the first day of the Region I-4A track meet in San Angelo, and Big Spring's boys and girls track teams are gearing up for the weekend.

The teams enters the regional with different results from the District 4-4A meet. For the Lady Steers, they claimed the championship decisively, winning by more than 110 points.

Now, they want to win regionals to make school history. "We're very excited about going to regionals," said Lady Steer coach Jay Kennedy. "Our goal was to take as many people to regionals as possible. We know the more we have there, the bigger our chance at winning it.

"Then we can be a part of history. I don't think a girls team has won regionals as a team and I'm talking about basketball, volleyball, anything."

At district, the Steers missed the title by one point, but coach Randy Britton says team championships are not his top priority. Sending athletes to regionals and state are more important.

"It's not that (championships) aren't important," said Britton. "But it makes no sense to end meet. The goal is to take as many kids to regional and state as possible. If we win the regionals, that's a plus."

Britton said this philosophy is better as far as the athletes are "It takes the pressure off the kids," said Britton. "Just let them go and compete. Winning a championship is just an extra

In both cases, the road to state is going to be tough. The athletes are "banged up" from facing harsh competition. The boys are especially hurting because of their lack of depth, and their

"It's tough (to compete) in two-day meets," said Britton. "In one day meets you can deal with it, but two-day meets are a little questionable. But there's nothing we can do about that."

Kennedy said the Lady Steers will face another level of compete in the relays, the 100-meter hurdles and the 100, 200, 400 and 800-meter runs dash. Big Spring also qualified for the long, triple and high jumps.

There is no question that the Lady Steers are among the favorites to win, but as Kennedy said, Big Spring doesn't have any event locked up. However, he prefers it that way.

"Cedar Hill is the defending champs, so they are the favorites to win. Last year they scored an unprecedented 110 points," said Kennedy. (Besides), I rather be the The Lady Steers will enter in underdog and come from Britton believes the boys' fight will be against Everman and Waxahachie, and hopes Big Spring can fit in there somewhere. The Steers qualified in the relays, the long jump, pole vault, and discus. They also have runners in the 100, 200 and 400 meter runs.

"If we run with our potential we'll be in there," said Britton. "I don't know if Everman has people who are hurting or not. Waxahachie doesn't have the depth, but they have quality

Let's see ... the Big Spring High School baseball team starts the season with a bunch of inexperienced players, stumbles early in the season, then catches fire in league play, positioning itself for yet another playoff run.

Have we seen this movie before?

It seems coach Bobby Doe's Steers have followed the same script since he came here six years ago - and this season is no different. The Steers started slowly but caught fire at just the right time of the season, and with two games left in the season, they're tied for first place in District 4-4A.

The Steers are currently 13-10 overall, and 6-2 in district play. No wonder Doe is smiling these days.

"It's encouraging, considering the way we were going the first part of the season," Doe said. "We're a totally different ball club than we were a month-anda-half ago.

The major factor in the turnaround, Doe said, is simple: His new position players this season finally got some games under their belts.

We fielded so many new position players - seven, to be exact we started working a lot more on fundamentals than before, and I think it's working out."

The few experienced players back from last season - pitcher Zac Leslie and catcher Rogelio Cervantes, for starters - have provided invaluable leadership,

"Zac has come along real strong and pitched real well for us," Doe said. "Actually, our pitching has been pretty decent all year.'

The high point of the season, undoubtedly, came Tuesday, when the Steers defeated district leader Andrews on the road in extra innings.

"It's always good to win any game, but there's nobody I like to beat more than Andrews," Leslie said. "And to do it in front of their home crowd ... That was great.'

The Steers cannot afford to savor the win too long. Their next opponent is Pecos, which defeated Big Spring 10-3 the last time the teams met

Big Spring will be ready, Cervantes said.

The Big Spring baseball team are starting their warm-up drills Wednesday. The Steers are now 6-2 in district play and is tied for first with Andrews.

rearrange his travel schedule this week, but he definitely didn't mind.

Ringener, professional a bowler from Big Spring, was originally planning to come home following the Bud Light Championship in Stony Brook, N.Y. last weekend, but winning the tournament championship changed all that.

Ringener defeated Joe Firpo, 226-224, to earn his first Professional Bowlers Association title in his 17 years as a member. The win was worth $40,000 and qualified Ringener for this week's Brunswick World Tournament of Champions. "I can't express the way I feel right now," Ringener said. "I've wanted this for so long and I've been so close. I've never had this feeling before. I don't think it's all sunk in yet.

Ringener entered the title match as the tour's most prolific non-winner, having amassed $456,256 in career earnings and finishing second four times. His most recent second-place finish came in last year's Bud Light Championship when he missed a pair of single-pin spares and lost by one pin.

Firpo, a 31-year-old from Bedford, started the match with an open frame, leaving the 4-6-7 split and failing to get any pins

Philip Ringener had to in the spare attempt. Firpo came back to strike in the next four frames, but the sevencount in frame one proved to be his downfall.

with spare, a double and another spare while Ringener putting together four consecutive strikes of his own. Needing the first strike in the 10th to lock up his first win, Ringener left a solid 10-pin.

"When I left the 10-pin in the 10th, I thought, 'Here we go again," "Ringener said. "But I tried to keep my focus and make my spare because I wanted him to have to double in the 10th to beat me. After what happened last year with the missed spares. I didn't want to give any pins away this time."

Ringener converted the 10pin, then got eight on his last shot. Firpo then stepped up in

Customer Notice

On February 15, 1996, GTE Southwest Incorporated (GTESW) filed a tariff with the Public Utility Commission of Texas for Advanced Credit Management (ACM). If approved by the Commission, ACM will provide a toll limit for all new and existing medium and high risk single line residence and business customers based upon their credit and paymer history. If a toll limit is reached, the customer's telephone number will be subject to having its outgoing long distance, collect, third number billed, and GTE calling card calls blocked until payment has been made. ACM has no monthly charge or nonrecurring charge associated with it. This filing has been assigned Docket No. 15372.

Persons who wish to intervene or comment on this filing should notify the Commission by June 21, 1996. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas, 78757 or you may call the Public Utility Public Information Office at (512)458-0223 or (512)458-0227, or (512)458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Noticia Al Cliente El 15 de Febrero de 1996, GTE Southwest, Inc. (GTESW) llenó una solicitud de tarifa con

la Comisión de Servicio Público de Texas para una Gerencia de Crédito Avanzado (ACM). Sí es aprobada por la Comisión, ACM proveerá un recargo límite para todas las lineas nuevas y existentes de los clientes con lineas individuales y comerciales con riesgo medio y alto, basado en su historia de crédito y pagos. Si el recargo llega al límite, el número de teléfono de los clientes será sujeto a que las llamadas de larga distancia, llamadas por cobrar, el tercer número para cobrar y las tarjetas de llamadas GTE sean bloqueadas Las personas que tengan deseo de intervenir o hacer comentarios en relación a ésta petición, deben notificar a la Comisión antes del 21 de Junio de 1996. Solicitudes para más información deben ser requeridas por correo a la Comisión de Servicio Público de hasta que sea hecho el pago. ACM no tiene recargo mensual o recargo recurrente asociado con éste. A ésta petición le ha sido asignado el sumario de causa No. 15372. Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, o usted puede llamar a la Oficina de Información al Público, al teléfono (512) 458-0223, (512) 458-0227 o al (512)458-0221 de la máquina de escribir telefónica para las personas sordas.

HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 26:

Home is where the heart is this year. You might find yourself spending a lot of money, time and energy on your. dwelling and family. Security is important, but you still require comfortable and pleasant surroundings. You earn money through natural talents: you might actually start your own business. Be open to travel, new techniques and different ideas. If you are single, you are likely to find a good teammate with whom you enjoying sharing your home life. If attached, love is enhanced as kindness becomes your byword. LEO anchors you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Goodwill floats naturally with loved ones and friends. Examine what you want before blurting it out or you might shock yourself and others. Maintain a sense of humor when dealing with those closest as they may be as quirky as you. Tonight: You could only be a live wire. ***** TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be more in touch with your feelings. A boss lets you know how much he appreciates your efforts. Examine what you want because now is the time to ask. Romance builds when you are close to home. Share your thoughts with those around you. Tonight: You are a force to behold. **** GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Have open and productive talks. A gentle, caring attitude opens doors. Express a different point of view. Your softer side emerges when discussing the future, and there is gentleness between you and another. Explore travel opportunities. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Expenses may be important to you, but so is your need to be indulged. If you spend money, do so to enhance the quality of your life, especially if it involves a partner. Have open talks with loved ones. Tonight: Belavish with affection. ***

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your charisma seems to be endless. if other people's responses are any indication. Your high desirability attracts a loved one with whom you desire a closer tie. Make plans for a special few days. Tonight: Ask and you shall receive. *****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Mixing business and play may not be the best decision, but it certainly is fun. You have difficulty focusing on work because you have had an active week and need to let off steam. Take a leisurely lunch if you can? Don't push too hard. Tonight; Relax in your favorite way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A soft touch goes a long way. Share what you are thinking with someone who is at a distance. Closeness is the natural outcome of what is going on-Jump on an offer that involves travel and perhaps an unusual twist. Tonight: Wear your heart, on your sleeve. *****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You are in the limelight, and there is no way around it. An associate supports you in your career. Understand how working as a duo may benefit you and your personal relationship Your imagination fosters discussions. Tonight: Out and about. ****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Be willing to take off at the drop of a hat. An offer or opportunity is exciting and allows you to see life with renewed. vigor. Softness from a partner or work buddy touches you on a deep level. Evaluate an avantgarde idea. Tonight: Start the weekend properly. *****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Closeness marks interactions with a partner. Be willing to go more than 100 percent of the way. Handling a problem lovingly wins more than brownie points, as you will see this weekend. Accept another's offer. Goodwill abounds. Tonight: Offer a backrub to a stressed-out friend. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your romantic nature comes out despite efforts to keep your mind on work and accomplish a lot. Loosen up. A flippant idea might just be the right answer. Listen to another's feedback. Tonight: Run with the wolves. *****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You feel enriched by feedback from a co-worker or close friend. Your consistent, nurture ing ways pay off: You feel val ued for that extra effort you put in. Focus on kindness yet be effective. Clear your desk. Tonight: Run errands after work. ***
