Moore Development OKs loan for Phillips Fabrications

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

Phillips Fabrications was awarded a $189,000 loan by the board of directors of Moore Development For Big Spring Inc. at Monday's board meeting.

After looking at Phillips' application to manufacture a product for a local company, which showed it can manufacture the product locally, as well as purchase the raw materials here, the Moore Board awarded the loan with an interest-free period of two years.

According to Moore Development Executive Director Danette Toone, the loan is a good move for Big Spring, which should see 10 new jobs right away and another 15 new jobs within the next two years.

The fact that Phillips will be able to manufacture the product, as well as purchase the raw material locally, means the company Phillips is helping will not have to deal with vendors from two different states.

"We see the interest-free period as our grant to Phillips Manufacturing," Toone said. "Based on their financial records, we thing this is a wonderful move, which is what we want to see in this community. Beginning in 1998 Phillips will start repaying the loan at 6 percent interest for 10 years."

According to Toone, Moore Development has made a good move, but will soon be without two of the board members that have been instrumental in helping facilitate such projects.

The 3-year terms of board members Josh Owusu and Scott McLaughlin will end on Aug. 31.

Toone said she hates to see McLaughlin and Owusu leave because they have both brought a wealth of knowledge to the board.

"We hate to lose Josh. He works for a large company, he has worked for himself and he has lend a perspective to this board that other people don't have because he grew up in another country. I've always appreciated his advice, but when you move up with a company you sometimes have to move on," Toone said.

McLaughlin, who is also running for the District 70 State Representative seat currently held by David Counts, has been associated with Moore Development since its inception in the early 1990s, first as a member of the retention and expansion committee, a regular board member and his current position as board president.

'Scott has been instrumental in helping us become a more pro-active organization and has helped us implement some new changes. He was born and raised in this community, has a business in this community and has lent a wealth of knowledge to this board about the Big Spring community,' Toone said.

McLaughlin and Owusu will be replaced on Oct. 1 by newly appointed board members Jackie Cerda, who owns and operates Alberto's No. 2, and Terry Wegman, who owns Mead Auto Supply.

Wegman has been a member of the board's new industry attraction committee and is a member of the city's planning and zoning commission.

"Both new members will be an asset to the Moore Development board."

According to police reports, Cantu's 1992 Ford pickup pulled out in front of Aguilar's 1994 Nissan Sentra as Aguilar was northbound on Lamesa Highway. Aguilar's vehicle struck the pickup on on its front left side, causing the truck to roll over on its right panel.

The accident temporarily blocked traffic on the highway. Aguilar was transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where he was treated and released. Cantu refused medical treatment, according to the Fair board expects '96 run to be 'best ever'

The 1996 Howard County Fair is set for Sept. 2-7 and, according to the Howard County Fair Association, this year's fair should be one of the best ever.

During a spring meeting of the association's board of directors, president Danny Wright and member Dick Helms reported on the Texas Association of Fair and Expos Convention in Dallas which they attended.

Several of the topics covered, including entertainment, volunteers and advertising techniques for fairs and expos, will be helpful at this year's fair.

This spring the board also sought input suggestions from the community for ways of improving and expanding the

Many of the attractions at this years fair will be there because of ideas submitted by Howard County residents.

Some of those acts and attractions are so popular at fairs and expos, the fair board had to contract for the acts they would need in April and try to finalize everything at least four to five months in advance.

One of the feature attractions this year will be the children's Pet-A-Zoo. The board wanted to bring the Pet-A-Zoo to the fair

Forsan board to 'spare rod' in disciplining

By STEVE REAGAN

FORSAN - The Forsan Independent School District will spare the rod while disciplining the child this year.

District principals unveiled their respective discipline plans for the coming school year, and definite de-emphasis on spanking is a central feature in each plan.

Corporal punishment (spanking) is out altogether at Elbow entary, while it has been shifted to the discipline measure of last resort at the junior high and high school level.

Elbow principal Richard Light said the major reason for the policy change is to get the schools less involved - and the parents more involved - in disciplining children.

'We feel it's our responsibility to teach and instruct," Light told the Forsan school board Monday. "It's the parents' responsibility to discipline their

"Basically, (disciplining a child) is the responsibility of the parents," Light said later in the evening. "Hopefully, if we tell parents that their children are a problem, the parents will help us. Besides, I don't like spanking students."

If a student's behavior becomes a persistent problem, Light will invite parents to the school to "shadow" their children - accompany them through the school day. It is Light's hope that having parents view their children's behavior up-close will encourage them to intervene in the matter more effec-

If the problem persists after parent intervention, Light said suspensions and removal of student privileges will follow.

At the junior high and high school level, officials also will emphasize non-physical forms of discipline, but assistant principal Wayne Rotan adopted a "never say never" approach to spanking.

"I'm not going to say we're not going to (spank students)," said Rotan, the son of former Coahoma superintendent Gary Rotan. "But we're going to do

Coahoma ISD trustees approve 1996-97 budget

HERALD Staff Report

COAHOMA — Coahoma Independent School District trustees formally approved a $5.95 million budget during their Monday night meeting.

The new budget marks an increase of approximately $250,000 from the previous year's package. Increased instruction costs make up a majority of the difference.

The budget was formed using a tax rate of $1.435 as a model. Superintendent L.D. Monroe said that rate is unofficial at this time. The district's tax rate will be set at the board's Sept. 16 meeting.

In other business, trustees:

 Pledged portions of the district's fund balance to various projects. The board pledged $300,000 to junior high and high school renovation; $250,000 to replace air conditioning and heating units at the junior high and high school; and $250,000 to an emergency contingency fund. In addition, the board reduced a prior pledge for bus purchases from $650,000 to $400,000.

· Agreed to pay insurance premiums for district employees who work more than 20 hours a week and belong to the Teacher Retirement System. Other district employees will have to pay their insurance premiums.

 Agreed to add a first-grade and elementary special education instructor. Monroe hopes to have those positions filled soon.

Four witnesses, including the victim and Big Spring Police Officer Tony Everett, who arrested Ross on the night of the offense, testified for the prosecution.

Evidence showed that Ross burglarized a home on West 14th Street at approximately 11:30 p.m. on April 10.

Testimony further revealed that Ross threatened the female victim with sexual assault, but fled the scene after she resisted.

Everett then testified that he arrested Ross near the scene of the crime at about 11:45 p.m. of the trial, District Attorney Rick Hamby — who was seeking a life sentence for Ross introduced the fact that Ross had a prior conviction on the same offense. That, Hamby believed, led to the jury's quick deliberation before leveling the 50-year sentence.

sentence comes two weeks after another district court jury sentenced a local man to two years probation for indecency with a child, but

During the punishment phase Hamby doubted Ross' sentence was a reflection of the previous jury's leniency.

"First of all, I believe the verdicts in both cases were appropriate," Hamby said. "We were dealing with entirely different circumstances in each case. I don't think any jury in naive enough to be dictated to by another jury."

Ross is currently in custody at Howard County Jail pending his transfer to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Paroled rapist gets 55 years for assaulting therapist

HOUSTON (AP) — A paroled rapist has been sentenced to 55 years in prison for attempting to rape the therapist in charge of his sex offender counseling.

Car dealers' group sues Irvin, saying arrest ruined ads

DALLAS (AP) - A group of North Texas car dealers want two things from Michael Irvin: The keys to the vehicle they loaned him, then more than $1 million - at least.

The North Texas Toyota Dealers Association sued Irvin on Tuesday for about $1.4 million in damages, alleging that the football star misrepresented himself as a moral person when he signed an endorsement contract on Feb. 12.

"Had the dealers association known of Michael Irvin's immoral lifestyle, it would not have entered into the (endorsement) agreement," the lawsuit states.

However, the suit accuses Irvin of violating deceptive-trade laws, which could mean a jury could assess a verdict three times the specified amount of damages if the Cowboys' star is found to be liable.

Mexican national on death row faces possible retrial

HOUSTON (AP) — An illegal immigrant from Mexico, armed with a federal court decision that holds his capital murder conviction was improper, was set to return today to the same Harris County court where 14 years ago he was sent to death row.

Ricardo Aldape Guerra, who has insisted an associate was the triggerman in the 1982 death of a Houston policeman, faces arraignment in what could be a move toward a possible retrial.

Montford departure rattles Senate alignment

AUSTIN (AP) — Politicians of both parties called John Montford's resignation a loss for the Texas Senate, where he has served for 14 years.

But it might become a bigger - possibly historic - loss for Texas Democrats.

Even before Montford's decision Tuesday to become chancellor of Texas Tech University, the Democrats' century-long hold on the Legislature's upper chamber was under pressure from determined Republicans.

In 1994, the GOP trimmed the Democrats' Senate margin to 17-14, the closest this century. And the Lubbock Democrat's seat wasn't supposed to be up for election again until 1998.

But with the latest developments in West Texas, the GOP now has its sights set on control. If Republicans can win a net gain of two seats in November, they would run a legislative chamber for the first time since Reconstruction.

"It's good news for us politically," said Tom Pauken, state GOP chairman, as the Texas Tech regents hired Montford.

"Obviously, the Montford seat is one that's definitely conservative and leans Republican. I hope we pick it up in November," Pauken said.

That's a view shared by state Rep. Kent Grusendorf, R-Arlington, who chairs the Campaign for Republican Leadership.

His effort is aimed at winning control of the Texas House by claiming 76 of its 150 seats this fall. So Grusendorf has been looking at voting trends and demographics. He believes the Montford district is tilting toward the GOP column.

"Based on the numbers up there, I don't see any way (Democrats could hold it). I guess there's always a chance, but I'd say the high probability is that seat goes Republican," he said.

Democrats disagree, of course.

Montford long enjoyed electoral success as a Democrat. He was Lubbock County criminal district attorney from 1979-1982 and has won repeated Senate elections since 1982. He rose to become one of the state's most powerful lawmakers, chairing the budget-writing Finance Committee. "The fact that the seat is now held by a Democrat is good news," said Anne Marie Kilday. spokeswoman for the Texas Democratic Party.

"We're very hopeful. There are a number of excellent Democratic candidates who've made it clear they would like to run for the Senate seat," Ms. Kilday

And she noted that another Democratic legislator comes from the same region -House Speaker Pete Laney of Hale Center.

The new vacancy further rattles an already shaky partisan alignment, however, with half the Senate seats up for election this year.

Here's the math: After Democratic erosion in recent years, Republicans hold 14 seats. A net gain of two, for a total of 16, would put the GOP in control by a 16-15 margin. To achieve that, the GOP's strategists had been hoping to retain the East Texas seat held by Sen. Drew Nixon, R. Carthage; pick up the seat vacated by Sen. Bill Sims, D-Paint Rock; and oust Sen. David Cain, D-Dallas.

Now there's another seat in play, and the GOP chairman likes what he sees when he looks west toward Lubbock.

"It will be a targeted senatorial district," Pauken said. "It gives us the opportunity to potentially win three or more state Senate seats.'

That may be a long shot. But if the GOP pulls it off, it will be one for the history books.

Former Whitewater partner gets two years in prison

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) -Susan McDougal was sentenced to two years in prison because the former Whitewater partner wouldn't offer testimony damaging to President Clinton or his wife, McDougal's lawyer said.

"To my knowledge, my client does not have any incriminating information on Bill or Hillary Clinton," Bobby McDaniel said. "If she had caved in, she wouldn't be looking at any prison time."

Mrs. McDougal, 42, faced up to 17 years in prison and a $1 million fine after being convicted May 28 of misusing a $300,000 loan obtained in the name of her Master Marketing advertising company.

At her sentencing hearing Tuesday, she tearfully pleaded for the same leniency shown former Gov. Jim Guy Tucker, who was spared prison Monday because he suffers from chronic liver disease. Mrs. McDougal claimed she blindly left all financial details to her thenhusband, James McDougal.

"I signed those documents and I picked up that check just as I did everything that Jim told me to do, without thinking and without taking responsibility for it," Mrs. McDougal told U.S. District Judge George Howard

"I just want to have a normal life," she begged tearfully.

Howard rejected claims that Mrs. McDougal naively received an illegal $300,000 loan $25,000 of which prosecutors say was used to buy land for the Whitewater real estate venture. The prison term "will take Mrs. McDougal out of circulation for a reasonable amount of time," the judge said.

Mrs. McDougal also was ordered to repay the loan with interest and pay a $5,000 fine. After prison, she will be on probation three years. Howard ordered Mrs. McDougal to report to prison by Sept. 30.

Tucker, 53, was sentenced to four years' probation, starting with 1) years of home detention, after his conviction in the same

Her husband, James McDougal, 55, faces a maximum 84 years in prison and $4.5 million in fines after his conviction on 18 fraud and conspiracy counts. But his sentencing has been postponed until Nov. 18 in the clearest sign yet that he is cooperating with prosecutors.

The McDougals were partners in 1978-92 with Bill and Hillary Rodham Clinton in the Whitewater real estate development in northern Arkansas.

McDaniel said that after Mrs. McDougal's conviction, chief prosecutor W. Ray Jahn offered to recommend probation for her if she cooperated.

"He said, 'You know the focus of our investigation is Bill and Hillary Clinton. That's what we're looking for," according to McDaniel. He said she refused.

"The story today is, if you don't cooperate with independent counsel and do their bidding, they will crush you," he lick Lamm, a former, three-term governor of Colorado, was seeking the presidential nomination of Ross Perot's Reform Party and wanted to vote for himself. He couldn't. He never got a ballot in the mail. And there you have one reason why Perot's credibility as a presidential contender himself is now about six feet under.

Perot did get the nomination, of course, but how much difference does it make when the balloting was clearly mangled and just 50,000 people ended up voting out of a total 1.1 million who were eligible? Perot's peculiar ways don't end there, however.

Go back to 1992 when Perot was surging in the polls. With little explanation, he dropped out of the race. When he got back in, he offered up a tale that few could believe and that contradicted his earlier story. Still, he spent millions of dollars of his own money on TV time and earned a remarkable third-party vote in the election.

But then, instead of keeping his party alive he set up a kind of namby-pamby organization that mainly afforded people a chance to bicker with each other. When he got around to establishing a real party again, he said he didn't plan to run for president himself, a pledge that lasted right up until the day after Lamm declared.

The old saying goes this way: Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me. Perot, blessed with folksy charm and a forceful personality, has fooled voters several times now, but they finally seem to be getting ashamed of themselves.

Fear and loathing of the religious right increases

By JAY AMBROSE

Scripps Howard News Service

Listen to Michael Lind, a former conservative who now bellows an idiosyncratic liberal lingo, and you would think the religious right is one of the gravest threats that America has had on its shores since the British burned the White House in the War of 1812.

In a newly published book, "Up From Conservatism," this aspirant to intellectual celebrityhood offers as proof of his frightening thesis that America has suffered "wave after wave of right-wing terrorism." It doesn't matter to him that the mostly unrelated incidents he then cites have been denounced by such organizations as the Christian Coalition. The people who committed them, he says, members of the religious right. Such people, he would have you know, hold to conspiratorial theories of history, are anti-Semites and are white supremacists.

Although Lind's ravings would be hard to match, it's not uncommon for many liberals and not a few moderates to concur that few American perils can compare with that posed by religious conservatives and especially by their most effective political arm, the Christian Coalition. The most generally expressed fear - that the group is critically close to imposing a misconceived and repressive morality on the rest of us — is an improvement over Lind's hysteria. It remains essentially

It is undeniable, of course, that the Christian Coalition has mastered the techniques of political organization and is a force to be reckoned with. The group's clout was in ample evidence at the Republican National Convention this past week, especially when members played a major role in getting a tough anti-abortion plank in the party's platform. Under the direction of Ralph Reed — youthful, smooth and shrewd — the 8-year-old grassroots organization has amassed a membership of some 1.7 million people and a war chest of tens of millions of dollars. It's not to be ignored in local elections or state legislatures. In 1994, in dramatic demonstration of its prowess, the group proved crucial to the Republican takeover of Congress.

Even so, it's a fantasy beyond the imaginings of the Grimm Brothers to suppose that an illiberal religious fervor, some new Great Awakening, is gripping or about to overtake the land. Something quite opposite is inarguably the case: America, over the course of this century, has chucked religion-inspired inhibitions and even a large number of com-

America, over the course of this century, has chucked religion-inspired inhibitions and even a large number of common sense restraints so far into outer space that it would require the Hubble telescope to spot them.

The sweeping and undeterred tendency of American society has not been the establishment of the sort of moral order the religious right may long for. It has been the breakdown of taboos against such things as sexually explicit entertainment, divorce, abortion, unwed cohabitation and out-of-wedlock births. Moral confusion is writ large in our society, and many of our most serious social problems are traceable to at least some elements of this dissolution, such as the rise in crime and the startling growth of impoverished single-parent

To oppose this onslaught of modernity, adherents of an evangelical Christian faith are marching as to war - a cultural war - and their voice is being heard. The Christian Coalition may include some zanies in its midst — Pat Robertson, the founder, subscribes to some outlandish theories - and a few of their most cherished proposals may send chills down the spines of many. But they now vigorously decry racism, and most of what they argue for are such everyday kinds of conservative ideas as reducing big government.

Despite allegations they are fascists, hardly anything they're seeking wasn't the law or the way of the land about the time American soldiers were helping to whip the fascists in World War II.

Where the Coalition's stands cannot generate widespread support, the Coalition is unlikely to succeed, whatever its nervous critics may fear. Even in the unlikely event that the Coalition could somehow get the U.S. Supreme Court to reverse Roe v. Wade, for instance, it's unlikely that more than a few state legislatures would rush to reinstitute prohibitions against most abortions. Try as it may, the Coalition will not get prayer back in the schools, unless perhaps as a moment of silence. But suppose it did. How would that compare as a social evil to drug abuse and other social afflictions that become more common in eras lacking moral coherence?

What we are witnessing in the actions of the Christian Coalition is democracy the way it's supposed to work: citizens engaging in politics in an effort to effect the principles they hold dear. The evangelicals that form the chief constituency of the religious right are said to number between 30 million to 50 million people, roughly 20 percent of the population, and it's the worst sort of anti-democratic impulse to want to shunt them from the scene. Critics nevertheless contend the religious right is trying to impose its beliefs on others. There are two responses to that, one of which is that the whole purpose of engaging in politics is to have certain of your opinions prevail as law by way of fair votes. Don't the critics want their own opinions to pre-

The second response comes from M. Stanton Evans, who says in his book, "The Theme is Freedom," that it's nonsense to think religious absolutes are

"congenial to oppression." Both history and theory demonstrate, he writes, that moral relativism cannot provide or sustain freedom. "For freedom to exist," he says, "there have to be certain assumptions about the intrinsic worth of the individual, the respect that is owing to all human beings, the need to limit the compulsions that can be used by one person against another." Without clear standards, he says, there is "no basis" for "placing limits on the rule of force.

It's their belief in absolutes that primarily distinguishes members of the religious right from their most virulent opponents. James Davison Hunter, a social scientist and author. writes that the fundamental social conflict in America today is between those committed to transcendent (moral) authority" and those who define moral authority "by the spirit of the modern age, a spirit of rational-ism and subjectivism." Here is why some people are more intimidated by the Christian Coalition than by unions and other comparable actors in the democratic drama. The Coalition doesn't just hold a few views contrary to their own; it orbits a different sun than they do.

While it's true, as Hunter says, that few people are wholly in one cultural camp or another, ours is clearly more an age of relativism and ever-accelerating license than it is of creeping Cromwellianism. The modernist journey, which comes to us by way of anti-theistic ideas, science, the growth of cities and industrialism, is scarcely screeching to a halt. What the religious conservatives can usefully afford the nation, it seems to me, are questions and objections that might help divert us from the worst kinds of accidents. That requires, however, that their point of view be heeded as historically important and not greeted with the kind of paranoia exhibited by the likes of Michael Lind.

When we left the presentation, the question had been asked, "What do we need to do to get things going?"

Smith gave the group directions, including conducting surveys and the like and maintaining contact with her at Amtrak.

Since then, communities along the line that would lose service, such as Little Rock, Ark., Marshall, Longview, Mineola, Dallas and Fort Worth, have made a pitch to Amtrak to continue providing service in some manner.

Their proposal, which was rejected as too unwieldly by Amtrak spokesman Mark Magliari, was for Amtrak to run a train between Memphis, Tenn. and Dallas-Fort Worth. It would connect in Memphis with Amtrak's Panama Limited.

The interesting thing about the Texas Eagle and all of its financial losses is that in many instances, riders either have to ride in the lounge car or not ride. Signs to mark original Big Spring township plat located downtown

By KELLIE JONES

Howard County Historical Commission has obtained signs to mark the original Big Spring township area that was platted on April 15, 1882.

Ozella Long, commission chairman, said the signs mark the area from First and Gregg, east to Goliad, south to Sixth Street and west back toward Gregg Street. Options working couples have for child care

Scripps Howard News Service

Last time we talked about how society and organizations could help working couples manage their work and family responsibilities in an ideal world. This week we will share what couples can do to help themselves provide quality care for their children.

Among the suggestions: dren: If you know you want children, develop a logical strategy for when to bring them into the world. Children are not just warm, fuzzy little creatures who speak only when spoken to. They demand attention and have incessant needs. You can't just enjoy them on the run — and run you will. You need help. If you get along with your folks, try to stay close to them so you will have a support sys-

 Plan for the extra expense: Have a financial plan for how you are going to provide for your children under various circumstances. If you both plan to continue working, where will you find child care? How much will it cost? Can you afford it?

Child care costs continue to climb. Start a savings account and put off having your children until you have enough saved to pay for the first three years of child care. Sounds ominous? It is.

Sacrifice now for benefits later: One working couple we coach has committed to working two jobs each for the next two years. They plan to save everything they can so she can stay home with the children until they're in school fulltime. They have agreed to forgo that fancy automobile, high-tech toys and other niceto-have items until their family is stable.

Negotiate trade-offs. Another couple decided to avail themselves of one of the time/income trade-off arrangements his company offered to employees with children. When the baby arrived, he chose to job-share, an arrangement where two people share the same job and split the salary. This meant he received less income, but they calculated that the lower salary was offset by savings on outside child care expenses, reductions in transportation expenses, fewer dry cleaning bills and lower costs eating lunches out. · Be a "co-preneur." Other couples have chosen to start their own business so they can work out of their home while their children are young. This appears to be an ideal solution. Our ancestors did this as they operated the family dry goods store. Today, our jobs are more complicated and take uninterrupted concentration. • Plan your work day. As you plan your family business, add to your plan how you are going to carve out some uninterrupted time to get your work done. Get up earlier than everyone else in the family and start working right out of the box. Start with the tasks that take concentration. Take off when the children get up. Then back to work when the children take their nap. 720141

· Alternate work shifts. A growing number of couples choose to arrange their work shifts so that one works days and the other works evenings. This arrangement takes care of who watches the children, but it's hard on the partnership and, ultimately, the family.

· Schedule quality time. If you choose the day shift/night shift option, devise a plan and stick to it - for spending some quality time together every day. Quality time boils down to uninterrupted time. Reach out and connect with each other by telephone, fax, Email, notes on the refrigerator, lunches or dinners with just the two of you. The more stable your relationship, the more you have to give to your family, and ultimately to your

Indians' big bats batter Rangers, 10-4

CLEVELAND (AP) - For the Cleveland Indians, three, four and five added up to 10 runs.

The heart of the Indians' order came through Tuesday night, accounting for all of Cleveland's runs in a 10-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Jim Thome, the No. 3 hitter, hit his 28th home run. Albert Belle, batting cleanup, hit his 41st and had a two-run triple. And Manny Ramirez joined some elite company with his third grand slam this season.

Ramirez drove in five runs for the fourth time in his career, and Belle drove in three runs to give him a major league leading 118 RBIs.

"It's amazing, isn't it?" manager Mike Hargrove said. They did their jobs tonight, they really did."

Ramirez became the fourth Indians player to hit three grand slams in a season, joining Tris Speaker, Al Rosen and Andre Thornton. Rosen had

"I guess I'm just lucky," said Ramirez, who has four grand slams in his career. "I've never tried to hit a grand slam."

Lost in all the offense was the Rangers' errorless streak. which ended at 15 games, an AL record. The Rangers failed to tie the major league record of 16, set by the 1992 St. Louis Cardinals.

Texas went 575 chances without an error. The streak ended when Kevin Elster dropped a throw on force play at second in the fourth inning. It was Elster's first error in 45 games.

"I think Kevin kind of looked down for the bag, maybe," said Mark McLemore, who made the throw. "There wasn't much to say. Any other time somebody makes an error, you don't say anything."

Thome hit his fourth home run in five days, a two-run shot that put Cleveland ahead 5-4 in the fifth. Thome, who hit a homer on Saturday and two on games.' Sunday against Detroit, has eight hits in his last 16 at-bats.

When you're swinging the bat well, any ball that's in the zone looks good," said Thome, whose 28 homers and 87 RBIs are both career highs

With Cleveland leading 5-4 in the sixth, Belle was intentionally walked to load the bases. Jeff Russell came on to face Ramirez, who hit his 26th homer and fourth career grand slam to make it 9-4.

"Russell hung a breaking ball," Hargrove said, "and Manny didn't leave it there

For the second straight night, one of these explosive teams scored in double digits. The Rangers won the first game of the series 10-3.

"It's two good ballclubs," Oates said, alluding to a possible postseason showdown. "Hopefully after the regular season, there might be more

Juan Gonzalez hit his 36th home run for Texas, a two-run shot in the fifth that gave the Rangers a 4-3 lead. Gonzalez extended his hitting streak to 12 games and drove in three runs, giving him 114 RBIs.

Rusty Greer went 4-for-5, including an RBI single in the two-run first. Rangers' Gonzalez added an RBI groundout in the inning for a 2-0 lead.

After a rain delay of 1 hour, 23 minutes, Cleveland took a 3-2 lead in the bottom of the first. Belle drove in two with his third triple of the season and Ramirez knocked in Belle with Albie Lopez (3-4) got the victory despite allowing nine hits in five innings. Eric Plunk pitched three scoreless innings, and Paul Assenmacher got three outs in the ninth.

NFL Roundup Top kickers get boot as cut deadline arrives

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kickers usually compete for jobs until the final days of training camp, then learn whether they made the final

This year is playing out a bit differently.

Two of the NFL's better known kickers, Matt Bahr and Lin Elliott, and 15-year veteran punter Rohn Stark were among those waived Tuesday as teams whittled their rosters to 60 players.

Others handing in their playbooks included running backs Garrison Hearst (cut by the Cardinals) and Johnny Johnson (49ers), quarterbacks Gino Torretta (49ers) and Dan McGwire (Dolphins), tackle Steve Wallace (Eagles) and defensive backs Shawn Gayle (Chargers), Nate Odomes (Seahawks), Maurice Hurst (Rams) and John Booty (Buccaneers).

Two others players will miss the season because of suspensicns, each presumably because he failed a third drug test. The NFL lengthened Colts fullback Roosevelt Potts' suspension from four games to 16 and suspended Ravens defensive tackle Larry Webster for a year.

One trade was made, too, as Miami dealt running back Terry Kirby to San Francisco for an undisclosed 1997 draft pick.

Bahr, 40, was beaten out for the job with New England by rookie Adam Vinatieri, 23, a free agent from San Diego State who kicked this spring for the Amsterdam Admirals of the World League of American Football.

"He's the best kicker I ever had," said Patriots coach Bill Parcells, who coached Bahr for three seasons with the New York Glants and two full sea sons in New England. "He was just a dependable guy and a true professional." Parcells, calling the decision one of the most difficult he has made as a head coach, said Vinatieri's ability to kick off as well as convert field goals and extra points was an important factor. Bahr, despite hitting a career-long 55-yard field goal last season, was inconsistent on long-distance attempts and did not handle the kickoff duties for the past two seasons.

The Vikings cut Elliott, leaving the job to Scott Sisson unless someone else is signed.

Elliott was dumped by Kansas City during the offseason after his three missed field goals contributed to the Chiefs' playoff loss to Indianapolis in

He signed with the Vikings early in training camp when it became apparent Fuad Reveiz's foot injury was serious. Reveiz was forced to retire.

Stark, whose 1,103 punts are the second most in NFL history, was cut by Pittsburgh. The 37-year-old played with the Indianapolis Colts before joining the Steelers last year as a free agent. He punted 59 times, averaging 40.1 yards with a net of 33.3 yards.

Stark, is just 51 punts behind Dave Jennings. He has won three NFL punting titles, just one behind Sammy Baugh and Jerrel Wilson for the most in league history.

The Cardinals waived Hearst in a salary-cap gambit that allowed them to strengthen their defensive line by offering high-dollar contracts to Simeon Rice and Eric Swann.

Tobin unloaded defensive end Clyde Simmons on Monday. Coupled with Hearst's waiver and the new contracts for Rice, a first-round pick from Illinois, and Swann, a Pro Bowl tackle, the moves left Arizona about $1.5 million with which they can acquire another running back.

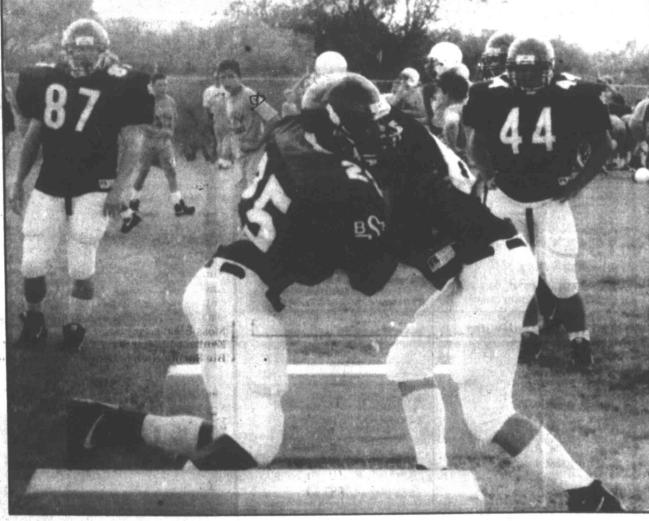

Johnson, who twice rushed for more than 900 yards in five seasons with the Cardinals and Jets, was signed by the 49ers to a two-year, $3 million contract last March.

The 49ers sought help elsewhere and got Kirby, a fine receiver who fits the San Francisco system well.

"This is a new opportunity for me to run the ball and also catch it," Kirby said. "It's exciting to come here and do the things I'm capable of doing.'

San Francisco also cut Torretta, the 1992 Heisman Trophy winner, who lost out to Jeff Brohm in the battle for a spot as the third quarterback behind Steve Young and Elvis

Unwanted pinch may cost Rodman

Delta Center usher wants $750,000 from NBA forward Dennis Rodman for purportedly pinching her on the bottom during a game. Lavon Ankers, who was an usher at the May 5, 1994, game between San Antonio and the Utah Jazz, alleges in a suit against Rodman that he chased a loose ball out of bounds, then pinched her buttocks RODMAN while returning to the court. "The touching and pinching was witnessed by bystanders and spectators," according to the suit filed last week in U.S. District Court.

The suit also states that a local television broadcast of the SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - A game showed Rodman walking think is funny and never past Ankers, turning around and "apparently touching her on the backside.

NBA officials have refused to release copies of the broadcast because the incident is now under litigation, said Joel Litvin, of the league's legal department.

Ankers "was and continues to be greatly humiliated, shamed, embarrassed; and endured great mental suffering," according to the suit, which seeks $250,000 in general damages and $500,000 in punitive dam-

Ankers' attorney Harry Caston said Tuesday he and his client decided to file the suit after receiving no response from Rodman's agent in an attempt to resolve the matter without litigation. "Frankly, she didn't invite or in any way ask Rodman to touch or pinch her on the but-return a telephone message left at her home. A call seeking comment from Rodman's representatives with the Rodman Group also was not immediately returned on Tuesday. Rodman, 35, said in a radio interview Monday that he's headed to Europe Wednesday to be married, but he refused to name his betrothed or provide many other details.

"You'll be totally surprised by who I'm going to marry, Rodman told syndicated radio host Jim Rome from New York.

Rodman, known for his aggressive rebounding, dyed hair and eccentric behavior, played for the NBA-champion Chicago Bulls last season.and signed a one-year contract with the team earlier this month.

NL Roundup

Home sweet for Rockies in victory over Cardinals

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

If the Colorado Rockies played their entire schedule at home, they'd be World Series champions.

Back at Coors Field following a 4-7 road trip, the Rockies showed how dominant they are at home. With Colorado trailing St. Louis by a run in the 13th inning Tuesday night, Dante Bichette hit his second homer of the game, a two-run drive that gave the Rockies a 5-4 victory.

"This is what I live for." Bichette said. "This is what you dream of, winning games with a home run. It's every hitter's dream."

Bichette won the Coors Field opener on April 26, 1995, with a three-run homer in the 14th to beat the Mets. On July 11, he hit a three-run homer off Trevor Hoffman in Colorado's final at-bat to defeat San Diego.

"Dante has done it so many times for us in our last at bat," Colorado manager Don Baylor said. "All we had to do was get somebody on and let Dante do the rest."

Brian Jordan gave St. Louis a 4-3 lead with an RBI single in the top half off Mike Munoz (1-

Andres Galarraga singled off T.J. Mathews (2-5) in the bottom half before Bichette hit the next pitch for his 25th homer.

"I was looking fastball all the way. If he'd thrown me a slider, I would have been left spinning in my shoes," Bichette said.

Colorado, 41-19 at home and 23-43 on the road, also got homers from Galarraga and Eric Young. St. Louis left the bases loaded in the 13th. In other NL games, Atlanta

Cincinnați Philadelphia edged Los Angeles 3-1, San Diego blanked Montreal 3-0, Houston defeated Pittsburgh 9-4, Chicago beat Florida 8-1 and New York beat San Francisco 7-3.

Braves 4, Reds 1

Terry Pendleton hit his first home run since returning to Atlanta, and Chipper Jones and Ryan Klesko also hit thirdinning homers at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

Tom Glavine (13-7) allowed five hits in eight innings as the Braves won their fifth straight and eighth in nine games. Mark Wohlers pitched a perfect ninth for his 31st save, setting a team record.

Dave Burba (7-12) gave up all four runs and nine hits in four innings.

Phillies 3, Dodgers 1

Pinch-hitter Ruben Amaro Jr. connected for a two-run homer off Antonio Osuna (8-5) with two outs in the ninth at Dodger Stadium.

Padres 3, Expos 0

Greg Vaughn hit his fifth NL homer - 36th overall - and Bob Tewksbury (10-8) allowed just three hits in 7 2-3 shutout innings for his first win since July 21. Trevor Hoffman pitched the ninth for his 30th

Tiger burns brightly at U.S. Amateur

CORNELIUS, Ore. (AP) -The Tiger Woods story sometimes seems too good to be Here he is trying to be the first person ever to win three consecutive U.S. Amateur Championships, and all he does is shoot the lowest score of any of the 312 golfers at Pumpkin Ridge Golf Club.

Here he is saying he will play in the World Amateur Team Championship in November, seemingly shooting down rumors he will turn pro this week, and the most noticeable guy in his gallery is Phil Knight, CEO of Nike, the company that desperately wants to sign Woods.

Here he is on the verge of history and he is trading barbs with his father on the course and giving his mother a playful squeeze after ripping yet another monster drive.

Tiger Woods is not too good to be true. He is just too good.

finish 36 holes of qualifying at 7-under-par 136, two strokes fairway on No. 16 by inches better than Bo Van Pelt. Woods now has a chance to be the first stroke-play medalist to win the tournament since Phil Mickelson in 1990.

The low 64 scores in the twoday medal qualifier advanced to six rounds of match play, culminating with a 36-hole final Sunday.

"That wasn't the plan," Woods said about being medalist. "The plan was to just go out and shoot right around par."

He was much better than that, turning the front nine in 35 and then rolling in four birdie putts in the 12- to 18-foot range on the back nine.

"I guess the putter got hot a little bit," he said about his backside 32.

Woods was completely relaxed in his round. After driving off No. 14, he walked into the gallery and gave his moth-

Woods shot a 67 Tuesday to er, Kultida, an affectionate struggle just to qualify for squeeze. When he missed the with his drive his father, Earl, velled: "It doesn't count as a fairway hit."

Woods turned to his caddie and with a huge smile said: "I told you he'd say that."

The last time Woods lost in the U.S. Amateur was in the second round in 1993 when he was defeated by Paul Page of England 2 and 1. Page isn't playing this year.

Since then Woods has defeated 12 consecutive opponents.

Now he faces one match today, two Thursday and one opponent Friday, Saturday and Sunday — if he advances that "It means I've got to get up early tomorrow," Woods joked about the 9:30 a.m. tee time the medalist gets, going out in the first group of the day.

The way Van Pelt started his round it looked like he might match play. The Oklahoma State junior went out in 38, but rallied to come back in 32.

"After making three bogeys the first five holes I was just saying, 'You better hit this solid or you're going to miss the cut." Van Pelt said.

"No. 6 I hit a bad shot in that fairway bunker and I hit a good shot in there about 10 feet and that kind of turned my day around," Van Pelt said.

Ten men played off for the last eight spots and six of them got in on the first extra hole with one birdie and five pars. Another advanced on the second hole and the final spot the player who meets Woods in the first round — went to J.D. Manning on the third extra

BIG SPRING HERALD CLASSIFIED RESULTS

HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR THURSDAY, AUG. 22:

Career is important this year. All roads point to opportunity advancement. Consolidating your finances will free you to make the decisions you want. Work exposes you to new techniques and knowledge. Your openness will be instrumental to your success. In relationships, avoid standing on ceremony. Be amenable to another's side. If single, romance is a strong possibility through January. If attached, home life is essential to happiness for both of you. Consider buying a new home or building an addition. SAGIT-TARIUS stabilizes you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic: 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are less inclined to barnstorming and more to getting the job done in the next few weeks. You are in the midst of revamping your ideas. It may be preferable to process on your own, though. Another is impressed by your tenacity. Tonight: Stop at a favorite bookstore. ****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Being a little off-balance affects interactions. A lunch with a special confidante could help clear up things. Relationship concerns will come to the forefront in the next few weeks. If single, you discover a flirtation leads to more. Tonight: Early to bed for extra rest. ****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Defer to another. Demonstrate your love in a way that is meaningful for you. Others are in a period of change, as is your relationship with them. Remain determined to achieve long-term goals. Much is happening on a personal level. Tonight: Start the weekend early. *****

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Excellent communications help associates understand your position. A positive attitude works with one in charge. Watch expenditures, but buy a lottery ticket. You have pulled a financial wild card. Accept new technology. Tonight: Set an appointment with the dentist. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You feel like you are due for an image change, as well as letting more fun in your life. Realize what you might be projecting onto others. You have a difficult time figuring out exactly where another is coming from.

Let creativity take over. Tonight: Make it frisky. ****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The sun moves into your sign, and there will be a lightening up. Deal with a domestic matter. Remain open to changes. Do not get into a power play with another who holds the cards. Evaluate the need for a change in your regimen. Tonight: Watch a favorite TV show. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Expressiveness marks your day, even if a partner rains on your parade. You do some indepth thinking in the next month. The unexpected occurs with a loved one or child. Keep your sense of humor. Tonight: Visit a friend. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You are in touch with your needs. This next month. emphasize making what you want happen. Work is demanding, putting you on an intense schedule. Get ready to restructure your budget. Events point you in the appropriate direction. Tonight: Be a money wiz-

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Graciously absorb additional responsibilities that someone tosses on you. Others come to you for your opinions. You are in the limelight — enjoy it. You draw others. Unusual options begin to present themselves. Think before you proceed. Tonight: Say yes. *****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Consider what is happening within before deciding on a major romp. The unexpected occurs with your checkbook. Instincts are right on with funds. You feel like another is being demanding. Be especially cautious with real-estate matters. Tonight: Play ostrich. **

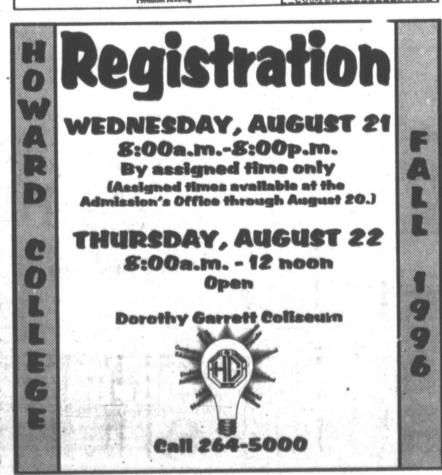

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Friendship plays a big role in interactions. Before key discussions, be sure of your expectations. You are growing in new ways. Others may think you are acting erratically. In fact, you are just shedding skin. Some may not be ready for the new you. Tonight: Go for closeness. *****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You are in the limelight, and people respond to your high energy. Others are more important in making decisions than usual. Your more possessive side comes out dealing with a loved one. Today's events lend added insights. Tonight: Be a star. ****

know if you remember me or not. I wrote to you a year ago about my weight problem, and you gave me some really good advice. I went to Overeaters Anonymous. So far I've lost 55 pounds, and I'm still losing. But now I have another prob-

Since I've got a pretty good figure, guys have started noticing me, and Abby, I can't handle it. I'm 18 and never dated before because I was such a mess, but with guys paying attention to me all of a sudden, I'm a wreck! I hated being fat and ignored, but at least I wasn't hassled by dudes trying to get me into bed. All the guys I know are after only one thing.

My girlfriends say if I don't ST. PAUL

DEAR HASSLED: Your girlfriends are wrong. Hang on to your high standards and say goodbye to the dudes who try to rush you into bed. There's something worse than being ignored - it's too much attention from guys who are after wrote, "My fiancee and I fight and argue every time we see each other, but whenever I suggest calling off our Christmas wedding, she cries and carries on, saying she'll be humiliated before her friends."

way!" You are absolutely right. I know. I learned the hard way. My fiance and I were both 21. We fought constantly. Several times he suggested we call off the wedding, or at least postpone it for a while, but I insisted on going through with it because I didn't want to face the embarrassment of having to tell people that I wasn't getting married after all.

Today, after two years of a miserable marriage, I am five months pregnant and in the process of getting a divorce. Obviously, we never should have gone through with the marriage in the first place. I hope "No Names" takes your advice. - TOLD YOU SO IN DALLAS DEAR TOLD YOU: Thanks for the reaffirmation. A broken engagement is usually embarrassing, sometimes humiliating and always painful. It can also be costly. But it's not nearly as painful and costly as divorce especially if there are children to consider.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning inappropriate questions asked of a widow at the funeral of her husband. I think mine tops them all:

At the funeral of my 67-yearold father, my poor grieving mother was approached by an officer of the burial society to which my parents belonged, and instead of offering her solace, he asked, "Would you please give me a deposit on the grave next to your husband so I can reserve it for you?" -VIVIAN OF BAYSIDE HILLS.

DEAR VIVIAN: Your story takes the prize. In spades.

DEAR ABBY: I read with great interest the letter from the American sailor with the Filipina wife. The lady is jealous of her husband's absences.

I was in the same situation when I was in the Navy and married my wife, also a Filipina. "Sasebo Sailor" needs to get into the local group of Filipinos in our Navy. (Our Navy recruited Filipinos in the Philippines until 1992.) If "Sailor" and his wife became socially involved in this group, she would no longer be anxious when her husband deploys.

The "bamboo pipeline" (Asian gossip) has more connections than any phone company and it's far more efficient. The Filipina (woman) will be assured that her husband is not availing himself of any other women, plus she will have a support network of people from her homeland.

My wife and I have been married for 11 years, are still very much in love, and have learned to live with our cultural differences. There are reasons why many Asian women prefer American men, and there are many American men who are crazy about their Oriental wives. - JOE CHASSE, SAGI-NAW, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: As I left the mall yesterday, I saw three boys no more than 14 years old sitting on the curb smoking!

I don't know why, but I stopped and said: "It makes me sad to see your young lungs being ruined by smoking. If only you could see the people in my condo complex with holes in their chests because they ruined their lungs by smoking, you would never light another cigarette as long as you live."

To my surprise, the three of them put out their cigarettes without saying a word.

I walked away feeling so good. - PEGGY BERRY, MAR-GATE, FLA. DEAR PEGGY: You deserve to feel good .- You had the courage to speak up - and you possibly saved three lives. DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, after 27 years of marriage, I went through a divorce. My husband had become involved with another woman and refused to break it off, so I real-

I have picked up the pieces of my life and put them back together little by little. I have not dated since my divorce. I needed this time to heal and to work on rebuilding my life. A shattered 27-year marriage is from a neighboring community who lost his wife to cancer about a year ago. We went to the same school and church. I know him and his family; however, I don't know if he is dating anyone. I'm almost sure he doesn't know that I am alone write him a note or give him a call? I know times have changed, but I don't want to appear too pushy. It's been 30 years since I have dated, but now that I'm alone, my thoughts keep drifting back to this man.
