McLaughlin accusing Counts of avoiding Aspermont debate

By JOHN H. WALKER
Managing Editor

Republican challenger Scott McLaughlin continued to pound away at incumbent David Counts, D-Knox City, Wednesday over Counts' inability to find time for more than one debate in the race for the District 70 seat in the Texas House of Representatives.

"Clearly, my opponent in this campaign has every intention and excuse imaginable, whether truthful or not, to avoid any campaign debates," McLaughlin said.

The campaign had been relatively quiet until mid-September when McLaughlin began calling for a series of debates across the 12-county district that runs from north of Abilene to Lynn County on the northwest and Howard County on the southwest.

The first debate challenge was issued in the form of a certified letter mailed to Counts on Sept. 13. In that letter, McLaughlin advised Counts he would be available to debate the incumbent in a series of debates at a time and location of the incumbent's choosing.

McLaughlin's campaign sent that letter to media outlets throughout the district.

On Monday, Counts notified the Herald by mail that he had agreed to a debate to be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 22 in Sweetwater.

In a telephone interview Monday afternoon, Counts said, "they (Sweetwater) called and asked me to clear a date (for the debate) ... my dates are harder to open than other people ... I'm busy (working on legislative issues)."

"I really don't know what he (McLaughlin) stands for or does. I'm not running his campaign ... just mine," he said.

Counts added that he "really hadn't thought about the issues ... I guess we'll see when we get to it (the debate)."

It was on Monday that McLaughlin made public a call for a second debate — this one in Aspermont, the county seat of Stonewall County.

It was that debate, scheduled for 7 p.m. next Tuesday, that caused Counts' campaign to fire back.

In a release faxed to the Herald Tuesday at 9:52 a.m. and titled "Counts not invited to participate in debate," the incumbent said he was surprised when he heard of the report of the Aspermont debate.

"My first knowledge of this debate was an announcement I heard on a radio station while traveling through the district," Counts was quoted in the release. He added that neither he, nor his office had been contacted about the debate, which the release said "has supposedly been set for Oct. 15 in Aspermont, Texas."

But Wednesday, McLaughlin sought to paint a different picture, pointing out that he has copies of the return receipt on the Aspermont debate letter signed for by a representative of Counts on Tuesday.

Counts was on his way to Big Spring at press time and was not available to comment on the time the letter was received in his office and the time his press release was distributed from Mail Center Plus in Snyder.

The initial appearance is that there was a gap in communications between Counts, who was on the road, and his office, where the letter from McLaughlin was received.

"The voters," McLaughlin said, "should take clear notice of his failure to appear and recognize his statements regarding notification as questionable. I will continue in my efforts to schedule debates across this district and would hope Mr. Counts would realize the futility of his efforts to avoid them."

"One way or the other, we are going to discuss the issues of importance to voters of West Texas. If he wants to join, fine. If not, I'll speak on his behalf by providing the people of District 70 with copies of his voting record, which is irrefutable in spite of what he might claim."

The general election is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 5. Counties in District 70 include Borden, Fisher, Garza, Howard, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Lynn, Nolan, Scurry and Stonewall.

Local Scout troop ready to celebrate 65th anniversary

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Big Spring's Boy Scout Troop No. 5, one of the oldest units west of the Mississippi in continuous registration, is celebrating its 65th anniversary.

The celebration is set for Friday and Saturday at the First Baptist Church with camping and activity displays on the church lawn.

There will be a hamburger supper Saturday evening for parents and boys in the Cub Scout unit.

During Sunday morning's worship service, boys in Troop No. 5 and parents will say thanks to the church for its continuous sponsorship for more than 60 years.

According to scout enthusiast and longtime Big Spring resident and historian Joe Pickle, the troop has a direct link to the beginning of Scouting in West Texas.

It was Barbara Reagan who read about the new youth movement a few months after it was chartered by Congress in 1910, according to Pickle. She persuaded C.S. Holmes to organize a troop and become its Scoutmaster, which he did for 10 years.

"In 1931, Holmes persuaded First Baptist Church to organize its own unit," Pickle said.

Not only has Troop No. 5 been in existence continually, serving more than 1,000 boys in the process, but it has also produced one of the largest number of Eagle Scouts in the Buffalo Trail Council.

Council District Executive Warren Wallace says Scouting is something every young boy should try.

"Scouting develops strong values in each young boy it touches. It honors the home, school and church or synagogue as the origins of our youth's values," Wallace said.

Chinese violinist gives Coahoma band new sound

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Monica Chen doesn't play second fiddle to anybody — at least where the Coahoma Junior High School band is concerned.

Chen, a 13-year-old violin student from China, is perhaps the first ever student to play a stringed instrument for the CJHS band. And she may be the only violin player in this area bowing tunes for a school band.

"As far as I know, this is the first time this has ever happened," said Bill Gibson, Coahoma's interim band director. "I wouldn't in my wildest thoughts think of a violin being part of the band. But I feel every kid who wants to be in the band should have a chance."

"She's just a real nice kid," he added. "She's kind of quiet, but she's really nice, and she's not hard to get along with at all."

Chen lives with her family in Big Spring, but transferred to the Coahoma district at the start of the school year.

Boll weevil control becomes center of cotton controversy

HERALD Staff Report

Whether diapause or eradication, the boll weevil has been the center of controversy for several months, especially after a Hale County court ruled in June on behalf of a handful of farmers that assessments levied by the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation was unconstitutional.

The outcome of pending litigation in the Texas Supreme Court concerning the lower court's decision is not expected until December.

But, the boll weevil is current at the center of another controversy, indirectly. A group of Concho Valley cotton farmers has sued four chemical companies that sold them pesticides to control beet armyworms.

The farmers are suing for deceptive trade practices and fraud, contending the product Dimilin failed and caused nearly $1.8 million in actual damages. The farmers are also seeking punitive damages.

Named in the lawsuit are Uniroyal, Helena, Tri-State and Western chemical companies, which sold the product Dimilin to the farmers.

Plaintiffs' attorney Don Griffis said the lawsuit is in the discovery phase and should take six to eight months before it reaches the courtroom.

Farmers contend chemical company employees told them early in the summer of 1995 that they could expect a beet armyworm infestation because of the ongoing boll weevil eradication program.

According to court records, the employees said if the farmers used Dimilin, the chemical would control the beet armyworm, and that if it were applied correctly, the farmers would make a crop.

The chemical didn't work, and beet armyworms devastated the cotton crop in the Concho Valley last year.

The beet armyworm was

City, Western Container must renegotiate lease agreement

By STEVE REAGAN

It's back to the drawing board for Big Spring officials concerning their lease of airport land to Western Container.

The city and Western Container agreed last year to a 12-year lease of airport land the company would use as part of its recent expansion.

The Federal Aviation Administration — which must sign off on the deal — objected to the lease because its terms were too favorable to the company, the FAA claimed. "What the FAA is concerned about is that at the end of the lease, the land goes back to raw usage value," Mayor Tim

Blackshear said. "They believe it should be rated at fair market value."

"Their concern is what will happen after the 12-year payback," City Manager Gary Fuqua said. "The FAA believes we should get fair market value for the building."

Because of the FAA roadblock, the city must renegotiate the lease with Western Container. City Council members authorized Fuqua to do so during their Tuesday meeting.

"We'll see what can be done," Blackshear said. "We don't have anything we're trying to force here. Western Container has been a good neighbor to us over the years."

Wallace added Scouting's goal is to nurture and extend these values by emphasizing the Scout oath and law.

Camping out and hiking teaches boys basic self-assurance, teamwork and leadership — life skills they will take with them well into adulthood.

Wallace pointed out in today's times, when peer pressure, as well as social pressure, is what it is, young people make dozens of choices everyday that many adults never faced growing up.

Some of today's young people make choices that come with consequences they are not ready to handle, Wallace added.

Adults can help make those choices a lot easier by supporting a program that is a powerful teaching tool that promotes teamwork and self-esteem — scouting.

The entire Buffalo Trail Council serves an area covering 18 West Texas counties. Services and facilities include trained volunteer staff members, a 6,600-acre Scout Ranch in the Davis Mountains, the 17-acre aquatic base and training center on Lake Colorado City and Scout service centers in Midland and Odessa.

The Buffalo Trail Council is also known as the Lone Star District and has eight Cub Scout Packs, boys in grade one through five; eight Boy Scout Troops, boys ages 11 through 18; and five Explorer Posts, boys and girls ages 14 through 21.

In 1995, three boys achieved Eagle Scout ranking, while 16 Cub Scouts received their Arrow of Light (the highest ranking) and 258 merit badges. A total of 55 rank advancements have also been earned by area Boy Scouts, and 124 Cub Scouts have also received rank advancements.

Chen

Coahoma, like every other public school district in this area, does not offer orchestra classes, but that didn't stop the eighth grader from playing her music.

Chen's family, from Lanchou in northern China, came to the Big Spring area so that her father could study wind erosion techniques under Bill Fryrear at the Agricultural Research Center. Back in Lanchou, her father, Weinan, is associate director of the Desert Research Institute, which is the country's leading wind erosion research center.

Monica is very shy, and uncertain about her English, but that hasn't stopped her from becoming a valued member of the band. In addition to her abilities with the violin, she's also the band's drum major.

"We just put her on the flute parts, and she sits right next to them and has no problem at all," Gibson said. "We didn't do anything special for her — she changed for us. She's more used to playing different types of music than what we play, but she just jumped in and took over."

Having a violin player accompanying traditional band music gives the group a unique sound, Gibson admitted.

"It gives it a little bit of a different sound, but it doesn't take anything away from the band," he said. "In fact, it adds to the sound."

Music — and drum majoring — come to Monica from her mother, who was a pianist and drum major in China.

"I really like the violin," she said. "My mother wanted me to learn to play the piano, but I always wanted to play the violin."

She said she enjoys playing the violin best, but also gets a kick out of drum majoring. Because the junior high band doesn't march at games, that limits her to leading the band at pep rallies.

No matter. "She jumped in at the last minute and tried out for the drum major spot — and she won it," Gibson said. "And she's done a fine job for us, too."

Weevil

responsible for the destruction of approximately 200,000 acres of cotton in Runnels, Tom Green, and Concho Counties and in other areas south of Howard County.

"Despite appropriate applications in accordance with the verbal recommendations, the Dimilin did not control the beet armyworm population and the infestation continued through the late summer of 1995," the lawsuit states.

According to Dr. Charles Allen, an entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, dry weather and mild winters such as that West Texas has experienced set up favorable conditions for last year's beet armyworm population explosion. And, frequent early season insecticide applications may have contributed to beet armyworms' increases by killing key parasitic wasps.

The beet armyworm explosion did not affect Howard County the way it did several nearby counties, which enabled local farmers to concentrate on their own diapause program aimed at controlling the boll weevil, a project that recently completed its first phase for 1996.

The aim was to have $9 million to $11 million dollars for this year's diapause spray program to battle the boll weevil in the 20-county High Plains area, but $4.4 million is good enough for the first round of spraying, according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers Inc.

Last year's program was aimed at stopping the spread of the boll weevil and reducing populations that were trying to move into the northern and western sections of the High Plains.

This year's plan is to continue population reductions of the boll weevil in the southern area of the High Plains.

PCG officials are more optimistic that farmers will get their outstanding assessments in to fund the other portions of their program now that the first phase has been completed, ending speculation about pending litigation halting the 1996 diapause program.

Poverty-plagued Border bracing for welfare reforms

RIO GRANDE CITY (AP) — Amid a skyline of barren hills and grain silos, alongside a rail yard littered with cardboard and roamed by mangy dogs, live the residents of Tierra Linda, Spanish for pretty land.

But this land is not pretty. This is where poverty dwells.

In the plywood houses and one-room trailers lining the gravel roads.

In the drifting stench of a nearby pig stockyard.

And in the minds of the hundreds of people — many of them legal immigrants — who call this dreary enclave home.

This colonia on the Texas-Mexico border is one place where new federal welfare reforms will hit hard when implemented in the coming weeks.

Here, legislative rhetoric about SSI and AFDC is meaningless. All that matters is how much money will be lost and what can be done to stop it.

"If they take our food stamps away, what can we do?" worries 32-year-old Julie Martinez, her brown eyes scanning the one-bedroom trailer she shares with her four children. Two wobbly cinder blocks serve as the front porch to her home, which Ms. Martinez hesitates to open to guests because it is barely large enough for one.

Unemployed and separated from her husband, Ms. Martinez receives about $400 a month in food stamps for her family. Under the new welfare law, she risks losing one-fourth of that money because she is not a U.S. citizen.

Her children's benefits will continue because they all were born in the United States, but Ms. Martinez wonders how they will survive when living on their current stipend is a daily ordeal.

"It's hard," she says. "It's very hard."

Ms. Martinez and her neighbors in Tierra Linda are not alone in their concern. In Starr County, home to 50,000 mostly Hispanic residents, one out of every eight people is a legal immigrant who stands to lose food stamps under the new welfare law.

Another one in 38 will lose their Supplemental Security Income, a cash payment to poor people who are elderly or disabled.

While other parts of the country have greater numbers of legal immigrants who will lose welfare benefits, this county and others along the Texas border have a larger percentage of their populations facing cuts.

And in a region with some of the highest unemployment and poverty rates in the country, the results could be devastating.

"We are the second-poorest county in the entire United States. Of course it will have an impact," said Holly Guerrero, city secretary in Rio Grande City, the Starr County seat. "We have five or six people coming by this office a day asking for jobs."

The welfare overhaul ends six decades of guaranteed cash assistance for the poor. For U.S. citizens, it imposes time limits and work requirements in an effort to ease people off welfare and back to work.

But for most legal immigrants, the law imposes an outright ban on receiving food stamps and SSI. Legal immigrants who are veterans or have worked and paid taxes in America for at least 10 years are exempt.

The law also prohibits legal immigrants now entering the country from receiving most federal benefits during their first five years here.

"There are a lot of immigrants who are going to lose their benefits completely," said Anne Dunkelberg, an analyst with the Center for Public Policy Priorities, an Austin-based organization that examines public policy affecting the indigent.

Officials estimate that nationwide, 900,000 legal immigrants will lose food stamps under the law and another 350,000 elderly or disabled immigrants will lose SSI benefits. In Texas, 187,000 immigrants will be cut from the food stamp program and 53,000 will lose SSI.

Just when those losses will begin depends on when an immigrant was last certified to receive benefits.

For food stamp recipients, the federal government has allowed states to extend certification periods up to 12 months. That means an immigrant who was certified April 1 to receive food stamps for six months would receive a six-month extension and be removed from the program in April 1997.

The Texas Department of Human Services began granting extensions last week for legal immigrants participating in the food stamp program prior to Aug. 22, said Judy Denton, DHS supervisor of eligibility policy.

Immigrants receiving SSI will be notified of any changes to their benefits by March 1997, said Social Security Administration spokesman Tom Margenau.

OUR VIEWS

Changes at USDA center cause for great concern

The announcement that Bill Fryrear has been replaced as Research Leader at the USDA's Big Spring Research Station is cause for great concern.

Fryrear, whose work is known both nationally and internationally, has been Research Leader for 23 years. Prior to that, he held the equivalent position of superintendent at the local facility.

But with the change in his status, we can't help but fear for the worst for the research center itself — despite the official "don't worry's" offered to this newspaper by USDA officials.

As U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Stamford) said Wednesday morning when notified of the situation by this newspaper, "that's not going to fly."

Stenholm pointed out that we have had to fight funding battles for the local research facility for the past 18 years — and we expected to have to continue to fight those battles in the future. What we didn't expect was a move to weaken the foundation of the facility and its research.

The work done at the Big Spring facility is world-renowned.

No dollar value can be placed on the worth of wind erosion research and dry land research, although it is evident that that is exactly what the USDA has done.

We encourage you to contact your elected officials, both on a state and national level, to make them aware of the mistake USDA has made in regards to the Big Spring Research Center.

One voice sometimes gets lost in the wind. A chorus of voices, however, united in cause and effort, can create their own windstorm.

We encourage you to contact our elected officials today. For your convenience, we offer the addresses of persons key to this issue in the space below.

Pity the school officials in these litigious times

By BILL MAXWELL
St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times

Conservative pundits and sundry cynics smell blood. Their prey this time? Uptight public school bureaucrats who have let political correctness run amok, who do not know the difference between a young boy's innocent peck on the cheek of a female classmate and an act of bona fide sexual harassment.

These critics fail to comprehend their sin: They are contributing to the devaluation of the nation's public school system.

The cause celebres, or martyrs, are Johnathan Prevet, 6, a first-grader at Southwest Elementary School in Lexington, N.C., and De'Andre Dearinge, 7, a second-grader at New York's Public School 104 in Far Rockaway. Both boys were suspended from school for "sexual harassment."

Johnathan's troubles started when he kissed a female classmate on the cheek. A teacher witnessed the act and reported it to the principal, who promptly suspended the boy for a day. Because he was absent from school, Johnathan missed an ice-cream party honoring pupils with good attendance and was prevented from coloring and playing with his friends.

Several hundred miles to the north, De'Andre became persona non grata after stealing a kiss and ripping a button off a girl's skirt. Initially, he was given a five-day suspension. De'Andre said he kissed the girl because he likes her and wants to marry her. OK, but why did he snatch the button? To pay tribute to his favorite fictional character, Córduro, a teddy bear missing a button, he said.

Jackie Prevet, Johnathan's mother, complained that her son's punishment was too severe. After all, she saw his crime as nothing more than innocent smooching.

Does the punishment — in either boy's case — fit the crime? Should either child be charged with sexual harassment? Yes, said Southwest Elementary's spokeswoman Jane Martin, referring to Johnathan. "A 6-year-old kissing another 6-year-old is inappropriate behavior. Unwelcome is unwelcome at any age."

Martin spoke these brave words days before the satellite trucks began to arrive from as far away as Canada, New Zealand and Australia; before the likes of Rush Limbaugh, Oliver North, Kathie Lee Gifford and, of course, the local mayor got into the act. After the school received a bomb threat, officials decided that they, indeed, would be "working on an age-appropriate revision" of the sexual harassment policy.

In Far Rockaway, matters were just as bad for school officials. After De'Andre's parents, the mayor and the ubiquitous press came calling, officials threw out the suspension and started meeting to reconsider their sexual harassment guidelines.

All right, so the boys' parents got what they wanted. But what about the schools? What did they get? The nation's public schools do a thankless, Herculean job. They are, in fact, acting in loco parentis. That is, acting in place of the parent. Each weekday, for four to seven hours, school officials and teachers are responsible for every facet of their pupils' lives, including the children's right to be free from peer harassment.

Under Title IX of the federal Education Amendments of 1972, moreover, school districts are liable if they fail to act in instances of "peer sexual harassment," which is defined as "harassment that occurs during school activities or on school grounds by one student against another."

Districts have latitude in interpreting the law, but they are required to have guidelines in place. In Johnathan's case, his parents, like other parents at the school, had signed a document stating that they had read the school's student handbook and had discussed the rules with their son.

The ugly truth is that public schools are held hostage by a litigious society that no longer supports the local schools. We come to school holding our children's rights in one hand and our attorney's business card in the other — all the while demanding that staff protect, nurture and teach our little darlings. At the same time, though, we insist that our children enjoy every freedom and bask in self-esteem. In other words, we want it all.

School officials, far from being ogres, are victims who waste precious time seeking ways to stay out of court. On the one side stand the demands of the U.S. Education Department's Office of Civil Rights. On the other, parents and society wait in judgment, watching for a mistake.

As a former teacher, my biggest worry is that each time children are permitted to defeat teachers and administrators, each time a Jay Leno portrays teachers as fools, we further undermine the viability of public schools. We obliterate the necessary line between the child and adult authority. In effect, we force officials to overreact to protect themselves.

The wisest comments I have heard in this mess are those of Ellen Bravo, executive director of the 9 to 5 National Association of Working Women:

"Clearly, local school officials overreacted in describing Johnathan Prevet's behavior as sexual harassment and punishing him for violating school rules. But the problem is the overreaction, not the rules. Can sexual harassment occur in elementary schools? It can, and it does. The degradation gets worse as kids get older — not innocent adolescent flirting and kidding around, but demeaning and abusive behavior."

Perhaps Bravo anticipated the case of Tianna Ugarte, now 14. When she was 11, a male classmate verbally and sexually harassed her. She and her parents complained to school officials and to the boy's parents. But no one acted. A few days ago, a jury told the Antioch School District near San Francisco to pay Tianna $500,000.

How will Antioch officials react the next time a student accuses a peer of sexual harassment? Officials elsewhere should stay tuned. They have excellent cause to ask if a kiss is just a kiss or if a kiss — in today's litigious climate — announces the beginning of trouble around the bend.

America's system of accountability has gone haywire

By PAUL CRAIG ROBERTS
Scripps Howard News Service

When 6-year-old kids are thrown out of school on sexual harassment charges for kissing a classmate on the cheek we know that name-calling in America has reached the outer limit.

The same insanity that caused the North Carolina public school system to make an example of little Johnathan Prevet soon struck again — this time in New York. The victim was 7-year-old old De'Andre Dearinge who gave an affectionate kiss to a little girl who seemed to be sad.

These cases appeared in the space of a week. No doubt there are other similar instances that have not made the press. A country with public institutions that treat the harmless acts of children as capital offenses is incapable of recognizing a real scoundrel. The same public that tolerates idiotic school officials in North Carolina and New York appears ready to return President Clinton to the Oval Office.

Clinton denies stealing kisses, but he terminated the drug interdiction program, putting the emphasis instead on the treatment of drug addicts. This has been a boon to the drug dealers. Shipments into the country have soared and so has drug use among teenagers. Clinton has deep-sixed a government study that is very critical of his drug policy and is claiming executive privilege to shield the study from the eyes of Congress.

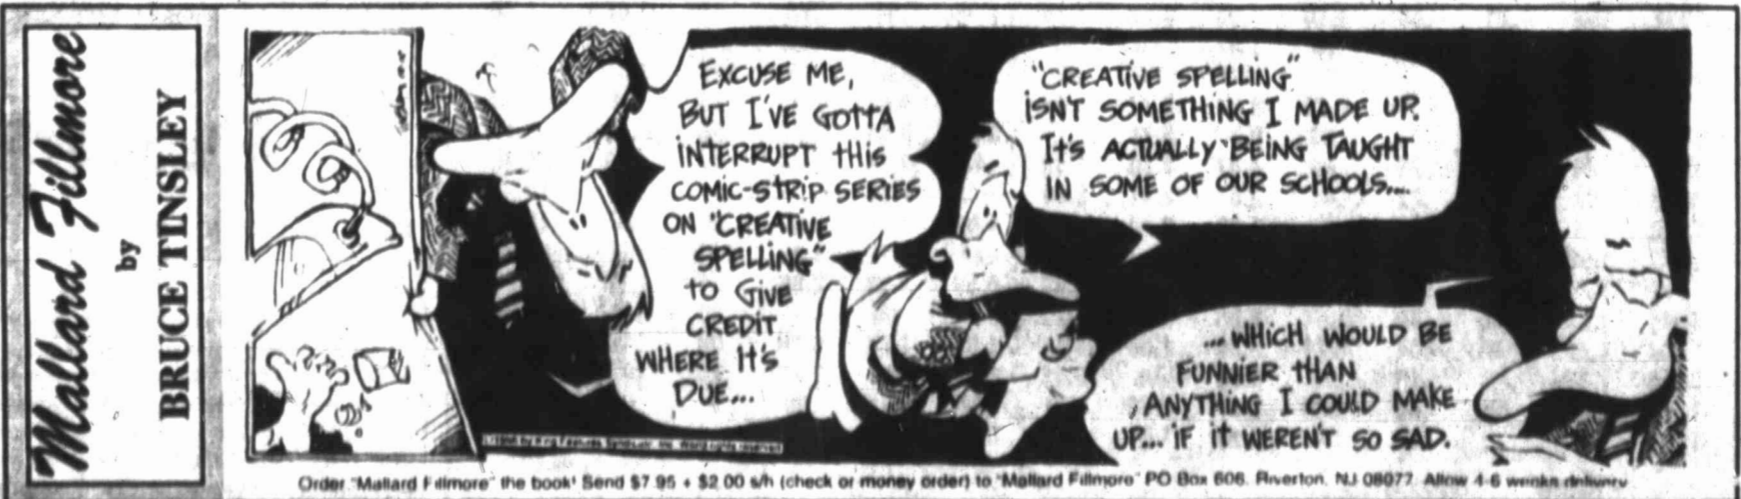

Why would a caring president protect a failed policy that benefits only drug dealers and Colombian cocaine lords? It is hard to think about this question without recalling Clinton's connections to the drug culture. Clinton supporter Dan Lasater was convicted for drug distribution and pardoned by then-Gov. Bill Clinton. Patsy Thomasson, a Lasater intimate who ran his financial affairs after his conviction, became special assistant to Clinton and director of the White House Office of Administration.

In his biography of the Clintons, "Partners in Power", Roger Morris relates a claim by former Arkansas state trooper Larry Douglas Brown, who said he reacted with horror at Governor Clinton's response to his report that he had personally witnessed drug smuggling into the Mena, Ark., airport. Not to worry, Clinton said, "That's Lasater's deal."

Perhaps one reason for throwing the kitchen sink at little Johnathan and De'Andre is that the country is impotent to deal with real issues and takes its frustrations out on little children. A country that treats its president like a little boy, but applies adult standards to children, has a broken system of accountability.

It's back to campaign trail, following polite VP face-off

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Vice President Al Gore and GOP challenger Jack Kemp are joining their bosses on the campaign trail after a mannerly debate over taxes, affirmative action, abortion and other policy differences.

Gore was linking up with President Clinton today for a rally in Knoxville, Tenn., while Kemp planned to join forces with Bob Dole and retired Gen. Colin Powell in Cincinnati at the start of a two-day Ohio bus

Gore and Kemp, in their 90-minute nationally televised debate Wednesday night, avoided the slashing attacks that have marked some previous vice presidential debates.

Kemp set the tone from the outset, passing up an opportunity to draw what moderator Jim Lehrer called "personal and ethical differences."

"In my opinion it is beneath Bob Dole to go after anyone personally," Kemp said.

But Kemp did go after Clinton administration policies, calling Clinton's proposal for targeted tax cuts "social engineering" and denouncing his foreign policy as "ambivalent, confusing (and) sending strong signals to the wrong people."

Gore fought back, deriding the Dole-Kemp proposal for a 15 percent tax cut as a "risky $550 billion tax scheme."

Gore was declared a clear winner by seven high school and college debate coaches who judged the debate for The Associated Press. In quick polls conducted by ABC, CBS and CNN, Gore came out the victor as well: about half of those surveyed said he won, compared to less than a third for Kemp.

Furthermore, national polls released Wednesday found Dole got no lift from the first presidential debate, leaving him far behind Clinton less than four weeks before Election Day.

Still, Dole campaign manager Scott Reed said the vice presidential debate "continues to allow us to move the ball down the field."

Dole watched the debate from suburban Chicago. "I'm very proud of him," the GOP nominee said. Dole spoke with Kemp by phone shortly after the debate; Clinton and Gore also talked long distance.

The campaign's third and final debate is between Clinton and Dole on Wednesday in San Diego.

Abortion and affirmative action — two issues that never surfaced in last Sunday's opening presidential showdown — were big items of contention in the vice presidential debate.

Although he supports a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion, as does Dole, Kemp called such a course unrealistic.

"There is no consensus," Kemp said. "A constitutional amendment would not pass. We must use persuasion, not intimidation."

Panel can find no link between Gulf service, mysterious syndrome

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prestigious panel of private medical experts says there is no evidence to link service in the Persian Gulf War with a group of ailments that have come to be known as Gulf War syndrome.

The committee of 18 scientists, physicians and epidemiologists convened by the Institute of Medicine, an arm of the National Academy of Sciences, issued its final report Wednesday.

Its core finding — that there is no firm evidence of a link between possible chemical exposure in the Persian Gulf region and resulting illness to military personnel who served there — echoes the findings of a number of other government studies.

However, the 140-page report comes at a time when increasing attention is being paid to government revelations that more troops than originally believed could have been exposed to traces of nerve gas after the destruction of Iraqi chemical weapons.

Even as it acknowledges the possibility of some exposure, however, the Pentagon is nowhere near ready to link low-level exposure to chemical weapons to a specific illness.

The Institute of Medicine said in its report that a review of various studies among clusters of veterans who reported similar symptoms of joint pain and stiffness, fatigue and mood disorders, gastrointestinal problems and sleeplessness showed they were no more prone to such ailments than other members of the military.

"Although these outbreak studies were successful in demonstrating a common pattern of perceived health problems across a range of military units deployed to the Gulf, they were not successful in demonstrating that these symptoms occurred at a higher rate ... than among veterans who did not serve in the Gulf or that these symptoms could be linked to specific medical diagnoses or exposures," it said.

However, the committee said the military needs to improve the way it keeps medical records to make researching such matters easier and that it "recognizes that studies provided thus far do not comprise a comprehensive scientific investigation of the health consequences of (Gulf) service."

In a statement accompanying the report, John Bailar, chairman of the advisory committee, said, "The recent confirmation that at least some American troops were exposed to chemical weapons heightens our obligation to soldiers and their families to provide investigators with an atmosphere most conducive to proper research."

The committee's report raised the ironic possibility that the relative lack of casualties and life-threatening wounds suffered during the Gulf deployment may have focused attention on symptoms that would have gone largely overlooked in other wars with more severe losses of life.

"Puzzling reactions and symptoms seen during and after prior conflicts may have been incorrectly attributed to battle casualties and infectious diseases that were considered unavoidable and even relatively acceptable outcomes of war," the committee wrote.

"Thus, the lower prevalence of battle injuries and infections in the Gulf theater may have unmasked psychophysiological symptoms that were present in earlier conflicts but attributed to injury and casualty."

FBI to begin interviews of TWA crash victims' families

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — After nearly three months of coming up dry in the investigation of TWA Flight 800, the FBI has informed the grieving relatives of the dead that agents will start asking them questions.

"We need the victims to be part of our team," said James Kallstrom, an FBI assistant director. "We want to obtain any information that they think may be of value to us."

Kallstrom, who is leading the criminal probe into the cause of the July 17 explosion that killed all 230 people aboard, said the delay in interviewing relatives came because agents were focused on other areas and because he wanted to spare the family members for as long as possible.

In a two-page letter sent last week to relatives, Kallstrom expressed his condolences and informed them that they would be contacted to set up an appointment in the next few weeks.

"An event such as this leaves all of us with many questions but with few answers," Kallstrom wrote.

"You have our commitment as professional investigators that we will spare no effort to answer one of those questions: What caused this terrible tragedy?"

Investigators' hopes of finding the key pieces to unlock the mystery have been renewed now that the Navy's sonar systems have picked up 200 more targets of debris over the last couple of days, a source told The Associated Press Wednesday on condition of anonymity.

"We hope the vital piece, if it exists, is among these new hits," the source said, adding that divers will investigate how many of the targets are from actual wreckage or from unrelated debris such as clam beds.

In addition to trying to find out whether the crash was caused by a bomb, a missile or a mechanical malfunction, agents have been considering other scenarios — such as whether it was an individual crime motivated by revenge, jealousy, insurance fraud or even suicide.

As part of the preparation for asking tough questions, about 50 FBI agents attended a three-hour sensitivity session with family members from two prior plane disasters.

"We hope that they understand we want to do a professional job, but with as much gentleness and compassion as we can," Kallstrom said. "We didn't want to repeat what some victim's families said was offensive treatment in the past by law enforcement."

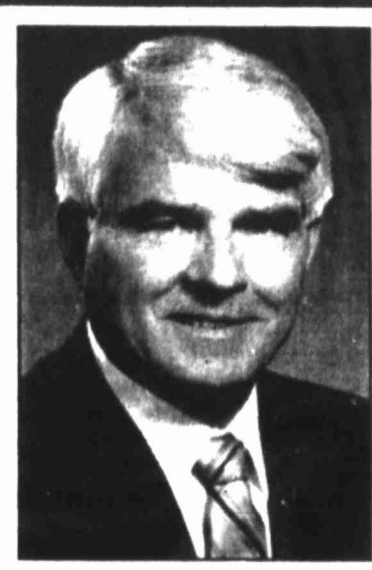

Victoria Cummock of Coral Gables, Fla., said she got cold, even rude treatment from FBI agents after her husband perished in the Pan Am Flight 103 bombing over Lockerbie, Scotland, eight years ago.

"I felt like I lost my husband and my country," said Cummock, who participated in the FBI sensitivity sessions. "They came unannounced to my door and told me, 'We are not here to answer your questions. We are here for you to answer ours, thank you very much.'"

She said many FBI agents were reluctant to reveal much information to the families, such as details about the bodies.

"I told them when someone has had so much taken away from them, you can't take any more away," said Cummock, who is president of the Families of Pan Am 103. "They are entitled to know. And sometimes your imagination of what happened is worse than the reality."

October 10, 1996

To the Citizens of Big Spring:

Moore Development has successfully completed its sixth year of operation. We are pleased to report that during the past six years, Moore Development For Big Spring, Inc. has directly helped 19 companies which will create approximately 411 jobs in Big Spring. The vital role Moore Development has played could not have been accomplished without your continued support.

1995-1996 was a productive year for Moore Development. A great working relationship has developed within the community between the private and public sectors. Particularly, county and city officials have been most helpful in achieving our goals. Highlights include:

- Contact with 87 companies, excluding trade shows
- Provided $269,000 in financial incentives to companies who will create 130 jobs in Big Spring
- Completion of a targeted industry study for Big Spring by The Pathfinders of Dallas, Texas
- Development of a comprehensive marketing plan
- Attended the Famborough Aviation Trade Show which attracts the leading aviation companies throughout the world and made personal contact with approximately 10 of these companies.

During the next fiscal year, we will continue to aggressively pursue the marketing plan and implement elements of the Pathfinder's Report. Our main focus is to work with the City of Big Spring to revitalize the McMahon-Winkle Airpark and utilize this asset to attract major aviation industries.

Much groundwork has been accomplished this year, with more and better things to come as we continue to work toward a better and more prosperous community.

Respectfully,

Human remains might help in finding solution to political assassination

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Bones. Hair. And a mud-covered human skull. These remains — discovered at a ranch belonging to a former president's brother — may strengthen the case against him in one of Mexico's most notorious political killings.

Mexican prosecutors suspect that the skull, bones and hair, unearthed Wednesday, are those of a man who conspired with Raul Salinas de Gortari to kill a political rival.

Raul Salinas is the elder brother of former President Carlos Salinas. Scion of a powerful political clan, Carlos Salinas left Mexico in disgrace soon after his term ended in December 1994; he was blamed for corruption and for the collapse of the country's economy.

Raul Salinas has been jailed since February 1995 on charges of plotting the murder of a top ruling party official, Jose Francisco Ruiz Massieu. He says he is innocent.

But prosecutors say Wednesday's discovery could represent powerful new evidence in the case against Raul Salinas, if forensic tests identify the remains as those of Salinas' alleged conspirator, Manuel Munoz Rocha.

"This is an impressive discovery and very important for us," said Pablo Chapa Bezanilla, the special prosecutor assigned to the Ruiz Massieu case, in a television interview.

Munoz Rocha, a federal congressman for the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, disappeared after the Sept. 28, 1994, slaying of Ruiz Massieu in Mexico City. Police have long believed Munoz Rocha was dead.

Prosecutors theorize that Munoz Rocha fled to the central Mexican city Pachuca, about 60 miles northeast of the capital, after the Ruiz Massieu slaying and then returned to Mexico City for a meeting with Raul Salinas.

Attorney General Antonio Lozano Gracia said the bones found Wednesday were those of a man and that authorities were treating the case as a homicide.

Although elated at the apparent breakthrough, prosecutors were cautious about judging the evidence.

"The concrete fact is that we have found a set of bones," Lozano told reporters in a news conference Wednesday night. "We will have to make all the studies necessary to identify plainly who it is, or was. We calculate that could take three weeks or a month."

One of Raul Salinas' lawyers, Eduardo Luengo Creel, told a television interviewer that the remains were "not necessarily" those of Munoz Rocha.

The Ruiz Massieu assassination came six months after the ruling PRI presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio was shot and killed at a political rally. The two slayings rocked Mexico during a crucial election year. More than two years later, both crimes remain unsolved.

Raul Salinas also faces charges of amassing an illegal fortune while a public servant in a government food agency of his brother's administration. More than $100 million has been discovered in overseas bank accounts he held.

Late Tuesday, scores of police descended on a Raul Salinas ranch in the Mexico City district of Cuajimalpa — known as "El Encanto," or "The Enchantment" — after prosecutors obtained a warrant to search there for Munoz Rocha's remains.

King to grant amnesty to American tourist's killers

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — King Norodom Sihanouk has agreed to pardon two men convicted of killing an American tourist in an ambush robbery after receiving a plea for clemency from her husband, himself badly wounded in the attack.

The king's intention to pardon the killers of Susan Ginsberg Hadden, a professor at the University of Texas, was announced in a letter from the king made public by the Royal Palace on Thursday.

"I shall grant the two prisoners the amnesty requested by you," Sihanouk wrote in the Oct. 10 letter to James Hadden Jr., who was in a van with his wife and other tourists when they were ambushed on Jan. 15 last year.

They had been headed to Banteay Srei temple, part of the famed Angkor Wat temple complex in the northern province of Siem Reap. Also killed was their Cambodian tour guide.

Sihanouk was responding to a Sept. 8 letter from Hadden requesting that amnesty be granted to Khang Chleun and Sok Kfok, two former Khmer Rouge soldiers who confessed to having participated in the attack.

"Words cannot assuage the pain you have suffered as a result of the actions of my compatriots but I want you and your family to know that I share in your grief at the tragic loss of Professor Susan Hadden, during your visit to our country," Sihanouk wrote Thursday.

Hadden's letter to Sihanouk, also made public by the palace, linked his request to release the men with an amnesty the king granted recently to Ieng Sary, a Khmer Rouge leader who broke with the guerrilla movement on August to seek peace with the government. The amnesty was granted in hopes of furthering national reconciliation after more than two decades of war and unrest.

"While the latter amnesty has great political significance, the release has perhaps even greater moral importance," Hadden wrote.

He said he felt the two imprisoned men were not solely responsible for his wife's death, and probably had been made scapegoats. Two other men were convicted in absentia because they escaped prison before the trial. An estimated 15 people took part in the ambush.

Hadden noted that the lack of economic opportunities might have driven the men to commit the crime, and that the men's families were suffering deprivation because of their incarceration.

The Khmer Rouge, who are communist guerrillas who refuse to accept the authority of the central government, took credit for the attack, but it was generally believed to be an act of banditry of the sort which is common in the Cambodian countryside.

Khang Chleun and Sok Kfok were sentenced in August 1995 to 15-18 years in prison after confessing to being near the scene of the murder.

Khang Chleu said at the trial that the attack was planned by their superior, Commander Ren.

The lawyer of the defendants noted during the trial that there was little evidence to indicate that his clients were involved in a premeditated murder or robbery.

In July, King Sihanouk issued a public statement warning expatriates and foreign tourists to protect themselves when visiting Cambodia.

Mexico's oil export earnings up

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico earned $6.6 billion in oil exports in the first eight months of the year, $1.49 billion more than in the same period last year, the Petroleos Mexicanos said Wednesday.

Pemex, as the state-owned oil monopoly is known, said it sold a daily average of 1.531 million barrels of crude oil during that period.

Pemex said it sold a daily average of 186,700 barrels of its light Isthmus crude to customers in North America, Europe and Asia. Those exports brought in revenue of $854 million.

It said it sold a daily average of 861,900 barrels of its heavy Maya crude to customers in the same geographic regions. Those exports brought in revenue of $3.38 billion.

Police arrest, question one suspect in IRA bombing of British barracks

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Police investigating the IRA bombing of the British army's headquarters in Northern Ireland arrested a man today in Belfast for questioning.

Police sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the man in his 30s was arrested at dawn at home in or near Poleglass, the vast Catholic public-housing district three miles north of Thiepval Barracks.

Nobody was killed in Monday's barracks bombing, but 31 soldiers and civilians were injured, including a man and woman still in critical condition with head wounds and serious burns.

It was the Irish Republican Army's first bombing in the British-ruled province since May 1994, and it could provoke pro-British paramilitary groups to break their own 2-year-old truce. The IRA ended its ceasefire in February but had confined its attacks to England and a British army base in Germany.

Under British anti-terrorist laws, the arrested man can be held for up to a week before being charged or released. Often, police spend days trying to interrogate IRA suspects who go free after refusing to speak.

Detectives revealed their main leads Wednesday by showing pictures of the three cars used by the IRA in the attack: two Volvo sedans that each carried more than 600 pounds of explosives into the base and a Volkswagen getaway car.

The Volkswagen drove out of the barracks' only security gate as the first car bomb exploded. The second detonated 15 minutes later by the base medical center, catching medics and the wounded from the first blast. The getaway car was found burning in Poleglass.

Police said they know the Volvos were bought with cash in June and July, but have no good description of the buyers. They issued a composite photo of a bearded man wearing a hood and glasses who bought the Volkswagen two weeks ago.

Six days after the IRA bought the cars, negotiations among nine parties and the British and Irish governments began in east Belfast.

The IRA-allied Sinn Fein party had demanded entry to the talks, but was barred because the IRA resumed its campaign of violence against British rule in February with a truck bomb in London.

Sir Patrick Mayhew, the British official in charge of Northern Ireland, said that Sinn Fein is still welcome in the peace talks — provided a "credible cease-fire" is restored.

"If Sinn Fein want to come in, they know what to do," he said. "We want to see Sinn Fein in, but on the same terms as everybody else. There must be a cease-fire first that is dependable."

He said the talks were making slow progress despite the party's absence. Mayhew predicted that if a political settlement were reached by democratic means, there would be no support for the IRA if it continued to bomb.

Sinn Fein spokesman Mitchel McLoughlin said the British government was "totally bereft of ideas."

"They have no handle on this peace process. ... And they are simply falling back on the old agenda that gave us 27 years of warfare on our streets," he said.

In claiming responsibility for the attack, the IRA said it intended to deal a blow to "the headquarters of the British occupying forces in Ireland."

Flower garden is educational tool for Bauer Elementary students

By KELLIE JONES
Features Editor

A flower garden is planted by most to beautify their lawns but at Bauer Magnet Elementary School, the garden's use goes beyond beauty to being an educational tool.

For the last five years, students in Betty Cain's third grade class have planted various flowers at the corner of two sidewalks at the school. Cain said the garden is part of a science project and students can learn so much from it.

"I had asked Andre Clark, the principal, if I could use this corner right outside my classroom and she said it was a great idea. It is not only educational, but it beautifies the school grounds.

"The students do so much of the gardening. It's a way to teach them about plants, insects and spiders. The students dug out the grass, we brought in some fertilizer and top soil then we planted some bulbs on the first day. We've planted caladiums, dahlias and elephants ears," Cain said. There are also zinnias and bachelor buttons. The students take time to weed the garden anytime they have to stand in line to go to music class, physical education, the library or computer lab.

"One winter there was a huge spider in the garden so it was a chance to teach them about good and bad spiders. They learned about how spiders protect plants and eat insects," Cain added.

Shortly before the rain in August, there was a pretty big toad hanging around for several days. Students from first through fifth grade would come by to see the animal. After it rained, the youngsters were wondering where the toad went. One of Cain's students, Erin Griffin, said, "It took a vacation. It didn't need our wet garden anymore because there are wet gardens all over now."

Cain said the students love to plant, weed and learn in the garden. Some of the seeds have been spread through wind and rain and now flowers are sprouting up across the sidewalk next to a different building.

Janie Swafford to teach the vision-impaired

Special to the HERALD

Janie Swafford, a Big Spring teacher, recently completed an Orientation and Mobility Internship at the Dallas Lighthouse for the Blind. She taught people that had little or no vision the skills they need to get around their community safely while using a white cane. The cane signifies to others the person is vision-impaired. The training focuses on teaching the person how to walk safely in places unfamiliar to them such as buildings, grounds and streets.

"The most challenging aspect of my job is finding ways that will make my clients' independent travel successful. I enjoy seeing the satisfaction they have when they realize they can be independent."

Laurie Thompson, Dallas Lighthouse O&M supervisor said, "Janie does a good job with the senior citizens and her experience at the Lighthouse will take her through the rest of her life since there are few O&M specialists who work with adults."

Swafford added she was ready to change professions when she accepted an offer from the Big Spring Independent School District to become an instructor for vision-impaired students and then train to become an O&M specialist. In the past, she has taught special education classes at BSISD.

She said she's ready to put what she has learned to work for the school district where she plans to continue to teach students from birth through age 21. She's hoping to contract with the Texas Commission for the Blind to work with adults at night and on weekends.

Swafford is currently working on her master's degree in special education with an emphasis in O&M from Texas Tech in Lubbock. She earned a bachelor of science degree from Angelo State University.

From door to door and floor to floor

Scripps Howard News Service

PITTSBURGH — Even at seven months shy of 100, Don Earl isn't about to retire because it would leave a vacuum in his life and, when it comes to vacuums, he knows more than any salesman living. He's sold thousands of the things. He's sold them door-to-door. He sold one to Thomas Edison. When it comes to vacuum cleaners, Earl just can't bring himself to pull the plug. "Oh yeah, every once in a while somebody may call me up," said Earl, who was honored recently for 68 years of service by Electrolux. When he started to draw his pension at age 68, Earl decided to stay on the company's active rolls, said district manager Gust Vastardis. Every year he logs a few sales and continues to fix machines he's sold when something goes wrong. Nowadays, though, the customers call him, at his home in suburban Cleveland.

Not that Earl is about to suggest much ever goes wrong with the machines he's been hawking since he answered an ad in The New York Times in 1928 and started lugging the Swedish-made Model XI canister vacuum cleaners around his native New Jersey.

"That's when I learned, if you want to make money, go where the money is," said Earl, who moved to Cleveland in 1936 to start up the division there and now works out of the firm's Pittsburgh branch.

One place the money was, in those heady days of the 1920s, was the home of the founder of Colgate — as in the toothpaste.

"He bought four cleaners from me one day," Earl beamed. Two were for cleaning up clippings from horses and cattle when they were groomed in the stables. Another was for the Colgate garage, brimming with Packards and Pierce Arrows.

"And only one for his house," Earl said with the voice of a man who was thinking of going back. "He should have had three for his home."

When Earl started going door-to-door he made a few discoveries. One was that the back door was often better than the front, at least if the house was large enough.

"Go to the back door, to the help, the maid," Earl said. "Tell her, 'Now, wouldn't you like one of these from us?' and let her sell it to the owner."

He long ago lost count of how many he sold. The sale he remembers best was to Thomas Edison, the inventor. It was one of his first. When he signed on with the company, he thought he'd be selling to industries, so he showed up at the Edison laboratory in East Orange, N.J., one day and showed the workmen there how well his machine could pull up sawdust and dirt from the shop floor.

The white-haired Edison walked by accompanied by two executives in suits so fine Earl remembers them seven decades later.

"He walked by, gave a look at the vacuum and did this" — Earl gave the knowing nod of a wealthy man who doesn't speak when he buys something.

"My doctor lets me have a glass of beer every day when I'm watching the news."

And if he's just finished mowing his grass, Earl has two.

ODDS & ENDS

Woman wins $25,000 in chili contest

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Hot spices earned a Michigan woman a cool $25,000 in a worldwide chili competition.

"My chili is not real hot, but I'd say it's on the stronger side," said Georgia Weller of Bloomfield Hills, Mich. "It has a good overall flavor — no one spice stands out."

The 46-year-old billing supervisor outcooked 114 other chili-makers recently to take the top prize in the 30th annual World's Championship Cookoff at the Reno Hilton.

Cajun chef Paul Prudhomme of New Orleans, a contest judge, said it was a tough call.

"The array of herbs and spices are different from bowl to bowl," he said. "You look for taste, so one flavor doesn't dominate. It's so close other than that."

Man's best friend saves lives

WEST DENNIS, Mass. (AP) — A golden retriever has earned the title "Man's Best Friend."

The two-year-old dog, Lexi, saved three people from a burning home last weekend by licking the face of one occupant until he woke up.

Everybody was asleep when fire spread from a faulty second-floor fireplace into the attic of the Cape Cod home. About 4 a.m., Bob Colberg awoke to a roomful of heavy smoke and Lexi licking his face. He ran to wake up the others.

"If it weren't for him, they'd be in a lot different condition," Dennis Fire Capt. Richard Farrenkopf said. "There was a smoke detector downstairs, but no battery in it."

The occupants said Lexi would be getting a steak dinner for the heroics.

SLICE of Life!

Healthy children
(NAPS)—How to raise healthy children:
•Limit television watching. Encourage kids to spend time outdoors.
•Check out play groups, local "fun runs" and sports teams as ways to increase activity levels.
•Let kids walk the dog, or schedule a family walk for after dinner.
•Provide kids access to a variety of exercise options such as monkey bars, a basketball hoop, a track or bicycle path.
•Set an example by making exercise a priority in your life.
•Select low fat versions of luncheon meats and dairy products. Instead of fatty candy and cookies, serve frozen grapes, melon balls, ripple-cut carrot sticks and juicy strips of red pepper.
•The rate of obesity in children has risen 55 percent in 25 years. Today's kids spend more time watching television and playing video games than they do exercising.

READ ALL ABOUT IT

This column is based on an AP story that was for use on Sept. 16.

Test your reading comprehension by reading the story below and answering the questions that follow.

Wiz Kid Memorizes Presidents

PERRYVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Tyson Koenig knows which president had the most children, which was the youngest to take office and which one was arrested in the White House. Not bad for an 8-year-old.

"I can tell you their names in order, forwards and backwards, when they served, their birth dates and when they died and lots of facts about their lives," Tyson said.

His knack for rattling off presidential trivia led to an invitation to be a guest on David Letterman's "Late Show" tonight.

Tyson has always been quick to learn facts, said his mother, Dianna Koenig of rural Perryville, about 90 miles south of St. Louis.

He started memorizing birth dates, anniversaries and license plate numbers, she said. But when he added license plate expiration dates to his repertoire, Mrs. Koenig became concerned.

"That's when we said there's better things to memorize," she joked.

So which president did have the most offspring?

"John Tyler. He had 15 children from his two wives," Tyson said.

And who was the youngest president to take office?

"Theodore Roosevelt," Tyson replied. Roosevelt took office at the age of 42 after his predecessor, William McKinley, was assassinated in 1901.

The third-grader was quick to add, however, that John F. Kennedy was the youngest man ever elected to office when he won the presidency at age 43 in 1960.

It was Ulysses S. Grant who was arrested while in office, Tyson said.

"He was speeding in his horse and buggy," the boy explained. "When the officer came to arrest him, he said, 'I'm sorry, Mr. President, I didn't know it was you,' and (Grant) said, 'Officer, do your duty.'"

The Presidential Debates

Top Job Interviews

When you go on a job interview, you put your best foot forward. You want to make the best impression possible.

Every four years we elect our president. Special job interviews for our country's top job, the president of the United States, have been held in six out of the past nine national elections.

These interviews take place on national TV. Millions of viewers watch. They are judging not only what the candidates say, but also how they handle themselves in a series of three debates.

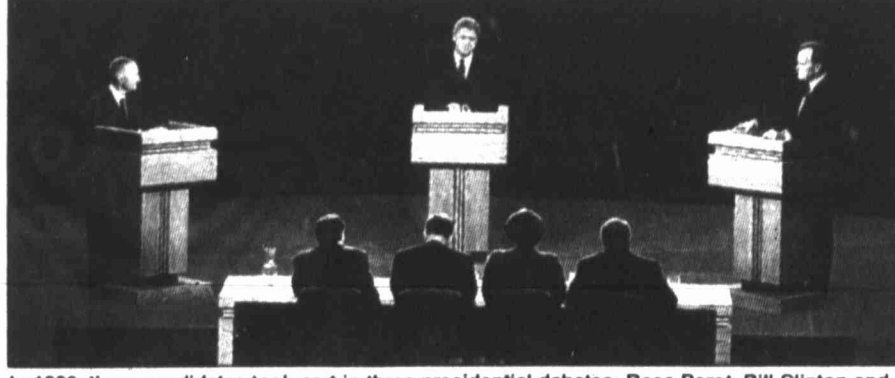

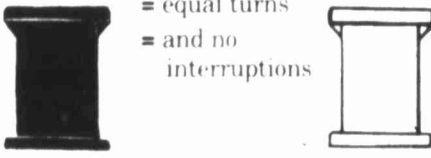

Debates

A debate is an organized way of presenting different viewpoints. The candidates must agree to a plan or format. They are aware that these debates are a great opportunity to reach and maybe influence voters.

Rules

To make things fair, certain rules apply:

- = equal number of questions
= equal time limits to answer them
= equal turns
= and no interruptions

In 1992, three candidates took part in three presidential debates: Ross Perot, Bill Clinton and George Bush. This photo shows members of the press sitting at a table while the debaters stand behind special stands called lecterns. About 97 million viewers watched the last in a series of three debates.

The series

In recent elections there have been three debates in the series. In two of them, members of the press asked questions of the leading candidates.

In one of the debates, citizens asked questions. This type of program is called a town meeting.

The candidates for vice president also debate in another nationwide TV program.

In 1992, candidates were more relaxed in the more informal town meetings, where citizens ask the questions.

The first TV debates

John F. Kennedy Richard M. Nixon

The first face-to-face nationwide TV debate was held in 1960 between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon. Nixon looks great in the photo to the left, but in these debates he looked haggard and nervous. Many people felt that this gave Kennedy an advantage.

Kennedy won this election. Nixon ran for president eight years later and won. There were no national TV debates during that election.

"He's a very smart young man. He's had a full week of work to get ready, and if he doesn't get too upset he should be pretty good."

Mendoza isn't the only one who needs to come through. The Steers need a reversion to top form of the offensive line, which did not have a good outing against Levelland.

"When our offensive line plays good, we play good," Butler said. "When they don't, we don't. I know it's hard for us to block the eight-man fronts being thrown against us. But we've got to use that as a rallying point instead of an excuse."

There wasn't much wrong with a defense that allowed Levelland less than 40 total yards and one first down in the second half.

Butler was particularly happy with ends Gabe Rubio and Jeff Denton. Linebacker Brock Gee played "an awful good game," as did his cohorts Brodie Dunn at sam linebacker and Tyler Murphy. In the secondary, Todd McAdams was a standout.

"Really, everyone on our defense played well," Butler said.

Kickoff off time on Friday night is 7:30 at Memorial Stadium.

Despite Cox's individual heroics, head coach Roger Smith says it is the team effort that has made the Wildcats so successful so far.

"The kids are coming together and playing as a team," he said. "No one is concerned with being a star. No one has a big head."

The Cats will have to hang together again against Loop. Their biggest player is 279 pounds, and that's twice the size of the average Wildcat.

Smith noted, "They're not real fast, but they're big and physical."

Grady's biggest is 180-pound center Jed Hinjosa. Cox is a mere 140.

GARDEN CITY vs IRION COUNTY

8 p.m. at Garden City

The Garden City Bearkats (1-4) boast a sizzling passing game. Quarterback Bradley Batla has aired it out for 1,068 yards this season.

But the Kat people have not been able to run the football, and things hit bottom last week in the loss to Sterling City, in which they did not net a ground yard.

They hope for a more successful ground game this week against Irion County, but it won't be easy.

"They are very large people," said head coach Dennis Bryant. "They're big and they spread you out. They're very physical and large up front. Their tailback is a big old kid, and their quarterback throws 25 to 30 times a game like we do."

Batla's best target is Michael Cox, who last week snared seven passes for 102 yards. He was also outstanding on defense, making 12 tackles and intercepting a pass. Another good catcher is Kelly Lankford, who had six receptions for 79 yards. It could be an all-out air battle, which Garden City must win to have any chance for the playoffs.

"We need this to stay in hunt," Bryant said. "It's a big must. We've got to win this ballgame."

STANTON vs MCCAMEY

8 p.m. at Stanton

Things couldn't be going much better for the Stanton Buffalos, who have knocked off each of their last two opponents by the score of 37-0.

Sophomore quarterback Kyle Herm has been outstanding, especially in the last two games, and he has a great target in Leo McCallister.

In McCamey, the Buffs are taking on a fine club that features an excellent tailback in Joe DeLeon (1,072 rushing yards last year) and quarterback Isiah Navarrete, a fine passing and running threat.

Yankees

Tarasco seemed to settle under at the base of the wall. As the ball descended, Tarasco raised his glove to make the catch when Maier stuck his glove in the way, pulling the ball over the 9-foot-high wall.

Right field umpire Rich Garcia, standing only a few feet away on the warning track, signaled home run. Yankee Stadium exploded in celebration and Tarasco went ballistic.

The other Orioles sprinted to the right-field corner to join Tarasco in his protest as Yankees fans pelted them with debris. After a heated exchange with Garcia, Orioles manager Davey Johnson was ejected and the play seemed to take all the momentum out of Baltimore.

"I always say that one play doesn't beat you in a ball game," Johnson said. "But this is about as close as you can come."

Garcia, considered one of the best ump's in the game, had his own view.

From blues to rock and roll, musicians call Texas home

David Gulon, a native of Ballinger, wrote, "Home on the Range." Lawrence Welk, the champagne musician, organized his first band at the Yates Hotel in Rankin. T. B. Beneke of Fort Worth conducted the Glenn Miller Orchestra.

Tumbleweed Smith
Columnist

The current edition of the Texas Almanac has a cover article on Texas musicians. It tells about the Texas Music Office, authorized by the state legislature to promote the music industry in the state. Music has been a part of Texas ever since there has been a Texas. The variety of Texas music reflects the state's rich cultural heritage. You can hear country, rock and roll, blues, conjunto, zydeco, gospel polkas, classical and big band jazz anytime of day or night in Texas.

Before Van Cliburn won his wide fame in the Moscow piano competition and became the first musician to be honored with a ticker tape parade up Broadway, other Texas musicians were learning, working and practicing on their instruments or with their voices, hoping one day to make a living with their music.

It seems before Van Cliburn's victorious return to Texas more than 30 years ago, prominent and well known Texas musicians were just musicians. But the classical triumph of Kilgore-born Van Cliburn brought attention to the state's music and music makers.

Jimmie Rodgers, the singing brakeman, came to Texas from Mississippi and had a big influence on country music.

Bob Wills grew up around Turkey listening to Eck Robertson of Amarillo, the first fiddler to record country music. Wills developed a band called The Light Crust Doughboys, formed by W. Lee O'Daniel a president of a flour company and future governor. He used the band to sell flour.

Lefty Frizzell hails from Corsicana. Jim Reeves and Tex Ritter both call Carthage, Texas home. Willie Nelson grew up at Abbott and Waylon Jennings is from Littlefield. John Denver grew up in Fort Worth. Mance Lipscomb was born near Navasota and sang blues, ballads and religious songs.

Huddie Ledbetter, known as "Leadbelly" and who popularized the song "Good Night, Irene" was born on the shores of Caddo Lake.

Blind Lemon Jefferson, who became the first country blues recording star, was born at Couchman and played his guitar and sang on Deep Elm in Dallas.

Jazz trombonist Jack Teagarten was born at Vernon. Roy Orbison grew up at Wink. Buddy Holly called Lubbock home.

Santiago Jimenez of San Antonio gave life to Tex-Mex music with his accordion. Janis Joplin was from Beaumont. Stevie Ray Vaughn was from Dallas. Composer Scott Joplin was from Texarkana. Texas Ruby, born in Wise County, was a fixture on the Grand Ole Opry in the 1940s. Cindy Walker of Mexia wrote "Dream Baby," "Bubbles in My Beer," and "When My Blue Moon Turns to Gold Again." She was the first woman inducted into the Nashville Songwriters Hall of Fame.

Other Texas musicians and their home towns are: Vernon Dalhart, Jefferson; Hank Thompson, Waco; Johnny Horton, Tyler; Kay Starr, Dallas; Ray Price, Perryville;

George Jones, Saratoga; Trini Lopez, Dallas; Roger Miller, Fort Worth; B.J. Thomas, Houston and Jennie C. Riley, Anson.

Also, Tanya Tucker, Seminole; Michael Murphy, Dallas; Kris Kristofferson, Brownsville; Johnny Rodriguez, Sabinal; Barbara Mandrell, Houston; George Strait, San Marcos; Lyle Lovett, Houston; T. Bone Walker, Linden and Lightnin' Hopkins, Centerville.

Also, Harry James, Beaumont; Boz Skaggs, Dallas; Christopher Cross, San Antonio; Steve Miller, Dallas; Don Henley, Linden; Joe Ely, Lubbock; Selena, Corpus Christi; Kinky Friedman, Medina; and Holye and Jody Nix, Big Spring.

Open house gives chance for BSSH to thank volunteers for their service

Big Spring State Hospital volunteers will be hosting a fall open house at the home of Pat Rutledge.

Kathy Higgins
BSSH

It is scheduled for Thursday from 4-7 p.m. The party is an appreciation of volunteers and all those in our community who support the hospital and volunteer programs. J. Wildes' of San Angelo will be displaying decorations, furniture and providing informal modeling during the party. All ladies who help our hospital or who are interested in helping are invited to attend.

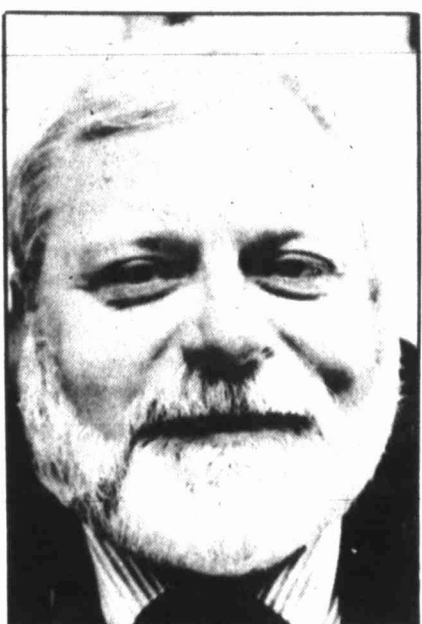

The 27th annual Awards Banquet and Program is Oct. 10 at BSSH for all employees. Service and special awards will be presented by Superintendent Ed Moughon and hospital department heads. Serving will begin at 5:30 p.m. at the Allred Building. Tickets are $6 for adults and children under 12 are $2.50. They may be purchased at the cashier's office.

BSSH recently hit the professional press with an article using BSSH test data published in the "Journal of Personality Assessment." The article included the late Dr. Anne Mann as a contributor to the project.

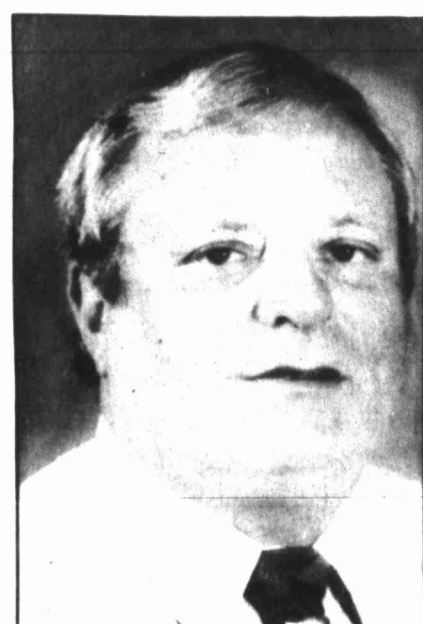

Chief Psychologist, Dr. John Pichitino, and Kevin Stevenson M.S., recently conducted screening data to differentiate psychotic from nonpsychotic patients and their research was accepted for a poster presentation. It will be used this month at the annual meeting of the National Academy of Neuropsychology. The abstract of this research project will be published in the "Archives of Clinical Neuropsychology" later this fall.

The State Employee Charitable Campaign kicked off the 1996 campaign Tuesday, Oct. 1 with a Fall Fest carnival. This year's festivities will run through Friday and all departments and staff are being asked to participate. The carnival included a bean bag toss, pie throw, shooting gallery, baseball throw, cake and a face painting booth. Fall Fest was the first fund raiser for the Charitable Campaign and employees may make cash donations or paycheck deductions. For further information, call Cheryl Parrish, chairperson, at extension 7222 or blit@bssh.com.

Here are the before and after photos of BSSH Assistant Superintendent W.C. Earnst. Employees with the Human Resources Department asked him if he would shave his beard off if they were able to raise $50 for the Charitable Campaign and he accepted the challenge. The department raised $75.

Dates to remember:
• Thursday - volunteer appreciation open house, home of Pat Rutledge, 2101 E. 25th St., come and go from 4-7 p.m.
• Thursday - BSSH Employee Awards Banquet at the Allred Building, 5:30 p.m., tickets are $6 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12 years of age.

• Oct. 18 - Region 1 Meeting, Abilene State School
• Oct. 21 - Volunteer Services Board Meeting, noon, Community Relations Office
• Oct. 31 - Halloween Parade, BSSH, 1:30 p.m.
• Nov. 7 - Volunteer Luncheon and Christmas Bazaar, Allred Building, 11:30 a.m.

Kathy Higgins is the director of community relations at BSSH, which includes the volunteer services and public information department.

WRITING A CLASSIFIED AD

Start your ad with the item for sale, service you are offering, or job title of the person you're looking for. Be descriptive. The detail information is what sells the item to the reader. Always include the price of the item. Avoid abbreviations they only confuse the reader. Run your ad for an ample length of time. Remember, always check your ad for correct phone numbers, addresses, etc., on the first day of publication.

HUMANE SOCIETY

Pictured: "Mushroom" is a cute black and white short-haired Boxer mix, medium build, neutered male, age one and a half years, very devoted and looking for a one-to-one relationship with a new owner. He loves lap time and gives generous kisses!

Special Note: All dogs and cats presently available for adoption at the shelter have received their vaccinations, including rabies.

"Omar" one and a half year old neutered male brindle Pug mix, very loving and cute in an unusual way.

"Missy" black and white spotted long-haired Dachshund mix, spayed female, very sweet and loves to ride in the car.

"B&K Bunch" Collie/Spaniel mix pups with black, cream and freckled coats, two females, three males, 12 weeks old, all affectionate and ready to live up your household.

"Roughneck" large male Chow/Shepherd cross, very outgoing and loves to play.

"The Girls" five black and white Border Collie puppies, eight weeks old, frisky and very busy.

"Binford" very large neutered male Whippet/Greyhound mix, needs a lot of room to run, very energetic.

"Peck" small neutered male Shepherd mix, timid but loves attention.

These, plus many more dogs and cats are awaiting adoption. Adoption fees for dogs are just $45 and cats are $35. This includes spaying or neutering, vaccinations, wormings and rabies shots. Also covers feline leukemia tests for cats. All pets come with a two-week trial period.

Free at other homes: 10 Shepherd/Heeler mix puppies, seven males and three females, all colors, ready for new homes, 394-4375.

Five terrier mix puppies, males and females, three months old, cute and playful, see at 1600 Lincoln.
