City fires housing director, asking for criminal investigation

By JOHN H. WALKER

Managing Editor

Big Spring city officials on Monday terminated Marv Scurllark as housing assistance program director after an external audit found there was a misappropriation of funds as well as a failure to follow personnel policies and procedures.

Scurllark had been placed on paid administrative leave on Oct. 8.

Assistant City Manager Emma Bogard, at a press conference this morning, said all findings in connection with the incident will be turned over to the Texas Rangers for investigation.

Scurllark, an Odessa resident who had been in the $24,000 per year position since February 1994, supervised two clerks in the department that coordinated federally funded housing assistance for an estimated 300 families in Big Spring.

Attempts to reach Scurllark at her home were unsuccessful and a woman who answered the telephone refused to identify herself or say how or if Scurllark could be reached.

Bogard declined to identify the amount involved in the case, saying only that it involved "several thousand dollars."

Bogard said Scurllark still has appeal procedures she can follow, which includes five days to appeal to the city manager after being notified of her termination. Scurllark, however, failed to show at a due-process hearing between the time she was placed on leave and the time she was terminated.

Since Scurllark has not exhausted her appeals, Bogard said no effort has been made to find a replacement.

"It will be open for the next couple of weeks for sure. City personnel have been pulling together to ensure that all the business that needs to be conducted is taken care of," Bogard said.

The discrepancies in the department largely involved travel expenses and the lack of documentation for those expenses.

Scurllark had told City Manager Gary Fuqua that his predecessor, current Abilene city manager Lanny Lambert, had told her to go to all the training schools possible.

"We want our employees to get as much training as possible," Bogard said, "but there is a limit and we do have a travel policy."

Part of the problem, Bogard said, was that Scurllark's department was a stand-alone department using federal funds. To ensure that similar problems don't arise in the future, Bogard said all finances will now go through the city's finance department.

Bill Mims succumbs to illness

Former Howard County Engineer Bill G. Mims, 71, died this morning after a brief illness.

Mims, who recently lost a close election for Howard County Commission Precinct 3, died at Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

County Judge Ben Lockhart, a long-time friend, was subdued at the news of Mims' passing.

"I haven't seen him as much since he left the courthouse, but when he was there we'd have coffee almost every morning," Lockhart said. "He was always pulling something. He was a real good friend and I'm going to miss him."

Aside from his work as county engineer, Mims also served on the board of directors of Citizens Federal Credit Union for about 13 years and the city of Big Spring's Board of Adjustments and Appeals for about 10 years.

He might be best known in the community, however, for his many years of service to Little League. Mims served as a

BSISD trustees appoint Fraser to board vacancy

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

After seeing special projects to fruition for the Big Spring Independent School District, Steve Fraser now will handle education as a member of the board of trustees.

Fraser was appointed by the Big Spring ISD board during its regular meeting Thursday afternoon at the high school.

Fraser fills the at-large seat vacated by Dan Wise, who recently stepped down after 13 years on the board to devote more time to his private business. The balance of Wise's unexpired term runs until May.

Trustees discussed "five or six" potential replacements for Wise, president Glynn Mouton said, but placed only Fraser's name in nomination after emerging from a 30-minute executive session.

The vote naming Fraser to the board was unanimous.

STEVE FRASER

Fraser endeared himself to the board when he spearheaded the recent successful school bond issue and helped build a consensus for the construction of the new high school athletic facility.

That, plus his status as a community business leader, made him the most attractive candidate, Mouton said.

"He has business experience, he's helped us with the Junior Achievement Program... and he gave us tons of help (on the school bond issue)," Mouton said.

Trustee Al Valdez said the board will benefit from Fraser's presence.

"I believe we got the best qualified man," Valdez said. "He's very dedicated, and he's helped us a lot of the new athletic facility and the school bond. We had some good candidates for the seat, but this guy has shown that he wants to help the kids in this district."

Fraser, who was not present at the meeting, said he is honored by the appointment.

"This is something I wanted to do for quite a while," Fraser said. "I think I've got some huge shoes to fill. Dan Wise did a very good job for a number of years."

Despite his previous work on behalf of the district, Fraser said he will still undergo a learning period before he's comfortable with the job.

"I think it'll be a little different," he said. "Most of the things I worked on in the past were things I put a priority on. The school board faces a much broader set of issues."

Fraser confirmed that he is already leaning toward running for election on his own right when the current term ends in May.

"I would hope that would be available," he said. "It's something we would have to look at... but I would like to serve on the school board for number of years if the people will have me."

In other business, trustees:

- Named Group & Pension Administrator's Inc. as the district's third-party administrator for insurance claims and First Life of Georgia as the district's re-insurer.

- Approved a vendor's list for the current school year.

- Approved a tax roll of $686.03 million for the current school year.

- Accepted the resignation of junior high art teacher Ronald Baker.

Moore Board waiting to learn if mobile home firm is coming

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

Moore Development For Big Spring board members will know in about two weeks if they have lured a mobile home manufacturing facility to Big Spring.

If the company selects Big Spring as its new home, it will move into the old Wright Fibers building on Eleventh Place.

During Thursday's board meeting Moore Development also heard from Parks Insurance Agency representative Ray Kennedy concerning liability insurance on the Eleventh Place facility.

Currently there is no liability insurance on that building, but Moore Development does have general liability on its property.

Kennedy told board members that specific buildings have to be insured separately and that Moore Development could add a rider to its current policy that would give the building $1 million in liability coverage for $4,400.

The issue was tabled when board member Joyce Crooker suggested waiting until after Thanksgiving to see if Big Spring would land one of two potential projects. If a company does relocate to Big Spring and uses the building on Eleventh Place, it could be required to provide its own liability insurance.

Director Phil Carruthers said waiting for that purpose is all right, but he hates to see that type of (liability) exposure go unresolved for very long.

Moore Development also looked at bids for renovating its offices as well as for termite treatment.

Awarding bids for renovations were put on hold until board members could look at the plans closer and decide whether or not they want to spend the amounts quoted in the two bids received for the project.

Moore Development is renovating the offices it shares with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce to make more efficient use of the space in the building.

Board member backed off on awarding the bids because they were higher than expected.

There was also a little disappointment expressed because there weren't more bids on the project.

Board president Bob Scott said because the job requires a contractor to be bonded, several small firms, some local, aren't able to bid. He added the job is also not attractive to some contractors because it's a remodeling job.

The bid for termite treatment was awarded to Southwestern Pest Control for $3,000, but treatment will probably coincide with renovations once a bid is awarded.

Lawmakers express concerns on Zaire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is trying to reassure skeptical lawmakers that the proposed deployment of 4,000 U.S. troops to Zaire will not turn into another Somalia.

Before U.S. troops join a Canadian-led multinational force trying to prevent starvation among 1 million refugees in Zaire, the administration wants warring factions there to adopt a cease-fire.

Although the Americans would be armed to defend themselves, "we aren't anticipating a combat operation," Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon told reporters Thursday. "What we would like is a pledge by the sides that there will be a cease-fire."

The proposal to send 1,000

U.S. troops to secure the Goma airfield and about 3,000 others to open an air bridge of relief supplies was still under discussion at the United Nations.

In addition to Canada and the United States, the force of 10,000 to 12,000 is expected to include troops from France, Britain, Spain, South Africa and several other nations.

The U.N. Security Council delayed a decision on authorizing the force until today at the earliest. But countries taking part in the multinational force agreed late Thursday to a four-month mission, in line with a U.S. recommendation. Canada had recommended that the force remain in Zaire for six months.

President Clinton agreed in principle on Wednesday to dispatch a force, spearheaded by the 1,000 Army paratroopers from their base in Vincenza, Italy.

Senate Republicans were quick to express concern about the dangers of the proposed mission. Zairean rebels control the airport near Goma in eastern Zaire, which U.S. forces would use to ferry supplies to the refugees.

Rep. Ben Gilman, R-N.Y., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said the administration must insist on a "real" cease-fire before any multinational force moves in.

"It is... imperative that the president provide assurances to the Congress and the American people that U.S. troops will not be drawn into a Somalia-like quagmire of warlord-hunting," Gilman said in a statement.

Defense Secretary William Perry told reporters the United States wants "the acquiescence" of the warring factions before entering the region.

"We are not planning a mission to go in and disarm factions or to separate military from refugees," Perry said. "This is a humanitarian mission."

Perry met with members of the Senate Armed Services Committee on Thursday in an effort to calm lawmakers' concerns, a meeting Bacon said "went extremely well."

But Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., a member of the committee, said the administration had "good intentions but no clear goals" and was acting "as if the memories and lessons of Somalia have been forgotten."

U.S. forces entered Somalia to avert massive starvation in late 1992, but 18 Americans were killed in a botched effort to capture Somali warlord Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid. Within months, U.S. forces withdrew from the African country.

By contrast, Bacon said plans call for troops sent to Zaire to avoid the tricky job of disarming Hutu militiamen who live among the refugees, or even separating them from the refugees they hide among.

He said the 1,000 troops would attempt to open a two-mile corridor from the Goma airport into a border town in Rwanda, where relief supplies are located.

Air Force units — primarily from U.S. bases in Europe — would set up logistics and cargo-handling bases in nearby countries, in order to stage relief flights.

The airport in Goma has a limited tarmac and is only able to handle two C-5 transport planes at a time, Bacon said.

Other U.S. forces would include civil affairs specialists and psychological operations units, which specialize in using broadcasts or printed information to communicate with the local populace.

A 43-member U.S. survey team, led by U.S. Army Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Smith, arrived in Rwanda on Thursday for preliminary work.

For months, the administration had ruled out use of ground troops in Central Africa but gradually dropped its opposition as the humanitarian crisis worsened.

Judge orders teen to view autopsy as part of sentence

HOUSTON — A teen-ager convicted in a drive-by shooting has been ordered to witness an autopsy, probably of a gunshot victim, as part of his probation sentence.

District Judge W.R. Voigt sentenced Robert Perez, 19, to five years probation and ordered him to spend three months in the Harris County boot camp in addition to viewing the autopsy.

The judge said during Wednesday's sentencing that viewing the autopsy would give Perez a close-up look at the effects of violent crime.

Perez was convicted of firing three shots into a house on July 18 in a gang squabble. None of the three people in the house was injured.

"Violence is epidemic and has been sanitized. Young people do not realize the terrible wounds made by knives and guns," Voigt said. "When you see someone opened up like that, the brains removed, you realize that life has ended."

Sexually oriented videotapes to be crushed

GRAND PRAIRIE — Jim Ryffel got more than he bargained for when he went to court seeking damages from a lease-breaking tenant.

He wound up getting a collection of 3,000 sexually oriented videotapes when he took the Cinematyme Entertainment video chain to court for vacating five lease sites owned by Ryffel's Woodcrest Management Co.

Ryffel doesn't want the tapes so he's going to put them on display in the parking lot of Trailwood Village shopping center in Grand Prairie today just long enough to crush them with some high-powered equipment.

"Some people might look at that and say, 'That's $50,000 worth of tapes.' But we look at it and say, 'We've got a pile of garbage that does not need to be distributed back to the community,'" he said.

The crushing was to be done by a diesel-powered pad drug roller being furnished for free by DARR Equipment Co. of Garland.

Fundamentalist group may take over pre-release program

HOUSTON — A fundamentalist Christian group founded by Watergate figure Charles Colson may soon be allowed to run pre-release programs at a minimum-security state prison unit near Sugar Land.

The measure was to be considered today by state corrections officials. It was approved by the board's programs committee Thursday.

The program, which would not cost the state anything, is part of an effort to keep paroled and released convicts from returning to prison.

The program addresses the needs of prisoners and their families through counseling, and of crime victims through restitution and is based on a similar 20-year effort in Brazil.

A spokesman for the Reston, Va.-based Prison Fellowship said that effort reduced repeat offenses to less than 5 percent.

17-year-old charged with capital murder

TYLER — A former Brownsboro High School football player has been charged with capital murder in the shooting death of a Tyler Realtor during an unsuccessful carjacking.

Leonard Ross, 17, of Chandler is charged in the slaying of Austin Hines, who was killed at a roadside park west of Tyler, authorities said.

Smith County sheriff's investigators said a 16-year-old juvenile also is expected to be charged in the case.

Rosa was being held in the Henderson County Jail on bonds totaling $400,000. He has been jailed since Sept. 17 on an aggravated robbery charge stemming from a shooting that occurred during a foiled robbery at a store near Brownsboro, Sheriff H.B. "Slick" Alfred said.

Congress candidates gear for runoffs

HOUSTON (AP) — Here we go again: the red, white and blue yard signs, the blitz of radio and TV ads, the newspaper endorsements.

Campaign season ended last week in other parts of the country, but there's still nearly a month to go in Southeast Texas.

Three House seats remain up for grabs because of a decision by a panel of federal judges to redraw district boundaries to correct redistricting problems.

Because no one candidate in those three races emerged from the court-ordered Nov. 5 special election with more than half the vote, the top two vote-getters advanced to a Dec. 10 runoff.

No matter the outcome of those runoffs, the GOP will win at least one of the contested seats. Two Republicans are pitted against each other in an unusual race to succeed Republican Jack Fields, who is retiring.

Two freshman incumbents are vying for re-election in the two other races: Republican Rep. Steve Stockman, whose militia-friendly views drew considerable attention in his first term; and Democratic Rep. Ken Bentsen, the nephew of former U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who was thought to have been hurt most by last summer's redistricting.

The cast also includes a big-spending hospital investor, a Republican state representative who nearly stood alone in his party in voting against concealed handguns and a GOP moderate who has challenged the head of the state party.

Getting voters to the polls on a day between Thanksgiving and Christmas will be the deciding factor. The GOP has a better track record of motivating voters during runoffs.

"It really does hinge on turnout," Texas Democratic Party spokeswoman Anne Marie Kilday says. "We're going to do everything we can to ensure that all the voters are educated about the elections in mid-December, but particularly Democratic voters."

Says Texas GOP Chairman Tom Pauken: "If we can get our people out, I think Steve (Stockman) will win."

Stockman got more votes than two Democrats running in a special election on Nov. 5. The congressman now faces former Jefferson County tax assessor Nick Lampson, who had 44 percent.

Stockman had to run against two members of the same party because of the August redistricting ruling. A federal panel in Houston redesigned three districts ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court and 10 adjacent ones, throwing out March primary results and ordering a special election.

Since the judges opened the races to anyone of any party in the redrawn districts, a flurry of candidates jumped into the contests. Bentsen's 25th District drew 11 candidates — two Democrats, eight Republicans and a Socialist.

No charges filed against PBRPC in spending flap

MIDLAND (AP) — A grand jury has decided not to return any indictments against officials of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, which had allegedly not followed state guidelines in the handling of travel expenses.

Among other things, they allegedly spent $700 in commission money at a topless bar in Austin.

The ruling was made public Thursday after an independent audit of travel expenses by the commission.

The Texas House of Representatives Appropriations Committee turned up a number of questionable expenses while conducting a study of local councils of government. Elms, Paris & Co. was then hired to perform the audit of the commission's expenses over the past three years.

District Attorney Al Schorre said the ruling is not a declaration of innocence, but means that no criminal activity could be determined by the review.

"After going over it, they decided not to take any further action unless there are further developments," Schorre said.

Among the issues under investigation were several instances of travel expenses charged without documentation. The commission spent $742,705 in travel expenses according to the audit. It was unclear how much of the expenses were undocumented.

PBRPC executive director Ernie Crawford apologized to the board of directors of the COG and personally repaid $1,500 of the money.

The board unanimously voted to let Crawford keep his position. He has worked for the PBRPC for 25 years.

The commission also announced two initiatives aimed at eliminating future spending problems.

All future travel expenses will be presented as detailed claims in advance of all board meetings and personal travel expenses for meals are limited to $30 a day within the state and $50 a day out of state, the commission announced.

State and federal agencies funnel public money through the state's 24 CCGs. They collect matching funds from participating local communities and distribute the money to local programs.

The councils are made up of locally elected officials from participating cities and counties.

Four plead guilty in $1.3 million tax evasion case

LUBBOCK — Two owners of a Lubbock strip club have pleaded guilty in a million-dollar tax evasion case, capping a complex investigation, authorities said.

Bob E. Jordan, 68, and Jim Bob Jackson, 59, each pleaded guilty Thursday to six counts of evading federal income taxes from 1989-1994 in a scheme that involved the underreporting of liquor purchases and sales at Players, the only topless bar within the city limits.

"In all, about $1.3 million in income from alcohol sales went unreported, officials said."

"If you try to cheat the tax man, eventually you will run into a streak of bad luck," said

U.S. Attorney Paul Coggins, who flew in from his Dallas office to join Bill Mateja for a news conference after the guilty pleas.

Each count carries a maximum five-year prison sentence and $250,000 fine. Jordan's corporation, B.J.C. Interests Inc., pleaded guilty to three counts of evasion and faces restitution and a $1.5 million fine.

Also pleading guilty were Wanda Mosely, 63, and Kelly Blumhagen, 30, both of Lubbock. Ms. Mosely, Players' bookkeeper, and Blumhagen became minority owners in 1995, taking over a one-third share owned by Phil Wolfe.

U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings will determine the sentences at a later date.

Jordan, Jackson and Wolfe also owned a conventional bar called Chances 'R, although authorities said most of the violations occurred at the strip club.

Wolfe was convicted last year for his involvement in an interstate gambling ring and sentenced to two years in prison and $100,000 in fines. Wolfe turned on his former business partners.

"By not reporting liquor and beer purchases on inventory, drink sales generated by that amount ... can be unreported to the state comptroller, evading a 14 percent gross sales tax," Wolfe said in a statement.

The investigation took a number of twists along the way, though Wolfe's cooperation from prison led authorities to an April 1996 raid that uncovered a second set of books filled with actual sales.

Wolfe would have faced evasion charges himself had he not cooperated, Coggins said.

In a scheme that ran from 1989 to 1991, Players' bought alcohol using cash; then sold the non-invoiced spirits for cash from customers. None of the transactions were recorded for tax purposes, documents state.

U.S. Bosnia commitment expected to last another year

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Bosnia's ethnic factions still on the brink of violence, the Clinton administration is prepared to keep up to 10,000 U.S. soldiers in Bosnia into 1998.

President Clinton was expected to announce the decision today before departing on an Asian trip. The administration originally said the Bosnia deployment would end next month.

Clinton administration officials, cautioning that the president had not yet signed off on the mission, said he wants to consolidate the gains made in the war-torn Balkans during the past year's NATO peacekeeping mission.

"How do you make sure that the security situation remains safe and secure enough that they can continue to do the work of building political institutions and a civil life for the people of Bosnia? That may require some type of presence in Bosnia," White House spokesman Mike McCurry said Thursday.

Events in Bosnia, as well as comments by administration officials, however, made it clear that the peace NATO sought to establish this year is not yet in place.

In the Bosnian town of Celic, U.S. and Russian troops on Thursday seized a cache of Muslim weapons and ordered a Bosnian army unit to shut down, accusing it of being involved in the worst violence in Bosnia since war ended a year ago.

The clampdown followed

Muslim-Serb clashes Tuesday that left one Muslim dead in the village of Gajevi and showed that peacekeepers may not be leaving Bosnia as soon as they hoped.

"The demonstrations in Bosnia indicate that there are still continuing tensions there," Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon said. "Those aren't surprising. The important thing to focus on is that there has been a year of peace."

Word of the extended troop deployment came Thursday when NATO Secretary General Javier Solana told reporters that all the NATO allies, including the United States, were lining up behind keeping forces in Bosnia.

Administration officials, speaking anonymously, confirmed his account but also said Clinton was annoyed at Solana for pre-empting his decision.

The mission would involve 30,000 troops from 30 countries, half the size of the peace implementation force, or IFOR, that occupied Bosnia this year.

A congressional staffer, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the ground-troop option in Bosnia involved 8,000 to 10,000 Army troops joining in the international effort.

The mission would extend from mid-March for perhaps as much as another year. The U.S. troop level would gradually decline during that time. One option involves keeping elements of the 1st Infantry Division, under the command of Army Maj. Gen. Montgomery Meigs, in Bosnia.

Nuts to those who don't rave about this dessert

DEAR ABBY: With the holidays coming up, please do your readers a favor and print your pecan pie recipe again. Although I had my own absolute, no-holds-barred recipe, I decided to give yours a try — and my whole family raved, saying it was the best they had ever tasted. I had to agree, Abby, and your recipe is now my No. 1 choice.

I think you should print it every year around this time, when pecan pie is so popular as a holiday dessert. NANCY IN CULVER CITY, CALIF.

DEAR NANCY: I'm delighted you and your family enjoyed it, because it is one of my all-time favorite recipes. Although it is included in my "Dear Abby's Favorite Recipes" booklet, it has been a while since I've put it in my column. So in the spirit of the holiday season, here it is. There's none better!

ABBY'S FAMOUS PECAN PIE

9-inch unbaked pie crust
1 cup light corn syrup
1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/3 cup butter, melted
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 heaping cup pecan halves
Heat oven to 350 degrees.
In a large bowl, combine corn syrup, sugar, eggs, butter, salt and vanilla; mix well. Pour filling into unbaked pie crust; sprinkle with pecan halves.
Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes or until center is set. (Toothpick inserted in center will come out clean when pie is "done.") Cool. If crust or pie appears to be getting too brown, cover with foil for the remaining baking time.
You can top it with a bit of whipped cream, but even plain — nothing tops this!
Serves: 8 to 10.

At least 20,000 Persian Gulf vets may have been exposed to nerve gas

By KELLIE JONES
Features Editor

A presidential committee recently announced stress most likely caused the array of unexplained illnesses afflicting the thousands of Persian Gulf War veterans.

The Presidential Advisory Committee of Gulf War Veterans' illnesses report stated, "significant evidence supports the likelihood of a physiological stress-related origin of many of these ailments and no single agent can be identified."

However, an intensive Central Intelligence Agency review indicates a small fraction of the United States service members deployed to the Gulf could have been exposed to chemical weapons - 20,800 out of about 700,000.

In light of the CIA review, the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Defense have teamed up to track down veterans who may have been near Kamisiyah, Iraq during the period March 4-15, 1991. According to press release from the DAV, the partnership has two purposes "to find out more about the health effects of the suspected low-level exposure to nerve gas and to assist in efforts to reconstruct events relating to the destruction by U.S. troops of Iraqi munitions at the end of the war."

Estimates show 20,800 American soldiers were within a 30-mile radius of the ammunition storage site in southern Iraq shortly after the war ended. Evidence shows chemical weapons, including the nerve gas sarin, may have been among the items destroyed.

At this time, it's not known if another detonation at the Kamisiyah complex March 21, 1991 actually happened and if it did, if chemical munitions were involved.

The DAV and DoD have released a list of units that may have been exposed to low levels of nerve gas during the destruction of the weapons. They include:

• Units associated with the 82nd Airborne Division - headquarters, 82nd Airborne Division; Tactical Command Post, 1st Brigade, 82nd Airborne Division; 1st and 2nd

Mark Smith headlines Nov. 17 Coahoma concert

HERALD Staff Report

The Coahoma Community Concert series features Mark Smith Sunday, Nov. 17 at the First Presbyterian Church.

According to Walter Lee, minister at the church, Smith has been writing and performing original music for more than 25 years. "Smith says Allen Damron got him his first professional job at the 'Rublyat,' a famed Dallas listening spot, after hearing three of his original songs. Neither Allen nor the club owner knew those were the only three solid songs Mark had written to date. That was in 1972."

act for well-known touring artists such as Bill and Bonnie Hearne and Steve Fromholz. His musical influences range from James Taylor, Stephen Stills and Ray Charles to Chet Atkins, John Prine and Paul Simon. Lee said Smith's guitar style is self-described as "finger-style picking that is about equal parts jazz, folk and blues."

The musician left the professional music scene some years ago to raise a family and focus on a second career as a goldsmith and stonemason. He then left the custom jewelry business and returned to school. Smith is currently an ordained minister and is serving at his first parish in San Angelo at St. Mark's Presbyterian Church. He incorporates his musical talents into worship services, college campus presentations and other concerts, according to Lee.

Lee added, "The Coahoma Concert series has presented numerous professional touring artists in the past three years. We are proud to add Mark Smith to the list of those who have shared their original acoustic music with Howard County audiences."

The concert is at the Social Hall of the church and starts at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Some tips for keeping your carpet clean

Scripts Howard News Service

A good quality carpet, with proper care and maintenance, should last for many years.

Routine maintenance includes frequent and thorough vacuuming, particularly in areas that are subject to high traffic. What defines frequent? Carpet manufacturers say daily vacuuming is ideal, but two to three times a week is acceptable (and more realistic).

But no matter how many times the carpet is vacuumed, there will always be that accident that can't just be vacuumed away. The first thing to do is to clean up spills as soon as possible; the longer a stain sits, the more difficult it will be to remove.

Always begin by blotting up as much of the spill's excess as possible into a paper towel. Or, if there is more, try removing the excess with a spoon before blotting.

If the spill includes a huge amount of liquid, a dry/wet vacuum should be employed. And always blot, never rub, with a clean, white absorbent cloth or paper towel.

There's always the question of which cleaning method is best for specific stains. But a sound rule of thumb is to try whatever cleaner you are using in an out-of-the-way place — for example, in a far corner of a closet — to make sure the process will not harm the carpet.

For food and beverage stains, you can start with the scoop-and-blot procedure mentioned above, then apply warm water and blot — do not rub — with a clean cloth. Press down firmly to remove as much moisture as possible. Repeat until no stain appears on the cloth.

If the stain is stubborn and won't come off the carpet, make a solution of one quart warm water and one teaspoon of mild, non-bleach laundry detergent — the liquid kind. Do not use dishwasher detergent. Apply this solution to the stain, let it sit for about five minutes and then blot up excess moisture. Rinse with warm water and blotting. Repeat until there is no more detergent in the carpet. This is important because any residual detergent may cause soiling.

Ever notice how after a dirt spot is cleaned, it seems to collect more dirt? It's probably because all the detergent wasn't taken out.

What if the dog has an accident on the carpet? Always begin with the scoop-and-blot method. Here again, most stains clean up with warm water. Next use the detergent solution as mentioned above. After all the detergent is removed, apply a solution of

Women networking, worried about arrest

Scripts Howard News Service

Q: I bet a day doesn't go by that I don't receive an invitation to a women's networking meeting. These forums are literally all over the country, and their programs promise you that, for a fee, you'll learn to network, share experiences and exchange valuable business cards with successful entrepreneurs.

I've gone to several of these female "career-advancement" meetings (and paid through the nose for them), but I've never had even a nibble of a job offer! I'm still at the same old desk doing the same old thing. What's wrong with these women-in-charge? Don't they have any power? — L.L., San Mateo, CA

A: You've hit the nail on the head! The majority of them probably don't have power, but they've been excluded from the old-boy network for so long that they're trying to compensate. Oh yes, a few participants may be lucky and land a job but, let's face it, these are money-making meetings designed more to help build your self-esteem than to provide you with a specific job.

Q: What makes a job legitimate? For the past year, I've been a crusade evangelist, preaching and recruiting on several different campuses. I love what I'm doing, enlightening students and professors and bringing them into God's fold. Sure, an evangelical organization doesn't pay much, but the satisfaction is tremendous. The problem is my dad. He feels law and medicine are the only practical routes to a decent living. What do you say? — Bewildered in Winter Park, FL

A: If you're preaching God's word — as a member of a ministry — I would say you have a big job. It may never pay as much as a position in the corporate world, but it sure could provide you with a great deal of satisfaction.

Q: You've probably heard people say, "What you see is what you get", but in my case, this just isn't true. Especially for a trusting employer. When I was 19, I was arrested for bringing a small amount of crack-cocaine into a jail where my best buddy was imprisoned. (I was trying to cheer him up!). As you may have guessed, I was arrested on a

TIPS 'N' TRIVIA

Preventing disease

(NAPS) - A soapy solution:

• Medical experts say although some viruses and bacteria are air borne by sneezes, for example, most diseases are transmitted by hand-to-hand contact.

• Washing thoroughly with soap and water helps remove the organisms that cling to your hands after you handle items used by someone with a cold, flu or bacterial infection.

• Frequent hand washing not only helps protect you from catching a bug, but it prevents you from spreading your infection to someone else.

Teach everyone to:

• Rub hands together and wash thoroughly with soap and warm water, especially before eating and after using the bathroom.

• Remember to use soap, because it helps dissolve microorganisms so they're washed away more effectively.

• Rinse hands and dry them off, using the towel to turn off the faucet.

Strep throat may trigger obsessive-compulsive disorder

NEW YORK (AP) — Strep throat might trigger some childhood cases of obsessive-compulsive disorder, suggesting penicillin could help some kids with the psychiatric condition, a researcher says.

People with obsessive-compulsive disorder, or OCD, have unwanted thoughts such as fear of contamination or impending harm, and often perform rituals like excessive handwashing or counting. They know the rituals are senseless, but they can't help themselves.

About 1 percent of grade-school-age children have OCD, said Dr. Susan E. Swedo, acting scientific director of the National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda, Md. Overall, about 2 percent of the United States population has OCD, she said.

Nobody knows what percentage of childhood cases may be linked to strep throat, Swedo said this week. The theory is blood proteins called antibodies that are supposed to latch onto strep germs may trigger OCD by mistakenly attacking certain parts of the brain.

One hint came from studies of a movement disorder called Sydenham's chorea, or St. Vitus' dance. It's a complication of strep infections, rare in the United States because strep throats are commonly treated with penicillin. People with Sydenham's flail uncontrollably, become clumsy and have speech problems.

Scientists found Sydenham's chorea is caused by strep antibodies mistakenly attacking the same brain areas that are thought to be abnormal in OCD, Swedo said. In a follow-up study of 21 children with Sydenham's, more than three-quarters had OCD symptoms and about half had enough symptoms to be diagnosed with OCD, Swedo said.

The OCD symptoms showed up before the symptoms of Sydenham's did, peaked when the movement disorder did, and then disappeared, Swedo said.

In a study of children with OCD, researchers found in some kids a strep throat seemed to lead to an abrupt worsening of symptoms or an unusually severe first episode of OCD, Swedo said. She said she has seen several cases where treating strep in a child with OCD eased OCD symptoms. It's too soon to recommend giving penicillin to kids with OCD to prevent flare-ups of the OCD symptoms, she said. That approach is still being studied.

sealed? I've got to quit worrying and put that whole mess behind me. — Haunted by Memories in Wichita.

A: Any ability you may have to seal your arrest record boils down to the laws in your locale. Some states will expunge your record if you were a minor when you committed the crime and have been a law-abiding citizen since your arrest. In a case such as this it would be best to invest a few hundred bucks in a good lawyer and get the question settled once and for all. You'll feel a lot better!

two tablespoons of white vinegar to one quart of water. This will neutralize the odor.

To be sure all the moisture is removed, place a clean, absorbent white towel on the spot. Place some type of weight, such as a heavy glass or other such item that will not stain the carpet, over the towel. Let it sit overnight. When completely dry, vacuum or brush the pile to remove any dents made by the weight on that spot.

For nail polish spills, again scoop and blot; then apply a non-oily polish remover. Blot with a clean white absorbent cloth. Remember to test the nail polish remover on a scrap of carpet first. Some carpets will lose color. If this is the case, then seek a professional carpet cleaner to take care of the problem.

EATING CUSTOMS

THE ISRAELITES USUALLY ATE IN THE MORNING AND IN THE EVENING. (EXODUS 16:12, 1 KINGS 17:6) HOWEVER, THIS CUSTOM DID NOT FORBID EATING AT OTHER HOURS. LABORERS ALSO PARTOOK OF A MEAL AT NOON. (RUTH 2:14) THE ESSENES WERE STRICTER AND DID WITH ONLY TWO MEALS, THE FIRST BEING ABOUT ELEVEN O'CLOCK, AFTER THE MORNING PRAYERS FOR THE DAY AND THE OTHER IN THE EVENING. LATER, ABOUT THE TIME OF JESUS, STRICTER JEWS BROKE THE FAST OF THE NIGHT BY A MEAL AFTER THE NINE A.M. PRAYERS, AND ON THE SABBATH FOOD WAS NOT SERVED BEFORE TWELVE NOON AFTER THE SYNAGOGUE SERVICE. BUT THE CHIEF MEAL OF THE DAY ALWAYS TOOK PLACE IN THE EVENING HOURS. LIKE THE MODERN ARABS, THE ISRAELITES WASHED THEIR HANDS BEFORE EATING SINCE GENERALLY THERE WAS A COMMON DISH INTO WHICH EVERYONE'S HAND DIPPED. A PIECE OF BREAD SERVED AS A SPOON AND WAS DIPPED INTO THE BOWL OF MEAT OR THICK SOUP OR POTAGE AND WAS LADLED OUT WITH THE HOLLOW OF THE HAND INTO A DISH.

Ainge new coach of Suns

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Before the season opened, the Phoenix Suns were seen as possibly a surprise team in the NBA's Western Conference.

Going winless in eight games makes that possibility true for the wrong reasons, and Cotton Fitzsimmons took full responsibility.

Fitzsimmons, 65, resigned Thursday, effective after the game the Suns lost 92-89 to Vancouver, and handed the team over to assistant Danny Ainge, 37.

Ainge, who says his last experience as a head coach was with eighth graders, was to have inherited the team at the end of the season, but the Suns' worst start in 11 years led Fitzsimmons to halt his 21st season early.

"I made the decision last Saturday after the (112-95) Philadelphia loss," Fitzsimmons said. "I was embarrassed by the way we played."

And though Fitzsimmons said he takes full responsibility for where the Suns are now, neither Ainge nor Suns president Jerry Colangelo agreed.

"This isn't his fault," Colangelo said. "We haven't had certain people play up to par, we've had a terrible schedule, and we haven't had a roster that was healthy."

Ainge, who helped the Suns reach the playoffs in 1993 as a player, took a similar position.

"It's certainly not Cotton's fault we started this way. He isn't responsible for one loss," Ainge said.

Fitzsimmons, No. 7 in NBA coaching victories, was optimistic before the season started two weeks ago.

"I like to see something come from nothing," he said.

Gonzalez beats out Rodriguez for AL MVP

ARLINGTON (AP) — Juan Gonzalez came into this season feeling he had a lot to prove. He wound up proving that he's one of baseball's best players.

GONZALEZ

Gonzalez was a fast-rising star in 1993 after winning his second straight major-league home run title, but his career got untracked the last two years because of injuries and personal problems. In 1996, however, he came to spring training looking and acting like a new man. He arrived early, was slimmed down and adopted a refreshing new attitude.

The results: a career-high 47 homers, 144 RBIs in just 134 games, the first division title in Texas Rangers history and, on Thursday, the AL Most Valuable Player award.

"I worked hard, sacrificed a lot and dedicated myself," said Gonzalez, who edged favorite Alex Rodriguez of Seattle by the second-slimmest margin ever. "I never looked back. I looked forward every time."

Gonzalez received 111 of 28 first-place votes and 290 points in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Rodriguez, who hit a league-leading .358 with 36 homers and 123 RBIs, received 10 first-place votes and 287 points.

"All year, people talked about Alex as the No. 1 contender for the MVP award. Right now, I'm surprised myself," Gonzalez said in a telephone news conference from his parents' home in Vega Baja, Puerto Rico. "I never talked about winning MVP because a lot of guys had great numbers."

Gonzalez had great numbers in 1992 and 1993, when he hit 43 and 46 homers. He then slumped to 19 in 1994 and 27 in 1995, when he reported to spring training overweight, missed 54 games with back and neck injuries and spent most of the season as the Rangers' designated hitter.

He returned to the outfield this season, playing right field for the first time. The way he embraced the move and strived to improve at the new position was further proof of his maturity and rededication.

So was his the way he approached his conditioning drills: 1 1/2 hours of exercise to loosen his neck, back and legs prior to batting practice, with more work after games.

Although a leg problem disabled him from May 9 to June 1, Gonzalez rebounded to set a major-league record with 15 homers in July. He also led the majors that month with a .407 average, 38 RBIs, 99 total bases and a .917 slugging percentage.

His most memorable month, though, had to be October, when he hit five homers in a four-game playoff series against the New York Yankees. That performance did nothing for the MVP chase because the votes were already in.

Now that he's back among the game's elite players, the 27-year-old Gonzalez must remain there.

"I continue working hard for next year and for years to come," said Gonzalez, who joined 1974 MVP Jeff Burroughs as the only Rangers to win the award.

"Nothing is easy in this game. Nothing is impossible, too. I will continue working hard."

Lady Steers roll 73-15 over Parkland in Crossroads opener

By CLIFF NEWELL
Sports Editor

Tonight's games:

Lady Steers, 6:30 p.m.

HC Lady Hawks vs
Abilene Christian, 8 p.m.

The Big Spring Lady Steers got off to a fast start in the Howard College Crossroads Classic by destroying Parkland 73-15 on Friday night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The combination of Big Spring's customary fierce defense and Parkland's ice-cold shooting made it a long, hard night for the team from El Paso.

The only question is if the opener was a good enough tune-up for the tougher teams the Lady Steers are sure to meet during the next rounds of the tournament. Head coach Ron Taylor wasn't sure, but he was certainly happy about the win.

"We probably needed a game like this after our heartbreaker in our opener against Merkel," said Taylor. "It was a good thing. A lot of kids got to play."

The outcome of the game was almost instantly decided as the Big Spring girls blitzed Parkland 23-0 in the first period.

Maggie Haddad set the tone for the surge with her hot defense and superb passing, and Big Spring got excellent inside scoring from Traci Bellinghausen and Kim Robertson.

The Lady Steers went through a stretch where they kept throwing the ball away, but the rout was assured. The halftime margin was 32-5. The starters only played about half the game, and the reserves got plenty of time to hone their skills. In addition, the Lady Steers' out-of-bounds play seemed to work every single time.

Although Taylor noted that "we're a long way from being a good basketball team," he saw plenty that pleased him.

"In the second half we had a lot of improvement in execution," he said. "I was happy with all of our players."

Especially Bellinghausen, since she led the team with 16 points and eight rebounds.

"She's only going to get better as she goes along," Taylor said.

Krissi McWherter, who showed a lot of fluid speed, and Robertson each scored nine points.

Steer hoopsters open action tonight against Merkel

By CLIFF NEWELL
Sports Editor

"I think our other kids will step up," Tipton said. "But we've got to change gears."

However, three new players from the Steer football team have joined the hoop squad. John Smith, of course, was being counted on to lead the team at point guard.

Sophomore Tory Mitchell could be a help, too. But the addition of Toma McVae was a big surprise.

If it comes down to speed, the Steers could be world beaters with the likes of Mitchell and McVae. Their work on the press could be devastating.

"The football kids are improving every day," Tipton said. "Tory can make a mistake on the press and still be fast enough to beat the guy he's guarding."

Still, the subtraction and the additions and an injury or two have left Tipton with question marks about his team.

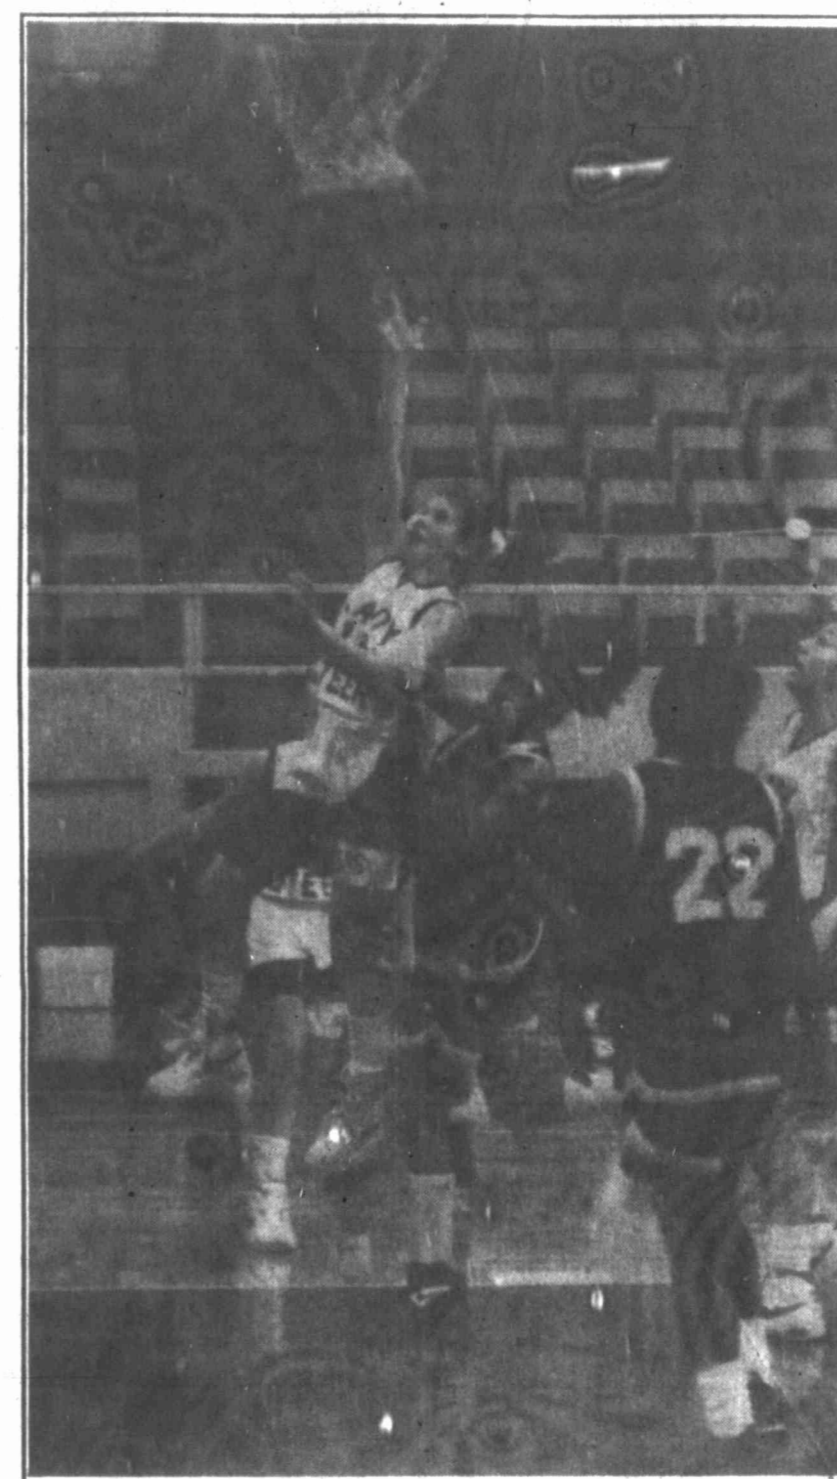

"Not all the pieces have been together," he said. "But I still feel good about Friday night."

Tipton is confident about a team that returns plenty of talent from last season. Besides Smith, a first team all-district point guard, the Steers have deadly shooting Justin Myers (6-3), a superb 3-point threat; rugged inside threat Chad Warren (5-11), and 6-4 junior Greg Wollenzien.

The gap left by Fernau's departure could be filled by 6-1 Aaron Brisow or 6-5 Paul Foresyth.

On Saturday night, the Steers play at Seminole. Tipoff time is 3:30 p.m.

Big Spring's Brandi Purcell soars in for a layup against El Paso Parkland. The Lady Steers exploded to a 23-0 lead.

Edwards finishes 3rd in rushing

Big Spring Steer tailback Antwone Edwards finished third in District 4-4A rushing yardage in the final league statistics.

Edwards gained 1,115 yards on 234 carries for a 4.8 average and scored eight touchdowns, even though injury held him to just one carry in the final game against Andrews.

Edwards was also fourth in tandem offense and fifth in total offense, with all of his yardage coming by the run. He was seventh in scoring with 48 points.

Frankie Green finished with 339 yards on 55 carries (6.2 average) and scored three touchdowns. Tory Mitchell had 223 yards on 62 carries (3.6 average) and two TDs. Toma McVae had 196 yards on 42 attempts (4.6 average).

Mitchell was fifth in passing with 21 completions in 61 attempts for 277 yards and four touchdowns. Gabe Mendoza finished sixth in passing with 23 completions in 69 attempts for 263 yards and three touchdowns.

John Smith placed fifth in receiving with 258 yards on 18 catches (14.3 average) and three scores.

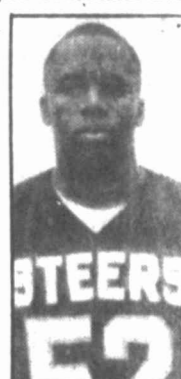

Todd McAdams was the sixth best punter with a 31.9 yard average on 42 punts. He tied for second in fumble recoveries with three.

John Lawdermilk led in punt return yardage with 133 on 22 returns (6.0 average).

As a team the Steers were fifth in offense with a 262.7 yard per game average and fourth in defense, allowing 269.2 yards per game.

Shaud Williams of Andrews was the leading rusher with 1,867 yards.

For a complete listing of District 4-4A statistical leaders please see Page 2B.

Still no deal for baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's labor deal officially has fallen through, leaving owners and players to snipe at each other for a fourth straight winter while they operate under an expired labor agreement.

Owners made no effort to save a proposed contract as Thursday's midnight deadline passed. But they did put off a decision to OK next year's schedule without interleague play.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig said he intended to "act expeditiously and bring this to a successful conclusion." But he failed to make a new proposal and didn't ask union head Donald Fehr to postpone the deadline for a deal.

With that, baseball was left to operate for another off-season under the rules of an agreement that expired in December 1993.

"I think any pretense that the commissioner and the people who are with him want to rebuild the game or have good relations with the players — that ruse is about as transparent as clear glass," Fehr said. "I don't believe Bud ever wanted to do anything. That's why he delayed 12 weeks to take a vote and then torpedoed it."

The collapse of the deal left baseball open to another work stoppage next season.

Petersburg plays Rankin here tonight

Big Spring will be the site tonight for a Class A playoff football game between Petersburg (7-3) and Rankin (4-6).

Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Two area teams are slated for playoff action. Grady (9-1) meets Balmorhea (8-1) in Imperial at 7:30. Stanton (8-2) meets Shallowater (8-2) at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa at 7:30.

Baseball benefit set for Saturday

The Big Spring Steer baseball team will stage a 50-inning game to raise money for cancer victim Gatlin Howland. Action starts at 9 a.m. at Steer Stadium.

Pirate fire sale continues in big deal with Blue Jays

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates' fire sale continues, and even general manager Cam Bonifay isn't sure when it might stop.

One: Denny Neagle, Charlie Hayes, Dave Clark and, now, Carlos Garcia, Orlando Merced and Dan Plesac.

The next to go: Jeff King or Jay Bell — or both?

Determined to cut payroll and restock a last-place team with minimally priced young talent, the cash-strapped Pirates dealt Garcia, Merced and Plesac to the Toronto Blue Jays on Thursday for six prospects.

Three are known — right-handers Jose Silva and Jose Pett and shortstop Brandon Cromer. The others will be identified later, possibly after the Rule V draft next month.

The Blue Jays, looking to rebuild a two-time World Series champion that has fallen up hard times, gets proven everyday regulars in Garcia and Merced, plus a sometimes-effective left-hander in Plesac.

The Pirates get what they need most: prospects and more prospects, and a significantly lower payroll. Since mid-August, Bonifay has traded away nearly $11 million in 1997 salaries as the Pirates slice their $21 million payroll to about $13 million.

Bonifay might not be done, either.

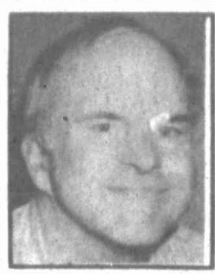

He held additional trade talks Thursday night with major league general managers in Arizona, and he is willing to make nearly any trade that

Sports fans are mad, but they can't get even Sports fans, we are getting the shaft. It is obvious everywhere you look. Money means everything. Tradition means nothing, and neither do the fans. It appears that the owners and athletes look upon the fans as something of a back-drop, a dull roar in the background, a financial cash cow that will never go dry.

Cliff Newell
Sports Editor

Some of us wear funny costumes. Some of us paint ourselves funny colors. A lot of us shout ourselves hoarse. That is because we care so much, and it seems we are willing to endure almost any humiliation, any financial bite in the humble servitude to our teams.

And what do we get? Nothing, zilch, nada. Where are the good old days when my Uncle Edward used to buy beer for Honus Wagner? They're gone. Now we are all targets for every conceivable type of sports ripoff.

Well, it's time for all this to stop. Let's quit painting ourselves red and get mad! And our ringleader is at hand. It's Mike Lupica, funny and infuriating sports columnist, and he has written the new fan manifesto: "Mad As Hell."

not only sums up everything that seems to be going wrong with sports, it actually offers solutions on what we as fans can do about it. First, it's great to see the fat cats and soreheads get slapped with a Lupica insult. But it is certainly disturbing to read a collection of all the sports bad stuff.

The turning point that made Lupica explode and write the book was the Cleveland Browns moving to Baltimore, where they are now the Ravens. Quoth the Lupica, "Never more."

The villain in this piece is Browns-Ravens owner Art Modell, whose hypocrisy is exceeded only by his greed, or vice versa. Or maybe he is the worst businessman in the NFL, because the Browns fans faithfully filled decrepit Memorial Stadium for years, wearing rubber dog masks and yelling for the blood of Browns opponents.

Somehow, Art could not make a go of it with 80,000 fans at every game, so he went to a city that should have known better - Baltimore, which lost its beloved Colts 12 years ago. Modell knew better. He piously denounced such moves until he needed a big bailout for his own ineptitude. And now he is a hero. Until he leaves the boundaries of Baltimore.

lions, then charge $80 a pop for an autograph. Lupica paints a chilling scene at a sports autograph show, run by some fly-by-night cheeseball, in which sullen super stars sign their names without making eye contact with their adoring fans, who act like they almost expect to get healed of something by getting close to their idols. Lupica calls it the most degrading thing he has ever seen.

Yet his solutions are not good. Lupica suggests things like fans parking farther away from stadiums and bringing in their own food. Absolutely mimsy. He suggests joining the fan union formed by Ralph Nader. Doesn't Ralph Nader have better things to do? Anyway, with the $25 dues you could buy yourself a nifty t-shirt of your favorite team or athlete.

Here's my own suggestion. Wait around a corner near Yankee Stadium and hit George Steinbrenner with a cream pie. No, none of it's going to work. That is because things happen like the New York Yankees coming back from an embarrassing 0-2 deficit and winning the World Series, and Evander Holyfield pulling off his miracle victory over Mike Tyson.

This is irresistible. It makes you forgive George Steinbrenner, or even Don King. It re-charges your fandom batteries and makes you a sucker for the next cable event featuring Tyson and George Foreman's brother in law. No, the best thing to do is read "Mad As Hell" to let off some steam. It's the best sports read in a long time.

Suns lose last under Fitzsimmons

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Danny Ainge can't do any worse this season than his predecessor.

Ainge became the new head coach of the Phoenix Suns on Thursday night following the Suns' 92-89 loss to the Grizzlies in Vancouver.

Cotton Fitzsimmons had planned to step down at the end of this season, his 21st as an NBA coach. But the Suns' 0-8 start, their worst in 11 years, led him to change that plan.

"I made the decision last Saturday after the Philadelphia loss," Fitzsimmons said. "I was embarrassed by the way we played. I take full responsibility for our play and the losses." The latest loss came against the Grizzlies, who entered the game winless themselves. Blue Edwards scored 34 points and made two free throws with 18.4 seconds remaining for Vancouver. The two teams combined for just 22 points in the second quarter, the second fewest ever scored in the second period of an NBA game.

Fitzsimmons began his third coaching assignment with the Suns in January, replacing the fired Paul Westphal. Phoenix lost in his first game back, but the Suns went 27-22 under Fitzsimmons before being eliminated in the first round of the playoffs.

But after trading away Charles Barkley and losing guard Kevin Johnson to injury, the Suns were never able to get untracked this season.

"You never want to go out losing," Fitzsimmons said.

Trade

brings quality prospects for veterans.

"We feel these six players increase our ability to get good in the future ... and get us back to a championship level," Bonifay said. "We've worked very hard to get back productive players for our future."

But the moves were dictated as much by a lack of cash as last place.

Starting at a minimum of $8 million in losses in his first season of ownership, Kevin McClatchy ordered Bonifay to begin dealing off veterans for prospects in August.

The Pirates' cash crunch became even worse when the breakdown in labor negotiations cost McClatchy as estimated $10 million in revenue sharing over the 1996 and 1997 seasons.

"But I hope there's not the impression ... we're looking only for (quantity)," Bonifay said. "Quality and quantity are the keys to this. All of these players fit nicely into our system."

Garcia, a solid hitter who has made three trips to the disabled list in two seasons, was the key player in the deal to the Blue Jays, who have actively sought a second baseman.

"It's probably a little different (in the AL)," said the 30-year-old Garcia, who will make $2.4 million next season. "But that is what baseball is all about, making adjustments."

Merced, also 30, hit .270 with 17 homers and a career-high 80 RBIs last season and has twice hit .300 in the majors, in 1993 and 1995. He was one of three remaining regulars, with Bell and King, from the Pirates' 1990-92 NL East champions.

The 34-year-old Plesac, who signed a two-year contract extension last season, was 6-5 with a 4.09 ERA last season, when he made $800,000.

Pett, who is from Brazil, was paid a $700,000 bonus upon signing with Toronto at age 16.

Now 20, He was 4-2 with a 4.09 ERA at Double-A Knoxville and 2-9 with a 5.83 ERA at Triple-A Syracuse, where he was the International league's youngest starter.

He has struggled so far in the Arizona Fall League for prospects, going 0-1 with an 8.10 ERA.

Cromer, 22, is hitting .329 in Arizona after batting .277 at Knoxville. The 6-foot-5 Silva, who will be 23 next month, will be added to the Pirates' 40-man roster after going 2-3 with a 2.49 ERA at Knoxville.

Neither team would say when the players to be named later would be identified.

The Pirates talked to Toronto about outfielder Rickey Cradle, who hit .282 with 12 homers at Knoxville; catcher Adam Melhuse (.248, 51 RBIs at Dunedin), and second baseman Miguel Cairo (.277, 3 homers, 48 RBIs at Syracuse, plus .272 in two games with Toronto). The Pirates were also interested in outfielder Shawn Green.
