House Democrats re-elect leaders, see signs of conflict with GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dick Gephardt and a familiar team will again lead House Democrats in the new Congress, and signs of conflict with Republicans abound despite post-election talk of moderation and compromise.

Gephardt, D-Mo., chosen by acclamation Monday to be House minority leader, said if there is "lock-step voting" by a conservative-dominated GOP next year, bipartisan agreement on budget, campaign finance and other issues will be hard to reach.

As for Democrats, Gephardt said, "I think we've been in the middle" on welfare, raising the minimum wage and other issues.

"It takes two to tango," Gephardt told reporters after House Democrats met behind closed doors to select their leadership team. "And if they are willing to come to the middle and work towards a consensus, we'll achieve it. If they aren't, we will continue to stand and fight for what we believe in."

The comments suggest that if there is to be accommodation on key issues next year, Democrats will be demanding major concessions from Republicans. They also point to the continued contrasts Democrats wish to draw with the GOP over such issues as education and the environment in hopes of regaining the majority.

Gephardt's remarks came two weeks after an Election Day on which Democrats picked up about eight seats in the House for the 105th Congress, fewer than half what they needed to control the chamber. With a few races still not finally decided, it appears likely the House will have 228 Republicans, 206 Democrats and an independent.

Despite falling short of capturing a majority, Democrats rewarded their old leadership team by unanimously, and without opposition, giving them new terms.

Rep. David Bonior of Michigan again will be whip, the No. 2 job. Rep. Vic Fazio of California will be caucus chairman, Rep. Barbara Kennelly of Connecticut will be caucus vice chairwoman and Rep. Martin Frost of Texas will chair the campaign committee.

"We came out of the ashes," said Rep. Benjamin Cardin, D-Md., explaining why Democrats so overwhelmingly supported Gephardt and his team. "We came here two years ago as depressed as any group of people ever were, and for a year we were still in that depression. ... Now, the Democratic Party is back strong."

House Democrats' aggressive attitude contrasts with that of President Clinton, who since being re-elected Nov. 5 has stressed a desire to cooperate with Republicans.

Clinton cannot run again by law, and is looking for achievements to cement a positive legacy. House Democrats not only want to retake House control, but face a historically difficult election: The midterm election during a president's second term is usually bad for his party in Congress. Blending their positions with Republicans' may not be the best way for minority Democrats to make up lost ground.

Gephardt expressed skepticism about recent calls for cooperation from House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and other GOP leaders.

"I'm from Missouri — show me," Gephardt said. "The only thing that counts is action, not words."

Despite the difficult midterm election facing them in two years, Democratic leaders said they were optimistic that 1998 instead will be a big year for their party.

Frost said 46 House Republicans were elected with winning margins of less than 10 percent and that 21 of them won with just 51 percent or less of the vote. His message: A high number of GOP lawmakers are vulnerable.

Cotton yield just portion of area losses

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Determining what the High Plains cotton crop's production yield will be in 1996 is a rather unexact science, but the feeling is that what will be could have been better.

Estimates from the U.S. Department of Agriculture Cotton Classing offices in Lubbock and Lamesa are that yields will be about 2.8 million bales, a surprise to many growers in the 30-county area.

Howard County itself won't yield as much cotton as producers had expected, but producers and county agriculture officials are looking at the overall agricultural picture for 1996.

Howard County's agriculture is estimated to be only one-third of what would normally be expected.

"A total slightly more than $16.7 million is expected from agricultural sales and government receipts in 1996," Howard County Extension Agent Don Richardson said. "Hoping for 1997 to be more normal year, agricultural income is expected to be in excess of $55 million."

The county's agricultural income losses are also attributed to the related loss of jobs from gins not being opened and agricultural supply sales declining.

"Cotton, being the main cash crop in Howard County is estimated to produce only $4.5 million in revenue and its seed about $728,000," Richardson added. "A promising grain sorghum crop was severely damaged by recent frosts and freezes and is only estimated to generate about $800,000."

Overall, the High Plains area has yet to receive a hard, killing freeze, meaning many fields have yet to receive a full course of harvest aid treatment in preparation for the fall harvest.

As a result, harvest activity in the High Plains is behind with about 40 percent of the current cotton crop estimated to be off the stalk.

As far as cotton quality is concerned, the estimate is that the 1996 crop will be of a high quality with predominate color grades being 21 and 31 and micronaire averaging 3.8 to 3.9.

Harvest acreage for the High Plains area is estimated at 2.4 million acres out of an estimated 3.1 million acres originally planted. The 700,000-acre difference is attributed to dryland cotton acres never planted due to drought conditions.

Relatives of ValuJet crash victims say they'll sue to get tape released

MIAMI (AP) — A transcript of passengers screaming "Fire! Fire! Fire!" moments before ValuJet Flight 592 nose-dived into the Everglades isn't enough for some relatives. They want to hear their loved ones' final terrifying moments.

"I've got to know if that woman who was screaming was my mother," said Amanda Myers, whose parents were killed in the crash.

The National Transportation Safety Board released a transcript of the cockpit recording on Monday, the opening day of its hearing into the May 11 crash, which killed all 110 people aboard. The weeklong hearing resumes today.

Shouts from passengers were recorded three times after fire swept into the cabin, and at one point women were heard screaming "Fire! Fire! Fire! Fire!" according to the transcript.

"I imagined it was my mother," Maria Rivera said. "I didn't think of anything else. I just cried and cried and cried."

The NTSB does not release the audio tapes, primarily to protect the crews' privacy. Tapes have been issued in the past, but only under a court order.

"I'm going to Washington after this to try to get them to change the law," said Richard Kessler, an Atlanta lawyer whose wife was killed.

In most crashes, voices of the cockpit crew are the only ones taped. But in this case, passengers could be heard because the cockpit door was opened after the fire started.

Six minutes after takeoff from Miami International Airport, the pilot can be heard telling the co-pilot: "We got some electrical problems. ... We're losing everything."

A flight attendant can be heard yelling, "We need oxygen. We can't get oxygen back there."

The last recorded voice from the plane was that of a crew member telling the tower, "We need the, uh, closest airport available."

The chilling eight-minute tape ends with the cockpit and cabin falling silent, leaving the sound of rushing air, perhaps from a cockpit window that had been opened to let the smoke out.

Gwendolyn Marks, a Miami nurse whose son was killed, also wants to hear the tape.

"It may be painful, but it was my child, and I want to hear what was going through his mind, what was going on in those last minutes," she said.

Another victim may have called his wife on a cellular phone in the final moments of the flight, but despite repeated requests, the woman declined to be interviewed by crash investigators.

Two ValuJet maintenance supervisors and two executives with SabreTech Corp., which maintained ValuJet aircraft in Miami, testified at the hearing Monday.

Christmas parade entries surpassing numbers from '95

HERALD Staff Report

With nine days left, the 1996 Big Spring Herald Community Christmas Parade is ahead of last year's pace when there were 50 entrants.

"We're excited that interest is growing in the parade," said Managing Editor John H. Walker, who also serves as parade general chairman.

"When we started, people would tell us they would enter later because Christmas was too far off. Well, it's just five weeks until Christmas and the parade is just two weeks from this Saturday... it's time to enter!"

The biggest change of all this year is the move to a later starting time.

"Last year, the parade began at 4:30 and this year we'll start it at 5:30 so that we can place more emphasis on lighted entries," Walker explained. "By next year, our plans are to have a fully lighted parade."

Two bands, Big Spring High School and Runnels Junior High, have been entered into the parade and Walker said he was hopeful that more bands would enter.

"So far, only Stanton has told us they can't enter and compete for the best band plaque," Walker said, adding that all 11 bands in the Herald's circulation area had been invited.

"I understand there might be a conflict with some of the Class 2A bands, but what we're doing for them is holding a spot and if they can get here for the parade, we'll make a break between the entries and let them march right into line and begin playing."

The parade will begin at the corner of Gregg Street and the FM 700 North Service Road, head north on Gregg until it reaches the downtown area. At that point, the parade will turn east on Sixth Street and then north again on Main Street.

Lighted floats will be pulled from the parade for display around the courthouse square while the remainder will be routed to Fl. Street for dispersal.

Walker said all entrants will be contacted in the days before the parade to let them know where they will be in the order of entry.

"It's important that all entrants are in the correct spot and that no one breaks line because that will mess up the judging," he said.

Entrants in the 1996 parade include:

- Suez Fire Brigade
- Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints
- U.S. Postal Service (lighted)

Cost of tuition plan increases by 16 percent

AUSTIN (AP) — By the time your newborn grows up, his or her college tuition will also have increased — even if paid in advance.

A contract with the Texas Tomorrow Fund, which lets parents pay future college tuition and fees at today's prices, went up by about 16 percent this year, State Comptroller John Sharp said Monday.

That's because the tuition and fees charged by the schools rose by an average of that much.

If paid in a lump sum, a Tomorrow Fund contract purchased now for a newborn costs $9,652.98. The same contract cost $8,320.80 last year.

"As tuition inflation continues to drive up the cost of a college education, the Texas Tomorrow Fund will be the answer for people trying to save for their children's or grandchildren's education," Sharp said.

A tuition contract would make a good Christmas present for young Texans, according to Sharp.

"It may not look like much of a toy, but the Texas Tomorrow Fund holiday (gift) certificate will still be around long after your child has outgrown a Power Ranger or Barbie doll," he said.

Statewide tuition over the last 10 years has increased at an average of 8 percent annually, the comptroller's office said.

The Tomorrow Fund program was authorized by the 1995 Legislature. It began earlier this year, enrolling about 40,000 future students during a three-month period in the spring.

The new enrollment period will run through Feb. 18.

For a four-year public college or university, the cost ranges from $9,652 for a newborn to $11,104 for a high school senior.

A junior college contract costs between $2,874 for a newborn and $3,062 for a senior.

Rates vary based on a child's age, whether they will attend a two-year or four-year institution and whether the school is public or private.

Adult abstinence, prom breath-tests aimed at stopping problems

ARLINGTON (AP) — Tuxedoed and sequined students arriving at Arlington high school this spring will have to pass breath-alcohol tests to get into the ballroom.

The new rule is one of many ways officials hope to combat underage drinking in this 53,000-student school district, where a 16-year-old girl allegedly was sexually assaulted in September at a drinking party.

Ten suspects have been charged with misdemeanor assault.

"It's a problem that's getting progressively worse," Arlington schools superintendent Lynn Hale said Monday after a forum sponsored by the district for about 100 lawmakers, local officials, police and students.

Proposals for preventing and stopping drinking by students under the legal age of 21 ranged from the practical to the improbable.

"You pledge for a year not to drink alcohol," challenged Joseph Jennings, a motivational speaker who suggested it was unfair for adult imbibers to demand that students not drink.

When Jennings asked the group how many would consider giving up drinking for the calendar year of 1997, most in the room raised their hands.

Seventeen-year-old Tamara Cauble, a senior, said her parents' example is indeed a powerful motivator.

"They don't drink at all — there's never beer in the refrigerator," he said after the meeting. "I think it's a real influence, what your parents do.

That's probably the main reason I don't drink."

Arlington Police Chief David Kunkle also cited parental attitudes as key to solving a problem that is not new but receiving a new wave of attention.

"How can I say this discreetly? There are a group of parents who never believe their children are responsible for their own behavior," Kunkle said, sparking applause. "If their child is found holding something, they weren't drinking, it was someone else's."

Other ideas included closing junior-high school campuses once students arrive in the morning, mailing letters home to parents rather than relying on students to hand-carry them and barring students from participating in extracurricular activities if they are caught drinking.

State Rep. Kim Brimer suggested re-submitting a bill that flopped in the last legislative session to suspend underage drinkers' drivers' licenses until they turn 21.

Jayne Gartner, a licensed professional counselor, volunteered to train community volunteers, students and school officials to help troubled students and their families strengthen relationships and address underage alcohol use.

Philip Augustine, senior class president at Bowie High School, said that of all the ideas he'd heard at the meeting, that one made the most sense.

He said he didn't think the meeting would immediately change students' behavior.

TEXAS BRIEFS

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lawsuit filed to stop pastors in school program

BEAUMONT — The parents of four students have asked a federal court to end a program that brought volunteer members of the clergy into classrooms at Beaumont Independent School District.

The lawsuit contends the program violates the constitutional separation of church and state.

The suit also requests a temporary restraining order and preliminary and permanent injunctions preventing the school district from continuing the program in its present form.

The students whose parents filed the lawsuit include four girls from three different families, Newar said. None of the children have attended the voluntary program, he added.

Sharp: Texas faces shortfall in education funds

AUSTIN — Texas faces at least a $1.6 billion shortfall in public education funding before the next year, $400 million more than the governor's figures which also call for a tax refund, the state comptroller says.

"We have to be looking at $1.6 billion going into education. ... I think the Legislature is going to have to do that," Comptroller John Sharp said Monday.

Sharp, a Democrat, and Republican Gov. George W. Bush have sharply differing assessments of school funding. Bush last week urged a $1 billion tax rebate, saying $1.2 billion more would be available for Texas education, enough to cover 115,000 new students expected to enroll in public schools in 1998-99.

But Sharp and Education Commissioner Mike Moses, a Bush appointee, said $1.2 billion is not enough to fulfill court-ordered measures to maintain financial equity among school districts and construct school buildings estimated to cost between $354 million and $400 million.

INS enforcement of employer sanctions lagging

SAN ANTONIO — Sanctions against employers who hire undocumented workers have declined over the past four years even though deportations have hit new highs, according to national statistics.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service recently touted its record number of deportations, noting 67,095 undocumented immigrants were deported last year, up more than 17,000 from the previous year.

Statistics through Aug. 30 show sanctions cases were filed against 4,629 employers this fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30.

Those numbers represent a steady decline since 1992, when nearly 9,000 cases were filed and almost 2,500 employers were fined, according to the San Antonio Express-News' editions Monday.

The INS began de-emphasizing its crackdown against employers after several studies found employers had discriminated against Hispanic applicants because of more stringent employment verification rules.

New evidence revealed in Routier murder case

KERRVILLE — Analysis of blood and hair from Darlie Routier's Dallas-area home may bolster her contention that an intruder killed her two sons, according to a court filing.

Some findings in a DNA expert's report "may be consistent with one or more of the stories previously told by the defendant," prosecutors stated in the new court documents filed Monday.

Routier, 26, is charged with capital murder in the June 6 stabbing deaths of 5-year-old Damon and 6-year-old Devon. She claims an intruder wearing dark clothing stabbed her sons to death then wounded her before fleeing through a window at their home in the suburb of Rowlett.

Prosecutors have contended there was no intruder and that Routier killed the children and injured herself.

"We still feel we have a good case," said Rowlett police Sgt. Dean Poos "If somebody walks into our front door and gives us good evidence that she didn't do it, we are going to act on it."

Four immigrants die crossing river; others missing

ROWNSVILLE — As many as six people remained missing today after high waves swept a group of men, women and children into the Gulf of Mexico during an attempt to cross illegally into the United States.

Authorities suspended their search for victims Monday afternoon after recovering three bodies and spotting a fourth that washed back out to sea. They were to meet this morning to decide if efforts will be continued.

Witnesses reported seeing 10 men, women and children trying to cross from Mexico into the United States at the mouth of the Rio Grande Sunday when a large wave swept them into the water.

John Paul II, Castro hold historic meeting at Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Arafat, Tito, Gorbachev, and now Castro — sooner or later, revolutionaries and Communist leaders show up on the pope's doorstep.

Today it was Cuban leader Fidel Castro, who met with Pope John Paul II for 35 minutes at the Vatican in a historic encounter between alumni of the Cold War.

One is a bearded, cigar-smoking 70-year-old whose revolution has endured for nearly four decades and become a cultural icon for the left.

The other is a 76-year-old Pole who leads nearly a billion Catholics and helped bring down Communism in the Soviet bloc — which left Cuba even further isolated.

Details of their discussions were not immediately available; Vatican officials scheduled a briefing for later in the day.

But observers said their encounter could lead to a papal visit to Cuba — the only Latin American country not visited by John Paul — and set a new course for the island nation.

Just an hour before Castro's arrival, the Vatican press office said in a change of plans that no reporters or photographers could be present when Castro arrived inside the Vatican for the audience.

The decision, by the Secretariat of State, was to make the Castro meeting no different than audiences the pope held last week with other world leaders who attended the U.N. Food Summit in Rome, the press office said.

The pope was expected to push for greater political liberty and more freedom for the Church, such as better access to the media and permission for foreign priests to work in Cuba.

John Paul also would like to see the Church play a role in any political transition, as it did during the collapse of Communism in Poland.

For his part, Castro was expected to welcome any encouraging words against the long-standing U.S. embargo against Cuba. A perceived papal blessing could enhance Castro's standing.

"I will bring him a salute, a message of friendship," Castro told reporters at a news conference Sunday to close the U.N. World Food Summit, which he attended last week in Rome. "Certainly I won't tread on questions of theology," he said.

OUR VIEWS

Charitable efforts need, deserve support from all

With Thanksgiving almost upon us and virtually all advertising beginning to hawk Christmas gift ideas, there's no question the holiday season is upon us.

That means a number of local charitable organizations have begun their efforts to make Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays something to smile about for those in need.

For the Salvation Army, the holidays are always the busiest time of year for officers and volunteers in every community.

Locally, its efforts will bear fruit next week when needy families receive food baskets promising a hearty Thanksgiving feast.

In addition, the Salvation Army has its Angel Tree project — perhaps the area's most ambitious effort of the season — in full swing with trees and their cards located at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, Wal-Mart, Big Spring Mall, the Cosden Federal Credit Union and Al's and Son Barbecue.

Those trees' paper ornaments represent children in need of clothes and shoes. The project has clothed more than 500 each season during in recent years.

Anyone picking an ornament off the tree and buying for a child is asked to purchase clothing and shoes, because the Salvation Army takes care of providing toys to put under each needy family's tree.

And this year, the elderly are getting focused attention from the Salvation Army.

In an expansion of the Angel Tree project, the Salvation Army this year has added a sixth tree located at La Vair's Coiffures Beauty Salon with cards naming 20 residents of local nursing homes who will not have children or grandchildren visiting them for the holidays.

There are other charitable programs seeking the public's support. Coat drives have been organized by the Big Spring Woman's Club for the Northside Community Center. A food basket drive by the Trail of Lights organization is also under way and two local businesses are sponsoring canned food drives to benefit the Northside Community Center and the Salvation Army.

The Big Spring Woman's Club is collecting coats, sweaters, knitted caps, scarves, gloves and blankets through the end of November, and organizers say there is a desperate need for children's coats.

Cellular One's food drive will benefit the Northside Community Center. The business is offering to waive its $35 activation fee for new customers if they bring in 10 cans of food or a package of disposable diapers.

TCA Cable TV of Big Spring is conducting a food drive, as well. That effort began yesterday and continues through Dec. 20. Anyone donating eight or more food items receives either free cable installation or free connection to various services.

The basis for these charitable efforts, of course, is that we who are more fortunate should not only be thankful for we've been given, but to share that bounty with those who have not been so blessed.

Thoughts of a child without presents under the Christmas tree or no coat for a winter day; a family with no food with which to prepare a holiday dinner; or a senior citizen sitting alone throughout the holidays should be haunting once we know such situations exist.

And once again, these various programs provide virtually all of us — regardless of how little we perceive our wealth — an opportunity to make a difference. We simply have to open our hearts.

Why we find politics so loathsome a business

By LEONARD LARSEN

Scriptis Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — Well, it's over. And, you'd think, millions of Americans, even if they voted for losers, would be rejoicing in a system of free and open elections in the world's greatest democracy.

But millions of Americans, it becomes more obvious in each election cycle, are given more to loathing than to rejoicing.

And why not? There's no joy in it for millions of Americans, no cheerful enthusiasm for the winners and no congratulations for candidates who lost but ran well and made their party and their supporters proud.

Instead, there's a hardening conviction out there — and not just among saloon wise-guys or suburban sophisticates or angry old men or smart-aleck college kids — that something's gone seriously haywire with what's said to be this majestic process in which American voters choose their president and other national leaders.

Yes, it might be said, there was reason enough in this election to be angry, to express loathing that a scandal-plagued and heartily disliked president should be running for — and winning — re-election, and his opponent, while an admirable man of long and honorable service, was a man whose speeches needed decoding and whose wandering campaign finally turned into a strange dance marathon with no apparent purpose or prize.

It might also be said that the congressional campaigns this time — many of them — were so low down and dirty, so filled with false boasts and accusations and outright lies that candidates on both sides should be condemned if not tarred and feathered for their excess.

What's more, it can be said that campaigns have been that way — and getting worse — for years and every election year the same or similar complaints are registered. That's certainly so, but no comfort for those millions of Americans still trying to do their duty as voters and citizens but who feel again they've been dirtied by a dirty process.

Somehow and systematically, it seems, Americans have not only been soiled by political campaigns and all the expensive and calculated misinformation that's hammered at them by professional cynics in a trade whose shared joy is winning dishonestly and becoming rich and famous in that work.

Americans also, somehow and systematically, have been robbed of any chance to watch up close and participate in the process, unless, of course, they can write checks for $50,000 in campaign contributions for either or both parties or they are certified big shots or entertainment celebrities who glamorize fund raisers and intimate sit-downs where candidates sell off pieces of themselves for handshakes and hugs.

Presidential campaigns have become increasingly removed from the reach and even the attention of most Americans, the process dominated by highly specialized organizations and early money in a handful of states, with presidential candidates actually selected for the fall election before most Americans have planted tulip bulbs or cut the lawn for the first time in the spring.

Congressional candidates for both parties are produced in much the same cookie-cutter fashion, just on a smaller scale. Increasingly, candidates who learned politics and representative government at local and state levels are replaced by sleek and polished operatives. Often as not nowadays, they've just stepped away from work as congressional flunkies or lobbyists to head up campaigns well-financed by special interests who've bought the candidates before most voters even know who's running.

Campaign financing, the way campaigns and candidates are routinely — not occasionally — purchased and banked away by all variety of special interests for good, not so good and downright evil is a large and running sore in elective politics. And there's nothing that can be done about it, as the apparently helpless politicians insist.

Both President Clinton and Bob Dole, each finding scandal in the other's campaign financing, offered the same cynicism: "There ought to be a bipartisan study. Yes, and after that congressional hearings and after that legislation and after that argument and name-calling and after that nothing, business as usual.

Americans are not all fools, and they've watched as elections have been taken farther away from them and put in the hands of sly operators whose expertise is in campaign shell games and dishonesty on a grand scale.

So why should Americans rejoice in a system that's become downright loathsome?

(Leonard Larsen writes this column for Scriptis Howard News Service.)

Campaign finance reform might help get rid of nasty ads

By CHARLES McDOWELL

Scriptis Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — In the last week of a not very inspiring campaign, President Clinton, Bob Dole and Ross Perot all hit a righteous tone by endorsing campaign finance reform.

After Clinton spoke out boldly for reform, the executive director of the Democratic National Committee admitted that the party had been too busy this season with a flood of contributions to check on their legality and propriety.

Dole, who opposed a bipartisan reform bill in the Senate recently, saw the president as a hypocrite who endorsed reform only after banking a load of foreign money. Perot seemed to find the whole spectacle degrading for a billionaire to have to watch.

Campaign finance is a mysterious subject for voters; there is a sense of money pouring into politics from special interests, of severe limits, huge exceptions and magic phrases like "soft money." All this confusing lore obscures the fact that so much money is involved — $1.6 billion for the presidential and House and Senate elections of 1996.

The statistics are so awesome that they make even my semi-understanding head hurt.

The average spending by the winners of Senate races was $600,000 in 1976, $3 million in 1986, $4.5 million in 1994. House incumbents this year are getting seven times more money than their challengers from special-interest PACs (political action committees). Bob Dole spent $35.46 per vote to finish second to Pat Buchanan ($26.65) in the New Hampshire primary this year. Malcolm Forbes spent $407.50 per vote and finished fourth.

What is all this money for? Most of it is for television, the medium of American politics. Television and its message — and the pollsters, consultants, producers, coaches, writers and time-sellers who put the message on the air — are the center of the action.

The most effective message is simple, superficial, distinctly negative and aimed right at the opposition. A charge against the opponent's honesty or decency gets more attention than discussions of real issues or informal talk of personal concerns.

Personality does matter on television, of course. But a relaxed and engaging candidate, when the personality is established and the political chips are down, does best by going after the opposition.

The consultants to the opposition will agree that the best defense is a counterattack. Both sides use the negative spots more and more frequently. Thus do politicians promote the notion that all politics is combative and corrupt.

As the public watches, its confidence in politicians declines. Over the recent decades, studies show potential voters tuning in serious discussion programs less, reading newspapers and magazines less, talking politics with neighbors less, going to a political meeting almost never.

From the 1930s into the 1950s and early television, the turnout of qualified voters moved up into the range of 50-60 percent, still far below other major democracies. Then, in 1960, John F. Kennedy as a presidential candidate boosted the number to 63 percent. That was the highest level reached for 32 more years!

Actual voting by voting-age citizens declined to 50 percent by 1988. It blipped up to 55 in 1992 but we still rank near the bottom of democracies.

The decline may well resume this year. Whatever, surely we have endured enough to know we ought to get serious about pending legislation with respected sponsors in both parties.

It would ban special-interest money, set spending limits, and provide free TV time to those who accept limits. It's a start, maybe on the way to civilized discussions of real issues.

Boniol's record-tying boot has Packers seething after Cowboys' white-wash

IRVING (AP) — If Green Bay and Dallas meet in the playoffs for the fourth consecutive year, it will be easy for the Packers to have the proper incentive. Besides losing to Dallas eight consecutive times, the Packers can now use the rallying cry: "Remember the Chris Boniol incident."

The last field goal came from 28 yards with 20 seconds left in the game to match the NFL mark shared by Jim Bakken and Rich Karlis. The kick came after Troy Aikman took a knee and the Cowboys called timeout to get Boniol onto the field. Aikman tried to wave the field goal team off the field. "I respect Aikman for doing that," Jones said. Aikman wouldn't talk about it after the game, saying only, "I'm glad our defense played as well as it did so that field goals were enough."

order was restored after a minor skirmish in which three players were kicked out of the game. "I was upset, but what can I do about it?" White said. "That was not important. They beat us is what it all boils down to." "Anytime a guy is that close to kicking a record for field goals, I don't care if we're winning or losing, you have to give a guy the opportunity," Dallas running back Emmitt Smith said. "Who knows when he'll have an opportunity to kick seven field goals again? You have to give a guy the chance."

He said kicking coach Steve Hoffman told him about the chance for the record. "I wouldn't deny your son, my son, anyone's son a chance to make an NFL record," said Switzer, who earlier this year turned down a suggestion by owner Jerry Jones that he run up the score against Miami and former Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "I made the decision and he sure deserved it, because he won the game with his foot. Someone's got to make the decision, and it was me. You can never have sympathy for anyone in this league. If our kicking coach hadn't told me he could set an NFL record, we wouldn't have done it!"

Boniol was caught in the center of the storm. He was as cool as he was on the field with his 7-for-7 game. "I just wanted to go out and do my thing," Boniol said. "I'm sorry it dampened things, but I still had to smile. One Green Bay player even came over and congratulated me. It's something I'm proud of." Offensive tackle Nate Newton said the Packers shouldn't cry about the loss. "They can call it a cheap shot or whatever they want to," Newton said. "We were just going for a record, not trying to humiliate anybody. We're not that kind of team. I bet those Packers beat the hell out of the next team they play."

Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren, now 0-7 against the Cowboys, was out on the field settling his players down. "It got a little unruly there at the end," Holmgren said. "I don't like to see that. Nobody does. I hope we get to play them again. That would mean that we are in the playoffs. It's one game on our schedule." Quarterback Brett Favre said, "The field goal had nothing to do with anything. That field goal doesn't bother me one bit." Dallas cornerback Kevin Smith said the Packers would do something similar. "If Reggie White needed a sack for a record, I'm sure he'd be on his toes trying to sack our quarterback," Smith said.

Kindle paces Lady Hawks to easy win

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

After seeing how much fun LaTonya Kindle had scoring points Monday night, the rest of the Howard College Lady Hawks decided to get in on the act. Kindle sparked scoring rallies in each half and ended the night with 21 points to lead the Lady Hawks to a 78-57 victory over New Mexico Junior College in Garrett Coliseum. Shawta Johnson had 20 points and Kyna McGruder 11 for the Lady Hawks, who improved to 6-1 overall and 1-0 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play. Oneka Wilmore had 23 points and Antonette Bryant 11 for New Mexico.

"We've always been able to get a lot of spark from (Kindle)," Howard coach Matt Corkery said. "When she comes into the game, she's always very aggressive and looking to score." Her first scoring explosion came with about seven minutes left in the first half and the Lady Hawks trailing 15-14. McGruder fed her for a three-pointer to grab the lead, then the duo teamed up for another three-pointer to make the score 20-15. Wilmore canned a three-pointer to cut the deficit to two points, but Kindle and McGruder went back to work, scoring the next six points between them. Latraica Spencer added a bucket on a putback, then Kindle added another of her three-pointers to give the Lady Hawks a 32-23 lead with two minutes left in the first half. The Lady Hawks cut the lead to four points at intermission, but Kindle and Co. didn't allow them to make a serious run at the lead. Neshia Gamble scored from in close 20 seconds into the second half, and Howard was off and running on a 15-7 spurt

Worst-kept secret is out: Holtz stepping down from ND helm

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Lou Holtz acted like it was just another practice — pacing, yelling, racing around in his golf cart. There were no tears, no speeches, at least none for the public to see. He gave no indication that he spent Monday afternoon working out the final details of his resignation, which he planned to announce today at his weekly news conference. "Practice went a little longer than I thought it would because I was eating Roloids and I couldn't call them (players) up," Holtz said afterward. "It's just really difficult to stay focused on everything." While he refused to say anything else, two university sources who spoke on the condition they not be identified told The Associated Press that Holtz will step down after 11 seasons at Notre Dame. "He met with the administration and told them he's leaving," one of the two sources said. School spokesman John Heisler declined to confirm that, saying only that Holtz met with athletic director Mike Wadsworth and the Rev. William Beauchamp, the university's executive vice president. Wadsworth declined comment, and Beauchamp was not immediately available. "They have reached a decision and it will be announced at 1 p.m. tomorrow," Heisler said Monday. Why Holtz, 59, is resigning at 11 seasons is not clear, but one possibility is that he wants another shot at the NFL, where he led the New York Jets to a 3-10 record in 1976 before resigning with one game left. One scenario has him are Northwestern's Gary Barnett and Irish defensive coordinator Bob Davie. The Chicago Sun-Times, citing unidentified sources, reported Monday that Notre Dame wants Barnett to succeed Holtz and has agreed to talk with him. But Barnett said such talk was premature. "I don't think you ever say never," he said Monday. "I don't know at this point in time. I would hope Northwestern wants me here. You never know." Barnett, in shades of Holtz, also refused to say if he'd been contacted about the job. "I'm not confirming or denying anything at this point in time," he said. Others mentioned include LSU's Gerry DiNardo, former UCLA coach Terry Donahue and Wisconsin's Barry Alvarez. Despite speculation about Holtz and the Vikings, the team's 10 owners appear far from settled on him. President Roger Headrick, appointed in 1991 as the owners' front man, seems opposed to hiring Holtz if a coaching change is made. Co-owner Wheelock Whitney told the Saint Paul Pioneer Press in Monday's editions that Holtz is his choice if the team needs a new coach. The 10th-ranked Irish (7-2) have two games remaining — at home against Rutgers and at Southern California. He is 99-29-2 at Notre Dame — six wins shy of tying Knute "Red" Knute's Irish school record — and 215-94-7 overall. But he encountered rough times recently. Notre Dame lost 10 games in the last three seasons — more than his 1988-1993 squads lost combined.

coaching the Minnesota Vikings if current coach Dennis Green leaves. Holtz met with his players before practice, and it appeared he had told them he was leaving. But they were as tight-lipped as their coach, preferring to let him make the announcement. Senior linebacker Bert Berry would say, though, that he can't imagine what Notre Dame will be like without Holtz. "Coach Holtz is such a great coach and I have so much admiration and respect for him," he said. "It's been an honor and a privilege to play for him, and I think anyone that's played for him would say the same thing." Holtz's resignation ends nearly a week of speculation that he was leaving, which he did nothing to deny. Though there was some speculation he might make his announcement earlier, today's news conference is the logical place. Local media are there, and national media participate via conference call. With Holtz gone, speculation now turns to who will replace him. It was not immediately known if his successor would be announced today. Freshmen girls slam Snyder

SNYDER — The Big Spring High School freshmen girls' basketball team improved to 2-0 for the season with a 50-29 win over Snyder Monday. Monica Rubio had 14 points and three steals, while Lindsey Marino had 11 points and four assists for Big Spring. Also, Heather Gibbs scored eight points and Chrissy Atkerson seven. Others playing well for Big Spring were Heddy Wigington, Candice Fryar and Julie Adams. The BSHS freshmen girls return to action Thursday in the Greenwood basketball tournament.

Stallings top Gator at meet

Stanton native Jeremy Stallings, now a junior for the University of Florida, completed the 1996 cross country season by running a time of 31:53 on the 10,000 meter course at the District III meet in Greenville, S.C. Saturday. Stallings was the Gators' top finisher and placed 70th out of 450 runners at the meet.

Stallings and the UF track team starts the indoor season in January.

Young cleared to play

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Steve Young has the go-ahead from doctors to resume playing. He still has to convince 49ers coach George Seifert, who remains concerned about Young's susceptibility to another concussion.

Young, who has suffered two concussions in three weeks, visited his neurologist Monday and received medical clearance to play.

That left the final say on his playing status with Seifert, who expects to decide by Wednesday whether to start Elvis Grbac at Washington next Sunday or return Young to his starting job.

Young, the two-time league MVP and four-time season passing efficiency leader, watched from the sidelines Sunday as Grbac ran for a score and passed for another in a 38-0 victory over Baltimore. Grbac completed 26 of 31 passes for 268 yards.

Cougars get Liberty Bowl bid

HOUSTON (AP) — Conference-USA co-champion University of Houston accepted an invitation Monday to play in the Dec. 27 Liberty Bowl in Memphis, Tenn., against a Big East Conference opponent.

Houston made a huge turnaround in Kim Helton's fourth season as head coach. The Cougars improved from 2-9 last season to 7-4 this year, including a victory over co-champion Southern Mississippi.

"We're kind of unhappy that we're not in the top 25 and now we've got one more chance at it so we're going to Memphis to win," Helton told a cheering crowd at the college's athletic building.

Houston won only four games over the previous three seasons but completed an exciting 1996 season by winning four games in their final possession, including two in overtime.

The Cougars will take a potent offense that led C-USA into their first bowl game since 1988 when the Cougars lost to Washington State 24-22 in the Aloha Bowl.

The Cougars not only want to play well but also bring a big cheering section.

that put the lead back into double digits.

Then, for good measure, Kindle accentuated the run by scoring six points in a 90-second span to make the score 57-40 with 11:16 remaining. New Mexico never got closer than 12 from that point.

McGruder said the Lady Hawks made the necessary mental adjustments to come out firing in the second half.

"We knew we just had to come out and play hard in the second half," she said. "We decided what we had to do, then we went out and did it."

Corkery stressed the importance of Howard's winning its first conference game, then promptly forgetting about it, especially with preseason favorite Midland College waiting in the wings Thursday.

"To be honest, I haven't thought about Midland until now, but it does help to get off on the right foot in conference," he said. "Now, we need to put this one behind us and get ready for Midland."

The Lady Hawks face Midland at 8 p.m. Thursday at Chaparral Center in Midland.

If a winner still doesn't emerge, a drawing will be held among those contestants still tied. Decisions of the judges are final. The weekly winner of the contest will receive $1,000.
- Any entry form that does not contain a legible name, address, etc., will be disqualified.
- Entries that fail to forecast a winner from each and every game will be disqualified, as will entries that fail to distinguish between the Jets and Giants of New York and Pitt and Pittsburgh.
- No points are awarded on tie games or in case any game is not played for any reason during its scheduled week.
- Entering POWER POINTS constitutes permission by contestant for his or her name and photograph to be used for news and reasonable promotional purposes at no charge.
- Employees of this newspaper and their immediate families are ineligible to participate.
- Any inquiry about or protest of weekly results must be made by Noon on the Friday following the announcement of winners.
- No purchase necessary. Facsimile game entry forms will be accepted. Enter contest by dropping entry form into POWER POINTS container at participating co-sponsor.
- Weekly deadline for entry will be 2 p.m. Fridays except when noted otherwise on weekly entry form.
- Neither the newspaper nor any co-sponsor will be responsible for illegible entry forms or those lost, stolen or damaged in any way.
- Limit: one entry per person per week. Each entry must represent the original work of one entrant; "group" entries, "systems" or other attempts to "farm" entries will be disqualified. Filing out by "mail" and putting your friends' and relatives' names on them violates this rule. Any such entries are destroyed prior to grading.
- Contestants must have reached the age of eight (8) years by the Sunday of any week's play.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 20:

Be more forthright with others this year. What remains hidden will come out. This is not a time to accumulate skeletons in your closet. Keep as much as possible as clear as you can. You are changing and want different things for yourself and your domestic life. Work is stressful and demanding at times. Your strength and endurance will pay off here. If you are single, you might become focused on career, to romance's detriment. Make more time for joy, socializing and interactions. If attached, you will make strong choices for yourself. However, do not leave out your significant other. Recognize how important your loved one is to you. ARIE3 can be burdensome. The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Understand exactly what motivates you regarding a friendship and a long-term need. A partner is 100 percent there for you. The number of available resources amazes you. They seem to pop out of nowhere! Trust that you have what it takes. Tonight: As you like it. *** TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pull back, and decide what you want. You send mixed signals. Be as clear as you need to; it can only benefit you. Recognize that a boss may be obsessive at the moment. An associate helps you determine how to best handle this situation. Tonight: Vanish quickly. *** GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You pursue a heartfelt interest. There is every reason to believe that you will succeed. News from a distance is outstanding. You are willing to walk through a new door. Work supports a long-range goal. Focus on the end result.
