mmissioners approve grant application for computer funds

CARLTON JOHNSON

Howard County Commissioners unanimously during Wednesday's special meeting in favor of a resolution authorizing County Judge Ben Lockhart to apply for a Criminal Justice Computer Information System grant.

The grant application, which was scheduled to be presented to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission for review today, will be made to the Texas Narcotics Control Program Office of the Governor's Criminal Justice Division.

The program is a federal program and the grant amount being sought by the county is $70,800 with the county's cash match being $23,597 for a total amount of $94,388.

The grant proposal was presented by Al Chitwood of Plano-based Software Group Inc. and Howard County Supervising Adult Probation Officer Charles Johnson.

The Sheriff's Office is not automated and the paperwork load is overwhelming," Chitwood said. "What's being proposed is a turnkey price, meaning software, hardware and installation of the system is included.

Chitwood also told commissioners that in the near future all county agencies and offices dealing with Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS) reports will be required to file them electronically.

Before voting to approve the grant request, Commissioner Sonny Choate said he was going along with Sheriff Bill Jennings whom he said was skeptical about the system simply because of the price changes that have been quoted in the last several days.

Later during the presentation, it was revealed that earlier price quotes were incomplete.

Mike West, chief administrative assistant in the Sheriff's Office, said the department needs the system and can definitely use it. *My feeling is that we should apply for the grant simply on principle, Commissioner Bill Crooker said. "Nothing ventured means nothing

An outline of the CJIS project shows that increased reliance on criminal records, as maintained in the state's criminal record repository, makes the accuracy of those records crucial, which is where the system would especially be useful. According to Chitwood, the present process of reporting criminal arrests, prosecutions and dispositions is currently a manual process, which often results in forms and information not being submitted, misrouted or lost, contributing to the under reporting of records.

Manual reporting is a problembecause the county and other departments such as the County Clerk, County Attorney and District Attorney do not have the technological resources to implement a computerized system for case processing and disposition reporting.

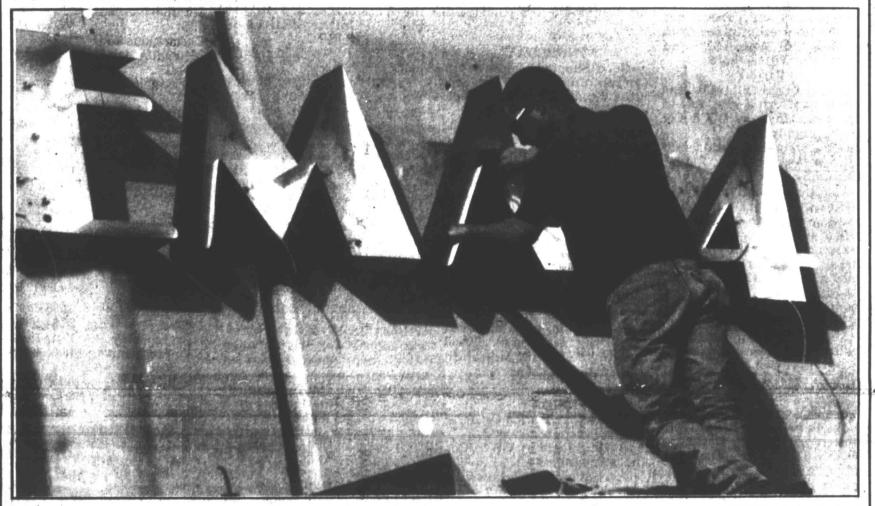

The CJIS Improvement project will expand upon the county's existing computer resources, which are midrange, and implement an integrated CJIS compliant system of processing criminal cases and disposition.

The grant will include hardware upgrades to the county's current system, software license upgrades, new CJIS compliant software for various county departments and peripheral equipment such as personal computers, terminals and printers.

"The project proposes an expansion of the existing software base currently being used by the County Auditor's Office, the Justice courts and the Adult Probation Department, which will enhance the sharing of data and communications between departments." Chitwood said.

Funds for on-site staff training on the equipment are included in the grant. The bottom line, according to Chitwood, is that the Sheriff's Department will have the technological resources to automate operations currently being done manually, and the system will reduce redundant data management, which will result in a substantial increase in the accuracy and speed of reporting arrests, prosecutions and disposition of criminal

Course superintendent list to two names

By CARLTON JOHNSON Staff Writer

The process of finding a replacement for retiring Comanche Trail Park Golf Course Superintendent Al Patterson is almost complete and Assistant City Manager Emma Bogard hopes to name a successor within the next few

A list of nine applicants was narrowed by Bogard to two finalists, Sterling Miller, a golf course superintendent from Lubbock, and Jack Birdwell, a golf course superintendent from Roswell, N.M.

Miller and Birdwell were both interviewed last Friday.

plan to have the position filled

The Parks and Recreation Patterson is retiring at the Board met earlier this month end of January and city officials and decided to recommend maintaining the same form of management previously used at the golf course, which was a gold pro.

One area the new pro will have to tackle is how to get the course on track to becoming self-sufficient

Comanche Trail Golf Course made $4,699 during the 1992-93 fiscal year, bringing in $184,064 in revenue and having $179,365 in expenditures.

Each year since, the course has lost money: $44,145, in 1993-94; $93,424 in 1994-95; and $87,402 during the 1995-96 year, for a total revenue shortfall since 1992 a total of $224,971.

According Fuqua, the city hopes to have a plan outlined as to what to do with the course by the time Patterson does retire.

Community getting thanks from Moore for Signal backing

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Landing Signal Homes Inc. in Big Spring is a feather in the cap of Moore Development For Big Spring, and during their Wednesday meeting, board members and Executive Director Danette expressed the need to not rest on this accomplishment but continue reaching out for more business prospects.

Toone said she wanted to go individuals, organizations and the citizens of Big Spring for their help and support in securing Signal's move to Big Spring.

She added that many people still see Wright Fibers as a strike against Moore and some have called the office to relay those sentiments, but it's that kind of pressure that keeps Moore on its toes.

One good thing did come out of the Wright Fibers situation, Toone added. "The building on Eleventh Place (now Signal Homes) was in horrible condition before Wright Fibers moved in, but they did do some major improvements to the building."

Moore is planning an auction Saturday to sell the remaining Wright Fibers equipment in the building. It will have to split those proceeds with the Texas Agricultural Authority, which helped Moore fund the Wright Fibers project. Moore has already sold some of the equipment in the building, earning almost $58,000 from those sales.

Signal is currently renovating and painting the building and hopes to begin manufacturing sometime within the first two weeks in April.

items discussed Other

Wednesday included the airport/airpark master plan and the impact of the Business Development Center (BDC). Assistant Director Pam Welch highlighted the request for qualifications to be presented to firms to develop airport/airpark plan, with emphasis being placed on the airport first.

Welch said preliminary estimates are that the plan could cost between $30,000 and $200,000. In June, a new structure of the BDC was approved by the city council, with Shirley Shroyer dividing her time on a 25 percent/75 percent basis, the majority being spent at Howard college BDC Coordinator Barraza divides her time on a 50/50 basis between the BDC and Howard College.

One of the major improvements at the BDC has been attendance at the small and minority business gatherings around town.

The next small and minority business gathering is scheduled for 7:30 a.m. on Feb. 12 at the El Nopal Restaurant.

"These gatherings give businesses a chance to network, learn how they can do more business and get information about marketing their products," Shroyer said.

Board member chairman of Carruthers, Moore's retention and expansion committee said the first major employer forum has been set for 3 p.m. on Feb. 6 at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

"This will be a fairly aggressive agenda with a lot of focus being placed on the BDC and educational opportunities," Carruthers said. "We want this first forum to be more an educational type meeting."

Clinton, GOP not far apart on Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) President Clinton's Medicare plan appears to be close to the Republican approach — not just in budget numbers but in the policies that lie beneath them. But most Republicans are withholding judgment until they see the fine print. Still, the tone is in stark contrast to last year's bloody battle over the program that serves nearly 38 million elderly Americans. Because Medicare is such a huge piece of the federal budget and because its spending is increasing much faster than other areas, restraining its growth is central to balancing the budget.

In 1995, Republicans handed Clinton a key campaign issue when they proposed cutting $270 billion from future spending by reducing payments to providers and allowing premiums to rise.

The latest Clinton proposal would cut future spending by $100 billion over five years, $138 million over six years.

The two sides came closer to an agreement by early 1996, but with a presidential election on the .orizon, no deal was done. Clinton labeled Republicans extremists as he won a second term; Republicans accused him of demagoging.

In reality, many say, there wasn't much difference in the two sides' final positions.

'There's a lot more agreement between the Clinton administration and the Republican Congress than the debate during the campaign would ever have suggested," said Robert Reischauer, former director of the Congressional Budget Office and now a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution.

With the Medicare ball in his court, the president proposed a plan Tuesday that split the difference between last year's final offers. Most Republicans cheered, while reserving final judgment until they see the

Just one difference has emerged so far. Republicans protest Clinton's plan to shift payments for fast-growing home health care from the hospital trust fund, which is on the verge of bankruptcy, to the Part B program, which pays for doctor costs and is financed mostly with general tax revenue.

Republicans call the shift a gimmick to save the trust fund. The administration argues home health care really belongs in the Part B program.

Other than that, there are many ideas in Clinton's plan that Republicans have supported, at least in concept, in the past. Among them:

OUR VIEWS

Boydstun set to move into history

hen the demolition crew begins its work Monday on the former Boydstun Elementary School building, multiple generations will be brought together in our community.

Yes, for many years the children of our community were served well in the classrooms of Boydstun and now, years after the facility last played an active role in the education of our youth, Boydstun again plays a major role.

That's because Boydstun is giving way to the new junior high school voters overwhelmingly approved last fall and while the Boydstun facility will be no more, the memory of the school itself and the role it played in the education of generations of students in our community will star with us.

To paraphrase: if you aren't moving forward, you're losing ground, has never been more true than in this instance.

With the way being cleared for work to begin on the new school facility, our community moves ahead. Yes, we'll always take the time to look back over our shoulder to remember what was ... but we must always remember to look ahead with a determination and clear vision so that we will be able to play an active role in deciding what will be.

As we move ahead, Boydstun will always serve as the link between our past, the present and our future.

Resident wishes Elrod's well in expanded venture

TO THE EDITOR:

You know there is always a lot of talk about tearing down old buildings and repairing old buildings. Most of those projects in some way are supported by tax dollars. Most of these projects are also worth the cost.

Right now there is as project going forward that will cost you no tax dollars. That has taken a 70,000 square foot eyesore and turned it into a retail center Big Spring can be proud of. A lot of work, capital, and faith has gone into this project.

As most of you know I'm talking about Elrod's Furniture moving to the old Gibson building if you want to see Big Spring prosper you need to support Dee and Lynda in their new endeavor. I'm not saying buy from them because of what they invested in Big Spring, but I'm saying give them a chance to meet your furniture needs.

If a year from now, other business people ask them how are they doing, and they say great, you'll see other businesses expand their inventory, their floor space, and their confidence in Big Spring's economy. Then, you will see Big Spring's retail community grow.

If we can combine a strong retail community with the strong government and commercial businesses we now have, I think you will see Big Spring grow and prosper.

So, Dee and Lynda, good luck. LARRY RAY Big Spring

Politically correct pirates: Is Disney going too far?

By ELIZABETH JARNAGIN Amarillo Globe-News

Here's another sign we take ourselves and our entertainment much too seriously: Disneyland's Pirates of the Caribbean ride is undergoing a political makeover to eliminate the sexist way those pirates act toward women. Part of the ride used to include pirates chasing shrieking wenches — er... estrogen-based life-forms -

No more Now the PC pirates' officially sanctioned sin is gluttony. The women will carry trays of turkey and wine and the object of pirates' lust will be food and drink. Even that could be troubling to some PCers and other addicted to food and it's no laughing matter, they'll say.

around the village.

And drinking? The pirates better have a designated driver for their ship, otherwise some of us will get really MADD at

Meanwhile, the pirates are on a two-month sabbatical while Disney gives the ride a makeover. I wonder what sort of sign Disney will place in front of the ride while it's closed.

One option: "Our pirates are attending sensitivity training. They will return to eat and drink like pigs but they will no longer behave like male chauvinist pigs."

Or: "The pirates are off plundering. They will reluctantly return when their ship can't hold any more gold." No. That's not sufficiently PC.

How about: "The pirates are touring schools, admonishing children not to follow in their peg leg footsteps and explaining the dangers of a pirate lifestyle."

Now, I'm one to watch carefully how women are portrayed and treated in various forms of media. But even I think Disney's actions are taking political correctness a tad too far. Still, the park could go to even further extremes, to avoid offending.

How? Let's start with blended familie Disney seldom depicts positive images of such households. Wicked stepmothers abound and fathers are usually weak saps. Then we have Cinderella's fat, ugly and selfish stepsisters who make slender and lovely Cinderella do all the work. Those who are clinically obese or attractivenesschallenged would certainly take offense at that.

Then we have the Seven

Dwarves, three of whom I had to look up. Guess that means it's time to bone up on trivia. Nineties' drugs and excuses could fix these little - er ... vertically challenged - guys right up.

There's Grumpy. Give that boy some Prozac and help him get in touch with his inner child. There's Dopey, whose moniker is dreadfully un-PC. Perhaps, like Jughead of Archie fame, Disney can PCfully explain his lack of mental acuity by claiming he's dyslex-

Sleepy: Clearly his body's not manufacturing enough melatonin. That can be fixed.

Happy: Nothing wrong with him, right? Wrong. He clearly hasn't accepted his fair share of guilt for white male oppression. Bashful could use a psycho-cosmetic makeover. No reason to put up with unpleasant personality quirks when a pill can fix you right up. Sneezy: Perhaps he has multiple chemical sensitivity. If that's the case, the government should pay for him to have a specially constructed house and no one wearing cologne, perfume or recently drycleaned apparel should be allowed anywhere near him. Perhaps the seventh dwarf, Doc, could use the medical expertise his name denotes to help his fellow dwarves.

Sleeping Beauty is the poster girl for co-dependence. The woman can't even regain consciousness without male assistance!

Speaking of Beauties, the tale of Beauty and the Beast could do with a PC revision and reality check. Any woman who's bought that "my love will improve him" fairy tale lives unhappily ever after, until she gets wise and dumps the brute. People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals would like to make a few changes to Disneyland, as well. Jenny Woods, a spokesman for the group, said the park should change its Jungle Cruise. Now the riverboat pilot shoots a fake hippo charging the boat.

"Hippos freed from 200 by animal liberationists," would be much better, she said.

You've got to be kidding. PETA also has a problem with a Disney arcade game in which players bash alligators' heads. "Feeding an alligator would be so much nicer," she said.

And more boring.

By PAUL CRAIG ROBERTS Scripps Howard News Service

"The Crucible," currently playing in movie theaters across the nation, is a frightening portraval of the destruction of innocents with false accusations in what has become know as the Salem witch trials. Americans who think it can't happen today can disabuse themselves of their naivete by observing events in Wenatchee, Wash.

In Wenatchee, fantastic allegations of a child sex ring have sent some two dozen. innocent parents to jail. The prosecutions relied on coerced plea bargains and on what now appears to be false testimony from 'witnesses' who have subsequently recanted.

Some of the falsely presecuted have brought a civil suit for violations of their civil rights by the city's responsible officials, including police detective Robert Perez and Child Protective Service officials Tim Abbey and Kate Carrow. The suit, filed in the superior court of the state of Washington, could, if won by the parents, be severe enough. to bankrupt the city. One way ed authorities to fire and indict those who abused their power and the public's trust, make a public apology and cooperate in obtaining the release of those shown to be falsely accused.

According to court documents and affidavits filed on Jan. 17 in the Washington state superior court, defendants in the civil suit are accused of using their official police and investigatory authority to threaten, intimidate and bribe potential witnesses in the civil suit to give false testimony in behalf of the defendants.

Specifically, the court documents contain an affidavit: from Micheile Kimble that CPS investigator Kate Carrow, a defendant in the civil suit; came to her house on Dec. 17 and summoned her to a meeting at the CPS office in Wenatchee with Detective Perez and CPS director Tim Abbey, also defendants in the suit. In her sworn statement, Micheile Kimbie says: "I did not want to go there, but I felt threatened and afraid that if I did not cooperate with her that: she and CPS would again remove my son from my care." The court documents describe how Michelle Kimble. in the Dec. 17 meeting with Carrow, Mr. Abbey, and Officer Perez, says she was threatened and coerced into making false sex-abuse charges against Pastor Roby Roberson. a plaintiff in the civil suit and the backbone of the community resistance to the child sex ring witch-hunt.

In her affidavit, Michelle Kimble explains why she gave false testimony: "I was very fearful about losing my son and was scared when Detective Perez threatened to initiate criminal charges against me. Therefore, I gave the statement that Detective Perez wanted to hear, which he tape-recorded, indicating that I had been sexually abused and had seen the Robersons engage in sex abuse of children. That statement was made on Dec. 17, 1996, I want to restate that I have never been sexually abused by any person, nor have I ever seen any sex abuse of other people perpetrated by the Robersons or anyone else.

"However, under the pressure of Detective Perez with CPS right there, and the fact that I may have my son wrongfully removed from me again, I said what he wanted me to say."

Tampering with a witness, bribing a witness and intimidating a witness are criminal offenses. If a rule of law still exists in the state of Washington, we can expect to see indictments of any public officials who have committed these offenses in order to shield themselves from civil damages arising from false prosecutions.

In Wenatchee, justice is far from secure. Nothing was done by state officials about the initial miscarriages of justice that characterize the Wenatchee sex ring witch-hunt, and they are now replaying themselves in the intimidation and coercion of witnesses in the civil trial brought by those once accused. If those trusted with the power of law are themselves violating the law. it is a frightening indication that they do not expect to be held accountable

QUESTION: My 4-year-old frequently comes running home in tears because she has been hit by one of her little friends. I have taught her it is not right to hit others, but now they are making life miserable for her. What should I tell her about defending herself?

DR. DOBSON: When youngsters play together, they each want to have the best toys and determine the ground rules to their advantage. If they find they can predominate by simply flinging a well-aimed fist at the nose of their playmate, someone is likely to get hurt.

I'm sure there are people who disagree with me on this issue, but I believe you should teach your child to defend himself or herself when attacked. Later. they can be taught to "turn the other cheek," which even mature adults find difficult to implement.

I recently consulted with a mother who was worried about her small daughter's inability to protect herself from aggression. There was one child in the neighborhood who would crack 3-year-old Ann in the face at the slightest provocation. This little bully, named Joan, was very smail and feminine, but che never felt the sting of retaliation, because Ann had been taught not to fight back.

I recommended Ann's mother tell her to return Joan's attack if Joan hit first. Several days later, the mother heard a loud altercation outside, followed by a brief scuffle. Then Joan began crying and went home. Ann walked casually into the house with her hands in her pockets, and casually explained, "Joan socked me, so I had to help her remember not to him me again." She and Joan have played much more peacefully since that time.

Generally speaking, a parent should emphasize the foolish same leaky boat, trying to plug ness of fighting. But to force a child to stand passively while being clobbered is to leave him at the mercy of his cold-blooded

QUESTION: I am 13 years old, and I feel miserable about myself. Is there anything I can

DR. DOBSON: First, you need to understand you are not alone. When you go to school tomorrow, quietly watch the students who are coming and going. I assure you, many of them have the same concerns that trouble you. They reveal these doubts by being very shy and quiet, by being extremely angry and mean, by being silly, by being afraid to participate in a game or contest, by blushing frequently or by acting proud or "stuck up."

You'll soon learn to recognize the signs of inferiority, and then you'll know it's a very common disorder. It will give you more confidence to know that everyone is afraid of embarrassment and ridiculethe watery holes.

Second, I advise you to look squarely at the worries that keep gnawing at you from the back of your mind or from deep within your heart, causing a black cloud to hang over your head day and night. Then list all the things which you most uslike about yourself. Nobody is going to see this paper except the people you choose to show it to, so you din be completely honest. Write down everything that's bothering you.

Identify your most serious problems as best as possible. Whatever concerns you, write it down the best you can. Then when you're finished, go back through the list and put a mark by those items that worry you the most—the problems you spend the most time thinking and fretting about.

Third, think about each item on the list. Give your greatest creative thought to what might be done to change the things you don't like. If you wish, you might share the paper with someone in whom you have confidence. That person can then help you map out a plan for improvement. You'll feel better for having faced your problems.

The key to mental health is being able to accept what you cannot change. After you've done what you can to deal with your problems, I feel you should take the paper on which the most painful items are written, and burn it in a private ceremony.

These questions and answers are excerpted from the book Dr. Dobson Answers Questions. Dr. James Dobson is a psychologist, author and president of Focus on the Family, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of the home.

A group of Big Spring High School students recently received academic letters and jackets in recognition of their outstanding grades.

To be eligible for a letter, students must have an average grade of 90 in every subject they take for the shoool year and no semester grade can be lower than an 87. Athletics, band, choir and office are considered "non-academic" so those grades don't count toward reaching the honor.

Another qualification is the student must take two of the following courses: English, scit ence, mathematics and social Oldest stone tools found, but who made them?

NEW YORK (AP) -Scientists have found the oldest known objects made by human ancestors, thousands of stone tools that were crafted more than 2.5 million years

The finding, in Ethiopia, pushes back the record of toolmaking by around 200,000 years. The tools show a surprising degree of craftsmanship and raise a nagging question: Who made them?

The standard answer is that the finding represents the earliest sign of Homo, the evolutionary group that includes modern humans and their closest extinct relatives. Tool-making is traditionally considered a mark of Homo.

Some scientists say the newfound tools may have been made by smaller-brained relatives of Homo instead.

No fossils of Homo or anything else were found with the tools to help settle the matter, said Sileshi Semaw of Rutgers University, principal author of the paper announcing the discovery in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature.

Semaw said he believes early members of Homo made the nearly 3,000 stone tools found between 1992 and 1994 in the Gona area of Ethiopia. The collection includes rounded, fistsize stones and small, sharpedged flakes. The larger stones had been smashed together to that tools made so long ago would be inferior to later ones.

Similar tools had been reported before from the area, well fixed. They are probably the same age as the newly reported ones, he said.

to crack nuts and sharpen sticks for digging up tubers and other food, Semaw said. They may have been used to cut dead animals apart, too, but the excavation found no evidence of carcasses with the tools, he said.

Semaw and his co-authors said that the tools showed a surprisingly sophisticated control of the flaking process, and that they generally resembled tools from elsewhere that were made nearly 1 million years later.

titled "The Oldest Whodunit in the World," Bernard Wood of the University of Liverpool in England argues the case for Paranthropus boisei, a cousin of ancient Homo. He noted stone tools changed

That suggests the objects were made by toolmakers who lived throughout that entire span, he said.

No individual species of early Homo is known to have done that, but Paranthropus boisei did, Wood said.

Even scientists who favor Homo as the Ethiopian toolmaker said it's not a sure "To say that stone tools equals Homo, you're kind of making an assumption there that may or may not be right,' said Penn State anthropologist Richard Sherwood.

Sleeveless gowns are worn year-round

You used to be able to look at a wedding gown and tell the type of ceremony, the time of day and the season.

Not any more. Sleeveless gowns are worn year-round, satin spans the seasons, formal gowns are worn in casual settings and simple ones in church ceremonies.

The key is pleasing the bride. "She sets the stage," says Paulette MacNeil, director of stores for Priscilla of Boston.

The seasonless quality of many dresses stems from the fact that weddings are held year-round. Many ceremonies are planned for major holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas, because that's when families can get together.

MacNeil says necklines are the key style ingredient in gowns for 1997, with halters, scoop and bateau necks being big sellers.

Waistlines also are changing, with empire styles reminiscent of the 1970s making a come-

Bride says. The list includes embroidered fabrics, pleated tulle and chiffon, ottoman fabrics, passementerie, appliques, brocades, piques and dotted swiss. Satin is ubiquitous, crepe and chiffon are important and silk shantung is on the rise. Top laces are Alencon, Venise and Chantilly, used on skirts as well as the bodice. What you aren't going to see a lot of is sleeves.

"The biggest trend is the sleeveless dress," says Fran Stamper, bridal buyer for Auer's.

The full-skirted tulle ballgown continues to win favor with brides who want a fairy-tale look. Designers such as Badgley Mischka and Helen Morley are doing them, with bodice treatments that range from satin pleats to delicate beading, according to Stamper.

The jury's still out on whether the slender cowl-front dress Carolyn Bessette wore to marry John F. Kennedy Jr. last year will have the impact that other celebrity gowns have

THE LAST WORD

As to moral courage, I have rarely met the two o'clock in the morning kind. I mean unprepared courage, that which is necessary on an unexpected occasion, and which, in spite of the most unforeseen events, leaves full freedom of judgment and decision.

-Napoleon Bonaparte

If a child is to keep alive his inborn sense of wonder without any such gift from the fairles, he needs the companionship of at least one adult who can share it, rediscovering with him the joy, excitement and mystery of the world we live in.

Kids lift car off man's chest DENVER (AP) — When Gary Lewis' car collapsed onto his chest while he was changing the transmission, the only people around to hear his cries for help were five skinny youngsters.

Together, the four boys and a girl — ranging in age from 8 to 13 — were able to lift the compact Ford Festiva just enough to allow Lewis to slide free. He emerged with bruises and scrapes and did not require hospitalization.

"They're my heroes. I don't know how they did it," Lewis said of Friday's rescue. "But if they hadn't gotten that car off me when they did, I wouldn't be talking to you right now."

After hearing Lewis, 33, cry for help, Raymond Brown III, 13; Omar Turner, 10; Gordon Stevens, 9; Tamika Brown, 9; and 8-year-old Sorl "Shugey" Shead came to the rescue.

"I ran into my house and told my mom to call 911," said Raymond. Then he led his friends over the backyard fence, and across the alley to Lewis.

"They definitely saved my life because I was losing breath fast," Lewis said.

And what was it that gave the youngsters such a Popeye-like burst of strength?

"I drink milk," Shugey replied. "I drink milk, too, and I eat cheese," Tamika said. "It probably had something to do with Christmas candy; all that sugar gave them energy,' said Yvonne Brown, Raymond and Tamika's mother.

Shugey flexed his 8-year-old biceps and said, "I feel like a mighty hero."

Patriots talk tough, but history says expect a blowout

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Most of the 30 Super Bowls have been decided by 10 points or more. Twenty-two, to be exact.

Why should Sunday's game be any different?
The New England Patriots, a two-touchdown underdog to Green Bay, think they'll be able to keep Americans gathered around their television sets past halftime — and not just to see who wins Bud Bowl '97.

"It doesn't matter to me what happened in the past," said New England's Keith Byars.
"It's not like when we kick the ball off, we're going to be behind 14-0. It's going to be 0-

Brave words, to be sure, but one must be imaginative to come up with possible scenar-ios in which the Patriots end the AFC's not-so-glorious legacy in the Super Bowl: 12 consecu-

NFC champion Green Bay

had the best record in the ague, not to mention the most productive offense and the tinglest defense. "There's so much talent on our team," said Green Bay's Keith Jackson, a Pro Bowler even though he's used in a spe-cialized role at tight end. "If I was anywhere else, I guess I would be a little upset because I would want to be the go-to guy, but there's so much talent at every position here."

That's bad enough. The Patriots also are listening to everyone talking about their coach possibly leaving after the Bill Parcells and team owner Robert Kraft appeared together Wednesday, but their attempt at unity did little to dispel the perception that the two men don't like each other and that

Parcells plans to coach else-

Even with Parcells for this game, what's New England to do against a team that seemingly has no weaknesses?

If the Patriots don't mind taking a little advice from the other side, here's what Green Bay's Don Beebe has told his

"You're going to face adversi-ty," said Beebe, who was with all four of Buffalo's losing Super Bowl teams. "No matter what game you ever play in, you're going to face adversity. And in this game, it's going to be much more hype than any other game you've ever played.

"If you make a mistake ... you have to be able to handle those things. Keep yourself on an even keel. Keep plugging away. Keep going. The team that handles adversity in the Super Bowl usually ends up win-

Only one Patriot, offensive lineman William Roberts, was in the NFL when the franchise's only other Super Bowl appearance ended with a humiliating 46-10 loss to Chicago in 1986. And hardly anyone remembers that New England set a record in that game for the quickest score, recovering Walter Payton's fumble at the Bears 19 and kicking a field goal less than two minutes into the game.

The Bears didn't panic. They simply scored the next 44 points, thoroughly demolishing the Patriots after giving them a brief glimmer of hope.

Maybe this New England team will be different. Indeed, the Patriots have been a resilient bunch this season, coming from 21 points down to beat the Jets and 22 points down to beat the Giants.

"Panic and the New England Patriots," Byars said, "should not even be mentioned in the same sentence."

But safety Willie Clay doesn't expect the Pats to be able to pull off a similar comeback against a team of Green Bay's

"A lot of guys get caught up in all the Super Bowl hype, and it's 27-0 before they even look up," he said. "Remember, we're not playing the Giants or Jets." Byars said the key is not be intimidated. He doesn't think the Patriots should come out looking just to keep things respectable against a team generally conceded to be the best in the NFL. "The only thing we can worry about is winning the game," he said. "We shouldn't worry about playing them close, just trying to have a good showing. Otherwise, whoever had the best regular-season record would automatically be the champion."

The Patriots seem to have ent a lot of time focusing on the biggest sports upset of 1996
— several players have pointed out that Evander Holyfield beat Mike Tyson - and they keep pointing to Parcells, a two-time Super Bowl winner with the

"We always have confidence coach Parcells," Clay said. "He's never let us down yet. He told us earlier in the season: 'Just get us to the Super Bowl, guys, and I'll get you through.' Everybody believes in him."

OK, so Parcells might be the next incarnation of Vince Lombardi. He could have a big advantage o /er Green Bay's Mike Holmgren because of his Super Bowl experience. Still, the Patriots won't be able to take their coach on the field Sunday.

No, they'll be on their own with this one.

league assigns players

SECAUCUS, N.J. (AP) — The president of the Women's NBA isn't worried about the league's inaugural season.

As far as Val Ackerman is concerned, the WNBA is here for the long haul and she is already thinking about expan-

Speaking on a variety of assigned their first two players, Ackerman said there was no timetable for expansion, although some NBA franchises have inquired about operating a women's team.

Ackerman said that the most important thing is for the original eight franchises to be successful the first season. She said there would be no bidding war with the rival American Basketball League for players.

Ackerman said the WNBA is considering blocking off portions of arenas for games after the season starts in June. She said there will be a team salary cap, which she would not disclose, and that college players would not be allowed to leave school early to join the league, which is owned equally by the 29 NBA teams.

The eight-team league will start June 21 and finish Aug. 30. The teams will play 28 games.

Houston will play in the Eastern Conference with New York, Cleveland and Charlotte. The Western Conference will have franchises in Los Angeles, Phoenix, Sacramento and Utah.

Sheryl Swoopes, regarded by many as the top women's player, was assigned to Houston along with guard Cynthia Cooper. Swoopes is expecting a baby on June 21, the day the league begins its fir. t season.

Fellow Olympic gold medalist Lisa Leslie was assigned to Los Angeles along with guard Penny Toler. Phoenix got Australian Olympian Michele Timms and Jennifer Gillom, Sacramento was assigned Ruthie Bolton-Holifield and Bridgette Gordon, and Utah got Russian Olympian Elena Baranova and Lady Hardmon.

Former Connecticut star Rebecca Lobo was assigned to New York with Teresa Weatherspoon. Janice Lawrence Braxton and Michelle Edwards went to Cleveland, and Vicky Bullett and Andrea Stinson were assigned to Charlotte.

Ackerman said the league tried to balance the team's talent in assigning players, but that some were assigned because of popularity in a geographic area.

Ackerman said the league plans to sign another 16 players soon and assign them by the end of Pebruary. A draft will be held on April 28.

Three days after being nocked out of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference lead, the Hawks im to remain close to the league leaders tonight when they take on South Plains College at 8 p.m. in Garrett Coliseum.

Howard's women also face a crucial game tonight when they face South Plains at 6 p.m. For the Hawks, tonight's contest affords them the opportunity to erase any bad memories lingering from Monday's 101-82 loss at the hands of Odessa College. But the South Plains Texans will pose just as big a challenge as Odessa did.

Through Monday's games, South Plains (14-4, 1-1) had the conference's best defense, surrendering only 68.5 points a game.

The Texans also have the league's leading scorer, swingman Tyjuan Finley, who's averaging 18.1 points a game. As a team, SPC averages 78.8 points a contest.

The Hawks' defensive statisics took a bruising Monday night. Howard is now next-tolast in the WJCAC on defense,

Short-handed Avalon ties margin of victory record against Penelope

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With a couple of players sick with the flu and another ineligible because he played in a junior varsity game, Avalon High boys basketball coach Bobby Carpenter had only six players for a Class 1A game against Penelope.

The shorthanded Eagles romped past Penelope 150-18 Tuesday, tying the worst whipping in state history with the 132-point margin of victory. Aspermont beat Mason 143-11

"I knew they were bad, but it wasn't what I anticipated happening," Carpenter said Wednesday. "It just so happened that the six players who could play were basically my best six. "It wouldn't have happened if I'd have had guys on the bench. I usually suit up eight or nine guys, but I just couldn't." The defending district champions from Avalon improved to 18-6, 4-0 in district. Penelope fell to 1-17, 0-4. "I think they took advantage of us," Penelope coach Ronald Jones said. "I think they showed poor sportsmanship. I don't think the game is played to beat someone like that. "He should've pulled his players back. They could've run their offense for 35 or 40 seconds before shooting. ... When we tried to slow the ball down, Avalon began the game using its usual full-court press defense and trying to push the ball on offense. After the first eight-minute quarter, the Eagles led 57-2.

Avalon went to a 2-3 zone defense and increased its lead to 95-8 at the half. Penelope didn't score a field goal in the third quarter and fell behind 118-9 With three minutes left in the game, Penelope still hadn't made a second-half field goal. The drought ended with three 3-pointers, doubling Penelope's point total and avoiding the worst loss in state history. "My concern in the first quarter was to go out and play with high intensity, work up a good sweat, then get the game over with," Carpenter said.

"When we went to the zone the Penelope kids shot quite a bit against it. That led to us getting rebounds. Well, we'd push the ball up the floor and Penelope wasn't running back, so we were shooting layups."

Five of Avalon's six players outscored Penelope as the Eagles rang up the 16th-most points in state history, easily setting a school record.

"I never even thought about it being a record," Carpenter said. "I thought this might happen at least once a year around the state."

Jones said he's never seen anything like it in his 36 years of coaching high school busket-"I've had the power just like he had, but I had the honor to pull out and save face," said ones, who has been Penelope's years. The schools are 25 miles apart in the area south of Dallas and north of Waco. Carpenter usually calls his scores in to both papers, but he instead decided to only tell the folks at the Corsicana Daily "I would probably prefer it not to be a big deal," Carpenter said. "Right now, it probably seems like a big deal to the kids, but I doubt they'll remember it later on."

Carpenter said such a lopsided victory often hurts more than it helps.

"It gives us maybe a false sense of security," he said.

If I moved to Mexico, I would learn to speak Spanish if for no other reason than to show respect for that country. If you live in the United States, please learn the language. -RICHARD WATSON, PORT-LAND, ORE.

DEAR RICHARD: I suspect that many people who speak a foreign language in the pres-ence of those who do not understand it are ignorant of the fact that they are being rude.

A common language brings people together. Historically, learning English was a priority for German, Italian, Russian, Chinese and Japanese immigrants (to name a few) because it helped them participate in the communities they joined. And because the United States is still predominantly an English-speaking country, that practice should continue today.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you will include me by printing one more, letter, regarding the English/Spanish controversy.

I have been unable to obtain work in Southern California despite 14 years' experience, excellent references and a willingness to work. The reason: I cannot speak Spanish. Property management is my

I replied: "Why? Because you're too stupid to learn a foreign language? We weren't talking to you or about you. Besides, there wouldn't be much point because this gentle-man doesn't speak English."

In a recent column you stated that it is extremely rude to speak a foreign language in front of someone who doesn't speak that language. However, what is even more rude is listening to someone else's conversation when they aren't speaking to you. - DAVE WILLIS, DALLAS

DEAR DAVE: When I said that it's rude to speak a foreign language in front of someone who doesn't speak that language, it was in the context of a social situation in which there were four people. I was not talking about two individuals having a private conversation in a public place.

until it was too late to do anything about it?

Probably, if you aren't checking the Public Notices columns of this newspaper regularly.

Public Notices are required by state law to protect your rights and to help you function more effectively as a citizen. Access to information about what government agencies are doing is what makes the American the most powerful citizen in the world.

The Public Notices give you access to information you need . . . about new local laws that will affect you . . . about plans for major land use changes . . . about where roads will go ... whose land will be condemned ... how your tax dollars will be spent . . . about court actions that could be important to you, or just plain interesting.

Whether you know them as Public Notices or as "the legals", it pays you to check the Public Notice columns in this newspaper each issue. What you don't know might cost you!

IN HISTORY

"Why is it when Mommy gets

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1997. There are

THE Daily Crossword

342 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 23, 1968, North Korea seized the U.S. Navy ship Pueblo, charging it had intruded into the Communist nation's territorial waters on a spying mission. The crew was released 11 months later.
