Building's owner provides city with renovation schedule

The future of the Permian Building was made clearer for city officials recently, but getting the building totally repaired and renovated is a process that may take the better part of the next three years.

City of Big Spring Chief Building Official Todd Darden sent owner Al

Moore a letter earlier this month requesting that the building be secured and any hazards be removed, following the recent collapse of its east wall. "We also requested by phone that Moore give us a detailed schedule as to how he proposed to repair the build-ing," Darden said.

On May 9, Moore left a handwritten letter at Darden's office stating that he would re-brick or plaster the wall, but no detailed schedule of the work was Basically, he would be replacing the fire wall with some type of fire rated material," Darden said.

In response to Moore's letter, Darden sent him a second letter asking him to present the city with a more detailed schedule of the planned work with realistic dates for completion.

Darden told the city council Tuesday that he has received a response from Moore as to how he plans to repair the building.

*Mr. Moore did recently obtain a permit for repairing the building and the expected completion date of repairs to the firewall is around Nov. 27," Darden said. "It will probably take an additional year to complete repairs to the exterior of the building."

Moore is currently making payments to the city for back taxes owed on the building.

Darden told the council that he believes Moore has good intentions where the building's repair and renovation is concerned.

Should Moore not fulfill his obligations, the city has several options. "Those options include filing a complaint in court, and as a last resort, the city itself can secure the building and file a lien against it," Darden said. Basically, the city maintains the building is a health and safety hazard. as well as a hazard to what's left of the structure, according to Darden.

The brick wall of the building's east side collapsed April 29, causing a oneblock area of downtown to be roped off as officials investigated the situation.

Part of the remaining wall hadlarge section of bricks that seemed to be hanging without support.

City officials said it didn't appear the building's foundation was affected.

At the time of the collapse, Moore said he had not experienced any problems with the bricks on that end of the building.

According to Moore, the building was purchased as is when he took ownership several months ago.

Moore wouldn't go into what plans he has for the building, but did speculate the east wall facing would be metal or a similar fire-retardant material.

Farmers' concerns center on weevil

News Editor

Whether current legislative efforts to resurrect the Texas Eradication Weevil Program are successful or not, area farmers say they're already getting an idea that they'll have to spend large amounts of money this summer if they hope to rebound from a disastrous 1996 growing season. With the exception of one factor - the boll weevil - farmers, some still in the process of planting this year's crop, say current conditions couldn't be

"I've been farming since 1941, and so far, it's as good a year as can remember," said Horace Tubb, who farms south of Big Spring. "We've got a good crop coming up and the soil moisture is just perfect."

However, Tubb admits being concerned by the number of boll weevils that are being trapped throughout the county.

"They're catching a lot of weevils in the traps they're putting out, and that's not good this of year, Tubb continued. Boll weevils and hail are the last thing we need right now. A hailstorm can put you out of business in five or 10 minutes. The weevils might take a little longer but can be just as devastating."

Gerald Hanson of Stanton, a retired farmer and farm supply store owner who currently keeps track of boll weevil trap data for Plains Cotton Growers Inc., reinforced Tubb's observation.

"If you've got one weevil per acre at this time it doesn't seem like much of a problem," Hanson said. But that single insect is capable of laying 200 eggs. With a life cycle of 21 days, if you're not spraying them, you're going to have eight million weevils in 60

"The only chance you've got is to spray them," he added. "You're not going to kill all of them, but if you spray every five days for five times, you've Please see WEEVIL, page 2A got a chance of controlling them because you're able to break their 21-day cycle."

Hanson his line of traps in Martin County revealed just seven weevils on May 4. By May 14 that number had risen to 106, and seven days later, the number of 736.

However, on May 26, Hanson said there were only 325 weevils in his traps. "That really makes us anxious to see where we'll be next week." he said. "Hopefully this is a sign that the crop isn't up enough for them to start reproducing and a lot of the over-wintered weevils are dying off."

Lanny Fryar, who farms land in both Howard and Martin counties, said he's had plenty of experience with fighting the

"One year I had to spray seven times ... my chemical bill alone was $70,000, not to mention the cost of application," Fryar said Thursday while refilling seeds into the planting hoppers on his tractor. "It was worth it, because I made a good crop that year."

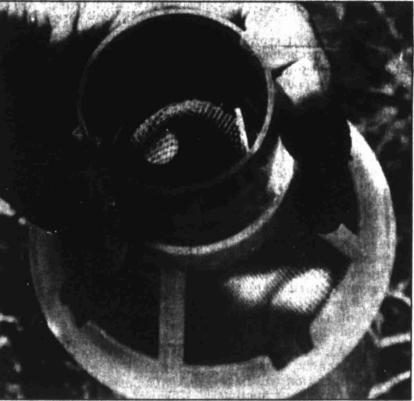

Fryar noted that most area farmers will be doing virtually everything they can in hopes of cashing in on a good crop this fall, because last year's harvest was so poor.

"We're going to have to spray for the weevils, and then we'll have to spray something else for the aphids and worms, because killing the weevils kills all your beneficials." Fryar added. "We're going to do everything possible. There are a lot of farmers that really need a good crop this year ... everyone's running old, worn out equipment." In Austin, the Texas House sent the bill sponsored by Sen. Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock, that would revive the eradication program back to the Senate Wednesday for approval of changes it made in the initial wording of the bill. The Texas Supreme Court threw out the boll weevil eradication program last month, rul-

Campbell submits ethics code proposal for council members

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

Several incidents last year during meetings of the Big Spring City Council that gave the impression that some members were exceeding their authority has prompted District 5 Councilman Jimmy Campbell to draft a code of conduct and ethics for the city's governing body.

Campbell first raised the issue of a code of conduct and ethics for the council several weeks ago during a meeting before presenting a proposed draft of guidelines during Tuesday's meeting.

"Basically, when you're elected to the city council, you don't receive any formal guidance as to how to conduct yourself as a member of the council, with city staff or with other council members." Campbell said.

"In my opinion, and in the opinion of some of my constituents, last year, there was the appearance at several council meetings that some members of the council acted in a manner that was outside the scope of their position," Campbell added.

The draft Campbell submitted was taken from a similar plan used in the Bryan-College Station area.

"As far as the city of Big Spring is concerned, this will have to be something that will be a matter of the city staff and council self-policing themselves," Campbell said. "The key thing with this proposal is for the council not to abuse the time of the city staff. This is just a promise to the citizens of Big Spring that we're going to behave in the manner that we were elected to do."

According to the proposal, the council is the city's governing body and must bear the initial responsibility for the integrity of governance.

A specific section of the proposal addresses the code of conduct for the mayor and council members and states:

"During council meetings, council members shall preserve order and decorum, shall not interrupt or delay proceedings and shall not refuse to obey the orders of the mayor or the rules of the council; council members shall demonstrate respect and courtesy to each other, to city staff members and to members of the public appearing before the council; council members shall refrain from rude and derogatory remarks and shall not belittle staff members, other council members or members of the public: and council bers should not use their position to secure special privileges and should avoid situations that could cause any person to believe that they may have brought bias or partiality to a question before the council."

The proposal, which Campbell hopes to have listed on the next council agenda also lists council responsibilities; responsibilities of the mayor, a section on council and city staff relations and a council code of ethics.

"A member is only one vote out of seven," Campbell said. "Anyone trying to influence city policy in a manner other than as a council member in a called meeting where majority rule is in effect, is acting outside of the scope of their responsibility."

Blackshear settles election judge dispute between Horton, DeAnda

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

A dispute between city council members Stephanie Horton and Pat DeAnda as to the selection of an election judge for Saturday's runoff for the District 2 council seat between DeAnda and Oscar Garcia has been settled by Mayor Tim Blackshear.

Blackshear, in accordance with authority given to him as established in the election code, has appointed Donna Reyna as election judge for the runoff. Reyna is the nominee DeAnda tried to get approved at both the

May 13 and May 27 council meetings, but the issue was tabled after the May 13 meeting because of the dispute. The issue died at the most recent council meeting because it was an emergency action item which required a unanimous council vote and Horton voted against the nomination.

Blackshear said he decided to appoint Reyna because the majority of the council had already approved of her serving as election judge and she has served in that capacity before withoutany problems.

"At times it can get quite dif-ficult in certain districts to get in people to serve in this capacity," in Blackshear said.

Following Saturday's runoff, residents should know the results much sooner than they did during the May 3 election because of an election law that allows early votes to be tabulated prior to the 7 p.m. close of the polls.

After the May 3 election, results were not known in any of the city council races for almost three hours after polls had closed.

Garcia is trying to unseat the incumbent DeAnda, who is seeking her third term on the council.

DeAnda was first elected to the council in 1990 as the District 1 representative, and then in 1994 as the District 2 representative after being defeated by current District 1 Stephanie Councilwoman Horton. Garcia came within a handful of votes of defeating DeAnda and Bob Taylor for the seat outright during the May 3 election.

A total of 118 votes were needed to avoid Saturday's District 2 runoff, but Garcia, who received more votes than DeAnda or Taylor, was 11 votes short of the needed total.

Garcia received 107 votes to 88 for DeAnda and 38 for Taylor. During the two-week early voting period for the runoff, 137 voters cast ballots either in person or by mail, which is 7.67 percent of the 1,784 registered eligible voters in District 2. Saturday's runoff will be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Big Spring High School Cafeteria and results will be announced at City Hall.

House members of the panel had threatened to House members of the panel had threatened to kill the bill, known as Senate Bill 1, if a proposal wasn't adopted that would greatly reduce the incentives for such transfers.

Several attempts by Senate members were made to modify the House's stance, but the House contingent, led by Rep. Ron Lewis, D-Mauriceville, repeatedly rejected those proposals after Lewis voiced an approach of, "All or nothing."

Lawmakers downplayed the stalemate after voting to approve the bill and send it to the full House and Senate for consideration.

Home equity question sent to voters

AUSTIN — Texas voters will have the chance to decide whether they want the right to borrow against the equity in their homes after the Texas House voted 116-25 in favor of such a proposal.

Texas is the only state that doesn't allow general home equity lending. The state Constitution allows home equity ideas only to pay for taxes or home improvements.

Opponents of expanding equity lending have argued that the limits have protected Texans from losing their homes. Despite assurances from colleagues that the measure going before voters would be one of the safest in the country, many lawmakers concerned.

Rep. Barry Telford, D-DeKalb, silenced the House Thursday with a heartfelt speech before the final vote.

"I want to congratulate (legislators) for trying to protect us in this bill," he said. "I just couldn't let the day pass without saying I kind of like some of the things about the old Texas. Even during the Depression, we had our homesteads pro-

Bush gets $86.2 billion budget plan

AUSTIN - Texans' tax dollars would pay for more than half of $86.2 billion in state spending over the next two years under a bill sent to Gov. George W. Bush.

The 1998-99 biennial budget, which got final approval from lawmakers Thursday, includes small pay raises for state employees and higher spending on education and prisons.

It's awaiting a final test: Bush's consideration.
"Governor Bush congratulates members of the Legislature for preserving $1 billion for property tax cuts for homeowners and for putting the majority of new money into our schools," said Karen Hughes, Bush's spokeswoman.

We must protect our right to keep

The gun control nuts are howling like hounds again. As a group, they are illeg cal, unscientific, lacking in integrity, antidemocratic in intent and wrong.

First, you have a constitutionally protected right to keep and bear arms. The language of the Second Amendment is quite clear. It says, "The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." It doesn't say "the right of the states" or "the right of militias." It says, "the right of the peo-

That is the only reading which is consistent with American history. James Madison wrote to a European that our country, unlike those in Europe, was, not afraid for its people to be armed.

This is extremely important. You cannot have a government of the people, by the people and for the people that is afraid of the people and wants to disarm them.

As an organization which calls itself Jews for the Preservation of Fire shown, there is a strong association between a disarmed population and genocide. In every totalitarian country in this century, the first step of government murderers was to disarm the people. They have pointed out and proven that the 1968 Gun Control Act was patterned after a

American.

What about crime? Crime is a people problem, not a hardware problem. The belief that an inanimate object can cause animate objects to change drastically their behavior is a silly superstition. Furthermore, it is flat stupid to propose laws that only the law-abiding will obey as a crime-fighting measure. When guns were most available and virtually unregulated, when you could buy them without question the way you buy a lawn mower, when you could buy them through the mail or from catalogs, thurs was less violent crime, not more.

Sociologists say you can't prove a variable with a constant. The constants in American history are guns and teenager The variable is the crime rate. As guns have become increasingly difficult to acquire, and in some places actually banned, the crime rate has gone up. Obviously, the causative factor is not

In fact, it's the drug war, for one. For another, it's the deterioration of the black family. The overall murder rate is the United States is about 10 per 100,000; for blacks, 15 to 19, it's 105.7; for black men, 20 to 24, it's 140.7. The homicide rate for the majority of Americans is comparable

Over the years the Supreme Court has managed to murkify a dozen fields of law. On April 28 it murkified again. The court looked at a county's liability for the wrongful actions of an employee, and wound up by making bad matters worse.

The verb "to murkify" (I just invented it) is a back-formation from "murky," meaning obscure, foggy, misty and dim. In the case at hand, Bryan County v. Jill Brown, the court's opinion by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor was all of the above.

The facts: At some point in 1990, B.J. Moore, sheriff of Bryan County, Okla., hired his great-nephew Stacy Burns as a reserve deputy. On the night of May 11, 1991, the 21-year-old deputy participated in the high-speed pursuit of a pickup truck that had evaded a police checkpoint.

James J.

Kilpatrick

Syndicated Columnist

Jill Brown was a passenger in the truck. After a three-mile chase, the vehicles halted. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 5th Circuit described the incident:

"After twice ordering Mrs. Brown from the vehicle, Burns employed an 'arm bar' technique whereby he grabbed Mrs. Brown's arm at the wrist and elbow, extracted her from the vehicle and spun her to the ground. Mrs. Brown's impact with the ground caused severe injury to her knees, requiring corrective surgery. Medical testimony was elicited at trial which showed that Mrs. Brown would ultimately require total knee replacements."

Mrs. Brown subsequently sued both the county and deputy Burns under Section 1983 of the Civil Rights Act of 1871. She charged that Burns had violated her constitutional right to be free from unreasonable seizure and false arrest. A jury awarded her more than $900,000 in damages. The county appealed. A divided 5th Circuit affirmed, and the Supreme Court accepted the case.

The 1871 statute says that every "person" who under color of law deprives a citizen of his constitutional rights may be subject to suit. Was Bryan County a "person"? In 1961 the high court held that a local government (it happened to be the city of Chicago) was NOT a person.

Seventeen years later the court changed its mind. This was when the murk got murkier. The court held in a suit against New York City that the city WAS a person, more or less, but not wholly a person. This was in 1978.

The case law grew like crabgrass. Was an alleged violation the result of a "put-tern or practice" or an official "policy"? Had a city or county shown "deliberate. indifference" to the rights of a citizen?
Applied to the case at hand, should Sheriff
Moore have known when he hired Stacy Burns that his nephew was likely to cause him serious trouble?

Plainly, the sheriff of Bryan County had no "policy" of hurling women to their knees. There was no evidence that other deputies had engaged in excessive force as a pattern or practice within the depart-ment. These findings left the question of Uncle B.J.'s wisdom in hiring a member of the family.

At the time all this happened, young Burns had a record of nine moving traffic vine wife a supported liberae, arrest for seasule and lattice, conviction for presentation of their interest for residual arrest.

Oliver, the "limberation of heirstein seed the 3th Circuit, a just transmissibly could have interrust that Sheriff Moure, closed his eyes to Burns background and gave him a background and gave him a background and the evidence sufficient for a jury to conclude that Sheriff Moure's accision to him Burns amounted to deliberate indifference to the public, welfare.

Churches respond to summer slowdown

Hillcrest Baptist Church is beating the summer slow-down with special worship services for youth in 7th grade through college age each Sunday night.

"We wanted to give the kids something to do on Sunday nights," said Gary Phillips, youth director. "A lot of churches don't have Sunday night services, so we wanted to d honorable mentitathrana

Phillips said his services are not designed to take attendance away from other churches.

"It's not whether you're Baptist or Methodist, or what," he said. "Their relationship to the Lord is what matters.

At these services, Phillips plans music, prayer, Bible lessons and possibly some testimonies from other youth.

"We don't know exactly what we're going to have because that's going to depend a lot on the young people," he said.

Adults will coordinate and supervise the services, he said.

Stockton's late heroics place Jazz in NBA finals for first time

HOUSTON (AP) - Never

John Stockton made the Utah Jazz forget their miserable playoff history Thursday night by almost singlehandledly leading the Jazz back from a seven-point deficit in the final two minutes of Game 6 in the Western Conference finals.

And when his 3-point shot ripped through the net at the final buzzer. Utah had a 103-100 victory over the Houston Rockets that put the Jazz where they've never been — in the NBA Finals. The championship series against the four-time

"It's been a long time for these guys," coach Jerry Sloan sald. "These guys worked very hard. They never gave up. The most important thing in sports, I think, is to never give up."

Even better is the feeling the Jazz now have, knowing they have broken their cycle of conference finals failures.

This was Utah's fourth trip to the third round in six years, and the Jazz had earned a reputation as a team that couldn't win the big game. They lost in the conference finals to Portland in 1992, to Houston in 1994 and to Seattle last season.

Bulldog, Memphis vie for region title

COAHOMA - Hundreds of Texas Class 2A baseball teams started the season back in February.

The Coahoma Bulldogs are one of only eight still playing. For the second time in three years, the Bulldogs have advanced to the Region I-2A finals, where they'll face Memphis at 5 p.m. Saturday at O'Bannion Field in Lubbock.

The winner advances to the State Baseball Championships beginning Thursday in Austin.

Coahoma (20-7) is no stranger to playoff pressure - having qualified for the UIL state baseball tournament in 1995 and the Bulldogs are playing like a seasoned team, especially in pitching and defense.

Scholarship bill nears completion

makers pushing for Texas colleges to apply the same admissions standards to all students including scholarship athletes — are threatening to ask athletes to boycott state schools if all students aren't treated equally. A proposal by Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, and Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas, would require Texas universities and colleges to use the same GPA in admitting all students as they do for scholarship ath-

For example, a school that set a 2.5 GPA for a student-athlete could not require a higher GPA for other students.

The measure would apply to any school with an athletics program that uses GPAs as an admission criterion.

"If you are currently allowing athletes in with low GPAs ... and those athletes are graduating at a significant rate, then you haven't lowered your standards," West said.

West said the bill — with the provision that it only apply to GPAs — has enough support to pass the House and Senate and become law. He acknowledged, however, that universities could avoid the effect of the bill by using multiple criteria.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock hopesthere was a compromise.

"I've never thought you ought to put athletics before the education part of our higher education system," Bullock

West said he hoped the bill would be approved by a House-Senate conference committee in the next two days and then be sent to both chambers for final approval. West cited declining minority enrollment at Texas schools since a federal appeals court upheld the arguments of four white students who sued the University of Texas, contending its law school's admissions policy favored minorities.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales interpreted the ruling in the case, known as Hopwood, to say schools in Texas could no longer use race as a consideration for admissions, scholarships and financial aid.

West said if the declining enrollment of minority students continues, he and Wilson "will eventually call for a boycotting of student athletes at Texas schools (3) 12:11.4

"If (minerity) scholars aren't schools, then our athletes aren't good enough to go to these schools," West said.

"Don't come into the inner city, raiding our community of superior athletes but leave the scholars behind ... saying that the reason you can't get the scholars is because of Hopwood," West said.

University officials have argued that if the bill became law, it would cost Texas schools millions of dollars in athletic revenues

"I'm more concerned about educating students than I am about seeing folks with pompons and eating popcorn and throwing up all over themselves," Wilson said.

"(Schools) use those kids up. They use them like meat on the hook - like cattle. And when they have performed their function as a hired animal they say, 'Oh, you're not eligible anymore and we're going to take your scholarship.' They kick them to the curb," Wilson said.

Graham recalls earlier trip to Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Rice coach Wayne Graham remembers the ballpark where the College World Series is played, and it's a far cry from the Rosenblatt Stadium where his Owls play tonight in the school's first CWS appearance.

"This is not the first time I've been here," Graham said at Thursday's news conference. "I played here in 1962 for Dallas-Fort Worth in the American Association against Omaha. But the only thing that looks the same in the ballpark now is the light posts. I think those are the same.

'We were playing before * about 1,000 people every night twee in what was an ordinary -- Triple-A ball park. This thing is Shangri-La now. It's beautiful what Omaha has done and what it's done for college baseball."

Graham, after a successful junior college coaching career in Texas, brought the Owls to the College World Series in his sixth year at the school. Rice is the 99th school to qualify for the NCAA Division I playoffs, which have been held in Omaha since 1950.

"The people who are putting this together don't realize what it means to coach down in Houston or southwest Texas or somewhere," he said. "This is the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. We're all trying to get Rice, seeded seventh with a and first baseman Rodney Gressett ringing the infield, the Bulldogs' defense has successfully converted 31 of its 33 chances this postseason for a team fielding average of .940.

If the Bulldogs have struggled in any part of their game during the playoffs, it has been at the plate, but even that part of the game appears to be regaining its early season stride.

After finishing the regular season with a .355 team batting average, the Bulldogs watched that statistic drop to .239 through the first two games of the playoffs. Against Abernathy last week, however, Coahoma's batters collected 10 hits off Abernathy pitcher B.J. Petillo to raise the team's batting average to .273.

McMillan leads the team with a .444 batting average in the postseason, while Gressett and left fielder Jerry Mann each have batted .428 in the playoffs.

"There's still a long way to third baseman Ken Caminiti said after a 10-6 loss to Houston. "We're not even in June yet. Now that we're getting guys back, we can get going.

The Padres fell behind 9-1 Thursday night before scoring four times in the fifth off Houston's Darryl Kile (6-2). Previously, Kile had allowed only two runs in the entire month of May.

"We came back after a horrible inning," San Diego manager Bruce Bochy said. "We dug ourselves too big a hole.

"We've been doing too much of that lately. We're starting to swing the bats some, but we can't keep asking our hitters to get us out of these holes every night. That's a lot to ask."

The Padres, who fell 10 games behind division-leading San Francisco, have given up 46 runs in their last five games. The last time the Padres were further from the division lead was the final day of the 1994

Part of the reason has been injuries. Twelve players have missed a total of 185 games.

"It's hard to play catch-up ball against guys like Kile and (Atlanta's Greg) Maddux and those type pitchers we've been seeing lately," Bochy said. "They're tough any time, but when you give them a big lead, it's almost impossible."

Kile was 5-0 with a 1.20 ERA in May.

'We talked about focus before he went out in the fifth because he had such a big lead," Houston manager Larry Dierker Dierker said. "I didn't think he lost focus then. He struck out the first guy, and the next two guys got choppy hits and we made the error. It could have been a 1-2-3 inning.

"He made some good pitches. During that entire sequence, I don't think he threw poorly. He was still throwing 93-94 mph. Then Caminiti got a good hit and Tony Gwynn hit one pretty Kile ended up going seven innings, allowing five runs on eight hits and striking out a season-high nine.

"It was a good feeling that Dierker kept me out there after that inning," Kile said. "I felt fine, even though they scored some runs. I was a little out of sync rhythm-wise all night and I made a couple of mistakes in that fifth inning. But I threw some good pitches that inning too."

Kile helped his own cause with a two-run double in the fourth inning, but then gave Dierker a scare when he slid home on a wild pitch that wasn't that wild. Kile scored, but Dierker called the play "probably not the smartest thing he ever did."

Fernando Valenzuela (2-7) lasted only 2 2-3 innings, giving up three runs on five hits and three walks. He also made a throwing error.

"He struggled with his control," Bochy said. "He has the ability to pitch out of jams, but he had some pitches elevated." Jeff Bagwell hit an RBI single in the first inning, and Valenzuela tied it with a runscoring single in the second. In the third, Valenzuela made a wild pickoff throw to first base, allowing Bagwell to score from second. Sean Berry's single made it 3-1. Bagwell, Ray Montgomery and Kile all doubled off reliever Sean Bergman as the Astros took a 9-1 lead in the fourth.

Quartet share lead at Memorial tourney

Then, just like that, he made an eagle and a birdie, turning what could have been his worst round of the year into an evenpar 72, six strokes behind Billy Andrade, Tim Herron, Jesper Parnevik and Glen Day.

If Woods proved on Thursday at Muirfield Village that he is, after all, only human, he also proved that he is, above all, capable of superhuman things on the golf course.

On a wet day when soft, receptive greens made birdies plentiful, Scott Hoch was a stroke off the lead with a 67. while Phil Blackmar, Guy Boros and Ernie Els were at 68.

Jack Nicklaus, the 57-year-old founder of the Memorial and designer of the course, shot a Woods, however, was not able to exploit the friendly conditions as he struggled to find the level of play he had in his record-setting Masters victory last month.

"The swing is just a little too steep," Woods said.

"I'll try to get it back before the Open," he said about the U.S. Open next month. "I hit a lot of shots off line to the Woods was 3-over through 14 holes, then rolled in a 25-footer for an eagle on No. 15 and a 12foot birdie putt on the next hole to get back to even par.

ST. LOUIS (AP) - One more win secures Amy Alcott's place in the LPGA Hall of Fame.

"But I don't say, 'Let's go out and win this tournament and get in the Hall of Fame." Alcott said Thursday after grabbing a share of the firstround lead in the Michelob Light Classic.

"One more tournament is not going to prove anything to me that I don't already know.

Not that there's much left to prove. She's won five majors and 29 tour events.

Thirty guarantees a spot in the Hall of Fame, and Alcott has been stuck at 29 since 1991. "People think I deserve to be in it; I think I deserve to be in it," Alcott said. "But I tell people, and I have to be honest, because I didn't even know there was a Hall of Fame until I had 27 victories. It's a number and I don't really think about it very much."

The LPGA Hall of Fame is an exclusive club. Only 14 players are in the Hall, plus one honorary member, Dinah Shore.

Alcott, 41, certainly looked like a Hall of Fame golfer Thursday at Forest Hills Country Club. She missed only two fairways and sank putts of 40, 10, 35 and 8 feet.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are in control, and make the most of the weekend. Be careful not to be overly serious. Think about your limits as you explore creative options. An offer is too enticing to turn down. Your personality melts barriers. Tonight: Relish the moment.****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take a back seat. Gather information, and allow someone to give you feedback. You don't have the whole story, and might be surprised by what someone shares with you. A partner understands you, and gives you the support you need. Tonight: Take a night off.***

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Determination pays off. Your see a partnership in a different light. This person might be serious, but he's still delightful. The unexpected occurs with another, and you need to discuss this new information. You are personality-plus. Tonight: Be with your friends.****

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are in the limelight. Make the most of a partner's silliness. Your good cheer pays off as responsibilities pile up. You are compelled to reorganize or do something differently. Instincts are correct. Tonight: You are a force to deal with.***

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Gain perspective, and firmly handle a personal matter. Not everyone sees things the way you do. Surprises occur with an associate. Think through what is happening. Later, your lively side emerges. Tonight: Try a new restaurant out of

Did Flyers, Wings learn from losses?

Terry Murray doesn't believe that you have to lose to learn how to win.

The idea sounds stupid to the Philadelphia Flyers coach, but when Murray looks at recent Stanley Cup history, teams that have lost have come back to

New Jersey learned something after losing the Eastern Conference finals to the New York Rangers in 1994, and the Devils won the Cup the following year. After a stunning firstround loss to the Rangers in 1995, Quebec-Colorado found a way to win hockey's biggest prize last season.

Learning from recent playoffs failures might be the biggest reason the Flyers and Detroit Red Wings are playing for the Stanley Cup this year.

The Flyers got to the finals for the first time in 10 years because they learned the past two years that it wasn't enough to rely solely on center Eric Lindros and his linemates to get the job done in the playoffs.

For all his talent, Lindros can only do so much against teams that are getting contributions from everyone. New Jersey proved it to Philadelphia in the Eastern Conference finals in 1995 and Florida did the same thing in the conference semifinals last year.

While the Red Wings have had more talent the past two years than Philadelphia, the playoffs showed they lacked the size needed to win. New Jersey overpowered them in the '95 finals, and Colorado had the grinders to win the Western Conference finals last year.

Both have made adjustments and now will try to end long Stanley Cup droughts when the best-of-7 series starts Saturday

Philadelphia, which has made the playoffs the last three years after missing the previous five, last won the Cup in 1975. Detroit, which last missed the playoffs in 1990, won its seventh and last NHL title in 1955.

"You can almost say it was three years in the making,' third-line wing Shjon Podein said Thursday after the Flyers practiced at their New Jersey training site. "I think we wrong the last couple of play-

"We all didn't pitch in to helpthe team out offensively, fourth line and things like that," he added. "When we have success, everyone is pitching in. I just think it's a team effort that's lifted us up to this level." Lindros comes into the final tied for second in playoff scoring with 11 goals and 12 assists, and linemate John LeClair has seven goals and 11 assists. But they are also getting help.

Rod Brind'Amour is having a spectacular playoffs centering the No. 2 line. He has 10 goals and seven assists, while Mikael Renberg has five goals skating mostly with the second line.

Philadelphia also has 14 other players who have scored goals.

"Toward the end of the season, I just think we all made the commitment to play solid defensive hockey and to get offensive output by everyone on the team, not one person," Flyers wing Trent Klatt said. "If you add those two together with the talent we have, that makes the difference."

Bobby Clarke, the Flyers president and general manager, also noted that Lindros is a more mature player now. The past two playoffs have taught him to be more patient and not to try to do everything by him-

"You have to let players go through it," Clarke said.
