The New Education.

Dr. Felix Adler is at the head of the society for ethical culture in the United States. In the October Century he gives a report of a profoundly interesting educational experiment that society has been making in New York. In 1878 Dr. Adler and his coworkers founded a free school and kindergarten. Workingmen attended the evening classes. In the day classes were their children from 3 years old, upwards. They began with the kindergarten. The object of the training was not to fit children for any particular calling, but to educate them in all round ways give them a development mental, moral and physical. This, in the judgment of Dr. Adler, is the ideal democratic education. Dr. Adler says:

It is the business of the school to cultivate every individual pupil as an individual, to develop, not some particular faculty, but, so far as possible, every one of his faculties, to liberate all the powers of mind and heart latent within him, so to educate him that he may become, not a trivial wanderer, but a man. The true man will also be a wide-brawidener, but he will be much more than a wide-brawidener. It is the business of the school to produce the finest possible specimens of manhood and womanhood, just as the gardener aims to produce the finest specimens of fruit or flowers.

Manual training is taught to children between 6 and 14. Clay, pasteboard, wood and metal are used for this purpose. Clay modeling and the use of wood are taught. The children participate in shaping the clay with their own hands. They never weary of a kind of school. Hand culture is taught in this school as an important factor towards brain culture. And a desire for beautiful objects is thus cultivated. It is not likely that boys educated in this school would wantonly mutilate and destroy beautiful works of art in public places.

The elements of science form a large part of the instruction, which is given by laboratory method. Pupils are carefully trained in geometry and drawing. Labor alternates with mental, so that the pupil neither grows weary of the book, nor is he left with a he system that pupils who would be hopeless dunces at their books often find the manual training classes. As far as possible the instruction is given without text books, this going back to the system of Socrates. A plan of moral education has been carefully prepared, inculcating those moral rules on which all men are agreed.

Profoundly interesting it will be to attend the future career of these tenement use children, of whom the Society of Ethical Culture seek to make all-round men and women.

The Happiest Royal Family.

Greeks have an ancient prophecy that there shall arise in their country a ruler named Constantine. His wife shall be Sophia, then shall be Christ the ruler to Constantine Christian worship to the throne of Sparta her to the throne of Constantine, and by his marriage the sister of the German emperors as a wife named Sophia. At the young Duke of Sparta to his domestic life as his father have been, he will be happy whether he ever ally of not. A newspaper sample democratic life and Queen Olga. It is in respects that that of an resident. Their majesties the streets are devoted to a do. They are devoted as far as known, not even skeleton in their cupboard. They are tidy, and they love each other. They are devoted to each other and his queen are quiet and outdoor exercise. They excel. The king me in his office, hard at work. After office hours he is in suddenly on some departments in the following manner:

Mr. E. W. Horsford, of Cambridge, Mass., has been for some years investigating this subject. He has studied the Icelandic sagas and the oldest maps and records of European explorers. He has come to the conclusion that the Norsemen's claims are well grounded. In New England he recognizes Vinland, and in New Foundland and Nova Scotia other localities visited by Lief. He also thinks that Cambridge itself is the site of an ancient city called Norumbega, and believes he has discovered some of its ruined fortifications.

Deaths on the Wires.

Little, indeed, man knows as yet of the all-pervading deadliness of that insidious agent he is using so freely in his century of electricity. Within a few months several men have been killed horribly by electric wires. They were mostly "linemen" who climbed the poles as if they were strung to adjust them. A few met their death from live wires falling upon them in the street. Six of the twenty deaths have occurred in New York city since September. That of Lineman Feeks, with his body lying across the wires in full sight of hundreds below, fire and smoke issuing from the flesh where it touched the wires, and blood dripping from it into the street below, splattering the mutilated, was the most horrible and sickening event of a generation. The only gain of comfort in the shocking tragedy is that, in the judgment of Edison, Lineman Feeks died so quickly that he probably did not endure much torture.

Lineman Feeks was adjusting the wires—"dead" wires—at the top of a telegraph pole. Somewhere in the hundreds of miles of electric light wires that hold New York in a marvellous network there was one in which the insulation had burned off, or else never was right in the first place. It crossed the telegraph wire at some other point that will be now forever unknown, and poured its death-dealing current along the whole length, past the pole which Feeks climbed. For one instant the linemen touched the telegraph wire. The next instant a burning corpse lay across the network of wires, with an awestruck gazing up from the street. The story was ended.

Why He Succeeded.

Those who write inspiring and instructive books for young people will find a new theme in the life of B. T. Rablitt, the soap manufacturer. To grown people he will be immortalized as the man who first made a decent soap, at a moderate cost, in America. For this alone he is to be classed among the benefactors of his country. He it was, too, who began the invention of that agricultural machinery which has made America famous the world over.

No college bred lad was R. T. Rablitt. A farm boy, with only the rudiments of education, he learned the blacksmith trade as soon as he was man grown. Here he first found he had inventive genius, and here he learned that practical working of iron and machinery which was afterwards of incalculable value to him.

Everything that came to him, no matter how insignificant, was an opportunity which he made good use of. This was one secret of his success.

Another was that he never gave up. Disappointment after disappointment struck him, like blows in the face. They staggered him, but could not down him, because he was a man who could not be downed. That will be a good point to emphasize with the boys and girls.

He had a fair start in 1843, when he was 32 years old. Then, through the dishonesty of a man he trusted, he lost every dollar he had. Nothing daunted, he began again, trying harder than ever.

So many difficulties beset him that not till he was 50 years old did he really begin to gather the fortune of $5,000,000 of which he died possessed. Another strong point in his character was his kindly, trusting nature. This trait he never lost, though deceived over and over again and subjected to heavy losses from those he had trusted. In spite of the losses he continued to trust his fellow men, and with it all he was not prevented from laying up $5,000,000.

Another fact to note was his strong, erect, healthy body. He got it from the active, outdoor life of his boyhood.

This rugged health and strength stayed with him almost till the very last, and he was 80 years old when he died.

Starving Professionals.

In Germany there are three times as many professional men as there is work for them to do. One-third die, go into other occupations, or leave the country. Another third manage to drag out a half starved existence, with no prospect but the poor house in old age. The other third succeed reasonably well, some brilliantly. The London Spectator remarks that the same is true for England. In America it is at least as bad. Time and again our young men have been warned that the professions are overcrowded, that they must go elsewhere if they would make a living. Go into shop-keeping, say their advisers, learn a trade, or go on a farm. But there are more things to sell now than people to buy; the trades are so full that the uninitiated permit only so many boys annually to go into them; farmers say: Don't come into our ranks. There are so many of us now, farm products are away down to nothing. Keep away from here. On the whole, if boys and girls will have the good taste and good sense not to be born for a generation or two, till the old stock gets worked off, it will help solve the problem of living mightily.

Our Icelandic Discoveries.

Old Icelandic records positively declare that in the Eleventh century Lief, a Norseman, sailed southward and made a settlement that he named Vinland. The Icelandic people to this day claim that their ancestors discovered America before Columbus.

Mr. E. W. Horsford, of Cambridge, Mass., has been for some years investigating this subject. He has studied the Icelandic sagas and the oldest maps and records of European explorers. He has come to the conclusion that the Norsemen's claims are well grounded. In New England he recognizes Vinland, and in New Foundland and Nova Scotia other localities visited by Lief. He also thinks that Cambridge itself is the site of an ancient city called Norumbega, and believes he has discovered some of its ruined fortifications.

Our Diplomatic Blunders.

It is no use talking, we Americans are not an astute diplomatic people. We can accomplish results by main strength and awkwardness that are not had, but in the fine points of diplomacy we are "way off." We invited Pan-America to visit us. Our government decreed that the languages spoken at the conference should be the English and Spanish. Then somebody remembered Brazil, and added Portuguese to the list. Nobody, however, happened to recall that the natives of the Haytian republic spoke only French, at least a sort of French and that they would not understand Spanish or English. So, although the world over, French is the language of diplomacy, French was not included in the official languages of the congress.

There is another blunder. Another is that our eloquent mayors and aldermen who make the speeches to the poor Pan-Americans are considerably mixed up in their heads in regard to history, and do not happen to know that Brazil is not a Spanish-American country, but Portuguese-American. Consequently, in their speeches, they universally allude to the delegates as Spanish-Americans, to the disgust of our Brazilian guests.

Talmage's Church.

From Maine to the four new states, from Oregon to Florida, sympathy and regret will stir the breasts of men and particularly of women at tidings of the burning of Parson Talmage's church, the Brooklyn Tabernacle. However the masses of people disagree on politics or theology, they all read Talmage's sermons. He has reached the popular heart as no other preacher of his time, except Beecher, has done in this country. For years, regularly every Monday, good grandmothers all over the land have seated themselves, newspaper in hand, spectacles on nose, and read Talmage's sermons, every line and letter.

But the fire that consumed Talmage's church could not put out the fire in the countless parson's soul. His trustees announce that the church will be rebuilt immediately, not [?] the same site, but farther away from the business center. It is rather remarkable that this is the second fire that has consumed Talmage's church in Brooklyn on this same site. The first one occurred in December, 1872, the present organization is not [?] as supposed. Hardly [?] is the congregation were [?] will be burdened with debt for the building just destroyed.

Meantime the indomitable parson who has brought consolation to so many hearts, now asks consolation for himself and his people. Since he and his church have included the world in their Christian ministrations, they now appeal to the world to help them rebuild their Tabernacle. The parson will himself acknowledge with his own hands all subscriptions sent to him, T. De Witt Talmage, Brooklyn. And newspaper readers will still have the Monday sermons.

Two Good Ideas.

If the story of two new patent processes is not somebody's joke, then we are soon to have the benefit of a couple of valuable inventions. It is said that an Ohio young woman, Miss Proctor, of Lima, has patented a process by which she extracts 10,000 feet of illuminating gas from one barrel of petroleum. If this be true, here is welcome release from many human inconveniences. If the process makes illuminating gas it can also be utilized for fuel gas. What is more, in time every farmer in the land can have his house illuminated and heated by gas, for the machinery can be made small and inexpensive in converting oil into gas.

The other idea bears also on the fuel question. The trade journal Iron mentions that at last there is an invention that treats coal chemically before it is put upon the fire, and so prevents the liberation of smoke. The coal is dipped into the preparation, which hardens it and keeps the smoke and gases within it. The editor of Iron saw two grate fires in a room together. In one of them the coal had been treated by the new process, in the other not. The ordinary coal burned with the usual tarry smoke, while in the grate with the chemicalized coal there was a bright glow and flame, but almost no smoke.

Green Goods and Green People.

The newspapers have done their best to enlighten the stranger on the ways that abound for taking him in, but somehow it does seem as though there were just as many fools as ever. A fellow calling himself Charles Wilson, of Hoboken, N. J., has been practicing on the innocent gullibles of Alabama and Georgia, chiefly, in a way to make angels weep. By means known to rogues, he secured numbers of names of country people, and some not from the country, and then sent them circulars informing them that for $1 he would send them $10 worth of counterfeit money, good enough to deceive even the very elect. It was quite surprising the number of virtuous citizens who bit at the bait. The scamp had even given the name of a reliable Philadelphia firm for reference.

The honest but too confiding citizens who were not averse to increasing their wealth by passing "green goods" to their neighbors, sent their honest dollars and got of course nothing, or a package of old newspapers in return. Then they really thought they had been badly used, although the unprejudiced verdict of their fellow countrymen would be that they were served right.

"Don't monkey with tricks," says the Germantown Independent.

When a man offers to sell you a gold brick for $2.00, don't buy. Also, when you see an antique looking old hat on the pavement, bearing the marks of age and hard usage, don't kick it. It is pretty sure to have the largest and heaviest brick baked this season under it. This brick business all around is a pretty bad sell.

Colored Orators.

The fact that a colored student has been chosen class day orator of the senior class at Harvard college has excited general comment. The fact that he is very black, was born a slave, and supported himself by working as a barber while getting his education has also attracted its due share of attention. The negro, Clement K. Morgan, is a graceful and forceful speaker, and, it is said, would have been chosen just the same for class orator if he had been white. Among the 2,000 students at Harvard three are colored, and it is noticeable that two of the three have obtained prizes for oratory. It seems, indeed, as if the first intellectual development of the colored race in the United States will be in the line of oratory. Long ago two ex-slaves, Frederick Douglass and Sojourner Truth, distinguished themselves as speakers.

W. E. B. Dubois is the other colored student at Harvard who carried off a prize for oratory. Both expect to be lawyers in the south.

Fervid specimens of negro oratory were uttered on the day of fasting and prayer recently appointed by the colored men for the deliverance of their people from outrages in this Union. Rev. W. B. Johnson, a negro preacher in Washington, said his people were fast learning the lesson of organization from the Irishman and the socialist, and twenty years from now they would not be the docile beings of today. Another colored minister, Rev. George Love, said the negroes must take their rights in their own hands and maintain them. A significant utterance was this: "The civil rights bill always has been a failure. It is useless to seek redress from congress. Two-thirds of the congressmen are sinners, the other third drunkards."

Ocean Tragedies of September.

The tragedy of the ill fated steamer Earnmoor, of the Egan line, is one that might well figure in a master sea story by a fiction writer. Twenty-five men started merrily out in the steamer Earnmoor, from Philadelphia, about the 1st of September. Oct. 21, seven weeks, looking, they returned to Philadelphia, all the crew of the Earnmoor. She was caught in the September cyclone on the 5th of the month and foundered. The captain and thirteen men went down with her. Eleven took the lifeboat, hoisted their coats upon an oak for a sail, and so rode the tremendous seas. Twenty days they were in this open boat on the ocean.

All they ate during that time was a dying fish and two small sea birds, devoured raw. It seems incredibly dangerous the twenty days there was rain three times, and the men squeezed the fresh water out of the sail into their mouths, and so quenched their thirst.
On the eleventh day the engineer and mate sat alone in the stern of the boat.
A man approached them with wildness in his eye.

"We have made up our minds to draw lots," said he, "to see who shall be killed and eaten to save the lives of the rest."
The engineer seized the madman by the throat and told him the two in the stern of the boat would have nothing to do with this foul deed. This daunted the rest, and they were saved from adding cannibalism to the tragedies of the tale.
But the madman sprang overboard and drowned himself. Three others died from exposure. How any lived is the marvel.

The same day that brought the Earnmoor survivors home, news came of another sea tragedy. The Bristol steamer Brooklyn City, on the 12th of September, rescued the starving survivors of the wrecked bark Baron Pedoster. They had lashed themselves to the bowsprit and squeezed drops of rain water from their clothing to stay their thirst.

But how many tragedies of the awful September cyclone will never be known?

The Cattle Trail railroad is getting down to business.

The Dallas fair just closed is said to have been the most successful ever held in the state.

The west needs more railroads, but we fear the present railroad agitation in this state will have a tendency to keep capitalists out.

WASHINGTON LETTER. (From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, October 21.-President Harrison has ended the agony by appointing Green B. Raum, of Illinois, ex-congressman and ex-commissioner of internal revenue, commissioner of pensions.

The appointment and the publication by Secretary Noble, a few hours previously, of the correspondence between himself and Tanner, is relied upon by President Harrison to please the disgruntled G. A. R. men.

Level-headed Democrats here expressing regret for the dispute now going on between the friends of Gov. Hill and Mr. Cleveland.

Washington will be boomed as the place for holding the world's exposition of 1892 by representatives from thirty states that are to meet here this week.

Indications are already cropping out that the Three America's Congress is to be used as a lever upon our own congress to accomplish the passage of bill subsidizing one or more lines of steamers to Central and South American ports.

Wannaker is evidently chafing under the many charges of partisanship against his department on account of the political easiness of his wicked assistant, Clarkson, and is anxious to try and balance things.

The appointment of Raum is believed to be the result of a conference of leading Republicans, including such men as Steve Elkins, Quay and W. W. Dudley, held here last week.

Daily sittings of the International Maritime conference are being held. THE STATE. Ruble Baker, the man who shot and killed Bill Noel at Sharon, Presidio county, about two weeks ago, has been captured near Bishop ranch, about forty miles from Marfa.

public but this fall his stock surpasses anything that he has ever brought to this market. The crowds that throng his store daily testify that he is reaping his reward, and he deserves it. Read his new ad. and see what he has to say this week.

We do not wish to gull anyone by the cost racket, but will sell you goods for less money than any store in Baird. We only ask the people to come and see for themselves and take no man's word for it. Get our prices and that will tell the tale. J. D. Boydston.

Ellis Richardson has bought seventeen head of fine registered Hereford cattle from the Cosgrove Livestock company, of Minnesota. He has them at D. Richardson's place. Look out for his ad. next week.

The grand jury has adjourned, and it seems that they have it in for Powell for selling goods so cheap.

Mr. N. J. Arnett, a member of the Cosgrove Livestock company, Le Sueur, Minn., is here looking for a location to move his herd of registered Hereford cattle. He is well pleased with the country and we hope he will find a suitable location.

A nice suit for $6.50 at Powell's. Fruit of the loom domestic, 10 cents. Powell.

Maj. Jones, W. H. Parvin and Capt. Lea attended the railroad meeting at Albany last Monday. Their report is truly encouraging and it begins to look as if the enterprise was going to take definite shape. The company was organized and charter applied for.

A big line window shades cheap. Powell.

The largest line of clothing and cheapest ever seen in Baird. Powell.

Judge Cllett continues to make lands go in this county. On Monday last he sold T. E. & L. Co. (Peter's colony) survey No. 2275, one and a half miles east of Putnam, at $2 per acre, all cash, to F. P. Shackelford of Putnam. Also 150 acres of the J. H. Pickens survey, on yesterday, at four dollars per acre.

Fifteen yards good domestic $1, worth 10 cents a yard. Powell.

The best shirting in Baird, 15 yards $1, worth 10 cents a yard. Powell.

Rev. R. F. Dunn will leave for Belton to-morrow to attend the north-west Texas conference which convenes at that place on November 6. It is the unanimous desire of the members of the church, as well as majority of the people of the town, that he be sent back to this work and we hope the conference will return him.

Finest and largest line of gents' underwear ever seen in Baird. Powell.

While at court call on Powell. He sells cheaper than anyone.

You will find an old ad. in THE STAR in a new form this week. We refer to J. L. Lea & Co., whose ad. will be found on third page. An issue of THE STAR without an ad. of this live, go-ahead firm would be like the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out. Their ad., like the firm, is progressive; that is it is larger and more attractive, but not more so than their business justifies. The amount of business done by this firm is proverbial, and we are glad to know they are doing a splendid business this fall, as they are fully alive to every interest that will benefit the town as well as themselves. They are so well known to our readers that they need no new introduction, but you will always find them ready with the largest stock of groceries in the west to supply their immense trade, and they buy everything in the way of country produce, as our country friends already know.

Newmarkets and wraps of all kinds very cheap at Powell's.

Wheat has to be replanted on some places. Cotton picking keeps old and young busy, and some of our farmers are shipping their bales to Galveston, while others are holding back for better prices. To the latter ones I would say that, according to the quotations of the "futures" on the leading exchanges, Liverpool, New York and New Orleans, there will hardly be a rise before April, and then only to the amount of 20 or 30 points. As for the present, Baird prices beat the San Antonio market with at least 20 points.

Thursday morning Mrs. Albert Dams was delivered of a dead girl. The case was a most critical one and the physicians in attendance, Drs. Windham and Lindley, had to do all they could to save the life of the mother, who is now doing well. The little body was buried the same day.

Mr. Floyd, our ex-county surveyor, is out doing some surveying for H. Windham.

Mrs. Powell's sickness took a very serious turn in the last few days.

Rumor has it that there was a wedding yesterday somewhere over the mountains, but as they didn't send any cake to your faithful correspondent, my oath as reporter prevents me to tell more about it. H. BUCHEN.

Gun Club Meeting.

There will be a gun club meeting to-morrow night, Friday, at 7:30 at J. E. Thomas' office.

Boys at Play.

Frank—Let's play keeping store, Joe.

Joe—All right, who'll we be?

F.—I'll play I'm Capt. Lea and you can be Dr. Clark, and clerk for me.

J.—(Very indignantly) I won't play Dr. Clark.

F.—Why?

J.—'Cause Dr. Clark don't do anything but make mistakes and drive oxen at the band player.

Then the band played.

An Inquisitive Boy.

Boy—Why does the man that has just come out of that vacant building wipe his mouth with his handkerchief?

Pa—The church ladies have the building rented and are giving dinner to all who have the necessary fifty cents.

Boy—Pa, what did he have to eat?

Pa—He had just enough to sharpen his appetite, so he can go home and eat a square meal.

It took the court at Chicago until the tenth week of its session to complete the jury in the Cronin murder case. The New York Sun says of Hon. John Sherman that in the course of a long public life, "the senator from Ohio has never been known to go off at half cock."

The Chicago Tribune proposes that at last we right a wrong of 400 years' standing and rechristen this nation, calling it the United States of Columbia. It would be an act of justice for our 400th anniversary. At a time when prices in real estate in many parts of the country have been steadily declining, the assessed value of taxable property in the south has increased nearly 60 per cent. since the last census.

The young gentlemen students of the University of Pennsylvania, who oppose the equal admission of women to that state institution, assert that if girls want an education there are colleges provided for their own sex, where they can get all the higher education they want. This is not true. There is not an exclusively female school on the globe this day where girls can get any education to compare with that of Harvard, Michigan University or Cornell. The question reminds one of the remark of Fred Douglass on the subject of admitting colored persons to the spectators' galleries in the Capitol at Washington was discussed. Douglass said: "Well, if the negroes can stand congress, I guess congress can stand the negroes."

The Republican candidate for governor of Massachusetts has been much praised because he declared he would not pledge himself beforehand to any particular line of action in case of state measures to come before him. Now let us find a candidate brave enough to say he will not pledge himself before election to appoint any particular candidates to office.

Paul de Chailly proposes to revolutionize history by proving that all English speaking peoples are descended from the sailor Norsemen instead of from the flaxen haired Saxons. He will devote the rest of his life, if necessary, to showing the proofs.

There are now half a million pensioners on the government lists. Let no man say that republics are ungrateful after this.

Along with the description of the finding of the richest tin mines in the world in the Black Hills comes another story from the same locality. It is that the farmers in South Dakota are starting to eat their crops failed because of the drought. Immediate relief is called for to meet their pressing necessities. Food, clothing and fuel are all needed, and needed at once. Millions are in the valleys and hill-sides all about them, but they can neither eat tin nor wear it, nor cook their food with it.

Gen. Benjamin F. Butler promises to write his memoirs and tell the whole truth about himself, his friends and his enemies. Let no one question that he will particularly enjoy telling it about Admiral Porter.

A genius has invented a patent piano muffer, which will enable the most thundering grand instrument hereafter, like Shakespeare's lion, to "roar you as gently as a sucking dove." With that attachment those who play "The March of the Toys" will be able to go on all night, and not even hear it themselves. That inventor's name will be immortal.

At the late annual convention of street railway presidents their executive committee reported the almost total collapse of the organization known as the Knights of Labor, at least so far as attempting to dominate railway companies was concerned. General Master Powderly, however, says the order has been gaining rapidly during the last year, and is in better condition financially than it ever was before.

The Hebrew Journal asks this question: Who ever heard of a Jewish vote? It then proceeds to remark that the Jew never mixes his politics with his race or religion. The race distributes itself among the different political parties. "We think we may say with justice that such a thing as a Jewish vote has never presented itself to our government. Outside of the synagogue we are citizens of the United States," says The Journal.

An old Maryland planter says of the present colored population of that state: "Those who are here now have to work harder than our niggers used to, but they seem to be kind of happy over it all the same."

Electricity is computed by Wheatstone to move 288,000 miles in a second. The marine conference was invited during President Cleveland's administration to meet in the United States. Its object will be to fix on uniform sea regulations for all maritime nations. At its close, its decisions will be submitted to the respective governments for adoption or rejection.

It is quite possible that before many years the common fuel of the country, in regions where gas is not attainable, will be crude petroleum. Several inventions for this purpose have been made, more or less satisfactory. The petroleum is conducted to the burner in a tank at a safe distance. At the burner it is converted into spray and mingled with a powerful current of air. A flame of intense hotness is produced, suitable for iron and steel welding, and other operations in metal work. The next invention will be to utilize it for private dwellings. One of the greatest difficulties hitherto has been that so intense a heat is produced with the oil that it consumes furnace, chimneys and everything adjacent.

It must have struck terror to the hearts of the Scotch school masters to see their pupils parading the streets, bearing banners on which were inscribed their just and reasonable demands as follows: "Abolition of the Cane. Less Hours in School. Less Pruning, and No More Lessons." The demand for less sewing and less caning seems particularly reasonable. When pruning goes out of fashion in education, people will come boys to such time cease to be spent Look out for the end of the world anywhere along the last of this month. The Second Adventists say there is to be no postponement this time. That ancient tub, the Pensacola, instead of the new Baltimore, took the eclipse tourists to Africa. Many of them were wise enough to make their wills before starting.

It was a "little piece of iron not more than an inch long" that got into the cut off valve and prevented its working, causing the frightful accident to the inclined plane car at Cincinnati.

After the death of Feeks, the electrical workman, there was a scarcity of linemen to go up the poles and adjust the wires. Very suggestive it was to read an advertisement two days after his death calling for experienced linemen to go to work immediately.

Will this generation witness the spectacle of Glaistone, the "Grand Old Man," past 80 years old, again at the head of affairs in England? Late parliamentary elections look as if the tide was setting powerfully that way. "Glaistone and home rule" make a fine sounding war cry.

Thirty thousand dollars' duty must be paid on the "Anglo-American" before it can be free from the New York custom house. If the owners will cut it over the country and exhibit it, they will soon make the customs duties look. We Americans don't know everything about high art, but we all know enough to want to gaze on a picture that cost $117,000.

Newspapers complain that the political campaign is rather dull this fall. But it is lively enough in Ohio to make up for all the dullness elsewhere.

The Effort tower has already paid to the stockholders of the company more than it cost. What shall we have in place of it in America in 1922?

The sports have dropped the summer girl, and now they sing the autumn girl. But the fact is the girl, the everlasting and perennial girl, spring, summer, autumn, winter, is always sweet and bright.

It is announced with the utmost gravity that the 51-foot infant giraffe at Cincinnati is the first one ever born in captivity in America. Might one ask, without any offense, as it were, when there was a giraffe born in America out of captivity?

Now that Mr. Trautweiler has hit upon it, the wonder is that nobody ever thought before of ascending inaccessible mountains by tunneling up through the inside of them. Mr. Trautweiler has applied to the Swiss government for a permit to build an underground railway up the Jungfrau mountain. It will reap as great a harvest from tourists as the Effort tower has done.

It has long been thought that Chicago was a gas city. But nobody supposed the gas had struck in. There can be no doubt of the fact, however, since a vein of natural gas shot up from under the lake bed, caught fire from a lamp carried by some laborers employed in tunneling for the new water works and seriously burned the men. Doubtless the gas has been accumulating under there since the first real estate boom in Chicago, until now there is probably enough to supply the whole city with heat and light from this first class article of home manufacture.

A bouquet of women writers tells us in a newspaper letter what they would do if they were men. Some of their suggestions are so good that it is surprising they have not adopted them for themselves.

That was a graceful sentence in Mr. Blaine's welcome to the maritime conference delegates: "The spoken languages of the world will continue to be easy, but necessity compels that the universal language of the sea shall be sea."

It is announced that the nations invited have sent delegates to the maritime conference, except five of the Central and South American countries. The most notable exceptions are Brazil and Chili. All the rest of the world but Africa, the dark continent, is represented. Even China and Oceania
