Justice Department finally agrees noncitizens aren't eligible for motor voter registration

AUSTIN (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department has cleared the way for a 2-year-old state law meant to clarify noncitizens aren't eligible for motor voter registration services.

Texas lawmakers approved measures in 1995 to implement the 1993 National Voter Registration Act, also known as the Motor Voter Act.

One part of the state law said if applicants for public assistance indicate they are not U.S.

citizens, employees at the requires state agencies that Texas Department of Human Services do not have to offer them voter registration cards. The provision applies only to DHS because it is the only state agency that routinely collects citizen information.

Under federal law, state implementation of the Motor Voter Act requires approval from the Justice Department's civil rights division before taking effect. The federal law regularly deal with the public to offer voter registration to people when they apply for or renew their applications.

Earlier, Secretary of State Tony Garza blasted Justice for taking two years to approve the provision. He said the delay was forcing agency employees to offer voter registration to people applying for public assistance even if they said they were not citizens.

25th Howard County Fair just 25 days away

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

In 25 days, Howard County will celebrate the 25th edition of the Howard County Fair, which will benefit this year from early planning as well as ideas from the annual convention of the Texas Association of Fairs and Expositions.

According to Howard County Fair Board member Tammy Watt, the January exposition allowed the board to incorporate several new ideas in the silver anniversary celebration of the Howard County Fair.

"We brought back a lot of new ideas and saw many new and exciting things we have tried to incorporate them into the Howard County Fair this year," Watt said. "We are excited to be celebrating our 25th year in Howard County and look forward to a great fair."

The dates for the fair are Monday, Sept. 1 (Labor Day) through Saturday, Sept. 6.

The fair board also decided earlier this year that the grand opening of the 25th Howard p.m. with a big celebration in front of the Dora Roberts Fair

Among the attractions returning to the fair will be the Gene Ledell Carnival and the popular pet-a-zoo.

Watt added, "This year was my first time going to the convention. We heard a lot of great ideas from people who operate fairs on a much larger scale, but we have scaled some of the ideas down."

This year's fair is opening at p.m. on the first day instead of 10 a.m., according to Watt, to enhance the 25th anniversary celebration of the fair and to allow more people to attend "We plan to have a ribbon

The Silver Anniversary edition of the fair is scheduled for a Sept. 1 start.

County Fair will begin at 4 cutting ceremony and a big celebration because it is the 25th anniversary of the Howard County Fair," Watt

> The grand opening of the fair will be dedicated to the children of the Howard County

In addition to the many grand opening events, the fair will also be giving away $100 every hour on Monday from 5-10 p.m.

To be eligible for the giveaway, a special admission ticket must be purchased.

Opening night events will include the Ranch Rodeo, Queens Howard County Contest, Pet-A-Zoo, Goat Show, show presented by Spirit of the West and Kids Night at the Ledell Carnival.

Entertainment for this year's fair will include former Texas State Champion and World Champion fiddle player Ricky

Boen is a native of Odessa and started playing the fiddle at age 10. He and his father Darrell Boen perform all types of music but especially western swing and old time fiddle

The group Ricky Boen and Texas Mud evolved when the Boens added a larger variety of music and Mark Douglas, an accomplished vocalist and performer on the bass and guitar.

The entertainment tent will also include the sounds of Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke as well as Big Spring's own Jody Nix and The Texas Cowboys.

"Frenchie," as he prefers to be called, is a native of Kaplan, La., and was playing with local bands by the time he was 13.

To his credit, the cajun fiddler has played with such artists as Ray Price, Little Jimmy Dickins and Johnny Bush and currently plays at 100 fairs and rodeos each year.

Nix has a list of credits a mile long, highlighted in October 1996 when he was inducted into the Western Swing Hall of Fame in Sacramento, Calif.

He has also played a presidential inauguration ball.

Juvenile budget

Juvenile Probation Department plans to seek slight increase over current $190,000 budget

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

As with all other county programs. Howard County's 118th Judicial District Juvenile Probation Department is in the midst of its annual budget preparation work, but with a few new twists this summer.

The juvenile probation department must have its budget in place by Sept. 1-a full month ahead of other county departments - or it loses out on state aid.

In the past, Howard County has budgeted the department approximately $190,000 annually, which is shared with Martin County and Glasscock Counties — also a part of the 118th Judicial District.

"Judge (Robert) Moore is the 18th District Judge and the juvenile probations department follows the judge," Chief Probation Officer Margy Bradberry said.

This year, the probation department will ask commissioners for a budget of $193,142. According to Bradberry, a 15year veteran in the field of juvenile probation, the department also receives $74,973 annually in state aid for its various programs.

"The Texas Legislature wanted some different things done so they passed them along to the Texas Juvenile Probation Commission (TJPC), Bradberry said.

According to Bradberry, the TJPC provides the additional funds to juvenile probation departments if they agree to follow certain guidelines.

This year the juvenile probation department is receiving an additional $24,098 in state aid, which must be spent on those juveniles considered Level One, Level Two and Level Three in the program called Progressive Sanction Levels

According to Bradberry, a Level One youth is one who may just be entering the problems that some juveniles often get mixed up in such as shoplifting.

Level Two youths are typically runaways and teens in trouble for offenses such as being a minor in possession of alcohol or marijuana.

Level Three youths are those who have committed a felony such as assault.

A Level Four youth would be a person who has violated probation, a Level Five youth requires some type of restricHoward County has placed eight youths this year with the Of the $24,098 increase in funding, $14,600 will be dedicated to short-term detention (about $73 a day per youth); $7,623 is earmarked for psychological evaluation and counseling; and $1,875 will be spent on drug testing.

According to Bradberry, the additional funding may be spent specifically on programs, but not on salaries or benefits.

"In Howard County, Level One youths are referred to the High Sky Children's Ranch in Midland, Bradberry said.

Because of limited space and local funding, the state has, in the past, tried to help by providing counties with more money for local programming. curfew checks and more probation officers performing home

Howard County's program has also received an additional $27,565 for a new probation officer to take care of some of new programming required by the state where entry level juveniles coming into the probation department are concerned.

According to Bradberry, at some point, the additional funding received by the county will become a regular part of the state aid received for the juvenile probation program.

"The state is putting too much on counties," Bradberry recently told county commis-

One instrument Bradberry sees as positive in the battle against juvenile crime is the teen curfew, which is now enforced not only in the city of Big Spring, but county-wide

"Prior to the curfew, we had a lot of kids out late and they often got into a lot of trouble, Bradberry said. "The curfew is a good thing because it protects the people of the community from the youths who would tend to do wrong.

"The curfew enhances the accountability of parents," Bradberry added.

One of the things Bradberry hopes juvenile probation can do is steer young people in the right direction before they end up in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice — a place that often hardens its inmates rather than rehabilitates them.

Fairgoers will find new activities mixed with old

For its 25th anniversary, the Howard County Fair plans several new areas in antiques and art, agricultural events and baked goods. "Having new things makes the fair more exciting," said Tammy Watt, fair board member. "I think each year there are people who come back to the fair year after year, and this way they can have something new to see. It keeps everything

A unique competition this year is aprons. Aprons at least 25 years old (in honor of the anniversary) will be eligible for ribbons, based on workmanship, creativity, condition and

"We wanted to do something different," said Janeice Barnes, fair board member. "We did cookbooks one year. We think this is something that is going to bring a lot of interest." A limit of five aprons per person has been set, and the grand champion will earn $50.

For students in kindergarten through fifth grade, art projects will take the theme "Under the Sea" this year. Creatures of the deep will appear on a variety of art projects, undertaken both individually and through school classes. The fair will host an open junior meat goat show this year Aug. 31-Sept. 1. This will be part of the sanctioned Junior Meat Goat Show Circuit. "There's a lot of interest," said

Howard County Extension Agent David Kight. "For the most part, it's pretty much new families involved in this. I think it'll be a real good activity to come watch. Entry fees are $15 per head, with a $5 per head late charge. Deadline to enter is Aug. 19. The show takes place Sunday, gories to choose from, including dogs, cats, exotic pets and baby farm animals.

Small Andrews group opposed to radioactive waste finally speaks up

ANDREWS (AP). - It was one thing when Waste Control Specialists lobbied to dump toxic waste in a 600,000-cubic yard hole at its Andrews County site on the New Mexico border. Residents offered nary an objection.

Radioactive waste, apparently, is entirely different.

"My concern is that 15 or 20 years from now people in this area will be coming up with leukemia and other kinds of cancer (and) birth defects," said Ken Henderson, president of the area's first organized opposition to radioactive waste here. "They say it's low-level, but the government's idea of low-level mal person's idea is.' WCS spokesman Ron Hance characterized the waste that would travel through Andrews County as too low-level to cause any problems, even in the event is not the same as what a nor-of an accident. WCS already is processing and storing toxic byproducts at its 16,000-acre site in barren western Andrews County. Community support has been strong, particularly from business leaders.

However, a tiny group of activists say more than 60 people in this county of 14,800 have expressed interest organization, Henderson's Atomic Waste and Radiation Education, or AWARE.

They were to join pro-radioactive waste forces at two Texas Department of Health hearings today. TDH licensing is one of the last hurdles WCS must overcome before bidding to treat and store federally produced radioactive waste.

Some form of opposition was expected to the project, even in this desolate region accustomed to the "poison gas" warning signs and constant tanker truck traffic, WCS attorney John Kyte

"This is a community that has put a lot of effort and understanding, looking at how to develop business in the area," Kyte said. "But did I expect opposition to arise? Absolutely. I even told the client (WCS) that

"Even at this relatively late stage in the process I expected

WCS intends to treat and store contaminated soils and clothing from the U.S. Department of Energy and Department of Defense. Together, they account for 90 percent of government-produced radioactive waste.

The Andrews site also could treat waste headed for a proposed state-run site in Hudspeth County, near El Paso. That proposal has touched off intense resistence among residents of nearby Sierra Blanca.

"I am disappointed, to say the least," he said.

Martin's action was criticized by the president of another police union, the Houston Police Officers Union.

"We want everyone in the city really disappointed in HPPU's to know that we expect our zero tolerance against the stance in this regard, and I'm members to conduct themselves as they always do," said Hans Marticiuc, president of HPOU, which is larger than the HPPU.

"No matter what your ethical or moral position is on those who cross a picket line, it is legal to cross a picket line, just as the Teamsters have a right to strike," Marticiuc said.

It would be hypocritical for city officials to criticize him, Martin said.

"The police department conducts selective enforcement all the time," he said. "I'm not sure the Houston Police Department would have put something down like this (letter), but the chiefs and assistant chiefs are politically appointed."

Bill Clinton announces smaller deficit forecast; tells plans for line-item veto

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Clinton Wednesday forecast a smaller-than-expected $37 billion federal deficit for 1997, the lowest shortfall in 23 years. He also said he might make the first-ever use of his line-item veto powers.

The president said he would meet with his staff and Cabinet officers between now and Saturday to decide what items, if any, should be deleted from the landmark tax-cut and budget-balancing bills he signed the day before.

"I am assuming there's going to be something ... that is a good candidate for it," Clinton told a news conference. "I believe in the line-item veto and I believe it should be used.'

Clinton said he would not use the powers — which give him the authority to veto certain individual items in spending and tax bills — to try to undo any provisions that were agreed to by negotiators.

The president used the outdoor White House news conference to release deficit figures from his Office of Management and Budget for fiscal 1997, which ends Sept. 30.

The new deficit projection for fiscal 1997, which ends Sept. 30. would be the lowest federal deficit since 1974, when the gov-lacked legal standing since they ernment shortfall was $6' bil- "had not been hurt by an unused been a remarkably fruitful time and to give him the "fast track" for bipartisan actions in the national interest," Clinton said a day after he signed bipartisan measures to balance the budget in five years and to provide the biggest tax cut since 1981.

The president began the outdoor news conference by expressing "our deepest condolences" to victims and families of victims of the Korean Air jumbo jet crash in Guam.

On other subjects, Clinton: -Said he was concerned about the inconvenience that the Teamsters strike against United Parcel Service had caused. But he stressed that the

hi-

"high standard" of the Taft-Hartley Act, which would allow him to intervene.

-Blamed Congress for imposing a spring 1999 deadline for a commission's recommendations to reform Medicare and Social Security. He said he would have "gladly accepted" a 1998 deadline — a year further away from the 2000 presidential election. He said he did not want to see the process politi-

-Said he remained hopeful that former Massachusetts Gov. William Weld would be confirmed as his ambassador to Mexico, despite strong opposition from Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jesse Helms. "I think, at least, the man ought to get a hearing, ought to get his day in court."

In the news conference, which was a few minutes shy of an hour, Clinton disclosed that the new balanced-budget and tax-cut package, a foot-thick piece of legislation, might see the first presidential use of line-item veto powers.

Clinton has not yet used the power, which Congress gave him in 1996. Last month, the Supreme Court rejected a challenge to the law by six members of Congress, saying they on the law's constitutionality.

Clinton also outlined his 1997, including urging Congress These past months have enact campaign finance reform authority he needs to negotiate more free-trade agreements around the world.

"We have a lot of work to do for the rest of this year," Clinton said.

Turning to the new tensions in the Middle East, Clinton pledged his "best ideas" on how to revive peace talks. He used harsh words to call on Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat to denounce terrorists whose suicide bombing in Jerusalem last week stalled a mission to the region by U.S. envoy Dennis Ross.

"The people that murdered all work stoppage had not met the those people, those innocent people, are not trying to get a peace that they think is more favorable to the Palestinian or Arab cause," Clinton said. "They are trying to murder the peace process.

"Yasser Arafat must understand those people are not his friends," he added.

Even as Clinton called on Congress to enact campaignfinance reform this year, Clinton said he was proud of his role in raising millions of dollars in so-called "soft money" for the Democratic Party in 1996 and this year.

"I don't believe in unilateral disarmament," he said.

Common Cause, a public interest lobby, reported Tuesday that national political parties raised $34 million in 'soft money" donations in the first half of 1997. Of that, Republicans raised $23 million from corporations, unions and wealthy patrons, compared with $11 million raised by Democrats.

Clinton trod carefully on a question about the surging stock market, other than to call its rise over the past half decade "astonishing." He said he didn't want to move the market one way or the other by his comments.

Still, he applauded the pour ing of millions of dollars by mutual funds for their retire-

"On the whole, what they are doing on is betting on the larg er American economy. And I think that is a pretty good bet.

In his first public remarks on recent subpoenas in Paula Jones' sexual harassment suit against him, Clinton said he and his aides were refusing to comment on recent developments out of deference to a former employee's privacy.

"There was a request to be left alone and not harassed and we're just trying to honor it,' he said. Jones' attorneys, seeking to establish a pattern of improper sexual advances by Clinton, subpoenaed former House employee Kathleen Willey. She has vowed to resist any deposition.

PUC approves pre-paid local service

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans delinquent on long-distance phone bills soon can escape the threat of a dead telephone.

The Texas Public Utility Commission on Wednesday approved a rule allowing telephone customers to pre-pay their local phone companies for local service only. The rule will take effect in about six months. Local companies will have to offer the option to anyone who otherwise would be cut off because of nonpayment. They also will work out payment plans to make up the long-distance balances.

"It does enable many, many more customers to have access to EMS, their local community, schools and hospitals and libraries and pharmacies and medical facilities," said Leslie Kjellstrand, a PUC spokes-

According to a 1995 study by the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, many Texans without phone service would have their lines turned on if they had more control over the costs of long distance and other charges.

In 1996, 91.4 percent of Texas households had at least basic telephone service. Nationally, 93.9 percent had such service at the same time.

Clovis McCallister, spokesman for GTE, said the service will help customers, but Loehman said.

"I think the rule will be good for those people who have had a down turn in their luck, McCallister said. "But it will be burdensome and expensive. Hopefully, it will relieve the number of uncollectables (unpaid phone bills) if people don't abuse the system.'

Little sign for compromise as Korea talks continue

NEW YORK (AP) North and South Korea showed little sign of compromise Wednesday in four-nation talks pressing for a final peace treaty on their divided peninsula.

U.S. and Chinese officials attending the pivotal talks said they were expected to resume Thursday and might not end until Friday. The meetings began Tuesday at Columbia University.

The goal is to agree on a time, place and agenda for a conference to forge a new security arrangement to replace the 1953 armistice that ended fighting in the Korean War. Sources in both Korean delegations described the atmosphere at the meetings as "good" and "businesslike."

Despite the cordial atmos-

Some mildly baleful signs on the environmental front: a confluence of two events that may presage a new phase, one in which activists claim success (where that claim is decidedly untrue) in preserving key marine species.

In these instances progress, not success, is the operative

The first instance is a legisla tive feal struck in the Senate by environmental advocates. Unfortunately, the law does more harm than good for the besieged dolphin population.

Staunch environmentalists such as Democratic Senators Barbara Boxer of California and John Kerry of Ma sachusetts claimed victory last week when they preserved the popular "dolphin safe" tuna law, but in much watered down form. Pyrrhic victory was more like it.

The "victory" came in response to an even more horratic version of the bill passed by that den of anti-environmen talists, the U.S. House, The House measure would have kept the "dolphin safe" label on some tuna products but would have included within the definition of "dolphin safe" fishing methods that are anything but.

Ten years ago, following a widely observed boycott, American consumers demanded and won labeling on tuna cans that alerts us to whether the tuna was caught with "dolphin safe" nets. Mexican and other fishing fleets often use massive fishing nets to catch tuna. Those nets unintentionally trap schools of dolphin and smother them along with the Many in the dolphin-loving public refused to buy tuna caught with large nets. So effective was the boycott that U.S. trading partners (such as Mexico) complained to "business-friendly" Republicans that the dolphin-safe law was unfair and violated international trade agreements. So the named Republican dominated House, ever in the habit these days of sacrificing environmental progress for lucre, happily cast aside protections for the muchbeloved dolphin.

Republicans successfully fought and then lifted the 1990 trade embargo of imported tuna that fails to meet the current "dolphin safe" definition.

At the same time, they approved a bill that watereddown the definition of "dolphin safe" so consumers who choose to avoid dolphin-killing tunafishing methods could not even boycott the method if they so chose.

Once this menace moved over to the Senate, environmentalists such as Boxer and Kerry did all they could to fight it. But their best chance (being in the minority) was to kill the watered-down version of "dolphin safe" labeling, while going along with lifting the trade embargo. The end result? Millions of spectacular marine mammals will be immolated so Mexican fishermen can profit.

The second instance of falsely-claimed success comes from Norway, where whalers are loosening self-imposed quotas ton massacres of the minke of T whale. Norwegians are now satisfied that the world population of some 900,000 minkes is large enough, although whalers from other countries agree it is

Prior to worldwide slaughters of these incredibly graceful and fascinating sea mammals, the minke whale population numbered in the hundreds of millions. These graceful, gentle creatures' sing highly sophisticated tunes to each other, and swim in family groups for much of their lives. From what little we do know about them, we know they recognize and care for each other, and are skilled communicators. Nonetheless, Norwegian whaler Olav Olavsen, recently told The New York Times minke whales have no intelligence, and that they are "just big mountains of meat." His self-serving, arrogant statement displays both a marked lack of concern for the environment and an ignorance of the facts.

In both cases, people are citing limited progress on balancing the environment, and claiming success. It is as if a person who needed to lose 100 pounds went off a diet after losing 20. Granted, neither the dw dolphin nor the minke, whale is close to extinction. But is that: the only benchmark? Let us

It's no surprise that Vice President Al Gore, a junk science addict, would back the chem air standards demanded by the Environmental Protection Agency. These standards are themselves based on junk science.

If enforced, these new standards will cost billions of dol lars and yield, if any, negligible health benefits The heart of junk science is the epidemiological study the medical equivalent of the public opinion poll. That's what EPA administrator Carol Browner was referring to when she claimed that the new standards were based on a survey of 250 studies. The epidemiological study has its place, but it is abused because too many epidemiolo gists refuse to accept its lim-

The abusers remind me of people who want to be lawyers without the hard work of going to law school. The epidemiology abuser wants to pass out question naires and play statistical games and thus claim to discover causes of disease with out doing the hard work in the laboratory.

To understand the limitations of an epidemiological study, we have to note the difference between a causal relationship and correlation: A causal relationship is when A causes B; a correlation is when you find A and B together.

My philosophy teacher, Nick Pchelkin, a whimsical Russian, used to say that if we see him coming out of a hotel with a beautiful blonde. our observations have established only a correlation, not a causal relationship, which may or may not exist.

Because epidemiological studies are observational, they can never, by themselves, prove that a cause and effect relationship between two factors exists; at best, they can establish a correlation and the degree of correlation — are two things found together always, sometimes, often, rarely, never?

People had noted the correlation between swamps and malaria for centuries, but it took laboratory scientists to discover that what caused the malaria was not swamps but a certain species of mosquito carrying a particular parasite.

The main problem with epidemiological studies is that there are too many variables. In the jargon of the trade, they call them biases and confounding factors. But, for example, is you measure air pollution in two cities and then compare the number of recorded deaths from lung disorders, you are looking at only two of many, many variables. Neither the cities nor the people in them are identical in all respects except for

Even if the more polluted city had the higher number of deaths from lung disorders, you would not have sufficient evidence to prove that this difference in death rates was due to differences in the levels of air pollutants. For a more technical discus-

"I really had to think about that, about giving up teaching," she said.

Her other plans include helping the school develop creatively. At St. Mary's, there are computers in every classroom, and Spanish is taught beginning in pre-kindergarten programs.

The school prides itself on small classes with individual attention for students.

"We want to keep our numbers up, but we never want to get too big," Hanes said. The school averages 120-130 students, from 3 years old through fifth grade.

Hanes has a special interest in developing St. Mary's. Her two younger children are students there.

"They love the fact that I'm here with them," she said. Hanes said she plans to enjoy her new job.

Students at St. Mary's Episcopal School will find a new face in the main office when they head back for classes this year. Carol Hanes has given up teaching (almost) to be head of school this year.

This lack of stimulation may inhibit the brain from developing properly. The effect of early stimulation on living brains has been studied in several fascinating animal experiments.

In one study, researchers divided litter-mate rats into two identical groups. The first was given maximum stimulation during the first few months of life. These rats were kept in well-lighted cages, surrounded by interesting paddle wheels and other toys. They were handled regularly and allowed to explore outside their cages. They were subjected to learning experiences and then rewarded for remembering.

The second group lived the These rats crouched in dimly They have not been taken to They were not handled or stim-

At 105 days of age, all the rats were sacrificed to permit examination of their neurological apparatus. The researchers were surprised to find that the high stimulation rats had brains that differed in several important ways: (1) the cortex (the thinking part of the brain) was thicker and wider; (2) the blood supply was much more abundant: (3) the enzymes necessary for learning were more sophisticated.

The researchers concluded that the stimulation experienced during the first group's early lives had resulted in more same kinds of changes probably occur in the brains of highly stimulated children.

Science teachers go back to school

CHICAGO (AP) - The teacher went back to college this summer to learn how to make a clock powered by an orange. And to find out how to make polyurethane "monster hands" and carrot-and-gumdrop molecule models.

The goal for Chicago-area elementary and middle school teachers attending summer sessions at Columbia College Chicago's Institute for Science Education and Science Communication is to go back home and teach science in a more compelling, though often underfunded, way.

Many of the teachers give up their free time to attend Science Institute, as it is known, because they fear teaching science and want to become better at it. Some are not science literate but have been assigned to teach it. Or, if knowledgeable, they find standard textbook teaching bores

Robot at work

Cleaning, fetching coffee duties of tin men

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) -Sure, people are impressed when the Mars Pathfinder rover rolls around the red planet examining rocks. But teach a robot to find the remote control or vacuum the living room and you'll see real excitement.

Enter "Slick Willie" — he can fetch mugs, a pill bottle, even a bunch of plastic grapes.

"It can do cucumbers and carrots too," said Kansas State University professor David Gustafson. "But they're artificial ones.

It seems the smooth-moving Willie - also named after university mascot Willie the Wildcat — doesn't always know his own strength. Your food could end up squashed. Willie was one of the down-to-earth robots grabbing coffee cups, serving snacks and telling jokes Thursday at the American Association for Artificial Intelligence's national conference.

"One of the criticisms of academic research is that we don't work in everyday situations," said event organizer Ronald Arkin of the Georgia Institute of Technology. "So this year, we tried to establish more of a relevance to real-world tasks." More than 20 teams entered the conference's sixth annual Mobile Robot Competition.

The barrel-shaped robots equipped with video camera "eyes," laptop computer "brains" on top, and sensors that keep them from bumping into walls — ranged in size from 1- to 4-feet tall and bore little resemblance to the automatons of science-fiction movies.

Although Willie is not quite as advanced as Rosie, the robot maid who keeps the home of "The Jetsons" spotless, he can help out around the house.

Willie glided through a demonstration living room set and grabbed whatever was typed into the keyboard on his head. He finds the correct item by determining its color and shape, Gustafson said.

In the future, robots like Willie will help people who are paralyzed, Arkin said.

Amadeus, a "vacuuming" robot from Georgia Tech, was programmed to spot dirt after people leave a room.

"Sorry, this room appears to be occupied. Going back down the hallway," Amadeus said.

EDINBURG (AP) - Arms pumping, hips swaying, calves bulging, they waddle ahead: Heel-toe, heel-toe, heel-toe.

One with his head down, the other fixed straight ahead, they attack the Edinburg High School track like spastic ducks on a mission.

Heel-toe, heel-toe, heel-toe. "Too fast! Too fast!" their coach bellows from across the track.

On cue, their heads snap toward the familiar timbre, then back into place, back to the task at hand. They continue on, their pace slowed only slightly. Heel-toe ... heel-toe ... heel-toe.

"If they go too fast," explains the coach, "they don't take in enough oxygen. They're going to peter out after the second or third lap.'

Turning back to the pair, he shouts out more advice: "Chris! Heel, Chris. Heel!"

They round a corner. The waddling quickens. They hear no sounds, but for their own measured breaths.

With one final burst, they cross the finish line, sweat trickling down their flushed cheeks, chests pounding.

Who would have thought walking could be such serious business?

Fifth-graders Adrian Jaime and Christopher Diaz know other athletes laugh at them. They see the smirks at the track where they work out.

They understand, for their sport is not so glorious as running or football. They are racewalkers, competitors in a pastime associated with middle-age women trying to lose a few pounds, not "serious athletes."

"It's a different kind of sport," says 11-year-old Adrian. a dark-haired boy with intelligent eyes and a crooked smile. Clad in blue running shorts, a cutoff Edinburg Track Club shirt and authentic racewalking shoes, he explains, "It's not one of those regular sports like basketball or baseball."

"It's a cool sport," pipes in 10year-old Christopher, his buckteeth showing through a dimple-dotted smile. He is outfitted in the same shoes as Adrian, lime green shorts and a T-shirt the color of eggplant. He is obviously the more mischievous of the two.

"They laugh at us, but I don't really care," says Christopher. "At least I'm good at it and they're not."

And they are good.

The McAllen boys are headed to Charlotte, N.C., to compete Wednesday in the Amateur Athletic Union national racewalking competition, against about 150 other children in their age group. The duo qualified after finishing first and second at a state meet in July. Christopher took first. Adrian finished 0.6 of a second behind.

Five other racewalkers from the Rio Grande Valley, four girls and another boy, also qualified for the national meet.

Adrian and Christopher will walk a 1,500-meter race. A good finishing time ranges between 7 minutes, 9 seconds and 8:30, says their coach, A.C. Jaime, Adrian's grandfather. Their best time has been 9:30.

"But I think they can do better," says A.C., who started racewalking three years ago at age 58. Adrian saw him and decided to give it a try, entering his first competition in 1995

A.C. soon enlisted other children to join in their workouts at the high school track. Christopher, a runner, converted to racewalking about two months ago.

"I just wanted to see how it was," says Christopher, who still runs track and plays soccer and basketball.

Now Adrian and Christopher are friends as well as competitors. "Partners" is how Adrian describes them.

"I've beat him twice, he's" beat me twice," he says.

Each has different strengths. the boys explain. Christopher is the speedster, while Adrian has better technique. And in racewalking, form is every bit as important as speed.

Jones slaps Switzer with record-setting fine of $75,000

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN - By fining Barry Switzer $75,000, Dallas owner Jerry Jones has made it clear he's finished putting up with incidents that tarnish the Cowboys' star.

But will the stiff punishment diminish the stature of Switzer, long reputed to be a coach with loose reins on his teams, in the eyes of his players? Troy Aikman, the man known as the conscience of the Cowboys and a critic of Switzer in the past, says no.

Aikman applauded Switzer for taking on a more defined leadership role, especially among rookies, in his fourth year.

Switzer has caught the attention of his players by getting in their faces, even slapping some helmets around when he is disappointed with effort at

BARRY'S PUNISHMENT

Amount of fine: $75,000

- Switzer: 'I really do understand the seriousness of this incident, regardless of how innocent, how unintentional it was. I certainly caused a lot of harm for a lot of people
- Jones: 'It's a serious and significant fine. I made the fine what I made it because of his role as a coach. I would have been different if he were a player.
- Of note: NFL will not assess an additional fine. The fine will be donated to families of firefighters and police officers killed in the line of duty. Previously: NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue imposed a $30,000 fine on then Cincinnati coach Sam Wyche for failing to allow women reporters into the team's locker room after a 1990 game.

Aikman said Switzer's arrest and subsequent fine — the largest ever imposed on an NFL coach - for carrying a loaded, unlicensed .38-caliber revolver into Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport on Monday won't reduce the coach's credibility. "I think it's been good for Barry to take more of a leadership role for this training camp," Aikman said.

"I don't think this takes away from that. I think the guys that he's reaching out to are the younger players, and I think that they are still going to respond to him after this."

Switzer, who said he accepts Jones' actions, made a point to address the team after learning of the fine Wednesday.

"I've talked to our team and I have expressed to them that there is no way that this will not allow us to carry on and do the job that's at hand," Switzer said. "It won't take away from the great work and effort that they've given us while we've been here in Austin."

In levying the fine, Jones said the coach's arrest on a gun charge brought "pain and embarrassment" to a team trying to repair its image.

"It's a serious and significant fine," Jones said. "I made the fine what I made it because of his role as a coach. It would have been different if he were

Jones said Switzer's job was not in jeopardy.

Switzer, who earns an estimated $1 million a year and has three years left on his contract, including this season, said the fine "hurts not only financially, but much more than the dollars.

"I really do understand the serious ness of this incident, regardless of how innocent, how unintentional It was. It certainly caused a lot of harm for a lot of people and certainly me," Switzer said.

The fine will be donated to the families of firefighters and police officers killed in the line of duty.

The NFL said the penalty was sufficient and that it would not impose its own punishment.

ROCKWALL — A district attorney says he's begun the paperwork that could lead to revocation of Bam Morris' probation, granted last year after the Baltimore Ravens running back pleaded guilty to marijuana possession.

The NFLannounced Wednesday that the fourth-year player out of Texas Tech tested positive for alcohol during a urine screen in January. The infraction carries a mandatory four-game suspension since it was his second violation of the league's substance abuse poli-

Morris, 24, also was suspended for four games last year after he pleaded guilty in Rockwall to marijuana possession. A third violation would result in a minimum one-year suspension

On March 22, 1996 — less than two months after appearing with the Pittsburgh Steelers against the Dallas Cowboys in the Super Bowl — a state trooper found six pounds of marijuana in the trunk of Morris' black Mercedes-Benz on Interstate 20 outside Rockwall.

A later search of the impounded car turned up one gram of cocaine.

In a plea agreement, Morris pleaded guilty in exchange for a promise of no prison time. He was sentenced on July 11, 1996, to six years' probation on the marijuana charge. Rockwall County District Attorney Ray Sumrow said Wednesday night he'll subpoena the NFL for records relating to Morris' latest transgression, "and I would hope they would respond in a very short period of time.' "The state agreed he wouldn't be incarcerated in return for his promise he won't violate any of the terms of probation. If he's violated the terms, we're certainly not bound to keep him on probation," Sumrow

"Part of the conditions of his probation is that he abstain from alcohol."

After practice Wednesday in Westminster, Md., Morris apologized and said he would continue to work out and watch the team so that he could return when the suspension is

Simms delivers in Rangers' win over New York

ARLINGTON — Mike Simms was an unlikely hero to help the Texas Rangers forget a 16run hammering from the night

Juan Gonzalez had to fly to Puerto Rico for divorce proceedings so the light-hitting Simms was inserted into rightfield.

Simms singled in the goahead run in the sixth inning and added a sacrifice fly in the eighth Wednesday night as the Rangers beat the New York Yankees 6-2 in a game twicedelayed by rain.

Gonzalez had five homers and nine rbi against the Yankees in last season's AL playoffs.
"I just got lucky," said

Simms. "It's kind of hard for me to get to play lot with the outfield we have. I saw my name in the lineup and knew I needed to contribute. It felt good to do it.'

Will Clark reached the 1,000-RBI plateau with a sacrifice fly in the eighth for the Rangers. who took a 3-2 lead in the sixth with four singles off Yankees starter Andy Pettitte (13-7).

Ivan Rodriguez singled, went to second on a flyball and scored on a single by Jim Leyritz. Clark followed with a single, and Simms singled Leyritz across.

'It was a big game for us after an embarrassment last night (a 17-1 loss to Boston)," Leyritz said. "We have to realize we have a long way to go. We may even climb back into the race. Even if we don't we need to continue to play well for pride. Mike got the big hit for us to get us going.

The Yankees finally got to Darren Oliver (8-10) in the sixth inning with the long ball. Tino Martinez hit his major league-leading 37th home run off the facing of the upper deck in right field, and Chad Curtis added his eighth homer one out iater

Oliver went six innings and gave up two runs on eight hits. He had three walks and three strikeouts. Pettitte gave up nine hits and five runs in seven-plus innings.

"We got a quality start from Darren and Simms came through," said Texas manager Johnny Oates. "Oliver did some bending but he never broke.'

The tickets are priced at $20 per book for the five-game package. Ticket window hours are from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. on Fridays.

Any tickets not purchased by current season ticket holders will be made available to the general public Aug. 18-29.

Hunting permit applications accepted Applications for public hunting permits on

O.H. Ivie Reservoir Wildlife Management Areas are being accepted by mail beginning July 15 and continuing through Aug. 15 at the O.H. Ivie Reservoir Field Office.

Applications will be accepted by mail only. The number of permits issued will be limited. and requests for information and application packets should be made by calling the Colorado River Municipal Water District by calling 267-6341 or writing to CRMWD, P.O. Box 869, Big Spring, Texas 79721.

A public drawing for the permits has been scheduled for 10 a.m. on Sept. 17 at the field office located near the north end of the dam Applicants are welcome to attend the drawing if they so desire.

For the 1997 season, only archery hunting will be allowed during both the archery and gun sea son on the Talpa WMA.

Both shotgun and archery hunting will be permitted on the Riverside WMA, but only during the gun season, Nov. 1 through Jan. 4.

CGA scholarship applications being taken

The Chicano Golf Association of Big Spring has announced that applications for the Charlie Gonzales Scholarship can be picked up in the Howard College Financial Aid Office through CGA officials said the achalambin will awarded and be available for the 1997 fall semes ter at Howard College.

Baltimore coach Marchibroda said that after Morris serves his four-game suspension, he won't play until he proves he is fit and ready.

"It's up to Bam whether he'll be back or not," Marchibroda said Wednesday. "I just sort of feel that Bam let his teammates down."

Morris is a former high school and college football star in Texas.

He was the state's leading rusher his senior year of high school at Cooper, Texas, gaining 2,972 yards and scoring 38 touchdowns. At Texas Tech, in only three seasons he became the second-leading rusher in school history.

In 1993, as a junior, he won the Doak Walker Award as the nation's top college running back. He skipped his senior season to turn professional, and the Steelers made him their third-round draft choice.

He was the Steelers' rookie of the year, finishing third among NFL rookies with 836 yards on 198 carries in 1994. A 245-pound power back, he helped the Steelers reach the Super Bowl and outgained the NFL's leading rusher, Emmitt Smith, in Super Bowl XXX.

misconduct, whether intentional or mistaken, will not be tolerated by the Cowboys and violates the league's weapons policy," commissioner Paul Tagliabue said.

The fine surpasses the $30,000 that Tagliabue imposed on then Cincinnati coach Sam Wyche for failing to allow women reporters into the team's locker room after a 1990

Jones has worked hard this year to repair the Cowboys' offthe-field image and was clearly embarrassed by Switzer's arrest.

The Cowboys have had five players receive seven NFL suspensions in the past three years, including two of the team's stars, Michael Irvin and Leon Lett, who violated the league's substance abuse poli-

Switzer has said he put the gun in his bag to hide it from children visiting his home but forgot to remove it before going to the airport.

Carrying a weapon into an airport is a third-degree felony, punishable by two to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $10,000. Law enforcement authorities said, however, that such cases are handled as misdemeanors if there are no prior felonies or weapons charges.

Carrying a handgun without a permit is a Class A misdemeanor under state law, punishable by up to a year in jail and a $4,000 fine

Under NFL policy, all league employees are barred from carrying firearms while on NFL premises or while conducting NFL business. A violation is subject to discipline by the commissioner.

How to Give and Go to a Party Happy Birthday to You!

People have been having birthday parties for thousands of years. They used to believe there were evil spirits that came out especially on birthdays. People would invite friends and relatives to help protect the birthday person. They also believed the birthday person would be safer if he or she received gifts.

This ancient custom has become a fun modern tradition.

How to be a good party-giver

 Make every guest feel important. Show that you are pleased your guests could come.

• Greet your guests at the door. Ask them to come in. Help them with their coats.

 Don't grab your present. Take it gently and thank Introduce the guests who don't know each other. Keep the party moving. If guests get bored with one game, then switch to another. Remember what each guest gives you. It's a good idea to ask someone to make a list when you open your presents, so you can keep track of who gave what for thank-yous

How to be a good guest

We all love birthday parties. It's great fun to be invited. Here's a list of helpful hints on how you can be a successful guest one who will be invited back to next year's party! • Be on time. It is not polite to keep the birthday child and guests waiting Smile and say, "Happy birthday" when you give your gift. · Be a good mixer. Play the games the birthday parent has planned for you. Be a good sport. Wait your turn. Being a "me first" guest doesn't go over well at parties or anywhere, for that matter.

 Don't sit down at the birthday table until the host or hostess invites Don't eat anyone's refreshments but your own.

 Watch your table manners. Chew with your mouth closed. · Don't eat while you are singing "Happy Birthday." Birthdays are exciting, but try to keep your cool.

• Be sure to say "thank you" and "I had a great time.

 Be sure to invite the birthday boy or girl to your own party. It's nice to return invitations.

· Have a grand time. Hosts and hostesses like to invite guests who

Invitations

Your invitations should have the following information:

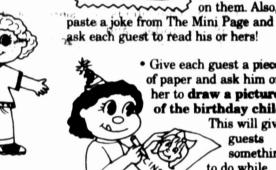

- what kind of party you are having
- date
- · time party starts-• time party will end
- · type of refreshments (lunch, dinner, snacks
- and cake) who is giving the party
- where the party will be (address please-reply reminder
- phone number
- · kind of dress, if this is important

Birthday ideas

• Kids love dress-up parties. Ask them to wear play clothes and bring something to use as a costume. Girls might bring some of their mother's old clothes or jewelry (ask first!). Boys might bring some of their dad's hats or a big towel to use as a cloak.

Games to play

Pin the nose on the clown This is another version of an old favorite, pin the tail on the donkey.

You'll need: construction

- paper
- crayons scissors
- pillowcase sticky tape

What to do: 1. Draw a clown's face.

- 2. Cut out a nose for each guest. Write a guest's name on each nose. Put two-sided sticky tape on the back.
- one by one, blindfold them, and give them each the clown nose with his or her name written on it.

times each and point them toward the clown. The one to where the nose goes wins.

- 3. Tape the clown to the pillowcase.
- 4. Tack the pillowcase to the wall. 5. As the children take their turns,

Turn them around three whose nose ends up the closest

Look through the classified ads in your newspaper and choose something that make a good birthday gift for everyone in your family. Then look through the food section of your newspaper to find good things to eat at your party.

This is another version of musical

Woman wonders if age gap can be bridged with love You receive great news,

DEAR ABBY: Five months do? - TIRED MOM IN GEORago I met a man who changed my life. He is a college student, has his own business and a part-time job. He's very mature and has a good head on his shoulders. His goals in life are realistic, and he knows that it takes work to achieve them.

Two months ago our relationship progressed to another level, and we have been togeth-say it to each other. Abby, we have so much in common, but we can't overlook the fact that I am 32 and he is 21. I fear this fairy-tale relationship will end because of the age difference. Although he tells me I am everything he has ever wanted in a woman, I'm afraid cajoled. he'll want a younger woman later on.

Is it possible for a relationship like this to last? —OLDER BUT NOT WISER IN TEXAS

DEAR OLDER: You have known each other only five months, and you say that neither of you has mentioned the word "love." Although he's only 21, he's wise enough to know that if he says, "I love you," it would probably lead to a commitment he is not ready to assume.

You ask if it's possible for this relationship to last. I have no crystal ball, but if you're seeing each other exclusively six months from now and he still hasn't used the word "love." I'd advise you not to plan your future around him.

DEAR ABBY: We enjoy taking vacations with our married son and his family; it gives us quality time with them, especially the grandchildren.

However, I don't know if I can continue because their idea of a vacation is to do absolutely nothing. I do all the cooking, cleaning, washing and baby sitting. By the end of the week, I am worn out. The same thing happens when they come to our home. I would prefer to spend my time with the grandchildren. What would you suggest I

DEAR TIRED MOM: Your predicament may be of your own making, because you pitch right in and get things organized without asking for help. Confer with the other adults in your family and lay down ground rules for your vacations. Parcel out duties, even to the children. Trade off on the cooking and cleaning chores, and baby-sit when it is convenient for YOU. At the start of the vacation, post a list of chores in the kitchen, and rotate the duties every few days so no one is overburdened. You might enjoy this poem until it was too late to do anything about it?

You say you didn't notice

Probably, if you aren't checking the Public Notices columns of this newspaper regularly. Public Notices are required by state law to protect your rights and to help you function more effectively as a citizen. Access to information about what government agencies are doing is what makes the American the most powerful citizen in the world. The Public Notices give you access to information you need . . . about new local laws that will affect you . . . about plans for major land use changes . . . about were roads will go ... whose land will be condemned ... how your tax dollars will be spent . . . about court actions that could be important to you, or just plain interesting. Whether you know them as Public Notices or as "the legals", it pays you to check the Public Notice columns in this newspaper each issue. What you don't know might cost you!
