Fiber Glass Systems Inc. was granted a tax abatement by the major taxing entities in Howard County about a year ago, but has since been sold to Tuboscope Vetco out of Houston creating Fiber Glass Systems LLP, meaning the company will become a limited liability partnership.

According to Moore Executive Director Danette Toone, local taxing entities approving the assignment clause is just a formality, especially when a company has been sold.

In presenting the assignment clause to Howard County Commissioners this week, Toone said the sale is good for Fiber Glass Systems, which has gone from being a $50 million company to a company worth nation as the site in West See EXPANSION, Page 2A

"They (Fiber Glass Systems) are planning another expansion in Big Spring within a year and are currently hiring another 20 to 25 employees so they can begin working three shifts," Toone said.

Toone also informed commissioners that the Texas Veterans Land Board would be making a decision as to which four communities would be selected as sites for one of four veterans homes in Texas.

Big Spring is vying for desig-

A veterans home in Howard County would mean a 150-bed facility on about 25 acres. The specific location, if Big Spring is selected as the West Texas site, is a site on the south side of the Big Spring State Hospital off of U.S. Hwy 87. The proposed veterans homes would be 65 percent funded by the federal government, leaving state and local entities to fund the remaining 35 percent.

BSISD classes resume Thursday morning

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

Local motorists have had the past few mornings and afternoons to get accustomed to school being back in session because school zone lights have been flashing and the Big Spring Police Department (BSPD) has been enforcing the zones by issuing citations to speeders.

Classes for the Big Spring Independent School District (BSISD) will begin Thursday, which means 20 miles per hour or less (if needed) will become the norm in school zones from 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. on school days.

Motorists who violate school zone laws this year could easily pay in excess of $200 per violation because of new provisions passed by the 75th Texas Legislature this spring.

According to the BSPD, it may seem like a nuisance to slow down, but most school children will have their minds on other things and not the BSPD will be enforcing the school zones with additional personnel as part of it STEP program, which stands for Selected Traffic Enforcement Program.

Motorists are also warned to be alert to crossing guards at most of the city's school zones. State law requires that all vehicle remain stopped while pedestrians (students) crossing the street, meaning motorists should not begin moving their vehicles until all students at a crossing have reached the curb on the other side.

School zones and students are only two things motorists have to look out for - school buses are the other.

According to the BSISD Transportation Department, 22 buses will be running dozens of routes each day with some buses beginning their routes as early as 6:30 a.m.

Motorists who encounter a school bus in a stopped position should assume the bus is loading or unloading and are required by law to stop also,

No questions about budget other than 'where was it?' during public hearing

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

The city's public hearing on the proposed budget for fiscal year 1997-98 lasted all of about two minutes at Tuesday's city council meeting, but one of the questions asked about the $24 million budget was where it was and how could interested residents see it.

According to city officials, the purpose of a public hearing is to allow interested citizens to voice their opinion about the components of a proposed budget, but several residents made calls to the Herald prior to the public hearing to ask where a copy of the budget could be found.

City officials said Tuesday that there were and are copies of the budget available for public inspection at city hall in the Finance Director's office. Following Tuesday's meeting, one audience member said the council should follow the lead of the groups that were involved with the master plan and make copies available of the budget at the library.

whole year to think about it." One of the items included in the 1997-98 budget is a $50 per month across the board raise for city employees.

City Manager Gary Fuqua also told council members that the upcoming budget year will allow the city to use some of its revenue from the hotel/motel tax to refurbish the municipal auditorium.

City officials will also look at setting the 1997-98 tax rate around the time the council begins its formal acceptance of the proposed budget.

The effective tax rate for the city of Big Spring for 1997-98 fiscal year is $0.62191 compared to last year's effective tax rate of $0.56148.

School-zone speeding won't be tolerated by city police this year

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

The start of a new school year means many things, not the least being increased police presence in school zones.

Big Spring schools open Thursday, and Big Spring Police Department officials want motorists to know that speeding will not be tolerated in the area of campuses this year.

BSPD Lt. Terry Chamness said today that local police officers have been authorized to strictly enforce traffic laws pertaining to school zones this year. That means offending drivers will be given even less leeway than usual if they're caught committing an infraction.

On top of that, more police officers than usual will be observing traffic near campuses this year.

At the start of every school year, the police department institutes its Special Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP). As part of the program, at least three officers will work school zones exclusively, while other patrol officers will monitor campuses when possible, 1997-98 budget process with a budget workshop scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday in the administration office.

Hartman's time has been dear since coming on board, dividing his schedule between budget work and gearing up for a new school year. He said, however, that not much is expected to change, budget-wise, from the preceding fiscal year.

His biggest concern right now is that he has received conflicting tax valuation reports from Howard County tax the appraisal office and the state comptroller. The county office has listed the CISD tax roll at $152 million - $8 million more than last year - while the state comptroller listed the district's valuations at $143 million, a $1 million drop from 1996-97 figures

Once a final valuation figure is established, however, the new budget should closely resemble the old package, with the exception of $150,000 in state-mandated teacher pay raises. Hartman said that state revenue to reimburse the district for those raises will fall short by about $100,000.

"Everything else should be the same," Hartman said. "I don't look for any big changes, other than the salaries.

At Forsan, the budget details have been finalized, now all that's left to do is set a tax rate for the new package.

FISD trustees last week adopted a $4.12 million budget for the 1997-98 school year, an increase of $77,000 in expenditures from the previous year.

That increase is more than accounted for by $145,000 in teacher raises. White said trustees were able to trim some areas of the budget - such as data processing costs - to bring costs down to the final total.

Stable expenditures, plus a $14 million increase in tax valuations, means the district's tax rate should remain at $1.405 year, superintendent this George White said.

Trustees will formally adopt a new tax rate sometime after Sept. 1, White said.

The other question concerning the budget came from a resident concerned about the city's available operating capital during the course of a year.

"I'd like for the council to consider raising taxes next year so the city will have money to operate," Gail Earls said. "I know that's something you don't like to do, but you have a city was $406,951,876. This year's adjusted tax base is $397,503,372.

For the 1996-97 budget year, the council approved a 4-cent tax decrease from 65 cents per $100 valuation to 61 cents per $100 valuation.

The tax decrease for the 1996-97 fiscal year was the fourth consecutive tax reduction for Big Spring residents due largely to the $57 million increase in the city's assessed value during 1995 and 1996

According to Finance Director Tom Ferguson, the council will have it first reading of an ordinance to accept the proposed budget on Sept. 9 and a second reading on Sept 23.

Commissioners to gather Thursday to continue working on new budget

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioners will convene at 1:30 p.m. Thursday to continue their task of hammering out a budget for the 1997-98 fiscal vear

Commissioners have the county's effective tax rate ($0.46471) for the 1997-98 fiscal year, but have yet to set the tax rate for the next fiscal year.

"We want to try to tie up a couple of loose ends as far as budget items are concerned and then try to determine a tax rate," County Judge Ben Lockhart said. "We won't set the tax rate Thursday but we want to see where we are.'

According to Lockhart, the commissioners' court would like to have everything in order within the next several days leaving only the public hearing on the budget and the formal acceptance of the budget and setting the tax rate in September.

Two areas commissioners have looked at this week involved the workload in the District Clerk's office and a digital booking system for the Howard County Sheriff's Office. District Clerk Glenda Brasel told commissioners earlier this week that she could use some additional help.

"I would like another deputy to handle child support cases from beginning to end," Brasel said. "This would also include filing protective orders."

Commissioners approved creating a new position for the district clerk's office as long as additional revenue can be generated to justify the position.

According to Brasel, collecting child support as well as the many other different fees her office collects is a big problem at times.

As far as filing protective orders pertaining to child support cases, it is a revenue generating practice for the county. but collecting fees in general is a problem and adding a new deputy to the district clerk's office would alleviate some of the pressure on the current staff, according to Brasel.

Last year, the district clerk's office collected $952,977.31 in civil fees alone, which are added to the county's general fund.

Commissioners agree that a new deputy along with more pressure from the district attorney's office and county attorney's office in the form of vari ous types of warnings, threats of revocation or even contempt of court can help increase the rate of collections.

According to County Auditor Jackie Olson, there needs to be more communication where collecting fees is concerned.

The digital booking system approved by commissioners for the Sheriff's office will cost about $14,000 and will link the Sheriff's office with the Big Spring Police Department (BSPD).

Last month, the Big Spring City Council also accepted a bid of almost $13,000 from ALH Computers to provide the Big Spring Police Department (BSPD) with the same type of digital booking system.

According to BSPD Lt. Terry Chamness, the booking system will link the booking records of the police department and the sheriff's office, which should making processing prisoners much easier."

TYLER (AP) — Pearl has astonishing financial clout for a basset hound.

The 4-year-old dog, owned by Jay Bearden of Tyler, received a "by invitation only" application for a credit card from MBNA, a Wilmington, Del.based bank.

The application, which was contingent on a credit check. offered the dog a Visa platinum card with a credit limit as high as $100,000.

MBNA sent a follow-up letter about one month later, wondering why Pearl hadn't taken advantage of the offer.

But Bearden, an assistant vice president of Citizens State Bank in Tyler and a stickler for credit risks, refused Pearl a chance to go platinum. He wanted the dog to stay in the back yard.

It's not the first Bearden's two dogs have received such offers. Bearden blames his mother, who likes to put the dogs on mailing lists. One of them has been offered $50 credit from a warehouse store.

"Probably the best one was a boat dealership offering Pearl a test drive on Lake Palestine,' he said.

MBNA spokesman Brian Dalphon said this was the first time he can recall that one of the bank's credit applications has been sent to a four-legged addressee. He was doubtful, however, that Pearl's application would have survived the screening process.

"We are very thorough in our credit checks," he said.

Board takes first action ever against nursing home administrator; then probates suspension so she can keep working in industry

The Texas Board of Nursing Facility Administrators, whose duties will be turned over to another state agency at the end of the month, on Tuesday placed an administrator who had worked at a care center in Rosebud on six months' probation.

more than 100 cases rather than impose discipline on administrators accused of running problem homes. It also proposed issuing two letters of reprimand and revoking the license of one administrator with two complaints. The disciplinary actions, however, are subject to the appeals process.

According to the Austin American-Statesman, the cases involved:

DALLAS (AP) - A regulatory board, where four people died after staff criticized for a lack of action and in members failed to notify a doctor the waning weeks of its existence, has when the residents' health took a turn taken its first disciplinary measure for the worse. The Fairview Nursing against a nursing home administrator: Home in Bonham had so many lifethreatening problems that a trustee had to take over in 1993.

At the same time, the board closed accused of running a nursing home where residents had severe bed sores and were bathed only sporadically.

The new Department of Human Services office taking over regulation of the state's 2,700 nursing home administrators cannot reopen the closed cases unless new evidence is presented, officials said.

"Those cases, in our opinion, did not violate the rules of the Nursing Facility Administrators Board," said -An administrator who ran a home Mike Sims, a Waco nursing home did not return a call from The administrator and chairman of the Associated Press on Tuesday not problems out there, but they did not violate the rules." The board did act to suspend for six months the license of Lisa Erskine, who investigators found was negligent or incompetent in her duties while she worked at Heritage House in Rosebud in October 1994. However, the suspension was probated for six months and she can still work as an administrator. Erskine was cited for failing to provide a safe, clean environment; failing to ensure that resident call systems were functioning adequately; and for failing to ensure the home kept emergency, dangerous drugs in locked storage, said JoAnn Duda, the board's attorney.

Erskine, who is currently an administrator at Manor Oaks Nursing Center in Rockdale, said she had no comment. The administrator at Heritage House

The Texas Legislature eliminated the board after hearing about widespread problems, including the board's inability to take action against administrators, it was supposed to govern.

The American-Statesman preported last September that the board had failed to discipline any nursing home administrators from September 1993 through August 1996 despite hundreds of complaints filed against administrators.

In summing up the board's work since September 1993, Bobby Lane, the board's interim executive director, said the board has proposed 11 revocations, 15 letters of reprimand, seven six-month suspensions, one 18-month suspension, one suspension without a specified time limit and three voluntary surrenders of licensing. Dozens of other cases are pending further investigation.

However, the action against Erskine to be very effective," she said.

was the board's first in four years. Lane cautioned that the figures are subject to change until they can be verified

Lucille Gropp, who is on the board of directors of Texas Advocates for Nursing Home Residents, said she was not surprised that the board only acted to put one administrator on probation.

"I wouldn't expect them to change at the end, a flurry of activity at the end," said Gropp, whose mother died recently after spending nine years in a nursing home.

Janet Shafer Boyanton, who is on the group's board of advisers, said allowing nursing home administrators to police themselves has not worked well. Five of the nine board members are nursing home administrators.

In a memo, Martin told members to support striking UPS workers by targeting replacement drivers. Bradford and Mayor Bob Lanier denounced the move as renegade.

The real Air Force One vs. the one in the movie

By ANN MCFEATTERS

Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON - Yes, I admit it. I ran to the theater to see Harrison Ford in "Air Force One," this summer's blockbuster.

Like everyone who's ridden on the real Air Force One, I was awed by the size and marvels of the plane in the movie. Even more so since a visit to the Air Force Museum at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio this summer confirmed the tiny dowdiness of the planes that carried Truman, Eisenhower and FDR. The premise of "Air Force One," the movie, is that Russian terrorists, posing as a Russian TV crew, get on the president's plane with the help of a traitorous Secret Service agent, as the plane is leaving Moscow, Harrison Ford plays says he saw it twice. (As far as he knows, he says, his plane, first flown in by former President Bush, doesn't have an escape pod like the movie version does.) He also says he authorized a tour of the real plane for Ford and his entourage while vacationing in Wyoming and even helped persuade Glenn Close to star in the movie as the loyal vice president.

So what's it like on the real Air Force One?

The designation Air Force One applies to any Air Force plane the president is riding the layout of the movie plane is correct.

The color scheme is the same. There is a conference room (that seats eight, not several dozen). There are seven lavatories, fax machines, cots for off-duty pilots, TV screens, digital clocks, comfortably padded reclining seats in cabins for senior staff and many VCRs. Ironically, one of the movies taken on board the first time Bush flew on board the real Air Force One was "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," starring Harrison Ford.

The president has a private office with a wooden desk and swivel leather chair, and the Clintons have a private bedroom with twin couches that convert to beds, and a shower. There is a medical room

Security is tight around Air Force One, which is guarded night and day, but the 70 passengers, including 13 journalists who fly in the rear of the plane, and 23 crew members are not checked by thumbprint as they get on board as they were in the movie. And no longer are foreign journalists permitted to fly on the president's plane.

The real issue is why don't we have a president who can bounce heads together the way Ford does in the movie? And wield a gun and fly a jet and hang by a fingernail on the back of a plane at 15,000 feet and figure out from a manual how to use a cell phonetat 0,000 feet over nazaknstan. And prompt the Russians to act really fast and not blow up when somebody tells him the score of the game he taped to watch later. Harrison Ford for president? It's not as if we've never had an actor in the Oval Office before. Movies and real life meet so often that the line between them for millions of people is blurred.

INS problems are not new, of course. The agency is frequently criticized by Congress, business leaders and others for one failure or another.

What is surprising is the solution recommended to fix the INS' problems. The U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform studied the INS and concluded that the best solution is to abolish it.

If that s what it takes to properly perform INS duties, then the administration and Congress should take the unusual step and dismantle the agency. But if the federal advisory panel's recommendation can spur Congress to provide the needed resources and INS officials to fix their problems, then breaking up the agency will not be necessary

The recommendation to abolish the INS and reassign its varied missions to other agencies was not done to save tax dollars as much as it was an attempt to properly perform the duties now poorly performed by the INS.

The plan calls for the Justice Department, INS' current boss, to retain the responsibility for border control and deportation of illegal aliens.

The Labor Department is recommended to enforce the rules regarding foreign employment.

And the State Department is recommended to provide immigration benefits and services, including citizenship requests. That function fits nicely with the department's current responsibility to provide visas at overseas embassies

The immigration reform panel reported that the INS suffers from "mission overload.'

Chronic INS problems include the agency's inability to cope with requests for citizenship or to come up with a system that can sort out lawabiding entrants from criminals.

The INS typically is incapable of properly servicing legal immigrants, who often wait years for their papering the steady stream of illegal immigrants from pouring across the border.

American taxpavers just want these functions done right. If the INS can't shape up by the time Congress takes up the next budget, then the panel's recommendation should be adopted. THE WACO TRIBUNE-HERALD

It's one thing to post a guardian at the henhouse. but quite another to post a fox with an attitude

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock has appointed state Sen. Chris Harris, R-Arlington, to the Sunset Advisory Commission that will determine the fate of more than 20 state agencies, one of which Harris has made a target of his own political designs: the attorney general's child-support enforcement division.

Harris has been waging a testy war of wills against Democratic Attorney General Dan Morales for at least a couple of years. The senator sought unsuccessfully in the last session to strip his political nemesis of the program and create a new agency to enforce child-support payments.

No one, including Morales, is completely satisfied with the performance of the program to achieve the complex, frustrating goals of locating deadbeat parents, thousands of them deliberately evading detection, and compelling them to support their dependent children. But the problem is nationwide in scope, and Morales persuasively defends his agency's accomplishments by pointing to several states that have consulted the Texas program as a successful model

No aspect of state government should be above scrutiny, and the child-support effort should receive a thorough yet fair examination. Harris, who has a long. determined history of antagonism against Morales and his conduct of the program, should make certain that he checks his political cudgel at the hearing room door.

President James Marshall in an astonishing display of derring do.

All plausible if you forget the midair rescue attempt, the comings and goings by parachute, the fact that most of the technological wizardry worked as it is supposed to.

Of course, even though it was built somewhat to scale and tailored after news pictures shown on TV (plans and security features of Air Force One are top secret), Harrison Ford's plane seems roomier than the Pentagon, more comfortable on, but it's usually one of two 225-foot Boeing 747-200s that cost $626 million and were delivered in 1990 and 1991. Also, there are five 707s, several C-9s and Gulfstreams for the use of the president. All are part of the 89th Airlift Wing based at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland.

The real plane is surprisingly similar to the movie version, albeit more cramped. While it's not quite as true to life as Michael Douglas' "American President" was in representing the inside of the White House,

There is space for Secret Service agents to keep their guns but it's not a full arsenal as in the movie. And the real plane has no parachute ramp or even parachutes.

The real plane has 85 telephones and the president can often get live TV feeds by satellite. He can make phone calls anywhere in the world or to astronauts in space or admirals in submarines.

There are 2,000 meals aboard and in-flight refueling is possible after 7,140 miles, so the plane could stay aloft for a week, although it's never been businesses fight for survival as brunt of UPS strike hits

NEW YORK (AP) - With the United Parcel Service and strik* ing Teamsters digging in for a potentially long standoff, small businesses with small margins for losses say their very sur-vival is on the line.

"Now, we're starting to get a little nervous," said Lorretta Kaminsky, a Buffalo, N.Y., gourmet chocolate maker who relies on UPS for nearly all her shipments. "A small company like myself, it can completely cripple once it goes into September."

That's when the crucial busy holiday season begins for her Lou-Retta's Custom Chocolates. She pledged to figure out a way to get her shipments out, but for some small businesses it's already too late.

"My business is gone. It's over and I can't hold out any-more," said Susan Laing, who Tuesday cleaned out her Postal Center USA business in Milford, Conn. She closed the mailing service franchise she opened three years ago because UPS shipments made up a crucial part of her business.

"It's not mere hyperbole to suggest that your immediate intervention can save a great number of small businesses from shutting down or having to lay off workers in order to survive this strike," Sharon Miller, chairwoman of the Washington-based policy group National Small Business United, said Tuesday in a letter to President Clinton.

In Lebanon, Ore., Research Mannikins, a company that makes taxidermy supplies, laid off 30 employees — half its work force - on Monday. Tom Loomis, the company's operations manager, said business is down as much as 40 percent because of the strike.

UPS says customers have called saying they are being forced to cut shifts and workers. and that the company already expects to make 15,000 layoffs because of permanently lost business. It's been operating at work force.

The Teamsters dismissed the layoff comment as a ploy to scare strikers. UPS wants President Clinton to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act, but the White House has maintained that the strike doesn't threaten the nation's safety and health - the standard for such intervention. The administration has urged the two sides to resume negotiations in the stalemate over the company's heavy use of part-time employees, proposed pension fund changes, and other issues.

UPS competitors say they can't take up all the slack immediately and several say they are besieged by UPS customers eager to sign up. Some local post offices across the country are hiring temporary workers and they and other competitors such as FedEx say their employees are working long hours to try to keep up.

Lobster Gram, a Chicagobased company that ships live lobster dinners for gifts, has begun testing the shipping lobsters arrived dead because of backlogs that began just before the UPS walkout. The company had contracts with both UPS and FedEx, but this week resumed only limited shipments, after suspending all for a week.

"We lost thousands and thousands of dollars last week," said Dan Zawacki, the company's president. "And obviously, your customers don't like it when they get dead lobsters."

Prosecutors: Students paid up to $9,000 to cheat on graduate school exams NEW YORK (AP) - Eight peo- they were inscribed in code on ple were charged Tuesday with helping people cheat on three graduate school entrance exams taken by 1.4 million people annually by placing the correct answers on pencils before each test.

The alleged ringleader, Po Chieng Ma, 45, of Arcadia, Calif., - also known as George Kobayashi - was charged along with seven others with one count of conspiracy and 70 counts of mail fraud. He had been charged before in the case.

The indictment claimed that Ma and his staff organized the test-cheating scheme for nearly every test date between June 1993 and October 1996 for the Graduate Management Admissions Test, Graduate Record Exam and Test of English as a Foreign Language.

Ma was arrested on Oct. 26, when postal inspectors raided his offices and broke up a scam that allowed test takers to pay between $2,000 and $9,000 to cheat in Los Angeles, New York or Chicago, court papers showed.

Ma was accused of paying experts to take the tests under assumed names in New York and then phoning the correct answers to Los Angeles, where pencils. The pencils were then issued to students who had been flown to Los Angeles to take the tests, investigators aid.

The scheme depended on the time difference between the East and West coasts and the fact that the standardized tests are administered nationally on the same day, investigators said.

If convicted, the eight organizers could face up to five years in prison on each of the 71 counts.

During a raid in Los Angeles, investigators found documents with several hundred names that appeared to be students who were planning to use or at least had seriously inquired about Ma's test-cheating services, Leung said.

Many students who were interviewed by investigators admitted their roles and were not arrested but most of those who were charged failed to disclose their roles fully, prosecutors said in a release.

In all, 12 test takers from around the country have been charged with conspiracy for allegedly using the pencils. They each face up to five years in prison.

It might be said that Big Spring resident Roxie McDaniel sees life in shades of black and red.

The local mother of two, a Texas Tech University graduate, has such a fondness for her alma mater that she still buys its merchandise, goes to sports events and shares her pride with others.

"I've got a long family tradition with Tech," McDaniel said. She added that her great uncle was first in line to register when the school opened, other family members also attended there, and now McDaniel's kids, ages 7 and 10, are already seeing the double-T logo in their futures.

That's one reason McDaniel wants other area residents who are graduates, former students and friends of Texas Tech to get together. She and Stephanie Putnik, field representative for the ex-students association, are planning a gathering Sept. 30 at Big Spring Country Club, and hope it will lead to the formation of a Tech-Exes Association in the local area.

"We would like to see a lot of people come out and enjoy themselves at the dinner," said Putnik. "We're hoping it will graduates of Tech were on record in Howard. Martin and Glasscock counties.

Invitations to the dinner are going out to alumni in the area. but friends and former students of Texas Tech are welcome to attend the event as well.

The evening begins with a 6:30 p.m. social time, followed by dinner at 7 p.m. and the program

Cost is $20 per person for the dinner and a program with Chancellor John Montford and other Tech officials.

Reservations should be made by Sept. 22 with payment to Roxie McDaniel, P.O. Box 2801, Big Spring, TX 79721. Checks should be made payable to: TTESA, Big Spring Chapter.

Schools release free lunch information

BIG SPRING INDEPEN-DENT SCHOOL DISTRICT announces its policy for providing free and reduced-price meals for children served under the National School Lunch and Breakfast Program. The policy can be reviewed by any interested party in the central office located at 708 E. 11th place.

The household size and income criteria identified in the chart will be used to determine eligibility for free and reduced-price benefits. Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced-price meals. Foster children who are the legal responsibility of a welfare agency or court may also be eligible for benefits regardless of

Insulation improves resale value

(NAPS) One of the easiest ways to make your house more comfortable in heat and cold is also a way to increase its resale value. Using and maintaining the proper amount of insulation will serve you in both goals. Use these tips when adding insulation to your home:

•Use a ruler in your attic to measure the amount of insulation currently installed. If you have six inches or less, you need more.

•To check sidewalls, press your hand on the wall. If it feels cold in winter and hot in summer, it may need more insulation.

•Check under floors and in unheated spaces. If the floor feels cold to bare feet in the winter, adding more insulation will make it more comfortable.

TIPS FOR LIVING

Application forms are being distributed to all households with a letter informing household of the availability of free and reduced-price meals for their children. Applications also are available at the principal's office in each school. To apply for free and reduced-price meals, households must fill out the application and return it to the school. For school officials to determine eligibility for free and reduced-price benefits, households receiving food stamps or AFDC only have to list their child's name and food stamp or AFDC case number. An adult household member must sign the application.

Households that do not list a food stamp or AFDC case number must list the names of all household members, the amount and source of the income received by each household member and the social security number of the adult household member who signs the application. If the adult who, signs the application does not have a social security number, the household member must indicate that a social security number is not available by writing the word "none." The applications must be signed by an adult household member. To get free or reduced-price meals for your children, you must complete an application and return it to the school. We cannot approve an application that is not complete.

How to Apply:

If you now get food stamps or AFDC/TANF for the children you are applying for, the application must have the children's names, a food stamp or AFDC/TANF case number for each child, and the signature of an adult household member. If you are applying for a foster child, the application must have the child's name, the child's "personal use" income, and an adult signature. If you do not list a food stamp or AFDC/TANF case number for all children you are applying for, then the application must have the children's names, the names of all household members, the amount of income each person got last month and where it cam from, the signature of an adult household member, and that adult's social security number or the word "none" if the adult does not have a social security number.

Verification: Your eligibility may be checked at any time during the school year. School officials may ask you to send papers showing that your children should get free or reducedprice meals.

BOSTON — Former President George Bush arrived at Fenway Park too late to see the Rangers score their first runs, and he left too early to see their last.

Still. he saw Texas score plenty Tuesday night in a 12-2 victory over Boston.

"I could give you a list of what went wrong, but it would take too much time." said Red Sox starter Aaron Sele (11-9), who gave up seven earned runs on eight hits in two-plus innings. "I threw a good pitch and they hit it for a single. I threw a bad pitch, and they hit it for a double."

special guest — whose son, Texas Gov. George W. Bush, also happens to be a minority owner of the team - by routing the Red Sox for the second straight night.

"I'm from Kansas, I don't meet many people like that. I've never even met Bob (Dole)," said Texas designated hitter Lee Stevens, who had three of the team's 17 hits. "That was pretty cool, though. It's not every day you get to meet a former president.

Bobby Witt (11-8) snapped a personal four-game losing streak with his third complete game - and the Rangers' second in as many days - as Texas improved to 5-0 at Fenway Park this

The Rangers showed off for their year. Fernando Tatis had four hits, president on their way to the on-deck and two walks, striking out six to three runs and four RBIs, and Tom Goodwin had three hits and three RBIs.

By the time Bush and acting Massachusetts Gov. Paul Cellucci took their seats next to the Texas dugout in the top of the second inning, it was already 2-0. The Rangers added two in the second. five in the third and one in the fourth before John Valentin's RBI single in the fifth spoiled Witt's shutout bid.

By the time Bush left in the sixth – getting a round of applause from the crowd of 26,213 - it was 10-1.

circle; first baseman Will Clark pointed to Bush on his way to striking out in the fourth.

But Rangers manager Johnny Oates - who's met the Queen of England and two U.S. presidents - said that Stevens committed a major faux pas by shaking Bush's hand while wearing a batting glove.

"I said, 'Lee, don't do that to the president. You don't shake the president's hand with a pine tarred glove on,"' Oates said. "I think that's common sense.'

It was about the only thing Oates During the game, some players had to worry about during the game, waved or chatted with the former as Witt allowed two runs on 10 hits snap a personal four-game losing streak.

Texas opened the game with three consecutive singles capped by Rusty Greer's RBI hit, followed one out later by Clark's sacrifice fly. In the second, Stevens led off with a double and scored on Tatis' double. One out later, Goodwin doubled to make it 4-0.

The Rangers sent seven men to the plate in the third before their first out, thanks in part to two Red Sox errors. Stevens hit a two-run single, Tatis had a two-run double and Goodwin drove in another run when first baseman Mo Vaughn waved at his hard grounder down the line.

AL Central teams come up big over foes from AL West

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a good night for the AL Central against the AL West.

The Chicago White Sox continued to hang in the division race with an 8-5 victory over Anaheim, while Milwaukee also remained in contention after beating Seattle 5-3 Tuesday night.

Before the White Sox traded three quality pitchers to San Francisco last week, team chairman Jerry Reinsdorf said anyone who thought the White Sox could catch Cleveland was crazy.

Chicago is just three games back in the Central with six weeks left.

'We're not done. We believe in ourselves," said Jamie Navarro (9-10), who allowed seven hits in seven innings for his 100th career victory, just his third since the All-Star break.

"We've got to have a good homestand. We've got a chance to catch Cleveland. ... What Jerry says or what they do with the team is their problem. We can't worry about Wilson Alvarez, Robert Hernandez, Danny Darwin and Harold Baines because they're gone,' Navarro said.

MAJOR LEAGUES

with Cleveland.

Milwaukee rookie Steve Woodard reversed a pounding by Seattle this month and overcame Ken Griffey Jr.'s 37th home run.

Woodard (2-1) allowed only four hits in seven innings. He struck out six, walked one and gave up solo homers to Griffey and Russ Davis.

Woodard, 22, was tagged for six runs in two innings by the Mariners in a 14-4 loss in Milwaukee on Aug. 2.

"I think the first time was more intimidating," Woodard said. Now, I've kind of adjusted to it a little bit and I can't be afraid of them."

Doug Jones got three outs for his 24th save.

Mike Matheny, Milwaukee's No. 9 hitter, hit a three-run homer in the second against Jeff Fassero (11-7), who had won three straight decisions.

Woods' teacher, Butch Harmon, now 53, learned the game there, beginning when he was no taller than a 5-iron. And the man who taught Butch, Claude Harmon, knew the place better than anyone.

Nearly a decade after his death, the man who fathered four teaching pros and taught them all himself still holds the scoring record on both the East or West courses: a matching pair of 61s.

At his pretournament news conference, someone asked Woods the most important advice the teacher gave the pupil.

"Overall," he said, "I'd guess it was to stay below the hole at all costs.'

Other topics of discussion included the steep bunkers, the deceiving wind conditions and uneven lies, but the conversation usually meandered back to the small, severely contoured greens. That was by design.

"He keeps harping on me the entire time," Woods said, referring to Harmon and reciting the line like the harried college student he could have been, "Play to the fat side and you'll feel comfortable.

Getting to the fat side of the green is another lesson, taught in a different classroom. That was why Harmon had Woods out on the course the past few days, playing balls from some places the TV, cameras have yet to discover, toward pin placements the tournament committee won't reveal until Sunday. But Harmon knew where everything was — or would be just the same.

"Little secrets," he called · them, things he learned "over all these years myself and from my dad."

Those bits of local knowledge aside, the question of how much Butch Harmon, or any other teaching pro, can do for Tiger Woods this weekend is part of an ongoing debate on the PGA Tour. None of the players dispute that swing doctors can heal the little things that go wrong from time to time. How much they actually accomplish beyond that depends on who you talk to.

Claude Harmon taught kings and presidents. He was one of the most prominent teaching pros of his day, not to mention a tour-caliber player who

Athletes' right-to-work rule could be delayed by board of presidents

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. -The whole idea sounds so deceptively simple: Let NCAA athletes have part-time jobs so they can earn a few extra bucks just like any other college kid.

The problem is, athletes are not like other college kids. They're the main ingredients in a cut-throat, multibillion-dollar sports entertainment industry. Letting them hold part-time jobs, which NCAA schools voted narrowly to do last January, opens the door to cheating, unfair advantages and a nightmare of administrative paperwork, opponents say.

As a result, a ruling body of college presidents is expected today to announce a one-year delay in Proposition 62, passed

NCAA last January and widely hailed as a rare victory for athletes who have traditionally not had a voice in NCAA policy An announcement by the NCAA board of directors, a newly formed group of 15 college presidents, was expected in a teleconference following a two-day meeting in Atlanta.

A survey of Division I presidents indicated a strong preference for delaying the rule, which was passed after a long and spirited debate among convention delegates.

Beginning Aug. 31, Proposition 62 would allow Division I athletes to work part-time so long as they do not earn more than the difference between the value of their scholarship and their school's estimated full cost of attendance

Generally, this would range between $1,000 and $2,500.

Most Division I and Division I-A conferences were backing a delay

"There is strong sentiment to provide windows of opportunity for the student-athletes." Big 12 commissioner Steve Hatchell said. "But it's clear it's one thing to vote in the rule, and another to vote in this legislation without restrictions and without giving some thought to it

"It's been left open to just enormous interpretations. How much can you work? What kind of jobs? How do you verify the jobs? And those are just a few of the questions."

In other AL games, it was Texas 12, Boston 2; Cleveland 7, Detroit 4; Kansas City 6, N.Y. Yankees 4: Baltimore 8, Oakland 0; and Toronto 9, Minnesota 1.

In National League games, Pittsburgh rallied to beat Atlanta 5-2, San Diego beat Montreal 6-4, Philadelphia defeated Colorado 5-0, Houston trounced Florida 13-2, St. Louis downed New York 5-2, Chicago beat Los Angeles 4-2 and San Francisco defeated Cincinnati 7-3.

Albert Belle's second homer of the game and 23rd of the season was a two-run shot capping a three-run seventh inning against Jason Dickson (11-5), who lost for the first time since June 26.

Belle hit a solo shot in the second, his first homer since July 18, ending a 21-game homerless streak — two short of his longest drought while Please see ROUNDUP, page 5B

"We needed somebody to pick us up," Matheny said. "We've been having a rough time on the West Coast for some reason. Maybe this will be a spark to get us going to do something good.

Seattle, tied with Anaheim atop the AL West, was 4-4 on its homestand. The Mariners now go on a six-game road trip to Baltimore and Chicago.

"We need to play well," Seattle manager Lou Piniella said. "Maybe the road trip will bring better success.'

Indians 7, Tigers 4

At Cleveland, Manny Ramirez hit his 18th homer in a threerun fourth as the Indians won for only the ninth time in 26 games.

David Justice was 3-for-3, including a two-run double in the first, improving to 11-for-18 with three homers and eight RBIs in five games.

Eric Plunk (4-3) worked two perfect innings for the victory, and Jose Mesa pitched the ninth for his fifth save.

Casillas hopes to inspire Hispanic youth with film

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN - Tony Casillas, whom Dallas Cowboys coach Barry Switzer calls "the oldest and lightest" defensive tackle in the NFL, smiles at the thought of this being his last training camp.

Casillas, who will turn 34 in October, has said this season — his 12th — will be his last.

"I'm lucky I'm still holding together, frankly," said Casillas, who missed the first four games of 1995 with the New York Jets due to a herniated disc in his back. "This is it.'

Casillas, who played college ball at Oklahoma under Switzer, says his next move will likely be to work on a film about his life with the target audience being Hispanic youth. He also is working on a book, in Spanish, along the same lines.

"There's not a whole lot of Hispanics in the NFL," Casillas said. "It's got some good potential because of people in Texas and in South Texas. It's aimed more toward, not education, but toward kids to give them incentive to go on and make their life better.

COWBOYS NOTES

"Gang-related violence, as bad as it's gotten, there is a lot of Hispanic kids involved in that," he added. "It was something I thought I could do to hopefully try and be an inspirational thing.

"It's my way of giving something back. I've talked to a couple people and we've talked about doing it in the first of 1998.'

As far as whether he's still got the same fire on the field as when he played for the Cowboys in their Super Bowl years in 1992 and 1993, defensive coordinator Dave Campo says yes.

"I love him because he's a fighter," Campo said. "That's probably his biggest strength.

"He's gonna battle you for whatever number of snaps he's in there. You are going to get everything he's got. And that to me is, a lot of times, more important than whether or not a guy is tremendously talented.'

Campo said he doesn't expect Casillas to go more than 20 to 25 snaps a game and acknowledges that his age and his tackles go, are a factor.

"There's going to be times when he does get overpowered, but he's going to make up for that in other ways," Campo said. "He's a lot like Russell Maryland in that type of situation.

"They play so hard, they end up making plays. That's what's important to me.

IMAGE BUILDING: The Cowboys have launched another effort to bring positive press to the team.

Safety Brock Marion on Tuesday debuted a 30-second television public service announcement promoting the Texas Attorney General's child support 'positive fatherhood campaign.

Marion, who is married with three children, is shown in the ad with his wife, Keri, and children, Brianna, Olivia and Brock Jr., in Texas Stadium. "I am very pleased to be a part of the Attorney General's fatherhood campaign," Marion said. "Winning on the field is great, but there is nothing more important than winning at home with your kids."

Marion, who has no personal experismall size (6-3, 278) as far as defensive ence with having needed to receive or pay child support, was recruited by the team's public relations department to work with Attorney General Dan Morales' office.

Morales said the positive fatherhood campaign is an attempt at encouraging voluntary compliance among fathers who owe child support.

"It is my hope that the public service announcement will encourage more fathers to be positive and active role models to their children," Morales said. Our message is that child support is more than money.

"It is spending time with your children, encouraging them, guiding them and being an active presence in their lives.'

INJURED BACK? WHAT INJURED BACK?: Any questions about the effectiveness of a steroid injection to remedy the bulging disc in Deion Sanders' lower back was answered by Sanders' baseball bat Monday night.

Sanders sent the first pitch of San Francisco's Pat Rapp over the fence for a home run, starting the Cincinnati Reds toward their third straight victory.

Tiger's view of a grand slam has changed since Masters

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MAMARONECK, N.Y. - As he neared victory in the British Open, Justin Leonard plopped a routine drive onto a fairway at Royal Troon and a distinctly American voiced bellowed, "You da man!'

A British TV commentator considered Leonard's accomplishment of merely hitting a fairway, weighed it against the enthusiastic remark and observed: "Well, now, it's taken us four days, but finally an idiot has shown up."

Idiots never seem to be in short supply. It's dominant golfers that seem to have become an endangered species. Or perhaps there are just so many excellent golfers that the era of the dominant golfer if gone for good.

Perhaps the call of the golf-crazed fan shouldn't be "You da man!" but rather "Who da man?"

Even with the arrival of Tiger Woods, the game is searching for the one player or group of players who contend in every major. And perhaps the runaway victory by Woods in the Masters created unrealistic expectations.

"Dominate?" Woods repeated Tuesday when asked if fans underestimated how difficult it is to dominate the majors. "How about just be in contention.

Community pep rally set for Aug. 28

This year's Big Spring High School Community Pep Rally has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Aug. 28 at the Comanche Trail Park amphitheater.

The rally, sponsored by both the Big Spring Steers Booster Club and the Lady Steers Booster Club, will be an opportunity for the public to meet members of the football and volleyball teams and their trainers and managers.

In addition, members of this year's band, cheerleaders, student council and Key Club at BSHS will be introduced to the public.

Reid continues win series at Chouteau

Travis Reid of Coahoma continued his winning ways at the Mid-America Summer Nationals last weekend in Chouteau, Okla., driving his drag boat to the pro limited jet class championship.

Four other local boat owners – Mike Reid, Jimmy Tucker and Bobby Joe Tucker, all of Coahoma, and Robert Sanders of Big Spring traveled to the event which was dually sanctioned by the Southern Drag Boat Association

PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

Perhaps Woods will be Da Man, but since his win at Augusta he was 19th in the U.S. Open and 24th in the British Open and was never a factor.

After the Masters, Woods said the Grand Slam was merely a matter of "winning the right four tournaments."

But as Woods prepared at Winged Foot for his first PGA Championship, the final Grand Slam event in his first year as a professional, he gave a very different assessment. "It's almost next to impossible to win all four," he said.

The recent record bears him out.

The last 12 majors were won by 12 different people and the 31 majors played in the 1990s were won by 24 different people.

starred in one of golf's most memorable David-beats-Goliath scenes when he won the 1948 Masters. For all that, he never attained the fame or fortune already claimed by Butch, the oldest of his four sons.

That may be because the teacher-as-superstar is a relatively new job listing, something that took hold in the public's imagination when Nick Faldo's career took off and his teacher, David Ledbetter, took much of the credit for rebuilding the Englishman's swing top to bottom.

But for every story of a Faldo emerging from swing analysis a more capable and confident competitor, there is a story about someone like Bob Tway, wandering aimlessly from guru to guru for years, glassy-eyed and hesitant all the time, muttering to no one in particular about arcane points of the swing plane.

In that sense, at least, nothing has changed since the first pro charged money for the first lesson. Some students walk away happy and some sad, but all of them with lighter pockets. And so maybe the final word on the value of teachings pros helping playing pros should be Lee Trevino's. He once said, "I'll hire when I find one who can beat me." Those might have been fight-

This will be an unusual year. Creativity and hard work bring many laurels. Be determined about what you want, and you will succeed. You might feel irritated; use this to change what isn't working. Be direct about frustrations. You will be more indulgent than in most years. Use your talents to increase your financial status, especially because you might be inclined to spend more. If you are single, romance buds: however, full bloom might not develop until late winter. If attached, work through your anger with your partner. You might think he is the source, but he triggers what already exists in you. CAPRICORN is very serious!

drove in four runs as Kansas City ended the Yankees' threegame winning streak at New York.

Palmer, who is 10-for-21 with runners in scoring position and has 16 RBIs in 18 games since coming over in a trade with Texas, singled home a run in the fourth, opened the sixth with his 17th homer and hit a go-ahead, two-run double in the seventh.

Mike Perez (2-0), the second of five Royals pitchers, was the winner. Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his eighth save, the 250th of his career.

Palmer's homer in the sixth off David Cone (12-6) tied it 3-3.

Orioles 8, Athletics 0

At Baltimore, Scott Erickson pitched a three-hitter and Rafael Palmeiro had three hits, including a three-run homer for the Orioles Palmeiro's 24th home run highlighted a four-run first inning that boosted Baltimore to its 12th win in 15 games. Oakland has lost 11 of 16.

Both benches emptied in the bottom of the eighth after Oakland pitcher Dane Johnson threw a pitch behind Jeff Reboulet, who voiced his displeasure to catcher Brent Mayne. No punches were thrown, but Reboulet and Mayne were ejected from the game.

Erickson (14-5) struck out eight and walked one in his 11th career shutout. Carlos Reyes (3-4) was the loser.

Blue Jays 9, Twins 1

At Toronto, Roger Clemens became baseball's first 18-game winner as he lowered his ERA to 1.66, best in the majors.

Clemens (18-4) struck out 13. allowed eight hits and walked one in his eighth complete game, tied with teammate Pat Hentgen for most in the AL.

Jacob Brumfield, who entered the game after Otis Nixon was traded to Los Angeles, and Jose Cruz Jr. each hit two-run homers. Shawn Green also homered off Shane Bowers (0-2) as Toronto handed the Twins their fourth straight loss.

child wears the pants in this family.

Abby, I fear that Mark will grow up with no respect for his parents or anyone else. He is already a bully and a bad influence on his younger sister, but I could never tell his parents it's their fault Mark does not behave. And soon, their daughter will follow his example and behave just as badly as Mark does.

I feel terrible that I don't want this child in my home, but it's like entertaining a miniature monster.

I don't want to lose Heather's friendship, but she and her husband need better parenting skills. Abby, how can I get this message across to her without alienating her? — MIFFED AT MARK'S MOM

DEAR MIFFED: Mark wants attention, and he knows how to get it. Tell Heather that she has to discipline her son firmly now, or the boy could be in serious trouble later. Also, find out where and when parenting classes are available and offer her the list. Many colleges, hospitals and YMCAs offer them.

You will be doing your friend a favor, and if she's a real friend, she will thank you.

DEAR ABBY: I have been liv-with his mother anyway. This can we give people who ask (); No(). why he never sees his kids or has them over? - ALMOST NUMBER TWO

DEAR ALMOST: Don't try to defend the indefensible. Although Matt's child support payments are commendable, it takes far more than money to be a good father. His children need time with their dad, and it's not something that can be postponed because it's inconvenient.

Children's values are shaped by the example set by the adults in their lives. Their selfesteem rests on a foundation of knowing they are important to both parents -regardless of whether or not they live under one roof.

'I hope Matt will reconsider his attitude and reorganize his priorities.

While menopause is generally defined as the point 12 months after the last menstrual period (which marks the end of perimenopause and the beginning of postmenopause), there is no standard definition of perimenopause. Some researchers see it as beginning at about age 37 or 38, when the ovaries begin to lose egg-producing follicles at an accelerated rate.Others suggest that it comes later, when the intervals between periods begin to deviate from a woman's normal pattern. This latter definition is used by researchers conducting the Massachusetts Women's Health Study, an observational investigation of more than 2,500 women aged 45 to 55. Their data indicates that, on average, perimenopause begins at age 47.5 and lasts 3.8

years, and menopause occurs between the ages of 50.1 and 51.5. There are many variables in both the age at which women reach perimenopause and the symptoms that may accompany it. While previous generations of women told horror stories about "the change", most modern women view it as just another stage of life, not unlike puberty: you reach it, deal with it, and move on past it. If you are experiencing discomfort, you should speak to your gynecologist about the treatment options available to you. If you need additional information or medical attention, call our office at (915) 522-2222. We're located at the Medical Care Plaza, 1300 Gregg Street every Tuesday, here in Big Spring.

Pirates 5, Braves 2

The Pittsburgh Pirates wrecked Denny Neagle's bid to become the first 17-game winner in the NL, rallying for four runs in the ninth against Mark Wohlers.

Atlanta had won 61 straight games this season when leading after the eighth, and was 133-0 in those spots since May 3, 1996.

A close call on a steal play and a couple of walks set up Turner Ward's two-run single. Later in the inning, Al Martin hit a two-run single off Kerry Ligtenberg, making his major league debut.

Wohlers (4-5) took over to start the ninth with a 2-1 lead and struck out the first batter. Jason Kendall followed with a single and stole second, barely beating the throw Wohlers walked the next two hitters, Dale Sveum and pinchhitter Mark Smith. Ward followed with a single that almost knocked over Wohlers.

Neagle extended his scoreless streak to 26 2-3 innings before Eddie Williams homered in the fourth. Neagle's string was the longest by a Braves pitcher since John Smoltz had 29 straight shutout innings in 1992

Padres 6, Expos 4

Rickey Henderson, whose days in San Diego might be numbered, hit the 250th home run of his career in a win over visiting Montreal.

Henderson is drawing interest from several AL contenders, and a trade could come this week. He went 3-for-5 as he started in right field for the fourth straight game in place of Tony Gwynn, out since having a kidney stone surgically removed Sunday.

Greg Vaughn, who would get the job in left field if Henderson is traded, drove in three runs.
