Couldn't be done window project now 'Settled'

By JOHN H. WALKER

Managing Editor

It was one of those projects that just couldn't be done.

How foolish, thinking the money could be raised to replace all of the windows in the Settles building.

Well, naysayers, look again, because the last window has been purchased and the Quality Glass installation basket is moving up the side of the venerable old hotel in downtown Big Spring.

Long the subject of discussions that always seemed to start with "What do we do with the Settles?," the window replacement project was the idea of local businessman and Big Spring native Tommy Churchwell.

Churchwell has been quick to point out to civic and social clubs, church and school groups alike that he stayed in Big Spring when he might have been able to live elsewhere and make more money.

The reason? Because this was home. It was where he had grown up and it was where he wanted to raise his fami-

Because of those desires, Churchwell studied ways to address the appearance of the Settles.

"The one thing I kept thinking of that would improve the appearance was to replace the windows," he once said. To support his argument, he suggests a look at the building and a comparison with windows out. "There's no argument," he says, smiling broadly.

of floors with windows in against floors

As Churchwell pitched his idea around town, another group was gathering and discussing ideas about things that could be done with the building.

That group, which included former Big Spring mayor Wade Choate and Mel Prather, called itself "Friends of the Settles" and came together with Churchwell to address the windows project on an almost full-time basis.

It was that eight-member group that formulated a plan to attract donations for windows in addition to those solicited by Churchwell as he made his presentation around the community.

Among the efforts was a wine and cheese party in conjunction with the Heritage Museum, which raised monies for another 10 or so windows and allowed for an increased level of public knowledge about the project.

"Our initial goal was to work to get the windows replaced in the hotel," Choate said. "That's not the end point, but just a stopping place on the Settles journey.

Friends of the Settles had an initial goal of getting the building's first two floors to a point where they could be occupied and functional.

Among the possibilities, they said, was to attract a food service to the building and getting the ballrooms and meeting rooms restored to where they could be used for weekly meetings, reunions, dances and the like.

"That's when you start getting life back downtown," Choate, who was mayor when the hotel was still open,

No clowning, Quail's got a new truck

By KATHY GILBERT

For nearly four decades, rodeo clown Quail Dobbs has brought sqeals of delight from young and old alike as he goes through his routine in the rodeo arenas across America.

Places like El Paso, where he's been a fixture for 30 years; Cheyenne's Frontier Days Rodeo, where he's performed for 28 years and Houston, where's he's been a regular for 24 years.

Because of Dobbs' wellknown attire and routine, and because Dodge is a national sponsor of the PRCA, the vehicle manufacturer, through Big Spring's Fiesta Dodge, has provided Dobbs with new threequarter ton turbo diesel quad-cab pickup.

For those who have seen Dobbs in the arena as well as in the cab of the big, white truck, it's almost a comical con-

After all, the diminutive Dobbs stands just 5-feet, 4-inches tall and looks much more at home in the arena in his exploding miniature Model-T that has become his trademark than he does behind the wheel of the big, rumbling Dodge.

As Dobbs winds down a career that has included being one of just three men to work the National Finals Rodeo as both a bullfighter (1972) and Fiesta General Manager Chuck Potts said providing Dobbs with the truck was an easy decision.

"We did it because of our affiliation with the (Big Spring) Cowboy Reunion) rodeo," he explained.

"And Dodge is a national PRCA sponsor."

Dobbs has done some serious road-testing of the vehicle, putting 8,000 miles on it since February.

So far this year he has taken the truck, painted with PRCA barrellman (1978, 1985 and 1988) logos, a Quail Dobbs clown as well as being named the face, and other promotional Coors "Man in the Can" in logos, to rodeos in El Paso, 1985-86, 1990 and 1993 and the Houston, Ardmore, Okla., PRCA Clown of the Year in Jasper, Stephenville, Abilene and Gladewater.

> "I appreciate trading them out with advertising," said Dobbs. "I don't have to buy a truck.

> Potts said the truck, which carries a window sticker of $32,000, is decked out as fancy as Dobbs is when he enters the arena in his trademark red and white polka-dot shirt, baggy pants, bald wig and black hat.

> "It's got electric seats, leather interior, window locks and a CD player," he said.

> Clearly, Quail Dobbs' exit tour of the PRCA will be made in style.

Taxing Question

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Staff Writer

How much attention did you pay to last fall's constitutional amendment election?

Big Spring resident Roy Simmons, founder of Citizens for Tax Reform, paid plenty of attention to the 14 proposals on the ballot and found a loophole that could wreak havoc where the appraised value of residence homesteads for ad valorem taxes is concerned.

While most Texans, including those in Howard County, were paying attention to Amendment Eight (which dealt with home equity lending), Simmons was paying attention to Amendment Two - which read: "the constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to limit the increases in the appraised value of residence homesteads for ad valorem taxation. And to permit a school district to calculate the school property tax freeze applicable to the residence homestead of an elderly person in accordance with the law authorizing the transfer of the school property freeze to a different homestead regardless of whether that law was in effect at the time the person established the person's homestead."

"On Nov. 4, 1997, we were asked to vote for or against Amendment No. 2, which would limit increases in the appraised value of residence homesteads for ad valorem taxation," Simmons said. "Researching the actual amendment, Senate Joint Resolution (SJR) 43, we were amazed at the difference between the ballot wording and the wording of SJR 43. Simmons cited Article VIII

Section 1 of the Constitution of the State of Texas as the basis for his argument that the difference in wording changes the law now on the books. "Subsection (a) Taxation shall be equal and uniform. (b) All tangible property in this state, unless exempt as required by this constitution, " whether owned by natural persons or corporations, other than municipal, shall be taxed in proportion to its value, which shall be ascertained by law."

"Notwithstanding, or canceling, Subsection (a) allows residence homesteads only to be targeted and Subsection (B) allows residence homesteads to be increased in value as necessary to meet legislative needs," Simmons said. 'Comparing Constitution, Simmons said, "No law shall be passed, except by bill, and no bill shall be amended in the passage through either house as to change its original purpose.

"Legislators we have contacted have avoided discussing the problem, and the Attorney General's office declined to comment citing possible conflict of interest," Simmons added. "Author of the resolution, Sen. David Cain's office, indicated this amendment was necessary to the passage of Senate Bill 841. which does place a 10 percent increase on property valuation. But the Constitutional amendment overrides any other bill on the same subject matter."

"Basically, this says our homes will be taxed based on their market value," Simmons said. "I think this passed because a lot of people were paying attention to the home equity issue and because of a lack of publicity." Simmons said he thinks this issue will be among the first items take up by the 76th Texas Legislature in January. "Up until Jan. 1, 1998, local appraisal districts appraised property at market value." Simmons said. "With this now eliminated, the appraisal districts no longer have a standard

"Basically this is a mandate that all appraisal districts must unconstitutionally, Simmons added. "Now appraisers can hold property values at pre-1998 appraisals or raise values a minimum of 10 percent per year since the most recent appraisal."

Simmons said he wants the people of Howard County to consider one question: "Since when does an amendment passed by both houses of the State Legislature override an amendment to the Texas Constitution that was voted on by the people of Texas?"

SWCID dorms get finishing touches

By KATHY GILBERT

The final splashes of paint are being applied to the first-ever new dormitories at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf this week.

"It's getting really close," said Terry Hansen, executive vice president for Howard College. The completion date for the $1,847,558 building is August 9, said Hansen. 'We're feeling good — and they're assuring me it will be done by then.'

The 92-bed dormitory is part of a $3.2 million building package, finalized last year, said Hansen. SWCID received the money from the state legislature. In addition to the dormitory, plans are being drafted for a new activities building and remodeling of the student

A portion of the money was used for technology upgrades this year.

"There is a little bit of ceiling work left to do, then the floor covering begins Friday," said Hansen. "Then they'll follow with fixed furniture over the weekend or early next week."

Electrical switches, plumbing fixtures, shower fixtures will be the next step. All the mechanical systems are already in place, said Hansen. All that remains are "the finishing touches."

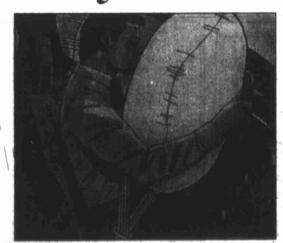

A "major celebration" is planned for the grand opening of these dorms, said Hansen. "The students have lived in the old barracks since the school was opened. This is a nice new building."

By T.E. Jenkins Staff Writer

Safety measures don't always add up, as was evident in the Monday afternoon auto accident that sent 1-year-old Kenneth Hagins to the Scenic Mountain Medical Center emergency room for Hagins suffered a laceration to the hand when the car he was traveling in was struck, deploying the passenger-side airbag. The majority of the pressure from the airbag was directed to the child's hands, which were gripping the front of the car seat he occupied.

The accident occurred Monday when April Gibson, 17, ran the stop sign at the intersection of 13th and Austin. Gibson's 1993 Cavalier was then struck by a 1996 Ford Escort, driven by Amy Castillo, 23. Castillo, though shaken, did not require.medical attention. Hagins received four stitches between the thumb and forefinger, caused by the immense pressure and impact of the airbag. After observation, he was discharged from SMMC.

"The airbag did more damage than it did good." said Castillo, who escaped the accident unscathed. "The car seat was more than enough to protect him from the wreck."

Hagins now joins the ranks of the numerous people who have been injured by automobile airbags. These airbags, now standard on many domestic and foreign cars, deploy at well over 200 mph, leaving little or no room for mistakes.

Results such as these have raised questions as to the overall safety of these airbags, and whether or not they pose a danger to passengers and drivers alike.

Report claims heroin use on rise Cocaine remains drug of choice among Texans

DALLAS (AP) - Heroin use is increasing across Texas, but cocaine and alcohol remain the drugs of choice, according to a soon-to-be released report.

The Dallas Morning News reported today that the number of heroin addicts who sought help at a Dallas referral agency increased rapidly last year. Officials believe that shows just how popular the drug is in

The Greater Dallas Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse reported that in the first four months of 1997, 2.6 percent of the people seeking help named heroin as their primary drug. During the last four months of 1997, that figure climbed to 12.6 percent. "It was absolutely startling," said Brandy Wismer, chief executive officer of the Greater for eight years, I've never seen a trend change like this so quickly. And it has been very persistent; it has not dipped back down at all."

Adolescents and young adults living in the suburbs appear to be largely responsible for the increase, Ms. Wismer said.

"But I don't want to lose the concept that alcohol and crack cocaine are still the most prevalent problems that we have," she said.

From January to June 1997, Parkland hospital had 311 cocaine overdoses, 44 from heroin and 19 from methamphetamines, said Dr. Paul Kolecki, an emergency room physician at Parkland and assistant medical director of the North Texas Poison Center.

"Cocaine is the main drug here," Dr. Kolecki said. "Drug trends are kind of like shopping trends: When something is popular it's hard to get rid of "The heroin dealers couldn't sell in downtown Dallas, so they went out to Plano; at least that's the theory."

Maxwell, a Jane C. researcher with the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, doubts the number of heroin users will ever exceed the number of people abusing alcohol. Heroin does, however, seems to be attracting new users faster than crack.

The commission report, "Heroin Trends in Texas," is scheduled to be released later this week.

Austin, Fort Worth, Houston, Lubbock and San Antonio are seeing an increase in heroin use, while it's remained steady in El Paso, the commission report states.

Analysts believe the Flint strike will last at least through the week, which would nearly halt all of GM's North American production. Workers at the two Flint plants say they are fighting to preserve jobs. GM management, meanwhile, maintains that it must win productivity gains and more flexible work rules if the automaker is to remain competitive in a global market.

GM is trying to cut costs in part by reducing its work force, a goal that places the company at constant odds with the union. The Arlington workers will be forced to struggle because of a layoff they did not cause. Many of them said Tuesday they support the strikers in Michigan.

Highway news is good news

tate Sen. Robert Duncan (R-Lubbock) brought some good news to town last week when he visited the Tuesday Rotary Club as that group's keynote speaker.

Pointing out that the U.S. 87 corridor — the one longespoused by the Transportation Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce as the most logical choice for a major trunk route through West Texas had made the state's listing of the 10 top priority projects, Duncan stated the obvious.

"Big Spring is in a tremendous position because it is at the crossroads of West Texas," he said.

Ironically, the route selected by the Texas Department of Transportation follows that pitched by Big Spring exactly except for the final 90 miles or so.

The U.S. 87 corridor will run from near Dumas, where U.S. 87 enters the Texas Panhandle from New Mexico, and go through Amarillo, Lubbock, Big Spring, San Angelo and on to Junction.

The Big Spring pitch had the last leg as San Angelo to Sonora because of the ever-increasing traffic at the International Crossing at Del Rio/Ciudad Acuna and the importance of U.S. 87 as a NAFTA highway.

Duncan made it clear that he believed there would be increased opportunities for our community because of the trunk designation for U.S. 87.

He also made it clear that the efforts of the transportation committee played a major role in Big Spring being part of that route.

"You guys never quit. You were there from the start and made a sound argument all the way," he said after

Duncan also pointed out that the new Agritech Corridor should be good for Big Spring because Howard County sits squarely in the middle of that corridor, which roughly follows U.S. 87 from Plainview to Big Spring to San Angelo to San Antonio. The purpose of this project is to increase value-added production to West Texas products, such as cotton and wool.

"There's no reason we (Big Spring) can't take the lead on this and be the major players in this project," he said.

We agree.

OTHER VIEWS

The U.S. Supreme Court, in ruling the other day that the Americans With Disabilities Act applies to inmates in state prisons, has thus opened the spigot for a gush of lawsuits and has assured that state taxpayers will have to fork over many millions for major renovations benefiting felons whose chief hardship is the confinement they went out of their way to earn.

All of that might be justified if the ruling had anything much to do with the Constitution that the court is theoretically supposed to be upholding, but you find yourself wondering what constitutional principle is at stake

The justices seemed much taken by the fact that Congress had not specifically excluded prisons in saying state agencies must comply with the law.

The Bill of Rights, however, does not specifically exclude prisoners, and all those rights are to some extent abridged when criminals are incarcer-

Even if Congress had pointedly said that states must take a host of steps for the sake of disabled inmates, it's hard to see how that could have been constitutional.

Congress found its justification for the act in the interstate commerce clause.

By what stretch of the imagination would it facilitate trade between states — the purpose of that clause - to more solicitously accommodate inmates deemed disabled? The Supreme Court's answer was to say this issue was off bounds because it had not been brought up in the lower courts.

Keep in mind, too, that it's not as if the states are making life especially miserable for inmates who happen to fall under some overly broad definition of being handicapped.

In the case the court decided, the complaint was nothing more than that a man with high blood pressure stayed in prison longer than if he had been allowed to participate in a boot camp. (Suppose that he had been so allowed and that he had suffered a heart attack. Guess who then would have sued whom and who probably would have won.) The high court said changes in prison operations and facilities and lower court responses to suits by inmates can and should be limited to what is "reasonable." We'll see.

During the hearing on this case, Justice Clarence Thomas raised the possibility of somebody being sentenced to prison and then claiming the disability of claustrophobia.

He may have thought he was indulging in hyperbole, but some prisoner may very well do just that sometime down the road, and some court may very well follow the "reasonableness" example of the highest court in the land and rule in his favor.

Jack was the kind of guy you love to hate. He was always in a good mood and always had something positive to say. When someone would ask him how he was doing, he would reply, "If I were any better, I would be twins!" He was a unique manager because he had several waiters who had followed him around from restaurant to restaurant.

The reason the waiters followed Jack was because of his attitude. He was a natural motivator. If an employee was having a bad day, Jack was there telling the employee how Seeing this style really made me curious, so one day I went up to Jack and asked him, "I don't get it! You can't be a positive person all of the time.

How do you do it?" Jack replied, "Each morning I wake up and say to myself, Jack, you have two choices today. You can choose to be in a good mood or you can choose to be in a bad mood.' I choose to be in a good mood. Each time something bad happens, I can choose to be a victim or I can choose to learn from it. I choose to learn from it. Every time someone comes to me complaining, I can choose to accept their complaining or I can point out the positive side of life. I choose the positive side of life."

"Yeah, right, it's not that easy," I protested. "Yes it is," Jack said. "Life is all about choices. When you cut away all the junk, every situation is a choice. You choose how you react to situations. You choose how people will affect your mood. You choose to be in a good mood or bad mood. The bottom line: It's your choice how you live life." I reflected on what Jack said.

life instead of reacting to it. Several years later, I heard that Jack did something you are never supposed to do in a restaurant business: he left the back door open one morning and was held up at gunpoint by three armed robbers. While trying to open the safe, his hand, shaking from nervousness, slipped off the combination dial. The robbers panicked and shot him.

Luckily, Jack was found relatively quickly and rushed to the local trauma center. After 18 hours of surgery and weeks of intensive care, Jack was released from the hospital with fragments of the bullets still in his body.

I saw Jack about six months after the accident. When I asked him how he was, he replied, "If I were any better, I'd be twins. Wanna see my scars?" I declined to see his wounds, but did ask him what had gone through his mind as the robbery took place.

I knew I needed to take action."

"What did you do?" I asked. "Well, there was a big, burly nurse shouting questions at me," said Jack. "She asked if I was allergic to anything. 'Yes,' I replied.

The doctors and nurses stopped working as they waited for my reply. I took a deep breath and yelled, 'Bullets!'

Over their laughter, I told them, "I am choosing to live. Operate on me as if I am alive. not dead.'

Garage sales: The new open-air market

By DIANNE KING AKERS

Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — In a society where people come home from work, drive into their garages and push a button to shut the door behind them, garage sales can be a modern-day version of the market days. It offers friends and neighbors an excuse to do more than wave in passing. On a cool spring morning, Diango Doster's family garage sale is on the top of a hill in Barton Hills, a neighborhood tucked behind Zilker Park in 9 South Austin. He has written a. poster in kindergarten phonetics to establish the rules of behavior at this garage sale, and he shoos people away if they block its view to a potential buyer. ## Sure-fire tips for sale success

How to have a garage sale: 1. Plan it for after the first of the month or on the 15th, when people get paid, said Evelyn Martinez, a veteran garage saler. Don't have it at the end of the month when nobody has money.

2. Particulation paper of the will be will be a particular the paper of the will be a particular than the paper of the will be a paper of

3. Price everything. 4. Borrow or rent tables. People do not buy things on the ground, says Allen. They don't like to bend over.

5. Put up lots of signs from all directions. People get lost easily.

Hazel, a matronly white and liver-colored springer spaniel with the sweet expectation of her breed, pads around and stands in front of potential scratchers until she is noticed.

Plans were to open the sale sometime between 8 and 9, but buyers started coming at 7:20 a.m. Hewitt, an occupational therapist with an open, fairskinned face, carts boxes of items to the driveway and unpacks them as her son Destry Tartack plays with Django. ## Need to catch a snooze? Afternoon nap may boost workplace productivity

By JOHN LANG

Scripps Howard News Service

Falling asleep on the job can be a great career move. Alas, it's not your bosses who are saying so. It's sleep researchers.

Study after study is showing that if you can take a 15- to 30minute nap while at work in the afternoon, you'll be more alert, more energetic, happier doing what you do, more productive - and therefore more likely to get ahead.

If you don't get fired for doing it.

Napping on the job is not yet a trend. But serious talk about the merits of "power napping" definitely is a trend that soon could be changing some of the sleepy faces of American busi-

Some findings by the National Sleep Foundation: 56 percent of all working adults experience significant drowsiness during business hours.

20 percent of the 25 million shift workers who are employed other than 9 to 5 report they regularly fall asleep on the job.

— 34 percent of those who say they feel drowsy during the day report being "dangerously" so. Production losses caused by sleepy workers is estimated at $18 billion yearly. The problem is not limited to the United States. It's a phenomenon of the computer-linked global workforce. Many foreign airlines now allow their pilots to take brief naps midway in long haul flights. In this country, the Federal Aviation Administration considered it for United States carriers, but the idea flew like a brick after it further considered how Americans would feel about dozing pilots.

If bosses, and some of the public, aren't ready to accept the concept of nap time at work, biology does.

Says the Encyclopedia of Sleep and Dreaming: "There is a biologically based tendency to fall asleep in mid-afternoon just as there is a tendency to fall asleep at night. Moreover, if sleep the night before is reduced or disturbed for any reason, a nap the subsequent afternoon is not only more likely to occur, but it can also relieve sleepiness and enhance alertness."

The nap zone, documented in numerous studies, is typically between noon and 3 p.m.

Americans average 6 hours and 57 minutes of sleep nightly. Yet studies have repeatedly shown that adults typically need the proverbial eight hours of sleep.

Sleep researcher William Anthony, a professor of psychology at Boston University, says fatigue is a significant problem in modern society.

He says sleepiness is the second-leading cause of auto accidents, second only to drunken-

"If employers allowed naps, the benefits would be improvements in mood and performance, especially in mid-afternoon when our body rhythms are more nap-ready. Workers would concentrate better and persevere in tasks longer."

Workers commonly sneak naps even without permission.

Some few companies have begun encouraging naps as part of their policies on boosting production. Yarde Metals, a distributor in Bristol, Conn., is opening a 2,000-square-foot nap facility that provides beds for up to 20 of its 225 workers at a time.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

ST. LOUIS - The tiny woman was dressed to shop wearing her navy sweater set, trousers and a favorite pair of shoes.

But Micki Oberdorfer, 29, would never be mistaken for a matron out to snag some tailored outfit.

Oberdorfer's sweater set, on this rainy weekday, was so shrunken as to reveal lots of belly-button area. Her lowslung, boot-cut pants — as wide at the hem as they were narrow at the thigh - helped with more navel revelations. Her rubber-soled platform shoes boosted her height by at least 3 inches. And her raspberry-colored hair matched a shaggy, faux-fur coat she'd slung over one arm.

Her choice of store also helped differentiate Oberdorfer from most other shoppers her age: She was checking out the thrift merchandise at Disabled American Veterans.

And there she found, among other things, a perfectly pink, Trojan-brand suitcase from the 1960s to go with her bright orange makeup case by the same maker.

Nowadays, Oberdorfer says in a phone call from Los Angeles, she packs up her own funky fashion designs into the pink suitcase and carries them to Django's mother, Melinda Doster, who has been musing about raiding her husband's closet, brings out a chair that is a particularly vivid shade of green, a kind of lime-green, harvest-gold mixture.

"Can we buy it?" asks Destry. "Noooo," his mother says, picking up a pair of haircutting clippers. "But I might buy this and shave your head.

The children run off laughing. "What if we got lots of money and our pockets got so fat they blew up?" Destry asks.

There's this logistical problem with garage sales. Some garage sales advertise 8 in the paper and they mean it. Martinez tells the story of going to a garage sale that began at 8. Thirty people were lined up, and at 7:59 and 30 seconds, the homeowner pointed to his watch and held them all back, until it was 8 straight up. "It's not a bank!" McCoy goes almost every weekend around 6:15 a.m., with a friend who collects antiques, usually hitting 30 sales and returning at 9:30. He runs the route and sees who is open already. "I won't bother somebody if they're just setting up," he says, "but if they have all the stuff in their driveway and they smile when you open the door . . . '

On a sunny Saturday morning, Larry, Ben and I are out the door at a record 8:03 a.m. in search of garage sales. I have $20 in the pocket of my dress. Ben, who is 6, has $5 clutched in his hand. We've already been told the guiding rule of garage sales by Larry, the expert, which pares down to: Don't go to garage sales with anything particular in mind. You get what you get. You find what you find.

The first sale is at a 1940s small white clapboard house in the Zilker neighborhood. It is run by three adolescent girls, a tall boy with braces and a watchful mother. At precisely 8:15 we tally our loot: a dress ($2), two water guns ($2 each), an herb ($1), a pepper plant (25 cents), two books ($2), a pocket most democratic of fabrics, its knife, "Karate Kid" video and woodcarved Texas memorabilia. They throw in a "Lion

King" wallet for Ben for free. We leave happy

We follow black arrows on pink paper signs to a Barton Hills rock house. Ben stays in the car, suddenly tired of garage sales. I take a twominute tour. Some garage sales are so stingy there's no reason to stop. Larry's garage sale habits include staying whether there is evidence of good stuff

Partly because to him the harder the find, the more precious the treasure, but partly because half the reason he goes to garage sales is to make small talk with strangers. I retreat to the car while Larry buys up used videos. "Why?" Ben and I ask each other. "Why does he stay at a junky garage sale?"

8:28. We hit our third garage sale in a Barton Hills duplex. Another garage sale that should be bypassed. Larry goes

In the car, Ben is looking at the videos. "He put junky stuff on top of my stuff," he says from the back. "Now it's all junky and slimed." Larry returns with three first-edition books by obscure authors, and one Edna Ferber. Cost: $1.

We decide to go to a garage sale that advertised toys a few miles away near St. Edward's University. Driving on Oltorf, we pass sign after sign for garage sales. Larry makes pathetic noises about going. 'No," I say, holding firm.

"Why aren't you letting him go to garage sales?" asks fickle Ben. "I can go to two or three

At 9:20 we arrive at a large vacant warehouse. Table after table is full of the dusty junk other people have thrown away, and scattered on tables it makes me remember part of what I don't like about garage

A bad garage sale, with its castoffs from lost lives, is a sorrowful thing. "It's not lost lives," Larry argues. "It's rejuvenation."

"I hate garage sales," Ben announces from the back.

"I hate garage sales," I say. And yet it seems wrong to end the morning on a sour note. "One more," I propose. That is the siren song of garage sales.

UIL committee to study possible changes in football playoffs

AUSTIN (AP) - The University 32 teams, while schools with smaller Interscholastic League and coaches seem to agree that the football playoff system could be improved.

Now, it's a matter of figuring out how. The UIL's Standing Committee on Athletics on Tuesday acted on several new rule proposals involving all sports and voted to study possible changes to the football playoffs.

All proposals must receive final approval by the UIL Legislative Council in October.

Ross Rogers, athletic director at A&M Consolidated High School, proposed changing the format for the current 96team football playoff field in 5A, 4A, 3A and 2A.

The current format dictates that the schools with the largest enrollment play in the "big school" division, which has enrollment play in the "small school" division, which has 64 teams.

Rogers proposed having the small schools play in the 32-team field and have the larger schools in the 64-team field — at least every other year.

Rogers said it's a competitive advantage to play in a smaller playoff field and play one less game in the playoffs — five instead of six.

"Why would you give the big schools the advantage?" Rogers asked. "They are more equipped to play a sixth game because they have the larger number of players."

Rather than act on that proposal, the UIL staff voted to form a committee and study a number of changes to the football playoff system.

director Charles athletic Breithaupt said everything will be for nearly 20 years, 16 of which he was looked at, including the creation of a Class 6A and the possibility of adding a fourth team from each district into the playoffs. Currently, the top three teams from each district qualify.

Home field advantage for the district champions in the first round of the playoffs also will be considered, Breithaupt

"As far as the playoff structure, there is a lot of dissatisfaction with the threeteam structure," Breithaupt said. "We will look at everything and try to decide what's fair."

The committee meeting was dampened by news that UIL Director Bill Farney was rushed to the intensive care unit of Georgetown Hospital with chest pains early Tuesday morning.

Farney is 58 and has been with the UIL athletic director. He is in his fourth year as UIL director.

In other action taken by the athletics committee, proposals that were approved and referred to the full Legislative Council for adoption include:

 Adding a mixed doubles match in Class 5A and 4A team tennis. This would create 19 matches in the team tennis format, serving as a possible tiebreaker for matches that end 9-9.

 Allowing baseball teams to play one of the games in a two-out-of-three series on Monday through Thursday if there is no loss of school time.

 Surveying school superintendents to see if the girls' softball season should be lengthened by two weeks to ensure enough playing dates for the growing number of teams per district.

It doesn't take but just a couple of moments to learn what draws most fans to the rodeo ... it's the bull riding.

Easily the the most popular of the events in pro rodeo, bull riding doesn't, however, produce many all-around champi-

The rough stock events bull riding, bareback riding and saddle bronc riding seem to put cowboys at a disadvantage to their brothers who rope calves and wrestle steers.

In fact, in recent years, ropers and steer wrestlers have grabbed most of the world champion cowbey honors at the National Finals Rodeo, shutting out the rough stock events competitors.

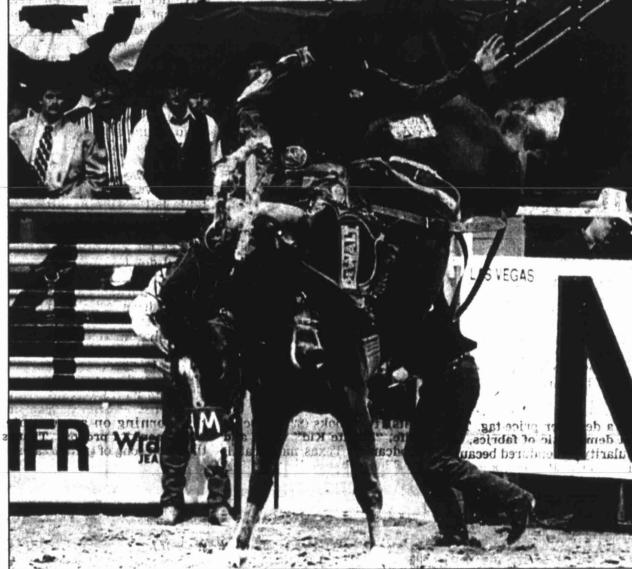

That changed last year, however, when saddle bronc rider Dan Mortensen the PRCA World All-Around Cowboy title back for the rough stock riders. as well as taking the saddle bronc riding championship.

Local rodeo fans who head for tonight's opening performance of the 65th Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo set for 8:30 at the Rodeo Bowl won't see Mortensen, but will have plenty of top competitors on hand.

In fact, with 210 entrants, the rodeo's field has more competi-. tors than in many years as total added money has risen to the $12,000 level — $2,000 per event.

Among the top bull riders scheduled to compete in this year's rodeo are Blue Bryant of Nacogdoches, currently the PRCA leading money winner in the event; Johnny Chavez of Bosque, N.M.; Gilbert Carillo, who reached the National Finals Rodeo last year; Chris Littlejohn of Sapulpa, Okla.; and former Howard College rodeo team performer Mike White, last year's average win-

Headlining the list of top saddle bronc riders will be the three Etbauer brothers, Billy, Dan and Robert. It was Robert Etbauer who went into the NFR second behind Mortensen in the saddle bronc standings last season, eventually finishing fourth overall.

Rough stock events like bull riding, saddle bronc riding and bareback riding always draw the most interest from rodeo fans, and that promises to be the case during tonight's opening performance of the 65th Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo at the Rodeo Bowl.

That doesn't mean there won't be plenty of top ropers and bulldoggers on hand, led by Butch Myers who competes in both calf roping and steer wrestling and finished second overall in the steer wrestling money winner's list.

Several top barrel racers will be making appearances, as well, not the least of which being Lisa Ogden of Gail who considers the Big Spring event her home rodeo. Ogden currently stands fifth in the barrel racing standings and will get plenty of competition from the likes of Deb Mahon, another of the top women riders.

The rodeo will again be produced by the All Star Rodeo Company, which produces some of the best rodeo stock in the business and annually has hits animals picked for use at the NFR.

As always, legendary rodeo clown Quail Dobbs of Coahoma will be on hand to work as barrelman during the bull riding and bring his exploding car

Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys will again provide the music for dances following performances tonight, as well as on Friday and Saturday nights.

The annual rodeo parade will wind through Big Spring's downtown streets at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Those purchasing tickets the gate will pay $7 for adult admission, $5 for those 12 and under. Children under the age of six will be admitted free when accompanied by a paying adult.

In addition, a kids rodeo has again been scheduled on the courthouse lawn following the parade, and more adventurous youngsters will have the opportunity to take part in mutton bustin' competition during each rodeo performance.

The second annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Stickhorse Rodeo will begin at 12:30 p.m. Saturday on the Howard County Courthouse

Also being held in conjunction with the rodeo will be a cowboy golf tournament set for 8:30 a.m. Thursday at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Each four-person team made up of A,B,C,D handicap players will get an opportunity to play with a professional cowboy or cowgirl. Entry fees are $30 per person and proceeds benefit the Justin Cowboy Crisis Fund.

In addition, an after rodeo team roping has been scheduled for Sunday at the Rodeo Bowl. Books open at 1 p.m. with roping set to commence at

Rangers comeback falls short

ARLINGTON (AP) - The Oakland Athletics were quick to single out rookie Ben Grieve for his role in their win over the Texas Rangers.

They also remembered to thank the bullpen.

Grieve homered twice in his hometown debut, then the Athletics hung on after blowing most of a nine-run lead with the help of a relief corps that retired the final 13 batters en route to a 9-7 victory over the Rangers on Tuesday night.

"You know no lead is safe in this park, especially with the wind blowing out," Oakland manager Art Howe said. "The bullpen deserves the credit."

Buddy Groom (3-1) threw two hitless innings of relief for the win, and Billy Taylor pitched a perfect ninth for his 12th save. "I was glad to step in and shut the door in a game like this," Taylor said.

Grieve was an equally big story, however. After spending the night in the bedroom of his parents' home, he got the A's off to a strong start with the first multi-homer game of his career.

"It was neat to do it here," Grieve said. "It was exciting, but I know my parents are 10 times more exciting about it than I am. It's just a lot more special because it came at home. I saw some of my friends (from) the outfield. It's kind of neat to say hi to them.'

Grieve, who grew up watching the Rangers, hit two-run shots in the first and second innings in his first game at The Ballpark in Arlington to help the A's to their fourth victory in their last five games. Texas has lost five of its last six.

"That's quite a display, tworun homers in your first two at bats at home," Howe said.

Grieve's father, Tom, a former major leaguer and Rangers general manager, watched from the broadcast booth where he's a TV analyst. Grieve's mother and sister looked on from the stands.

"I never swing hard for home runs, they just happen," Grieve said. "Anytime you do something like that with your family watching, it's special."

Mike Oquist started for the A's in place of former Ranger Kenny Rogers, who will start tonight.

Oquist was staked to a 9-0 lead in the fourth, but couldn't get out of the fifth.

A few Astros lingered on the field to get a peek at McGwire before the game, but Craig Biggio wasn't one of them.

"I didn't have to watch him, I've seen him hit before," Biggio said. "The amazing thing is he didn't get a hit and Ray. Lankford didn't play and they still scored nine runs. That shows what kind of team they have."

McGwire, who leads the majors with 31 homers, walked twice, hit into a double play, flew out to right field and struck out in his final at-bat in the eighth.

"I'm glad the way it happened," La Russa said. "It shows we've got a lot of weapons. When it comes down to it, we've got a nice club." McGwire declined to talk with reporters after the game.

Juan Acevedo (2-1) allowed four runs and seven hits in six innings for the victory. After the first, Acevedo allowed only two baserunners - singles by Moises Alou in the third and Derek Bell

Denny Neagle pitched a fourhitter to help Bobby Cox become the winningest manager in Braves history as Atlanta beat Florida 7-0 in the first meeting between the clubs since last season's NLCS.

Atlanta scored six runs in the first inning, highlighted by Ryan Klesko's grand slam, and had little trouble with the decimated Marlins.

The NL East-leading Braves now lead the last-place Marlins by 261/2 games, showing just how far Florida has fallen since last season when it beat Atlanta in the league championship series before winning the World Series. Joe Fontenot (0-4) allowed five runs before recording his first out. After giving up an RBI double to Chipper Jones, he walked Andres Galarraga on four pitches to load the bases for Klesko, who hit his 12th homer of the season and sixth career grand slam.

Showdown between Williams sisters looms at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - The Williams sisters could collide in the fourth round at Wimbledon — but only if their teen-age rivals don't knock them out first.

By the luck of Tuesday's draw, Venus and Serena Williams were grouped in the same section with 17-year-old stars Anna Kournikova of Russia and 16-year-old Mirjana Lucic

The sixth-seeded Venus, who turns 18 Wednesday, will face Jana Nejedly of Canada in the first round, while Serena plays Laura Golarsa.

Serena, 16, would probably face Lucic in the second round and, if she advances, meet Kournikova in the year, has an easier path and is a better bet than her sister to reach the fourth round.

If the sisters do meet, it would be the third all-Williams singles match this year. They played in the second round of the Australian Open and the quarterfinals of the Italian Open, with Venus winning both matches.

Serena, who won her first grass-court match Tuesday, beating Naoko Sawamatsu 6-4, 7-5 in Eastbourne, called the draw "cool."

Kournikova, who reached the Wimbledon semifinals last year, was "A draw's a draw," she said. "It's luck, and I'm going to take it a match at a time. I'm not looking forward to playing the third or whatever round."

Another teen-ager, 17-year-old defending champion and top seed Martina Hingis, drew a tricky firstround opponent in American Lisa Raymond. No. 2 Lindsay Davenport will play Florencia Labat.

Hingis could face No. 3 Jana Novotna, the woman she beat in last year's final, in the semis. Davenport would meet No. 4 Steffi Graf in the other semifinal.

The 29-year-old Graf is continuing her comeback after a long injury layoff. She opens against Gala Leon Garcia. No. 6 Monica Seles, in Graf's half of the draw, opens with another

The women's draw overshadowed the men's, where defending champion and No. 1 Pete Sampras is slumping and looks nothing like a sure thing to win his fifth title in six years.

Sampras was paired in the first round against Dominic Hrbary, a Slovakian ranked 47th who led Sampras 4-2 in the fifth set before losing at the 1997 Australia Open.

runner-up in 1996, in the second round. Talented Swede Thomas Enqvist could loom in the third and Australia's Scott Draper, winner last weekend on grass at Queen's, in the fourth.

Korda, the Australian Open champion and No. 3 seed, or Rafter, the 1997 U.S. Open champion and No. 4 seed, could face Sampras in the semis.

Agassi, the 1992 champion who fashioning a comeback, is seeded No. 13 and opens against 77th-ranked Spaniard Alex Calatrava. Next he could meet rising German star Tommy Haas and then get Korda in the fourth round.

The bottom half of the draw is much weaker with No. 2 Marcelo Rios of Chile and No. 4 Greg Rusedski of Britain the highest seeds.

Foul ball:

Ballpark fans go to great lengths in effort to snag coveted souvenir

ARLINGTON (AP) — Oh, the things baseball es the players. fans go through to get a free game souvenir: falling out of the stands; stumbling over rows of seats; knocking over a 10-year-old just to have something to brag about. Snagging foul balls is as old as the game of baseball. But you have to know where to sit.

James Williams does. At one recent game at The Ballpark in Arlington, he knew the ball was coming right to him as soon as he heard the crack of the bat. In the back of his mind he could hear his Little League coach: "Two hands. Use two hands.

But as Williams, a 35-year-old insurance salesman, positioned himself to catch his first big league pop-up, an over-eager fan blindsided him and the ball bounced to someone else.

"All I got was a T-shirt stained with beer and a bruised palm," said Williams, who was sitting behind the visitors dugout along the third-base

Baseball officials have computer software that keeps track of almost every place a baseball lands in the ballpark. The computers can tell you how many go to right field, how many are popped up to the pitcher and how many sneak through a shortstop's glove.

"But there's nothing to tell us where foul balls land," said John McMichael, Rangers' executive vice president of business operations.

So the Marlington Morning News" decided to track foul balls during five games this season. into the stands. Fans sitting along the baseline in the first and second decks got most of them. A ball's trajectory also depends on whether the batter hits left or right. Left-handed hitters have a tendency to hit foul balls to the left side of the field, while right-handed hitters' hit them to the

The fans' biggest complaint is that the balls are hit so hard they are almost impossible to catch on the first grab. It's a situation that amus-

"I don't think they realize how much it hurts," said Rangers' second baseman Mark McLemore "Those balls come down hard."

Nevertheless, many fans come prepared. Ball gloves are the natural choice for catching balls. But in Texas, at least, fishing nets are becoming more popular. Chris Swearengin, 12, and his 10-year-old brother, Brendan, of Carrollton bring both. They show up early for batting practice, which they say is their only shot at getting a stray ball. In anticipation, the brothers position them selves along the bottom row of Sections 14 and 15, which run along the third-base line. "It's just kind of fun," Chris said of their ritual. "The nets are great for scooping up the balls on the ground," Brendan said. "We don't get the chance to catch many hit in the air.' Chris has fished in about 15 foul balls during batting practice this season. The players have signed some of them, but all of the balls have a special place in his room. "I play with them mostly," he said.

Foul-ball mishaps can get messy, as Laura Smith of Frisco can tell you.

When it happened, she and friends were attending a game at old Arlington Stadium, sit ting in the lower third-base section where foul balls were plentiful.

"I can't even remember who the Rangers were playing or who hit the ball," said Smith. "A ball hit three rows in front of us, and my friends and I scrambled to get it. It bounced all over the place. We were finally in a position where we thought we could get it when all of a sudden I was splattered with mustard. The stupid ball hit a mustard pack and the ball rolled to the other end of the row."

Smith DID NOT get the ball.

'Some guy just reached down and picked it up," she said. "I thought he should have given it to us, seeing all the trouble we went through."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) They looked like three college kids playing a fun round of golf. The laughter and words flowed easily. Poor shots were greeted by put-down lines.

In many ways, it was just like all those rounds Tiger Woods, Casey Martin and Joel Kribel played at The Olympic Club when they were students at Stanford. The only difference was that this was a practice round for the U.S. Open.

Kribel, at 21 the youngest of the three, tried a chip from the back of the three-tier seventh green Tuesday morning, and no sooner had the ball landed than Woods said "bye," laughing as the ball rolled off the green.

When Woods tried a chip from the thick, greenside rough at No. 9 and went completely under the ball without moving it, all three made eye contact then dissolved in laughter.

On the ninth fairway, the bushy mustache of Woods' caddie, Mike "Fluff" Cowan," was likened to the rear end of a yak. Woods and his coach, Butch Harmon, were laughing so hard Kribel had to back away from

"Is this how he wins all those tournaments?" Kribel shouted, referring to the distraction.

Don Shula wants a piece of new Browns

CLEVELAND (AP) - Don Shula remembers cheering from the frozen end zone seats in Cleveland Stadium as Lou Groza kicked a field goal to give the Browns their first NFL title.

Now, nearly a half-century later, the league's winningest coach wants to build the organization that brings the Browns back to his hometown.

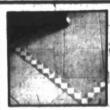

"When Cleveland lost its franchise I felt like I was losing part of my own personal history," Shula said Tuesday.

'I want to use my expertise and experience in the NFL to help put a winning team together in Cleveland."

Shula was in town for a news conference to announce his alliance with two brothers local lawyer Larry Dolan and Cablevision Systems Corp. chief Charles Dolan — and Bill Cosby in their effort to buy the expansion Browns.

Shula, who compiled a 347-173-6 record and won two Super Bowls as coach of the Miami Dolphins and Baltimore Colts, would own 5 percent of the Larry Dolan said Shula would be a huge asset as Cleveland tries to build a decent team in the year or so it will have after the NFL settles the ownership question but before the first game in 1999.

"Don Shula has no learning curve," Larry Dolan said. The brothers first contacted Shula about three weeks ago.
