Community Center may be getting a new look soon, as the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Board Directors voted to begin receiving bids on improvements to the rear of the building.

"Lee George has been working with the architects to design a pavilion-type structure that will be located near the waterfront," said chamber board president Ray Kennedy. "We are also hoping to use whatever funds are left over to do some landscaping work to the area located behind the center.

"The funds that we have for this project were donated by Dorothy Garrett, and we expect to have enough to complete both the pavilion and the landscap-

"A 20-foot by 20-foot section of the pavilion would actually be covered," said Kennedy. "The remaining 30 foot of the pavilion will be open air. I really think this will make a very attractive addition to the center, and will be available to the public in the same manner as the various rooms of the center."

Kennedy said that until the board begins receiving bids from the various contracting

Kennedy said the structure companies, it will be difficult to put a total dollar amount on the project.

"We are looking at doing this project in phases," said Kennedy. "We will start with the concrete work, and once that is completed, move on to the roofing. That way we can keep a close eye on how much the project will cost."

At 10:01, Moore called the jury into the jury box and read a supplemental charge, telling them that without a decision, a mistrial would be declared and the entire process would be repeated.

Moore told jurors he didn't think they had deliberated long enough to be hopelessly deadlocked.

It was at 11:32 p.m. that the jury came and and delivered its verdict to the court.

While glad the trial was over, 118th District Attorney Hardy Wilkerson was less than pleased with the jury, which seemed at odds with itself as it exited the courtroom.

"I'm glad the jury was able to resolve their obvious differences and I'm glad there was at least some justice for Mr. Neely.

During the sentencing phase, a tearful Jennifer Callaway Cisneros, jailhouse bride of the defendant, and Cisneros both took the witness stand, testifying in tears. At one point, Wilkerson even stopped his questioning of Cisneros so that the defendant could compose Cisneros cited the fact he had a family and a child and wanted to be able to take care of them ... "To teach my child right from wrong and not do the things I've

But Wilkerson pointed out that Jennifer Cisneros had testified the two had only met on May 9 — just six weeks prior to Neely's murder — and that the child Cisneros referred to was hers by a previous relationship. In addition, Wilkerson pointed out that another woman in Big Spring is currently pregnant by

This instant family is to elicit your sympathy," he told the Cisneros also testified that under similar circumstances, "I would confront them again,' when Wilkerson asked if he had learned a lesson not to react as he did to Neely Wilkerson told the jury it was obvious that "no level of supervision short of incarceration that allows us to deal with him (Cisneros).

"He said, 'I'd do it again' ... you are the gatekeepers of our society and you must send a message to people like him.'

Morales asked the jury for "Everyone gets to go home tonight except Mr. Cisneros. You (the jury) get to go home, I get to go home, but Mr. Cisneros doesn't.'

That elicited a fiery response from Wilkerson in his close.

"Home at night? Mr. Cisneros doesn't get to go home at night? What about Mr. Neely? He's no longer with us because of the actions of Mr. Cisneros ... don't talk to me about his not being able to go home tonight."

Cisneros will have to serve at least one-half of the sentence before being eligible for parole. Morales said late Wednesday he would talk with his attorney today and make a decision regarding a possible appeal. Boswell's attorney, Tim Yates, said the plea bargain options were explained to his client and he (Boswell) made the decision.

"I think he understood the risks, plus the benefits, based on the evidence ... plus the lengthy deliberations.'

Albert has been an officer of the local Salvation Army corps since 1976. She first became interested in the organization as a child, when she became involved in the band, she said.

Today, along with her duties as kettle campaign coordinator and coronet player for the band, Albert buys the groceries and cooks the meals for the community dinners and is chaplain of the Girl Squads and Sunbeams youth groups.

For six weeks during the Christmas season, Albert receives minimum wage for her work. Throughout the rest of the year, her service work is strictly voluntary, she said.

The first phases of the program are expected to begin soon, with Moore Development of Big Spring, Howard College, and Texas State Technical College of Sweetwater in control of the funds.

"We want to begin the first phase with management training," said Moore Development's Assistant Director Pam Welch. "We have to start at the top, and work our way down from there. After that, if we get the second part of the grant next year, we will start a more detailed, in depth program."

Sharp said training will be available in CNC mill, CNC lathe, machining, adult education, blueprint reading, computer skills, measuring instruments, reading improvement, general chemistry, industrial maintenance, math for manufacturing, and leadership development.

"We are looking at as many different ways to accomplish the missions and goals of the workforce program as possible," said Sharp. "There are a lot of aspects of industry that are changing, and a lot of the technology is going more towards computers.

"It's extremely important that the Big Spring workforce remain competitive. Once a city becomes noncompetitive, it's just a matter of time before it becomes a ghost town. It doesn't happen over night, but it definitely happens.

New faces, new tone mark House GOP leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) - A whirlwind two weeks after their Election Day disappointment, the GOP next year is spouting a conservative but pragmatic and inclusive tone that contrasts with the revolutionary fervor that marked their ascension into the majority in Congress four years ago.

Wednesday to replace Rep. Newt Gingrich as speaker, Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., touted GOP goals of tax cuts and smaller government but added, "We welcome anyone, the president or any Democrat to help us in advancing that agenda.

Livingston was only acknowledging reality. In the new Congress, his party will have only a 223-211 edge over Democrats, not including an independent who usually votes with Democrats, meaning that without Democratic support, as few as six GOP defectors could chosen spell defeat for Republican leg-

Then came an incident that still has the congregation laughing. Mary and I were sitting there and the service was about to begin, when along came Alice. Instead of Alice sitting on my right side, she tried to wedge in on my left, between

Mary and me. Curious to see what would happen, I didn't budge an inch. Neither did Mary. So Alice began wiggling her derriere, trying to force a spot between Mary and me. By now, the congregation was giggling, even laughing aloud. Suddenly, Alice lost her balance and fell right into my lap. The crowd guffawed. Alice's daughter appeared, helped her mother to her feet and led her away. A moment later, Mary's daughter was there leading away her mom. Mary was protesting, "He's MY man. I

Despite increasing pressure from Archer and others, however, administration officials say Clinton has no plans for now to send Congress a blueprint for making sure Social Security doesn't run out of money in the next century.

Fund-raiser a hit; Air museum now becoming reality

ast weekend's fund-raiser for Hangar 25 was such a success that it is causing some people to do crazy things — like Hangar 25 Restoration Committee president Jerry Worthy promising to kiss a pig if the drive netted

Time to put up, or pucker up, we guess, Jerry. The effort raised $2,600 in funds which will help turn the restored hangar into a museum.

Saturday's event was a success in a lot of ways. Not only did it raise funds for a noble cause, it was lots of fun for both participants and volunteers. Committee members said they talked with a number of people who had never bothered to go out to the Airpark

"In terms of the people we met and the comments we heard about the project, the fund-raiser was priceless, said Kim Howell, publicity chairperson for the event.

That's one of the ideas behind the entire project, of course, to get people to come to Big Spring - or return, as the case may be for many — and see a part of the history of this area.

Bringing in planes and restoring them is the next step for the committee. Funds to renovate the hangar itself have already been taken care of, and restoration should be complete sometime in December.

Probably in January, the Airpark manager's office will be moved to the hangar so that the air museum can be open to the public during normal office hours.

Thanks go to all the volunteers who helped with the fund-raiser, the committee members and everyone else who has an interest in keeping alive this important piece of history.

Meanwhile, Jerry says he will still kiss the pig, but he's going to wait until after Turkey Day. Some things, you just can't get thankful about.

To THE EDITOR: The Big Spring Harley

Owners Group (HOG) would like to thank everyone who came out to our 4th annual Seafood Fest. This year was the biggest and best so far and would have not been possible without the tremendous support we received from the public. Special thanks to the folks from Mel's who worked so hard to feed the 300 plus people who showed up. To our friends of the Christian Motorcycle Association who helped us serve the food, we could have doné this without you. Thanks also to Coca Cola, Bargain Mart, KBST & The Signal, The Big Spring Herald, Channel Nine (Big Spring & Midland), The Jones Valley Band, the remaining members of C.W. & Company, Tate Plumbing, and Chuck's Surplus. For those of you who came and gave to the fund for C.W., we of his extended family wish to thank you for your generosity. Most of all thank you to the riders who came in from far and wide to support us. The profits from this event are going to buy Christmas presents for children and the elderly. With your help we will be able to make Christmas a lot better for many people in Big Spring. THE BIG SPRING HARLEY OWNERS GROUP

TO THE EDITOR:

We want to take this opportunity to thank an unknown lady from either Big Spring or Forsan for her efforts to protect our family during a crisis situation. A couple of weeks ago we were driving home to San Angelo from Big Spring when this young lady's car had a blowout as she was passing our car. Rather than hitting us, she endangered her life to save us by swerving to the middle ditch, turning a full circle and returning to the road (it was a miracle that the car did not flip due to the weather conditions).

We drove back to make sure she was okay, and her comment was "I would rather risk my own life than hit a car with a family i.. it." We changed her flat tire, but she was the one who was the true

It is our wish to let the Big Spring area know that they have people around who would sacrifice themselves for the sake of others. We did not get her name, but wanted to let her know how very much we appreciate her efforts to save our family.

An hour later I am home, and the front porch light looks brighter than usual, a sun in a friendly galaxy. Nothing makes me quite as thankful lately as getting off a Georgia highway Thankfulness is a red rush, a feeling that bubbles up from the heart at odd moments. Like a 1960s lava lamp, those bubbles get hotter, more active this time of year. And so I make myself a list.

I am thankful for a little book called "The Silent Stars Go By." Philip Lee Williams of Watkinsville wrote this new Christmas classic, a story of innocence and 1959. It is authentic, beautiful.

"Before Christmas 1959, my most memorable gifts had been a matched set of Roy Rogerspistols with leather holsters, cowboy boots, a basketball and some Tinkertoys. The pebbled texture on the metal handles of my six-shooters was lovely, and I played with them for years before they finally disappeared

I'm thankful to have grown up with Roy Rogers. I'm also grateful for old books, friends that don't ever change; you can put them on a shelf and go back years later, lose your place or even forget their names. They remain the same.

This past year I reread "Ross and Tom" and "The Moviegoer.'

I returned to favorite books, and to Ocracoke, the most beguiling island of North Carolina's Outer Banks. The island had changed in 20 years, but I'm thankful to have taken the ferry out there just the same. The stubby little Ocracoke light no longer dominates the skyline, but it's not yet lost or obscured

I'm thankful for rudimentary comforts -- Ray Charles' voice, Norma's fried chicken livers, Bailey White essays, Johnny Cash recitatives. Old red dogs, yellow puppies, afternoon baseball, morning rain.

It's wonderful that the world at large recognized Dale Calhoun's Reelfoot, stumpjumping boat up in Tennessee; he won a big grant this year. And that the president gave Ramblin' Jack Elliott an official clap on the back.

And, oh, is it ever gratifying that Alabama voters told Fob

James to take his ape imitations and hit the road. Almost makes you thankful for an election year.

I'm glad senior citizen John Glenn revisited the stars, and that critics of the voyage sounded shrill and partisan. I'm thankful for deliciously ironic moments. Nude photos of radio's cruelest, crudest bluenose, Dr. Laura, on the Internet made me want to go take on the day.

The moral law is true, not a matter of opinion

By JEFFREY HART

King Features

Frequently a small detail, a phrase or a fragment of a phrase leaps out as significant about much larger things. Thus, I read in a recent published letter that President Clinton had "behaved in ways disapproved of by most of the American people." Yes, that is undoubtedly true, but it was put in such a way that it seemed to say disapproval of his behavior was a matter of opinion, subject to a poll or a vote. That is, it was not objectively wrong.

Similarly, in other public statements, people seem to have trouble using the word "wrong." When they manage to use the word, it usually occurs in a subordinate clause, as in, for example, "While what Mr. Clinton did was wrong, nevertheless ...'

The message would be entirely different if the word "wrong" was in a main clause: "While it may not rise to the level of impeachment, what Mr. Clinton did was wrong."

The apparent objections to the use of "wrong" can be put in sophisticated philosophical form. The word "sophisticated," appropriately enough, derives from the Sophists, Athenian teachers and philosophers who denied the existence of objective moral truth, and taught that there is only opinion. Socrates argued the contrary case. I notice that most people today have heard of Socrates, while practically no one can name an Athenian Sophist -- which is a sort of common-sense indication of who won that argument in the 5th century B.C Today, the Sophist position is multiculturalists, who regard moral principles as mere opinions or arbitrary customs. However, the relativists and multiculturalists I know have definite moral opinions and usually are eager to impose represented by relativists and them with whatever official power they can muster. What we are talking about here could be put colloquially as the "Who sez?" philosophical position. Confronted with a moral assertion, such as "Lying is wrong," the man in the street or the freshman in the back row might say, "Who One answer to that would be to ask, "Did you invent the wheel?" The point would be that somewhere, at some point in time, someone found that rolling was easier than dragging or carrying, and that the fact has been confirmed by experience. At least in the realm of physical nature, we accept a whole range of physical discoveries as true. We don't rediscover them anew in every generation. But there is also a long tradition of moral reflection and discovery, and it is well-documented, although we do not much deal with it in the schools today.

Socrates is the great hero of the proposition that intellect can understand the nature of the universe, its fundamental principles, and therefore can understand the form of the moral life. Socrates is the hero of intellectual cognition, the hero of science and philosophy.

Not far away in Asia Minor another tradition arose in which a small tribe underwent a process of self-understanding that extended over many centuries.

The tribe expressed its emerging self-understanding in narrative form, which included many famous symbolic representations of their understanding as it emerged in history.

In Psalm 119, which is about the Law, the psalmist says that the Law is true. That is, if you violate the laws of nature bad results follow: You might fall off a cliff. And if you violate the moral Law, though perhaps less dramatically, bad results also will follow -- because the Law, discovered in history, is true. The compact formulation of the Law in the narrative was brought down from Mount Sinai by the great warriorleader Moses in the form of the Ten Commandments. The first four commandments have to do with the premise of the creation: 1. No other gods before me (look out, golden-calf worshippers) 2. No idols (representations of God or gods).

3. No misuse of God's name.

4. Keep the Sabbath. (Remember who you are, and who He is).

Then there is an immensely important transition: 5. Honor thy father and mother. (The family is central. It transmits the civilization. It is the basis of society.)

The final five commandments have to do with behavior in the

6. Do not murder.

7. Do not commit adultery. (Since it was a polygamous society, this commandment must mean do not interfere in other families.)

8. Do not steal

9. Do not give false testimo-10. Do not covet thy neighbor's goods.

When Moses descended from Sinai, he found large numbers of his followers worshipping a golden calf -- undoubtedly an idol sacred to one of the local polytheisms. The situation must have been touch-and-go, since Moses immediately had his Levites slaughter the worshippers. But monotheism, after a long struggle, indeed won out.

The psalmist who wrote No. 119 knew what he was talking about. The moral Law is true. It is not a matter of opinion. It reflects actuality. It is not interested in "experiments in living."

Our schools ought to let people in on all this. And Bill Clinton would be a much better man today if he had ever thought about it.

Boy Scout manual gets official update for 1998

BALTIMORE (AP) - These days, the Boy Scout motto "Be prepared" means a lot more than knowing how to build a fire or tie a slip knot.

In the latest edition of the Scout manual, a section called "Prepared for Life" gives advice on avoiding sexual irresponsibility, guarding one's privacy on the Internet and staying away from drugs, alcohol and tobacco.

"We wanted to make it easier to grasp the social issues," Renee Fairrer, national Scouts associate director of external communications, told Thursday's edition of The Sun.

Scout Executive Jere B. Ratcliffe said the changes are not a radical departure from the tenets scouts have followed since their founding in England 90 years ago by Sir Robert Baden-Powell.

Scouting has always stressed helping others and knowing right from wrong, he said. "The new manual connects those basic tenets more directly to the situations faced by boys today," Ratcliffe said. Among the topics discussed in the manual's first revision in a decade are the Heimlich maneuver and how to get along with people of different ethnic

The manual advises TV "must be used wisely." and warns computer users not to give out personal information on the Internet.

On the subject of sex, the manual advises that "true maturity comes from acting responsibly in a number of ways. ... Don't burden someone you care for with a child neither of you is ready to bear.'

cerns to me I'm reminded of a mother who told me that she took her 14-year-old daughter to their pediatrician for a routine physical exam. The mother was aware that her daughter was beginning to develop physically and might be sensitive to her being in the examining room with her. She offered to remain in the waiting room, but the girl objected. "I don't want to go in there by myself," she said. "Please come with me." After arguing with her daughter for a moment, the mother agreed to accompany her to the examining room.

When the exam was over, the doctor turned to the mother and criticized her for intruding. He said in front of the girl, "You know, you really had no business being in the examining room. It is time I related directly to your daughter. You should not even be aware of the care that I give her or the medication I prescribe. Nor should you know the things that are said between us. My care of your daughter should now be a private matter between her and

The girl had been going through a period of rebellion, and the mother felt her authoritor's comments. It was as though he were saying, "Your day of supervision of your daughter has now passed. She should now make her own decisions." Fortunately, that mother was unwilling to do as she was told, and promptly found a new doctor. Good for her!

I have discussed this conversation with several pediatricians, and they have each agreed with the doctor in this case. They emphasized the importance of a youngster having someone to talk with in private. Perhaps. But I object to the autonomy demanded by the physician. Fourteen-year-old boys and girls are not grown, cially when their parents are and their parents are still the around -- so I can understand best people to care for them the need for privacy during a and oversee their development. It is appropriate for a physician to have some private moments with a young patient, but he or she should never forget to whom accountability is owed.

> Furthermore, if greater authority is to be granted to the doctor, the parent had better find out just what he or she believes about contraceptives for minors, premarital sex, spiritual matters and the like. Be careful whom you choose to trust with the body and the soul of your child. The pace of living is so frantic today that we have become dangerously willing to accept surrogate parenting from a variety of professionals who meander through our lives. Educators, youth ministers, athletic coaches, music instructors, psychologists, counselors and physicians are there to assist parents in raising their kids -- but never to replace them.

CEDARVILLE, Mich. (AP) Harry and Helen Harris build houses for the birds and sell them for a song — or give them away, if you're short of cash. After all, what's a few dollars between friends of fowls?

"I tell people if you'll put 'em up and take care of them and take them down in the fall and not let them stand there and rot, you can have all you need," says Harry Harris, who at age 81 can still assemble one of his creations in a few minutes.

By their reckoning, the Harrises have made more than 5,000 birdhouses in 35 years and have given away 4,000 of them. But if their project hasn't been a golden egg, neither has it cracked their bank account, for they craft the houses entirely from secondhand wood and college continues to rise as available federal grant money erodes, putting higher education out of reach for many lowincome American families, a study released Tuesday showed.

Student grants are covering a significantly diminishing proportion of college pricetags. Pell grants — the major federal funding source for low-income students — provide about half of what they did 20 years ago, according to the study.

In the 1976-77 school year, the average Pell grant covered 19 percent of the cost of attending a private, four-year institution, and 39 percent of the price of a public four-year school. In 1996-97 — the most recent year available for the study — the average grant covered 9 percent for private schools, and 22 percent for

Even more striking, the maximum Pell grant — given to the neediest students - fell from covering 35 percent of private college costs in 1976-77 to 13 percent in 1996-97; for public schools, it dropped from covering 72 percent of the price to 34 percent, the study said.

If low-income students don't attend community college, they can't afford to go to college at all, said Thomas Parker, senior vice president of The Education Resources Institute, a Bostonbased nonprofit guarantor of privately issued student loans, and one of the two groups that released the report.

"What we like to think is we have a system where people have both access and choice, but what we're rapidly developing is a system where people have access but not choice," he

BOSTON (AP) - The cost of ing for inflation - over two decades, but college prices rose by 49 percent, and family incomes crept up by just 10 percent over the same period.

In 1996-97, the maximum Pell grant available was $2,470 for qualifying students. In 1997-98, it went up to $2,700 and is at $3,000 for the current year.

"Even with those increases the bottom line is the net price still increases for most families, particularly for the lowestincome students," said Jamie Merisotis, president of The Institute for Higher Education Policy in Washington, D.C., and co-author of the report.

About 3.6 million of the nation's 14 million college students receive Pell grants, and more than half of Pell recipients in four-year schools qualify for the maximum amount of funding.

While federal grant dollars have declined over the last two decades, the amount of grant money colleges and universities give to students has staved the same, said Jacqueline King, director of policy analysis for the American Council on Education, which represents some 1,800 colleges nationwide.

Still, she said, low-income students should be able to attend a four-year college if they take college-preparatory classes in high school and apply for financial assistance from the government as well as from universi-

In 1995-96, King said, the average cost of attending a two-year public community college, including tuition, room and board, was $7,265 for a full-time student without financial aid. For a public four-year university, it was $10,889, and for a private college the average was lated. The difference between stable marriages and those in serious trouble is evidenced by what happens after a fight. In healthy relationships, a period of confrontation ends in forgiveness - in drawing together, in deeper respect and understanding, and sometimes in sexual satisfaction. But in unstable marriages a period of conflict produces greater pain and anger that persists until the next fight. When that occurs, one unresolved issue is compounded by another, and another. That accumulation of resentment is an ominous circumstance in any marriage.

Having opened the season with a 43-33 win over Monahans on Tuesday, the competition gets a little tougher for Big Spring's Lady Steers tonight in the second round of the Howard College Pizza Innvitational.

While it's a given the Lady Steers will face a more difficult test than the Lady Loboes presented when they step onto the floor at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum at 6 p.m., Big Spring coach Kathy Loter can only guess her team will be facing Midland High's Lady Bulldogs.

That is not guaranteed, however. The Lady Steers drew a bye in the first round of the tournament, meaning they'll face the winner of the Midland-El Paso Del Valley game.

The high school division of the Innvitational began at noon with San El Paso Parkland, the winner of that game playing Midland Lee at 4 p.m.

After the Lady Steers play their game, Howard College's No. 3-ranked Lady Hawks will entertain Scottsdale (Ariz.) Community College's women in the first game of the Innvitational's collegiate Having opened their season with a couple of weekends on the road, the 5-1 Lady Hawks are certainly looking forward to getting a chance to display their talents before a home crowd.

The only problem, Lady Hawks head coach Matt Corkery said, is that he and his team know little of what to expect from their first-round opponent.

"It's just going to be nice to finally be playing at home ... that's what we're really looking forward to," Corkery said. "We don't know much about Scottsdale, but we really expect to have three good games this weekend.

Angelina and Temple will be like," Corkery added. "Angelina is very athletic... very quick. They're going to press a lot and play good defense.'

Temple, however, is in its first season under new coach Kim Sebek, who previously headed Tyler Chapel Hill's Lady Bulldog program.

"They're a young team," Corkery said of the Lady Leopards. "And with a new coach, you don't really know what they'll be doing. We got to see them play in Wichita Falls ... they're trying a lot of things to see what works for them."

The Lady Hawks come into the classic having rebounded from a loss to No. 1ranked Trinity Valley in the first round of the Texas JUCO Roundup in Wichita Falls last weekend.

Following that loss, the Lady Hawks knocked off Kilgore College's Lady Rangers and closed out the weekend with a win over Ranger.

pointed by the loss to Trinity Valley, he maintains his team can't afford to dwell on the loss.

"There's no question that losing to Trinity Valley was a big disappointment for all of us," Corkery said. "But we've got to put that behind us and I think we have. We've got to use that loss as a motivator to improve."

Four more high school games will be played Friday, as well as a pair of college division games. College games scheduled for Friday will see Angelina's Lady Roadrunners taking on Scottsdale and the Lady Hawks facing Temple.

The Innvitational's high school division championship game is slated for 6 p.m. Saturday.

Temple will face Scottsdale in the college division at 4 p.m. Saturday, while the final game of the evening will see the Lady Hawks taking on Angelina at 8

STANTON - There's no question about it ... Stanton's Buffaloes are back on a roll.

The defending Class 2A state champions made their intention of repeating clear last week with a 52-16 romp over Farwell, scoring as many points as the Steers' highlytouted defense had given up all season.

In the process, quarterback Kyle Herm threw two touchdown passes, the 75th and 76th of his career, tying the Class 2A record established by New Deal's Toby Howell. That means Herm will have an opportunity to stand alone in the record books if he completes a touche of the same s Frid night when Eldorado's Eagles at 7:30 Sweetwater's Mustang Bowl.

If Herm is excited about the possibility of setting a record, you couldn't prove it by his Stanton head coach Mark Cotton says Herm seemed excited about having a chance of setting the record last week, but hasn't even mentioned it this week.

"Part of that may be that he could have had it (record) all to himself last week," Cotton explained. "He had a couple of long touchdown passes ... one that went 60 yards or so-and another one that went 70 called back on penalties."

In all, Herm finished the night connection on 11 of 20 passes for 174 yards and the two touchdowns, a 3-yard connection to Austin Kelly and a 5yarder to fullback Jody Louder, both coming in the third quarter.

To date, Herm has completed 70 of 115 passes for 1,287 yards and 18 touchdowns this season and has been intercepted just four times.

The Buff quarterback also rushed nine times for 62 yards and a touchdown against the Steers, leaving him with 59 carries for 483 yards and nine touchdowns on the year,

In his three-year career as the Buffs' starter, Herm has completed 256 passes in 437 attempts for 4,825 yards and the 76 touchdowns. He's been intercepted 14 times. In addition, he's rushed 358 times for 1,897 yards and 33 touchdowns.

Those statistics are of secondary concern for the Stanton

Stanton quarterback Kyle Herm (3), pictured here during the Buffs' state semifinals win over Italy last season, heads into Friday's area playoff game with Eldorado's Eagles with an opportunity to set the Class 2A record for career touchdown passes he currently shares with New Deal's Toby Howell. What's more important, Herm says, is getting a chance to continue the Buffs playoff run and repeat as champions. "It (record) was in the back of my a little bit, but my main goal was to win the game" Herm said in recalling the win over Farwell.

"That's what's important this week," he added. "I just want to play the game and win. If it happens (setting the record), it happens. But if I don't throw another touchdown pass and we win state again, I don't care."

While the No. 6-ranked Buffs figure to be a solid favorite going into Friday's playoff, Cotton admits being concerned about an Eldorado team that he's convinced finished the reg-

"They've kind of been a Dr Jekyl and Mr. Hyde this year, Cotton said of the Eagles "They're a completely different team than they were earlier

"They had some key kids injured early on and that hurt them," Cotton explained "They're beginning to get those kids back and they're playing very well right now.

Cotton's biggest concern is the number of different looks the Eagles give opponents on both offense and defense.

When his Coyotes take on Grandfalls-Royalty's Cowboys at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Seagraves, Borden County head coach Bobby Avery knows exactly what to expect ... perhaps the biggest test his team has seen this season.

Friday's area playoff game, after all, is a repeat of what was perhaps the best six-man football game played in the 1997 season — the Coyotes' 30-26 victory that was without question their toughest night en route to a state championship.

"They (Cowboys) are every bit as scary as they were last year maybe even moreso," Avery said as he prepared to put his team through workout paces Wednesday afternoon. "They've got lots of quickness and size and throw the football extremely well. If anything, they're just a little more seasoned than they were last year."

The Cowboys were so impressive in 1997, in fact, that Avery tabbed them as the team to beat during the first week of two-aday practices back in August.

This is a game that Avery admits he always knew would have to come if his Covotes were to repeat as state champions, but one he had hoped would come later in the play-

Those hopes were dashed in the second week of District 6 play when the Coyotes suffered a 35-34 upset loss to Sands Mustangs, who'll take on Balmorhea's Bears - the runner-up to Grandfalls-Royalty in District 7 — Friday night in

"We were hoping we wouldn't have to play them ... at least not this early," Avery admitted. "But not winning our district put us here."

That loss to Sands, however, may well have been the best thing that's happened to the Coyotes this season.

"I think we were in the same situation that Stanton was," Avery said, noting that Stanton coach Mark Cotton said the defending Class 2A champion Buffs benefited from a loss to Seagraves by being relieved of self-imposed pressure not to lose. "Losing did take some of the pressure off.

"Every coach I've talked to who's been in this position says the same thing ... you wind up walking out there every night trying not to get defeated rather than trying to win," he added. "Once all that pressure is off. you can start enjoying the game again and we have. We've had one bad half since then ... the first half against Ira ... but since then nobody's been able to stay with us.

Asked what the Coyotes will have to do to counter the Cowboys' vaunted quickness, Avery said Borden County will answer it with some speed of its

"This is probably going to be just like last year ... not only in the football game, but in track, too," he explained. "Our sprint relay teams dueled all season last year in track and we've both got those kids on the football field. It's going to be a great

That's the same observation Sands head coach Billy Barnett had as he prepared his Mustangs for Friday night's 7:30 kickoff with Balmorhea.

While the Bears have lost three games this season, Barnett says one need only look at the teams that beat Balmorhea to judge the quality of the Mustangs' opposition this "They've had their ups and downs ... just like we have," Barnett said. "They lost two games to extremely good teams

Gonzalez, happy with second MVP, now rooting for Sosa

ARLINGTON (AP) — The skinny guys with the big swings from the 1987 Gastonia Rangers sure have come a long

Juan Gonzalez was named the AL MVP for the second time in three years on Wednesday, and Sammy Sosa, Gonzalez's long-ago teammate and still a good friend, was expected to take home the NL honor today. Gonzalez is the first native Latin American player with two MVPs, and this could be the first time Latin players sweep the award in both leagues. Gonzalez is from Puerto Rico and Sosa from the Dominican Republic.

"Absolutely, it would be a special moment for all Latin America for both players to win the MVP award in the same year," Gonzalez said in a conference call from San Juan.

Gonzalez began the year on a monster RBI pace, driving in 101 by the All-Star break to join Hank Greenberg as the only players to crack the century mark by the season's traditional midpoint.

While most of the country tracked Mark McGwire and Sosa pursuing Roger Maris' mark of 60 homers, Texas fans followed Gonzalez's pursuit of Hack Wilson's record of 190 RBIs in 1930. But after reaching 116 RBIs in 105 games, Gonzalez injured his hamstring, and his production tailed off. He still finished with 157, the most in the AL since Boston teammates Ted Williams and Vern Stephens had 159 in 1949. Sosa, however, drove in 158 to lead the majors.

Gonzalez admitted he really wanted when I drove in the first 101 in the first half, I had a great chance," he said.

Gonzalez came into this season determined to put up huge numbers. He worked out with a trainer all offseason and stated his biggest goal was 162 games played. He ended at 154, his most since 1992, while hitting .318 with 45 homers and an AL-best 50 doubles.

"The key for this year was staying healthy, playing 154 games," Gonzalez said. "When I'm healthy, I'm putting (up) the best numbers I can.

A healthy Gonzalez also bodes well for the Rangers. They won their second AL West title this season, the other coming in '96 when Gonzalez won his first MVP.

'What would we have done without him? Our story would have been totally

"I was disappointed a little bit because different," Texas manager Johnny Oates said.

> Gonzalez won the 1996 award 290-287 over Seattle shortstop Alex Rodriguez, a margin he called "too tight." This time, he received 21 first-place votes and seven seconds in balloting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America to comfortably top Boston shortstop Nomar Garciaparra, 357-232.

"It feels more exciting now," Gonzalez said. Gonzalez is the 22nd player to receive multiple MVPs. The only other active players in that elite group are San Francisco's Barry Bonds and Chicago

White Sox first baseman Frank Thomas. "I am real excited (to win) my second time," Gonzalez said. "When you work hard, you see the result."

think anybody's figured out what they do defensively. They have a lot of different looks and attack the football out of every one of them. "That's going to force us to be pretty basic offensively this week," Cotton added. "We'll cut our play selection way down and concentrate on what we do best. It's also going to put some pressure on our defense to get recognition ... to see what formation they're in and what they like to do in that alignment."

But Cotton does admit being confident following the Buffs performance against Farwell in which they piled up 493 yards of total offense

"We played really well last week," he noted. "They did have a very good defense, but we came out and played probably our best game of the year ... at least as well as we did in the Post game and there's no question it was our best game passing this season."

You have many more options this year than you have had in awhile. You increase your security and add to your sense of wellbeing. You easily communicate who you are and your financial ideas. Greet the unexpected at home as a friend and not as an enemy. If you are single, this is a banner romantic year; love knocks on your door. If attached, the two of you enjoy a child or major project together. Indulge your significant other. SAGITTARIUS helps you make money.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Communications excel and permit new views, discussions and agreements. Don't read more into a situation than there is. Face the obvious, and work with reality. The unexpected occurs with a friend, but by now, you are used to it. Tonight: Take off ASAP.*

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A partner comes through for you. Finally, you see eye to eye. Make important decisions, move forward and accept an offer. Set aside time to do the politically correct thing. Network, and make new contacts, but don't forget to call that special friend. Tonight: TGIF.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Make an effort, and reach out for others. You connect with a key associate in a meaningful way. Make agreements; don't avoid a risk. Insights are forthcoming. You are popular and alive. A boss places enormous trust in on you. Tonight: Enjoy the moment.*

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Get into work, and clear up as much as possible. Your ability to get the job done counts. A surprising development means a different financial outcome. A new path proves exciting. Tonight: Try a new spot.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Lively conversations draw your attention. A child reveals another side that intrigues you. The unexpected occurs with a friend; work it through with him. An opportunity to increase your financial standing in the community becomes possible. Tonight: Ah, romance!*

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

A partner smiles upon you. Talk to him about your work; let him share in what is happening. You are building stronger foundations. You finally come to a conclusion in a domestic matter. Don't settle; go for exactly what you want. Tonight: Expect good times close to home.*

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

You are on overload, you have so much to do. Start clearing it out, rather than worrying. You achieve the results you want by charging right in. New work means more opportunities to grow financially. Be willing to put in that extra time. Tonight: Visit friends.*

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Financially possibilities are likely if you open your mind. Be careful about overspending. Let optimism play a larger role in your life, but be realistic about someone's limits. Clear your desk, so you can get out early. Tonight: Eat with friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Don't carve your day in stone. You will be happier if you let go and enjoy. A family member has good news. Make plans to invite friends over for a holiday gathering. You can convince others just how right you are. Your charisma speaks. Tonight: Whatever is your pleasure.*

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You are getting a lot of information; though you might want to act on it, don't! You find that you understand others' motives better when you ask questions. Being less judgmental helps others talk to you about what is really going on. Tonight: Take a night off. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Emphasize friendship. Others come to you with what they think are great moneymaking ideas. Be sensible, yet appreciative. Bond with friends, talk through problems and stay lighthearted. Others value your unique point of view. Don't underestimate yourself. Tonight: The party begins.**

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Accept the limelight. You have unusual energy. As a result, you get a lot done quickly. Others rely on your quick insights and understanding. Your bubbly personality could distract a boss or co-worker. Try to concentrate on one job or item at a time. Tonight: Work
